SHOULD BE WILLING TO SERVE

We Want No "Dead Ones" in City Council this Coming Year.

As the 4th of December, the time set for City elections, draws near, being now less than three weeks hence, the absence of avowed candidates for the offices of mayor and councilmen from the various wards becomes more and more manifest.

While the position of councilman is, perhaps, not always particularly desirable, yet, as a matter of good citizenship, there should be no reluctance on the part those men who have demonstrated, not only their business ability, but their unselfish devotion to the best interests of the city, in letting it be known that they are willing to serve. The office of mayor, while important, is not particularly so unless competent, energetic men, imbued with a determination to accomplish all that can be accomplished for the good of the people of the city as a whole, are elected to support and assist him in the work. The city has had ample demonstration of this fact the past year. Besides the mayor and councilmen from the first, third, and sixth wards, a councilman at large is to be elected. This position is fully as, if not more, important than that of mayor, for, by reason of representing the whole city, the councilman at large should be the leading force in city legislation.

On this subject the following, adapted from the Townsend Call, is right to the point: "It is an honor to any citizen to be chosen by his friends and neighbors as the executive of a municipality as prominent and important as this, and no man has any right to feel that he should hang back and wait to have the honor thrust upon him.

No end of candidates have been mentioned for the position, some of whom would fill the place with credit to themselves, and thus be improved in the eyes of their fellow men thru their incumbency. But thus far not one has come out with a positive declaration of his desire to preside over the council.

It is our opinion that the citizens should be wary in forcing the position upon the shoulders of anyone. The head of this municipality must be an active, energetic, wide-awake, hustling citizen, and not one who has to be coaxed and wheedled, like a silly girl or a spoiled child, into accepting the honor. There is no man in Port Angeles who can lend honor to the position of mayor, while on the other hand there are many progressive citizens upon whom the position would reflect honor. It is to be hoped that when the selection of a man for the office is made, it will not be that of some half-hearted. "don't care and rather not" individual.

Port Angeles has a promising future and the term of the next incumbent of the office will be marked with an activity and bustle here that has not been known for many years. In view of this fact, let the mayor and councilmen be men who are proud to be officials of Angeles, and who may be expected to lend their every effort to keeping the municipality going hand in hand with the progress and prosperity of her citizens.

The City Council

Arrangements have been made with the Gate City Co. to remove the detached portions of Front street extension, the city retaining the planking in the walk, the balance of the material going to the contractors.

Cutter Grant Sold

The revenue cutter Grant, having outlived her sphere of usefulness in the service, was sold Wednesday to A. A. Cragin of Seattle for $16,000. The revenue department did not expect to realize more than $10,000. Cook & Co. of Tacoma bid $15,000 and the San Juan Fish Co. $13,000. The Grant will be turned over on confirmation of sale.

POLL TAX COLLECTIBLE

Supreme Court Decides Action Brought Against Stone Company.

Olympia, Nov. 10.—The validity of the road poll tax act of 1903 as amended by the act of the last legislature was affirmed by the unanimous decision of the state supreme court this afternoon. The decision was in the case of the county of Thurston against the Tenino Stone Co., in which the county sued to collect road poll taxes from the employes of the company.

The court points out the distinction between the state law and a city ordinance, which latter was involved in the case of Port Townsend vs. C. W. Ide. In that case the city was limited by its legislative charter to making uniform ordinances and the poll tax law Ide attacked was void because firemen were exempt.

The state law, however, is limited solely by the constitution and there is no specific provision against poll tax limitations, as in this case, to males between 21 and 50 years of age. Not only is this limitation approved by the court, but so also is the provision of the state law requiring that the counties may collect from employers of labor the road poll tax for all employes, except such employes as come within the exempted ages.

E. E. DAY BUYS SUMMER RESORT

The Jones Place, One of the Best on Lake Crescent.

Landlord Day, of the Merchants, bought, yesterday, the James H. Jones place on upper Lake Crescent, paying $3,000 therefor. This is one of the best improved, and, by reason of being near the famous Beardslee fishing grounds, and on the sunny side of the lake, is probably the most desirable property for summer resort purposes. While Mr. Day does not announce his plans, there is little doubt but that he will make such changes and additions to the residence as may be necessary and run it as a summer resort, auxiliary to his hotel business here.

Mr. Jones has left for the east.

This is a good time to buy your presents for your little folks and your sweethearts and your friends. You can buy Cut Glass and China Goods at about 50 per cent less than elsewhere. The same applies to other lines of goods. You know that this is the store that sells goods cheaper and gives you a better article for less money than you can obtain in Seattle. Mr. Kirschberg is reinitiating himself in his dry goods profession. He has put the pruning knife into the prices in all lines of goods.

The whole stock of goods must be cut down to less than half before the new year, and you, the public, will reap the benefit. Read our adv. this week.

Last week the prize for selling the most fell into the hands of Miss Isabelle Lange. She is quite proud of having wrested the honor from the other sales ladies.

ARTHUR HAS CLOSE CALL

Quick Work by Mr. Chambers Saved Capitalist from the Bottomless Lake.

M. J. Carrigan, accompanied by A. A. Arthur of New York and W. S. Pearce of Seattle, arrived in the city this week and drove out to Lake Crescent Wednesday to investigate the site for a proposed power plant on Lyre river.

Mr. Chambers, who drove them out, says it was the hardest trip he has ever made in his sixteen years of travel to the lake. At the Elwha, where the river had washed away the road at the foot of the bluff, the team had to swim, and the entire road, owing to the three days rain, was all but impassible.

Upon arriving at the lake, after dark, they found the wind so strong Harry Littleton had not been able to get the launch down to meet them. Not to be balked in their purpose to reach Mrs. Saylor's that evening, Mr. Chambers got out his two boats and they started out in as rough water as is ever seen on Crescent. When rounding the point, near the Narrows, the leading boat, in which were Messrs. Chambers and Arthur, began to fill, in a moment being down to a level with the water. Mr. Chambers' quick action in grabbing the rope and striking out to tow the boat ashore was all that saved the day for Mr. Arthur, who, being a heavy man, would doubtless have been unable to swim ashore in the cold water and strong surf then running.

The Official Count

Following are the pluralities of the vote of Clallam county as canvassed by the Board of Commissioners, viz:

Blair 174, D. Govan 35, A. J. Cosser 106, E. A. FitzHenry 94, N. M. Hawkins 582, A. R. Pringle 584, J. E. Cochran 119, John Hickok 217, Annette Trumbull 77, Alfred Ware 314, D. E. McGillivray 396, G. M. Lauridsen 272, K. O. Erickson 133, Chas. Raymond, wreckmaster, 411.

326 for, 63 against county road funding bonds.

For congressmen at large the total vote was; W. E. Humphrey, 811; W. L. Jones, 812; F. W. Cushman, 820. The democratic candidates received 296 votes each.

Dungeness Bridge Gone

Manager Hart of the Western Union received word yesterday that the upper Dungeness bridge had gone out and the lower one rendered impassible, tho whether by high water or destruction of approaches the lineman did not say. The Western Union line, being above the upper bridge, is the only one in commission.

An Age of Progress.

There are many matters of vital importance in the way of change and progress taking place at the present time which we do not observe or profit by merely for the lack of proper attention, and consequently lose the opportunity to materially benefit ourselves.

This is the case with insurance. Every property holder recognizes the necessity of carrying insurance either to protect his savings or his business credit, but does not often take the time to investigate the different sides of this special subject. There have been, however, over 17,000 people in the State of Washington who have investigated this matter and found that they could effect considerable saving and get good insurance by insuring with the Northwestern Mutual Fire Association of Seattle.

This Company has been returning to its members a saving of 40 per cent of the cost of insurance on dwellings and brick buildings, and at the same time has paid over 500 losses, besides having sufficient left over to provide a very considerable surplus, which also belongs to the members. Further information may be secured at the office, 426 Lumber Exchange.

CALL FOR MORE WAGES

Employes of Forty-Seven Railways Unite in Demand.

Cleveland, Nov. 12.—The Plain Dealer yesterday printed a long news article on the different phases of railroad wages and one of the most important features of it is a statement on the authority of Grand Chief Engineer Warren M. Stone, of the international Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, that employes of over 47 roads have united in a demand upon the roads for higher wages, shorter hours and different working conditions.

Mr. Stone is quoted as saying that the demands have been formally prepared and the roads are given until December 10 to make answer. Mr. Stone left Saturday night for New York, but stated before leaving that the settlement of the talked of strike of switchmen in Chicago had not removed any point that is to be put in issue by the demands to be made of the roads west of Chicago. These demands, he said, would be presented next week.

Washington Apples for Australia

Seattle, Nov. 10.—E. Wagner is on his way to Australia with 35,000 boxes of Washington apples, which he will use as a means of advertising the orchard product of this state and of finding a market for it in Australia, New Zeland and the islands of the South seas. Mr. Wagner arrived in Seattle this week from Wenatchee. He owns a large orchard in Eastern Washington and is making the trip for the purpose of extending the market. He will personally superintend the disposition of the big consignment of apples which he takes with him.

Tacoma to Have Own Light Plant

Tacoma, Nov. 10.—The city council has decided to ask for bids for the installation of an electric plant to generate current for lighting the city. The city already owns its lighting system, but buys its current from the Saettle-Tacoma Power Company, whose contract expires in one year. Recently bids were asked for renewal of the contract and the proposals submitted were considered too high.

WANTS RECIPROCITY

J. J. HILL FAVORS FREE TRADE WITH CANADA.

Claims It Would Benefit Both Nations Just as Much as Reciprocity Among States—Free Raw Material as First Practical Step Toward Free Trade.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—James J. Hill was the guest of honor at the banquet of the Merchants' Club Saturday night and delivered an extended address upon "Chicago's Interest in Reciprocity With Canada." Mr. Hill said in part:

"Today the entire country is suffering from want of transportation facilities to move the business without unreasonable delay. The prevailing idea with the public is that the railways are short of cars, while the facts are that the shortage is in tracks and terminals to provide greater opportunity for the movement of cars."

The speaker declared that the country today facted a transportation problem which only time, patience and the expenditure of enormous sums of money will remedy. He asserted that there is a crying need now for the construction of a fifteen-foot channel between St. Louis and New Orleans, and he said that the necessity for this would increase with time. There was no more important general work for the government to perform, he said than to construct a channel capable of carrying vessels of fifteen feet draft.

Great Trade With Canada

Mr. Hill recited figures showing that the trade with the people whom the United States will be able to reach by the construction of the Panama canal amounts only at present to about $54,000,000 annually, while the United States trade with Canada is over $200,000,000 pe annum. He asserted that the conservation and increase of this trade is of greater importance than anything that will accrue to the United States because of the construction of the canal. Concerning reciprocity with Canada, Mr. Hill said:

"The plea for more liberal trade relations is negatived only by the unreasoning selfishness of individuals. The conclusive argument for reciprocity with Canada always has been and must be the experience of the several American states. Had it not been prohibited by the constitution, each state of the Union would have levied a duty on all commerce crossing its borders. Yet all acknowledge that the one great factor in the deelopment of the United States has been the commercial elimination of the state lines. Unrestricted trade between the states has favored all of them.

Canada's Future Assured

"Whatever commercial policy confers the greatest benefits on the whole continent will best advance the various parts, and Chicago would receive inestimable profits under a more liberal trade conention. Canada will in any event, and under any system, be opened up and highly deeloped. Would it then be disadvantageous for us to share in the products of the fields of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan?

"The manufacturing interests of both countries are the first to raise the alarm, but there is no danger here. We have as much reason to dread Canadian competition as has Pennsylvania to cry for protection against North Dakota. Canada would be no more in danger than is Montana by the competition of Ohio

"The time is opportune for a practical movement toward better trade relations with Canada. There has been increasing irritation toward our attitude, and al ready the fact that our average tariff against the Dominion is 49.89, while that of Canada against the United States is 24.83 causes comment and suggests reprisals."

Consummation He Desires

In closing Mr. Hill said:

"What is the first practical step? The consummation most to be desired is the wiping out of custom houses along the northern frontier and the establishment thereon of absoulute free trade. If the time is not ripe for that, the least that it demands is ample reciprocity. There cannot be a beginning until we have fixed our minds on the desirability of a free interchange of natural products and raw materials, giving to the New England manufacturer his fuel, and to the farmer of the Western plains his lumber and to the makers of books and newspapers everywhere their print paper free from the exactions which a needless tariff now permits monopoly to impose. From this as a beginning, the work may go farward toward larger liberty by the enlargement of markets and a progress of public sentiment that reciprocity once in operation will assure."

CANADIAN ROUTE OF GREAT NORTHERN

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 12 —Official announcement of the Great Northern railroad route from the Pacific coast to Winnipeg has been made. It will touch the coal district at Fernie, into which place the company already has a branch, then pass through Warman county to Raymond, and on to the natural gas district of Medicine Hat. There the route will be laid direct to Winnipeg. The road is to be completed in two years.

FOUND STRANGE PEOPLE

Natives of Prince Albert Land Had Never Seen White Men.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 10.—Interesting details regarding the finding of a people who had never seen white men, on Prince Albert Land in the Arctics, are given by an officer of the returned revenue cutter Thetis, who learned details from Capt. Klinkinberg, of the steam whaler Olga, who visited them.

Last winter, when his vessel was in the ice near Prince Albert Land, Klinkinberg, accopmanied by an Eskimo, started inland on a hunting trip. He went 250 miles in a northeasterly direction over the snow, finding traces of people. Other whalers had also found traces of natives in this region, but never sighted them. Capt. Klinkinberg came up with 150 or more. When they saw him they came toward him, each armed with copper knives and bows and arrows. They held these above their heads and he pointed a rifle at them One advanced alone and he laid down his rifle, the native putting down his weapons. They became friendly, and, by means of signs, Klinkinberg learned that, other than one old woman, who came from Prince Albert Land, they had never seen white men previously.

He visited the village and found about 600 people, all of whom lived by hunting and fishing. They used the most primitive utensils, fashioned from bone and native copper. Their dress was not like that of other Eskimos, but was similar to that of the Greenland natives, made of softly tanned skins sewn with deer sinews. Their winter houses were of sod, with an inner lining of skins and different in shape from those of other known tribes. They are nomadic. The only article seemingly brought from civilization seen by Capt. Klinkinberg was a piece of steel, evidently from some ship, which had been converted into a spearhead.

PRESIDENT STARTS ON PANAMA TRIP

Washington, Nov. 10.—Advices received in Washington last night show that the president, who is abouard the battleship Louisiana, headed for the isthmus of Panama, is well on his way. The transfer from the yacht Mayflower to the Louisiana, took place Thursday night in Chesapeake bay. The ship passed out the capes to sea early yesterday morning and at noon passed Cape Hatteras. The Louisiana was followed by the armored cruisers Tennessee and Washington, which are to convoy the battleship on her southern trip.

The latest news given out by Secretary Loeb concerning the whereabouts of the vessel was contained in a dispatch from Capt. Couden, commanding the Louisiana, which stated that the ship had passed Cape Hatteras; that the sea was smooth and that all were well.

Sceretary Loeb expects but one message a day from the president unless circumstances intervene which require more frequent communication. Any matter which requires the president's special attention will be communicated to him by wireless telegraph.

Small bulletins of important news of the day will be made up in Washington and sent to the president, so that he may be kept accurately informed what is going on in the United States.

INSPECTION OF STATE PRISON IN PROGRESS

Walla Walla, Nov. 13.—The special commission appointed by Gov. Mead to inspect the sanitary and other conditions of the penitentiary arrived in the city yesterday and began its work today. It will take several days to complete the work. The principal things the commission will attend to are the following:

The formation of some plan for separating young convicts and first offenders from the more hardened criminals and the establishment of a reformatory prison, which will be urged by Gov. Mead in his message to the legislature. Among other measures the commission will take up are the discipline of unruly convicts and the improvement of the sanitary conditions of the prison. The matter of giving employment to a larger number of convicts will also be included in the investigation.

Only 40 per cent of the convicts are given employment in the jute mill, and probably not over 10 per cent are employed at other work about the prison, leaving fully 400 men without any employment whatever.

Board of Trade Contracts Upheld

St. Paul, Nov. 10.—The United States court of appeals has handed down a decision upholding the validity of contracts for the purchase and sale of grain for future delivery, as it is practiced by the Chicago Board of Trade and the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis. The case was that of Thomas A. Cleague, Jr., against W. H. Laidlee and others.

Capt. Griffin Found Not Guilty

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 10.—Capt. Griffin, of the Princess Victoria, was found not guilty by Judge Henderson yesterday on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the loss of lives in the collision between the Princess Victoria and the Chehalis in the narrows last July. The judge declared that there had been no criminal carelessnes or recklessness.

REBATING CHARGED

RAILROADS AND GRAIN COMPANIES INDICTED.

Federal Grand Jury at Minneapolis Returns True Bills Against Corporations and Individuals. Eleven Indictments and Large Number of Counts.

Minneapolis, Nov. 10.—Eleven indictments have been handed to Judge Lochren in the United States district court, and they cover the giving of rebates by certain railroads and the receiving of the same by grain concerns and individuals. The list of corporations against which the indictments were returned, as given out by District Attorneys Ewart and Dickie, who have had charge of the case, follows.

The Great Northern Railroad Company, four indictments and about seventy counts; the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway, one indictment and seventeen counts; Minneapolis & St. Louis railway, one indictments and five counts.

Some of the Charges

The indictments against the railroads charge the giving of rebates, and under the head of receiving rebates, true blils were returned against the following: W. P. Devereaux Company, McCall, Dinsmore Company, Minneapolis; Amos Brooks Company, Duluth Milling Company, Duluth.

Two indictments against the Great Northern were for giving rebates to the Superior Grain Company; one for giving rebates to the McCaull, Dinsmore Company, and another for giving rebates to the Spencer Grain Company.

The Omaha railroad, the Wisconsin Central and the Minneapolis & St. Louis were charged with favoring the Spencer Grain Company. The companies indicted who were not railroad companies are charged with accepting rebate.

Beside these corporations indictments were returned against eleven individual officials of the roads named, but United States District Attorney Haupt said he would not consent to the names being given out for publication, owing to the fact that no service had been obtained upon them.

The general offense charged in the railroad indictment is the absorption of grain charges with elevator charges.

After the bunch of indictments had been given out to the court, the jurors were excused for the term and told to convene in St. Paul. That a further and more searching investigation into the rebate questions will be made is not denied by Assistant Attorney Ewart, and further revelations are expected to be made at the next sitting of the grand jury.

Perhaps the most surprised people of all those indicted were the railroad officials, for none of those interested expected indictments to be brought. Each company had made its best endeavors to disclaim any criminality in its relations with the grain companies.

The grand jury has been in almost continuous session on the rebate business, except for a short recess and to look into the matter of naturalization frauds, and it is understood that indictments under this head were returned, but as they were against individuals upon whom service is yet to be made, no information was given out. It is said that some matters of a sensational nature will be made public when the cases are brought before the court.

EDUCATIONAL CAMPAIGN STARTED BY SPOKANE

Spokane, Nov. 13.—Fifteen thousand dollars will be raised at once by the special committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which is prosecuting the fight before the interstate commerce commission for a readjustment of transcontinental freight rates for Spokane. The decision was reached at a meeting of the committee. Intensely aroused over the combination of the Coast jobbers' associations to fight its demand for terminal rates, the committee declares its intention to raise $100,000 if necessary.

Furthermore, an educational campaign is to be started at once and every merchant in the Inland Epmire is to be sent a circular letter setting forth Spokane's case.

DENIES ALL INTERVIEWS

Executive Officers Say President Must Not Be Quoted.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The following statement touching on the quoted conversations with the president has been made public at the White House: "For many years it has been the invariable practice never to attempt to quote a private conversation with the president. It has been found that as a matter of fact, the man who quotes such a conversation usually misquotes it, whether consciously or unconsciously, and such an alleged conversation is under no circumstances to be held as calling for explanation or denial by the president. The president is responsible only for what he himself says in public, for what he writes, or for what he explicitly authorizes the proper government officials to state in his behalf.

GIVE AWAY SAGE FORTUNE

Mrs. Sage Will Keep Only Enough for Modish Comfort.

New York, Nov. 13.—Mrs. Russell Sage will give away the bulk of a fortune of $80,000,000, bequeathed to her by her late husband, to individuals whom she considers worthy, who, through no fault of their own are so unfortunate as to need assistance and too proud to ask. It will not be given to endow churches, nor to those who write begging letters.

Mrs. Sage says she will do all she can for struggling churches and institutions devoted to the care of the needy and sick.

"I shall keep only sufficient of the fortune left me by my husband to live quietly and comfortably," Mrs. Sage said yesterday.

GENERAL INVESTIGATION OF HARRIMAN SYSTEM

Washington, Nov. 10.—A general investigation of what is known as the Harriman system of railroads under the authority conferred by law is one of the subjects which has been discussed for some time by the interstate commerce commission and that body really stands committed to an inquiry.

'We have been informed," a member of the commission said, "that this system in some of its features is not unlike the Northern Securities Company, which was dissolved through the interposition of the attorney general of the United States."

Any steps which may be taken by the commission along the lines referred to will be in accordance with the general powers of the commission conferred by law, and not because of any immediate specific complaint of a violation of the statutes.

In January, if time permits, the commission will take up the complaint of the municipality of Spokane against the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Union Pacific and the Oregon Short Line railroads, involving alleged discrimination in charging a higher rate for a shorter than for a longer haul.

OREGON WILL OPERATE CELILO PORTAGE ROAD

Portland, Or., Nov. 13.—The portage road around Celilo falls will not be abandoned. Its operation by the state authorities will be continued. Strong efforts have been made by railroad influences to secure the leasing of the road to private parties, but at a conference between the state portage board and members of the Open River Association, it was decided that the road was a success and the policy of state operation will be pursued.

The road has not until the present season had a chance to demonstrate its utility as a link in the river transportation chain between the Inland Empire and the Coast markets. The road was completed in June of last year and there were no river accommodations for handling the traffic at that time. Then came the question of inland warehouses and hauling the grain to the river bank. Last year the portage road carried 15,000 sacks of grain; this year 50,000 sacks have already been hauled and 20,000 sacks more are awaiting transportation, so that only time is needed to make the road successful.

It is conceded, however, that the chief benefit of the railroad has been in reducing railroad rates, the O. R. & N. having been forced to cut rates to the interior in half.

FAVOR $50,000,000 FUND

National Body to Further River and Harbor Improvements.

New York, Nov. 12.—The national Rivers and Harbors congress, which was organized in Washington last January, is preparing to hold a second convention on December 6 and 7. Arrangements are being completed, and invitations have been sent out.

The purpose of the forthcoming convention is to demonstrate to congress that a sentiment has arisen in favor of increased and regular river and harbor appropriations. Business men, representing commercial bodies, river improvement associations, maritime exchanges, chambers of commerce and other organized bodies from every city in the United States are expected to be present. Members of congress will be invited to attend the sessions of the body, and resolutions will be presented asking that $50,000,000 be appropriated annually for river and harbor improvements.

To Investigate Tobacco Trust

Washington, Nov. 13.—An investigation of the business methods of the so-called tobacco trust will be taken by the department of justice. E. N. Hill, of Boston has been appointed as special attorney to make the inquiry. The officials of the department will not discuss the matter, but it is believed that a prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust act is in view.

Increase in Land Entries

Washington, Nov. 14.—The total number of land entries for the first quarter of the fiscal year 1907 was 53,020, an increase of 12,388 over the first quarter of the fiscal year 1906. The total receipts for the first quarter of the current fiscal year were $2,153,904, an increase of $789,666 over the first quarter of the preceding year.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

The Board adjourned to meet Tuesday the 13th day of November, 1906, at 2.00 p. m.

Tuesday the 13th day of November, 1906, at 2:00 p. m.

The Board met dursuant to adjournment.

All members being present.

On motion the Board approved the liquor bond of A. A. Zaccards for running a saloon at Blyn. Washington, and ordered the auditor to issue a saloon license to him.

Commissioners Christopher and Filion voting aye, and Commissioner Bugge voting nay.

Whereas, this Board, on July 12, 1906, passed a resolution submitting a proposition to the electors of Clallam county to be voted upon on November 6, 1906, (a general election being held in the State of Washington), to issue bonds for the purpose of canceling all outstanding general road fund warrant indebtedness,

And, whereas, as a large majority of the electors voting on said bond issue at said general election, voted yes, and authorized the issue of said bonds, and,

Whereas, there is approximately $25,000.00 general road fund warrants outstanding in Clallam county, Washington,

And, whereas, there is approximately, $9,000.00 interest accrued on said warrants, and

Whereas, we believe the best interest of the county would be subserved by issuing funding bonds and funding said warrant indebtedness;

Therefore be it resolved by the Board of County Commissioners of Clallam county, Washington, that we cause to be issued funding bonds to the amount of $34,000.00, or so much thereof as may be necessary to take up and cancel all said outstanding general road fund warrants and indebtedness of said Clallam county,

Be it further resolved that said bonds shall be of denominations of $1,000.00 each. Said bonds to bear a rate of interest not to exceed 4½ per cent per annum. Interest payable semi-annually at the County Treasurer's office in Port Angeles, Washington.

Said bonds shall be payable in 20 years; or shall be payable in 20 years, optional after 10 years, and shall otherwise be in accordance with existing laws.

Be it further resolved that the auditor be, and he is hereby instructed to advertise for bids for said bonds.

The Board adjourned to meet at 9:30 a. m., Wednesday the 14th day of November, 1906.

Wednesday the 14th day of November, 1906, at 9:30 a. m.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, all members being present.

Owing to the crowded condition of the vaults of the various county offices, the Board decided to have an additional vault constructed.

The Board ordered the Auditor to advertise for bids for the construction of a vault, to be located on the west side of the auditor's office. Said bids to be according to plans and specifications on file at the office of the county auditor.

The Board ordered that all the territory comprised in Norman voting precinct be transferred to Ozette precinct.

The Board adjourned to meet at 1:30 p. m.

The Board met pursuant to adjournment, all members being present.

Whereas, there is now pending in the Superior Court of Jefferson county, Washington, a case involving the title of Protection Island, which island is within Clallam county, and its rights involved therein.

The county attorney is instructed to take such action in such case at once as becomes necessary to protect Clallam county's rights thereto.

The Board instructed the county surveyor to make a survey of the eastern boundary of Clallam county, relative to the location of Protection Island.

It appearing that the poll tax of John C. Grader for the year 1905 had been attached to the W½ NE¼ and SE¼ NW ¼ of Sec. 9 and SW¼ SE¼ Sec. 4-28-13, which said property is owned by J. W. New Idea Womans Magazine

—and—

both one year for $1.30.

The "New Idea," now in its 14th year, is well known, both magazine and New Idea patterns being on sale at dry goods stores everywhere. It contains 100 pages, printed on good paper and well illustrated. Each number contains about 35 articles and stories, in addition to ten full page plates, part of which are in colors, of ladies and children's costumes, and some fifteen pages of fashions and needlework.

Published monthly at New York City; with the Olympic Leader $1.30 a year.

The best treatment for indigestion and troubles of the stomach is to rest the stomach. It can be rested by starvation or by the use of a good digestant which will digest the food eaten, thus taking the work off the stomach. At the proper temperature, a single teaspoonful of Kodol will wholly digest 3,000 grains of food. It relieves the present annoyance, puts the stomach in shape to satisfactorily perform its functions. Good for indigestion, sour stomach, flatulence, palpitation of the heart and dyspepsia. Kodol is made in strict conformity with the National Pure Food and Drug Law Sold by C. E. Nailor & Co.

There's No Use

Talking, you can't beat Herbine for the liver. The greatest regulator ever offered to suffering humanity. If you suffer from liver complaint, if your are billious and fretful, its your liver, and Herbine will put it in its proper condition. A positive cure for Constipation, Billiousness, Dyspepsia, and all ills due to a torpid liver. Try a bottle and you will never use anything else.

Sold by Mathewson's Pharmacy.

A Trite Saying.

It is a trite saying that no man is stronger than his stomach. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach—puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body and thus cures both liver and kidney troubles. If you take this natural blood purifier and tonic, you will assist your system in manufacturing each day a pint of rich, red blood, that is invigorating to the brain and nerves. The weak, nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people suffer from, is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin and the feelings "blue." Dr. Pierce's "Discovery" cures all blood humors as well as being a tonic that makes one vigorous, strong and forceful. It is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that contains neither alcohol nor harmful habit-forming drugs, and the only one, every ingredient of which has the professional endorsement of the leading medical writers of this country. Some of these endorsements are published in a little book of extracts from standard medical works and will be sent to any address free, on receipt of request therefor by letter or postal card, addressed to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. It tells just what Dr. Pierce's medicines are made of.

The "Words of Praise" for the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, by leaders in all the several schools of medical practice, and recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised, should have far more weight with the sick and afflicted than any amount of the so-called "testimonials" so conspicuously flaunted before the public by those who are afraid to let the ingredients of which their medicines are composed be known. Bear in mind that the "Golden Medical Discovery" has THE BADGE OF HONESTY on every bottle wrapper, in a full list of its ingredients.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation, invigorate the liver and regulate stomach and bowels.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

"For years I starved, then I bought a a 50c bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, and what that bottle benefitted me all the gold in Georgia could not buy. I kept on taking it and in two months I went back to my work as machinist. In three months I was as well and hearty as I ever was, I still use a little occasionally as I find it a blood purefier and a good tonic. May you live long and prosper." C.N. Cornell, Roding, Ga., Aug. 27, 1906. Kodol is sold here by C. E. Nailor & Co.

MY NEIGHBOR.

My neighbor was a widder, an' she hed a run down farm,
An' her cows an' pigs an' chickens done a mighty lot o' harm
To my fields ajinin', an' I stood it quite a while,
Till I wouldn't be imposed on in no sich kind of style.

So I looked my very maddest es I walked up to her door,
Till she looked up at me smilin' while a-washin' up the floor,
An' her cheeks was red es roses an' her hair es black es night;
I forgot to scold an' sass her, fer she seemed so sweet an' bright.

But my hand was to the plow now, an' it wouldn't never do
To forgit them deperdations jes' by lookin' at her shoe,
So I gethered up my anger an' I said: "Now, Mrs. Brown,"
An' my tone put out her eyes' light an' the lashes they fell down.

But I ain't no man for foolin', an' I went right on to say
How her pigs et all my melons an' her cows et tons of hay;
How her chickens scratched my corn out, an' I wouldn't hev it so,
Gittn' harder all the time, like a mad man will, you know.

Then the widder she looked up, with a teardrop on her cheek
An' a somethin' in her throat that wouldn't let her speak,
But she sobbed an' cried out in a kind o' teary tone,
That she hed no one to help her, an' was poor an' all alone.

An' my hand was off the plow then an' a-reachin' out for hern,
I hed learnt a sudden lesson that I never thought I'd learn.
Well, my scoldin' was a failure, seein' what I thought to do,
For her pigs an' cows are all here, an' the widder's with 'em, too.

A Tale of Two Aunties.

THEY were no relation to each other—you would have known that at a glance.

Young Auntie was as pretty as a picture and wore the daintiest of clothes, and lived in a lovely big house with all sorts of nice things in it, with Uncle Weaver to live with her and love and take care of her as if she'd been a princess. Besides all this, there were hosts of friends to come and go, a carriage at her disposal, and servants to do everything for her.

Old Auntie was fat and wrinkled and black as ebony, with a fluff of frosty wool tucked under a red bandana turban. She lived in a cabin where the floor was loose, the wall full of chinks and the furniture not worth mentioning. There was nobody to take care of her, nobody to wait on her, and as for a drive, she hadn't even been in a carriage since her master's funeral before the war.

The contrast could hardly have been greater, you see. They didn't know each other by sight, but they had a mutual acquaintance who was quite familiar with both. He was Uncle Weaver's nephew, and very fond of the pretty young auntie; and as the old auntie often came to his home for a day's work, he was a good friend of hers' too, for Rob had a way of making friends with everybody.

He lived about half way between the big house and the shanty, in his own pleasant home with father and mother and little sister Marie, and he was as dear a boy as ever went coasting, but he sometimes—once in a long while—made mistakes.

One day not far from Thanksgiving the young auntie fell ill. Not dangerously so, but enough to make her feverish and wretched and spoil her appetite and fade the pretty pink out of her cheeks. Uncle Weaver was so worried he didn't know what to do first. He kept the telephone busy till he had two doctors, a trained nurse and Rob's mamma all in auntie's room at once, and a telegraph messenger waiting downstairs until he should find out whether it was necessary to send for her family. And even after the doctors had told him there was no cause for alarm and had gone serenely away, Uncle Weaver pulled mamma into the other room to whisper, "I don't like her symptoms, Annabel. She hasn't eaten a morsel to-day. She is sicker than they think." Mrs. Towne laughed reassuringly, and patted her brother's nervous hand, told him that Lillie would be as good as new in a day or two. Then she went to fix a lunch that auntie must try to eat. "You can never resist what I shall send you—you'll see," and Mrs. Towne threw a cheery kiss from the doorway as she left for home. "I do begin to feel hungry," confessed the patient, "and Annabel is such a lovely cook."

Down in the little cabin old auntie was ailing so. The gray November days, with their chilling winds and scattering snowflakes, had given her many sharp twinges of rheumatism, and on this day her knees were so stiff and painful she couldn't drag herself out of bed. Patiently she lay through the long, weary hours, hoping for relief, until towards noon her cheerful courage wavered. "'Pears lak everybody's forgot ole auntie to-day. 'Pears lak even the good Lord hasn't taken notice of His chile. If I had a bite of sumpin' warm, I'd feel better, but I can't make my po' ole knees carry me, an', to tell the truth, they's moughty little to git if I was able. Lord, please send ravens or somebody to he'p me out o' dis trouble. Put it into somebody's mind to he'p me tell I'm able to work."

The path of sunlight that sifted through the little square window moved farther and farther east. Old auntie watched it, waiting, shivering, for the help she had prayed for.

In the pleasant home half way between the two aunties Mamma Towne was spreading her best tray with an array that would have gladdened your eyes to behold. First an embroidered tray-cloth, then a china plate holding half a young chicken, broiled. A little covered dish was filled with cream toast, another held two poached eggs with some crisp salted wafers beside them. A glass of current jelly and a cup of custard completed the array — oh, no, it didn't; for there was a wee pot of fragrant tea with cut loaf sugar and whipped cream, and a pale pink rose with a long stem and a spray of glossy leaves. "It seems ridiculous to send so much, but I don't suppose Weaver will eat a morsel away from her, and she can divide with him, which will do them both good. Such children as they are, bless their hearts."

Rob came at her call, breathless and panting, from a most exciting game of football. "I want you to take this tray to auntie, Rob."

"Oh, mamma, must I?" he asked, ruefully.

"Yes, dear, you must. I have no one else to send, and auntie is not well, and needs this at once. Hurry to get there while the things are hot, and be very careful not to stumble. Go as fast as you safely can." Rob choked back a sudden lump that hurt his throat, as he heard the shouts outside. "All right, I'll hurry," he said, bravely, as he started out.

"Come on, Rob," yelled the boys.

"I'll be back in a minute," he called. "Wait, fellows, I'll hurry."

Five minutes after the two big tears had huddled out of sight in the pillow there came a tap at old auntie's door. "Come in," she said, and looked up expectantly, as Rob stepped carefully in with the tray. "I knew it! I knew it! Bless the good Lord, who don't fergit his ungrateful chillen. Thank you kindly, honey, an' yo ma, too."

Rob set his burden on a chair and lifted the covers, while old auntie painfully drew herself to a sitting posture.

"Why, it's cold in here," exclaimed the boy. "Why, you haven't got any fire!"

"Sho, 'nough, I isn't, honey. Ole auntie's been too stiff to walk to-day."

"And haven't you had any breakfast or anything?"

"No, honey, I isn't, but I'se got it now. Des bes' breakfus' any ole woman ever had. I sho' wasn't 'spectin' all dis. De good Lord always mo' better to us dan we deserves."

The shouts of the football players came faintly to Rob's ears. His precious holiday seemed so short, he hesitated, but only for an instant. He tore down the street and yelled, "I can't come now. Let Tom Hale in on the team," then back to the cabin, where a good fire was soon roaring up the rickety stovepipe, its grateful warmth reaching the pain-racked old auntie with relieving comfort, as she ate her satisfying meal, reverently eyed her exquisite flower, and sang in her humble heart an anthem of thanksgiving.

Then Rob went home to pour a pitiful tale of cold and poverty and illness into mamma's bewildered ears. In the midst of it the telephone bell rang sharply, and mamma answered it. A moment later she turned to Rob. "Is it possible you took that tray of lovely things to old black auntie? Aunt Lillie is sick, and Uncle Weaver says she is waiting impatiently for her lunch, and now there isn't any lunch to send her."

The boy stood abashed. "I'm sorry, mamma. You just said 'auntie.' I guess I was thinking about football the most. I did not know you had to send things for Aunt Lillie to eat, and I knew old auntie was poor. But I didn't know how poor till now, mamma. If you could just have seen her when I got there—and she hadn't had a bite to eat all day, and she'd been there sick and cold and alone, and I should think she needed it worse than Aunt Lillie did. She said the Lord sent it, because she'd been praying. I'm glad she got it, mamma."

Mrs. Towne turned to the 'phone again. "There has been a mistake, Weaver. I'll send Lillie's lunch as soon as possible—am sorry for the delay," then she hung up the receiver. "If the Lord has made you His messenger, I have nothing to say, dear. Wait till I fix a tray for Aunt Lillie, then I'll go with you to see old auntie. It will not do to leave one of God's children suffering want in the midst of a Christian community."

Rob explained matters when he took Aunt Lillie's lunch to her a little later. At first they laughed, but as Rob grew more earnest they began to get interested, for auntie was much better.

At last, after they had heard the story through, Lillie turned to her young husband with eyes that shone through tears.

"Old and alone and suffering and poor. Oh, Weaver, and I've had everything she lacks in such abundance! I didn't know there was anybody like that in this town."

"There, darling, don't you worry," soothed Uncle Weaver.

"I want to worry. It's time I did when things like this are true. Old and poor and alone and hungry. No, Weaver, dear, I won't be still. I'm going to see her. Rob, you tell her I said so. Run down and ask cook for a loaf of bread and take it when you go."

Uncle Weaver followed Rob into the hall. "Order some fuel for her as you pass the woodyard," he said, holding out a crisp green bill. "Auntie Lillie wants her to have it, and, Rob, I'm so glad she's better. I could buy fuel for all the old women in town with a joyful heart."

Rob forgot all about football that afternoon, for mamma kept him so busy. "To think this poor, good old soul lived like this so close to my door and I never suspected it."

It was hard to tell who reaped the most benefit from Rob's mistake. Whether it was Rob himself, who learned in a way he never forgot the joy of practical yet loving ministry for one of Christ's "little ones," or Mamma Towne, who in return for her prompt and efficient assistance, received more help than she rendered, in lessons of human piety and unquestioning faith.

Or young auntie, who never rested till every chink in the cabin was stopped, the walls plastered and a new floor laid, and who, having tasted the sweetness of sharing her abundance with those who lacked, was never again willing to settle back to the old level of selfishness.

Or old auntie, who in her comfortable bed, her suffering limbs soothed with liniments and bandages, prayed as earnestly for blessing on the friends God had sent her, as she had for the relief of her own sore needs.

"Mistake—don't ever call it that again, Rob," said Auntie Lillie, when the boy next day remembered to offer a tardy apology; and Uncle Weaver, quite relieved and happy again, and rejoicing in anything that gave pleasure to the young wife, added: "It was the right thing to do—the only thing—in fact, the rightest thing you ever were guilty of, my boy."—Christian Observer.

How to Tell Pure Milk.

When milk is skimmed or watered it is of a thin bluish color. To cover this defect coloring is resorted to. If you are suspicious of your milk supply, let a sample of it stand in a clear glass, say twelve hours. Then carefully observe the watery and the creamy layer. If the lower layer is yellow artificial coloring matter has been employed.

Cream low or deficient in butter fat may also be detected. A little vinegar added to the heated cream or milk produces in the curd a distinct orange color if an aniline dye has been used to give the cream apparent richness. If caramel or annatto has been used the curd will have a brownish color. The curd of the pure cream should be nearly white.

To detect the use of a preservative keep the milk in a warm place for forty-eight hours. If the sample is still sweet at the end of this time the presence of a preservative is strongly indicated.

A LITTLE LESSON IN ADVERSITY.

It was of Peter Cooper that the poet Joaquin Miller wrote:

"I reckon him greater than any man
That ever drew sword in war;
I reckon him nobler than king or khan,
Braver and better by far.
And wisest he is in this whole wide land
Of hoarding till bent and gray;
For all you can hold in your cold, dead hand
Is what you have given away."

PETER COOPER.

Peter Cooper had not quite a year's schooling in the course of his lifetime anxious although he was for it, greedy even for knowledge. His people were oppressed by the most grinding poverty. His assistance was absolutely necessary to enable them to live on the barest necessities. The boy worked from his earliest childhood, not the work that children of this day and time are accustomed to, but toil that was fitted more for a man than a boy.

Unselfish ever, the boy determined that if he were ever given the opportunity of being able to give the means he would found a school such as he would have desired to attend, a school for the children of poverty. How he worked to that end is a story of the nation. The result is the great Cooper Union of New York, one of the greatest institutions of the country in existence to-day.

VICE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

Miss Helen N. Scott, the Pittsburg young woman who eloped with Frederick Cole Fairbanks, the youngest son of Vice President Fairbanks, is in her nineteenth year. She is the youngest daughter of James Scott, one of the followers of Andrew Carnegie who found himself wealthy when the United States Steel Corporation was formed and took over the Carnegie properties. She has been highly educated and is accomplished in more ways than one, as well as being good looking. The young couple have been forgiven by the parents on both sides. The only objection to the marriage on the part of the parents was the youth of the pair.

Moving in New York.

An expressman who called at a New York boarding house for two trunks was asked by the landlady where they were going.

"I don't know," he said. "You see, I do only half the hauling. I will take the things to our office and somebody else will take them the rest of the way. The boss at the desk will know the address. The moving is done on the installment plan to keep you folks here from finding out where the other people went. They were afraid to trust me with the number for fear you might worm it out of me, so they told it to nobody but the manager. Lots of people who move often make the trip in sections like that. Half the time when I take a trunk away from a boarding house I don't know where it will wind up. That is generally done where there has been a row and the folks who leave don't want to be followed. Been a little trouble here, I imagine," he added tentatively.

"Yes," sighed the landlady, "a little."—Evening Wisconsin.

A Monkey that Wears Glasses.

In the zoological gardens at Breslau, Germany, there is a spider monkey which was operated on for cataract and now wears glasses. For more than a year after it was received at the zoo it was very healthy and lively; then it became very quiet, ceased to play and crouched in a corner. It was examined and found to be suffering from cataract, so it was immediately taken to the eye hospital and operated on. In less than a month it was fitted with a pair of spectacles, which it wears with becoming gravity.

A Thirty-Three Years' War

Struggle of the Dutch and the people of Achin who resist subjugation with Malay Ferocity

The recent capture by a Dutch force of a native stronghold in the Island of Celebes recalls the fact, overlooked in quick succession of more momentous occurrences, that the Netherlands are still engaged in a war in the Far East which was begun thirty-three years ago. This perpetual war is not connected with the Celebes incident. It is another story and here it is:

At the upper end of the Island of Sumatra, called the outpost of the Dutch East Indies, is an ancient and powerful warlike people called Achinese, who bear some resemblance to the Malay race, but are said to have emigrated about the seventh century from India. They are now, and have been since the thirteenth century, Mohammedans. Marco Polo, the irrespressible, visited the island toward the end of the thirteenth century, but the first foreigners to attempt the settlement and conquest of Sumatra were the Portuguese, about 200 years later. Achin is about the size of Ireland, and has a population of 750,000.

For 140 years the Portuguese struggled to overthrow the Sultan of Achin, but those were the days of splendor and power of the Sultanate. The Sultan carried the war into Malacca and although he accompanied an armada of 500 ships, carrying 60,000 warriors, to the neighboring state, the Dons were able to defeat the Moslem chieftain in Malacca. In his own strongholds in Achin, they were not so successful, and retired after an intermittent warfare lasting close to a century.

The last of the Portuguese had departed 100 years before the advance post of the Dutch made its appearance. For more than fifty years the Dutch were contented to occupy more or less peacefully the lower part of the island, leaving the Sultan of Achin to the enjoyment of his own. In the meantime it happened that the Hindoo dynasty in Achin was followed by an Arab race of rulers, and the Achinese degenerated in their civilization. Its commerce declined, its government became irresponsible, and gave way to a disordered state bordering on anarchy.

Having been swallowed up in the French Empire by Napoleon, the Islands of Sumatra and Java, after the conqueror's fall, passed to the possession of England. When Holland once more became a State, England traded the Island of Sumatra for Malacca, an exchange which was welcomed by both governments.

During the British occupation of Sumatra the English had established a sort of friendship with the Sultan of Achin. The British winked at the buccaneering and piracy carried on by the subjects of his Highness, so long as they did not make a mistake and capture a British ship, and in return for this moral blindness, their good friend the Sultan permitted the English to reside in Achin and develop trade. In passing title to Holland in treaties of 1819 and 1824, the English specially stipulated that the Dutch must not conquer the Sultanate of Achin. And the Dutch, however, unwillingly, have kept their word.

Achin, while it was for fifty years an El Dorado for the English, was a source of much discomfort to the Dutch. There was no responsible government at Achin. The Sultan was a figurehead, and the people were becoming yearly more proficient in piracy and buccaneering. Having worked at these trades until the prospect of gain became insignificant, they turned their attention to the Dutch end of the island.

The Achinese crossed the frontier in large bands and swarmed over the country. They captured the Dutch natives and sold them for slaves. Their pirates ravaged the straits and the China Sea, attacking and plundering Europeans. The Dutch Indian Government, therefore, in spite of the treaties, had to send armed forces against the marauders. In order to protect their own end of the islands the Dutch had to maintain men under arms at all times.

The northern part of Sumatra is probably the worst in the world for a foreign army to invade. It is full of pitfalls and there are treacherous river beds. Only the native knows the country, and it is small wonder the Dutch have been unsuccessful, and have made little headway in their campaign. Nearly every general sent out to take command returns to Europe defeated and humiliated. Holland is compelled to keep in her East Indian possessions an army of about 40,000 men. Most of these are mercenaries, and but for the trouble in Achin half of the force would be ample for keeping order.

The Achinese are good fighters and, being Moslems, are fearless in battle. Death under these circumstances they are told is but a translation from this world to Paradise. Naturally they are fanatics and carry on a guerrilla warfare. Their favorite mode of attack is by ambuscade; they usually devote their attention to cutting out convoys, blowing up trains, and by these crude, unexpected tactics are able to keep the Dutch forces constantly worn out. Aside from these secret attacks the Achinese fight fairly, and when they capture Dutch soldiers treat them humanely and usually send them back to their own camp under escort.

Still the war continues. The Achinese are no nearer subjugation than they were thirty years ago. In addition to the army constantly kept in the Dutch East Indies, the Netherlands Government maintains a special fleet of warships to patrol the Achin coast. Piracy has, indeed, been relegated by the Achinese to the limbo of lost arts, but independence is still theirs. The war in Achin is no longer a war of conquest; it is a war of extermination.

KEEP A GAMBLER'S SCHOOL.

Monte Carlo Managers Train Their Croupiers Most Methodically.

The Monte Carlo casino trains all its own croupiers, and very rigorous that training is. When an applicant is favorably considered for training he has to come up for a medical examination. After this examination the recruit to the croupier's chair comes up for six hours' training every day in the school which is situated at the back of the casino, provided that he can prove he has been a resident in the principality of Monaco for at least a year.

Throwing money is one of the most important items of the curriculum, for it is imperative that a croupier shall be able to throw a handful of money so that it will pitch with unfailing precision on any spot on the table. To throw money quickly and so that it does not pitch on end and roll is not so easy as it seems and it is generally three weeks before the young croupier satisfies his trainer that he is proficient in this part.

Now comes the most difficult part of the training, learning to reckon money mechanically. The croupier must never count; if he did the slow progress of the game would try the patience of all the players. He must become a veritable ready reckoner and this, of course, only comes by practice. But to prove to what a high state this reckoning can be brought it may be said that before a croupier passes to the casinao trained staff he is able to tell the value of the coins in his hand simply by the feel of them—that is to say, he could pick up a number of coins and without pausing tell you their value.

Every day each pupil is made to sit as croupier at a table around which are gathered his fellow pupils, who start playing with metal disks of sizes and values equivalent to the coins used at the tables. This test is a trying one for the budding croupier. Everyone does his best to fluster him, the disks spin across the cloth and if his mind does not take in the proper values and he loses his head he knows that his prospects are in jeopardy.

Once a croupier becomes proficient he can, when drafted into playing saloons, hold his post for a great many years, but as he only receives $360 per annum as a roulette croupier he is not able to save much. Nevertheless, he is well looked after, for if he becomes ill he has his medical attendance free.—Detroit Tribune.

In Defense of Tobacco.

Spurgeon, the preacher, is said to have said that it was his habit to smoke cigars "to the glory of God," but now we find serious people writing to say that the use of tobacco in any form is improper for clergymen of any denomination. One wonders why, seeing that the moderate use of the herb is associated neither with evil passions nor with heretical doctrines.

The North American Indians, who were the earliest smokers known to history, always brought out the pipe of peace as a symbol of their intention, if not to beat the tomahawk into the plowshare at least to dwell together in unity until further notice.

And it is an indisputable fact that great teachers have often been great smokers. It was amid "clouds of tobacco smoke" that Tennyson set to work, "In Memoriam," to reconcile religion with science; it was in a similar if not quite so dense an atmosphere that Carlyle assgned the Deity and the devil their respective roles in the history of the French revolution. These precedents should suffice, and if they do not, there is the example of Kingsley to be quoted. He was a parish priest and his standards and ideals were high, but he also enjoyed his pipe when his day's work was done and did not hesitate to say so.—London Mail.

State Monopolies in France.

State monopolies are more than ever in favor in France as a means of raising revenue to the prejudice of private enterprise. A committee of the Chamber of Deputies has been appointed, with a former minister of finance as chairman, to collect information on the possible working of monopolies of sugar and petroleum refining, the rectification of alcohol and insurance.

INVITED TO INSPECT

GOVERNOR WOULD SHOW LEGISLATORS STATE INSTITUTIONS.

Directs Heads of Institutions to Throw Doors Wide Open to Investigation--Expects Suggestions Which May Result in Beneficial Legislations.

Olympia, Nov. 17.—Members of the legislature will be invited by Gov. Mead to inspect any or all of the state institutions within the vicintity of their districts, or elsewhere in the state, if they wish. Gov. Mead has mailed out requests to the heads of the state institutions of all kinds and to all of the departments under his charge, that invitations be extended to members of the legislature to inspect the institutions and departments at any time between now and the convening of the legislature. The invitations are extended through the heads of the institutions for convenience in arranging dates for the inspection on the part of the legislators.

Throw Doors Wide Open

In his invitation to the legis ators Gov. Mead directs that the doors be thrown wide open for a complete and thorough investigation along any line that the investigators may desire to pursue Not only the penitentiary, the two asylums, reform school, school for the deaf and blind and the soldiers' home are included in the list, but the state educational institutions, the university, state college and normal schools, and the departments under the governor's direction, including the fish commissioner's office, labor commissioner and factory inspector, dairy and food commissioner, oil inspector, grain inspector, mining inspector, etc.

"Of course we have no funds available for this purpose," said Gov. Mead, "and can only call upon those who are voluntarily willing to undertake the work. Although I have suggested certain lines along which I would like to have the investigation conducted, the members of the legislature, like the members of the commissions I have already appointed to inspect some of the institutions, are free to take up any line they wish.

"The idea of having the institutions inspected by legislators residing near them is, of course, that they naturally take more interest in their home institutions and will, of course, not be put to the expense of traveling any distance to do the work.

Many Suggestions Expected

"The investigation is not limited to members of the legislature, and the invitation will also be extended to county officials and private citizens if any are sufficiently interested to take part. Before the legislature convenes in January I think we will be in possession at least of many valuable suggestions that may crystalize into remedial legislation."

As in the case of the commissions for the different instutions that the governor has already appointed, these wholesale investigations are not made with an expectation of unearthing suspected or unsuspected mismanagement or deleliction of officials or state employes, but with a view to a general betterment of the state service wherever it may be found possible.

NAMES COMMITTEES OF INVESTIGATION

Olympia, Nov. 17.—In pursuance of his general policy of having all institutions and departments of the state government investigated and examined by committees of officials and citizens not connected in any manner with these institutions and departments, Gov. Mead has announced the personnel of committees to examine the state reform school, at Chehalis, the state fish commission, whose headquarters are at Bellingham, and the state oil inspection department, whose headquarters are at Seattle These investigations are for the purpose of reporting on the exact condition of affairs and making recommendations for legislation concerning the institutions and offices.

AMBASSADOR AOKI TO VISIT WESTERN COAST

Washington, Nov. 20.—Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, will make a trip to the Pacific coast in a few months to study the condition of the Japanese in the far Western states, with especial view to learning the exact causes of the friction between Californians and his fellow countrymen.

All of the important cities on the Pacific coast will be visited by Viscount Aoki, who is especially anxious to acquaint himself with the reamrkable development of Washington, Oregon and California.

He will also probably make a number of stops in the cities of the Rocky mountains and in the Mississippi valley. Although the ambassador has crossed the American continent several times he never has had an opportunity to stop in the various commercial centers and study the industries which flourish throughout the Far West and the Middle West.

JAPANESE TOO AGGRESSIVE

Russians Complain of Constant Northward Advance in Manchuria.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 17.—According to advices from Vladivostok there is constant friction between the Russians and Japanese in Manchuria. The Japanese, According to the newspapers of Vladivostok, are continually pressing northward in Manchuria, with the apparent intent of establishing themselves in the hinterland of Vladivostok, where their presence would constitute a serious menace to the fortress, involving the possibility of the resumption of hostilities.

The charges that the Japanese are fortifying the island of Saghalien, in violation of the terms of the treaty of Portsmouth, is reiterated by the Usser Zhisn.

GREAT NORTHERN AND BURLINGTON TO MERGE

Omaha, Nov. 20.—The Bee says: Within one week the equity which the Northern Pacific now holds in the Burlington will pass into the hands of the Great Northern, and within fifteen days be merged into one vast system, with James J. Hill in control.

This statement was made by a man close to the official family of the Hill roads who has just returned from Chicago, where the intricate operations of this gigantic transaction are now being perfected. He makes the statement without reservation.

So far as the lines of track of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington are concerned, these three roads lack but one little link of being in fact, one great system. When the short cut from Billings to Great Falls Mont., is completed the unification will be consummated. The Western terminus of the Burlington is Billings, where it meets the Northern Pacific. A line has been in course of construction for some time from Billings to Great Falls, where the Great Northern runs on its way to the Coast.

This line will soon be finished, and when it is the three great railroads will be joined and merged, physically, into one vast system, but the federal government objecting, the Northern Pacific will not be named in the union.

MRS. MAUD CREFFIELD DIES IN COUNTY JAIL

Seattle, Nov. 17.—Mrs. Maud Creffield died shortly after 11 o'clock last night in her cell in the county jail. She is the third of the principals in the Holy Roller tragedy to meet sudden death. But a short time before her death she had played a game of cards with the women who are confined in that ward in the jail. Neither Sheriff Smith nor any of his deputies had received any imitation that the woman was ill and their first knowledge that she was stricken, or that anything was wrong in that part of the jail, was when women prisoners in the main dormitory of the women's department called for help.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Creffield and Esther Mitchell appeared to be in their usual spirits.

ROCKEFELLER INDICTED BY OHIO GRAND JURY

Findlay, O., Nov. 17.—The grand jury has found indictments against John D. Rockefeller and three other persons in connection with the Standard Oil inquiry, which was reopened upon the reconvening of that body on Tuesday.

Bench warrants issued on the indictments were placed in the hands of Sheriff Grover, who took them to Cleveland.

It is understood the indictments charge the defendants with having continued to contract for the oil productions and to fix prices on and after July 7, 1906, in violation of the Valentine anti-trust act, under which the recent prosecution of the Standard Oil Company in this county was concluded and in which a fine was mposed by the probate court.

Magazine Coupons Barred

Seattle, Nov. 17.—After March 4, 1907, publishers of magazines and periodicals will have to eliminate return coupons in advertisement or pay a higher rate for postage. This information has been received at the Seattle postoffice from the third assistant postmaster general. Newspapers and magazines are entitled to the second class rate. The copuons are held by the assistant postmaster general to be writing paper to be used by the reader for future correspondence, hence belonging to the class of mail matter listed as merchandise, for which a rate of one cent an ounce is providd.

National Child Labor Law

Richmond, Ind., Nov. 21.—At a meeting here of representatives of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Indiana and Ohio, Senator Albert J. Beveridge stated that on the opening day of the co ning session of congress he intended to introduce a bill prohibiting the labor of children throughout the country and a bill to make more rigid the present inspection law.

N. Y. C. Guilty of Rebating

New York, Nov. 17.—The jury found the New York Central guilty of granting rebates amounting to $26,000 to the American Refining Company. The trial of the American Sugar Refining Company on a charge of accepting the rebates paid by the New York Central has now commenced.

ELEVATOR COMBINE

INTERSTATE COMMISSION'S MILWAUKEE HEARING OPENED.

Information Sought as to Mixed Grading of Grain and the Relations Between the Railroads and Grain Interests--Armour a Witness.

Milwaukee, Nov. 21.— Interstate Commissioners Charles A. Prouty and Franklin K. Lane began an examination of severalM ilwaukee railroad and elevator men here yesterday in pursuance of the LaFollette resonlution passed at the last session of congress. Information is desired in reagrd to the alleged mixed grading of grains and the relations between the railroads and the grain interests.

W. J. Owen, of the firm of Owen & Co., told the commission that he at one time received a letter from the Tri-State Grain Dealers' Association inviting his firm to deal only through "regular "dealers and that if his firm dealt with any of the so-called scoop shovelers it would result in trouble for his firm. The understanding of his firm was that in order to get what is called transit privilege it is necessary to own an elevator in the city or use a public elevator.

He had no complaint against the services of elevators operated by the railroads.

Mr. Armour Is Called

J. Ogden Armour, of Chicago, was another witness. He testified that he is owner of 30,000 to 50,000 shares of stock of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway.

"Do you own stock in any other railroad companies, Mr. Armour?" he was asked.

After a few moments of thought Mr. Armour admitted that while being somewhat uncertain on the question, he was of the opinion that he did own some stock in some other roads.

"Which, please," insisted the attorney.

"Well, I believe I own some stock in the Pennsylvania lines and Union Pacific."

Mr. Armour testified under questioning, that he owned the controlling interest in the Armour Grain Company, the Atlas Company, the Neola and others.

Mr. Armour denied knowledge of any rebating or other form of favoritism.

At the afternoon session, Walter L. Houser, as the representative of the Mondovi Advancement Association, testified regarding conditions on the Omaha road and charged that there was a combination between buyers, and that to offset this the Advancement Association organized its own elevator company and paid the farmers in the vicinity the highest price for their grain.

In retaliation for this, the Northern Grain Company threatened to put in a big department store in Mondovi and forced the merchants to withdraw from the elevator company.

E. W. Gilman and E. C. Mason, expert accountants employed by Rail road Commissioner Thomas, told of their investigation of he books of railroads operating in Wisconsin and of their discovery of large sums of money in the form of alleged rebates, mentioning the Armour Grain Company particularly as being credited with large sums.

The commission ended its Milwaukee hearing in the evening and adjourned to meet at Minneapolis in the morning.

PRESIDENT AND PARTY LEAVE SHIP AT COLON

Colon, Nov. 16.—President Roosevelt landed here half an hour earlier than was expected and there were no representatives of the government of Panama or the canal commission present to receive him. Chief of Police Shannon, with a force of seventy-two picked men belonging to the Zone police, was at the pier and the president immediately inspected the force and highly complimented Shannon on their appearance. Soon after this Messrs. Shonts and Stevens, with their wives, arrived, and word of the president's landing was sent to President Amador's party, who were at breakfast. President Amador and his suite hurried to meet President Roosevelt and found him on the platform of his railroad car. Mr. Roosevelt very cordially received President Amador and the ladies of the party, and personally helped the latter to enter the train. At 8 a. m. sharp the train, which consisted of four cars handsomely decorated, left Colon for Panama.

Dairymen at Spokane

Spokane, Nov. 21.—The fourteenth annual meeting of the State Dairymen's Association will be held in this city four days commencing with December 12. A fund has been raised by the dairymen of the state to purchase a silver cup to be presented to the person making a model sanitary milking stool, and it is expected that models will be shown at the coming meeting.

Missing List Increases

Seattle, Nov. 21.—Fifty people went to their deaath in the wreck of the little steamer Dix last Sunday evening, according tot he latest corrected list of the lost and missing. But one body has yet been recovered.

WOMEN AND FASHION

Friendship Not Love.

How few girls there are who do not make the mistake of regarding what is only offered to them in Friendship's name as a gift from Love, though by so doing they bring upon themselves much suffering. The two sentiments are so akin that it is a very easy matter to mistake one for the other, and yet, in reality, how widely different they are. "To be a little less than loved" has been the fate of many a sweet girl, and has caused her to remain unwedded and unwon all her life.

Friendship between a man and a woman will cause the man to claim from the girl the rights of a comrade. He will expect her to walk beside him through life's pathway, to stand by him in trouble or misfortunes, but Love will exact something very different.

When love takes possession of a man the person thus idolized becomes in his eyes an adored being. She must not walk beside him. No, he will gather her in his arms and protect her from everything by his great love. When, therefore, a girl finds herself sought by one of the opposite sex, her advice asked and followed, she should not jump to the conclusion that love has prompted these attentions. Neither should she allow her thoughts to dwell upon love as the outcome of them, unless she has positive and plain proof that it is so.

Nowadays girls have a great deal of freedom. They meet men in business, and "friendships" between them are not only possible, but frequent, and must not be mistaken for deeper feeling.—Chicago American.

Women Who Work.

One of the many advantages which women derive from being paid workers is that they are enabled to take a fuller and deeper interest in the conditions of employment generally. The mere spectator (other than the student of practical economics) seldom exhibits more than a simulated concern in the relations between employers and employed, or in any of those matters which are really among the most important at the present time. He or she may be extremely benevolent and wishful to do good to other people, but many of his most kindly projects are built of the stuff of clouds and dreams, because he has no vital comprehension of the lives of those whom he is seeking to help. The humblest woman wage-earner, however, having known what it is to be jostled by stronger competitors, what it is to offer labor that the woman of another country is selling cheaper, what it is to find her work suddenly come into fashion or as suddenly go out of it, must have formed certain ideas on the subject of production which within their own limited range are sure to be more or less accurate and serviceable.

Walking Costumes.

The gown at the left is of black and white checked grenadine in empire style. The skirt is gathered at the top and encircled at the bottom with a wide hand of the material, bordered with little grills of the same. The bolero corsage is draped and ornamented with antique buttons. An edge of black taffeta at the bottom simulates a girdle. It is finished around the neck with a lace ruffle and finished inside with an edge of light blue silk. The loops in front and the shoulder knots, with long ends, are of light blue ribbon. The chemisette is of white mousseline de soie and lace. The sleeves are slightly draped and ornamented inside with the buttons, and are finished with cuffs of the material, bordered with little lace ruffles. The other gown is of white cloth. The skirt, fitted over the hips, simulates a long tunic, encircled near the bottom with a wide band of white silk braid, which is finished on each side of the front with buttons or motifs of pearl. The short jacket, gathered at the top and bottom, has a yoke cut in one piece with the fronts. The collar is covered with the band and forms straps in front, trimmed with braid. The sleeves are trimmed to correspond and the girdle is of the braid.

Have You Useless Back Stairs?

A woman who found her steep back stairs as little ornamental as they were useful had had them converted into two closets, one opening out of her dining-room, the other on the second floor. The steps were removed bodily and a glass door opened into the dining-room from where they had been. The space inside she had paneled and rows of shelves were built in, well up to the ceiling. The lower ones were used for china and the upper ones for preserves. A small window cut into the side yard admitted light into what was really a small shelf-lined room. The whole cost little. Upstairs a capacious linen closet filled in the vacant space. Another woman who did not wish to have the stairs actually taken out had the upper landing converted into a closet, but left the stairs underneath, using them from the first floor as a store closet for brooms, buckets and the like.

Health and Beauty Hints.

Take out the troublesome splinter with a clean needle or knife, made aseptic by boiling, using warm bath before and after operation.

Hands that have been in hot soda water and become shrunken and soft will become smooth and natural again if rubbed with ordinary kitchen salt.

A simple lotion to remove freckles is composed of one dram ammonium chloride to four ounces of distilled water. Apply at night after the face has been bathed in hot water.

Olive oil is the beauty doctor's cure-all for poor complexions. He advises its use in every possible food, plenty of green salads reeking with it, and then doses of it by the tablespoonful.

It is a disgraceful neglect of the well-being of the teeth to bite hard substances with them or to use them in any manner that should be done by scissors or pincers and other tools. The teeth should be used only for the purpose for which they were made.

A touch of broadtail trimming is noted on many cloth suits.

The color schemes displayed in millinery are daring, but wonderfully becoming.

The Napoleon toque, with cockades or a feather on one side, will be worn considerably with tailor-mades.

Rosewood, cedar and sandalwood shades are found in the new cloths. Heretofore mahogany has been the only wood favored with an imitation in cloth.

In France the veil at the back of the hat falls to the skirt hem. With this is worn a face veil of a different hue from the longer one, which is not over the face at all.

A combination of black and a peculiar shade of peacock blue is found in the millinery world. Blue stockings with black suede walking shoes are also seen with a blue cloth skirt.

The long coats of last season's suits may be cut into good-looking short coats suited to this year's demands, but there is a whisper that long coats will come in again this winter; hence, it is well to wait a while, until the report is verified, before scarificing good material.

If you want a particularly new note for an evening dress get a wide, straight band of gold lace, put this on as a belt, very high under the arms. In back fasten the ends still higher, with two knots of ribbon. This charming empire belt distinguishes a French dress of white crepe.

Handsome Silk Costumes.

Mauve mousseline taffeta is used for the costume at the left. The skirt is plaited over the hips and mounted to a double corslet of the taffeta. Below this is a wider flounce, made in the same way, and further trimmed with curving rows of stitching. The Eton is plaited over the shoulders and finished at the bottom with two shaped bands, headed by a narrow ruche. The elbow sleeve is headed by a double epaulet and finished with a pointed turnback cuff, edged with loops of the silk.

The other costume is made of light brown louisine. The skirt is gathered over the hips and bordered with a band of the material headed by a narrow straightway ruffle. The vest, collar and cuffs are of cream satin, trimmed with light blue velvet ribbon and silver buttons. The wide girdle is of brown louisine of a darker shade than the dress.

Housekeeping Now Taught.

"Fifty years ago," says the Chicago Journal, " knowledge of housekeeping was handed down from mother to daughter and homes were well managed and cared for. But nowadays girls who would have stayed at home and learned to keep house have been attracted to the business world, whose duties leave them no time for household cares. Consequently, it is argued, the home can not teach housekeeping, and girls who wish to learn must go to school in which the art is taught."

Value of Vanity.

Were we not vain enough to adopt new fashions, whether they be silly or not, we should just dodder along in a dull, monotonous way till we were sick of the sight of each other, and sought change at any price.—Lady's Pictorial.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1906.

The last Thursday in November is the day set apart by President Roosevelt and Governor Mead for Thanksgiving Day, a day wherein every man, woman and child should bow their heads in prayer to their Maker for the multitude of blessings which He has seen fit to bestow upon them. He has been good to the sinner as well as to the saint; He has caused the rain to fall upon the unjust as well as the just, and yet how far we fall short of our duty to our Maker. A great many people misconstrue the object and purposes of Thanksgiving day. To them the day is only for sport or amusement of any nature, no matter how frivolous or inappropriate, anything but the real purpose for which the day was intended. Then there is a class who well know the object and purpose of Thanksgiving day and this class, though small, will respect the day and observe it as it should be observed.

A few of these good people will meet in their home sanctuary with friends and neighbors for an hour of worship and thanksgiving to the Ruler of the Universe for the manifold blessings and comforts He has showered upon them and theirs during the past year.

Young man, stop and reflect. Celebrate the day as it should be and as it was intended to be, a day of thanksgiving to our Maker for his goodness and kindness to us and ours through all the years of our lives.

The present custom of selecting commissioners by vote of the county is entirely wrong. The next legislature should enact a law restricting the election of county commissioners to the districts which they represent. What is the sense of the district naming the candidate for commissioner, and then the electors of the entire county having a say as to whether he shall be elected or not? Each district should hold its commissioner accountable for his official acts, and the commissioner should confine his efforts in road improvements and other public matters solely to his district. Then why should not the people of that district have the right to choose their own representative?

Several states have adopted this plan, and it works satisfactorily. It has a tendency of taking the matter out of politics, and to give each district the very best material in the district for commissioner.

SEGUIN NOTES.

We have just recovered from the effects of the recent campaign and can now devote a portion of our time to other interests than politics.

There are no sore spots in this burg, though we did not get all we wanted, we got more than we expected.

The recent storm did no damage on Seguin except to the telephone and telegraph lines. The Ind. Tel. Co. suffered the most, as their line was carried away by the river. However, by working hard they have all their lines in operation again.

The basket social given by the Ladies Educational Club Tuesday last was well attended and netted eighty dollars, which will be tendered to the Sidewalk committee. Now let us see the sidewalk started at once.

Mr. Joe Doran and wife returned from Seattle Friday last, where they went to be married. They will take up their residence on the old Bell estate. A large number of friends called on them at the Hotel Saturday evening, and after considerable noise were admitted to the house to partake of the good things spread on the table.

The skating rink is doing a lively business. Tuesday was ladies night, and a number of the gentler sex were on hand to enjoy the exercise. The rink opens Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings.

Crews are at work repairing the Burlingame and Cougar mill bridges, which were carried away by the recent storm.

Walter Myers has purchased a lot of J. L. Keeler and will erect a livery and feed stable. Good luck, Walter.

Notices are up for a basket social and entertainment to be given Tuesday next for the benefit of the stockholders of the Farmers Mutual Telephone Co.

Al Fust of Ohio, and an old friend of J. L. Keeler, is visiting the latter.

The Bugge Mercantile Co. have moved into their new store and are now prepared to furnish everything needed by their customers. They have a general deliveryman, Paul Cook.

The clam cannery is operating again, with P. Sullivan in charge

Supervisor Wooding has just completed a fine half-mile of new road on Seguin.

Manager Hermans of the Cougar mill made a business visit to Seattle first of the week.

O. B. Hart, Bert Sindars, and Hammond Keelar were returning passengers from Seattle Monday.

The Ind. Tel. Co. have received a new switch board for Seguin, which will be installed by December 15th, when they will employ two girls instead of one, thus giving night service.
