A COPIOUS RAINFALL

In the Land of Sunshine and Roses.

THE CROWD DAILY INCREASING.

Relays of Queer People From the Midway Plaisance—The Large Exhibit Demands That the Space be Limited. Misunderstanding Recording the Transportation of Exhibits.

Five rainy days out of seven has been the weather record of the past week in San Francisco, but it has made little or no difference in the progress of work on the buildings of the California Midwinter International Exposition. In the Mechanical Arts building, where the roof is all in place, the work of interior decoration was pushed forward without the slightest hindrance, and under the half-finished roof of the Manufactures and Literary Arts building a great deal of interior work was done at times when it rained too hard to proceed with the construction of the roof itself. In the Horticultural and Agricultural building and in the Arts building the rain has caused absolutely no delay whatever, and the carpenters on the Administration building have made just as much architectural way as if the sun had been shining all the while.

Daily relays of the queer people who congregate on the Midway Plaisance [illegible], and who were in different way connected with the Columbia Exposition are continually coming to town: the [illegible] hanging up, boarding house [illegible] are crowded in expensive suites, [illegible] people all over town are be[illegible] the offices of the coming [illegible] and the Exposition finds itself [illegible] corresponding effect as the [illegible] to the fact that the Exposition the [illegible] will be [illegible] during the period of [illegible].

[illegible] with the all-[illegible] occasion may [illegible] the decoration of applications for space [illegible] have been fixed at December [illegible] of the [illegible] so to speak, [illegible] be said to be shut, though [illegible] have been received to fill [illegible] buildings comfortably. Some of the will be full to overflowing, but a readjustment of the classifications will possibly be restored to, so that there will not be a great deal of crowding.

There seems to have been a little misunderstanding among exhibitors on the Pacific Coast in regard to the transportation of their exhibits to the Exposition, and it may be well to state in this connection that the transportation of such exhibits to and from the fair will cost them nothing at all. The regulation made by the Southern Pacific Company is that shipments originated at stations on the Southern Pacific System west of and including Portland, Ogden, El Paso, Deming, Benson and Mojava, for exhibit at the Fair, shall be way-billed to San Francisco at regular rates consigned to the Exposition, in care of the exhibitors, and the charges prepaid, and then after the fair is over, by presenting a certificate from the officers of the fair that the property has been on exhibition and has not changed hands. The first point of freight to San Francisco will be refunded, and his property will be returned to his home station free of charge.

An arrangement has been made during the past week by Director General De Young with the firm who are manufacturing the bronze group of statutes which James Lick provided in his will to be erected in front of the new Music Hall, that the heroic figure of California which is to surround this group, shall be placed in the central space under the vaulted roof of the Manufactures and Liberal Arts building. The figure stands 18 feet in height and will be upon a pedestal so that it will be above anything else in that part of the Exposition. The figure represents California, standing erect with a spear in her hand and a shield by her side, while at her feet is a grizzly bear, typical of California.

TIMBER DEPREDATIONS.

Special Government Agent Investigating Timber Frauds in Western Clallam.

Special Agent H. H. Hobson of the U. S. Land department arrived here from Seattle recently, remaining several days say the East Clallam Record.

The object of his visit was to investigate alleged frauds committed by parties here in the nature of cutting off timber from the government lands hereabouts.

The complaints he was acting upon were sent to the land office at Seattle from time to time during the last year or more. They were in the form of anonymous letters and charged all sorts of depredations upon the government timber. In one instance the name of John McGovern was signed to a complaint. In the cases of other complaints no names were given except "A Settler" "A Well Wisher of the Government" etc. ect.

Special Agent Hobson could not find any of the above mentioned persons who were corresponding with the Department but he did evidently find a lot of trashy allegations and lies without a truthful fact to redeem the veracity of the whole mass of correspondence.

He questioned the settlers here and found that instead of frauds and depredations every man in the township holding a claim was an actual bona fide settler all of whom had been here for two or more years and who were industrious and endeavoring to fulfill the requirements of the Preemption and the Homestead laws. He found that two or three settlers in clearing up their claims had slashed the timber and disposed of the surplus. In this particular the special agent stated to the Record representative that the man had acted entirely within the law. That if a logger or mill company goes upon the land of a bona fide settler and cuts and removes the timber there from with the settler's consent it is perfectly legitimate fraud exists only where the logger or mill company puts men upon the government land merely to get possession of the timber. The special agent found no such case here from where land timber had been taken who was not a bona-fide settler before the saw mill of this place was built.

Not one who had not a perfect right to dispose of his surplus timber in clearing up his land.

FRANK M'GILL IS MAYOR.

The Citizens Party Elect Four Councilmen

THE CLERK AND ATTORNEY.

The Election Exceedingly Quiet and Voters Very Apathetic Citizens Will Control the Council—An Increased Vote. City Clerk Humphries Returned by the Largest Majority Received by Any Candidate.

The city election has been held and the results of last Tuesday's contest is before us.

The vote furnishes splendid material for serious thought, cool reflection, and unlimited speculation as to the various causes which contributed to the defeat of some of the principal candidates on the Citizens ticket.

The election was, indeed, exceedingly quiet, in fact citizens were so apathetic that fully one-fifth either failed to register or vote. For example. In the Third ward at least twenty electors who would have voted the Citizens ticket were not registered. On the other hand the Populists polled a full vote, winning the mayor, solely for the reason that complications had arisen, creating in citizens a feeling of apathy and indifference which resulted in the loss of that important office.

In the organization, however, of the new council, citizens will have a working majority, and will consequently control its affairs throughout the incoming administration.

Below is given the vote in each ward, and the vote and majorities in tabular form received by the candidates:

First ward—Garfield, 26, McGill, 19; Beam, 21, Ristine, 15; Humphries, 27, Grant, 19; Morse, 20, Seevers, 27; Stivers, 17, McGregor, 24; Lamoreux, 31; McGeorge, 25, Lull 21.

Sixth ward—Garfield, 63, McGill, 65; Beam, 59, Ristine, 70; Humphries, 76, Grant, 52; Morse, 64, Seevers, 64; Stivers, 63, McGregor, 65, Lamoreux, 86; McGeorge, 60; Lull, 66.

Four ward councilmen were elected from the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth wards, as follows:

Second ward—Crockett, 31, Allbright, 9, Jas. Meagher, 3.

Third ward—McLaughlin, 54, Reid, 27.

Fourth ward—Rose, 30, Graybill, 65.

Fifth ward—M. McGill, 62, D. Munro, 54.

There was 612 votes cast. City Clerk Humphries received the largest and Mayor McGill the smallest majority.

A MASS MEETING

Held in the Opera House to Protest Against the Appraisement.

A mass meeting was held in the opera house last Wednesday evening by the citizens on the reservation, for the purpose of definitely ascertaining the feeling regarding the equitableness of the appraisement of lots on the government townsite, was called to order by Mr. D. O'Brien. Mr. F. Graybill was chosen chairman and Mr. D. O'Brien, secretary.

A motion that speakers confine their remarks within five minutes prevailed.

A resolution was offered by Mr. J. Souther, the substance of which was that the Secretary of the Interior be petitioned to refer 50 per cent. of the purchase price of the reservation lots, as the valuation fixed by the board of appraisers was unreasonable and not in accordance with the policy of the government. The resolution was unanimously adopted with the amendment that it was not the wish of the petitioners that the action taken should cause the postponement of the final day of sale.

A vote of thanks was extended Inspector Carmichael, for his kindly consideration of the interests of squatters and to signify that the earnest desire to correct the injustice of an unfair appraisement was fully appreciated.

It was the sentiment of the meeting that Mr. Carmichael represent squatters before the Interior Department, the meeting unanimously expressing confidence in the ability of that gentleman to fearlessly and ably discharge the task to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Brief addresses were made by Messrs. Lewis Williams, C. R. Hoole, W. H. Hartman, Martin, Coughlaughnessy, Foster and Gerke. The meeting adjourned.

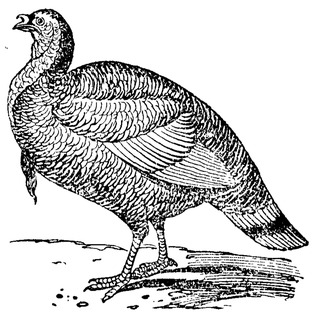
THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER

FARM AND GARDEN

THE IMPORTANT TURKEY.

A Breed of Which American Farmers Are Proud—Fattening the Birds.

The turkey is an important bird in this country, especially about Thanksgiving week. He also figures more or less conspicuously from then on right through to the Christmas holidays. American breeders are justly proud of having such a fine breed of turkeys as the Bronze are everywhere acknowledged to be. The large size as well as the brilliant plumage is due to the wild turkey, with which they have been crossed to maintain the size and markings. Many flocks, having been closely bred for several years, diminish in size, while the colors so highly prized get paler every succeeding year. Some of our prominent breeders have recourse to the wild stock for breeding males every two or three years, and thus keep up a high standard for their flocks of Bronze turkeys. The march of civilization is fast thinning out the wild turkey, and it will not be long ere they will be difficult to procure. There are several western parties who make quite a business of breeding and shipping wild turkeys to eastern and southern breeders to cross with their flocks.



THE AMERICAN BRONZE TURKEY.

The turkey, of whatever breed, to be popular must be plump and fat when it reaches the market. In order to secure best fattening the bird must be quite near maturity, for the younger ones do not lay on fat so readily, nor will they attain such perfect proportions. Doubtless this is a chief reason for the farmer's preference for a hen. The young hen matures earlier than the tom, so far as carcass is concerned at least, and is likely to be of a more desirable size. To attain great size animal food and good food generally must be supplied from the first. The usual plan, however, is to feed night and morning, and during the autumn fatten on corn. When a specially fine quality of flesh is desired, ground oats, scalded with sweet milk, raw, sweet apples and a little celery, with an occasional ration of charcoal, will be found satisfactory.

Lettuce Culture In the South.

A Georgia correspondent of The American Agriculturist writes: The market gardener sows the seed in the cold frames in October and secures large, well rooted plants ready to be set out early in January, in the latitude of Georgia. Farther south, of course, they are planted out in November and December, and frequently, even in middle Georgia, the limited plantings that are risked in December are not injured by the slight cold of the southern winter. Where pine straw or other mulching material is readily obtained, it is quite easy to protect the plants by giving a light mulching whenever severe weather is threatening. When one cultivates the crop with the expectation of realizing 2 or 3 cents per head, perhaps 5, he is justified in giving all necessary care toward making an early crop a perfect success.

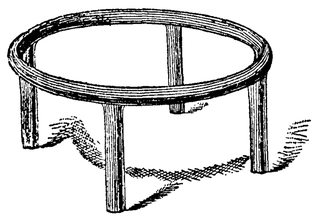
Grown to the state of perfection that it is possible to attain with the true Boston Market and the Improved White Cos where a good strain of seed is used, the lettuce crop is one of the most profitable to local market gardeners that can be grown in the vicinity of the cities or large towns. Not that it is desirable to devote too large an area to its culture, but to share proportionately with the others according to the market for which they are grown and the demand for this class of vegetables.

A tenth of an acre, made very rich, can be made to grow 2,100 heads of White Cos and twice that number of Boston Markets. This allows for the rows being two feet apart and plants 12 inches in the rows. Magnificent heads can be grown at this distance if the soil is made as rich as it should be and large, well rooted plants are set out early in January or earlier and kept steadily growing by frequent cultivation with rake or shuffle hoe. The latest planting of lettuce is made in middle Georgia in March or April, but there is little money in this late crop, and the attempt to make it is not to be recommended to market gardeners.

A Good Kettle Ring.

It is often convenient to heat water out of doors. At butchering time, trying out lard or boiling soap, apple butter or cider, it is often unhandy to run to the house.

With a ring like the one shown in the cut from the Rural New Yorker, such trouble can be done away with. Any blacksmith can make it. It can be placed on the ground on any part of the farm, the kettle placed on it and a fire built under it. You ought to have one.



CONVENIENT AT BUTCHERING TIME.

FARMHOUSE SURROUNDINGS.

Changes Effected With Trees and Grass. Good Walks to the Outbuildings.

Attention to two things alone will go far toward transforming a home from downright ugliness to beauty—namely, trees and grass. Many mistakes are made in setting out shade trees. Here are some helpful points in the matter given by a Country Gentleman correspondent. He says: "Evergreens ought never to be set near the house. They are useful as windbreaks at the north and west, at some distance from the house, where they may be set either in clumps or hedges, but never on a lawn. Why not? First, because grass does not do well under them, as under deciduous trees, and, second, because so many of them drop cones almost the entire year, which not only are unsightly, but greatly interfere with the use of the lawn mower.

Mistake No. 2 is in setting fruit trees instead of forest trees, and there are two objections to these: First, they are too short lived, and this is a serious objection, for we ought to plant shade trees for a lifetime, and it is a serious matter just when we have secured shade to have our trees die.

Mistake No. 3 is in setting trees too near the house. It is hard to realize when planting a tree no larger than a bean pole that in time it may have a spread of branches 60 or 80 feet in diameter, and so trees are set 10 or 15 feet from the house, and long before they reach their prime the branches are resting on the roof, rotting the shingles, and the leaves are choking the gutters.

The correspondent quoted advises planting a row of trees in front of the house, but elsewhere plant in clumps. Leave an opening to the southeast, so that the morning sun may dry the house; then plant immediately south of the house to protect from the midday sun and have an opening to the southwest; then there should be a clump planted a little north of west to protect the house from the sun late in the day in the long days of summer when it is intensely hot until the sun goes down. The row of trees at the front of the house should, if possible, be 40 feet or more away.

Not one farmhouse in ten is supplied with good walks to the outbuildings. Concrete walks are expensive, but attractive and durable, and when the farmer can afford it this material is advised. Around the house no walks need to be more than 3 feet wide unless it is at the approach to the front door, where it may sometimes need to be wider, and a 2 foot walk answers very well to the barn and other buildings.

Plank walks can be made for 3 or 4 cents a square foot, or even less, and will last for many years and give good satisfaction. To make them place 2 by 4 scantlings on edge, with flat stone under to keep them from the ground, and nail short boards across from one to the other. The writer prefers narrow boards not more than 6 inches wide, and 4 is better. Nail them on an inch apart, as they will dry out readily and last longer for it and will also keep cleaner, as the dirt carried on by the shoes will most of it fall through the cracks, and the walk costs less than if made with wider boards or laid solid, as with 4 inch boards 20 per cent of the lumber is saved.

The Louisiana Sugar School.

The third session of the sugar school connected with the experiment station at Audubon park, New Orleans, beginning Oct. 1, 1893, will close July 1, 1894. The second session has been well attended by students from Spain, the Hawaiian Islands, Cuba, Nebraska, Kansas and Louisiana. The object of the school is to produce experts in the sugar industry, and to this end a regular course has been arranged, covering thorough instruction in the growing of cane, beets and sorghum; designing, construction and operation of sugar houses, and the practical manufacture of sugar and the chemistry of its products.

For those prepared for entering upon this course two years will be necessary for its completion. This course leads to graduation. There is also an irregular course designed to meet the wants of the sugar makers, engineers and planters who have not the time for the regular course, but wish to add to their practical accomplishments the knowledge of the principles upon which their work is done. This course may be taken at any time and will consist of such studies from the regular course as the students may elect.

During the harvest, lasting usually three months, the sugar house will be run by the students and the professors in the experimental manufacture of sugar. At other times it will be used by the professor of mechanics and the instructors in sugar making for familiarizing the students with the use of the machinery and with the art of sugar making. After the crop season is ever the low grade sugars are melted and used by the students for instruction in sugar making and centrifugaling.

Flotsam and Jetsam.

Professor Cooke is quoted as saying that ordinary skimmilk is worth 11 cents per 100 pounds just to pour on the ground as a fertilizer. In other words, a can of skimmilk contains all the fertility there is in five pounds of the highest grade fertilizer.

The Vermont experiment station tried mixing molasses with the bordeaux mixture on potatoes. It caused the mixture to stick to the vines, but the practice is condemned because the molasses attracts bees to the poisonous mixture.

With the single exception of potatoes, all English crops are extremely unsatisfactory. The hop crop is very short and the grain crops below the average.

During the month of June 2,338 tons of hay were sent from this country to England against 234 tons for June, 1892. Holland did better yet, sending England 3,587 tons against 1,705 for June, 1892.

At the Vermont station for two consecutive seasons the bordeaux mixture proved an effective remedy for the blight and rot, the tests being made both at the experiment station and in the fields of several potato growers about the state.

Sacred Serpents.

A general belief in the divine character and healing powers of the sacred serpent is to be met with all over Egypt. Even the myths which the old Egyptians associated with the snake are still prevalent. Egyptians of all classes still believe that when "a serpent grows old wings grow out of its body," and that there are serpents which kill by darting flames in the victim's face. How old such beliefs are in this country need not be repeated to those who have seen the pictures in the tombs of the kings at Thebes. The seref, or "flying serpent," and the snake from whose mouth flames issue are among the commonest of the figures painted on their walls.

It is not, however, as Kakodaemon, but as Agathodaemon, that the divine serpent of ancient Egypt still maintains his chief hold on the belief of the Egyptian people. Each house still has its harras, or "guardian snake," commonly known as the harras el bet, "the protector of the house." The snake is fed with milk and eggs, and care is taken not to do it harm. A servant of mine, who was born at Helwan, near Cairo, has often told me about the guardian snake of his father's house. It was a large one, and used to come out at night for the sake of the food that was offered it and to glide over the bodies of the sleeping family. It never did any of them any mischief, "as it was always treated well." One day a stranger snake made its appearance at the door of the house; the harras at once went against it, and after a short struggle killed the intruder.—Contemporary Review.

Would See Her Later.

Coming over from the east side the other day a University car was filled with all sorts and conditions of passengers, conspicuous among them being some jolly university students. Opposite the boys sat a hard featured female, evidently on her way from a meeting. Next to her sat a bright faced woman talking with a friend. Naturally the talk drifted upon the subject of the revival meetings, and the friend asked:

"I suppose you have been to some of them?"

"No, I have not," the other replied. "I haven't had time," and as she spoke she signaled the conductor to let her off the car.

At her words the hard featured female sitting next to her quickly turned, and leaning forward said in solemn tones:

'Haven't had time! Will you have time to go to hell?"

The car had stopped and as the lady reached the door she hurriedly retorted:

"If I have, I'll see you later."

Then she stepped into the street perfectly conscious of having been able to squelch a woman who didn't know enough to mind her own business.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Novel Manifolding.

An Italian inventor proposes a novel method for duplicating copies of writing. The mechanism for this purpose is provided with two pens, supported by a framework in such a manner that their points are always in the same horizontal plane; a pen at the right is intended for the operator or writer, and the least stroke made by this pen is at the same time duplicated by a pen at the left. The framework is so joined and hinged that the pens can be moved in any direction, and a counterbalance takes the weight of the frame from the hand, so that the act of writing is made almost as easy as with the usual pen and holder.

Two ink wells are provided at the base of the stand, and the dipping of a pen in one well causes the pen to dip in the opposite well; and when the two sheets of paper to be written on are placed parallel to each other and secured the remainder of the work is as simple as ordinary writing. The instrument is designed in especial for furnishing duplicates of contracts and of those legal and other documents which it is often desirable to have duplicated not only in words, but also in the paper and handwriting.—New York Sun.

Fooled the Professor Twice.

The examinations at a certain "prep." school were in progress. The boys were working busily over their papers, and the grim old professor was watching sharply from his desk. Presently he noticed that one of the students, a prominent ne'er do well, was consulting his watch with considerable frequency. The professor studied him. In five minutes he had looked at the timepiece three times. This was enough for the guardian. He called the student to his desk and demanded the watch. It was given him, and he opened it. Across the face was a piece of paper bearing the legend "Fooled." But the worthy professor was not to be so easily deceived. He gave the student a sharp, knowing glance, turned the timepiece over and opened the back cover. It opened with considerable difficulty, and, behold, there was another slip of paper bearing the information, "Fooled again, old fogy."—Boston Budget.

A Newspaper of Long Ago.

Mrs. Julia A. Burlingame, who recently returned from an extended trip east, brought with her a copy of The Balance and New York State Journal, published Sept. 8, 1809, which was presented to her by relatives. The paper has been the property of the Burlingame family since the day it was printed. It was published in New York city by Croswell & Frary, "printers to the people," and contained a large and varied assortment of clippings from such papers as The Northern Whig, and matter which then passed for news, but which would be entirely out of place in the news columns of the papers of today. The editorials would read well in the modern newspapers.—Portland Oregonian.

HANK GOOD'S NERVE.

A CHOCTAW WHO GAVE HIS LIFE WITHOUT A SIGN OF FEAR.

The Red Man's Desire For Whisky Caused Him to Commit a Double Murder—Condemned to Die, but Released on His Own Recognizance, Which Was Bail Enough.

Captain Frank Williams of the Texas Rangers gives an excellent account of the remarkable execution of Hank Good, a thoroughbred Choctaw Indian, which occurred in the Choctaw reservation.

"I never dreamed I was going to see one of the bravest acts I ever witnessed in my life when I went to see Hank Good shot," Captain Williams said. "I was in the reservation when Hank committed the murder for which he gave up his life, and I had a great curiosity to see how he would act when the time came for him to pay the penalty.

"The murder Hank committed occurred Feb. 9, 1893. Two whisky peddlers, named Isaac Greenbaum and Solomon Heppenstein, were the victims. They had been in the habit of stealing into the reservation about once a month and selling whisky to the Indians. On this particular night they entered the territory with two small casks of whisky. Hank saw them when he came in, and he then and there determined to get his fill of fire water that night or know the reason why. He watched them and followed them to a lonely place, where they secured their whisky, wrapped their blankets around them and went to sleep. When they were slumbering soundly, he stole upon them, and it could not have taken him long to relieve them of their scalps. He found the whisky, drank to his heart's content and enjoyed the warmth of the fire the peddlers had built. Hank made no attempt to escape or conceal his crime, but remained there and drank until he was stupid. About 10 o'clock the next morning as I was passing along the road with a squad of the White Horse we came upon the horrible sight. Hank was lying across the dead bodies of his victims, and one of the whisky casks was clasped in his arms. We tried to arouse him, but could not and had to carry him to the headquarters of the reservation. They locked Hank up, and it was three days before he was sober enough to be arraigned before the Indian judge and jury.

"On the third day after the murder Hank was brought up for trial. Hank made no defense. He did not seem to feel sorry, either, for having committed the crime. It was the first time in his life that he had had enough whisky. The jury soon decided that Hank was guilty and should be shot. It took into consideration the fact that Hank was the most popular and best looking young buck in the nation and recommended him to the mercy of the judge. The judge finally sentenced him to be shot to death at noon, Sept. 25. Hank took an oath to appear at that hour under a big oak tree and pay the penalty. They then allowed him to depart."

"Were they afraid he would never return?"

"Not in the least. A full blooded Choctaw was never known to break his oath.

"Well," Captain Williams continued, "Hank did not leave the nation, but three days afterward he got married and commenced to work as hard to get land and horses as a man who expected to live 50 years. In a few months he was one of the most prosperous young men in the tribe and lived apparently happy.

"The months slowly passed, and as the time drew near for Hank to be shot the Indians commenced to get excited. They were all anxious to see how he would act. Hank never referred to the matter and kept on working up to the day before the one which was to be his last on earth.

"The fatal morning at last arrived. It was a holiday on the reservation, and long before noon all the members of the nation were in the vicinity of the big oak tree, dressed in all the finery they could command. Hank was on the scene early, arrayed in his best, and an hour before his execution he danced with all the squaws. He never glanced at the pine coffin on which he was to kneel and be killed.

"Exactly at noon he left his family, and with head erect and a smile upon his face he walked to the coffin and knelt upon the lid. The sheriff had not yet arrived, but Hank was there and waiting. The sheriff finally came, and walking over to Hank he started to bind a white cloth around Hank's eyes. Hank tore it off and motioned the Sheriff back. You should have seen the Indians look at him. Every one admired his nerve.

"The sheriff stepped back several feet, drew his revolver and took deliberate aim. Hank smiled and glanced down the glistening barrel without moving a muscle. In another second the sheriff fired, and a ball crashed into Hank's brain, directly between the eyes. He quivered a second and fell over dead into the coffin."

"What became of Hank's wife?"

"Oh, she married a good looking young buck the next day."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

STEAMBOATING FOR GOLD.

Getting Metal at the Rate of $100 a Day From the Bed of a River.

Extravagant stories are told about the wealth of gold sprinkled throughout the Snake river country in Idaho. As a general thing the gold is very fine, the particles being of so light weight as to be elusive. Save when worked on a large scale, it is difficult to make good wages in recovering the gold. Numerous bars along the river would prove profitable could water be commanded for sluicing or hydraulic purposes. An adequate supply is hard to obtain on account of the slight and gradual fall of the stream and the level character of the outlying lands. To overcome this lack of water, as well as insure sufficient dumping ground, a big floating gold saving dredge has been constructed and is now at work on the Idaho bank of the Snake river, about 10 miles above Payette.

It is a stern wheel flatboat propelled by steam. Substantially constructed, 65 feet long and 22 feet wide, it is equipped with a 35 horsepower marine engine and boiler and adapted in every way for navigating Idaho's great waterway. With a slight alteration it could be transformed into a steam dredge and used to scoop up sand and gravel from the bottom of the stream. That has never been attempted. As in the past, operations are now confined to working bars out of the bed or channel of the river. The method pursued is to anchor alongside one of these gravel deposits and by the use of scrapers bring the material to be handled within the reach of the gold washing machinery with which the craft is rigged. The gravel is scooped up by buckets attached to an endless chain.

There are 48 of these receptacles on a belt 60 feet in length, and each has a capacity of about 20 pounds of dirt, which is delivered into a hopper. This is also an agitator, and the process employed may be described as a steam rocker, with the exception that it has an end motion instead of one sidewise. The gold is caught on copper plates with quicksilver. The tailings are carried off in sluice boxes by the force of a stream of water of 150 mineral inches, supplied by a China pump, run by the engine which drives all the other machinery. The gravel is worked so thoroughly that no gold escapes in the tailings that are dumped into the river. An average of 100 tons of gravel is daily handled, and for this work three men are employed—an engineer, one to work the scraper and another who shovels the dirt into a pile so that the buckets can scoop up a full load.

The bar now being worked covers an area of 10 to 15 acres. The gold is on top or close to the surface and will not pay to handle to a greater depth than 1 foot to 18 inches. This shows a value of 1½ to 3 cents a pan. A cleanup is made every night, and the average of the runs for the first three days was very satisfactory to Thornton Williams, the owner of the craft. He says he expects to take out upward of $100 a day as long as he works, which will be until cold weather sets in. When he has gone over the bar which now engages his attention, he will tackle another.—Helena Independent.

CABBY'S WHITE HAIRED ANGEL.

She Purchases a Dashing Carriage to Replace His Rattletrap Rig.

If there ever was a lucky cabby, it is Richard McGowan, who for 16 years has stood beside his cab at the Staten Island ferry at Whitehall street gathering passengers and fares. He and the cab had stood there in all sorts of weather, but the cab suffered more than the man in appearance.

Whenever McGowan saw an old lady with white hair and a benignant face come from the ferryhouse, he knew that he would have a fare. She didn't appear very often, but she always sought out McGowan, handing him a bill in payment and refusing to take the change. A couple of months ago she told him his cab was getting old and rusty and he should have a better one. The cabman replied that it would cost $900, and he could not afford so much money. One day the white haired woman told him to drive her to a carriage manufactory. They made several trips of that kind. Then the lady, who is Mrs. Frances J. Shaw, the philanthropist, told the astonished McGowan that she was looking for a carriage for him, but could not find one that was suitable, and that he had better buy it for himself. It took him a whole month to find what he wanted. Now McGowan has the finest coupe about South ferry, and he is one of the happiest men in New York.—New York World.

Skeleton Spirited Away.

The skeleton of a woman which was unearthed in an unfrequented spot in the outskirts of the city has been stolen. It was left lying on the ground pending the coroner's inquest and has mysteriously disappeared. Another skeleton of a woman was found near the same spot yesterday, buried a few inches under ground. Old timers say that the ground where these skeletons have been found is where the victims of cholera were buried in 1867. They were buried hurriedly, the graves were not marked, and no work was done on the graves more than to get the boxes out of sight.—San Antonio (Tex.) Dispatch.

General Sickles' Proxy Vote.

A crutch voted for the Chinese bill recently. It was carried down the aisle by a page and passed between the tellers, counting "one more in the affirmative, Mr. Speaker." The crutch was the proxy of General Daniel E. Sickles, who sat in his seat and smiled as he saw how he could save himself much trouble in the future.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Navigable Balloon.

A cablegram says that the Russian military commission has completed satisfactory tests of the navigable balloon at Warsaw. It is made on the Treds system. It rose against strong atmospheric pressure, was steered successfully against the wind, was propelled in any desired direction and descended without releasing gas.

Only the Scars Remain.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc.," writes HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., "none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."

THE MESSAGE.

The president's message was given to the public and to congress Monday. While there is nothing startling or sensational about it, it is a plain, straightforward statement of facts. In the main, it is a summary of the cabinet officer's reports, however, the special features, those in which public interest centers, are the Hawaiian question and the tariff.

There is no question but that the President is correct in his statement about the unlawful and indiscreet interference of our minister in the Hawaiian rebellion last January, but what the policy of this government should be, granting everything in Commissioner Blount's report to be true, is a delicate question, and the country generally seems to be inclined to suspend judgment until more is known.

The president is still all right on the tariff. He endorses the Wilson bill, and argues in his familiar way against the iniquitous war tariff policy of the Republican party.

THE CAUSE OF IT.

The cry of the Republicans against the income tax, because it is a class tax is not in good faith. No one can successfully deny that the tariff tax is not a class tax, and we hear no Republican opposition to it. The real cause for the opposition of the Republicans was given away by a prominent member of Congress of that political faith the other day when he said that "they (Republicans) regarded it as the first step in the direction of free trade and direct taxes."

The Republicans have always been afraid of direct taxes, not only because the protected barons would then refuse to be operated on by the "fat frying" process, but because then every citizen would know just the amount of tax he was paying into the treasury, and he would want to understand how it is expended, and economic administration is not a Republican shiboleth.

PLUCKED BOTH WAYS.

The New York World condenses the tax proposition into the following comprehensive sentences.

Under our present system of federal taxation poor people are plucked both ways.

The tariff taxes chiefly the necessaries of the poor—food, fuel, clothing and shelter.

The internal-revenue system taxes the luxuries of the poor—tobacco, beer and whiskey.

The special taxes upon the rich have nearly all been abolished.

Four-fifths of the revenue of the government is collected from the consumption of the people who are poor or who have only moderate means. They pay out of all proportion to their ability to pay or to the benefits which they receive

It is time to untax at least the necessaries of the poor, and to tax a more just tribute from the luxuries of the rich as represented by large incomes.

WHY THE SILENCE?

The discovery of the looting of the Western Division of the Road Bond funds by the Burlingame Contract company and the county officers has been met by a profound silence from the county Republican and Populist press. THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER and the East Clallam Record have been the only papers to comment on the question. Are the others afraid, or are some of their friends being trod on? Why the silence?

Those who seem to think there has been a deeply laid plot in getting Inspector Carmichael here to investigate the appraisement of the reservation, because it is "so hard to get the government to act on a matter of this nature," seem to forget that this is a Democratic administration.

THE complimentary vote of confidence given Inspector Carmichael by the mass-meeting Wednesday night was not only a pleasant compliment to that estimable gentleman, but it was a deserved compliment to the administration on its fair and manly policy with the Port Angeles squatters.

MINERVA SOCIETY ORGANIZED.

A Literary and Debating Society Organized—Officers Elected.

Last Wednesday evening a number of ladies and gentlemen met in the office of Mr. Wm. Bell for the purpose of associating themselves together in literary pursuits and in the discussion of the leading questions of the day.

The meeting was called to order with Mr. Wm. Bell as temporary chairman and Mr. R. A. Grimes as temporary secretary.

The company at once proceeded to effect a permanent organization. The following persons were unanimously elected officers for the ensuing term of three months:

President.....John W. Troy
Vice-President.....Wm. Bell
Secretary.....Mrs. Chas. E. Mallette
Treasurer.....Mrs. Wm. Bell
Critic.....Louis R Flowers

A committee of three, comprising Messrs. Grimes, Van Allen and Flowers, were appointed to prepare a constitution and by-laws for the government of the society, and to report at the next regular meeting.

A committee on program, comprising Messrs. Grimes and Flowers was selected to prepare a program for the first regular meeting which will probably be held in Odd Fellows hall next and each following Wednesday evening, if satisfactory arrangements can be made.

The program arranged for next Wednesday evening will comprise readings, and recitations from Mark Twain and Will Carleton. Following the production of the program will be a general discussion of the relative merits of the literary genius of the poet and writer.

One of the praiseworthy objects of the society will be the founding of a library, the furtherance of which will be accomplished with a number of public entertainments which will be given during the winter months.

The aim of the society is indeed, very commendable, and the members will doubtless derive much good from such pursuit.

CARMICHAEL FINISHES

His Work of Investigation and Returns to Seattle.

Captain John Carmichael, special agent United States land office returned to Seattle, yesterday after ten days of hard and conscientious labor on his mission of investigation into the reservation appraisement.

While all phases of the reserve questions were presented to Capt. Caamichael and while those opposed to a change in the appraisement eloquently and plausibly argued their side of the case, there seems no room to doubt but that the great preponderance of public opinion was that the appraisement should be reduced.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Christmas will occur on Monday.

Election day was exceedingly quiet and uninteresting.

The Terpsichorean Club will give a social hop at the opera house this evening.

A masquerade is on the tapis for Christmas. It will be given under the auspices of the Rebekahs I. O. O. F.

Service in the Episcopal church cor. Ninth and Chase, on Sunday at 11 a. m. Sunday school after the service. All are invited.

The St. Andrews Guild will meet at the home of Mrs. H. B. Willson, First street, next Thursday afternoon. A full attendance is requested.

Notwithstanding the general depression there is considerable building in the residence portion of the city, particularly on Lincoln Heights.

The Rev. E. Davis will conduct the usual service in the Lincoln street school house on Lincoln Heights on Sunday next at 3 p. m. All cordially invited to attend.

January 1st, the final day of sale of the unoccupied portion of the reservation, will mark a new era in Port Angeles' history, the beginning of industrial development, of commercial advancement.

The opera house has been engaged by the local G. A. R. Post for the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of January next, during which period refreshments will be served during the day, and good music provided for dancing in the evening.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Congregational church, will give a literary and musical entertainment followed with refreshments in the church on Tuesday evening, the 19th inst. Admission 10 cents. Doors open at 7:30.

The whispering social given last Friday evening under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Congregational church, was quite largely attended. One of the amusing features of the entertainment was the collection of fines for the transgression of the whispering rules.

A ball will be given in the opera house next Thursday evening under the auspices of the local G. A. R. societies, the net proceeds of which will be devoted to the Lincoln Memorial Hall and Library. Tickets including ladies and gentleman, 50 cents.

THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER regrets exceedingly to chronicle the untimely death of the little three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Clump, who passed away yesterday morning with tonsilitis. They have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

Cupid at it Again.

The county auditor issued two marriage licenses this week, as follows:

December 6th—Mr. Louis S. Case and Misa Dora A. Sparks, of Beaver. Miss Sparks is well and favorably known in this city. She is a sister of Mrs. W. R. Hoole. Mr. Case is a popular young farmer of Beaver.

December 7th—Jack E. Brolock and Miss Lena Hanson, both prominent members of the Scandinavian Society of this city.

Tide Land Commission Will Meet.

Capt. Geo. H. White, one of the members of the board of County Tide Land Commissioners, recently received a letter from Mr. A. J. Gillis, engineer of the state board of tide land commissioners, in which the writer states that he will meet the board in this city on or about the 15th inst., for the purpose of examining the maps of Clallam county tide lands.

Quillayute Items.

QUILLAYUTE, WASH., Dec. 3, '93.

Mr. E. A. Esworthy is our new postmaster. A. W. Smith has held the position for the past eleven years. Mr. Smith will move shortly to La Push.

Mr. Esworthy has also been elected overseer of this district.

Last night Mr. Hans Hansen delivered an able address on the national banking system and general interests of the country which was listened to by the Young People's Society.

Miss Minnie Smith is in the upper valley visiting friends.

Mrs. Smith is expected home from the East in a few days.

F. T. Balch gave a party at Boston Thursday to a select company of young folks Mr. Harry Maxfield furnished the music.

Another bridge is badly needed at Boston. This will be the longest and most difficult bridge to build in the county. The crossing is near La Push and is used more than all the other crossings combined.

Port Angeles people who want farms can find anything they like in this section. There is plenty of the best land still vacant also good deeded property for sale or rent. The finest lot of cedar, fir, spruce and hemlock timber in the west lies here waiting for lumbermen.

A REGION OF HOMES.

The Possibilities of the Quillayute for Homeseekers.

Hundreds of the settlers on the Port Angeles townsite reserve have recently come from the Eastern states and have never used their homestead right. Many of these are now looking for favorable places to secure one hundred and sixty acres of good soil and timber under the homestead laws of the United States. They have made their final proofs on their reserve lots and they are now anxious to enlarge their property interests says the Beaver Leader.

Every man in the Quillayute country who desires to advance the settlement and improvement of this region should avail himself of every means he can to influence the homeseekers at Port Angeles to locate their homesteads in this part of the county. Many of these people are from the lumber states along the great lakes and are familiar with life in the woods. They are therefore a class of settlers who adapt themselves readily to the conditions here and soon become valuable additions to the community. Besides they have seen the practical demonstrations of the value of timber and have grown up in states where splendid fortunes have been made in acquiring forests and converting them into gold coin by means of logging camps and saw mills.

People who have witnessed this themselves are certain to have the requisite faith in the future to nerve them to the task of making a home in the woods and helping to open the roads and trails that maintain communication with the outer world.

The thing to do now is for all to take a hand in inducing new settlers to come in and take up the vacant government land. The surveys are progressing so well that the long, tedious wait is a matter of the past. New settlers can depend on getting titles within a reasonable length of time.

THE LORE OF SKULLS

GREAT STORY TELLERS TO THOSE WHO CAN INTERPRET THEM.

Chat With a Professor of Skull-ology Who Is In Charge of the Rochester Museum of Human Osteology—Ancient Fashions of Deforming the Head.

It is not generally known that probably the most complete museum of human osteology is located in Rochester under charge of Professor Charles H. Ward, who has an international reputation as an authority on this question. "Skulls are great story tellers," said Professor Ward. "For instance, the original of this cast of the top of a skull overturned the theories of half of Europe, and probably its discovery was the most sensational thing in the realm of science of the decade. Before this piece of bone, which you can hold in your hand, was discovered, nothing had been found which tended to show that human life existed in the preglacial period, in the days of the cave bear and other anteglacial fossils. Not only does the place where it was found indicate all this, but the skull comes nearer to supplying the much laughed at 'missing link' than anything ever before discovered. There is no question whatever that it is a portion of a human skull, but the forehead is lower than that of any normally developed skull ever found, and the superciliary or superorbital arch is heavier than ever before seen on a human skull. This is one of the most marked points of distinction between the skulls of a gorilla and of a man.

"You can see what I mean from this picture," continued Professor Ward. "The arch is that of the eyebrow, just over the eye socket.

"One of the most interesting things in the ology of skulls is the fashion of deforming the head prevailing among the savage races of North and South America. It is accomplished by pressure brought to bear on the skull through infancy. The cliff dwellers flattened the back of the head. Skulls have been found on an island in the gulf of Mexico which were divided into two lobes, evidently produced by fastening a strap from the back of the neck to the forehead of the infant. If there had been more travel in those days, the fashion might have spread. The fad of flattening the front of the head evidently prevailed among the ancient inhabitants of Peru, as the mummy remains clearly indicate, and this has led to a belief that there is some race connection between the ancient Peruvians and the Flathead Indians of today.

"You can see the effect produced by the process I have described from this picture. Were this deformity produced on the head of a grown man, it would be followed by insanity and death, but the brains of the infant gradually accommodate themselves to the new conditions, I should judge, however, that it would be difficult to have a very highly developed intellect with a skull of that shape. Here, you see, is the skull of a Peruvian lady of high rank. We know that this was some Inca queen by the pomp with which she was buried. She paid the usual tribute to fashion, or her parents did, in having her skull flattened up to the latest style.

"Here," said Professor Ward, "is the skull of a maiden of 18 years, who, with a number of her companions, was knocked in the head with an ax and was eaten on an island in New Zealand several centuries ago at a great feast."

"For goodness' sake, how could you find out all that?"

"Simply enough. You can tell it all for yourself, with a little help. Of course we know from the place where it was found that it was in a land where cannibalism prevailed. Father found no less than seven skulls, all with a fracture like this horrid one, where the victim was struck with an ax or some similar implement. Then all have the hole knocked in at the base of the skull, evidently with the purpose of extracting the brain, for the human brain is considered a great delicacy by cannibal epicures. We know from the sharpness of the edges of the orbital cavity and other infallible indications that this is a woman's skull, for an expert can always tell a male from a female skull at a glance. Lastly, you can see by counting for yourself that the dentition of this girl's skull is not complete, and that therefore this is, as I have said, the skull of a New Zealand maiden of 17 or 18.

"I had a curious instance not long ago of the way in which an observer can find a story in a skull. A skeleton was sent me from a hospital in Vienna to be mounted. The skull had not been opened. The man had been taken ill on the street suddenly and had been taken to the hospital. In polishing the skull I found a fine black line which would not come out. I opened the skull and found that the line was a portion of the point of a blade which projected half an inch in the skull, and which had broken off so short that it would have been impossible to tell of what the man died unless the skull had been opened as I opened it. Here was a murder mystery which the law will never probe, for the wound was mortal."—Rochester Post-Express.

Pennsylvania In the Ice Age.

In the ice age the thickness of the ice which covered northeastern Pennsylvania has been supposed have been great enough to rise 2,200 feet above the sea level. Until a short time ago, no signs of glacial action had been discovered at a loftier elevation than this, but John C. Branner has explored Elk mountain, which is believed to be the highest point in northern Pennsylvania, and there he found scratches made by the ice at an altitude of about 2,700 feet. It is evident, therefore, that the ice sheet which overspread this region during the glacial epoch must have been thicker than geologists have hitherto thought.—New York Ledger.

A DUTCHMAN HOODOOED.

A Wily Negro "Doctor" Pulled Up In a South Carolina Court.

The famous hoodoo doctor, Peter Davis, colored, of Columbia, has had a preliminary hearing before Trial Justice Brunson on the charge of fraud and obtaining money under false pretenses. The victim was a Dutchman named Hohler, who farms several miles from here.

The examination was very interesting and quite amusing, Mr. Charles G. Dantzler representing the Dutchman and Mr. Henry H. Brunson of the firm of Izlar, Lathrop & Brunson appeared in behalf of the hoodoo. Hohler appeared to be completely disgusted with the treatment of hoodoos. In his testimony he said among other things that Peter had given him "graveyard dirt" to distribute around his farm, telling him that he would make a large crop by using the mystic dirt freely. Hohler used the dirt, "but," said he, "your honor, I plant 15 acre and make only one bale cotton."

Peter at another time sold the Dutchman some "dead men's powder," which was guaranteed to make Hohler's somewhat poor, but not sick, mule lively. "Your honor," said the very mad Dutchman," after I gif mit him de medicine he lie down in de road wid me and my wife on de way home, and he neffer been such a mule as he vas pefore ven I bot him from Henry von Ohsen." Hohler got a gourd and some powders from old Peter on another occasion. These he was to use for the general all round health of his family. He was to scrape the seed from the gourd at 12 o'clock one night, and at 12 o'clock the next night he was to sweep his yard clean and sprinkle the seed around the house. The gourd was to be filled with 13 drops of water of a peculiar hoodoo kind and some other fluid, then hung up in the house.

In summing up his testimony Hohler said that "Doctor" Peter had robbed him of his crop, made his mule lie down in the road when he promised to make the mule lively, and had made all his "family sicker than dey vas pefore dey took de medicine." Such was about the gist of the complaints that the Dutchman had to make against the hoodoo. Peter was put under a bond of $200 to appear at the next court of general sessions for this county.—Orangeburg Cor. Charleston News and Courier.

FATAL CARELESSNESS.

It Causes a Child's Death and Sends a Servant to Prison For Three Months.

A very sad tragedy came before the Paris police courts the other day when Marie Marterez, a domestic servant, was tried for the homicide, through carelessness, of Blanche, the infant child of Mrs. Blanche Treville, an American actress, known on the stage as Miss Irving.

Last summer Mrs. Treville was living at 37 Avenue d'Antin. Her daughter, who was only 4 years old, was being educated at a convent in the neighborhood of Paris. When the holidays commenced, the child came to live with her mother in Paris. On Aug. 26 Mrs. Treville had to go out in the afternoon. She confided the child to the care of Marie Marterez, who promised not to lose sight of her. She, however, shut the child up in her own room, locked her in and took the key away with her. When Marie Marterez returned, she found her room full of smoke. The child was lying on the floor unconscious, with its clothes burned to cinders. There had been a box of wax matches in one of the drawers in the room. The child, to amuse herself, had begun striking matches and had set fire to her frock. The poor child's cries were unheard. There were on the door the marks made by her delicate little nails in her desperation and fear.

All that could be done to save the child was done, but it was too late. The child died the same night.

In her despair Mrs. Treville accused the servant of murder, saying that Marie Marterez detested the child and had purposely shut her up alone with matches, with which Blanche had always liked to play. But the judicial authorities made inquiries and learned that Marie Marterez was as a rule very attentive to the child and took good care of it. The charge of murder was consequently changed to that of homicide through carelessness. Mrs. Treville herself appeared in court to give evidence, and renewed her accusation that the servant had wanted to bring about the child's death. "I am sure of it," she said, weeping. "She detested baby."

But the court took a different view of the case and sentenced Marie Marterez to three months' imprisonment.—Paris Herald.

A Good Year For Whales.

A New Bedford (Mass.) dispatch says that private dispatches received in that city confirm the reports of the unprecedented catch of the whaling fleet in the Arctic. Whaling merchants had begun to fear that the season would be a failure. When the little steamer Mary D. Hume took 30 whales two years ago, the news could scarcely be believed. Now the report that the Narwhal has taken 62 whales has come. The Baelena has taken 57 whales, the Grampus 47, the Newport 37, the Orca 26, the Karluck 18, the Belvidere 17, the Mary D. Hume 14, and the Navarch 11. This makes this year the biggest in the history of whaling. The steamers Baelena, Grampus, Karluck, Mary D. Hume and Narwhal are still shut in in the arctic ice and will winter there this year.

A Dramatic Suicide.

"How French!" was probably the exclamation of most people when they read of the dramatic suicide of the young woman at Clichy, France, the other day. While the train conveying the Russian visitors to Versailles was crossing the Seine she stood on a parallel bridge, waving French and Russian flags, and shouting: "I see and I die. Long live Russia!" she jumped into the river and was drowned. When her body was recovered it was found that she was clothed only in garments made out of French and Russian flags.—New York Tribune.

A WOMAN FOR SALE.

A Betrayed Girl Offers to Sell Herself to the Southern Medical College.

With a pale, haggard face; with a wild, despairing look and tears literally streaming down her hollow, sunken cheeks, Maud Fambro, a once innocent country girl, entered the Southern Medical college yesterday afternoon. Approaching Uncle Robert Pierce, the kindly disposed old janitor, she asked for the ladies' reception room.

After having seated herself, the young woman in a dazed sort of way surveyed the room and its contents with evident fear and dread. After a moment's hesitation she inquired of the janitor if the college wanted to buy a subject. If so, she had one to offer for sale, which, although alive now, would in the course of a month or two be at the disposal of the college if terms were agreed upon.

"Where is the subject, miss?" he asked, bowing lowly.

"Why, here it is—right here. Do you see me? I am the one. Do you think they will buy my body?" she went on, looking the janitor squarely in the face. "I am going to die, and I know it, and what I want to do is to arrange for the future. My history, I will say at the beginning, is familiar to all where I live, and rather than go back and face my degradation and shame prefer to die! Won't they buy my body?" she almost pleaded.

"Upon what terms would you make the disposition?" inquired a fiendish looking medical student.

"I will sell it for most any price. What I want to do is to make future provision for my baby. I haven't but one copper in the world and am here without a place to shelter my head. I thought by coming to Atlanta I'd make a trade by the college agreeing to take my body after I am gone. I do not know where to go or what to do."

It is the same old story of man's perfidy and woman's worse than weakness. Six months ago she was a highly respected country girl, living on the line of the Atlanta and West Point railroad near a pretty little town of 1,800 or 2,000 inhabitants—now an outcast and a wanderer upon the face of the earth. A once poor, innocent country lass, she seeks to make a horrible and ghastly disposition of her corpse that she might make proper provision for her future offspring. It is indeed a sad case.

The girl, not meeting with what she thought proper consideration, left the college, saying she was going to carry out her intention or commit suicide. She was entreated to go home and was given enough money to pay her railroad fare to the little town from which she came yesterday. It is not known where she went after leaving the college.—Atlanta Constitution.

MANY MILES IN A CANOE.

Warburton Pike's Exploration Into the Interior of Alaska.

Warburton Pike, the English explorer, has arrived at Nanaimo, B. C., from the interior of Alaska, having made a journey of over 4,000 miles in a small canoe. He left Victoria, B. C., a year ago last July for Fort Wrangle, and thence proceeded to Stikeen river in a canoe through the Cassair country and followed the Dease river as far as the junction with the Laird tributary of the Mackenzie river. There he spent the winter hunting big game. Late in the winter Pike started out with a dog sled for Francis lake, which he crossed, and thence made the portage to the Pelly lakes, getting into a country never before explored by white man.

Spring had set in by the time the Pelly lakes were reached, and crossing there Pike followed the Pelly river to its source. On his return he followed the Pelly river to Lewis river, which he followed to the Yukon. He then began a continuous journey of 2,500 miles, which lasted for two months. He left the Yukon river near the coast and made a portage to Kuskoquin river and thence made his way around the coast to Fort Alexander, the trip having lasted 13 months.

During the whole time he met with no accident. He used the same canoe all through. It weighs only 100 pounds and is 17 feet long. Mr. Pike formed a very poor opinion of the interior of Alaska. He says it is absolutely worthless except for hunting. Game of all kinds is abundant.—Washington Star.

The Fair.

Oh, no! Twenty-three million five hundred and twenty-nine thousand four hundred people did not pass through the gates of the Chicago fair, nor did 21,477,212 individuals pay for admission. It is fair to assume that at least 250,000 of Chicago's residents went in a dozen times each and some of them a hundred times. Scores of thousands of citizens blurred their eyes, blistered their feet and wearied their physiques all the way from 5 to 25 times each. There is no practical method of determining just how many individuals "did" the fair. It is sufficient for us to know, and very pleasant also, that after every debt is paid there will remain at least $1,000,000 to be divided among the enterprising, plucky and generous stockholders.—Joe Howard.

Bothered Over American Terms.

The French newspapers have been much bothered in the dispatches about the American silver question by such terms as "silver senator" and "silver congressman." The French word for silver, argent, means money as well, and it is not permissible in French to make a noun into an adjective. The difficulty has been overcome by coining the term "argyrophile," which is now applied to all Americans who favor silver.—Paris Letter.

Penny-in-the-slot Fires.

A Liverpool hotel has put in some penny-in-the-slot gas fires. This system is applied to the gas supply, so that a fire in the grate can be turned on when needed. The experiment has been tried in one bedroom for 12 months, and the machines are now to be put into every bedroom in the hotel.

A GOLDEN SHOWER.

The Discoverer of the Big Horn Mine Leaves a Fortune to a Shoemaker.

Patrick Ryan of this town, a shoemaker, single, 50 years of age, has received notice of the death of his brother in Chicago. By his death he is the only heir.

It was early in 1849 that James Ryan, then a young man, left Milford in company with Richard Quinlan and with hundreds of others went to the golden gate to seek their fortune in the goldfields of California.

They remained there for several years, but the mine they worked in, although rich in ore, was far from healthy and was particularly bad for the eyes, so much so that young Ryan's eyes were affected and he was forced to come east to have them attended to, for he was almost blind.

Young Ryan recovered his sight after a few years, but the east was rather tame for him, and again he went west. His second trip was to Colorado. The silver fever had just broken out, and Leadville was not known. Denver was a town of few houses when James Ryan arrived there with a companion. They were not long prospecting before they struck a mine that proved a great find. They sold it for $20,000. This was the first big money that Ryan ever made, although it was but a small amount as compared with what he afterward made in the mining world.

He remained but a short time in Denver, when, in company with his partner, they went to Utah, where they prospected for nearly a year, but were only successful in getting small finds. They were all about to bid Utah goodby when they struck traces of silver, the ore proving the finest they ever met with.

The seam was followed and proved better than they ever dreamed they would see. This was no other than the Big Horn silver mine that they sold for $1,000,000.

The money was equally divided between the partners. The money market always had a charm for Ryan, and he lost a great deal among the bulls and bears in Chicago. More than once he was tightly squeezed by old man Hutchinson, who was in his prime in those days.

But the hidden treasure beyond the Rockies had charms also for him that he could not overcome, and after losing what to many a man would be called a good sized fortune he returned to his old love of adventure and prospecting.

Again he proved successful and became the owner of several mines that brought him immense wealth.

Mr. Ryan does not know the exact amount of his brother's wealth, nor will he for a few days to come. Mr. Percy Shea of Denver is to have charge of settling up the estate.—Milford Cor. Boston Globe.

ARISTOCRATIC NURSES.

Fashionable English Dames Learning to Be Practical In the Sickroom.

Two or three years ago the Prince and Princess of Wales distributed badges and prizes to a large number of professional nurses and afterward entertained them royally at Marlborough House. It was expected that fashionable dames would show their appreciation of the royal example by taking up nursing as a recreation, but little was done until a few months ago, when the National Health society opened classes for the benefit of the aristocracy, at which something more is taught than a coquettish arrangement of caps and aprons. The idea is to teach ladies the value of good nursing and enable them to learn something about fit food for invalids and how to give first assistance to the injured, in all of which, it seems, duchesses, countesses and the like are lamentably deficient.

The Duchess of Bedford is particularly active in the work. She has placed her fine house in Belgrave square at the disposal of the society's lectures on every Wednesday during the winter season, and, as the course includes an afternoon tea, the attendance is expected to be large. The proceedings should certainly be interesting, as it is announced that each lecture "will be practically illustrated with a patient, bedding, etc."

The pioneer among the aristocracy of nursing and sanitation was Lady Brooke, who, with her husband, enjoys the particular friendship of the Prince of Wales. Her ladyship has for years been accustomed to keep a sharp eye on the water supply and sanitary arrangements of the villages on her estates in the counties of Warwick and Essex, often to the deep disgust of the cottagers, who claimed the inherent right of a Briton to please himself in such matters, and who objected strongly to being coerced into cleanliness on pain of eviction. Puritanical people have sometimes said hard things of Lady Brooke. It is right that credit should be given her in this matter.—London Letter.

Burning Soil.

A special in the New York World from Fort Dodge, Ia., says: Several hundred acres in Humboldt county, which this summer raised the biggest hay crop in Iowa, are burning away to ashes, the soil itself being consumed by fire to a depth of 15 feet. Two years ago the land was several feet under water and was known as Owl lake. It was drained by a big ditch and dried up, leaving a very rich soil. A few days ago, when a prairie fire swept over it, the soil itself took fire, burning like turf. The fire eats down to a hard clay that will be of no use for farming purposes. Any number of interesting fossil remains are exposed to view where the fire has burned out.

The Kaiser and Bismarck.

It is generally believed in Germany that the emperor's real object in making advances to Prince Bismarck was to induce the ex-chancellor to give up a number of letters which he wrote to him during the illness of the Emperor Frederick. The present emperor then treated Prince Bismarck with unbounded confidence, and it is supposed that he was indiscreet in some of his communications to the chancellor.

THE NEW CHINESE BILL.

The Photograph Provision and the Declaration Concerning Merchants.

The senate of the United States on the day before its adjournment passed the act for the amendment of the Geary exclusion law precisely as it came from the house. In view of this decision and of the overwhelming majority which the measure had received in the house, it must stand as the matured expression of the judgment of the representatives of the American people as a whole.

It is rather noteworthy that while the period of extension granted to the Chinese for registration is six months after the enactment of this new law, the time will expire during the first week of next May, or almost exactly one year after the period fixed in the original Geary act. That year will have taught much to our Mongolian fellow residents, and they may be expected to avail themselves almost to a man of the privilege now accorded by congress.

The new law requires of the applicant a photograph, and this provision has sometimes been stigmatized as importing rogues' gallery methods into its execution. This criticism is not sound. Many railroads, as was pointed out in the house debate, in giving their most favored customers the privilege of what are known as 1,000 mile tickets for a lower price than ordinary mileage rates, require that upon such a ticket shall be placed not only the purchaser's name, but his photograph, in order that nobody else may use it. Most of those persons who had season tickets of free admission to the Chicago fair were in like manner obliged to attach their photographs to the tickets. In these and similar cases the purpose is not humiliation, but identification, so that privileges granted may not be misused by persons who come wrongly into possession of them. That is exactly the case with the Chinese, and there is nothing else in the requirement of a photograph for the certificate of protection.

Another important new feature of the amendment act is that which defines the word "merchant," as used in the Geary law. No one can question that it is better to have a precise description of what is intended by this term than that it should be left to conjectural interpretation outside of the lawmaking power. A merchant is now declared to be, for the purpose of this act, "a person engaged in buying and selling merchandise at a fixed place of business, which business is conducted in his name, and who, during the time he claims to be engaged as a merchant, does not engage in the performance of any manual labor, except such as is necessary in the conduct of his business as such merchant." This does not appear to be an unjust definition, or one unduly strained for the purpose of excluding persons from the status of merchants who are fairly entitled to it. But however that may be, the words thus used in the amended act are directly drawn from similar definitions, either in preceding Chinese exclusion acts or in existing treasury decisions interpreting those acts and establishing rules for their execution.—New York Sun.

BY TORCHLIGHT.

That Was the Way the Cornerstone of the Staten Island Church Was Laid.

The laying of a cornerstone at night is the novel sight that was witnessed at Stapleton, N. Y., the other evening, when the construction of the new First Presbyterian church was formally inaugurated amid the glare of torches and electric lights.

The First Presbyterian church of Stapleton is one of the wealthiest and most fashionable congregations on Staten Island, but it has hitherto worshiped in a small and unpretentious edifice. Recently it decided to erect a new and handsome church, to cost a large sum of money, and the members hit upon the novel plan of laying the cornerstone at night to make the occasion memorable.

Electric lights strung were from different points and in such a manner as to throw the full glare directly on the spot where the cornerstone was placed. As the illumination, however, was hardly strong enough to read by, a number of people stood about the officiating clergymen holding pine torches, thus enabling the services to be carried out without hitch.

Owing to the novelty of the idea of laying a cornerstone at night, there was a large attendance at the ceremony, prominent society people from all parts of the island being present.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Astors and Mrs. Drayton.

Just as I supposed. Mr. Jack Astor has come out with a flat footed denial that he has given a cent to his sister, Mrs. Coleman Drayton. As for the house, everybody knew that was a part of the marriage settlement made by the late Mr. William Astor upon his daughter.

From the very emphatic denial of Jack Astor that he has anything to do with setting his sister up in her old establishment at 374 Fifth avenue it does not look as if he intended to do much in the way of helping her along.

The Willie Wallie Astors, living as they do at Cliveden and Lansdowne House in England, scorn the whole business and are probably only too delighted to see "the" Mrs. Astor, their esteemed aunt, fixed in the very tight box she occupies at present.—Cholly Knickerbocker in New York Recorder.

LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM.

Portland Oregon, September 26, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Years of exposure and hard work, combined with the strain coming from the jar of an engine, gave me a severe case of lame back, from which I suffered for seven years. I was so bad that I could not bend my back. Was all doubled up with it. I bought one of your belts. It helped me inside of two days, and I continued to wear it for four months, being perfectly cured. That was two years ago, and I am as well to-day as I ever was in my life. I know your belt well, and I know lots of people who have been cured by it. Many others need it, and if they would try it they would find it the same as I did—the best remedy in the world. I am located here permanently, and will be glad to talk with anyone who wants to inquire about it.

BEEF EXTRACT FOR A PATIENT.

Just Because It Was Not Made Correctly There Was Trouble.

"My most remarkable professional experience?" repeated the physician thoughtfully, knocking the ashes off the end of his cigar. "That is a hard question to answer offhand, but I can tell you of an extremely odd occurrence in connection with my practice recently.

"It was a case of pneumonia. A young lad was sick with the complaint, out in Tenallytown. The father, a poor man and a carpenter by trade, was an old acquaintance of mine, having done odd jobs for me occasionally. He insisted on employing my services, though I recommended a practitioner nearer at hand, because I could not possibly get out there to visit the patient more than once a day.

"The disease had already reached a critical stage when I was first summoned. After writing a couple of prescriptions and giving directions as to other matters, I called the father and requested his attention to certain instructions respecting food. Said I to him:

"'Take this quart whisky bottle and put into it one pound of finely chopped lean beef, cork it tightly, place it in a pot of water and let it boil four hours. That will make the strongest kind of extract—a highly concentrated form of nourishment. Give to the boy one tablespoonful of it every hour.'

"I went away satisfied that everything was provided for. The next day I returned to find my patient in a state of collapse. In haste I called for brandy and milk and managed to revive him. For the life of me, I could not account for the situation of affairs. I summoned the father, who was nearly distracted with anxiety, and questioned him.

"'Have you given him the beef extract I ordered?' I asked.

"'Oh, yes, sir.' he replied.

"'Every hour?'

"'Yes. sir.'

"'You put a pound of chopped raw beef into the bottle and boiled it?'

"'Yes, sir. Corked it up and boiled it four hours in a pot of water. He's had a tablespoonful of the stuff every hour since you were here last.'

"'It beats me,' I said. 'Why, I could have supposed that the boy was exanimate from sheer inanition. Bring me some of the beef extract and let me see it.'

"Presently half a tumblerful of the preparation was brought and submitted to me for examination. I could hardly believe my senses. It looked like water; it tasted like water; it was water and nothing else.

"'What does this mean?' I demanded angrily.

"'That's the stuff you ordered, sir,' replied the father confidently. 'I made it myself, according to your own directions—boiled the bottle of beef just as you said. But I must confess that I thought it was a pretty weak kind of broth for a sick boy.'

"I stared at him for a minute or two in wonder. Then a light began to dawn on me. I gasped and said:

"'Bring me the bottle!'

"He did so. Its contents evidently had not been disturbed. I poured from it a tablespoonful of thick and nourishing fluid and administered it to the patient.

"The father looked on as if awestruck.

"'Why,' said he, 'you never told me that! You said to cork up the bottle, but you did not tell me to uncork it. So I thought that you meant I should give him the water it was boiled in!'

"So that was what my patient had been fed on for 24 hours—boiled water and nothing more. No wonder that I found him in a state of collapse. He recovered, but it was a narrow squeeze, I assure you."—Washington Star.

Craasbeck's Ruse.

A somewhat eccentric individual was the Flemish painter Craasbeck, of whom it is told that once, fearing that his wife had ceased to love him and anxious to discover if his fears were founded on fact, he resolved upon an extraordinary test. He tore his blouse from his chest and painted just above his heart a very vivid representation of a wound. He then painted his lips and cheeks so that they presented a ghastly aspect, covered his palette knife and his garments with spots of red paint, gave a shriek and fell to the floor as if dead.

The test was successful. Mme. Craasbeck, hearing the shriek, rushed into the room and supposing that her husband had been killed or had killed himself gave way to what was to the supposed victim on the floor a series of very gratifying outbursts of grief. What the lady said when her lord and master sat up and informed her that he was only shamming, history does not record, but if she failed to go from one extreme to the other and give him a round scolding she certainly missed a great opportunity and showed herself a woman of marvelous self control.—Harper's Young People.

Gone to Her Mother's.

"Dear Lord," said an Atchison man the other morning at grace, "I would ask thy blessing on this food, but I realize it is cooked too miserably for thee to waste thy valuable time in blessing, so instead I urge it upon thee that thou instill into my wife's heart that it is better to cook steak acceptably for one man than to raise $10 by working two weeks for a church social." The indignant woman has gone to her mother's.—Atchison Globe.

Slow and Sure.

The engineer clamps down the brakes and slows up the train when the axles begin to whirl in hot boxes. Life is worth more than the time schedule. It is better to get there behind time than to take the chances of ditching the train. Living too fast is slow business. "Slow but sure" is a good motto.—Ram's Horn.

Notice of the Public Sale

Of the lots in the unsold portion in the town of Port Angeles, washington.

Notice is hereby given that at ten o'clock on the 1st day of January, 1894, the public sale of lots in the unsold portion of the townsite of Port Angeles, washington. will be begun at the court house therein and continued from day to day until all the lots and parcels in said townsite that are subject to sale at public outcry shall have been sold or offered for sale. Port Angeles is situated upon the straits of San Juan De Fuca, Clallam county, in the north-western portion of the state of washington, and was reserved as a government townsite in 1863 by order of President Lincoln. The sale of the unsold portion of said townsite was provided for by act of Congress of March 3d, 1891, 26 stat, 879, and August 5, 1893, 27 stat. 360, and said portion comprises thirty-one hundred and forty seven and 31-100 acres surveyed into 7008 urban and suburban lots and parcels. The majority of the urban lots are fifty by one hundred-forty feet in size, while the suburban lots contain an average of eight and one half acres. The sale will be conducted by the Register and Receiver of the Seattle land office, and all lots and parcels will be offered singly to the highest bidder for cash, except those lots which may be purchased at private sale prior to the date of public sale by the parties entitled thereto, but no bid will be received for less than the appraised value for any lot or parcel. Notice is hereby given to each and every person claiming by the terms of the acts of Congress of August 5, 1892, a preference right to purchase lots at private entry at their appraised value prior to the day of public sale, that he must publish notice once a week for six consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in Port Angeles of his intention to avail himself of such rights and that he will make proof at a specified time touching such residence and improvements before the Register and Receiver at the Seattle land office or other officer authorized to take proof in homestead cases. Said proof must consist of the testimony of the claimant corroborsted by the testimony of two witnesses, stating that the claimant had individually established residence upon one lot and had made valuable improvements upon one such additional lot prior to July 5, 1893, and that he had maintained such residence and improvements up to the date of his application to purchase, and that title to said improvements still remain vested in him. The foregoing to be accompanied by proof of the publication required. Notice is futher given that the aforesaid proof must be made in time to be forwarded to, and passed upon by the local officers at Seattle prior to the day of public sale. Full explanation will be made by the Register prior to the offering of the several lots and parcels for sale as to the exact location of each and shape and size and area of the same in order that parties may bid intelligently upon them.

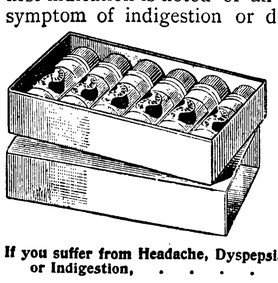
A single Tabule taken after the evening meal, or just before retiring, or, better still, at the moment when the first indication is noted of an approaching cold, headache, any symptom of indigestion or depression of spirits, will remove the whole difficulty in an hour without the patient being conscious of any other than a slightly warming effect, and that the expected illness failed to materialize or has disappeared.



Disease commonly comes on with slight symptoms, which when neglected increase in extent and gradually grow dangerous.

Special Notice.

Our business has assumed such proportions that the two stores now occupied are inadequate. We are compelled to secure quarters where we can handle our business. On and after January 1st, 1894, we will occupy the building No. 104 Commercial Street, one door South of Yesler Avenue, opposite Schwabacher Bros. Hardware Store. We extend an invitation to our many patrons to call on us when in the city and make themselves at home, and to all others that desire to see the model grocery house of the state.

We are in business, not for a month, nor for a year, but we are here to stay. We do our best to treat all customers, large or small, in a way that satisfies them. We appreciate their patronage and want to keep it.

Our sales for 1893 prove conclusively thot there are consumers all over the state who know how to figure close and who wish to save from twenty to twenty-five cents on every dollar.

ABOUT IMITATIONS: Every good thing that ever existed has been imitated. Just so with our Price-List. Scores of dealers try to imitate us. Everybody with any sense knows all about sugar, coal oil, flour, and other staple groceries, (on the same principle as spool cotton and calico in the dry goods line). People can't be humbugged all the time. Take a little time and compare prices, you will soon find we are lower on everything, besides furnishing honest weights and best goods.

A useful souvenir consisting of a beautiful view of Niagara Falls and calendar combined for 1894 will be presented to every customer ordering groceries this month.

It may be a little early to remind you about Christmas. However, this is our last list for 1893, and now is our time to wish you all a merry and joyous Christmas—one of the real good old-fashioned sort. We trust the next one will roll around and find us contented, and prosperous times restored. We quote very many useful articles. As this is a season where dollars and cents count, we trust our list will suggest appropriate items for holiday enjoyments as well as holiday gifts.

TERMS—All orders must be accompanied by cash. Remittances can be made by express, money order, postal note or registered mail.

☞N.B.—Send no checks on interior banks. We can only use checks on Seattle banks and cannot end out goods unless these terms are complied with.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Send your full name and address with proper shipping instructions. Send all remiitances direct to the house, as we have no traveling agents. WE MAKE NO CHARGE FOR PACKING OR DELIVERY TO RAILROAD STATION OR WHARVES.

We quote only a few articles, and will cheerfully furnish prices on anything in the grocery line. Reference, Dexter Horton & Co., bankers, Seattle, and Scandinavian-American Bank, Seattle.
