The largest and ablest county convention ever held in Clallam County was the Democratic delegate convention that met in Port Angeles Saturday ot 10 o'clock. All the 74 delegates were either present in person or by proxy.

A fight had been made at the primaries for delegates on the sheriff nomination, contestants being Sheriff Gould and H. B. Crockett. The other candidates for office had allied themselves to a greater or less extent with one or the other of these forces. Several days before the convention it had become evident that Gould would lave a large majority of the delegates. But to make a last stand, the Crockett forces attempted to force out proxies.

Saturday morning the East and West end delegates held a caucus at which they decided to support certain candidates, the west end demanding Judge W. H. Rowan, for representative, A. A. Richardson, for county clerk and Mrs. Lena Wilcox, for superintendent of schools. The east end was to get M. J. Clump, for treasurer and W. M. Redwine, for assessor.

The caucus decided to support Thomas Malony for chairman, W. B. Gould for sheriff and John W. Troy for auditor.

The convention was called to order by Secretary W. Brumfield of the county central committee at a few minutes past 10 o'clock. Mr. Brumfield read the call, and asked for nominations for temporary chairman.

Hans Hansen of Quillayute placed Thomas Malony in nomination in a five minute speech. Donald McInnes nominated D. W. Bryan. Bryan's nomination was seconded by D. P. Quinn and R. A. Grimes seconded the nomination of Thomas Malony. M. W. Dunten of Lost Mountain, moved that the vote be by roll of precincts, each precinct chairman arising and announcing the vote of the precinct. Donald McInnes started the fight by moving as an amendment that proxies be not admitted before the temporary organization. This brought P. M. Troy of Coleville precinct to his feet in opposition to the amendment. The amendment was supported by Mr. McInnes, and strongly opposed by Messrs. R. A. Grimes. R. L. Sebastian, F. O. Lamoreux and Judge W. H. Rowan. For a time the heated discussion came near getting personal. After the chair had decided that only delegates present should vote on the motion P. M. Troy moved the previous question, which was then put and Mc Innes' motion defeated by an overwhelming storm of "noes."

Mr. Dunten's motion was then carried, and the roll called for temporary chairman.

The vote stood Malony 55, Bryan 17. Bryan moved that the nomination be made unanimous, which was carried.

S. B. Laughlin, of Beaver, was placed in nomination for temporary secretary. He was chosen by acclamation.

Chairman Malony named the following committees:

Credentials—Frank Machintosh, of Gettysburgh; G. W. Meagher, of Port Angeles; H. Hansen, of Quillayute; H. B. Crockett, of Carver; M. J. Clump, of Dungeness.

Rules and Order of Business—R. A. Grimes, of Port Angeles; R. S. Dimmick, of East Clallam, W. M. Redwine, of Rena; R. McDonnell, of Port Crescent; and D. P. Quinn, of Port Angeles.

On Permanent Organization—P. M. Troy, Coleville; George Lotzgasell, Dungeness; J. H. Johnson, Carver; J. B. Dick, of Dungeness; T. A. Osborn, Forks.

Resolutions and Platform—Dr. F. S. Lewis, of Port Angeles, W. H. Rowan, Clallam Bay; Thomas Moore, Kennel; F. O. Lamoreux, Shuwah; D. W. Bryan, Port Crescent.

The convention then adjourned until 2 o'clock. During the recess, the Rowan men commenced work with energy that counted much.

Although only a candidate for representative for twenty-four hours, Judge Rowan went into the convention with nearly half of the delegates. During this time, Dr. Lewis, whose friends had been urging him to permit the use of his name, withdrew from the race for representative leaving a clear fight between Mallette and Rowan.

When the convention met Frank Macintosh, as chairman of the committee on credentials read the following report:

For chairman, Thomas Malony; for secretary, L. B. Laughlin. In additional M. J. Clump, assistant secretary.

Respectfully submitted,
P. M. TROY, chairman.

The report was adopted on motion of R. A. Grimes the officers took their places.

The committee on resolutions and platform submitted the following:

PLATFORM:

The representatives of the Democratic party of Clallam County, in convention assembled, do hereby heartily endorse the declaration of principles adopted by the National Convention on June 22, 1892, and pledge their support to the nominees thereof.

In Grover Cleveland we recognize the faithful exponent of honesty, frugality and economy, and believe that with him at the head of National affairs the principle that "A public office is a public trust," will be faithfully followed throughout all the departments of government.

The premeditated and wilful delay in accepting the survey of the Port Angeles townsite reservation demands our most vigorous protest and condemnation.

All parties who are guilty of participating in any manner in causing such delay deserves the rebuke which only a free and enlightened people are capable of administering and the too late activity of John L. Wilson and the senators of this state on the eve of an election in in which two of them are about to seek the endorsement of the people is not sufficient to save them from the censure they deserve, and will receive at the ballot box next November.

We demand on the part of the home builders on said reservation that immediate action be taken by the Interior department on all matters relating to the Port Angeles reservation, so that titles may be procured at the earliest day possible by those who have so nobly earned them by their industry and patience. We recognize the necessity of all patriotic citizens uniting with the Democratic party regardless of past affiliations to redeem our glorious state of Washington from the horde of grasping, wolfish, unscrupulous politicians who have been sapping its life-blood in their endeavor to create innumerable jobs upon which their friends and partisans could riot and plunder.

The administration of the states affairs from the installation of its first officers has been noted for its series of unpardonable scandals and shortcomings in needed legislation. Through its hatred of the masses and the right of labor to be heard through its chosen representatives it has failed to enact a law requiring the ventilation of the mines to be under the direct charge of a state office; in their desire to serve their masters they induced their acting governor to veto the Anti-Pinkerton law; the law regulating the rates of freights and fares on railroads, and enacted a monstrous and iniquitous tax law with unheard of penalties, requiring expensive suits of foreclosure and providing no equitable rights of redemption. This law more clearly than any other bears the impress of the Republican party as now organized and brands it as an enemy of all who are unfortunate enough to be poor, and for the time being unable to pay the enormous burden of state and county taxes made necessary by mismanagement and a wilful partisan expenditure of money. We denounce that law which requires that a certain part of the receipts of the general fund tax may be set aside for the purpose of paying county officers in cash while the laborer who otherwise renders service for the county must receive pay in warrants which must await their turn of payment as of old.

We condemn the means used in the late contest for United States Senator, whereby votes of members of the legislature were bartered and the state capitol made a public bar for the dispensing of intoxicating liquors, to the disgrace of the state.

We endorse James Hamilton Lewis for governor, and the delegation from this county to the state convention is hereby instructed to use all honorable means in its power to effect his nomination, and to that end is directed to vote as a unit.

The candidate chosen by this convention for the office of Representative, if elected, is hereby instructed to use all honorable means within his power to secure the repeal of the present iniquitous tax law; to secure the passage of a law readjusting salaries of state officers so as to reduce said salaries to such amounts as are paid for services of like responsibility in other occupations; to prohibit private citizens or corporations from hiring armed bands of Pinkerton detectives or like organizations within the limits of this state; to permit county commissioners and cities to build roads and streets by direct employment of citizens at so much per diem in lieu of the contract system; to elect United States Senators by a direct vote of the people; to classify Judicial Districts so that the salaries of each may be proportioned to the services required of the judges; to amend the tide land law in such manner as to protect those making permanent improvements and to encourage the leasing of tide land property and applying the revenue therefrom toward permanent state improvements; to permit the permanent school fund of the state to be loaned to farmers at reasonable rates of interest and upon first lien landed securities; to enact strict mine inspection laws weich shall be executed by a competent state officer, and to enlarge the sphere of home rule by increasing the power of city councils and county commissioners; to enact a law requiring that eight hours shall constitute a day's labor on public work. And to exempt from taxation the improvements on the home of every citizen to the amount of one thousand dollars.

WHEREAS, the great Quillayute valley and its tributaries—a country in extent large enough to provide homes for thousands of people and whose lands are among the richest of our state, is practically closed to settlement for the want of cheap and convenient transportation facilities, and

Whereas, the burden of providing means that will supply the needed relief is too great for the present settlers of that country to bear; and

Whereas, it is feasable to so deepen and change the cause of the Quillayute river that it may become navigable for vessels of considerable draft, and thus provide an ocean outlet for the produce of that country. Therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that we deem it a matter of duty on the part of the general government, and a matter of justice to the present occupiers as well as to the homeseeker, that the needed improvement be undertaken by the national authorities at the earliest date possible, and to that end the Democratic party of Clallam county pledges that its representative, if elected, will endeavor to have the next legislature of this state pass appropriate resolutions of instruction to the state's delegation in congress.

We charge the Republicans of Clallam county with being responsible for the gross abuses of trust exercised by the board of county commissioners in the discharge of the duties of their offices during the present term. They were responsible for the excessive assessment and burdensome taxation of 1891; they were responsible for the letting of a great road contract to a known enemy of labor when responsible home taxpayers made lower bids, if based upon the actual amount of work done; they were responsible for receiving parts of the county road claimed to have been completed when it was well known that the work was not done in accordance with the engineer's specifications; they were responsible for receiving bridges built by the Burlingame company over the Dungeness and Elwha rivers that were not built as required by the specifications of the engineers when the contract was let. The partisan action of the commissioners in permitting an indiscriminate appointment of deputies in the important offices of the county meets with our disapproval, and warrants the condemnation of an outraged people. The work of perpetual jobbery has had full sway until the burdens of the county are such as to be almost unbearable.

EVERY voter in Clallam county should study well the Democratic platform which is published in this issue of THE DEMOCRAT.

BRIGHT laurels were won by Clallam's young Democracy last Saturday. Many words of warm and hearty praise have been showered upon F. O. Lamoreux, R. L. Sebastain, Frank S. Mackintosh, Hans Hansen, P. M. Troy, R. S. Dimmick and other young Democrats who were in the convention.

WITH honesty and economy in public affairs as a platform, and with a ticket, every man of whom is a representative of the platform, the Democracy of Clallam county is invincible. The Democratic party has taken its first step and taken it well. It now deserves a support from the people commensurate with what it offers them.

THE Democrats of Clallam County need not have been instructed for James Hamilton Lewis. Every Democrat in the convention was for the young leader. That was easily seen by the enthusiastic cheering at every mention of his name. Especially enthusiastic were the young men who recognize one of their number in the gifted young orator who is to be our next governor.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

The platform adopted by the Democratic county convention Saturday clearly and positively shows the position of the Democratic party on the issues that are vital to the voters of the county.

The position on national and state matters as true to their Democracy. They demand legislation that is needed and condemn that that is vicious. But their strongest and most important stand is on the local issues. This is a question on which the Republican platform is silent. The Republican party by its silence and the honor it extended to present officers, the part they took in they convention, etc., endorses the administration. Mark the difference between the attitudes of the two parties. The Democratic party speaks out in a language that anyone can understand. It demands retrenchment. It is for honesty and economy. Its sincerity on this cannot be questioned. The ticket nominated is one that in itself speaks for the platform. Every man on the ticket is pledged to the citizens of the county to give an honest and faithful adminstration at as little cost as possible to the people.

That this is required is too evident to need assertion. The fact that Clallam county has, in nineteen monts, increased its indebtedness from but little over $10,000 to more than $160,000, and has but a few miles of not very good county road to show for it, is itself enough to make the people demand a change. It will be alleged that of this great debt the present administration is not liable for the $90,000 bonded debt. This is true. But IT is responsible for the manner in which this was used. But the increased debt of $62,237 taken with the enormous revenue of $38,000, and more, that has been collected shows that it has cost the county about $100,000 for running expenses of the county.

There is no question but the local Democracy deserves the support of every citizen who desires that the property of the country be not confiscated for taxes—to raise revenue, as it were, for partisan favorites.

CLALLAM DEMOCRATS.

office with only a total county indebtedness of $10,028.62, on the first of August this indebtedness had reached the mamoth sum of $162,265.62, showing that after deducting $90.000 of a bonded debt and the amount against the county when the present officers entered upon their duties, the great some of $62,237 represents the debt incurred by the present management, for which there is to show only a few patches of road and fewer bridges.

They have permitted the expenses of our judicial system to largely exceed the necessary limit without a protest; they have permitted the auditor and his chief deputy to so conduct that office—an office whose recording fees alone would produce a large surplus over its necessary expenses—to expend up to the first of August $1,421.46 more than was received in fees; they have allowed extra for clerk hire, and have violated the clear expression of the law in allowing the auditor eight cents out of every twenty cents received from recording fees. We brand such partisanship and gross incompetency wherever practiced as little less than robbery.

The Democracy of this county hereby pledges to the citizens of the county that the salaries allowed by law shall be the sole compensation of its candidates if elected to fill its various offices; that the total required for clerk hire in the auditor's office shall not exceed $200 per month; that the economy practiced by the present clerk whose account shows a surplus of $1,100 over expenses will be continued, that the county attorney will conduct his office with an eye to saving money and not expending it as now practiced; that its candidate for treasurer will be qualified to conduct that office without the assistance of a deputy, and will require assistance only two months of each year; and that its candidate for superior judge will conduct the affairs of that office, the demands upon it being no greater for less than half the amount now required; that its candidates for the other offices will conduct their offices with fidelity and such economy as will be required by a faithful discharge of their duties.

F. S. LEWIS, Chairman,
W. H. ROWAN, F. O. LAMOREUX,

Excursion From Seattle.

There will be an excursion from Seattle to the straits of Fuca tomorrow. The steamer City of Seattle has been chartered the chamber of commerce of Seattle, for the excursion. The steamer will call at Victoria, remaining there several hours. She will leave from there for Port Angeles at four o'clock. arriving here at about five and will remain over an hour. The party will be largely comprised of prominent business men, who desire not only to take advantage of the pleasure the trip will afford, but to improve the excellent opportunity to visit the towns that border on the straits, cultivate a friendlier relation and gain a personal knowledge of the possibilities of the vast region that skirts either shore of the straits.

The First Regiment band of Seattle will accompany the excursionists and discourse sweet strains of music in the skilful manner for which it is so justly renowned.

The mayor, the council and citizens should extend the visitors a most cordial welcome, the freedom of the city, and every courtesy and consideration within their power.

CLALLAM'S RICH HERITAGE.

"The Half has Never Been Told" of the Possibilities of Its Resources.

It is indeed a favored region, in natural resources it is as rich—if not richer than any other county in the peerless evergreen state.

Although isolated from the trade centres its people are imbued with the spirit which overcomes every obstacle, develops the resources of a new country, and lays a broad, permanent foundation for a thrifty community, which will in years to come not only be known as the garden spot of Washington, but a region not excelled in the variety of its crops and the fertility of its soil.

It seems strange, indeed, that the vastness, the possibilities, the extent of the resources of Clallam is so little known even to the business men of Port Angeles who must largely draw from that source for future trade growth and expansion.

Port Angeles is the natural trade center of the Quillayute country. Its situation, superior harbor, commanding commercial position, should enable it to secure and control this trade over all other competitors. Nothwithstanding its trade relations are already established with the lower country, as firmly as could be expected with the broken and unsatisfactory facilities which at present exist, a determined effort is being made to divert this trade through unnatual channels to more remote centers by enterprising, wideawake business men, who clearly recognize the the magnitude of the wealth of the Quillayute, a fact which should awaken local merchants to the demands of the hour and the serious danger threatening their trade interests.

That country demands and must have better markets and good roads. If Port Angeles treats with indifference the needs of this people they will look to Port Townsend and Seattle for relief. And it is needless to add they will not appeal in vain, as these towns are on the outlook for any opportunity to improve and increase their trade relations with the surrounding country. There is no sentiment whatever in this condition unless it be patriotism of home, which is a strong and predominating motive, which prompts a people frequently to desperate means, to protect, subserve and better their condition. The Port Townsend Leader, which is never modest in its claims really believes that "all of Clallam county and that strip of fertile country lying along the Strait is natually tributary to Port Townsend, and we should not narrow our ideas into thinking of Jefferson county only, but should be equally interested in the development of this entire western peninsula.

"In speaking of one of these valleys, known as "Forks Prairie" Mr. C. G. Whiting, who taught school there last winter, said:

" 'It is one of nature's choice spots in this land of forests and mountains, and the only drawbacks are the lack of good roads and markets. The prairie is located 37 miles from East Clallam on the line of the county road now building from town, and is situated at the forks of the Kalawhaw and Bocachiel rivers. It comprises about 2,000 acres, upon which is a little community of 12 or 14 families.

" 'Cattle raising is the principal industry, and next to that hops, although all kinds of vegetables, fruit, hay, oats, etc., are raised in abundance. There are several fine hop yards.

" 'Mr. L. M. Ford has this year established a cheese factory which produces sixty pounds a day.

" 'There is no store at Forks, and the people would gladly welcome one.

" 'As to chances for settlers in the immediate vicinity of Forks I would say that there is plenty of land in the country yet.' "

The Whale-back Wetmore.

The steam whale-back Charles W. Wetmore, cleared from this port for Nanaimo Wednesday morning last. She remained here about an hour during which time she was inspected by a large number of citizens. The Wetmore is one of the modern steam-freighters, which are becoming so popular and universally used on the lakes. They are modeled much after the shape of a whale and have an enormous capacity for storing away freight. The Wetmore has five masts along her deck. The cabin with limited accommodations is located at the stern with the pilot tower at the bow. The main deck or back has a slightly rolling surface and is surrounded with wire-guards.

There seems to be a question as to whether these vesseles can withstand the strain of an ocean voyage. Many experienced sea-farers maintain that because of the peculiar construction and shape of these vessels, they will soon succumb to the enormous strain of a rough ocean trip. Others who have seen them in use on the lakes are of the opinion that they are as safe and sea-worthy as any other vessels They are certainly constructed with a view to economy of space other than freight-room, and the designer gave no little thought to convenience and saving of time and labor in handling freight, and if practicable and successful will doubtless revolutionize traffic in these waters.

In such an event it will not be surprising if within five years the greater number of freighters in these waters are whale-backs.

Patrick McGuire and James McGuire of Iowa, are visiting in Port Angeles with M. Geraghty. They contemplate investing in the county.

It is recommended by the state central committee that the county committees in the respective counties call primaries for the election of delegates to a county convention, primaries to be held on Saturday, August 6th, and that the county conventions to be held in the several different counties on Saturday August 13th, for the election of delegates to the state convention at Olympia, are herein provided.

It is further recommended that the primaries for the election of delegates to the several county conventions be conducted as nearly as practicable under the primary election laws of the state of Washington, in order that no harm may come to the Democratic party from the efforts of designing persons to manipulate and have voice in what is known as "open" ward or precinct caucuses. No one should be allowed to participate in Democratic primaries unless he be a resident of the precinct whereat he offers to vote and unless he be known to be a Democrat, or is properly vouched for as such.

It is further recommended tha whenever two or more counties are associated together for legislative or judicial purposes, then that the officers of the county central committees in such counties join in calling a convention to nominate candidates for such legislative or judicial offices.

By order of the Democratic state central committee.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

The People's party held primaries throughout the county yesterday.

The west end delegates, to the Democratic county convention, who are a jolly whole-souled crowd, returned home on the Garland Monday.

Mr. H. B. Crockett has purchased "The Oak" from Sam Morse. Mr. Crockett will make that resort even more popular than ever.

Sunday night at the Congregational church, the discourse will be on the subject: "The Future of Port Angeles." To the services at the usual hours both morning and evening the public is cordially invited.

At the recent county teachers' examination there were five applicants for certificates, four of whom were successful. A. B. Dorsey, of Sequim, received a first-grade; C. G. Whitney, of Forks, and Edgar McCormick, of Port Angeles, second grade and Mrs. Alice Roberson of Rena in third grade certificate.

Mr. L. H. Cays, of Dungeness, recently purchased one of the renowned J. I. Case threshers. The machine is of the lastest manufacture and is known as the "agitator." It is driven by a sixteen horse power, its cylinder is 36 inches and its separator 52 inches. The daily capacity is from 1,500 to 2,000 bushels. If any proof was required of the advancement and prosperity of the Dungeness farmers the fact that there is an increasing demand for labor-saving machinery certainly furnishes abundant evidence.

An outing party of well-known citizens left for the lakes on the Garland Wednesday. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Carrigan, Mrs. Harding, Mrs. George Michell, of Port Crescent, Mrs. C. E. Metcalfe, Misses Fitzsimmons, Jefferies, Calvert, of Seattle; Messrs. Horace White, R. A. Grimes, A. A. Smith, Chas. Kent. Mr. Chas. Brewster and others joined the party Thursday. They will remain at the lakes until next week, and will doubtless have a most enjoyable time.

PERSONAL.

Mr. R. L. Sebastian returned to Forks, Monday.

Miss Carrie Bushman, of Seattle, is a guest of Miss Daisy Stewart.

Mr. M. Geraghty returned from several weeks visit to Tacoma Thursday.

Mr. C. M. Bradshaw and Miss Bradshaw returned from Seattle Thursday.

Mrs. B. F. Schwartz returned from a month's visit with relations and friends in California, Tuesday.

Mr. G. T. Fay, of Seattle, representing the Guarantee Loan and Trust Company of Seattle, was in town this week.

Mr. R. S. Dimmick, of East Clallam, who attended the Democratic county convention, returned home Friday.

Judge McClinton and Major Harding have been in the Quillayute country for the past week on a campaigning tour.

Mr. F. O. Lamoraux, of Beaver, who has been sojourning in this city during the past week will attend the Democratic state convention at Olympia next week.

Mr. Earnest Sommers, formerly in business here but for the past few months a resident of Victoria, has returned to Port Angeles to remain and again engage in business.

Will M. Sanger, of Snohomish, recently publisher of the Sun, of that place, was a visitor to Port Angeles this week. Mr. Sanger contemplates casting his lot in the Quillayute region. He will doubtless establish a newspaper at Beaver.

ABOUT TOWN.

Secure a "free home" before it is too late.

Democratic state convention convenes in Olympia next Wednesday.

The steamship Haytian Republic arrived from Portland Sunday with a general cargo for local merchants.

A number of projects are under consideration which will materially increase the pay roll of Port Angeles.

Quite a number of incoming vessels were in the harbor during the week. Shipping showes unmistakable signs of increasing.

Every incoming boat increases the population of Port Angeles with one or more families that come to establish a perminent residence on the reservation.

There certainly must be glaring incapacity in the Blyn postoffice as THE DEMOCRAT receives frequent complaints from its subscribers, who do not receive their paper regularly.

The portion of the Morse building near the corner of Laurel street projecting over the sidewalk has been removed and an attractive front built which greatly improves that portion of the street.

Beaver will soon have a newspaper. The objects of establishing a newspaper there is presumably to secure the benefit from the publication of the final proof notices in the several townships, which will be thrown open to settlement.

The new sign of the Port Angeles Real Estate & Trust Company has been adjusted above the portico of the company's office. It is an artistic piece of sign work, which reflects much credit upon the taste and skill of the workman, Mr. C. A. Bork.

The county commissioners should favorably consider the improvement of the Dungeness–Port Angeles road. This is one of the more important and the most travelled thoroughfares in the county, and it certainly needs to be improved before the wet season begins.

The outing parties at the lakes become more numerous as the season advances. August and September are the most agreeable months in the year for camping out, and without doubt Clallam affords the most attractive, the most delightful retreat of any county in the state for such pastime.

Notes From Blyn.

We have plenty of political talk now a days.

Mr. John Morgan left Wednesday for down Sound ports.

Mr. Will Potter and Miss Maude Grant of Sequim were guests of the Burrowe's on Sunday.

Two new districts have been formed near this place which shows the prosperity of this thrifty community. School will commence in them in the early spring.

A People's Party meeting was held at the Blyn school house on Friday evening last. Mr. O'Brien and others of Port Angeles were present. It was a complete success.

A birthday party will be held at Mr. Herman Sinders' on Friday evening of this week. A pleasant time is anticipated. M.

The Annual School Election.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Aug. 10, 1892.

TO THE SCHOOL DISTRICT CLERKS AND SCHOOL ELECTORS OF WASHINGTON:—

The annual school election this year will occur on the third day of September, and it is the duty of the School District Clerk to give notice to the voters by posting at least three written or printed notices at least ten days prior to the day of election. If there be a school house in the district, and but one, the election must be held at the the school house; but if there be no school, or more than one, then the directors must fix the place of meeting. One notice must be posted at the place of holding the election. All notices must be posted, this year, not later than August 24th.

In case there be a school house in the district, and but one, the clerk need not necessarily consult the directors before posting his notices; but if there be no school house, or if there be more than one, then it will be necessary to consult the directors as to the place of holding the election. Unless otherwise determined by the directors, prior to the posting of the notices, the polls must be opened at one o'clock p. m. (or as soon thereafter as a sufficient number of electors shall have assembled to form an election board), and must not close earlier that four o'clock p. m.; and in cities and incorporated towns the polls must open not later than one o'clock, as above indicated, and must not close later than eight o'clock p. m. Members of the school board may be chosen to serve on the election board, and all members of the election board must take the prescribed oath of office before opening the polls.

The newly elected officers go into office immediately upon taking the oath of office, and should any such officer-elect fail to qualify within ten days, he forfeits all right to his office. It is the duty of the clerk of the election to make out two certificates of election (Forms 28 and 29) for each officer-elect. Form 28 to be retained by the officer-elect, and Form 29, with oath of officer attached, is to be sent by the clerk of the election to the County Superintendent. This should be done promptly, this year in particular, as the names of all school district officers are required to be published in the report of this office, which is due November 1. The County Superintendent is required to report these names to this office, and promptness, this year in particular, is absolutely necessary. In addition to this, he is required to report them to the County Treasurer, and no County Treasurer is required to pay the warrants of a school district until he has been officially informed by the County Superintendent who the legal officers of the district are.

All persons over twenty-one years of age, both male and female, who are citizens of the United States, who have resided in this State one year and in the school district thirty days immediately preceding the election, are legal school electors. In the case of foreign born females the naturalization of the husband is held to naturalize the wife. Any school elector, male or female, is eligible to any school district office.

The custom of holding no school election is quite common in many of the school districts of this State. To neglect school affairs in this manner is not in good taste. It does not compare favorable with the dignity and duties of American citizenship, and is not calculated to enchance school interests. The public school has made the country what it is, and the better the public school system the better the country. It certainly is not asking too much to ask the school electors to turn out to the annual school election and assist in choosing officers to manage the school affairs of their respective districts A half day spent in discussing school affairs, once each year, is time well spent. If the time of holding the election is not satisfactory, suggest a time that will be satisfactory.

R. B. BRYAN,
Superintendent of Public Instruction.

PATTI'S WONDROUS WARDROBE.

Patti's wardrobe is something that fashion writers rave over. At every performance she of course wears the newest concert costume. In the opera that follows she wears the dress requisite for the part she plays. The concert costumes are the productions of the first Parisian milliner, and one may be sure that the wily milliner, getting an order from Patti, would exert himself for this queen of song as he would for no crowned head.

Her jewels are the most elaborate worn by any woman outside of royalty, and even royalty's gems fade before her matchless collection of emeralds. In some concerts Mme. Patti wears a costume of pink and silver brocade, over which is worn a delicate green satin de imperatrice. With this costume she wears a dog collar of emeralds set with diamonds, a bouquet of roses made of diamonds and emeralds completely covering the front of her bodice. Also a tiara, garniture and comb of emeralds and diamonds. This bit of jeweled ornament is said to be worth over $50,000. It is a peculiarity of Patti's that she will wear nothing in the way of decoration but what is absolutely real.

The jewel box and jewels in "Faust" are her own, and the pearls are positively real. Her courier, whenever she sings, is on the stage, waits for madame in the wings and accompanies her from the stage to the dressing room—that is, when her careful husband, Signor Nicolini, is not around. He is very careful of his precious wife, and she is never on the stage but that he is an intent observer of everything that is going on.

Patti's passion, of course, is her appearance before the public. She is one of those creatures who, without the excitement of public applause, could hardly exist. The applause of the public is positively meat and drink for her. There is no debutante more eager to know whether she has done well than is Patti at this day. She comes off the stage smiling and pleased.

Her eyes sparkle, and the first thing she asks her husband is: "Well, was that good? Listen how pleased they are." On being reassured that she is the darling of the public's heart, she is in an ecstasy of pleasure, and for the next performance she is all the more eager to do her best. It is this wonderful desire to be at her best that upholds her in her magnificent art.

There are few people who have achieved the fortune, the fame and the great notoriety that Patti has who would deny themselves the many human privileges that she does merely to preserve her voice and to be able to maintain the matchless charm of her art.

At every hotel where rooms are engaged for herself special stipulation is made and rooms selected for her servants as well. The price is never an object. Mme. Patti and suite generally occupy about ten rooms and a parlor in every city in which she sings. She gives two concerts a week, and never travels on the day she sings. She requires perfect rest and refuses to speak to any one on the day of a concert.—Spare Moments.

The Doctor and His Patient.

Dr. P—— enjoys a very large practice, and hardly finds time to take his much needed rest.

One day Dr. P——, who had company to dinner, sat quietly chatting in a corner of the drawing room, when he was told that a patient had come to see him who was strongly recommended by some fellow practitioners. The doctor submitted with a bad grace and stepped into his surgery.

Our physician was in the habit of ascertaining the condition of the patient by asking him to count, and generally stopped him at thirty or thirty-five—quite long enough for the purpose. This time also Dr. P—— asked his patient to count. Time passed on, and the guests began to feel alarmed at his protracted absence. One of them opened the surgery door. Dr. P—— had gone to sleep in his armchair, and the patient had counted up to 8,642.—Matin.

A Broom Speculation.

A 6-foot Yankee, seated upon a load of brooms, drove his team up before the door of an establishment where he expected to find a purchaser. Jumping from his seat he entered the store and the following colloquy took place:

Dealer—No; don't want any.

Yankee—Better take 'em—sell 'em dog cheap.

Dealer—Don't want 'em; got enough brooms.

Yankee—I'll tell you what I'll do. If you'll take the lot I'll let 'em go for one dollar a dozen. You know they're wuth double that.

The dealer stroked his chin for a moment, as if in deep thought, and then replied:

"Well, I don't want any brooms, as I told you, but I don't mind making a trade with you."

Yankee—What sort of a trade?

Dealer—Well, I'll take your whole load at one dollar a dozen and pay you one-half cash, you to take the other half in trade.

Yankee—No you don't mister! You'll charge me such an all fired profit on the other half that I might come out at the little end of the horn.

Dealer—Oh, no; I promise you that you shall have the goods just at what they cost me.

Yankee—Wall, mister, that's what I call square dealin. It's a bargain.

And he commenced to unload the brooms in a pile on the sidewalk. When he got through he walked into the store.

"There you are, mister; fourteen dozen, which I calcurlate makes just seven dollars comin to me."

Dealer—Yes, that's right; there's the money. Now what goods do you want for the other seven dollars?

Yankee—Wall, I dunno. You see, mister, I hain't much posted in your other truck, so I guess I'll take brooms.—House Furnishing Review.

Chinese Surgery.

Like most things in China, the practice of surgery differs considerably from that in vogue in less enlightened western countries. Bone setting in the Celestial empire is a complicated affair, and doubtless much more efficacious than European methods. In setting a fractured limb the surgeon does not attempt to bring the bones together, but merely wraps the limb in red clay, inserting some strips of bamboo into the clay. These strips are swathed in bandages, and in the outer bandage the head of a live chicken is placed. Here comes in the superior science of the Celestial. After the bandage has been secured the fowl is beheaded and its blood is allowed to penetrate the fracture, for it nourishes the fractured limb and is "heap good medicine."—London Hospital.

America's First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse built on this continent was at St. Augustine, Fla. Its chief use was as a lookout, whence the Spanish people of the town could see vessels approaching from Spain or get notice of the coming of foes in time to run away. The tower attracted the attention of Francis Drake as he was sailing along the coast with his fleet of high pooped ships on his way home from pillaging the cities of the Spanish main. So he stopped long enough to loot the town and destroy what he could not take away.—Washington Star.

What Ailed Her.

At the excursion given the "Little Mothers" the other day a four-year-old baby towed by the big sister was made ill by the ride on the cars. Vomiting was the result.

"You were sick at your stomach, were you not, dear?" said one of the custodians kindly.

"No, I wasn't," explained the wee mite; "my eat was too near my tongue."—New York Recorder.

Harmless Foods.

Dr. White, of Harvard university, declares tomatoes and oatmeal to be harmless and valuable foods, and points at the simple fact that the only danger in eating buckwheat lies in the fact that it is likely to be served up hot in the form of improperly cooked cakes. These may, and are very likely to upset the digestion.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

DEATH IN THE DRIFT.

HEROIC DROWNING OF A CONVICT WHO DIVED FOR HIS GUARD.

Heroism of Texas Convicts to Save the Life of Their Keeper—A Thrilling Story of an Escape and an Attempt at Capture—The Lucky Negro Returns.

The bodies of William H. Camp and Andy Ward have been recovered. They drifted ashore on the west bank of the Brazos river, at the Steiner farm, twelve miles below Waco.

William Camp was a guard on the county convict farm. Sam Johnson, a negro convict, suddenly made a dash from the cotton patch, where he, with other convicts, was chopping cotton, and, running to the river, plunged in and struck out for the other shore. George Oglesby, one of the lessees, and William Camp, one of the guards, mounted and gave chase, taking the river and swimming their horses in the wake of the negro. Camp led and carried his six shooter in his hand, while the lessee followed closely, both horses swimming gracefully.

The river was up and the drift was going down in large quantities. This flotsam and jetsam of the ruddy current consists of a little of everything floods find upon invaded shores. There was here a fencepost with a bit of barbed wire trailing, the wire dragging something else. Next a dead cow, a treetop, an old boat upturned and frequently a panel or two of fence, all moving like a platoon bristling with the barb wire invented to turn cattle. Through this labyrinth the swimming negro, with wonderful dexterity, took his way. But the horsemen, after reaching the channel, found that they could not proceed, and reluctantly turned back.

Oglesby's horse, punched by rails, tangled in the lighter drift and wounded with wire, ceased swimming, turned over and went floating on his side. Oglesby swam beside him, and holding his mane gently guided him toward the shore, which he safely reached, utterly exhausted. Camp's horse ceased swimming and commenced churning with his hind feet. "Let go his head, and when he starts catch his tail," cried Oglesby from the shore. Camp still held his revolver in his hand. His face was by this time white with horror. The other convicts and guards now lined the shore. Oglesby arose to his feet and shouted: "Men, I am hurt and strangled. I am past swimming. Save Will Camp and I will pay what you charge."

It was an awful place to attempt a rescue. The drowning man still held his pistol and struggled in the drift. One hand was rigidly clasped on the ivory handle and the other was lifted up. Those on shore followed him along as he slowly floated, and Andy Ward was observed to be stripping himself. Lessee George Oglesby also began to pull off his boots. He found that his ankle was sprained and he could not go on with the task. He sat down in despair.

"Save him, Andy," Oglesby cried, and Andy said, "I will if I can, Mr. George." By this time Camp was nearly under: his face could be seen now and then, and one hand still held up the pistol. The other appeared again and again above the eddies in mute appeal. Andy plunged in and swam with powerful strokes, but when he reached out to save Camp the latter went down and arose no more.

Andy dived at the point where Camp sank and came up again. His arm and face were observed to be bleeding; he had been touched by the drift. "Come back!" was shouted to him from the shore, but the brave negro would not hear it. He was bent on the work in hand, and under he went again and again. Presently he came up and gave a wild cry. Then he sank again and came up no more alive.

It was nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon two days later when a boy on the bank saw Will Camp's body moving in the current. Two hundred yards behind the dead guard floated Andy, whom he had lately guarded. The prisoner had died to save the officer, and was still floating after him, a ghastly travesty of a heroic attempt. Both were taken out and placed side by side. At last the guard had given up his weapon, and the poor convict Andy was forever free.

While the drowning scene was going on beyond the river on the other side another incident occurred. A crowd stood together watching the struggle. From that side rescue was impossible. The river was 200 yards wide and the drift was thicker that way. Presently a ragged negro, dripping with water, appeared and stood with the others. After gazing awhile he plunged in and swam back.

As he regained his companions on the Steiner shore, one of the guards asked, "What did you come back for?"

"To help," was the laconic reply.

This was Sam Johnson, the fugitive, whose escape had caused the death of two men. Before Sam reached the bank he had left half an hour before, William Camp and Andy Wash had disappeared, and the dancing eddies and floating drift were fifteen feet above them.

"You came too late," the guard added, and when the others started back for the convict farm Sam Johnson marched with them.—Waco Cor. Galveston News.

ORGANIZATION.

THE PROBLEM THAT HAS AGITATED WOMEN FOR MANY YEARS.

What Organization Has Done for Females—One Writer Says That It Is a Mistake for Women to Regard Men as Enemies—Men Have Helped Them.

The problem of organization is one which has agitated women who work ever since the sex has been regarded as a factor in industrial competition, and it is apparent, from the almost daily discussions of the subject, that it is no nearer solution than it was at its inception. The relative sides of the controversy, whether organization assists in the amelioration of the sex from the evil effects of prejudice, have many champions who argue the question of principle with much wisdom and enthusiasm. To a casual observer, or even one who is interested in the outcome of the agitation without taking part in it, the affirmative side of the proposition would seem to be the most logical and popular, and there are many evidences to substantiate this view.

It is scarcely ten years since organization was tried by industrial women, and an observer epitomizes the result in these words: "Organization has in the first place compelled the recognition of female workers as competitors by the males, who previously usurped the fields into which women have since ventured and succeeded; organization has demonstrated the capabilities of woman more than individual merit could have ever done; it has rendered women independent of the influences of men in the adjustment of labor and social difficulties and in the matter of compensation."

Taking this view of the matter, which, it may be explained, is advanced by a Wisconsin lady who is much interested in the subject, it would seem that organization has not only done much to promote the advancement of women, but has in addition opened up a broad field for discussion as to the claims of women for recognition in other than an industrial sense. Our correspondent argues that "a woman who, in the face of the strong opposition of men engaged in similar industrial pursuits, succeeds in elevating herself by her own efforts to an equal plane with them, is certainly entitled to consideration as a factor in both the social and official spheres of life."

The argument is so logical and patent to the student of the social and industrial status of women that it needs no comment. The assumption, however, that men oppose the progress of women and in any way seek to retard their advancement and restrict their capacity as competitors is ungenerous and, in a large measure, will do much to inspire prejudice in men against women. The facts all tend the other way.

Men are not only not opposed to women as fellow workers, but would, if encouraged, do more to assist women in their struggle for supremacy than any other influence could possibly do. The developments of the agitation in the past few years have shown this. Working women have appealed to the national congress and to the legislative bodies of several states for recognition and have obtained it, purely through the assistance of men who realized the justice of the demands. Without the assistance of these men the recognition could never have been secured.

Further than this, women have found, when seeking to obtain the questionable benefits of organization achieved by men, that they had only to be sincere to secure the same. If men are once satisfied that female workers are sincere in their efforts to secure independence, and are willing to render all social propositions subservient to the purpose, women will have no cause for accrediting antipathy to men, but on the other hand will precipitate the millennium of their ambitions much sooner than by working alone.

The natural conclusion to be deducted from these conditions is, That women shall combine their own (as yet disorganized and incomplete) interests with those of men. Organization under such circumstances will obtain for a woman what she wants. Men are to be made friends, not enemies. To obtain recognition from their admirably organized systems of industrial pursuits is as much of a triumph for working women as they will ever secure. This can be done by working with them, not against them.—A Club Woman in Jenness Miller Illustrated.

A KENTUCKY MULE.

A Gray Haired Old Fellow Treed a Bear and Finally Killed It.

Sam Parson's gray mule Zeke is old and gray, but he possesses great strength, both of understanding and of body.

Saturday old Sam concluded that he wouldn't work, and accordingly he shouldered his muzzle loading rifle and went hunting. But before departing he turned Zeke out to graze.

Finding the grass around the parson's cabin rather scanty, Zeke wandered down the edge of the creek next to the mountain side. There within the shadow of the woods he struck a nice, tender clump of grass and immediately began to eat it with great delight. While engaged in this congenial task a large black bear came down the mountain side and approached Zeke. Zeke had probably never seen a bear before, as the ursina tribe has long been scarce in these mountains. Nor is it likely that the bear had ever on any previous occasion looked upon a mule. But this bear was hungry and, while Zeke was bigger game than he had bargained for, he evidently thought it worth while to take a look at him, for he came a little nearer.

Zeke was not a bit afraid. He had never stood in awe of manhood, not even Old Sam, his master, and it was not likely that at this late period of his life he would be afraid of any four footed creature that walked the earth. Zeke calmly went on with his pleasant task of eating grass. The bear edged up another yard. Zeke switched his tail and cleverly knocked a fly off his back, and being relieved of the burden of the insect still munched the grass.

The bear began to grew inquisitive. He evidently did not understand what kind of an animal Zeke was, his studies in zoology being limited. He stood upon his haunches and growled, not as a threat, but as a kind of friendly salute. Zeke did not raise his head, and still munched the grass. The bear stopped growling and walked in a respectful circle around Zeke, studying him from every corner. He might have been a hundred miles away for all the notice Zeke took. The bear was puzzled and uttered another growl of interrogation. Again finding himself unnoticed he began to grow angry.

The bear went around behind Zeke and came very close, evidently determined to try by touch to arouse the strange animal. Suddenly Zeke doubled himself up in a knot and leaped high in the air. Two legs flew out of the bunch like piston rods and caught the bear in the side, whirling him over in a complete somersault. When he struck the ground he righted himself and rushed away with a growl of pain. But Zeke was hot after him, and the bear, seeing that he would be overtaken, scrambled up a hickory tree, barely missing a terrible drive of Zeke's hind heels.

Noon came and still Zeke was under the tree. The afternoon passed. It was almost sundown, but still Zeke was there. The bear could stand it no longer. Zeke was about twenty feet away from the tree, apparently taking no notice, and accordingly he crawled down the trunk as quietly as possible, intending to slip away in the forest. Barely had he touched the ground when Zeke turned with a snort and leaped upon him. So fast did his hind legs flash back and forth that they looked like the driving rods of an engine. In a minute the bear was dead, every bone in his body broken. Mrs. Parsons, who saw it all from the door of her cabin, says that the bear didn't even have time to growl. When asked why she hadn't taken a gun from the house and shoot the bear in the tree—for she is a girl woodsman and bold as a man—she replied:

"I knowed Zeke didn't need no help, and besides I didn't want to spile the fun."—Pond Creek (Ky.) Cor. New York Sun.

A Pitiful Sight.

"I was at Sioux City during the rise in the Big Muddy," said T. P. Sinclair, a prominent farmer and stock raiser of South Dakota, "and there witnessed a sight that haunts me. Pretty much everything that would float came swirling down the angry river—wrecks of buildings, household goods and gods—and among the drift was, what do you think? a cradle! One of the old fashioned, wooden sort, and in it sat a white headed little tot, apparently about a year old.

"There was not a boat within hailing distance, the cradle was fully 300 yards from shore and the river was running like a mill race. I started on a dead run down along the bank, hoping to find a boat of some kind, but before I had gone twenty-five yards the cradle tipped over, spilling its little occupant into the muddy waters. I am pretty well seasoned, let me tell you. I walked over rows of dead men at Donaldson and Shiloh, have shot Indians and helped hang cow thieves, but that sight at Sioux City broke me. I just sat down and cried like a woman."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Entirely Satisfied.

A suit had gone against the defendant, who arose and gave his opinion of the judgment and was fined $10 for contempt of court. A bill was handed to the clerk which proved to be $20. "I have no change," said the clerk, tendering it to the offender. "Never mind about the other $10," was the retort. "Keep it; I'll take it out in contempt."—Black and White.

What a "Doublet" Is.

The doublet is the imitation of a jewel, the lower part of which, the culet, is an appropriately colored paste, while the upper part, the table, is an inferior genuine gem, both being fastened upon the culet with a water clear cement. These doublets can readily be distinguished by the expert.—Jewelers' Circular.
