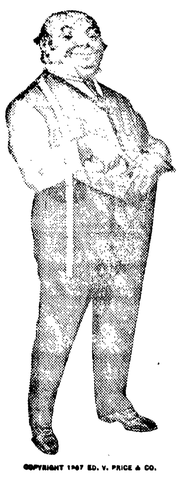
We could make clothes



expressly for you here at home, but a local tailor shop today is impractical and unprofitable.

It has no labor market from which to secure desirable cutters and tailors—

It cannot afford to install a modern plant designed to reduce cost of production—

It doesn't do sufficient business to enable it to buy woolens direct from the mills—

It cannot keep abreast of metropolitan styles and workmanship.

Therefore, we send our orders for fine made-to-measure clothes to Ed. V. Price & Co., of Chicago.

We can take your measure the same way we would if running shops here, and furnish you your clothes, made as you want them, at 50% less than we could make them locally. Won't you call today?

CONGRESSMAN CUSHMAN HAS PASSED AWAY

People of State of Washington Mourn Loss of One of Their Most Talented Men.

Representative Francis W. Cushman of this state died at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning at Roosevelt Hospital, N. Y., of pneumonia. Congressman Cushman underwent a slight operation a few days previously and pneumonia resulted.

In the death of Francis W. Cushman the state of Washington has lost one of its ablest statesmen and Clallam county one of its stanchest friends. Congressman Cushman has long been recognized as one of the leading debators in the house and was generously known as the "House Humorist," but he was regarded as far more than that. His ability was recognized by Speaker Cannon, when he was named a member of the ways and means committee, to fill a vacancy, at a time when a great tariff bill was to be reported to the house for consideration.

Upon occasion of his visits to Port Angeles, Congressman Cushman usually publically expressed himself as deeply gratified to the people of Clallam County for standing by him upon all occasions, and was always ready to make the interest of the community his own.

Senator Wesley L. Jones, when hearing of the death of his former colleague, paid this tribute to him:

"I cannot grasp the fact that Frank is gone. He and I entered Congress together ten years ago. During the whole time there has never been the slightest difference beween us. We have worked in entire harmony, and in his death I feel the loss of a brother rather than a friend. He was as true as steel.

"Untiring in his industry, intense in his convictions, and absolutely honest, he impressed all with his ability and forcefulness of expression, and the people of the state have suffered in his death, a loss almost irreparable. He had attained a position in the House of Representatives where he could be of great service, and it is one of those decrees of Providence that we cannot attempt to explain that he should be taken away at the very threshold of his great usefulness and opportunity."

G. H. DAVIS' LICENSE CANCELLED

George H. Davis was brought down from Dungeness Sunday, by Deputy Sheriff J. J Allen, charged with selling liquors on Sunday in violation of the law. The sheriff's office has been watching Mr. Davis' and other establishments in the east end for the past month, and to make sure of conviction has evidence of Mr. Davis selling liquor every Sunday for the past five weeks. This evidence was placed before the county commissioners Wednesday and was so overwhelming and conclusive that the board voted unanimously to cancel the license under which Mr. Davis has been operating. Being assured that this action on the part of the board is final, the sheriff has consented that the case against Mr. Davis in the courts be abandoned. Mr. Barr was given a renewal of his license at this place, conditional that he conduct same strictly according to law, and close every night at 11 o'clock, to allow milkers and others to get some sleep.

Sunday saw the beginning of the hegira from Angeles for the A.-Y-P. Exposition, the Whatcom carrying a capacity steamer load. This was Pythian week, during which the grand lodges of the domain of Washington were in session, and Angeles sent her full quota of Knights with their families to the conclave and to the fair.

HILL SYSTEM WILL BUILD EXTENSION

Does Not Propose to Yield Territory, a Policy that Will Doubtless Be of Advantage to Us Later.

Hostilities between the Hill and Milwaukee forces have broken out afresh in the country west of the Cascades Yesterday, says the Seattle Times, the announcement was made that the contract for the construction of a twenty-five mile road from Monroe, on the Great Northern southward through Cherry Valley, had been let to Caughren, Winter & Co., a railroad contracting firm that has contracts now under way for the Hill roads, aggregating more than $3,000,000.

The new Hill road is to be built under the direction of J. T McChesney of Everett, president of the Everett Land & Improvement Company, and for fifteen years past one of Hill's trusted lieutenants in the Pacific Northwest. It was McChesney, who, after months of work, finally obtained all the water and power rights on the Chelan river where possibilities exist for the development of 100,000 electric horse power and which rights have now been turned over to Mr. Hill.

Hill's determination to build the Monroe-Cherry Valley road is due to the fact that the same district had been covered by surveys for the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound.

The Milwaukee, while keeping under cover for weeks past, has not deceived the emissaries of the Hill roads, who know well the policy of the Rockefeller line to cover the country where its main line runs with feeders wherever traffic can be developed.

That Hill will make every effort to keep the Milwaukee from disturbing his control in Everett is now plainly evident. On the other hand the Milwaukee is bending every energy in the direction of opening up new and undeveloped districts in the Pacific Northwest, particularly in the search for lumber and shingle traffic.

FARMERS' DAY AT EXPOSITION

Parades, picnics, music, fireworks and sporting events will mark the celebration of Farmer's Day at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, September 8th.

G. D. Wilson has been appointed director general of the day and is preparing an elaborate program in which all farmers in the Northwest will be interested. At both the St. Louis and Jamestown expositions all arrangements for the day set aside for the farmers were made by Director General Wilson.

The morning parade at the exposition on Farmer's Day will be participated in by agriculturists from Washington, Idaho, Oregon and British Columbia. Then will come the address of welcome by President Chilberg. Shortly after 12 o'clock the farmers will assemble on the grounds near the shores of Lake Washington for a basket picnic. During the afternoon it is proposed to have an unusual feature known as the Bells of Christendom in which 700 young girls from various parts of the United States will take part. Wire connections will be made with bells in Seattle and about the cities of Puget Sound and at a given signal the young girls will press electric buttons ringing hundreds of bells. The rainbow banquet in the evening will be an international affair, for invitations are to be sent to foreign countries to have representatives present on Farmer's Day.

Farmers from all over the Northwest will come to Seattle in great numbers for the celebration of Farmer's Day and September 8th will no doubt be a banner day in the history of the Pacific World's Fair.

The W. C. T. U. will give a silver medal contest in Lincoln Heights M. E. Church Friday evening, July 16th. Admission 10 cents. After the contest, the ladies will serve ice cream and cake.

Miss Briggs, the popular milliner, takes the palm as the boss fisherwoman of the season. Her catch, a fine salmon, tipped the beam at 21 1-4 pounds.

THE COUNTY ROAD CONTRACTS

The Commissioners closed up three completed contracts this week and ordered balances due contractors paid. They were the David Govan and Louis Hahn contracts in the Burnt Hill Cut-off; the Frank Anderson contract on Road No. 59, and Harry Coventon's Indian Creek road.

But one bid, that of James and Frank Henderson, $1,700, was received for the improvement of the Dungeness river; it was not accepted.

The bridge on Big River on the Clallam and Ozette road called forth three bids: C. W. Grader, $785, Ole H. Boe $1200; A. Nylund, $800. Mr. Grader's bid was accepted. A number of up sound bridge builders, misled by the name, made inquiries as to the specifications and one contractor sent a man down to see about it, who found that "Big River," like Little River, is slightly smaller than Ennis Creek, and required only a 52 ft. span and approaches.

LEGISLATURE HAS ADJOURNED

The legislature has adjourned until August 11th, when the senate will take up and try the impeachment charges against State Commissioner J. H. Schively. The legislature was in special session ten days during which time but little business other than appropriating the people's money was transacted. With the exception of the Beach bill, making the state treasurer the treasurer of the state college at Pullman, the eight bills which became laws called for appropriations totaling $118,327.

The treasury statement issued July 1 shows the government receipts for the year ended June 30 to have been $604,432,846. The disbursements aggregated $694,244,002, making a deficit for the year of 89,811,856.

Importations of hides and skins into the United States will show a greater total in quantity in the fiscal year ended June 30 than in any year in the history of the import trade. The value will amonnt to about $75,000,000, or slightly less than in 1907, because of the lower prices which now prevail.

At Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Friday, Cornell won the varsity four-oared race by three lengths. Syracuse was second, Columbia third and Pensylvania fourth. Cornell also won the freshman eight-oared race, with Syracuse second, Pennsylvania third and Wisconsin fourth.

EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION COMES TO SEATTLE IN JULY

The 24th anual convention of the National Editorial Association is scheduled to met in Seattle July 19-24, and is destined to be one of the most remarkable as well as most enoyable conventions ever held by the Association. The local press club is making elaborate prearations for the entertainment of the visitors while in the city. Numerous side trips, visits to various points of interest, including the Alaska-Yukon-Pacifi exposition, which in itself would seem sufficient, banquets, aut mobile rides over the splendid streets and through the magnificent parks of the Exposition city are planned.

The association has prepared a splendid program, upo which place has been given to many of the leading speakers and writers of the United States, so that the intellectual demands of the visitors will be fully cared for.

Assurances have been received that the attendance will be a record breaker in the historny of the association.

In addition to all the pleasures and delightful enjoymet which a visit to Seattle and the epxosition will afford, the Alaska Steamship Company has planed an excursion on its palatial and commodious steamer Northwestern to thee "Land of the Midnight Sun," Alaska,. This is bound to prove one of the most interesting and delightful trips attepmted by the association since its organiaztion.

GOVERNMENT ROAD TO MOUNT RAINIER OPEN

Tacoma, July 6.—United States Engineer Eugene Ricksecker celebrated Independence day by throwing open the government road in the Mount Rainier national park. Vehicles and horsemen now have an excellent thoroughfare from tidewater to Narada falls, near snow line in Paradise valley. The road would have been ready weeks ago had not heavy snows in Paradise valley interfered. For a few days last fall the road was "roughed" open to Paradise, but only one automobile went over it. Mr. Ricksecker says that autos and wagons can now make the trip with comfort.

The maximum grade on the road is 4 per cent. Nearly a score of automobiles, all loaded, went to the mountain yesterday.

Mississippi Sues Oil Trust

Jackson, Miss., July 3.—Application has been made by District Attorney Lamb for a perpetual injunction restraining the Standard Oil Company from operating in Mississippi, and seeking to collect $11,000,000 penalties for violation of the anti-trust law. Under the Mississippi code the state is entitled to recover a statutory penalty of $5,000 a day for each specific violation of the anti-trust laws.

TWENTY-SIX COUNTS IN SCHIVELY INDICTMENT

Senate Receives Formal Charges Against State Insurance Commissioner.

Olympia, July 1.—Adhering strictly to the program mapped out in the executive offices Tuesday night, the administration forces yesterday filed charges of impeachment against John H. Schively, insurance commissioner, with the senate. Malfeasance, misconduct, extortion, perjury and neglect of duty are, in the main, the charges, there being twenty-six articles in the indictment.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the charges were taken to the senate by the house impeachment managers, were received there, the senate sworn in as a court of impeachment by Chief Justice Fullerton. Piper and Booth were the only absentees when the oath was administered. The summons was duly issued, returnable at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and at 6 o'clock it was served on Schively at his office by A. J. Ahola, sergeant at arms of the senate. The delay was due to the fact that the senate clerical force had to make copies of the articles for serving purposes before the accused could be notified.

Managers Meet

In the evening the impeachment managers met at the attorney general's office to discuss procedure. Assistant Attorney General Lee will conduct the case for the managers. The plan the prosecution has in mind is to give the accused until Wednesday, July 7, to answer and on that date start in on the trial.

Criticism has been made of the effort to impeach Schively for offenses committed when he was deputy insurance commissioner under Secretary of State Nichols on the ground that it will be difficult to impeach an elective officer for his misconduct in a subordinate capacity several years ago. The chief findings against him in the report of the investigating committee were on counts of this character. Before submitting the charges, the committee preparing them included two charges which cover offenses during his present term, one of perjury, a duplicate of the one for which he must stand criminal trial at Spokane, and the other for absenting himself from his office and generally neglecting the business of the department in recent months.

Schively Won't Talk

Schively declines to discuss his plans, but refers all inquirers to his attorney, George Israel, who is almost constantly with him. "I am not certain what course we shall take tomorrow," said Mr. Israel last night. "We may elect to go to trial immediately and may ask time to answer. The only thing certain is that we will be at the bar of the senate tomorrow morning. The governor in requiring the insertion of the perury and neglect of duty charges in the articles has exhibited the weakness of his case and made a serious mistake. He is either guilty of disregarding the advice of a good lawyer or taking that of a poor one. Both of these charges, if there is any truth in them, could be prosecuted in the criminal courts at an expense to the state of but $400 or $500, as against the $50,000 that this is to cost, and, in fact, one of them is already pending in the criminal courts. The other twenty-four charges are the relation of various matters all ending with the allegation that they constitute malfeasance, as if the mere declaration made it so.

"We have no desire to delay unnecessarily, but we will insist on our right to controvert the state's testimony. In doing so we are not going to be backward about summoning witnesses. We will have plenty of them at the expense of the state. My judgment is that the trial will occupy about thirty or forty days."

SCHIVELY TRIAL ADJOURNED UNTIL AUGUST 11

Olypmia, July 3. In the tenth day of its special session the senate adjourned at 1:30 o'clock to 2. p. m. August 11, when it will sit as an impeachment tribunal to try J. H. Schively. Five minutes later the house adourned to the same time. Most of the members left at 2:30 on a special train for Tacoma and Seattle. There has been a question as to whether the house need come back as a full body on August 11, Senator Graves holdng in debate that it need not. However, the authorities in the house declare that under the constitution the house must reassemble at that time. Just before adjournment Speaker Meigs made a statement to that effect. Farnsworth objected, saying that nine members could assemble on August 11 and hold the organization, requiring the attendance of the others when needed, but he received no support for his idea. No members draw pay during the recess ecxept the managers of the impeachment, and they, by resolution of the house, get $10 a day, but at the same time the house reduced their number from eleven to three. The three are Speaker Meigs and Representatives Sparks and Edge.

Bills are Slaughtered

The Duwamish river improvement bill and all legislation pending that did not pertain strictly to absolute necessities were killed before adjournment.

A adjournment would have come much earlier in the day had it not been for the difference between the two houses over the compensation of the managers.

As finally passed the bill leaves the appropriation for the impeachment expenses at $40,000, gives the senators $5 a day while sitting in the trial, gives the house managers "such sum as fixed by resolution of the house," provides that the senate shall fix the compensation of its employes who are to remain on duty, namely, the secretary, segeant at arms and such other employes as are found ecessary, provides for the payment of "other expenses authorized by the rules of the senate and the law;" provides that witness fees and mileage in the state of Washintgon only shall be paid on the basis of payments in the superior courts and also provides that these payments shall be made on vouchers approped by the president and secretary of the senate.

Managers Confer With Bell

After adjournment the managers had several meetings with the attorney general in his office. A copy of the transcript of the evidence taken at the investigating committee's sessions on the Schively matter was given to each manager. Adjournment was taken to August 8, when the three meet here to prepare their case, all three of the members being lawyers.

Edge goes to his home in Spokane to look into the preparation of the case as it relates to article 25, the perjury charge. Meigs will spend some time here. Sparks goes home and there will look into the law on the whole subject.

The deadlock over the appropriation for a continuance of the investigatng committee was settled by the conferees agreeing on $30,000 as against the $40,000 demanded by the house and the $25,000 argeed to by the senate, and in this form the bill passed. It was reported by the conferees that the governor had agreed to the $30,000.

Falconer's senate resolution No. 8, permitting the investigating committee to travel about the state getting evidence, passed the house without oposition.

LEGISLATION ACTUALLY PASSED THIS SESSION

Following is a list of the completed legislation of the present session:

Senate bills passed both houses

Appropriating $484 to defray the expenses of the funeral of the late Gov. Cosrgove; approved.

Appropriating $2,000 for the publication of constitutional amendments and returns of the next primary election; approved.

Appropriating $40,000 to defray the expenses of the impeachment trial; approved.

House bills passed by both houses:

Appropriating $40,000 for the expenses of the extraordinary session; approved.

Appropriating $3,500 for printing for the extra session and printing the senate journal of the regular session; approved.

Making the state treasurer treasurer of the state college; transmitted to the governor.

Appropriating $30,000 for the expenses of continuing the legislative investigation; approved.

Resolutions that Passed

Memorials and joint and concurrent resolutions passed by both houses:

Memorializing President Taft to cause a re-survey of the southern tier of townships of the Colubmia river forest reserve with a view to throwing them open to settlement.

Continuing the present legisaltive investigating committee until April 1, 1910, and directing it to report to Gov. Hay.

Authoriizng each house to adjourn until August 11 at 2 p. m.

Authoriizng the legisaltive investigating committee to hold sessions in any part of the state.

Authorizing the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition commission to expend ot to exceed $10,000 in entertaining guests at the exposition.

In addition to the above the senate adopted a senate resolution, by Hutchinso, directing the legislative investigating committee to investigate the deal by which the regents of the university leased the old university grounds in Seattle for a period of 47 years.

Beautiful Side Trips

Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition But One of Northwest's Allurements.

While the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition is the magnet that is attracting thousands of visitcrs to Seattle this summer, the beauties of the Puget Sound country will be one of the features of the outing on the Pacific coast.

The people headed for Seattle are asking what will be offered in the way of side trips from the Exposition city. A great many will tour the Southeastern coast of Alaska, visiting te glaciers and the totem pole villages.

Others will cross the strait of Juan de Fuca to Victoria and thence to Vancouver, the two leading cities of British Colubmia. Down the strait to Port Angeles is another interesting voyage. The dozens of vessels comprising the mosquito fleet offer more daylight excursions than could be found anywhere else in the world.

Arrangements have been made whereby visitors to Seattle this year will be admitted to the salmon canneries at Aacortes, reached from Seattle by steamer, the trip requiring a day. Bellingham is also visited on this trip.

The Puget Sound navy yard will be the Mecca for thousands and the steamers plying between Seattle and Tacoma are doing a capacity business this year.

EXPOSITION NOTES

A reproduction in natural colored sugar of the state house at Honolulu, Hawaii, standing 25 feet high, is to be seen in the Hawaiain building at the Seattle World's fair.

A chunk of coal weighing 2,700 pounds is an exhibit in the Mines building at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. It is from a Washington mine.

So comprehensive is the exhibit of the Fisheries department of the national government at the Seattle World's Fair, that the only thing left in the sea and not shown is McGinty in Davey Jones' locker.

"One pleasing feature about your exposition," said an Atlanta, Georgia, newspaper man in speaking of the Seattle exposition. "is that there is no extortion permitted. There are prices to meet everyone's pocketbook."

A complete history of our country may be gathered in a short space of time from the papers and curios on exhibit in the state department at the Seattle exposition.

Seven different car lines, a steamboat line and many autom obiles are employed in carriyng the crowds to and from the exposition grounds.

The spiritual and intellectual development of the great Northwest is as fully exploited at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition as is the commercial and industrial growth.

RICH GOLD STRIKE REPORTED IN PHILIPPINES

Maanila, July 3.—Two strikes of exceedingly rich gold bearing ore were made almost simultaneously dur ng the week on the island of Luzon. The first strike was made in the Paracale district, Camarines province, and the other in the Bagulo district of the Benquet province

In the former the stringer in the lodes reported to run $20,000 to the ton, and the lode tself $500. This property is controlled by Frank Ingersoll, formerly of Seattle.

There has been small rush of prospectors to the Paracale district during the summer, where one dredger has been working for a year with good results.

As a result of the latest discovery two dredgers and two mills will soon be under construction. The district is an old one and preparations made to work the ground extensively with European capital was interrupted ten years ago by the war and later by the insrretion of the natives.

The ore found in the Benguet province assayed $8,000 to the ton. The mines in the district were discovered and developed by Americans. Three of the properties are operating mills. Neither district is a poor man's proposition and prospectors without considerable means are warned not to rush there.

667,971 VISITED FAIR DURING FIRST MONTH

Seattle, July 3.—the attendance for the first month of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, according to an official statement, amounted to 667,971. President Chilberg stated that the net profits for the month amounted to $86,000. The percentagc of complimentary admissions is considered low, being placed at 27 per cent.

Tacoma Can Now Build Big Plant

Tacoma, July 3.—Superior Judge C. M. Easterday, by giving Tacoma the right to condemn property at the Nisqually falls belonging to the Cascade Public Service Corporation, the Nisqually Power company and others, in a decision this week, opened the way for the immediate commencement of work on the $2,000,000 municipal power plant.

CUSHMAN IS DEAD

CONGRESSMAN FROM WASHINGTON PASSES ON AT NEW YORK.

End Came at Roosevelt Hospital Where He Had Been Since June 21—Senator Piles at Bedside—Representative Was Noted for Quaint and Genial Humor.

New York, July 6.—Congressman Francis W. Cushman of Washington died this morning at Roosevelt hospital in this city. Mr. Cushman came here June 21 to have a minor operation on his neck performed. A cold developed into pneumonia and he became seriously ill. Senator Piles, of Washington came on from Washington, D. C., and was at the bedside of the sick man continuously. A slight change for the better was noticed Sunday and it was hoped that Cushman would recover. Mrs. Cushman was also at the bedside.

Representative Cushman was the wit of the house of representatives. He was elected to congress when he was 32 years of age and was serving his sixth term. He was selected as a member of the ways and means committee at the last session of congress.

Cushman has always attracted a great deal of attention in the house. He was proud of the fact that he was considered the homeliest man in congress and also that he was its best story teller. During the stormy debate on free lumber in the house, he was thrown into the breach by the high protectionists to get the house into good humor

Francis W. Cushman, lawyer and member of conngress since March 4, 1899, was born at Brighton, Washington county, Iowa, May 8, 1867. He was the son of Henry and Elizabeth Cushman. He was educated in the common school of his native town and at the academy at Pleasant Plain, Iowa. He engaged in the active practice of law until 1898, being in that year elected to congress, and re-elected four times. He was a member of the firm of Cushman & Cushman, lawyers, of Tacoma. A brother, E. E. Cushman, was recently appointed federal judge of Alaska, and is at present at Juneau.

MODEL TOWN TO BE RUN BY IOWA EDITOR

Des Moines, Iowa, July 3.—W. J. Pilkington, of this city, editor of the Merchants' Trade Journal, has taken absolute charge for seven months of practically every business house in Dexter, Iowa, a town of 800. He proposes to prove that city methods will bring prosperity to the merchant in the country town.

Mr. Pilkington has placed the town in the hands of Guy Pogus, who is personally conducting every business of any size from the bank to the lumber yard. At the end of the seven months it is believed the profits will be doubled, that trade will be attracted to Dexter from other points and that the town will be metropolitan.

As all the members of the city council are merchants who have placed their business in Pilkington's hands, the latter is also controlling municipal government and has cleaned streets and adopted many new ordinances.

Mr. Pilkington believes in advertising, with the result that the Dexter paper has more advertisements than the editor ever had before.

LOCAL TRAINS TO BE RUN BY DAYLIGHT

Olympia, July 2.—The state railroad commission has annouced that an order will be entered in the near future requiring the railroads, the Northern Pacific particularly, to make general changes in its passenger train schedules.

Under the present train schedule, the passenger trains are operated almost exclusively for the benefit of through business, although the commission claims the local business is more remunerative to the Northern Pacific. Practically all the day trains run on limited schedule, making few stops. The locals run at night, so that passengers between the smaller stations have to leave and arrive during the night, and to do any business have to lay over about 24 hours, while all day long the limited trains whiz by the stations without stops. The order will require local trains making daylight trips on each division of the road.

Palouse Country Soaked

Garfield, July 6.—Copious showers of rain have been falling over the wheat fields of the Palouse country since early morning and spring sown wheat and oats have been greatly benefitted. This rain will put the finishing touches on the great acreage of wheat throughout the Inland Eupire and the greatest yields ever produced there are assured.

Takahira Called Home

Washington, July 3.—Diplomats here believe that the secret of Ambassador Takahira's sudden departure for Tokyo is a plan for the readjustment of the Japanese tariff. It is thought here thia the is slated for a post in Tokyo and that a successor will be appointed here.

TAFT GIVES WARNING

SAYS REPUBLICANS MUST BE GOOD OR DEMOCRATS WILL GET IN.

Impromptu Reference to Politics at Yale Dinner Brings Hearty Applause—Party Must Pay Attention to Wishes of People or Take a Back Seat.

New Haven, Conn., July 8.—President Taft paused in the course of an after dinner speech to 1,800 graduates of Yale, gathered at the annual alumni dinner, to issue a serious note of warning to congress and to the leaders of the Republican party. The president declared that if the party failed to live up to its promises and to the expectations of the people it would be relegated to the position of a minority opposition.

The president spoke extemporaneously and his utterances as to the Republican duty seemed the result of a sudden impulse rather than of studied preparation.

Mr. Taft made no effort to epxlain his warning. The Yale men caught his meaning and the significance of the remarks coming while the tariff measure is still under consideration, and they stood and cheeered for several minutes. Mr. Taft had been speaking of Secretary of War Dickinson, a Democrat, upon whom Yale had during the day conferred an honorary degree. With the best of good humor he taunted the Democracy as to its present condition and this led him into the declaration as to his own party.

Going to Build Canal

"You went south of the Mason and Dixon line," he said, "to get the secretary of war to give a degree to; it is well that you did, because he is going to build the Panama canal, and other universities will follow where you got in early

"One of the difficulties that has confronted Brother Dickinson out in Chicago, where he has a temporary residence, was a discussion as to what constituted an orthodox Democrat and whether he really ought to be counted as a Democrat if he allowed himself to go into a Republican cabinet. Well, when you come to discuss what is a Democrat these days, you are put into very much the same difficuty that I have before me now in giving certain rules for the construction of the pure food law as to what whisky is. They say theree is 'straight' whisky, and then there is 'rectified' whisky and then there is 'imitation' whisky. Now I speak with a good deal of hesitancy in saying whether my friend Dickinson is a 'straight' Democrat or a 'rectified' Democrat. I would not dare to say in his presence that he was an 'imitation' Democrat.

"In suggesting differences among Democrats I am far from ignoring differences on my own side. I remember in 1904 that Mr. Charles Francis Adams gave what I may call a perfectly good Adams reason for the selection of the Democratic candidate over the Republican candidate. He said that one of the essentials of a successful free government was an able, patriotic and efficient opposition and that as the Democratic party had utterly failed in reaching that ideal he was in favor of putting the Republican party in that place.

"Now, I venture to say that while that may not be the reason that shall move the American people, it is true that if the Republican party does not live up to its promises and what the people epxect of it, it will be relegated to a position like that of his majesty's opposition. And therefore I may say by way of caveat that we have troubles of our own."

PRESIDENT TO START WEST MIDDLE OF SEPTEMAER

Washington, July 5.—As yet president Taft has not been able to make out his itinerary for his Western trip.

He is trying to make as many of his numerous invitations fit into it as circumstances will permit. Aside from the Seattle exposition, one of the most important and pressing invitations is that to attend he Portola festival at San Francisco, and he may be able to do so.

At first it was supposed that he would start on his Western trip near August 1. Now, however, he has decided to stay at Beverly, whither he started Saturday, and get a good rest until the middle of September. At that time he will go West to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, spend a short time in the Inter-Mountain states and the Coast states, probably stopping at San Francisco about October 20, and after that turn to the South, in which section he promised to make several speeches.

This change is due in part to the long time Congress has been in session and the necessity of the president getting some sort of rest and opportunity to recuperate. He has been working at a terrific rate ever since his inauguration and, as has often been remarked, he deserves something more than the time to work. He wants to get a lot of exercise on the golf links.

Mrs. Taft's health is described by her friends as having improved with remarkable rapidity. It is thought the rest at Beverly will put her into fine health and strength for the rush of the social season next winter.

INEFFICIENT DISCIPLINE CAUSES CORRUPT MORALS

Denver, July 3.—Asserting that American homes and American society are responsible for the influences that make the teacher's life a burden and in the end result in the influences that corrupt the morals of children and pave the way for a criminal career, I. C. McNeill, superintendent of schools at Memphis, Tenn., created a mild sensation before the National Council of Education today. The meeting of the council is the only gathering preliminary to the sessions of the National Educational Association, which begins Monday evening. The principal subject before the council during the day was the care of delinquents, tactfully referred to as "exceptional children."

The introductory statement in the discussion of delinquents was made by James H. Van Sickle, superintendent of schools of Baltimore, Md., and he was followed by Mr. McNeill, who gave what he believed to be the incipient cause of delinquency in children. His address in part was as follows:

"Some teaching is so unscientific and consequently so spiritless that it would make any child delinquent. Parents and teachers often make delinquents of children by failing to observe the fundamental things and processes incident to growth and development. Permanent aversion to school is the legitimate result of putting children at work on studies they are not mature enough to comprehend."

The speaker condemned the attempt to put high school branchess into grammar grades or intermediate studies into primary grades, and said that educative agencies must look contiuously to the care of the physical and emotional, as well as to the intellectual side of education.

"Society suffers from elements which are unstable, eratic, shiftless and inefficient. These elements corrupt morals, lead to irrational modes of living and swell the hosts of the helpless and criminal who become the real burdens of society. Unless delinquent classes have the benefits of the kind of education which is adapted to their peculiar needs they grow up among us and recruit the army of people who never fit anywhere. They fill the poorhouses, the prisons, the asylums and the slums. They produce and reproduce their kind and bring about a feeling of social unrest, which is growing in this complex age.

"A failure on the part of the home to exercise even forceful discipline is a moral sin which has put the curse of Cain and the stamp of satan upon many a promising boy or girl.

"When we realize the baneful working of uneven discipline, growing out of weak willed, inefficient parental government, we stand in the presence of a great problem. How can we impress fathers and mothers and teachers with the idea that weak and vacillting government of children blasts their lives and makes them cndidates for the ranks of the ignoble?"

CANAL COMMISSION BUYS MUCH LUMBER

Seattle, July 3.—Within the past ten days contracts for about 8,000,000 feet of lumber have been placed with Washingtou mills by the isthmian canal commission. Approixmately 5,000,000 feet of this lumber will be manufactured by Grays Harbor mills. Tacoma Mills secured the balance of the business.

The commission is still in the market for a large amount of lumber, bids on which will be opened July 12 and July 19. The United States engineer's office during the week placed an order with a Seattle mill for 465,000 feet of lumber for delivery at Manila at the earliest possible moment. This was a mixed order, consisting largely of planks, timbers and boards. Delivery will be made as soon as space can be secured on the boats.

SENATE MAY DISPOSE OF TARIFF BILL THIS WEEK

Washington, July 5.—It is expected that the senate will reach the final vote on the tariff bill by the end of the week. The income tax was regarded as the culminating issue and with that disposed of to the satisfaction of the finance committee, the opposition seems to have lost heart. The proposed amendment is an administration measure. There is no doubt the resolution for a constitutional amendment will be adopted by the senate and it is believed it will be adopted by the house.

Other matters of importance remaining to be considered in connection with the tariff bill are the drawback provisions, the customs court sections, the tobacco tax, which it is generally understood witll be increased, and the authorization of the valuation of a certain class of imports in accordance with American prices.

So far the bill has been considered in committee of the whole, but as soon as its decisiion in this connection is completed it will enter the senate proper, where any schedule may be amended. Comparatively few of the items, however, will be reconsidered, but among those that will receive some attention are the corporation tax, petroleum, sugar, and probably wood pulp and print paper. Senator Aldrich has promised that the finance committee will give especial attention to the corporation tax with the view of modifying it so as to exempt purely mutual benefit concerans, such as building and loan associations.

HOMESTEADERS LOSE IF THEY SELL TOO SOON

Spokane, July 6.—The department of the interior has "put bells" on land speculators by the recent decision that the people filing on land, and commuting within fourteen months and then leaving the land to be sold if possible, may lose the land and their rights. Only true homesteaders need apply.

Even though proof offered shows technical compliance with respect to inhabitance of the land entered for the period ordinarily required in commutation cases, it must further be shown that the entryman went to the land to make it his permanent residence. Residence within the meaning of the homestead law must be established and maintained with the intent to make a permanent home upon the land to the exclusion of a home elsewhere. It can not be acquired by mere occupancy with a view solely to acquiring title by a colorable compliance with the law, but residence must be maintained in good faith with the intent to make it permanent. Such intent must be present with the initiation of every entry, whether the title is to be acquired after the full period of residence prescribed by law or at the expiration of the shorter period under the commutation provisions of the act.

HOUSE NAMES COMMITTEE TO PROBE SUPREME COURT

Olympia, July 3.—Representatives Halsey, Palmer, David, Thayer and Bird form a special committee to investigate the charges made by Herbert N. DeWolfe, a Tacoma attorney, for merly city attorney of West Seattle, against the supreme court, filed in the form of a letter with the legislature several days ago.

DeW olfe asserts in the letter that the entire court, with the exception of Judge Parker, is corrupt and false to its trust, in that in defiance of the law and the constitution it has decided several cases against him. He presented his objection to the governor, who advised him to present his evidence to the legislature. He tells the legislature that the evidence is contained in the record of the cases.

The letter went to the house judiciary committee, which referred it back with the recommendation that a special committee be appointed. Speaker Meigs appointed the members named above.

Japanese Grafters Sentenced

Tokyo, July 5.—Twenty-three Japanese politicians, members either of the present diet or the preceding one, have been given sentences of varying lengths, following their conviction of complicity in the graft revealed in the recent expose of the sugar scandal. Five of the twenty-three were sentenced to ten months imprisonment, four to seven months, five to serve five months and nine to serve three months. Eight of them were members of the lower house of the present diet. Only one of the men brought to trial was acquitted.

Would Purchase Rhodesia

Cape Town, Cape Colony, July 6 — It is reported from Buluwayo, Rhodesia, that Gen. Louis Botha, premier of the Transvaal, at the request of the South African National convention, will offer the Chartered South African company $100,000,000 for the purchase of Rhodesia by United South Africa.

Many Celebrated at Exposition

Seattle, July 6.—With the exception of the opening day, yesterday broke all records for attendance at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. When the last reading was made at midnight, the register showed 61,835 people had passed through the gates.

Elliott Heads Apple Show

Spokane, July 3.—Howard Elliott, president of the Northern Pacific railroad, has accepted the presidency of the National Apple Show, offered to him by the board of trustees. The show will be held in Spokane December 7.

Note and Comment

They are called Young Turks, but they are not all spring chickens.

The meanest man has been found. He has his name woven into his umbrella.

It never fails that after a man has had grape-fruit for breakfast for a while he begins to want an automobile.

A Virginia judge has decided that when a girl breaks an engagement, she must return the ring. Now we hope to see girls less fickle.

Young reader, set a mark for yourself. It's an old story, but try it. It has been said over and over because men have found that it works.

There is hope in the old land yet. Nobody in Washington has gone so far as to frame a bill making it a criminal offense to be a consumer.

According to the reports of the envious, the lion is such a spiritless animal that it is a shame to attack him with anything fiercer than an umbrella.

Queen Wilhelmina is buying American shoes for her baby. Are the Dutch standpatters going to submit silently to this outrage against the Holland wooden shoe makers?

Abdul Hamid says it was fate that overthrew him. The Hon. Schefket Pasha could give him a pointer on the identity of the dethroner that might cause him to place the blame elsewhere.

A so-called "Investor's Exchange" advertised in a circular that "We give advice free, and if no business results, no harm is done." This is a specimen of unintentional frankness, caused by misuse of the English language.

A Pittsburg man who thinks he is a great painter has been examined by alienists, who decided that he is crazy. Other people who think they are great in various lines of endeavor should get under cover before the alienists pounce upon them.

"We just sung 'Lead, Kindly Light,' that's what we sung, over and over," said one of the men rescued from a recent mine disaster in England. He and his companions were confined sixteen hours in darkness before help came. Then the light did lead them out.

A Pottsville, Pa., puddler, who has been bequeathed $35,000 by a New York woman because he saved her daughter's life, announces that he is going to quit puddling. We assume that he puddled, not for the joy of puddling, but merely for the money there was in it. Hence it appears that a man may be mercenary and yet a hero.

The head of the Italian department of the New York police was assassinated lately, while in Palermo, at work on plans for keeping Italian criminals out of the United States. Thus is it again proved that criminals are fools, for in no other way could the importance of the work on which this policeman was engaged have been so well shown.

Wireless telegraphy found a new field of usefulness recently off the coast of California, when an oil steamship signaled that one of the sailors had fallen from the rigging and sustained injuries which had brought on severe hemorrhages. Medical advice as to treatment was wanted. The wireless station on shore communicated with a physician, who prescribed treatment for the sufferer. The vessel remained motionless until the doctor's advice had been received by wireless, and then continued on its way. The only remaining step now is wireless treatment with wireless medicine.

If you are really "a good man," if you can really do good work in any line, you do not need capital. In every trade newspaper you will find advertisements of this character: "The services of a good man more important than capital." A cry goes up from every quarter for really good men, men who can accomplish results, men who will not cause more trouble around a shop than their services are worth. Of course, you will say you are "a good man," but if you can prove it you are all right. There is no end to the possibilities of a young man who has good habits, good health and is able to do something well.

The marvelous lighting of 4,000 incandescent lights at Omaha by current sent through the air from a generating wireless plant five miles distant marks another new era in electricity. The first telegraph line in America was opened between Washington and Baltimore May 24, 1844. To-day the United States has more than 200,000 miles of line, comprising more than 1,250,000 miles of wire, in the operation of which 30,000 persons are employed at an annual salary of more than $14,000,000. The first telephone line went into commission in Boston in 1877. To-day the United States is talking over 3,400,000 telephones, or one for every twenty-three inhabitants. There are 40,000 telephone operators and their annual total wage income is $11,000,000. The wonderful accomplishments of the last half century may read like fiction, but the greater possibilities of the near future actually smack of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp. And yet there are men who will tell you that there are not as many opportunities for boys as there used to be.

An examination of statistics relating to the illiteracy of immigrants which extend over a period of three years shows that there are considerable variations from year to year for the same race. The average for the French was 2.1 in the hundred over 14 years of age in 1907 and 7.9 in 1908. The North Italians dropped from 12 in 1906 to 8.6 in 1908. For Spaniards the figures were 9.8 in 1906, 33.5 in 1907 and 14.8 in 1908; for Greeks, 23.5 in 1906, 30.6 in 1907 and 28.5 in 1908. It is obvious, therefore, that the statistics for any single year might be somewhat misleading, but the divisions by races are pretty clearly marked, nevertheless. A group covering western and northern Europe and including the North Italians and the Finns shows an average of only 4 illiterates in the hundred for 1908. The Scandinavians, Scotch, English, Bohemians, Irish and Welsh are all under 2. The Dutch and Flemish are 3.4; the Finnish, 4; Germans, 7.1; French, 7.9, and North Italians, as we have noted, 8.6. After this group there is another from southern and eastern Europe beginning with the Magyars, among whom, apparently, illiteracy is about as common as it is among the North Italians. Going above 50 in the hundred are the South Italians, 50.7; Ruthenians, 52; Lithuanians, 60.2; Portuguese, 64.8, and Turkish, 71.2. Between 30 and 50 are the people of the Danubian principalities and provinces, the Poles and Russians. Thus a very large part of Europe makes a poorer showing than Japan, the figure for the Japanese being 30.5. The percentage is twice as high for the Portuguese as it is for the Japanese or the Armenians, and is higher than the percentage for the Syrians or for the few Chinese of whom there is a record in the tables. In fact, that record gives 5.6 for the year 1906, but it is to be remembered that the immigration of Chinese coolies has been stopped, and no doubt the check on Japanese immigration has affected quality as well as numbers, for in 1906 the Japanese percentage was 42.7. There are no statistics for the people of South America, but the Mexicans make a very bad showing, in spite of the fact that there has been educational as well as material progress in Mexico of late years. The figure given is 59.4, and is exceeded only by those for the Lithuanians, Portuguese and Turkish.

Recognized Their Old Friend.

The late Sir John Steell, who was sculptor to Queen Victoria, was modeling a bust of Miss Nightingale when an officer of one of the Highland regiments which had suffered so cruelly in the Crimea heard that the bust had just been completed and was in Sir John's studio. Many of the men in his company had passed through the hospital at Scutari, and he obtained permission from the sculptor to bring some of them to see it. Accordingly a squad of men one day marched into the studio and stood in line. They had no idea why they had been mustered in so strange a place. Without a word of warning the bust was uncovered, and then, as by one impulse, the men broke rank and with cries of "Miss Nightingale, Miss Nightingale!" surrounded the model and, with hats off, cheered the figure of their devoted nurse until the roof rang. So spontaneous and hearty and so inspiring was the whole scene that in after days Sir John Steell declared it to be the greatest compliment of his life.

Mr. Yoxall and His Hecklers.

Hecklers do not stand much chance of scoring off J. H. Yoxall, M. P. "Now then, sir, how many quarts of milk ought you to get out of a good cow?" was one of the questions put to him when he first sought to enter Parliament. The candidate had not the faintest idea of the quantity, and sought refuge in wit. "It depends on the distance from the nearest pump," he answered, and the audience laughed and applauded. Another night, when the question was, "What's the difference between a mangel-wurzel and a turnip?" Mr. Yoxall made reply, "I always know a turnip by its resemblance to the shape of the questioner's head."—Tit-Bits.

WAX FROM A MEXICAN WEED.

The Once Despised Candelilla Now Worth $200 or More an Acre.

The discovery by Oscar Pacius of Monterey of a process for extracting wax from the candelilla weed is causing the establishment of a new industry in Mexico and Texas. The candelilla grows abundantly upon many millions of acres of semi-arid land in Northern Mexico and parts of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico. Land owners who have this formerly despised weed growing upon their holdings are now in a fair way to reap a fortune, a Monterey (Mexico) correspondent of the New York Sun says.

When it was discovered a few years ago that a good grade of crude rubber could be manufactured from the guayule shrub experiments began to be made by Mr. Pacius and others with various other kinds of wild vegetation to learn if they possessed commercial properties. Mr. Pacius found that the candelilla contained wax to the amount of 3½ to 4½ per cent. He gathered a supply of the plants and began experiments with a view of arriving at a process of economical extraction of the wax. He perfected this process a few months ago and it is now in practical operation.

The manufacture of this vegetable wax is already on a paying commercial basis. The demand for the product comes at this time chiefly from Germany. The present price of the wax in Mexico is $600 gold a ton. It is said that it takes about thirty tons of the weed to make one ton of the crude wax. The cost of producing a ton of wax is $75 gold.

The land upon which the candelilla weed grows profusely is producing a big revenue in the localities where factories have been established. It is said that where land is well set in the plant it can be made to yield a profit of $200 to $300 gold an acre a year.

The candelilla wax is said to be harder than any other wax. This fact has caused it to be in demand for the manufacture of phonograph records, pharmaceutical articles, varnishes, shoe, leather and wood polishes, insulation in electrical wiring, gums, candles and many other things.

The fact that the guayule shrub and the candelilla plant are now known to contain valuable commercial properties has aroused the interest of the federal authorities of Mexico and it is said that a series of chemical experiments and tests of the various other desert plants which cover great stretches of land in Northern Mexico will be made under the direction of the government, with a view of discovering any commercial properties that they may contain. One plant which grows profusely along the Rio Grande is called gubernador and is being used extensively for the manufacture of a boiler compound. There are also two or three kinds of shrubs and weeds which possess cleansing properties almost identical in effect with washing soap. The roots of these shrubs are used by the native Mexicans to the exclusion of manufactured soap.

SOME MARRIED MEDITATIONS.

By Clarence L. Cullen.

It doesn't hurt any to express occasional surprise over the (maybe) fact that she still remains as a girl at heart.

Don't overlook the fact that the girthier and wheezier she gets the more she likes to have you call her "winsome" once in a while.

Why is it that the woman whose ears resemble sun-dried clams is the one who experiences the keenest hankering for those big pendant earrings?

It is difficult for a man to understand why he should be required to wear toeless hose when his wife puts in about nine hours a day needling Irish crochet lace.

Why is it that dandruffiness, linty-featheriness and general unkempt blowsiness are the unfailing exterior characteristics of the woman who wails about her "shattered ideals?"

The woman whose husband goes out before breakfast and fetches home an armful of lilacs for the breakfast table doesn't have to worry about his curves when he's out of her sight, either.

In the first place, a man couldn't be induced to eat fudge and pickles in alternate mouthfuls. But if he could be, he wouldn't loll around a little later on, wondering what in the wide world ailed his stomach.

Walking Under a Ladder.

A correspondent of the Boston Globe gives this explanation of the old superstition against walking under a ladder: "In former days, when hanging was done after a more primitive and simple fashion than it is to-day, the victim had generally to pass under the ladder which stood against the gallows for the convenience of the execution, and he passed under that ladder with the fair certainty of being immediately hanged. What the unhappy criminal could not avoid the average pedestrian avoids to-day, even at the expense of his polished boots, by turning into the roadway."

WE CAN MAKE IT WHAT WE WILL

Visitors from Clallam County to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition grow more numerous as the days go by, and while all express themselves as greatly pleased with the exposition as a whole, some, however, think the Clallam County exhibit inadequate—not up to their expectations, or in keeping with the amount of money that has been appropriated for the purpose. It is not the purpose of this paper at this time to criticise in this matter, but to call attention to the subject. It is a matter that vitally concerns the people of this county and the people should look into it and endeavor to remedy any lack of a proper exhibit of the products of their county at the exposition.

Over in Whatcom county an effort to stir up a greater interest in the A.-Y.-P. Exposition is being made. The purpose is to see that Whatcom makes a better showing of its resources at the fair than it has done up to the present time. A larger amount of interest should be aroused in Clallam county, and her exhibit at the fair brought up to the full expectations of all her people.

The P. I. in a recent issue, in speaking of this subject editorially says, in part, as follows:

"In Seattle it is hoped that each county will steadily improve its showing in these respects, although many of them are doing well as it is. One foremost purpose of the exposition was to show to visitors what this state has to offer to settlers and to investors in all of its parts. It is realized fully that what will appeal to one may not appeal to another; that thousands prefer to settle in the open lands of Eastern Washington, while others would prefer the climate and the timbered regions of Puget Sound as places of abode. The same is true in the matter of investments, in enterprises for developing and utilizing some of the wealth of natural resources in which this state abounds.

"Every part of the state should be well represented and make the best possible showing. The deep interest of Seattle in this matter comes from a full recognition here that what will benefit any one section, county or community of this state, necessarily and inevitably must benefit them all. It is the hope here, so far as Whatcom is concerned, for example, that this county may make such a showing as to attract to its borders hundreds of new people."

WILL TEST THE LAW

A meeting of the saloon men with the sheriff and prosecuting attorney was had Thursday at office of the latter upon request of the former in an endeavor to get a uniform observance of the new law regulating the uses of curtains and other devices for the obstruction of saloon interiors. The opinion of the attorney general as to the interpretation of this law was read by the sheriff, also several letters as to the construction placed upon it in other places, and the saloon men were asked to take due cognizance of the law and to clear their fronts accordingly. The sentiment on the part of most of those present seemed to be to comply with any requirement of the sheriff, and the request was made by Mr. Grubb for another day in which to get together and consider what could be done. A meeting of the saloon men was held, we are informed, in the evening and by a vote of 4 to 4 the request of the sheriff was denied, that is 4 voted to comply and 4 to test the law. Of these latter four, two have since complied with the sheriff's demands, leaving but two standing out against the request. These are Messrs. Day and Grubb. Mr. Day has boarded up his windows facing Laurel and Front streets to a height of 6 1-2 feet, leaving a space in the door to see in and Mr. Grubb leaves the screen in front of his door, and other obstructions. The sheriff holds that under the law no obstruction to any part of the front is permissible, and cites the observance in the state of Oregon, where the law has been in operation for some years past, as an example.

Map folders of the townsite of Port Angeles, showing streets and wharves, blocks and lots, schools, public buildings, U. S. reserves, ten acre blocks, cemetery and city park, spit and harbor, and on the reverse, a map of western Washington, showing present and surveyed railway lines, together with a condensed summary of the resources of Clallam county, its climate and present development, may be had at any drug store or news stand in the city. Price ten cents each. Include one in your letter to that Eastern friend that he may have an idea of the advantages of the country in which you live.

From the Port Townsend Call we learn that Judge Still for the first time appeared in a session of the superior court in that city Tuesday in the official silken gown prescribed by the last session of the legislature. The judge was assisted in donning it for the first time by Judge A. R. Coleman, his opponent in the last judicial primary.

SEQUIM.

After the fine showers on the morning of the 5th, it was a very good day for the celebration which was enjoyed by a very large crowd. Everything was done to make things lively for the visitors and there were a good many of them. The floats were fine and Mr. McKissick was kept busy taking pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Knapman appeared to be happy to have their three married daughters with them to help celebrate.

Mrs. Huff and son Harold are visiting with their many friends for a few days; Mrs. Huff is looking fine.

A good many Sequim people went to Dungeness last Saturday to help them celebrate and they all report they had a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. D. McInnes of Dungeness, Mr. and Mrs. McInnes of Port Townsend and Mrs. Charles Tennent of Seattle were here the 5th.

REV. E. M. ROGERS MARRIED

We have pleasure this week in chronicling the happy event by which one of Angeles' best citizens, Rev. Edgar M. Rogers, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, ceases to remain in single blessedness and places his name on the long roll of Benedicts. Rev. Rogers' friends have been in possession of the secret for a long time that he had become irrevocably entangled in the enamoring filiaments which Cupid binds upon the happy victim; nevertheless they were unprepared for the cessation of the feeble efforts he has maintained to preserve himself in the state of single blessedness and were surprised when he so suddenly succumbed to his happy fate and walked unflinchingly to hymen's flowery altar. The feat was accomplished Thursday at Tacoma, to which city the bridal party quietly stole away on the early boat Tuesday morning, in presence of the bride's parents and a few friends, when the Right Reverend Bishop Keator of this diocese pronounced the words which made Rev. Edgar M. Rogers and Miss Mary Luppen, man and wife.

No event has occured for many moons that will meet with the approval of all our citizens as the above announcement.

The bride is a lovely woman and during her short residence here has made many friends, she being a lady of rare accomplishments accompanied by a charming gracefulness of manner that fascinates all with whom she comes in contact. The love and esteem with which she is regarded "show her wise and good as she is fair,"— just the helpmate for a minister of the Gospel. Rev. Rogers is a bright young man, of more than ordinary ability, well worthy of the noble woman he has won. As a "Teacher of the Truth" he ranks among the first in the state. A brilliant future lies before him.

Rev. and Mrs. Rogers will immediately go to housekeeping in the Hirsch residence, corner Lincoln and Sixth streets.

The Knights of Pythias excursion to Seattle Sunday to the Grand Lodge session was well patronized, the required 100 necessary to get the excursion rate being fully subscribed. The delegates from the local lodge returned Wednesday and report a most successful session.

About 300 came down on the excursion from Seattle on the Whatcom Sunday, remaining some 2½ hours. Among the Angelesites and former residents aboard were: George H. Gale, Dr. T. J. Appleton, Sr., M. E. Savage, Dick Eacrett, Jr., Mr and Mrs. Duncan McDonnell, Ed. Dilling, Mrs. Monty Gay (formerly Mel Armbrust), Ben Goldwater, Dr. Cooke, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. John Morrisey, Mrs. G. V. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Gov. Shields, Rep. E. E. Fisher.

Wednesday evening, June 30th, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Burgeman were tendered a farewell by the members of the Mountain View Rebekah Lodge and a few invited guests. Cards and dancing were enjoyed and dainty refreshments served. Mrs. Burgeman was presented with a set of silver knives and forks as a token of remembrance from members of the lodge. They left on Sunday's boat for Seattle to spend a few days at the fair after which they go to Oklahoma, their old home.

THE DANGER OF COEDUCATION.

By William Lee Howard, M. D.

We have reached that point in human knowledge, or, in other words, we are getting back to common sense, where even the inexperienced must acknowledge that a change is needed in our educational method of mixing the adolescents of both sexes in the high schools. We are now fully awake to the great mental and psychologic variations at this age due to the differentiation of the sexes. The past hypocritical denials of the great psychologic and physiologic changes and moods which are constantly surging in the adolescents have done much harm. This injury to growing boys and girls in trying to educate them together is well known to physicians and psychologists. Many doctors have tried to carefully explain these important matters to parents and teachers, but so wrongly impressed have been these parents and teachers of the past that many physicians have given up in disgust, and some of them have lost patients by attempting to tell the truth.

This fog which has enveloped parents and teachers must be blown away and the true educational course of our daughters and sons clearly shown. Ideas are changing; truths are forcing themselves to the surface, and in the younger generation of parents and teachers I find eagerness to have the doctors tell of the false method this country has followed in mixing the adolescents in classes at the public high schools. Older and wiser countries know better.—The Housekeeper.

THE MIGRATION INTO CANADA.

By Agnes C. Laut.

If half a million American settlers should suddenly pull up roots and migrate in a body to some foreign land the event would be heralded as one of the most epic movements of the century. Yet this is virtually what happened, with little notice and less comment, in the last six years.

In less than six years 388,000 American farmers have pulled up stakes in their native States and moved from Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Nebraska, Arkansas and Oregon across the invisible line of the international boundary to free homesteads in the Canadian Northwest. Moreover, 100,000 Americans have gone North as investors, speculators, miners, lumbermen.

A railroad traffic manager and a customs officer both told me the same thing; very few of the American homesteaders came in with less than $1,000 cash; many came in with capital ranging from $3,000 to $10,000. The capital brought in by the investing classes varies from the $10,000,000 placed by the Morgan banking house in the Canadian Northern Railway to the $200,000 and $300,000 capital placed in actual cash by the land and lumber and fish companies.

Average the American newcomer's capital at $2,000, and the American invasion of Canada in the last six years represents in hard cash an investment of a billion dollars. From what I saw in a leisurely four months' tour of Canada—first by canoe, 1,500 miles among the settlers of the frontier beyond the railroad, then by rail twice across the continent—I have no hesitation in saying that a billion-dollar average is too small by half.—The Century.

WEATHER TRUST LATEST CHARGE.

By Emerson Hough.

Our weather bureau is a trust. One by one, it has absorbed the State services and the hydrographic office reports, until to-day it is one of the most beautifully bureaucratic bureaus known in this land of the free. It is a trust; but, contrary to the practice of our most benevolent trusts, it does not hand us out a better article for less money. It hands us out the same article for more money. If we could prove even this much, we should have a story worth the writing; and we can prove not only this, but very much more

By way of indictment of our Delphic oracle at Washington, we may make the following specific and definite charges:

1. That it is unduly expensive.
2. That it does not progress.
3. That it is excessively explanatory and excessively self-defensive.
4. That its service is general and not specific, whereas specific service is the only sort which can possibly be of value to the average individual man.
5. That it is evasive and intentionally ambiguous
6. That it offers no well-founded hope of improvement in local forecasting.

As to the expense of this service, we paid last year more than $1,600,000 for it; more than any other nation in the world has ever thought of expending. Yet our bureau does not serve a greater population nor a wider range of interests and industries than are served in other civilized countries. Our institution is like other things American: It is bigger and costs more than anything of its kind in the world; also, like other things American, it is cursed with politics.

Most things American, however, are progressive. The serious and humiliating truth is that our weather bureau does not progress. Twenty years of costly experiment by the weather bureau have failed to develop one decided improvement in weather prediction. Yet in thirty-eight years the cost of the service has risen from $15,000 to $1,662,260 a year.—Everybody's Magazine.

AFTER THE SINGER IS DEAD.

Bright is the ring of words
When the right man rings them.
Fair is the fall of songs
When the singer sings them.
Still they are caroled and said—
On wings they are carried—
After the singer is dead
And the maker buried.

Low as the singer lies
In the field of heather,
Songs of his fashion bring
The swains together.
And when the west is red
With the sunset embers,
The lover lingers and sings,
And the maid remembers.
—Robert Louis Stevenson.

It Was to Be

Rosette laughed softly. "It's of no use, Aunt Louise. I'm going on the next boat. Jim has hoisted the flag and it will be here in ten minutes."

"Do be careful about missing the train," cautioned Mrs. Oxley. "I shall worry if you are out late; remember your fallings."

The young woman pouted. "I never can go anywhere without a peck of advice, just as though I was an infant. You haven't said what you wanted, Aunt Louise."

"What's the use," retorted Mrs. Pierce; "it's no more nor less than a can of that potted chicken at Lovell's. What do you say to that, young lady?"

"Hm-hm!" murmured Rosette faintly. "I'll think about it, auntie. Good-bye."

As the boat splashed around the point Rosette looked dismally at the little red station planted upon the bare, sandy knoll like a danger signal. "It will be perfectly horrid in the city—hot and stupid—but Aunt Louise must be taught a lesson. I won't have her making any matches for me. Cassius Lanford, indeed! Well, I'll just make the best of it. I can run up to Clara's after I finish my errands. My, but there's a lot of them!" Rosette scanned the pages of her memoranda critically. "Might as well see Mme. Du Shane about that suit while I'm here. I'll jot that down, too."

It lacked an hour of luncheon time when Rosette sank exhausted on the nearest seat in madame's cool parlors. "How will I ever get through this afternoon?" she inwardly groaned. "I've a great mind to take the next train back, but then I'd be sure to see that—that creature! And if I should stop at any of the resorts the folks would find it out. No, I'll stay until the 5:10 if I—melt."

Rosette looked out of the window listlessly. Across the way two huge gray lions sunned themselves on either side of a wide-pillared portico. "There." Rosette started with renewed energy. "I'll go over to the gallery right after lunch and look at those etchings Miss Carew was speaking of yesterday."

A tall, finely-built young fellow was bending interestedly over a collection. "He must be an artist," thought Rosette, covertly eyeing the strong, intellectual face. "No, he's too much of an athlete," she decided after further observation. "What a splendid physique—and such eyes! My, one would know he was the right sort just to look at him."

Suddenly the stranger looked at his watch and hurried away. Rosette's interest began to wane; she wandered through the rooms absent-mindedly. When a clock struck 5 she started in astonishment; the afternoon had actually slipped away without her realizing it.

A dull, rayless sky hung gloomily above the waters of the lake as a single passenger alighted at the little red station. The car lights feebly revealed the well-worn trail which zigzagged down the road and across a plot of turf, to where, in a narrow inlet, a small steamer was darkly outlined against a hedge of willows. Two lanterns at the sides glared like the fierce eyes of a watchful Cerberus.

Rosette peered beneath the awning. "Capt. Duggauld!"

"Ay, ay," responded a bluff, deep-chested voice from the depths of the shadows, and the owner of the Water Sprite appeared—a thick-set personage with grizzled hair and beard and the rolling gait of a sailor.

"Will you take me across, captain?" Rosette put the question anxiously.

"Couldn't think of it, ma'am—jest one passenger. I'm lookin' for a ticklish night, but ye can't tell. Ef it was ol' Huron, now, I'd know just what to depend on; ef the signs wuz fer foul, w'y foul it 'ud be, but this 'ere's the most spiteful, capreeshus teacupful!"

"But I must get over some way!" Rosette started as though she had serious intentions of wading the distance.

"Ef it ain't that Oxley girl! W'y, I didn't know ye! An' your ma's worryin' most likely. Well, now, seein' it's you mebbe I might make it. There's a bowl of bread an' milk waitin' for me at the tavern, but I recokn it'll be there when I get back. All aboard, lively, now!" And Capt. Duggauld with more gallantry than grace briskly whirled his passenger into the boat. Rosette tossed her hat on the seat and curled down in a little heap at the boat edge, her dimpled chin resting upon the palm of one small hand.

A grinding shock sent Rosette from her seat to the bottom of the boat with a heavy jar. There were muttered exclamations from Capt. Duggauld as, suddenly arrested in its course, the boat with one brief fluttering like a disabled bird gave a sidewise lurch and settled helplessly upon some obstruction underneath — the evident cause of the catastrophe.

"Quick upon the seat!" shouted the captain.

"Ef that ain't grit!" Capt. Duggauld was lost in admiration at Rosette's composure. "W'y most gels would a' fainted plumb dead or gone into hysterics. Land! I wish I could get her out o' this fix some way. It don't matter so much about this ol' critter," and the captain carefully scrutinized the horizon.

"Halloo! Halloo!" called a strong voice when within speaking distance. "What's the trouble?"

"Git her 'round t'other side," bawled the captain. "We're stuck on this confounded ol' stump."

Nearly drenched, Rosette was assisted into the rescuing boat and in a maze found herself facing her athlete of the afternoon.

"I had just reached the hotel when I heard your signal," he explained, his eyes fixed admiringly on Rosette.

"W'y, if it ain't Mr. Lanford!" exclaimed the old man with enthusiasm. "We'd probably bin playing with the fishes 'bout this time ef ye hadn't steered up jest as ye did. Look there!" A flapping awning and a smokestack was all that was left of the once vigorous Water Sprite.

* * * * *

Rosette pushed back the muslin draperies of her window and bolstered her curly head upon a round, white arm. Through a breach in the darkness above a stream of light trailed across the lake and turned to silver the tossing whitecaps in its path. For one instant its rays fell upon a launch which shot across the shining track and then was lost in the darkness beyond.

"It was to be," murmured Rosette with conviction, as she watched a vagrant moonbeam that rested for one brief moment upon the snowy billow, and recalled Cassius Lanford's look as he bade her good-night. "Dear Aunt Louise"—the sound of steps below brought a sudden recollection—"she shall have that potted chicken to-morrow if I have to go after it myself."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

BARGAINS OF LIFE.

So Long as We Live We Will Never Stop Trading.

Four children are huddled in a tiny room in a tenement. An aged woman painfully climbs the stairs and enters. Her tired face lights with a smile as she places a bundle of groceries on a table. She has toiled all night at cleaning the floors of an office building. "Grandma," the children call her. Her days of toil had, seemingly, ended years before. She settled down, then, to end her life in rest and peace. But her son died; then her daughter-in-law died. And to keep the children together she got work. We thoughtlessly call this a sacrifice. We think it is giving "something for nothing." Oh, no, the old lady is smiling. She made a bargain. She toiled to win the deep peace that is shown by her smile.

Here is a musty old man, a professor, sunk in his books. What a lot he has missed in life, some of us say. Missed nothing! He hasn't sacrificed a thing. On the contrary he got just what he most wanted—knowledge and scholarly contemplation. He might have had fame, wealth, a beautiful home. But he traded them all off for what he wanted most.

See the millionaire. Worry besets him; he does not sleep well; he distrusts every man. He traded peace and quiet and contentment for millions. Money was what he wanted.

And this is life—bargains. We barter this for that; trade what we want less for what we want more. Look at yourself at any moment in your life—now, for instance. Everything you have got by this bartering; everything you have not, you have traded away. "I'm a poor man," pernaps you say. Yes, but you're something more than that. Maybe you're lazy; maybe you drink; maybe you hate to save; maybe self-control is unpleasant to you; maybe you wanted a little home and children; maybe you saw that you could buy happiness for yourself by giving your money to others—there are 10,000 maybes. But you may be sure that you got what you wanted. You made your bargain. You didn't sacrifice anything.

Yon can see, then, when the big thing, the right thing, in this world is wanting, ideals should be set high. You will get what you really want. You can't help it. You're paying out something all the time. Be sure you will be getting something back. You can't stop trading in this market for life. Don't be cheated. Choose and pay.

Legal Information

Although the holder of a patent makes no use of it because of the expense in making necessary changes in machinery, the United States Supreme Court in Continental Paper Bag Co. v. Eastern Paper Bag Co., 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 748, holds the nonuser not unreasonable where there is no proof that the cost of the product was increased or the output diminished.

The United States Supreme Court in construing that section of the Constitution of the United States which provides for extradition of persons accused of "treason, felony, or other crime," held in Pierce v. Creecy, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 714, that in extradition proceedings it was only necessary to show that a crime had been committed, and that the fact that it appeared on the face of the indictment that prosecution was barred by limitation was not a proper question for consideration.

The opinion of Judge Farrington of the United States Circuit Court for the district of Nevada in Goldfield Consol. Mines Co. v. Goldfield Miners' Union, 159 Federal Reporter, 500, while recognizing the right of workmen to discontinue their services at any time, holds that they have no right to intimidate, either by threats or acts, other persons desiring to work. The miners' union, after knowing that pickets were doing unlawful acts, continued to co-operate with them. The court said that this was sufficient to show complicity with them.

In Delmar Jockey Club v. Missouri, 28 Supreme Court Reporter, 732, the jurisdiction of the United States Supreme Court is invoked to set aside the decision of the Missouri Supreme Court revoking the franchise of plaintiff in error. In answer to an information in quo warranto the club entered a general denial followed by certain allegations which the State court held to constitute a plea in confession and avoidance destroying the effect of the general denial and insufficient as a defense. Judgment of ouster was granted on motion for judgment on the pleadings. The United States Supreme Court held the contention frivolous that the decision of the State court violated the Federal Constitution as finding defendant guilty of violation of its franchise without trial and dismissed the writ of error.

BERNHARDT DEFEATS OLD AGE.

"Heel of Youth" Latest Contrivance for Fooling Father Time.

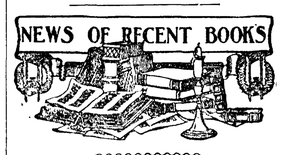
Sarah Bernhardt is said to be responsible for the introduction into this city of the new "heel of youth," which has had a remarkable effect upon the gait of almost every old habitue of the Grand boulevards, according to a Paris dispatch. Indeed, the new invention has had much the same effect claimed for the far-famed but elusive "fountain of eternal youth," and the fortunate wearers, despite their advanced years, appear in all the vigor, apparently, of youth.

Just as the famous actress brought into existence the long, loose mousquetaire glove to conceal the thinness of her arm in the days when her form was decidedly attenuated, so has she in her old age again come to the rescue to cover up the annoying traces that years have brought into her walk.

The boot or shoe when on the foot shows no evidence of an interior mechanism, so closely have all signs of a tampered heel been hidden. A hollow is first cut in the center of the heel and a tiny spiral wire spring is inserted. A movable bottom layer is capped over it and so slight is the movement that it is almost imperceptible to the eye, yet the mere quiver of the elastic force is enough to produce the youthful step.

Bernhard's revival in this city this winter of "L'Aiglon," in which she has again aroused the enthusiasm of nightly crowded houses by her masterful impersonation of the boy prince, has created more than the usual talk about her vivid portrayal of the character and the wonderful illusion of youth that is conveyed. The voice, at times, becomes slightly harsh, and now and again a thin, tinny quality creeps in, displacing those famed "notes of gold," the unavoidable indication of the march of years, a defect she cannot conquer. But her walk! Skill and ingenuity have come to her assistance.

NEWS OF RECENT BOOKS



"The deeper I drink of the cup of life the sweeter it grows—the sugar all at the bottom," is the sentiment expressed by Julia Ward Howe on her ninetieth birthday.

William Allen White, the Kansas journalist, who wrote "What's the Matter With Kansas?" has a new novel ready for publication. "A Certain Rich Man" is the title of the new book.

A new novel by Amelia E. Barr, called "The Hands of Compulsion," is a story of the Isle of Arran, written from Mrs. Barr's personal knowledge of the Scottish people and their ways, which was the secret of the popularity of her "Jan Vedder," "A Border Shepherdess," etc.

One of the chief regrets of Marion Crawford during his last illness was that he might not be able to complete his great historical work dealing with Italy in mediaeval times. The author had spent much time in studying old documents in preparation for this book—documents in a private library to which he could not gain access until within the last few years.

"Pray tell Dickens from me to remember that he is still but a man, and that however elated by this American deification, he must return to his anthropic state, and that he will find us—you and me—good friends but bad idolators." Thus wrote Sydney Smith in an unprinted letter which has just come to the surface. It was written after Dickens' first visit to the United States.

The Empress Eugenie, it is stated by the London Nation, has spent much time and pains upon her memoirs, but it is thought to be doubtful whether the book will see the light during the present generation. Now a fragile and delicate old woman, the Empress evokes sympathy from all who see her. "Her face," says one Englishman, "makes me think of Rudyard Kipling's story, "The Gate of a Hundred Sorrows."

"The New Word" of Allen Upward's book which bears that title is idealism. The author is a London barrister and his book was brought out anonymously in Geneva. It was republished later in London, this time with the author's name on the title page, and was pronounced worthy of the Nobel prize. The author pays a special tribute to Nobel in his introduction. "Nobel himself," he says, "was branded as a dreamer. There were those ready to insinuate that he had not been in his right mind. Nobel wished to give £8,000 a year among the writers of new texts. That was his dream. His madness lay there. Humanity is not mad to spend one hundred millions a year on phonographs. Nobel was made to offer those few thousands for a living voice."

The First Scapegoat.

The word "scapegoat" originated in an ancient Hebrew custom practiced at the feast of the Passover. Placing a young goat upon the altar, the priests would pray over it, asking that all the sins of the people be visited upon the goat. Then, after each member of the tribe had transferred his guilt to the victim by laying on his hands, the animal was turned loose in the forests to be devoured by wild beasts.

Corned Beef Hash.

This is perhaps the most usual and at the same time one of the most savory kinds of hash. To make it, allow one part of cold boiled potato cut into small cubes to two parts of cold corned beef chopped fine; mix well and season to taste with salt and pepper. Put a large tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan; when melted turn the meat and potato mixture into it and add enough boiling water to moisten thoroughly. Cover closely and set on a hot part of the range for five minutes, being careful not to let it scorch. When a crust is formed on the bottom, turn and brown the upper side, then transfer to a hot plate and send to the table at once.

A CURE FOR FITS

The Treatment Is to Accomplish What Science Has Been Struggling to Attain for Centuries

The intense interest that has been manifested throughout the country by the wonderful cures that are being accomplished daily by epileptic, still continues. It is really surprising the vast number of people who have already been cured of this and nervousness. In order that everybody may have a chance to test the medicine, large trial bottles, valuable literature, History of Epilepsy and testimonials, will be sent by mail absolutely free to all who write to the Dr. May Laboratory, 548 Pearl Street, New York City.

Short Suggestions.

Use adhesive plaster to fasten labels to cans or bottles. It is dangerous to leave either without being plainly labeled.

Wring a cloth from vinegar and wrap it several thicknesses around cheese to keep it from molding or drying.

The knife used for peeling a pineapple should never be used for slicing it, as the rind contains an acid that is apt to cause a swollen mouth and sore lips.

Wipe off screens with a duster each morning and beat with a soft brush. This beating should be done lightly or the wire may be bulged.

To prevent tinware rusting rub over with fresh lard and put in a hot oven for a few minutes before using. If treated in this manner it will never rust.

Sandwiches prepared in advance of the serving time can be kept as fresh as when first spread by wrapping them in a napkin wrung out of hot water and then placing in a cool place.

Add half a teacupful of salt to two quarts of water, or in that proportion, to the lower compartment of a double boiler; less time will be required to cook the contents of the lower one.

Skipping Rope May Kill Her.

While trying to "pepper" at skipping rope longer than any of the other girls, little Bertha Snow, 10 years old, of Sioux Falls, burst an intestine. She lay unconscious for four days and may die.

Diamidostilbenddisulfoacid is to be put on the free list. Evidently it is not used by the consumer.

Stewing Fruits.

According to a clever chemist the housekeeper who sweetens some kinds of sour fruit while stewing them wastes her sugar and runs a risk of altering the color of the fruit, owing to the chemical effects of the acid. Rhubarb is one of the fruits which should not be sweetened until after cooking, and sour berries are also better if prepared in the same way. Add the sugar to taste while the compote is still hot, but do not return to the stove afterward.

Some Birds' Nests.

The nest of the goldfinch is a cradle lined with thistle down.

The robin builds a mud nest that bakes hard in the sun. It is sometimes called an adobe nest. An abode hut is made of clay and dried in the sun.

The twigs that make this half-circle-shaped nest clinging to the bricks are stuck together with a glue from the chimney swift's mouth.

The bluebird likes to have its nest in old woodpecker holes in trees and posts.

The house wrens choose the funniest places for their nests of all the birds. They will use the pocket of an old coat, tin cans, glass jars and sometimes old shoes.

Eave swallows make their nests under the eaves. They make them of little balls of mud that they roll together with their bills. They hang mouth down.

The great crested flycatcher makes its nest in trees, and uses cast-off snake skins in building it.

They do this so that their enemies will think there are real snakes there, and will not trouble the nests.

The cowbird is a naughty bird and steals the nest of other birds to lay her eggs in, so that she will not have to take care of them.

The other birds do not like to have the cowbird's eggs in their nest, and they sometimes build another nest over it for their own eggs. This makes a two-story bird's nest.

The humming bird has the smallest nest of any bird. It is about the size of a thimble. It is built of plant down and colored with delicate green moss.

The nest of the Baltimore oriole is the shape of the long pocket, fastened to drooping tree branches. They swing with every wind, but they are strong enough to hold all the little oriole babies.

The catbird's nest is a thick mass of twigs, grasses and dead leaves, and is lined with rootlets.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Cosy Time.

I love the stories and the tales
That Grandma tells at night,
With all of us around her knee,
Before they make a light.

She tells about the giant men,
And babies in the wood,
And Cinderella and the wolf,
And poor Red Riding Hood.

How we were never here at all
Until Columbus came;
And then some folks abused him so;
I think it was a shame.

She tells about the great big bears,
I just love bears, don't you?
And queer old witches and their cats
And little fairies, too.

I love the stories Grandma tells,
In verse or prose or rhyme,
But love those stories much the most
'Bout "once upon a time."

The Mastiff and the Wolf.

(Translated from the French of Perrin.)

A wolf, thin, and nearly dead from hunger, met, near a wood, a big, fat, well fed mastiff.

"How well you look!" said the wolf. "I have never seen, I assure you, a creature so finely built. But how is it, I pray, that you manage to live so much better than I? I can say, without vanity, that I risk myself fifty times oftener than you; and nevertheless, I am nearly dead of hunger."

"It is in your power," answered the dog, "to live like me. Just do as I do."

"How is that?"

"Just guard the house at night."

"With all my heart! I will leave the woods, where I am leading a hard, miserable life, always exposed to the severity of the weather, and often finding nothing to eat."

"Very well. Follow me."

On the way the wolf noticed that there was a hairless circle around the dog's neck.

"What do I see? What's the matter with your neck?"

"Oh, that is nothing."

"Tell me. I beg of you!"

"Perhaps it comes from the collar with which I am fastened—— Come! go on! What's the matter?"

"No," answered the wolf. "Keep all your comfort yourself. I prefer liberty to take a walk when and where I please, rather than the good cheer you enjoy and the collar you are tied with."

Be content with your lot; and never seek to sacrifice a greater good to a less.

BOUND TO SEE BABY BROTHER.

California Lad Saves Pennies to Carry Him to Tennessee.

For two years a light-haired, blue-eyed boy waited and longed in California to see that wonder of wonders, a "new" baby brother, in a faraway home in Tennessee. His mother and father had separated three months before the baby arrived and many were the times that Bryan Alexander wondered just what that little brother looked like, how often it cried and if it fulfilled the ideals he had set up for it. He longed to see his mother and he longed to see the baby, but Redlands, Cal., is a long way from Martin, Tenn. He had no money and the father would furnish neither the money nor the consent that would allow the child to travel.

Bryan was patient. He waited and hoped and with this spring came the first hope that his boyish ambition would be fulfilled. He was given a job as a messenger boy, the nickels and the dimes were saved carefully, almost miserly. At last came the time when there was $28.20 in the treasury, and so Bryan took the only suit he could get—his blue overalls—bought a half-fare ticket to Tennessee and started on his runaway journey across half a continent.

Bryan arrived in Kansas City a few days ago, the New York Herald says, and while he waited for a train that was to take him to St. Louis he told of his trip and of the things that had happened on the journey.

"When I got to Salt Lake City I had a dollar left and was wondering how I was going to get enough to eat for the rest of the way, when a policeman arrested me," the boy said. "He had a telegram from papa, who said I was running away. They put me in jail for three days until they could hear from mamma. She telegraphed:

"'Let him come; the boy is all right.'

"The Mormons out in Utah treated me nicely. They gave me money to buy enough to eat. One man, named Gardiner, gave me a suit of clothes. This coat is what he gave me. I am wearing my overalls so as to save my pants until I see mamma. My papa was not bad to me. Once in a while he was cross, but I left him because I wanted my mamma and the baby."

The boy carried letters of recommendations from Ephraim G. Gowanus, judge of the Salt Lake City Juvenile Court, and from S. M. Barlow, chief of police. The letters stated that the boy had been examined by them and that they believed he was right in going to his mother.

The boy said his father's name is J. I. Alexander. He is an orange grader in Redlands. His mother is Mrs. Maggie Alexander of Martin, Tenn. She was picking strawberries for a living the last time Bryan heard from her.

MARK TWAIN YEARS AGO.

Being Some Commentary on the Noted Humorist's Laziness.

W. Landsittel is the grizzled foreman of the Lyons Republican, which is the republican organ of Wayne county, New York.

"I've been in this business for fifty years now," he said to a New York Times reporter last week, as he stroked his gray mustache, "and I have seen some lazy people in my time. Yes, sir, while the newspaper business is exacting and telling on the nerves, it does harbor some really lazy folks from time to time."

"Whom do you consider the champion lazy man of the newspaper game?" he was asked.

"That is so easy to answer," was his reply, with a wan smile. "Almost any of the real old-timers in this business would give you the name right off the bat. Why, Mark Twain holds the belt."

The Republican's foreman reflected.

"I was a printer's devil on the Buffalo Express forty years ago," he said, "and one of my duties was to sweep the room where reporters and editors worked. Every day during the time that Mark Twain was a partner in the publication of the Express I was bribed by him in the cause of rest and ease. I would sweep every corner of that room, and when I came to Mark's desk, on which his feet reposed, he would look over and ask me to go away. 'I don't want my part of the office cleaned up,' he would say. 'Please don't make me move. I'm so comfortable.' Then he would give me a nickel to get away from him and leave him to his own corner without any of the debris of the business cleared away. He would rather die there in the dust and truck than uncross his legs or tilt his chair back so that I could sweep up."

Brother Landstittel stopped the press long enough to find out what was chipping the corners of the pages as they were swept downward from the big rollers.

"Yes, sir," he ruminated, "he was certainly lazy. One day he gave me a nickel to dot an 'i' in his copy for him. He did certainly enjoy life, that man did."

To Render Suet.

Many housekeepers are deterred from the economical practice of rendering the suet which the butcher gives with meat on account of the disagreeable odor which is likely to result through the house. Yet beef suet is the best of animal fats for frying, and cannot be obtained in any other way than by rendering it at home. To melt it without smell, keep for the purpose a small pot with a tightly fitting cover, and reduce the suet over a simmering burner, or a flame turned as low as possible. Melted slowly in this way in a covered pan no odor will result

Let a sensitive child enter his teens and then have his parents break up their home, and the wrong which is done him is more cruel, the ruin which is wrought in his life is more devastating than almost anything else which could come to him. Divorce is a Messina cataclysm, shaking his earth and rending his sky. It shatters the realities of his life, breaks up his scheme of things, tears his ideals into tatters and renders pitiful and abject one or both of the persons who had been to him the symbols of more than earthly benevolence and goodness.

Glass Stoppers That Stick.

To remove an obstinate glass stopper which not only resists force, but the usually prescribed hot cloths and everything else which ingenuity could devise, use a drop of sweet oil. Put it on the rim of the bottle, where it will settle around the stopper. In ten minutes the top lifts out.

THE FOURTH IN ANGELES

The Fourth, celebrated in Angeles on Saturday, the 3rd, passed off very quietly. As usual, Front street was brilliantly decorated with streamers and with the National and British emblems. Some of the private decorations were quite elaborate. A band from Victoria enlivened the occasion with patriotic airs, and the ball game and other sports were pulled off as announced. Something like 500 Angelites, taking advantage of the low excursion rates, spent the day in Victoria and about an equal number of our English cousins crossed the strait and assisted us in celebrating the anniversary of the big drubbing King George received from your Uncle Samuel way back in the early days when Johnny Bull tried to run affaire in America.

Next year, when the A.-Y.-P. Exposition is but a memory, and this section is being traversed by two or more transcontinental railroads, Angeles will celebrate the Fourth in due and becoming style.

A British Columbia paper tells of a new way to clear land, which is known as the charcoal pit system. Instead of running a fire all through the land after logging, you cut the branches and tops into lengths of about 4 feet, and dig away the earth from around a stump and pile the larger stuff around it until it is about 18 inches to 2 feet thick; then put on finer, and last of all small branches, ferns or tall grass and cover with earth until the pile is entirely covered with earth to the depth of about 8 inches, leaving a small hole on side where wind is blowing—then light. The only attention the fire needs is to keep all the holes closed up, and in a short time the stump is entirely charred out. This is the most economical way of taking stumps out and one man can keep 20 to 30 stumps going all the time.

For sale, organ and other furniture, apply to W. A. Willson or at this office.
