TAX SUITS INSTITUTED

Complaints are Filed Against 60 Properties on First St.

Thursday being the last day upon which complaint could be made and suit instituted in cases of delinquent grade assessment, the city attorney filed on that day 32 separate complaints, involving about 60 properties on First street and the sheriff returned service of summons in nearly every instance. The attorney was obliged to make a payment of $4. as filing fee in each case.

No action was taken regarding Front street, the muddle here presented being too complicated to justify the attorney preceding in the matter without the backing of the council and with no funds except what he must be personally responsible for.

The suits instituted on First st. comprise all properties on which no payment has been made, except a few that have considerable complications. These the attorney did not feel that he was justified in proceeding against alone and opposed by the council. A number of the properties upon which a part payment has been made are still liable for payments, as the limitation does not run on these for four years. The attorney is also of the opinion that where a 50 per cent. payment was made prior to January 1, 1901, it constitutes full payment by resolution of council to that effect. He is further of the opinion that all other properties have escaped by limitation, through failure of council to protect the lien, and through his inability to do so for want of funds.

BIG DRILL COMING

The Expenditure of $13,000 Already Made Will Be Increased

Some weeks ago we printed an unauthorized story regarding coal deposits found six or eight miles West of Port Angeles.

This we are enabled through the courtesy of General Manager D. J. O'Brien to confirm the account in detail with the exception of the size of the vein which Mr. O'Brien did not mention. He says, however, they expect to have three separate veins, each of sufficient quantity to pay for working and of a grade better than any bituminous coal on the coast for general use. It will all be of good size when mined, thus attesting its superiority.

Asked as to the the real condition of the find, Mr. O'Brien said: "We have spent so far in the neighborhood of $13,000 during the months we have been at work on this prospect and the fact that we will soon have on the grounds a much larger and more costly drill to work in connection with the one now in use should remove all doubt where such exists. We have no occasion to tell what is not so and you can put it down as a fact that we will be shipping coal at no very distant date."

"Will you ship from Freshwater Bay or from Angeles?"

"One cannot tell what people will do," said Mr. O'Brien, intimating that if the necessary privileges could be gotten in the city shipment would be made from here; otherwise the company expects a pretty good sized town to the West of us.

Asked regarding the arrival of his eastern associates, Mr. O'Brien stated that though he was looking for them some weeks ago they were unable to get here. He received a letter, however, Wednesday stating that they would be here about the first of the year and he expects them early next week.

"We expect also," said the gentleman, "to drill below the coal beds to ascertain whether there are any indications of oil. Drilling will be resumed very shortly."

THE WATER FRANCHISE.

New Draft With Most of the Amendments to Date

Council put in considerable time Wednesday, spending three hours before supper in committee and a like space of time after in regular session considering water grant.

EVENING SESSION.

Street committee reported cost of Oak street connection as follows: Lumber, $240.00; piling, spikes, nails, labor, etc., $121.67. Committee also recommended that crossing on Twelfth and Laurel streets be constructed at a cost of $10.00; adopted.

Regarding clearing of city lots for new power house, the electric light committee recommended that engineer establish line of lots, and that a ditch be dug in rear of lots West to Valley street, for the purpose of draining same. It was so ordered.

Committee of the whole, to whom was referred ordinance granting water franchise, reported in favor of grant when ordinance acceptable to committee is submitted by grantees.

Mr. Gutenberg reported a substitute ordinance from the franchise committee, granting a franchise to Mr. Lingenbrink. Mr. Hallahan wanted to know how the ordinance with the committee's amendments got into the hands of the franchise committee since 6 o'clock. After some discussion the ordinance was finally read as a new ordinance providing: 1, for a general water grant

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

Superior Court says Time Does Not Run Against Tax Liens.

SEATTLE, Dec. 28.—Time does not run against a tax lien, Judge Tallman decided in the superior court yesterday. The supreme court had already decided this to be true in the case of the regular annual revenue taxes, but Judge Tallman ruled that by parity of reasoning the same principle applies to a special assessment.

The decision was made in a test case by virtue of a special assessment levy, made by the city of Seattle to pay for street improvement, which was placed in judgment in September, 1897. Plaintiff maintained that the lien of the city was barred by the statute of limitations. Judge Tallman sustained the city's demurrer to the complaint.

Judge Tallman held that a fair application of the legal principle laid down by the supreme court in upholding the perpetuity of an ordinary tax lien would give the same force to a special assessment lien. He decided that it would be contrary to public policy to place the lien of a municipality upon the same basis as that of an individual.

BONDSMEN ARE FREE

The County Fails to Renew Judgment for Bank Losses.

About a week ago Com. Christopher served notice upon County Attorney Clementson that unless he took steps to renew the county's judgment against the bondsmen of former Treasurer Clump for moneys of the county lost by the failure of the First National bank years ago, he would hold him personally responsible.

A week rolled by and Thursday the last day arrived and the sheriff was sent out with the summons for the appearance of the bondsmen, but one of whom could be found. They had all been apprised of the belated action and kept out of the way to avoid personal summons, which it seems should have been made before midnight of the old year. The county is out as a consequence and the bondsmen are free.

In the case of Commissioner Thompson, who was one of the bondsmen, the sheriff reports that he couldn't even find a cat, dog or chicken on the ranch at Dungeness to serve.

BREVITIES

THE railroads have decided on a general advance of 17 1-2 per cent on all freight rates.

REP. DIXON, of Montana, has intr duced a bill in congress to construct a wire fence along boundary line between the United States and Canada. He also wants the wires charged so the boundary officers can summons help by telegraph if desired.

WHY all these columns of space seeking to prove that the president committed an unprecedented act equivalent to a declaration of war when he warned the Colombians not to interfere with the Panama rebels? The president admits the fact, and simply defends himself against the charge of plotting with the rebels against Colombia. He also seeks to justify his course by the claim that the end justified the means; that Colombia refused to confirm a treaty for the building of a canal through her territory so the coveted land was delivered to those whom it was understood would give any concession asked.

WHAT IS THIS TALK?

Whitelaw Reid, the great imperialist whom we sent abroad to kiss the hand of and bow down to the King of England, spoke recently before the New England Society at New York on "Forefathers' Day." Passing to a consideration of national "expansion" he said:

"Shall we find that safe course by roaming the ocean to drag in semitropical and revolutionary communities, to be made states in the American union, equal from the start to ourselves with sometimes, perhaps, a balance of power that may enable them to govern us and the land of our fathers? Such questions have burst on us too suddenly out of our recent expansion to justify at the outset harsh criticism of any rash or ill considered proposals that my rise to the surface in the first froth of public discussion. But I venture to predict that the time will come within the lives of many who now hear me when the man who shall propose the incorporation as a state into this government of the United States of America of any island of the sea, the Philippines, the Sandwich Islands, or Porto Rico, or Cuba, will be hunted from political life as a political enemy, whether he be animated merely by lingering reminiscences of the filibusterers and the slavery propaganda, or whether he represent a sugar trust in Wall street or a sage brush trust in the United States senate."

Suddenly the suspicious wife swoops down upon her husband, who is spending the day at a seaside resort in the company of a number of other people. He is, when discovered, holding the fingers of a pale blond fairy and whispering something reckless to her.

"Aha, John William Smitherker!" shouts the wife.

John William jumps some ten or fifteen feet sidewise and gazes at his wife with startled eyes.

"Why, why—you see, my dear—I—business engagement—explain it all very readily—I—you"—

"That 'll do, John William Smitherker! False, deceitful wretch! If you ain't the picture of guilt!"

"I may be that, Miranda," he pleads. "I may be the picture of guilt, but I beg you to believe that I was drawn into it."—Chicago Tribune.

Merely a Yarn.

"You are crewel," sighed the swain.

"Is that sew?" giggled the damsel.

"Darn it!" he cried, his temper rising. "Are you never going to stop breaking the thread of my discourse?"

"Knit!" she retorted.

Realizing that he was worsted, he stifled the impulse to say something knotty and wound himself up.—Judge.

"But surely you don't believe in running over and mangling people that are not quick enough to get out of the way of your automobile, do you?" said the mild mannered magistrate to the man with the big goggles.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Your Heart.

When Your Heart Fails to Pump Your Blood, Trouble Results.

Have you heart trouble?

You have, if you find it hard to breathe after walking up stairs, exercising, etc. If you have pain in your left side, in chest, back or shoulder. If you suffer from cold extremities, pale face, blue lips, dry cough, swollen ankles.

If you have fainting spells, breast pang, palpitation, redness of the face, discomfort in sleeping on one side.

The only scientific treatment for this whole train of troubles is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is the prescription of a famous specialist, whose great success in treating obstinate nervous heart disease has made his name pre-eminent in the medical and scientific world.

The medicine will cure you. We know it. We want you to prove it. If first bottle does not benefit, your druggist will give you back your money.

"I have for several years suffered at times with heart trouble. I got so bad I could not sleep half the night, and had to sit up on the side of the bed lots of times to get breath. Three of my brothers have died of heart trouble, and I thought I was going the same way, but about two and a half years ago I got a pamphlet about Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and thought I would try a few bottles. After using them I recovered, and have had better health since then than before for several years. I can heartily recommend them for heart trouble."—REV. A WONDERFUL WORK.

SEN. SPOONER, OF WISCONSIN, Having a tilt with Senator Tillman.

To be a man who can excel one hundred thousand men in any one line is good; to be one in a million is better; but to be the only living man, (and the second one in the history of the world), who has drawn a perfect single line picture, is wonderful! This Mr. Fleming, author and illustrator of "Around the Pan," and "Around the Capital" ($2.00 books) has done in his drawing of McKinley. Price on best Japanese paper, $1.00. His "Around the Capital," containing one hundred and fifty full-page Washington life pen and ink sketches and five hundred prominent Americans, portraits of prominent statesmen, including the ambassadors and commanders participating in the Spanish-American War—comprising by far the greatest collection of facts and faces ever produced in one volume in condensed form, will interest the entire civilized world. The drawings equal, if they do not surpass those of John Tenniel's, for which work he was knighted by Queen Victoria. The humorous contagious.

Notie of Sheriff's Sale

OF REAL ESTATE

In the Superior Court of the State of Washington, for Clallam County.

Paul Violet, Plaintiff, vs. William Haden, Defendant.

Under and by virtue of an order of sale issued out of and under the seal of the Superior court of the State of Washington, holding terms at Port Angeles, in and for said county, on the 3rd day of November, A. D., 1903, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the 2nd day of November, A. D., 1903, in favor of Paul Violet and against William Haden, for the sum of Three Hundred and Ninety-two and 65-100 Dollars, together with attorney's fees, interest, costs and increased costs, and to me duly directed and delivered, commanding me to sell the following described property to satisfy said judgment, to-wit:

The northwest quarter [NW1/4] of the northwest quarter (NW1/4) of section thirty-one [31] and the southwest quarter (SW1/4) of the southwest quarter (SW1/4) of section thirty [30] all in township thirty [30] North of range two [2] West of Willamette Meridian, in Clallam county State of Washington.

Now, therefore, Notice is hereby given that on Saturday, the 5th day of December, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, I will sell the above-decribed property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, to satisfy judgment, together with attorney's fees, interest, costs and increased costs, in all amounting to the sum of four hundred and twenty-five and 60-100 dollars.

Said sale will take place at the front door of the court house at Port Angeles, in said county and state, and will be at public auction, for cash in hand to the highest and best bidder.

Dated at Port Angeles, Wash., this 4th day of November, A. D., 1903.

CHEESE MAKING

Many people like new, uncured cheese. They are not aware of the indigestible character of such cheese, says Heard's Dairyman. The following statement, which is scientifically true, will illustrate the point we are making concerning the superior digestibility of well cured cheese. This statement is made by Professor Vivian, formerly of the Wisconsin experiment station:

"When the cheese is first made the casein, or curd, is in perfectly insoluble condition, no part of it being soluble in water. In the space of about a year, however, half of this casein has been converted into a condition which is soluble in water. In other words, it has been digested, for we find upon chemical analysis that the changes taking place are very much such changes as will take place in the stomach and intestines. That is the true digesting, and we have the digestive products. Cheese should never be eaten that has not been well cured, for if eaten in such condition it is apt to cause very serious derangement of the digestion."

Pepsin Instead of Rennet.

Professor Alfred Vivian of the department of agricultural chemistry of the Ohio State university has discovered that pepsin can be used in cheese making instead of rennet extract, and by considerable experimenting he has perfected the process. It has been tried in regular factory work, and cheese of this method has been graded as equal to the best New York state cheese. The product will be of a uniform quality and the process of making simplified and somewhat cheapened.

"Imported" Cheese.

There is really very little foreign cheese imported into this country. Limburger, Roquefort and other brands of putrid cheese are made in this country and sold as imported. American manufacturers can make cheese to smell as bad as any German or Frenchman that ever lived.—Farm and Ranch.

Bilious Colic Prevented.

Take a double dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy as soon as the first indication of the disease appears and a threatened attack may be warded off. Hundrecs of people use the remedy in this way with perfect success. For sale by W. J. Mathewson.

New Type And Machinery.

THE DEMOCRAT LEADER is now better than ever prepared to do fine job printing; in fact it is the only office in the city that has a large press for large work and small presses for small jobs.

We recently purchased the handsome Courier press—the best in the city—and have received direct from the manufacturers in the East some handsome new type of mammoth size together with borders, rules, etc., and a handsome new furbiture rack. We now have everything to do first-class work, and if we cannot now do satisfactory job work of any description it cannot be done in town, or this side of Seattle. Our prices are right, too, as you will find them.

CONSTIPATION

WASHING BUTTER.

Device For Purifying Water at Iowa College of Agriculture.

The dairy department of the Iowa State College of Agriculture, which has been carrying on experiments for some time having in view the improvement of the keeping qualities of butter, has at last discovered a device by which the desired results are successfully obtained, says the Farmers' Advocate.

The device which results in the complete purification of wash water so extensively used in all Iowa creameries, by the destruction of all undesirable germs and bacteria which cause the rapid deterioration of butter in quality and flavor, is of the utmost importance and flavor to all dairymen.

The department, assisted by the state dairy commissioner in Des Moines, will co-operate with the dairymen in the state to put the device into practical use in their own creameries.

A large filtering plant has been completed, consisting of a tank having a great number of layers of small stones, gravel, sand, charcoal and coke, through which the impure water is thoroughly filtered. The average wash water used in Iowa's creameries has been found to contain from 5,000 to 10,000 germs per cubic centimeter, and the only method for purification heretofore has been by the process of pasteurization, which has been found very expensive and almost impracticable. Water taken from shallow wells in various parts of the state which first proved to be completely infested with these harmful bacteria was experimented with, and after the filtration the filtrate was found to be chemically pure and free from all undesirable germs, as shown by chemical and bacterial analysis.

By the installation of such a plant in each creamery in the state and the use of chemically pure water for purposes of washing butter it is the expectation of the department that the keeping qualities of Iowa butter will be much improved, thus saving a considerable amount of cold storage expenses to commission houses handling butter in the state.

Notice to Delinquent Co-Owners

To Ben. Johnson, William Banks, their heirs and assigns.

You are hereby notified that during the years 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, the undersigned have expended more than $100, for each year above named, less $10.00 paid in the year 1898, by the said Ben. Johnson, and less than the sum of $45.00, paid in 1899 by the said William Banks, in labor and improvements upon the "Iron King Mining Lode," situated in Clallam County, and State of Wasaington, on the West End of Hurricane Mountain, in which mining location you, each, respectively claim an undivided one-fourth interest, as shown by the notice thereof of record, on page 170, vol, 3, of Mining Records, in the office of the the Auditor for the County of Clallam and State of Washington.

The said labor was performed as and for the annual representation of said claim for the said years of 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, and 1902, as required by the provisions of Section 2324 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and the amendment thereto approved January 22nd., 1880, concerning annual labor upon mining claims, and the same was the amount required to hold said claim for each of said years. You are further notified that unless within ninety days after the personal service of this notice upon you, or within ninety days after the publication thereof, you contribute, each, your portion of such expenditure as a co-owner, to-wit: The sum of $115·00 due by the said Ben Johnson; and the sum of $80 00 due by the said William Banks, your respective interests in the claim will be forfeited to the undersigned co-owners who have made such expenditure, and will become their property in the manner provided by law.

Dated Septemser 28, 1903.

Saved His Life.

J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 14, 1002: "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a lump in my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two moths longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. The first application gave me great relief; two fifty cent bottles cured me sound and well. It is a wonderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity." 25c. 50c $1.00. C. E. Nailor & Co.

A remonstrance from a majority of the voters of the Sixth ward did not make any visible impression on the member from that district.

THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER does not hesitate to say that it would take a decidedly different stand were the election this instead of last month.

THE city council held four sessions during the week in committee of the whole considering the water and power franchise. The grantee was very desirous that the ordinance be passed Wednesday night and several councilmen favored such action. Others declared emphatically that they would not vote until they had time to thoroughly consider every detail and would under no consideration vote at this time to bind the city to take power which could not be contracted for intelligently and in definite and specific language.

IN another column is given a decision on assessment liens that has attracted some attention here as a possible bearing on the local dispute. In the Seattle case, however, the lien in in the form of a judgment which the court holds time cannot remove.

WERE it not a fact that there seems little fear that the council will bind the city to any contract for purchase of power we would have some pertinent remarks to make regarding this portion of the water grant. The city is in no position at this time to consider intelligently what it needs or what it can produce power for.

AFTER years of banishment Capt. Dreyfus has been granted a third hearing through the change in testimony of one of his accusers. The new trial is to be before a French civic tribunal, though Dreyfus will demand that the hearing be had before a court martial. It might be said that no court however disposed can begin to restore the accused to his former position. Broken in health, robbed of wealth, ambition killed and hope torm from him, Dreyfus is a wreck of his former self.

THE fact that when things get too warm for some of the big fellows they look around for a scape goat is again proved by the demand of Mayor Campbell for the resignation of Engineer Taylor. Things are beginning to look bad in Tacoma and the mayor seeks to impress the voters that the engineer is responsible therefor and that he is their protector. The engineer, however, refuses to resign and it is up to the mayor to present some reason for his summary action.

COUNTY NEWS.

Quillayute News.

Quillayute.

There is no end to the freightsrs lamentations about the conditions of the county road between here and Clallam and from all accounts the roads are in a disgraceful condition. There are many bad places which it would not take a great deal of time or money to put in a passable condition and it is claimed that in one of the districts on the worst end of the road there are many who have not worked out their poll tax. It does seem that the poll tax should be mustered out on to the impassable places even if there are no other available means at hand.

Our forest ranger has been laid off for the winter and he is building an addition to his house. Chis says there is more wolf and cougar signs up the river on the reserve than he has ever seen before. Unless the state takes some action in regrrd to the bounty on these game destroyers this part of the county will be ruined for deer and elk hunting in the near future.

It is reported that an eastern man who recently purchased 8,000 acres of land situated in the weslern part of Jefferson county paying 50 cents an acre for it, is now out here looking up his title while the company that made the sale is enjoying the dough. Rumor has it that the investor is not very well satisfied with his investment and is talking of resorting to the courts. It is to be hoped that parties who leased lands in this vicinity to wild cat concerns for oil purposes will not be involved.

Veteran Passes Away

Benj. Anderson, aged 74 years, died Christmas morning at 5 o'clock after a short final illness, brought on by a complication of diseases. His last hours were very peaceful, simply falling into a deep sleep from which he did not awake.

The funeral took place Sunday at 10 a. m., from the family home under the direction of the G. A. R., of which organization deceased was a member. The Rev. Fulmer, of the M. E. church conducted a short preliminary service.

Deceased was born in Norway. At the age of 18 he came to America locating in Wisconsin. He was a veteran of the civil war and here contracted the stomach troubles that culminated in his death. He came to Port Angeles with his family six years ago where he has since resided.

A bereaved wife three daughters and four sons survive him.

The undersigned wish to thank all those who so kindly assisted them in their recent great bereavement and especially the members of the G. A. R. and Relief corps. Mrs. Benj. Anderson
Mrs. Larsen,
Hoover Anderson.

At the regular annual business meeting of the First Congregational Church held Thursday night a new constitution was adopted, which all members will be asked to subscribe to. No clause of the new law can under its provisions be suspended. Reports were read, and officers for the coming year elected as follows: Clerk; Mrs. H. C. Miller; Treasurer D. W. Morse; deacons, J. E. Cockran for 3 years; J. B. Cosser, 2 years; D. W. Morse, 1 year; trustees, D. W. Morse, 3 years; L. R. Flowers, 2 years; A. J. Cosser, 1 year. The ladies then served refreshments in the church parlors and as the hour of midnight was near at hand the New Year was welcomed before adjournment. An adjourned meeting will be held next Thursday.

Xmas day Mr. and Mrs. David Craig kept open house and a large circle sf friends were received. Delicious refreshments were served to all comers and the greetings of the season spoken. Everything was informal and a very delightfully affair the occasion proved.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Babcock, assisted by Miss Laura Babcock, entertained a few friends Wednesday night at progressive flinch. An exceedingly pleasant time is reported. Tempting refreshments were served Besides those mentioned there were present, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Graves, Misses Helen Hopkins, Tot Dick, Odessa Buck; Prof. I. L. Ullery, E. W. Merrill, Alvin Nace.

The Yeomen elected officers Monday night for the coming year as follows: Honorable Foreman, A. J. Cosser; Master of Ceremonies, Scott B. Perkins; Correspondent, W. J. Mathewson; Master of Accounts, W. Mathewson Chaplain, Mrs. A. J. Cosser. Overseer, Mrs. O. L. Burdick; Lady Rebecca, Mrs W. J. Mathewson; Lady Rowena, Mrs. W. H. Lyster; Watchman, George Burdick; Guard, Wm. Elves; Sentinel, W. E. H. Lyster. The usual enjoyable social and luncheon was had after the business session.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moore entertained a few friends Thursday evening in honor of the Misses Cochel, of Whatcom, who are visiting in the city.

The Harmony club held a festive session at whist Thursday at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. McGillivray, after which delilicious and appetizing refreshments were served. It was the last meeting of the quarter and the prizes for the best playing during the term were presented, Mrs. E. A. Fitz Henry taking first on a total score of 117 and Mrs. Lauridsen second on 116.

Miss Inez McLaughlin entertained a number of the former classmates of Miss Frances Cochel last evening in honor of the latter. A jolly time is reported.

Mrs. A. J. Cosser entertained a few friends of Miss Charlotte Cochel last evening at flinch.

We seldom fear a danger that we cannot see. The danger of being run-down by a horse is a very real one to everybody, the danger of being murdered by a microbe does not trouble us. And yet the minute microbe is more dangerous than the wildest horse.

The only people who can afford not to fear the microbes of disease are those who keep their blood pure and rich. These are practically immune from the attacks of most microbes.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies and enriches the blood, and gives the body a vigorous vitality. It cures scrofula, eczema, boils, pimples and other eruptive diseases which are caused by impure blood.

"I had been troubled for about four years with eczema, or a skin disease, which at times was almost unbearable as it would itch so," writes Mr. John Larison, of 115 Powhattan St., Dallas, Texas. "I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after using five bottles found that I was entirely cured. Please accept many thanks."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the blood.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

A LARGE METEORITE.

Eastern Scientist Locates One Weighing Fifty Tons in Mexico.

Some Special Attraction Seems to Exist in That Region for Metallic Missiles from the Heavens.

At a meeting of the Rochester Academy of Science recently, Prof. Henry A. Ward, of Chicago, talked informally on his latest expedition in search of meteors when he succeeded in unearthing the largest known meteor in the world. Prof. Ward stated that he had just returned from a visit to the West Indies, South America, and Mexico, and that while in Mexico he found what he went after—a very large meteorite, reports the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat.

"You know how many meteorites have been found in Mexico?" he said. "Why, they are so large and of iron formation, is what puzzles. Some have said it is due to some special attraction of the minerals in Mexico, but this hardly seems possible to me, owing to the rapidity with which the earth revolves; and if a meteor were attracted to a given spot, the velocity of the earth's momentum would throw it far from this point of attraction. To me it seems likely that the explanation is the dry atmosphere of the country—the meteor is not worn or decomposed. Still, it is an interesting question what has caused this meteoric fall which has no parallel in the earth.

"The same question might come up in regard to the construction of the meteorites, which are all of iron, there being only two or three stone found. In Arizona and Kansas the meteors found are all of stones. It is very puzzling. The Mexican government has been very liberal in bringing together these meteorites, which are grouped before a building in the City of Mexico, and handsomely mounted, some $50,000 being appropriated for this purpose.

"I had heard a rumor of a very large meteorite in the country bordering the gulf. These rumors were so uncertain that they made a search for it very tempting, so having a month at my disposal, I determined to set out and try to settle the question one and for all in regard to the existence of this meteorite."

Prof. Ward here gave a very interesting account of his expedition in search of the mammoth meteorite. The first thing he did was to hunt up a photographer to accompany him, and this matter gave him some difficulty, since he was afraid he might not find any one in Mexico willing to undertake the expedition. But after finding his man arrangements were quickly made.

They made the journey partly by rail, then along the seacoast and the volcanic region, disembarking at Colima and traveling by mule around the volcanic mountain of Colima. He described this volcano as emitting sudden and silent explosions of vapor which rise in the air like a flower. He traveled about 95 miles from the coast, and finally found the meteorite about which so many rumors had reached the scientific ear, some declaring it was as large as a ship. It was found in a cultivated cornfield.

Prof. Ward engaged some 28 Mexicans to dig it out for him, paying them 75 cents a day, which was double their regular wages. It took them a day and a half to dig around the mass and expose its base. It rested on solid rock, and had not this rock intervened, it would have disappeared in the earth, the speaker declared. There was absolutely no soil between it and the rock on which it lay. All the surrounding soil had undoubtedly sunk in since the meteor fell, and if this is so, it will carry its fall very far back in the past, the speaker said.

Prof. Ward gave the size as 13 feet 1 inch in length, 6 feet 4 inches thick, and 5 feet 4 inches wide, and the probable weight as 45 or 50 tons. The outside was well preserved, the absence of moisture in the atmosphere preventing decomposition. The pittings were finely distributed all over it. There was one large crack.

By using small sticks of dynamite, Prof. Ward was enabled to separate several large specimens of this meteorite, which he declared as beautiful in formation. The great mass will probably never be removed. He estimated it would cost something like $50,000 to get it to the seaport. But the discovery is an exceedingly valuable one, in settling once and for all the existence of this meteorite, and is of special interest of scientists. It is stated by Prof. Dodge, president of the academy, that Prof. Ward possesses the largest collection of meteorite ever gotten together by one individual, though the latter says it ranks fourth in size in the world.

Gamblers' Eyes . .

By HARRY C. CARR

copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

When the smoke cleared away in the saloon there was another job for the young frontier parson. Charley McCartney had killed the tenderfoot.

Charley explained grimly that he needed killing; he cheated in poker. The rest of them took his word for it and turned the case over to the parson.

It was only when the parson went through the tenderfoot's pockets that he found anything different in this case from various others that had come under his notice.

He found a letter there. He found various other things. There were money and some pictures. The parson burned the pictures. They were not nice pictures. He figured it out that the tenderfoot came west because they could spare him from his home circle.

But the parson saved the letter; it was a pitiful thing.

Somebody's mother had written to the tenderfoot as he was leaving for the west. She wanted him to hunt for her boy.

"Tell him to come back to me," the letter said. "Tell him I've prayed to

HE WAS KICKING HIS HEELS AND WRIGGLING LIKE A LITTLE EEL.

God every day of my life to keep him"— And here the writing grew illegible. The parson thought it looked like tear stains.

The parson read on to the end. That letter was the inside of a mother's heart. At the very end it told the name of her boy. The parson had heard of him by reputation—not the very best of reputations. The name of the man was Charley McCartney.

The parson was not squeamish. He got over being squeamish long ago. He was used to killings and sudden death. But there was something strange and awful in this coincidence.

When the tenderfoot was decently buried and the parson had said the "ashes to ashes" and the "dust to dust" for him he put on his hat and walked down the line of the saloons. He turned in at the biggest and toughest.

The big red faced man who seemed to be the presiding genius of the place looked up in surprise. He knew the parson. Everybody knew him.

"Going to take some chips and come into the game?" as asked facetiously. But he held out his hand, and the parson took it cordially. Each of these men respected the other in a way. The red faced man was a gambler, but the parson knew where the money came from that did many a little act of charity that no one else knew of.

"I—I think I've come to copper your ace," said the parson. Then he asked where Charley McCartney could be found. The gambler looked at him narrowly for a moment. Then he pointed across the room.

"That guy with the chips piled in front of him is Charley McCartney," he said briefly.

The parson walked slowly across the room to Charley McCartney. He never had seen him close to before. McCartney had a fine face. But the parson instinctively found himself hoping that his old mother back home hadn't seen many gamblers. McCartney was beginning to look like a gambler. He had the face, especially the eyes.

His eyes twitched at the corners, and they were getting puffy underneath. His face had begun to take on that inscrutable masklike look which is one of the hall marks of a professional gambler.

The parson watched him for a moment from across the table. Then he walked slowly around and rested his foot on a rung of the gambler's chair.

McCartney turned on him like a flash, with a curse on his lips. A foot on the rung of your chair sends your luck away to the owner of the foot, as every one knows. But when he saw who it was he sank back abashed, with a murmured apology on his lips.

"Mac," said the parson gently, "cash in. I want to see you."

McCartney looked back at the table, where a stiff stud poker game was going on, and then at the parson. There was a glint of suspicion in his eyes. But he cashed in and the two walked over to a distant corner of the room.

The parson handed him the letter without a word. McCartney looked up with quick distrust as he read the first lines. But as he read on his thin, sensitive lips quivered a little, and the parson saw that he had been cut to the quick. His voice was strained and dry as he said, "I—that's pretty rough, parson."

"I found that in the pocket of the tenderfoot you shot, Mac," said the parson slowly.

McCartney winced and looked pitifully at the parson.

"I—I didn't know," he said. "I—my God, parson, it seems like I'd shot my mother."

The parson tried to tell him it was all for good; told him to go back to his mother. But McCartney shook his head.

"I can't do it, parson," he said. "I guess I've wasted all my trumps. I don't know how to do anything but gamble."

The parson fumbled over a few ineffectual words. McCartney caught him suddenly by the arm and said almost savagely: "That isn't true; you know it isn't. Look me straight in the eyes. Parson, I look like a gambler, don't I? I've got gambler's eyes, haven't I?"

The parson said something about the change that would come with different surroundings.

McCartney grunted scornfully. "Different surroundings!" he said bitterly. "Where would I get different surroundings? Where is there a decent home open to me now? I've dropped out." He turned away with a gesture of utter despair.

The parson hooked his arm through the gambler's. "I know a place up here," he said.

They looked up from the faro tables in surprise to see Charley McCartney, the wildest plunger in town, walking out arm in arm with the parson. He never came back.

McCartney walked along with his hat pulled low over his eyes. The parson laboriously manufactured conversation and McCartney didn't hear a word of it.

As the parson turned in at his own door he felt McCartney's arm relax in his own, but he dragged him along.

The Mrs. Parson met them. She was hardly more than a girl and she was in the sweet freshness of a summer gown. It was long since McCartney had met a good woman. On her arm was a baby—the parson's boy.

"I want to introduce my friend, Charley McCartney," said the parson heartily as they came up the steps.

The girl moved the baby over on the other arm and held out a slim, cool hand. Her fine blue eyes met McCartney's eyes frankly.

It went straight to his heart. "Ah, dear God," he thought to himself. "She doesn't know!" She didn't know they were gambler's eyes, and she was a good woman; it wasn't too late. The tears came into his eyes and blinded him and he could not speak. Only his heart was saying over and over to him: "She doesn't know. She doesn't know."

The baby squirmed around in his mother's sweet young arms and looked gravely at McCartney. All at once he gave a crow of delight and reached out his two chubby arms. He was kicking his heels and wriggling like a little eel. He wanted to go to McCartney.

"Mac, you own the house," said the parson solemnly. The parson's wife laughed joyously. But McCartney did not laugh. He hugged that baby close to his heart and the tears streamed down his cheeks. He did not care. He buried his face in that baby's dress and cried. The parson's wife drew the parson silently into the house and left the gambler with her baby.

McCartney stayed a week at the parson's house. Most of the time he played with the baby. He was very silent. At the end of a week he went away. The parson did not know where. McCartney said he would not go back to his mother just yet.

* * * * * * *

In the parson's desk there are two old faded telegrams. One is dated a year after McCartney left the parson's. It says simply that McCartney has struck it rich in the mines; that he has staked out a claim for the parson and is going home. It is dated at a place that the parson never heard of; he found out afterward it was in Alaska. The other telegram is from a little town in western New York. It says that he is home with his mother. "And," it says, "struck it rich again."

SAVED THE BIG SHAFT.

The Engineer Whose Skill Saved the Washington Monument from Falling.

If there is a man in the world who might restore the placidity of Venice, which has been so disturbed by the fall of the Campanile and the precarious condition of its other famous types of architecture, he is the new American major general who is shortly to relieve Chaffee of the Philippine command. For it was George W. Davis who saved the Washington monument from destruction, and by the application of his ingenuity solved fundamental problems in his unique, off-hand manner that had baffled the highest engineering skill of modern times, says the New York Tribune.

After the great shaft to the father of his country had risen slowly to the height of 197 feet and rested there like a rough factory chimney, an unfinished eyesore for 20 years, congress determined to complete it and gave the job to the army. Built on the edge of the Potomac marsh, as unstable as the soil of the queen of the Adriatic, the shaft had already leaned five feet out of plumb and nobody could be found to set it straight and insure its permanent stability until Davis, lately a quartermaster, then an infantry captain, volunteered to lift the hundreds of tons of masonry back to the perpendicular and build under it a foundation that would permit the lifting of its top to the highest point ever attained by a monument erected by man.

To hold the soft earth in place he built a huge barrel 100 feet in diameter around the base and drove it deep into the earth below the tidal level. He bound together the inclosed mass with piles and braces, weighting it all down with stones and concrete, until he had secured a stability that would endure forever. Then he wedged up the monument and put an everlasting foundation under it and finally turned the work over to the engineers under Col. Casey, who eventually set the capstone 555 feet above the earth. Up to this day the great structure has not moved a hair's breadth and frequent inspection demonstrates how wonderfully Davis planned. But as he cannot be spared from Manila to save Venice perhaps it would be as well for the Venetians to come to Washington and study his triumph.

Brides

Are always "beautiful" and always "happy" according to the society reporters, and in this case the report is mostly true. There may be unhappy brides in fiction, but there are few in real life. But how hard it is to look upon many of the wives we know, and believe that they were once beautiful and happy. Pain, the result of womanly disease, has marred beauty and undermined happiness.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"I have thought for some time I would write you and tell you of the great improvement in my health since taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" says Mrs. H. S. Jones, of Forest, N. C. "When I began its use I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having any health again. Could not sit up all day, and was so weak I could not walk one quarter of a mile. I noted a great improvement in my health before the first bottle was used. Was suffering with almost every pain that a woman is subject to; had inflammation of ovaries, painful and suppressed periods, and other symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' I felt like a new person. Can ride horseback and take all kinds of exercise and not feel tired."

If you are looking for a perfect laxative try Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

The Amateur Scientist.

"What are you thinking of?" she softly asked, a faint blush deepening the beautiful color of her soft, dimpled cheeks.

He had been looking at her in a dreamy way, without appearing to notice that she glanced up every little while and then permitted the long, curling lashes to veil her splendid eyes again.

Her question brought him suddenly to himself, and he realized how rude he had been to stare at her so.

"I—I was just thinking," he answered, floundering helplessly, "how funny it is that the beautiful diamonds sparkling on your—your breast and the streak of soot on your nose are composed of the same thing."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. Mr. Grubb moved that ordinance be taken up and read a second time by section for amendment. Reading was started and Mr. Hallahan stated he would not vote on any part of the ordinance until he had time to thoroughly consider same. The mayor referred the ordinance to the ordinance and franchise committees and the city attorney; no objection being raised.

A resolution passed by the taxpayers of the Sixth ward at a meeting held Tuesday evening was read as follows:

Resolved. That we are utterly opposed to the action taken by council in trying to impose a debt upon us created in the First, Second and Third assessment districts, before we became a part of the cit; that we consider the same to be unlawful and unjust.

Resolved. That we ask our councilman, Mr. Hoare, to reconsider and rescind his vote in stopping the city attorney from proceeding with the suits in those districts.

T. H. BRADSHAW, Chairman.
D. O'BRIEN, Secretary.

Mr. Mosher moved to table; Mr. Hallahan to file and the latter motion prevailed.

An ordinance fixing salaries of officers of the city and repealing all conflicting ordinances was introduced by Councilman Grubb. It raises the attorneys salary from $20. to $50. per month; clerk from $40. to $50; marshal from $40. to $50. Referred to ordinance committee. The committee at once referred ordinance back to council without recommendation. Mr. Grubb thereupon stated that council was undoubtedly opposed to raising salary of any officer except street commissioner and moved that all other clauses be eliminated. Upon motion of Mr. Hallahan ordinance was referred.

Mr. Richardson appeared before council in behalf of Mr. McCollum relative to the removal of obstruction in rear of his home. Council ordered marshal to proceed under ordinance in all matters upon complaint of adjacent property owners.

The clerk was directed to call for bids for clearing, grubbing and fencing 100x325 feet of cemetery as per plans on file. Bids to be in January 13.

To the Public.

Whereas, false and slanderous reports have been by myself heretofore circulated regarding Hanibal Hohmann, charging him with the crime of burglary or grand larceny in taking my potatoes and wine, I desire hereby to state that the information upon which I made such statements came to me from persons whom I, at the time, deemed truthful; but I have, since repeating them, found they were false and malicious in every particular, and I hereby publish this statement in justice to Mr. Hohmann.

PAUL BAYER.

Notice to Contractors

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the city clerk on and up to the hour of 4 o'clock p. m. on Wednesday, January 13th., 1894, for the clearing, grubbing and fencing of a part of Ocean View Cemetery, to-wit; A strip 340.3 feet long by 100 feet wide. Said work to be done according to specifications on file in my office.

Bids will be opened and considered at the meeting of the council of that date

The council reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

DEWEY

in command of the Asiatic squadron, consisting of the Olympia (flagship), first-class cruiser; Baltimore, Raleigh, Boston, second-class cruisers; Concord, third-class cruiser; Petrel, fourth-class cruiser; McCulloch, revenue cutter, used as a dispatch boat; Nanshan, collier; and Zafiro, supply vessel; with a total personnel of 1,694 officers and men.

On the breaking out of the war with Spain, April 22, 1898, Commodore Dewey was at Hong Kong with his squadron; and he received prompt instructions from Washington to find and destroy the Spanish fleet stationed somewhere in the Philippines. Accordingly, on Wednesday, April 27, he sailed with his squadron from Hong Kong in search of the enemy. The result may be given in his own first brief dispatch: "Manila, May 1.—Squadron arrived at Manila at daybreak this morning. Immediately engaged the enemy, and destroyed the following Spanish vessels: Reina Cristina, Castilla, Don Antonio de Ulloa, Isla de Luzon, Isla de Cuba, General Lezo, Marques del Duero, Cano, Velasco, Isla de Mindanao, a transport and water battery at Cavité. The squadron is uninjured, and only a few men are slightly wounded." Owing to the feeble defense of the Spaniards, Commodore Dewey's victory was an unexpectedly easy one; but that circumstance does not in the slightest degree detract from its workmanlike completeness, which, when contrasted with the trifling cost to the victor, made it one of the most remarkable victories in naval annals. Commodore Dewey's dispatch was received by President McKinley on May 7, and he at once telegraphed his thanks to Commodore Dewey, and notified him that, in recognition of his "splendid achievement," he had been appointed acting rear-admiral. Two days later the President sent a message to Congress recommending that the thanks of that body be given to "Acting Rear-Admiral George Dewey for highly distinguished conduct in conflict with the enemy, and to the officers and men under his command." On the same day (May 9) Congress passed a joint resolution of thanks, to the effect indicated, and voted to Admiral Dewey a sword of honor, and to his comrades medals commemorative of the victory. It also passed a bill increasing the number of rear-admirals from six to seven, to provide for Dewey's promotion. After the destruction of the Spanish fleet, Dewey subjected Manila to a strict blockade, and with his squadron took part in the capture of the city by General Merritt on Aug. 13, 1898. On March 2, 1899, he was created full admiral. (See also MANILA, in these Supplements.)

Admiral Dewey is a strict disciplinarian, and his action with the Spanish squadron showed that he is an admirable tactician, and a cool, clear-headed, skilful, and brave commander. He is an all-round athlete, a daring horseman and huntsman, and socially a good club man and a general favorite. At Portsmouth, N. H., in 1867, he married Miss Susy Goodwin, a daughter of Ichabod Goodwin, the "fighting governor" of New Hampshire. She died in 1872, leaving a son, George Goodwin Dewey, who, after graduating at Princeton, went into business in New York city.

HER ONE DAY OFF

By May Everett Glover

Copyright, 1902, by T. C. McClure

She was such a little woman, and he was a very large man. He first noticed her when the crowd began pushing toward the reviewing stand, and he could not help thinking that it must be hard for her to keep on her feet. Just then the parade was heard approaching, and again there was great pushing, in spite of the warnings of the policeman. The large man found himself just behind her. When the disappointed crowd swayed from the other direction, she was suddenly crowded against him.

"Look out there!" he exclaimed to the man next to her. "Can't you see how you are crowding this lady!" Then she felt an arm protectingly around her. "Excuse me, madam, but I am not going to let them crush a little mite like you."

There was such a free heartiness blended with anxiety in his tone that she laughed in spite of her indignation at the liberty he had taken.

"Thank you," she said when the crush was over and she had been released. She looked up for the first time into the dark, handsome face under the wide brimmed hat, which spoke so plainly of the west. "A cowboy," she thought. "I suppose that he has been one of the rough riders."

"No thanks needed in a crowd like this. I think it is a"— Then he paused, and his dark eyes scanned her questioningly. She felt her face flush. "Excuse me, have I ever seen you before?" he asked. "Oh, I know you! You are Anna! Beg pardon. I mean Miss Reynolds—Mrs. Bains' cousin."

"Mrs. Bains? Oh, Mrs. Bains out in Washington. Then you must be Phil—I mean Mr. Edmunds," she said in surprise.

"Yes, Edmunds is my name, but I am Phil." And there was a twinkle in the dark eyes. "I am glad that I found you today. I have your address and wanted to call on you. I promised Mrs. Bains that I would—I wanted to anyway—but after I got here I"— He hesitated an instant. "Well, I just dreaded it. I am not used to ladies and never could get along very well with them." He laughed bashfully.

"So you were afraid to call. I don't think that I should have frightened you, do you?" She smiled.

"No, not at all, but I didn't know. I had an idea that you were very independent and wouldn't want to see a rough fellow like me, and I didn't know how you would treat me."

"Mrs. Bains wrote me that you were east on business and would call to see me and tell me all about them," she said pleasantly. "But it was strange that we should meet in this crowd and you should recognize me. I was going with some friends, but in some way we missed one another."

"You are alone then? Good! I may take care of you today, may I not?" he asked eagerly.

She looked rather surprised.

"You see, we are not strangers," he said apologetically. "I have heard of Cousin Anna for years, and I have looked at your picture dozens of times. Say, I like that last one of you with that fluffy thing around your neck—I don't know what you call it. I wanted that picture the worst kind, but Mrs. Bains wouldn't give it to me, and when I took it she made me bring it back."

She laughed. Somehow she could not feel provoked with him, as she would have done with any one else. There was a ring of sincerity in his tone that made her feel instinctively that she could trust him. She was rather prepared for his abrupt way, for Mrs. Bains had written:

"You will find that Phil is like a boy and blurts out what he thinks. He is not at all used to ladies' society, but he has a high opinion of women. My husband says he is true gold. He is quite wealthy, and no one stands higher in this locality than he does."

"You may take care of me today. It will be a new experience. I am not used to being taken care of," she said after a pause.

"That is a shame. Do you know you look like Mrs. Bains, and she is the only woman that I could ever get along with. She is just like a sister to me. You see, our ranches join, and I have known the Bainses for years."

"I am glad that you know them. I have not seen them for so long."

"They want me to persuade you to come along home with me. You will, won't you?"

"I couldn't think of taking such a long vacation. You know that I am a business woman."

"Couldn't you have some business out there?" he asked anxiously.

"I might herd cattle," she laughed. "What do you think of New York?"

"There wouldn't be much pasture," he said, glancing around at the pushing, swaying crowd. "I have not been here for years—not since the year I graduated from college and thought that I knew everything," he laughed. "It seems as if I am nearly smothered with all these high buildings and crowds of people. I will be glad when I get back on my ranch again, where I have room to breathe."

In some way she felt unusually free. There was something about him that made her feel that she was really being taken care of. It was a new sensation to have some one help her over streets, on cars and pilot her through crowds. They laughed and chatted like a couple of children suddenly let loose from school. They even stopped at a corner and bought peanuts and munched them as they walked, a proceeding that would have shocked her an hour before. She could not help wondering what her friends would say if they should see her.

"Here I had an idea that you would not be at all sociable with a fellow," he said, "and I think that you are just fine. I am sorry that I did not come around and get acquainted sooner."

She looked up gratefully. They were waiting for the exhibition of fireworks, and he had found her a seat where they could have a good view and not be jostled by the crowd.

"I certainly shall remember this day," she said.

"I know that I shall," and there was a strange look on his dark, handsome face.

"I will think of it when I get lonely," she said slowly, as if half to herself.

"Do you ever get lonely?" he asked.

"Sometimes. I think that there is no place where a person can get as lonely as in a large city. Of course I have my work, but there are times when I feel it very much." Her voice trembled in spite of herself. "There!" she exclaimed suddenly. "You are the first person to whom I have ever acknowledged that I ever got lonely," she laughed.

He leaned over and brushed a fallen leaf from her hat.

"You see, this has been my one day off, and it has spoiled me. I do not often give up a day to pleasure."

They were silent for a few minutes. Cheer after cheer went up from the crowd as the brilliant fireworks shot high in the air, but they did not seem to see them.

"Do you know that"—he suddenly paused—"I will get lonely too when I am on my ranch and think of you here, and I just can't go home without you. There it is out!" he said impulsively. "Anna, won't you go with me? I have never cared for any one before, but I think I have been loving you for years. I have known it for a long time. I heard so much about you and I learned to love your picture, but when I got here I could not summon up courage enough to call. I know that I am abrupt and not used to society; but, Anna, will you marry me and go home with me? I—I do love you."

It was nearly dark, and those around were taking care of their own affairs. He leaned close to her. "I know that it is a great deal to ask you to give up everything here and go on a ranch, but I will try to take good care of you and do all that I can to make you happy," he said pleadingly.

She did not answer. He waited a few minutes.

"Forgive me, Miss Reynolds," he said, a new dignity in his tone. "I must be wild to think for a moment that you would ever dream of marrying me." His voice trembled. "I can't help loving you, but you must forget it. I thank you for the pleasure that you have given me today. It will be the one bright spot in my life. I shall often think of it."

Still she was silent. She was living the years to come—the days with her books and papers, the lonely hours she must spend and the longing that she would feel to have some one to care for her in spite of all her talk of womanly independence. And then she seemed to feel that protecting arm that had been slipped so unceremoniously around her in the crowd and the strong hand that had guided her. She asked herself if it had been only for a day that she had been so taken care of, and she knew that she would miss it on the morrow unless— She looked up at the man who had come so suddenly into her life and in whom she felt perfect trust, who would make her life so different if she would only allow him to do so, and then—she slipped her hand in his.

"I'll go with you, Phil," she whispered. "I don't believe that I can get along without you. I'll miss you so."

The Rattler's Call.

"What is the rattlesnake's rattle for?" asked the zoo keeper.

"It is a call," he resumed, answering his own question. "The rattlesnake with it calls his mate. A man was telling me the other day that he studied the rattle question last year in the west. He said it is mainly as a call that the rattle is used, though different sounds can be made with it, and these sounds appear to have different meanings.

"Once this man saw seven hogs attack a rattlesnake. The reptile began to fight pluckily, and while he fought he rattled loud and long. Three other snakes came with great speed and courage to his aid. A dreadful battle followed. The snakes, though they fought well, were all killed.

"The rattle is also said to charm or hypnotize birds, so that the snake can seize them easily, but in this story my friend doesn't take much stock. It's as a call, he says, that the rattle is used most—a love call generally, with which the male snake summons his mate."—Philadelphia Record.

Intelligence In Eating.

It is difficult to lay down a regimen for indiscriminate adoption. A diet that would prove one person's making would very likely unmake another. This much is certain, a woman does not require as much food as a man, nor does a clerk in a store require the same amount and quality of food as a day laborer. A business woman may not eat so much as a man, but her needs are as great in point of quality and regularity of food.

Brain workers should eat fish, eggs, cream, fruits and whole wheat bread. They should eat enough of such food, be they men or women, but they should never overeat of anything.

An intelligent idea of our physical make up and of the nutritive value of different foods would preclude much recourse to doctors for advice when we are overtaken with indigestion or biliousness.—American Queen.
