Logging Men Inspect Line

Conclude Its a Good Thing and Will Make an Effort to Get Absolute Control and Reorganice

A meeting of the Commercial Club was called for Thursday afternoon to meet Messrs. Elmer E. Dean and A. E. Edgcourt, of the Elmira Logging Co., now in the hands of Receiver Farmer, together with the Smith-Mastick Construction Co.

There was a very large gathering and Mr. Dean's remarks were listened to with considerable interest. He stated that it was expected that several influential parties interested in the companies would accompany him on this trip, but finding it impossible to come at this time, had delegated Mr. Edgcourt, who is an experienced mill and lumber man, to make the trip and report his investigations. They had spent ten days on the sound and had done some quick work, going over the country to be tapped by the railroad and in dealing with the creditors of the corporations. They had agreed that the resources of the country were vast and that there was a good opening for a logging and mill business and for the gradual building of a railroad, which would ultimately connect with some transcontinental line. They did not believe that a success could be made at this time to build a line clear through to Grays Harbor within a year, and would not attempt to do so. They have arranged with the various creditors, including Hofius & Co., in a way, to liquidate the indebtedness of the old companies, now in the hands of a receiver, at par, and while no signatures had as yet been obtained they could be had, and would be taken up if satisfactory arrangements in other lines could be had. They believed that the entire project should be started anew, with mill, railroad and logging included under one company. with only parties interestedwho could put up the necessary funds; all dead material must be eliminated and the company start anew. If this could be done, sufficient money could be secured to pay off all indebtedness; Mr. Crawford would put in a mill that would cut 200,000 feet of lumber per day, and all logs hauled from the woods would be cut here. The railroad would be extended as rapidly as possible, but they thought it would take several years to reach the Quillayute or a connection with the Northern Pacific.

What they Want.

It developed that the purpose of the meeting was to test the good will of the citizens toward the gentlemen and their project and to obtain, at a reasonable figure, a site of ten acres at the head of the bay for a mill. The prices at which these lands are held ($1,000 per acre) frighten eastern capital which is not in the habit of paying over $100 per acre for the best of sites.

Some other things were gone into in detail and remarks were heard by Dr. Appleton, Mr. Aldwell, Mr. A. A. Smith and City Attorney Geo. V. Smith, and finally a committee comprising Chairman Lauridsen, Secretary White, C. J. Farmer, T. S. Brophy, T. Aldwell, Dr Hartt, and Banker Delabarre, was appointed by the Chair to take the matter up in detail.

The committee met with the gentlemen immediately after the meeting and settled on a site desirable, which it was found could be obtained for $10,000 with $4,500 and other sums off, which would possibly make the site cost net $2,500. This proved agreeable, and an option of 60 days, with additional option of sufficient time to straighten up the Receiver's business, was obtained. An agreement was also reached with the council relative to the franchise of the railroad company, which expires in December, and the gentlemen left for Seattle Friday morning.

Here they will endeavor to get the signatures of the creditors, and leave for the East to perfect their plans; which contemplate absolute control of the railroad and its appurtenances. They expect to get things straightened out, if their plans do not miscarry, within 30 days, but state, frankly, should everything go smoothly little work could be done this season on road or logging, and the building of the mill would certainly have to go over for another season.

The gentlemen have a plan for control which they refuse to divulge and developments will be awaited with interest.

Body Found In Woods.

Sitting on Root on Banks of River Martin Ertle Perished of Hunger and Exposure

Word was received this morning from Justice of the Peace, A. W. Smith, of Morr, by Coroner A. D. Willson, to the effect that on the 24th. inst., Mr. M. T. Jones, while fishing on the East bank of the Dickey river, one mile above O. B. Smith's place. discovered the corpse of a man sitting on a root. He summoned a number of neighbors who visited the spot and found the corpse sitting on the spur of a hemlock root, leaning back against the root. By the clothing, size and mustache, it was identified as the younger Ertle, Martin.

A careful examination of the pockets produced nothing but a safety pin. A cave hollowed out under an old windfall, about six feet from where the body sat, indicated he had sought shelter there. Indications were so strong that the man died from hunger and exposeure that no inquest was held, and the body was buried near by.

About February 18th., it will be remembered, Martin Ertle and his brother disadpeared and although searching parties scoured the woods for miles around, no trace of them could be found.

DON'T FORGET HOME DAY

Civc Club offers you Every Facility to Beautify your Own Premises

Thursday, June 16th., is the anniversary of the institution of the Civic club in this city and "Home Day," and it is the desire of course of the ladies that the fact should not be lost sight of, that it might prove not only successful in every detail, but beneficial to the individual homestead worker and to the city at large.

The ladies have a fund, raised by hard work on the part of each member, which they are anxious to use to assist in this work of making the home beautiful. They have employed a skillful blast man who will blow out for any one requesting, such stumps around the premises of such person as may be designated, on one condition, that the party so assisted, agrees to faithfully take care of all debris on the day named.

All parties desiring stumps dislodged on these conditions are requested to leave word at the Port Angeles Grocery Company, or Mr. Brophy's by the 10th prox.

This is a great opportunity and will be generally taken advantage of.

Forks.

Special to THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER.

Archie Davis, of Victoria. B.C., passed through on his way to Bogachiel, last week.

J. E. Crawford has been here for several days buying stock for his Bogachiel ranch.

Miss Mary Nelson gave a very pleasant house party on the 14th. inst., in honor of her 18th birthday.

By the death of S. M. Davis, Forks has again been called upon to mourn one of her oldest and most honored citizens. Mr. Davis was one of the early settlers in western Washington and was universally liked and respected. After an illness of several months he passed away, confidently believing:

"There is no such thing as death,
In nature nothing dies;
From each sad remnant of decay
Some form of life arise.
The little leaf that falls,
All brown and sere to earth,
Ere long will mingle with the buds,
That gave the flower its birth."

Can we not have another Republican county convention? We believe another such as was held at Port Angeles on the 3rd inst., is all that is required to make the honest Clallam county Republicans hard to find. A rottener mess of porridge was never dished up in a Japanese hash-house, and the honest Republican begins to see that his only hope of downing the disreputable lot of ringsters and the tricksters that controlled the convention, is at the polls through the Democratic party. The array of parliamentary knowledge in that convention must have been amazing (by its absence). We note that the temporary organization was made permanent before the committee on credentials had reported. We fail to see how the chairman could determine who was entitled to vote on that, or any other motion, before the committee had reported.

And that committee on credentials!

O ye gods and little fishes, what a farce. One of the members admits that his position on the committee was purchased by a promise to vote favorably on the seating of the delegate of the bolting caucus from Forks; and. notwithstanding the fact that the committee was forced to admit that he was not entitled to a voice in the convention, it seated this out-house delegate. Unsavory as were his credentiale, they must have been as sweet incense to the foul, corrupt, unprecedented proceedings of that deliberate (?) body, whose odoriferous stench must have smelled to heaven. We note that Ole Klaboe, of Hoko, served on the above committee, while his proxy was held by D. A. Christopher. We do not understand that Mr. Christopher was present at the committee meeting, yet he held the proxy of Klaboe, who was regularly appointed on the committee.

Dave, what was the matter?

You do not usually miss a good bet. Mr. Klaboe must be an influential power that he can represent himself on a committee while his proxy is being voted by another, on the floor of the convention. If Mr. Klaboe was voting the Norman proxy, the only vote he was entitled to, since he had given his proxy to another, he certainly treated Mr. Moody, whose proxy he held, very shabbily by depriving him of any credit—however infamous—his vote was entitled to.

But referring to our old friend, Christopher. He is bound to "get there," as one of his Forks friends remarked sometime ago, "cream is sure to come to the top." For reasons best known to ourselves, we refrained from replying, that SCUM does likewise—and we fear that it is sometimes difficult to draw the line between scum and cream.

Dave tried hard to be elected from his precinct, as a delegate to the convention; but his popularity was greater than he imagined, for his friends (?) refused to send him to so putrid a meeting lest he become contaminated. But, like the wayward boy, whose father refuses him money for the big show, after taking him to see the free parade, Dave steals away, and with a solicited proxy gains a seat in the convention, to which he could not be elected. Ole Klaboe put himself in an unenviable light by giving his proxy to Mr. Christopher, and accepting one from Mr. Moody. He either considered himself unable to represent the voters of Hoko and thought that Norman did not need so able representation, or he imagined that Hoko could get along with Christopher, while Norman required Klaboe; or else, he must admit that he lent himself to a contemptible piece of trickery in order that Christopher might have a seat in the convention that he could obtain in no other way—and Dave seemed to wield a powerful hand in the convention—evidently his threat of starting a newspaper to down the ring had its effect. No doubt Dave is sufficiently posted to make an interesting exposure of the workings of the ring, but there was little to be feared from that direction, for who ever heard of a bird of Dave's plumage fouling its own nest?

We believe the Democrats have cause for congratulation, for never before in county politics has their hope of success been so bright, before election, as now. The wound inflicted upon the honest Republican voter, by the County convention, is one that is not likely to heal before the election, and the only balm that will efface the scar is the defeat of the ring candidate at the polls. Let the good work go on.

We would suggest that the county commissioners appropriate the sum of twenty-five dollars to build a court house to the one hundred and forty dollars and thirty cents porch they have allowed the bill for. Isn't eight dollars a day rather above the average for carpenters?

The Value of Bluff

[Original.]

When I was a boy, I had a great desire for a military education, but, as I had not the influence needed in those days to secure one, I went to work in a bank. The president, a civil war veteran, noticing that I had military tastes, talked to me a great deal about his campaigns. "What a commander needs," he said, "is resource—a keen sight to see his requirements in things about him. I knew a general who once, seeing a man fishing on a cotton bale, was struck with its buoyancy and conceived the idea of making a floating bridge of the bales."

I had been in the bank two years when through the failure of another bank a run was started on ours. I was then eighteen years old, but precocious. When the bank had stood a two days' run, it was evident it could not pull through a third. The night before that dreaded third day the directors met at the bank. I was perched on a high stool where I could hear them talk, but heard no feasible plan for the morrow. It occurred to me to try a bluff game. I would not have dared to propose it to the managers and would have been laughed at if I had. Putting on my hat I went outside and, pushing my way through the crowd, gained the street, where I hailed a cab. As I got in I instructed the coachman to drive off at a gallop. He did so, and we were watched by the crowd, many of whom knew I was an employee of the concern.

The driver pulled up after we had gone about a mile and asked for instructions. We were standing in front of a coal yard, and in the office was a light. I got out of the carriage, went to the office and found a man working over his books.

"Have you any nut coal?" I asked.

"Yes."

"Any sacks?"

"Yes."

"I want five sacks of nut coal."

"All right. I'll send it in the morning. What address?"

"I want it now."

"Now? This is no time to do business."

I argued with him till he consented to fill five gunny sacks with nut coal, which I directed him to charge to the president of the bank—for I had no money—and, taking three sacks into the carriage, leaving the other two on the box with the driver, I directed him to drive back to the bank. When I reached it I called to a policeman, who was there to keep the crowd in order, asking him to guard the treasure. He called others, and in a few minutes three men in uniform surrounded the carriage. Then we lugged the five sacks of coal into the bank. When I had dumped the last sack on the floor I went into the president's room, where the meeting was still in session, and asked him for $2 to pay the hackman. He looked at me surprised and asked where I had been, whereupon I told him the story.

I never saw such a change in a man's face in my life. "You little brick!" he exclaimed, taking me by the hand. "You may save this bank, and if you do— Drive right away again and bring five more sacks. Here is a ten dollar bill. Want any more? No? Well, go ahead, and the Lord be with you."

I found the coal office where I had been closed and had to get a coal dealer out of his bed for the next lot, but I secured them and took five more bags back to the bank, reaching it about 2 o'clock in the morning. More than half the crowd had gone by this time, having had confidence restored by the first five bags of coal. After I had got the second lot inside, the directors adjourned the meeting and, led by the president, went out chatting merrily, wearing every appearance of having got in gold enough to last a month.

The next morning the bank opened as usual, but people who had been there the night before mingled with the crowd, spreading the report that ten sacks of gold had gone in and that the bank was all right. Many left the line leading to the cashier's window, and before noon there were not a dozen people waiting to draw their accounts. The bank was saved.

After 3 o'clock I was sent for to go into the president's office. Most of the directors were there, and every man in turn insisted upon shaking hands with me. Then the president made me the following address:

"Young man, you were cut out for a general, and a general you shall be; at least, you shall have the fitting for one. A man, or, rather, a boy, who can stop a run on a bank with nut coal would know enough in war to make a retreat leaving Quaker guns in position and campfires burning. We're going to get you a cadet's appointment to West Point if every man of us has to leave the business till the work's accomplished. You can go back to your desk now, and as long as you stay here your salary is double what it has been."

The congressman of the district was applied to in my behalf, and as he had promised the next year's appointment to another he agreed to make me alternate. The appointee failed on his entrance examination, and I, who meanwhile had left the bank and studied hard, passed mine. I was graduated about the middle of my class, but I had the reputation of being one of the "cheekiest" cadets at the "Point." Then I fought Indians, went to Cuba and later to the Philippines. I have played many bluff games to fool my enemy, most of them having been successful. I have learned from this experience that what my men need to enable them to win is confidence and what my enemy needs to enable me to defeat him is the belief that I'm going to do it.

EFFECT OF THE TARIFF

How the Trusts Aim to Control the World's Markets.

COMPETING ON EUROPEAN GROUND

Startling Statistics on the Subject. Less Work and Lower Wages to Come Soon—Tariff Reform Is the Crying Necessity For All but the Trusts.

Our protective tariff is having an extraordinary effect on the commerce of the world. In the first place, it has led to reprisals from all countries except England, and now the question of a protective tariff is the paramount issue in that kingdom. The obstacles that foreign countries are placing in the way of the importation of products of American manufacture are having their effect, and exports of manufactured goods from the United States are declining. At the same time foodstuffs the raw material are being exported in greater volume, so that our total exports have greatly increased. Our workmen in the protected industries should ponder on these changed conditions and see where protection is leading them. The evident intention of the great manufacturing combines to reduce wages in spite of their enormous output and large profits, though ominous of greater wage reduction, is not the worst to be feared—the prospect is that for many skilled workmen there will be much less work. This reduced demand for skilled workmen in many lines is imminent, for no less an authority than Professor S. N. D. North of the census bureau, in an article on the export trade of the United States in the last issue of the "Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science," gives a partial list of branch manufacturing plants that our trusts and combines have established in Europe to compete with the foreigners on their own ground. Thus the trusts escape the tariff wall which European countries have raised with so much care to keep out American products.

Professor North says: "I have before me a long list of these establishments. It indicates that more than $50,000,000 of American money is now invested in European plants devoted to the manufacture of various American specialties, including all descriptions of electric apparatus, sewing machines, belting, radiators, shoe machinery, steel chains, machine tools, hoisting machinery, boilers, pumps, blowing engines, mining machinery, printing machinery, coal conveying apparatus, elevators, matchmaking machinery, pneumatic tools and photographic apparatus. The Western Electric company of Chicago is interested in extensive factories in London, Paris, Antwerp and Berlin, not all of them carried under the name of that company, but all of them established and controlled by its capital. The General Electric company has three or four such establishments and has recently constructed a huge new factory at Rugby, in England. The Westinghouse company has just finished at Trafford Park, in England, one of the largest electric factories in Europe, employing 2,000 or 3,000 men, and it has other factories in Havre, France, and St. Petersburg. The Singer Machine company has three large plants in Europe under its direct control. The Chicago American Tool company is building a plant at Frazerburg, near Aberdeen. The Hoe printing presses are made in London, as is also linotype machinery. The Draper company has recently completed its new factory in Lancashire, to supply the greatest cotton manufacturing district of the world with the American fast running Northrup loom."

There is no doubt that this remarkable transplanting of American factories on foreign soil is but the beginning of an attempt of our gigantic trusts and combines to control the markets of the world for their products. It will soon leave our skilled workmen but the home market to supply, with the inevitable result of less work and lower wages. With our high protective tariff still keeping up the cost of living the outlook for labor is not reassuring.

If the protective tariff is driving manufacturers abroad and thus decreasing the demand for labor at home, is it not about time for reform of the present tariff law?

Labor leaders in the protected industries should investigate this new and significant change in the "American system," and the ordinary laborers that have no leaders will have results forced on their attention, for the reduction of wages for skilled workmen will surely find its counterpart in all classes of labor.

The reforming of the tariff to meet these new conditions is necessary for the stable welfare of the workman and of equal importance to all consumers of trust products, and the political party that stands in the way will be swept aside by its own deluded followers, now they are beginning to see the disaster that is approaching.

A Whole Session of Congress Wasted.

A horse can be led to water, but cannot be made to drink. Likewise President Roosevelt can call a special session of congress, but he cannot make the Republican majority of that body pass legislation that he recommends as urgent and important. The late extraordinary session of congress in November enacted one important measure —that is, it was of the greatest importance to the lawgivers, but as far as the public was concerned they could very well have awaited the regular session for its passage. This sole law was a joint resolution providing for the payment of mileage to the members.

The World's Great Want.

They are trying to arrange it so that man may safely fly;
They are trying to learn more about the stars up in the sky;
They are digging up old ruins so that each of us may know
Just what people did for pleasure and for profit long ago;
Here and there is some one trying to revive the love of art,
Here and there some poet bravely sings a song that's from the heart.
But away with art and science and the Babylonian brick;
What we want is some sure way in which
to get rich quick.

Men are fighting still for freedom, fighting still to have the right
To address their God unhindered when they kneel to pray at night;
They are chafing 'neath oppression as their fathers did before;
They are tugging at the fetters which their luckless parents wore;
Here and there some man arises and attempts to let us know How to make fair Peace forever the sweet mistress here below.
But we have no time to bother over such affairs; we stick
To the hope of finding ways in which to get rich quick.

The preachers keep on preaching of the glories over there
Where the boodlers cease from troubling and the prospects all are fair;
The anxious, eager doctors keep on striving to defy
Grim Nature and arrange it so that people needn't die;
But away with all the dreamers and the foolish ones who preach.
Who cares what the stars are made of or what ancient tablets teach?
We are looking for the hero who will show us all the trick,
Who will kindly point the way in which
to get rich quick.

BUSINESS ASSOCIATE.

Beginning next week, by agreement with the proprietor of THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER, Mr. E. B. Webster, late of Port Townsend and formerly of this city, becomes interested in the publication of this paper, and will be associated as per agreement in the business. The step is taken that more time and care may be taken in the conduct of the establishment and for the mutual benefit of the parties.

Mr. Webster brings to the business a complete up-to-date job printing plant, including press and all the very latest type faces, for the producing of artistic job printing, and is an artist of no mean degree. If you are particular about your job printing a trial order will convince you of this.

No change in policy, politics or management is contemplated.

All parties knowing themselves to be indebted to this office will confer a favor by settling promptly, that the old accounts may be balanced and not confused with the new.

OUR esteemed contemporary is being rewarded this week for months of rent paying by having the office building painted from base to roof, including roof. Congratulations; nothing helps the appearance of things like a little paint.

Washington Notes.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

After fretting and worrying for two months the Republican party has finally selected a manager of its fall campaign. His name is Theodore Roosevelt, and his pseudonym is George B. Cortelyou. It cannot be that Mr. Contelyou is anything more than a mask for the real manager, for he is a politician who has never had anything to do with politics, a manager who has never managed, and a statesman who has practiced statecraft only a few months and has never attended a caucus or convention except in the guise of a phonographic reporter. Barely eight years ago the youngster graduated from Columbian University and almost his entire experience has been acquired as a shorthand writer and executive chamberlain. The Democrats in congress who still linger here indulge in a broad smile of acquiescence when the new Republican manager is mentioned.

The announcement of the Supreme court decision upholding the action of the New York immigration authorities in excluding the anarchist Turner from this country causes sharp discussion here. On the one hand it is held to be an invasion of personal rights and a denial of free speech; and on the other, to be no infringement of free speech but an exercise of that right which every nation possesses to say who shall and who shall not come across its borders. These last hold that an American anarchist would not be subject to the same decision, and that his right to speak freely would have to be decided on other grounds. In London socialists and anarchists are turned loose in Hyde Park and allowed to mount the benches and harangue the multitudes to their hearts' content.

May 28, fifty adult Filipinos will reach San Francisco on a tour of the American cities. They will be be guests, to some extent, while in this country, the rest of their expenses being wrung from the Philippine treasury. Governor Taft in an appeal for entertainment for them alludes to them as refined and cultured gentlemen, which is a sharp contrast to that higher authority who has classified the Filipino people with savages and Apaches.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

The Vice-President Independent Order of Good Templars.

An experience which many women have was related by Miss Agnes Stebbings, of 231 East 30th Street, New York City, as follows: "I had very poor health for a year until life looked dark and dreary to me. Had headaches, backache, also pain, my sleep was broken and fitful. I longed for health. Tried several medicines but none were of any lasting benefit until I took Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I soon realized that I had found the right remedy. It helped nature to throw off the poisons that saturated the system, removed all pains and strengthened the digestive organs, and brought the roses of health back to my cheeks. This medicine if taken occasionally keeps the system in perfect condition, helping it to throw off the disease and consequences of exposure to dampness. I am pleased to give it my endorsement."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered book, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Enough Jingoism.

The American people are tired and ashamed of jingoism. This fact, coupled with the pendency of a presidential election, may serve to keep Candidate Roosevelt from butting into the far eastern mixup.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE SOVEREIGN DUTY.

Preparation For Intelligently Casting a First Vote.

ISSUES SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED

The Great Responsibility of the Voter In Close States—Young Men Must Be Made to Understand That the Value of a Vote Is Beyond Computation.

Young men who will cast their first vote at the coming national election should investigate the fundamental doctrines that divide the two great political parties and the issues upon which the campaign will be decided. In this way they can arrive at the proper way to perform the highest prerogative of an American citizen. The greatest right in a democratic republic like ours is represented by the ballot. The poor man and the rich one, the first voter and the most accomplished statesman in the land, are all equal before the law and are sovereign voters. Not only is the act of voting the highest political function, but it involves the greatest responsibility. A few votes often turn the scale in close states and political districts, so no voter must imagine that his ballot is not of consequence, as he may decide issues of transcendent importance and elect candidates for the highest offices who will have the executive power placed in their hands. After the election is over the voters have transferred their power to those whom they have elected to represent them, and the individual voter is powerless until the next election occurs.

Among the great issues that will be decided at the coming national election is one that should appeal to young voters with irresistible force. The question of the protective tariff and the control of the trusts affects the pocketbook of every voter and must be decided as interest dictates. Other issues may be settled upon patriotic or humanitarian grounds, but the indirect taxation of the tariff and its acknowledged fostering of trusts are fast breaking down that good old Democratic doctrine of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

If the young voter is the son of a trust magnate or one who has through some special privilege become a monopolist, he may be expected to follow in his father's footsteps and vote to continue a system that allows enormous fortunes to be created at the expense of the great majority.

But where there is one such child of fortune there are thousands who are children of the poor, and the young voter who has nothing or but little but his own exertions to provide a living for himself and those dependent upon him must view with dismay trust prices and increased cost of living. How much more must it set him thinking if he finds the avenues of employment lessening and the standard of wages decreasing in proportion to the increased cost of living.

Does any well informed young man doubt that the trust and monopoly breeding tariff is an issue that is of the utmost interest for him to investigate and see how it affects his prospects in life? Does he see a fair share of the vast wealth of the country flowing to those who create it or does he notice enormous prosperity to corporations and the comparatively few individuals who control them?

The position of the two great parties on economic questions must be an issue and perhaps paramount in the absence of war or other great events that so stir men's souls that they forget their pocketbooks. The young voter must to vote with intelligence investigate the evidence on both sides and decide who will represent him most effectually in securing "equal rights" and prevent the favored few from obtaining or keeping "special privileges."

There must be no objection to riches or the rich man if his riches have been obtained equitably. Neither must Dives be worshiped, and above all the young voter must keep at a safe distance the vote buyer. Your vote is as valuable as that of Rockefeller, it counts for as much, and no money value can be placed upon it. Its value is beyond computation.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.

THE DEMOCRAT LEADER is now better than ever prepared to do fine job printing; in fact it is the only office in the city that has a large press for large work and small presses for small jobs.

We recently purchased the handsome Courier press—the best in the city—and have received direct from the manufacturers in the East some handsome new type of mammoth size together with borders, rules, etc., and a handsome new furniture rack. We now have everything to do first-class work, and if we cannot now do satisfactory job work of any description it cannot be done in town, or this side of Seattle. Our prices are right, too, as you will find them.

LAND FRAUDS AND OTHERS.

Three Years of Thievery In Various Departments of the Government.

An epidemic of land frauds pervades all the western states and would doubtless be just as prevalent in the other parts of the United States if there was government land to gobble. These frauds are distinct and are manipulated by a different set of men from those discovered in the Indian land section.

For some occult reason the prosecution of those charged with swindling the Indians out of their lands has lagged, and no one has been punished. But in the other cases indictments have been found against several persons in the United States court of the District of Columbia, and the indictments show that these frauds have been in active progress for six or seven years. According to the evidence produced by the government, these frauds have put thousands of dollars into the pockets of the principal conspirators.

The revelations as to the extent of the frauds made before the grand jury and the number of officers of the government involved are reported to have shocked the members of the grand jury. The evidence must have been bad indeed if a Washington grand jury was "shocked" by it, and it will be interesting to note who are the high officials caught in the net, for the grand jury would hardly be electrified by evidence against minor culprits.

The land frauds are only a small matter compared with other frauds against the government that have been partially exposed. The postoffice frauds, the silk frauds, the armor plate frauds, the rice frauds in the Philippines, the Nellis seed frauds in the agricultural department, the District of Columbia defalcations and frauds, the navy department frauds, the Philippine defalcations and embezzlements—these are some of the more conspicuous frauds that have been discovered. Then there is the Wood scandal, the Dietrich and Burton senatorial scandals, the Littauer army glove scandal and the Delaware and other postoffice scandals in connection with the civil service.

The list might be prolonged, for the last two or three years have been most prolific of frauds and scandals. The efforts of the administration to enforce the criminal laws against the lesser rascals while allowing the greater ones to escape, either by virtue of the statute of limitations or for lack of activity upon the part of the officers of the government, is the greatest scandal of all.

This may be a reform administration and anxious to stop rascality and grafting, but it has been signally unfortunate in securing convictions and in punishing the thieves, and there would appear to be but sorry prospect of reform unless the voters decide to "turn the rascals out."

Rural Delivery Notes

There are now in operation 19,398 rural free delivery routes. It is estimated that 3,260 additional routes can be established out of the appropriation now available, making 22,678 which will be in operation or ordered established by March 1.

In his annual report General Bristow recommends that the maximum salary of a rural carrier be increased to $750 per annum for a route of twenty-five miles or more in length.

The annual report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, states that the rural free delivery is expanding more rapidly than any other branch of the postal service. Its growth during the fiscal year has been greater than at any other time since free delivery was established.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Georgia Dunbar

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

Will Ship Coal In Thirty Days

Port Angeles Coal & Coke Co., Begins Work at Once to Uncover a New Deposit

Messrs. L. R. Daughenbaugh, sedretary and treasurer of the above company and D. S. O Brien, manager, were in the city on Thursday and to a representative of this paper stated that the result of their visit along the beach. with Mr. McConihe, was very satisfactory and as a result of the trip they would establish at once a camp at a new discovery just below Gettysburg and begin at once to mine coal for shipment.

The coal is right on the surface and can be opened up at very little cost by means of a sloping tramway opening right out onto the beach. Coal will be shipped within 30 days, but the Seattle Logging Company has agreed to take all that can be taken out in the next three months and not until after that time will any of the coal reach this city. In 90 days, however, it is expected that they will be shipping coal to this city on scow built for the purpose that will carry 500 tons and which can be loaded within one hour's time.

Of the coal in the Freshwater Bay country the gentlemen say they will keep right on with the drilling and expect great things from this property; the profits made from the shipping mine will be used in the development of the Freshwater Bay property.

The gentlemen are enthusiastic over the prospect of their industry and expect to give excellent reports from time to time as the work develops.
