Building Permits In City Hit All-Time High of $1,221,620

Building permits granted by the city commission in 1947 totaled $1,221,620, an all-time high for Port Angeles. It topped the 1946 total of $836,260 by more than $385,000.

Total permits issued were 405 or 115 for residences and 335 for remodeling projects, commercial and other buildings. Residence permits totaled $544,300 and other buildings $677,320.

Permit totals were boosted over the $1,000,000 mark in December by two large projects, the Jefferson school addition and the new telephone exchange building at Fourth and Laurel. Contractor S. S. Mullen was issued a permit for $107,000 for the school addition and Sound Construction Company took out a $150,000 permit for the new telephone building.

Engineer Enroute To Quillayute To Dismantle Range

E. L. Parker, CAA radio engineer, arrived in Port Angeles this morning enroute to Quillayute to start dismantling the radio range there. As soon as the $35,000 worth of equipment acquired recently by the county from the war assets administration is taken down, it will be brought to Port Angeles for installation at the airport here.

Upon recommendation of CAA radio engineer Howard Pyle, who visited the range site Wednesday, the county commissioners agreed yesterday to pay Parker $125 to do the dismantling job.

Pyle previously stressed the importance of having an expert supervise the dismantling job. He said many parts, costing as much as $600 each, could be easily scratched or bent by unskilled laborers.

Parker said he would be available later to supervise the installation of the range here if the commissioners decided to hire him.

OBJECTION AT FORKS

As the work of moving the range started, the Forks Chamber of Commerce Monday evening protested the removal of the radio range from its present location until final disposition of the Quillayute air base is made. The group instructed their secretary to write congressmen and other governmental officials regarding the objections.

L. E. Parsons, a radio expert and pilot from Astoria, who visited the range sight on Wednesday at the request of West Coast Airlines, told the county commissioners that unless the county put the range into operation within three months they would be in danger of losing it. Parsons said he was certain that the government would not allow the expensive range equipment to deteriorate at Quillayute when it could be put to good use elsewhere. Several other Washington airports have been trying to obtain the range for some time. The range at Quillayute has not been in operation since the navy abandoned the field early in 1946.

Inland Boatmen Seek 20c an Hour Wage Hike from PSN Co.

SEATTLE — (AP)—Capt. John Fox reported today that the Inland Boatmen's Union (CIO) has voted to demand a 20-cent hourly pay increase from the Puget Sound Navigation Company.

Fox, the union's business agent, said the membership voted at the same time to suspend all conferences with the company until the state department of transportation returns a decision in its review of the company's rate structure. Conferences on the wage issue would be included in the ban.

Fox said the contract can be reopened at this time only on the question of wages, adding that a recent company request for a 48-hour week was out of the question.

'Sex Lurist' Gets Death Sentence

NEVADA CITY, Calif. — (AP) — Smiling fixedly, thrice-married Lois Hunt Hardy heard herself sentenced to death today in California's lethal gas chamber for the "sex-lure" slaying of a California motorist.

The frail 22-year-old waitress, a native of New London, Conn., was convicted last month of first degree murder charges in the death of James W. McLain, 48, Glendale motorist who gave her and her commonlaw husband a hitch-hiking ride.

Joseph L. Hardy, charged with shooting McLain in the head as Lois kept a mountain tryst with him, will appear in court tomorrow to have his trial date set.

Lois was found guilty by a jury Dec. 18 for her part in the kiss-of-death robbery slaying.

Not Enough Sailors To Man Both Aircraft Carriers, Navy Says

WASHINGTON —(AP) —The navy is so short of enlisted men that it could not put both its giant aircraft carriers to sea without borrowing from other ships, says Rear Adm. Thomas L. Sprague.

One of the 45,000-ton flattops, the Midway, is now in the Mediterranean. The other, the Franklin D Roosevelt, is at Norfolk, Va., for a minor overhaul.

Sprague told a reporter yesterday that the navy is undergoing a tremendous turnover in enlisted personnel, with its strength down to 362,000 from last July's peak of 434,000—and the low point still ahead.

Deep snow has turned Deer park into a winter wonderland. This picture, taken at the ski area last Sunday by park photographer Neil Mortaboy, shows the three feet of powdery snow that blanketed the mountain and made skiing conditions good.

Today the park service reports 48 inches of snow with 18 inches powder snow at the park. Skiing is expected to be good this weekend.

The road to Deer park leaves highway 101, four miles east of Port Angeles. It is open continuously this year. Chains are required.

Stassen's Testimony Shows Big Profits For Many 'Insiders'

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Harold E. Stassen testified today that high administration "insiders" have made a profit of about $4,000,000 by trading in commodities since the war.

Stassen, a candidate for the republican presidential nomination, also told a senate appropriations subcommittee inquiring into speculation that Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall, "did not make a full disclosure" of his trading activities when he appeared before the committee last month.

Stassen said his information is that Pauley actually made a profit of approximately $1,000,000 through his trading and did not lose about $100,000, as Stassen said Pauley inferred.

He urged the committee to "carry through" with a complete investigation, saying integrity of government is involved.

In addition to Pauley, he named Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham and Ralph Davies. Besides these, Stassen said, "there are a number of others high in the administration that are involved."

The three he mentioned already have been disclosed on agriculture department lists as having traded in grain or other commodities. Graham is President Truman's personal physician and Davies was in the administration during the war. Graham was invited by the committee to follow Stassen on the stand.

Stassen and Committee Chairman Ferguson (R-Mich) noted that a speech by Stassen in Doylestown, Pa., last Dec. 10, in which he first made the charges about administration figures, led to the present inquiry.

After Stassen said other administration people besides Pauley, Davies, and Graham were involved in commodity speculation, Ferguson asked if he had any other names to give the committee.

Stassen said: "I think it would be preferable that they be developed from the exact evidence. I would prefer to give you the leads and indications, on which you will develop the exact evidence."

Millions in Damage In Wake of Flood

PORTLAND, Ore. — (AP) — The crest of a Willamette river flood that already has cost from $7,000,000 to $13,000,000 in damage rolled on toward Portland today.

Clear skies this morning with only a few light showers forecast for tonight told, however, of the flood's approaching end.

It moved past the state capital of Salem early today, closing the main bridge across the river there, putting a little water in the basement of the capitol building, flooding west Salem stores, but causing only minor damage compared with that upriver.

A few hundred families south of Salem previously had moved out of danger to higher ground.

Upriver where most of the multi-million-dollar damage—as estimated by army engineers—was done, residents began cleaning up debris as water receded.

Turkey To Get Four New-Type U. S. Subs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Four of the navy's powerful fleet-type submarines are being supplied to Turkey as part of the United States program to strengthen that country against Soviet Russia.

The navy made the announcement today. Rep. Vinson (D) later told reporters that six submarines also will be transferred to Greece, where government forces are battling guerrillas along the borders of her northern, communist neighbors.

Delivery of the 1500-ton undersea vessels to Turkey will be completed sometime in April along with the transfer of eight motor mine sweepers, one net laying vessel, one gasoline tanker and one repair vessel.

This is the latest in a series of American moves to reinforce Greece and Turkey and generally bolster the position of the western powers in the Eastern Mediterranean, a target of Soviet interests.

The navy has about 180 submarines in its operating and reserve fleets. Russia is reputed to have an even larger undersea force—possibly as many as 250.

Danger of Nationwide Red-Inspired Strike Threatens Italians

ROME—(AP)—A stubborn nine-day-old strike of 60,000 bank workers snarled Italy's complex economy and threatened today to grow into something bigger—perhaps the communists' long-rumored nationwide general strike.

The communist-dominated chambers of labor in Milan and Rome voted full support to the bank workers last night. The Rome chamber declared that it was awaiting only "dispositions from the national organism"—the 6,000,000-member general labor confederation—before taking "concrete action."

Sources in the Italian interior ministry said extraordinary police precautions had been ordered on the basis of information received by the government that "something was in the air." One rightist newspaper mentioned a "plan against Rome."

Road blocks were established on several highways leading into Rome and metal burrs cut from barbed wire were strewn on several streets in the capital as part of the somewhat mysterious precautions.

Labor Minister Amintore Fanfani tried again to patch things up with the bank workers, but representatives of the bankers, still set against continuing into this year the temporary pay boosts granted last year, failed to show up for conferences.

In the meantime, the holiday lull in Italy appeared to be ended. Strikes, mass meetings and assorted disorders cropped up all over the nation, as if to prove to Premier Alcide de Gasperi that his communist-socialist foes had not yet shot their bolt in their efforts to unseat him.

In Rome, workers seized three factories, charging that the owners were closing down without reason. Police were hard put to oust them.

New Orleans Bank Robbed by 4 Men; Loot Is $114,000

NEW ORLEANS — (AP)—Four unmasked armed men held up a midtown New Orleans bank today and its president A. P. Imahorn, said they escaped with $114,000 in cash.

The men forced their way into the bank five minutes before opening time, slugged a negro janitor into unconsciousness and herded some 25 employes into locked rooms. They then forced the bank manager to unlock the vault.

Detective Joseph Tardo said the men took $60,000 from one section of the vault, and an estimated $54,000 from other parts of the safe and from the teller cages. Bank officials are still checking to determine the exact amount.

The negro porter, Joseph L. Thomas, admitted the four men while he was letting early customers into the bank about 8:30 o'clock.

The bandits immediately ushered eight women employes into one locker room and about six men into another. They then turned to the manager, forcing him to open the vault.

After scooping up all the cash and silver in sight they escaped in a waiting automobile, which, one witness said, bore a license plate which resembled those on state-owned cars.

The bank was the mid-city branch of the Hibernia National Bank. It is on the corner of Carrollton and Canal streets, one of the town's busiest intersections.

FALL CAUSED DEATH

MOUNT VERNON —(AP)— The possibility that foul play may have entered into the death of Albert Wilms, 82, here this week was discounted today by Sheriff Harold Hinshaw, following receipt of a pathologist's report indicating that a fall might have caused the fatal injuries.

Wilms told conflicting stories about the head injury which led to his death in a local hospital Monday, stating first that he had fallen on the railroad tracks and then that he had been slugged.

Radio Range Explained as County Lays Plan To Acquire One at Quillayute for P. A.

By Marge O'Donnell

The Radio range station recently allocated to Clallam county by the war assets administration is the device by which pilots flying in fog, clouds or overcast can tell where they are.

The range broadcasts four radio paths out from seven towers. On these paths or beams the pilot hears a steady hum or "on-course" signal. Between the beams the pilot hears an "a" (dot-dash) or an "N" (dash-dot) signal. By listening to the range signal, a trained instrument pilot can tell exactly where he is even though he cannot see outside of his plane. When he passes directly over the station he hears a cone of silence that tells him he is over the station.

HIGHWAYS OF AIR

Radio range beams are sometimes called the "highways" of the air. The type of station which the county commissioners plan to move to Port Angeles from Quillayute is a loop station. It operates on low frequency and can be heard for 50 miles or more in any direction.

After the pilot determines his position, he can use the radio range to "let down" (fly down through the clouds, knowing all the time where he is and that he is not going to run into a mountain).

At a certain prescribed minimum (usually 500 to 800 feet), he either breaks out of the clouds, sees the ground, goes ahead and makes his landing, or else he "makes a pull-up". When a pilot fails to make a ground contact, he continues to use the radio range to climb back up to a safe altitude.

The network of range stations up and down the coast and across the United States are called civil airways. Commercial planes and private planes flying on a civil airway, fly from one range to the next one and are therefore able to go cross-country in the overcast.

In addition to the range itself, the station to be installed in Port Angeles has voice facilities. This means that an operator on the ground can talk to planes flying in the air. He can give pilots different weather news and can advise them about ground conditions.

ALSO AIDS BOATS

Fishermen operating in harbors where a radio range is available have reported that they, too, find the range helpful. A fish boat equipped with a radio receiver can ride into port on a beam, the same as a plane can, if the captain is familiar with the channel and has checked the beam course during fair weather.

The range station itself consists of a small building and seven 40-foot poles. These are located on a cleared plot of ground about 450 feet square.

The commissioners believe that a site on the ocean bluff about one mile directly north of the airport will be chosen for the range in Port Angeles. CAA technicians will arrive here Wednesday to select a definite location.

Moving the range to Port Angeles and installing it will cost about $3,000, according to an estimate by a civil aeronautics engineer. The commissioners have about $1,500 in the airport fund to spend on the project, but are looking to donations from civic groups, who realize the importance of the facility, to make up the difference. They also hope that the newly-formed naval reserve electronics warfare unit, and other local radio technicians will volunteer to help. Help from local utilities will be solicited to help move the seven towers, the commissioners said.

U. S. Marines To Holy Land As Consulate Guards

LONDON — (AP)—Highly qualified informants in Whitehall said tonight the United States has asked and received approval from the Palestine government to dispatch U. S. marines to the Holy Land as a guard for the U. S. consulate there.

One source said he did not know how many marines might be sent, nor when they would arrive. A contingent of marines left North Carolina this week with the announced assignment of joining U. S. fleet units in the Mediterranean.

(The Palestine government operates under British mandate, and the dispatch of marines presumably would have British approval. Whitehall is the area in which British government offices are situated).

Earlier tonight the Arab office reported "strong rumors" that Britain had agreed to landing of marines in Palestine "to protect American institutions." The Arab office, which is maintained by Arab governments of Middle Eastern countries fighting the partition of Palestine ordered by the United Nations, stated:

"If these rumors are true, the Arabs will take the gravest possible objection to what Great Britain has done. . .

"The arrival of American military personnel in Palestine, no matter in what guise or how few, will not intimidate the Arabs. On the contrary they will see in it a reckless, provocative challenge."

An informant with a close knowledge of colonial office affairs said:

"The United States did ask the Palestine government if there was objection to such an action, and the Palestine government said there was not."

A colonial office spokesman declined to comment on the report but said "it would not be surprising, in view of the troubled situation in Palestine, if the United States proposed sending a small consular guard for protection of its consulate in the event of trouble."

A foreign office spokesman said action "to protect property of nations" would not be surprising. (This conceivably could include interests of American oil companies).

Find More Explosives Believed Being Readied for Palestine

ASBURY PARK, N. J. — (AP)—A police search set off by an anonymous tip from a farmer netted a new cache today of 57 tons of surplus army explosives which Monmouth County Prosecutor J. Victor Carton said was "tied up with" the Palestine-bound shipment of 30½ tons of TNT seized last Saturday on the Jersey City waterfront.

Forty tons of the explosive were discovered in a raid on a farmhouse in nearby Wall township and the other 17 tons were taken in a large truck-trailer found outside an Asbury Park garage. A state police alarm was broadcast for two other trucks reported headed here from the Seneca government war surplus depot at Romulus, N.Y., listed by authorities as the source of the 57 tons already taken here.

Nine men were arrested by state police and Monmouth county detectives as a result of the new discovery of explosives in the farmhouse and the big truck-trailer.

The truck, Carton said, was found near a warehouse owned by Charles Lowy, of Ashbury Park, who he said also owned the farm. Lowy, arraigned last night before Justice of the Peace Fred Quinn of Freehold, pleaded innocent to a charge of storing explosives without a permit and was held in $15,000 bail pending grand jury action.

Carton said the farm, located on a county road in Wall township, was raided by state troopers from the Howell and Highstown barracks, and prosecutor's detectives after an anonymous tip was received by state police that trucks were unloading in the area of the farm.

Carton identified another of the men arrested as Harry R. Sessions, 29, of North Stockholm, N.Y., driver of a truck which was being unloaded of explosives when police arrived at the farm. Sessions was held in $2,500 bail on a charge of transporting explosives without a permit, when arraigned before Quinn.

Six other men arrested were charged with aiding and abetting the transportation and storage of explosives and were held in $50 bail each. All are employes of Lowy's trucking firm.

The explosives, Carton said, were army surplus demolition blocks which had been sold at the government surplus depot at Romulus, N.Y., and were consigned to the Foundry Associates, Inc., 41 East 42nd street, New York City. In New York, the Telephone Company said it had no firm by that name listed for the East 42nd street address.

The crates of explosives, Carton said, made a pile five feet long, ten feet high and 30 feet across.

HARBOR STRIKE-BOUND

SINGAPORE — (AP)—About 6,000 stevedores and harbor employes struck today and tied up Singapore harbor, which is crowded with some 35 ocean-going vessels.

The stevedores demand a free extra meal daily, triple pay for overtime during the second half of the night shift, no payment of wages in arrears except in the presence of a union official, and a victory bonus of an unspecified amount to mark the end of the war with Japan.

BOTTLE OF POP FREEZES FINGERS

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Eight-year-old Donald Neil is nursing a couple of frostbitten fingers today —all because of a bottle of soda pop.

The youngster stuck his hand through an opening in a dispensing machine at a church recreation center last night and then couldn't get his fingers out again.

Several grownups tried to free Donald without success. Police and firemen finally pried the metal top off the machine.

The boy's hand had been in the machine so long by that time, however, that its cooling device had nipped his fingers badly enough to required treatment at Germantown hospital.

Taft Defies Truman; GOP To Advance Own Plan, Nation Told

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Taft (R-Ohio) called President Truman's legislative program the road to "national bankruptcy" and a "totalitarian state" and promised today that the GOP controlled congress will never follow it.

Instead, Taft said, the republicans will go ahead with their own program, make every effort to cut government expenses, and "really cut all taxes and the tax burden and cut them for good."

Taft, a candidate for the republican presidential nomination, went on the radio last night to reply to Mr. Truman's state-of-the-union message which republicans have been calling a "campaign speech" aimed at next fall's elections.

The Ohio senator asserted the president proposes to put the federal government in the role of "Santa Claus" and has offered a program amounting only to "the old New Deal principle of promising the people something for nothing."

Taft is chairman of the senate republican policy committee, and the sharpness of his words swept aside in advance a "peace" proposal with which Senator Hatch (D-NM) came forward today.

Meanwhile Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the house appropriations committee estimated the Truman program would cost $20,000,000,000 and said this would make tax reduction—a prime GOP target for 1948—an impossibility.

Taft centered his fire mainly on the president's domestic proposals, including a $40-per-person "cost of living" tax cut with an offsetting $3,200,000,000 boost in corporation taxes, compulsory curbs on inflation and a ten year plan to advance the social welfare of the nation. Nobody could fail to agree with the president's objective of improving the lot of the people, the Ohioan said. But as for the president's ideas on how this should be done, he asserted:

"Taken together they add up to national bankruptcy."

"Taken together they will add up to a totalitarian state."

Calling Mr. Truman's tax plan "about as discriminatory a proposal as could be made," Taft added:

"If followed to its logical conclusion he would ultimately exempt a large proportion of all income and shift all taxes onto a very small proportion of the population."

Resign If Plan Fails? 'No,' Says Marshall

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall today described as wholly incorrect speculation that he would resign if congress fails to enact a European recovery program in the manner he proposes.

Marshall volunteered at a news conference this information on his attitude.

He had declined earlier in response to a question to add or subtract from his statement yesterday that congress should meet all the requirements of European recovery plan or else not undertake the job at all.

Marshall said that he had appeared before the senate foreign relations committee yesterday in an advisory capacity and didn't want to add or subtract on what he had said.

Then he went on to say that he had noticed implications in some accounts of his testimony that he would return to his home at Leesburg, Va., if congress either cut or turned down his recommendations for the four-year effort to rebuild western Europe.

That Marshall said, is wholly incorrect. He added that he thought it would be inconsistent with everything he had learned in the government service.

UN Calls Conference On Jew-Arab Trouble

LAKE SUCCESS—(AP)—The United Nations Palestine partition commission today called on Britain, the Jewish agency for Palestine and the Arab higher committee for immediate consultations on the situation in the strife-torn Holy Land.

Moving swiftly at its first session, the five-nation partition commission decided to talk with representatives of the three vitally interested parties as the first step toward implementing the UN plan to cut up Palestine into Jewish and Arab countries by next Oct. 1.

The commission acted as dispatches from Jerusalem reported the first instance of infiltration of sizable "volunteer" bands from Arab country territory adjoining the Holy Land. One report quoting Jewish sources said 300 such "volunteers" had entered Palestine from Syria and attacked a Jewish settlement.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie opened the meeting here by expressing confidence that the security council would exercise "every necessary power" to see that partitioning is carried out by next Oct. 1 without fail.

LAST-MINUTE REPRIEVE SAVES YOUTH FROM GALLOWS; 99-YEAR PENITENTIARY TERM IS HIS FATE

WALLA WALLA —(AP)— A last-minute, eleventh hour reprieve gave Joseph (Joe) Maish, 17-year-old Vancouver high school youth, his life today under a 99-year sentence at the state prison and the badly-broken youth's first words were "Thank you very, very much."

It was a few minutes after 11 p. m. last night that word of Governor Wallgren's commutation was given to the frightened, half-sobbing youth. The governor's office at Olympia had announced he had made his decision a half hour before.

"The governor of the state of Washington," Warden Smith began, "partly because of the demand made upon him by the public, and partly out of the goodness of his heart, has commuted your sentence to 99 years, instead of death."

Maish, convicted of stabbing LaDonna Toscas, a high school girl, to death in a rape attempt at Vancouver a year ago last December, was shaking and trembling. He had eaten his "last meal," which was several cream puffs, and had had a prison chaplain's spiritual solace all evening for his after-midnight date with the gallows.

LOOKS TOWARD WINDOW

With an impulsive gesture, Maish looked towards a window. He waved his hand, almost unconsciously, as if glad to know there would be an out-of-doors for him again.

Warden Smith went on and told Maish he might never get out of prison and added:

"Living will impose a much greater responsibility than dying. But there are men here to help you. . ."

"Thank you very, very much," Maish said. "I'll do my very best. I'll try, I'll try hard. I surely will."

'CONGRATULATIONS, JOE'

He broke down and was crying again when Dr. Wallace A. Pratt, who came to the state prison a short time earlier for the purpose of pronouncing Maish dead after the hanging, came into the room.

"Congratulations, Joe. You're lucky, old boy," he said.

It was at 10:50 p.m. that Governor Wallgren had called Warden Smith from his executive offices at Olympia.

"Tom, I've decided to commute the kid's sentence. I'm going to make it 99 years, Tom, because I don't want this kid to get out of that place.

A barrage of requests for executive clemency had reached the governor's desk in recent days. The state has never executed a person as young as Maish.

Defense Attorney Louis Schaefer of Vancouver reported late last night that he had relayed to the governor telegrams from three members of the jury that convicted Maish, expressing the opinion that the death sentence should be commuted.

WALLGREN'S STATEMENT

Then a few minutes later the governor issued a statement to newsmen and said he thought it so important that he wanted it printed in full to explain his action.

He said the decision was the "most difficult and heart rending one" he had ever made. He departed from usual policy, he said, because he had received no recommendations for clemency from the judge (Superior Judge Charles W. Hall) or the prosecutor in the case. (It was not immediately explained whether Prosecutor Jones' telegram last night, announced at Vancouver by Maish's attorney, Louis Schaefer, had reached Olympia).

"I cannot believe that the best interests of society require the hanging of a child," the governor said.

To newsmen, the governor went on to say, however, that the "boy should not get out of prison."

"That was my idea in commuting the sentence to 99 years. . .

"There is more to this crime than appears on the surface.

"Society must give more consideration to these social problems and juvenile delinquency. To a certain extent families, mothers and fathers are responsible."

LEGISLATIVE REMEDY

He will recommend to the next legislature, he said, with "all the force at my command" that the criminal code be amended to deal with such cases "in a more enlightened manner."

The jurors who had expressed favor that the death sentence be commuted to life imprisonment, Atty. Schaefer said at Vancouver, were James A. Cooper, Vancouver; Elmer W. Clark, Washougal; and Mr. Ella Wallace, who was reached at Holtville, Calif. They tempered their recommendation, however, with an opinion that he should not be subject to parole.

Four other jurors polled yesterday by Schaefer said they would not make any such recommendation, under the belief that under life imprisonment Maish might be eligible for parole after seven to 12 years. That view was incorrect, Schaefer added.

Prosecutor DeWitt Jones of Clark county told him, Schaefer said, that if the governor should commute the sentence to life imprisonment he would have no objection whatsoever and would not criticize the state's chief executive.

GIVEN SLEEPING PILLS

Joe went to bed about 15 minutes after receiving the news. The doctor who was to have pronounced him dead, gave him sleeping pills.

At Vancouver, Maish's father, Frederick, a night dock watchman, and his mother, who made a personal appeal on Governor Wallgren last week, were overjoyed at the news. Many friends and neighbors were assembled at their house when they received the word, before midnight.

"They were all overcome with emotion," Attorney Schaefer said.

Saved From Gallows

Last-minute reprieve from a death sentence was granted Joseph H. Maish, 17-year-old Vancouver, Wash., boy (above), convicted of the murder of La Donna Toscas, December 21, 1946. Wallgren's Statement On Commutation Of Death Sentence

OLYMPIA —(AP)— Governor Wallgren's full statement of last night on the commutation of Joseph Maish's death sentence:

"I have ordered the death sentence of Joseph Maish commuted to imprisonment for ninety-nine years.

"For many days I have searched my conscience, balancing the terrible crime of this youth against our collective responsibility that it should happen.

"I have reached the conclusion that the ends of justice would not be served by exacting the life of a boy.

"This decision was the most difficult and heart rending one I have ever made. In making it I have departed from the policy which I have followed heretofore, since no recommendations for clemency have been made by the judge or the prosecuting attorney who tried the case.

"Under the existing laws of our state minors are not excepted from capital punishment.

"If one so young had committed this crime in some states no sentence of capital punishment could have been imposed.

"I cannot believe that the best interests of society required the hanging of a child.

"Accordingly, I shall, with all the force at my command, recommend to the next legislature that the criminal code be amended to deal with such cases in a more enlightened manner.

"It is my hope that the citizens of this state will search their conscience, as I have done, and demand a more human law for youthful offenders."

'Justice Let Down,' Says Brother Of Girl Maish Killed

VANCOUVER, Wash. —(AP)— The exhausted parents of Joe Maish thanked Washington's governor today for the greatest anniversary present they had ever received—the life of their 17-year-old son.

But the brother of the girl whom Joe killed declared that "justice has been let down."

George Toscas, 22-year-old Clark college student whose sister was knifed by the young Maish boy last year, said he was not satisfied with the governor's commutation of Joe's sentence.

"No one in my position would be," said Toscas. "I think politics played a decisive part in the governor's action. It was not a question of Maish's life but a matter of justice. The justice of Washington was at stake, and in my opinion and in the opinion of many others, justice has been let down by the governor."

MAISH CHEERFUL

WALLA WALLA — (AP)—Joseph Henry Maish was a very "cheerful, very thankful boy this morning" Assistant Superintendent P. A. Kelly said at the penitentiary.

"He had a broad smile on his face, looked refreshed after a good night's sleep, and was profuse in his promises to warrant his commutation," Kelly said.

MEET IN MARCH

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman promised today he will try to arrange his schedule to address veterans called to meet here in March to seek early congressional passage of long-range housing legislation. Members of a delegation representing five veterans groups sponsoring the March meeting called at the White House and said afterward that Mr. Truman, who has endorsed the legislation, will speak if he can arrange to do so.

Raise Funds to Send Barred Youths To Venezuela

SEATTLE—(AP)—A $2,500 fund was being collected here today to send six Spanish youths, denied entrance to the United States, to Venezuela.

The campaign was opened by the Seattle CIO council after the national board of immigration appeals in Washington upheld a ruling, by the Portland immigration office, barring them from entering the U. S. Immigration Supervisor R. P. Bonham said the youths would be deported immediately.

The six were picked up in Coos Bay, Ore., last October when they sought to enter the country illegally from the freighter Arthur Fairchild, out of Lehavre, France.

They have refused to admit their real names and have threatened suicide in belief that they would be shot if returned to Spain.

In denying entrance to the U. S., the national board ruled the youths could enter another country in the western hemisphere if it would grant admittance. CIO council leaders said Venezuela had granted such permission.

$36,400 AWARD

ELLENSBURG — (AP)—An award of $36,400 was granted by a superior court jury yesterday to Mrs. Grace Heber for the electrocution of her husband, Harry, last March.

As administratrix of the estate, Mrs. Heber brought action for $50,000 against the Puget Sound Power & Light Co. Heber was killed when he tried to lift a live 6,900-volt wire with a piece of lumber when it fell on a chicken house and set it afire.

Communism and Democracy Cleavage Sharp

By DeWitt Mackenzie
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Daily the cleavage between Russian communism and democracy is being more sharply defined.

We had a blunt reminder of this in Secretary of State Marshall's appeal before the senate foreign relations committee yesterday for prompt implementation of the program for rehabilitation of Europe. The general didn't mince words:

"Without the establishment of economic health and vigor in the free countries of Europe . . . the historic base of western civilization, of which we are by belief and inheritance an integral part, will take on a new form in the image of the tyranny that we fought to destroy in Germany. . . .

"This great project . . . must be carried to success against the avowed determination of the Soviet Union and the communist party to oppose and sabotage it at every turn. . . .

"The way of life that we have known is literally in the balance."

Apropos of the general tense situation, but having no immediate relation to the Marshall statement, a foreign office source in London yesterday threw out a thought about a possible new United Nations. He did this by hinting that the British may incline to the viewpoint attributed to certain elements in the American state department who are said to be ready to reorganize the United Nations "without Russia and her friends" in a real east-west showdown.

Your correspondent has reported before that there is talk in the air about the formation of a new UN comprising the democracies.

However, such a statement by a British official spokesman, even though guarded, came as an interesting surprise. The new peace organization presumably wouldn't bar Russia and her dependencies but the democracies would be in the majority and Moscow's power to block action by veto would be destroyed.

Meantime Brazil dealt a body blow to communism in the western hemisphere by withdrawing the last vestige of legality from the Brazilian communist party which has ranked as the largest in North or South America. The chamber of deputies passed a bill, already adopted by the senate, removing all communists from elective posts through the nation, and President Eurico Gaspar Dutra promptly signed it into law.

The communist party, claiming a membership of close to 200,000 previously had been outlawed, although this didn't affect the status of office holders already elected. Brazil severed diplomatic relations with Moscow nearly three months ago because of attacks on the Brazilian president and the army by the Russian press.

At the same time over in Milan, Italy, the world was given further proof—if any were needed—that the communists of Brazil or of any other country take their directions from Moscow. The Italian national communist congress was meeting and was attended not only by Italian leaders but by Harry Pollitt, secretary general of the British communist party; Maurice Thorez, the French communist leader; and Yugoslav, Czechoslovak, Bulgarian, Romanian and Hungarian delegates.

One of the outstanding events of Wednesday's session was Pollitt's denunciation of his own labor (socialist) government and praise of "that great man of genius, Comrade Stalin." Another was when Pollitt, Thorez, and the leaders from other countries slipped out of the convention on some mission which speculation said might have been a meeting of the cominform, recently established by Moscow to direct attacks on the Marshall plan.

That is writing on the wall for all to read. Brazil has read the writing and has had the courage to record her interpretation in concrete action.

The Poor Man's Philosopher On The Happy Life To Be

NEW YORK—(AP)—Tomorrow is just today with circles under its eyes.

Yet many people go on believing that the future is sure to be better than the past—like a small boy who thinks the ice cream cone he hasn't the money to buy would taste a lot better than the one he just ate.

Why? Is there anything a sensible man can admit about the future except that it probably lies ahead?

But by ouija board and crystal ball, by tea leaves and horoscopes, the effort still goes on to plot the happy life in the world to be. Someone even has figured out a way in night clubs here to forecast coming events by the shapes ice cubes assume as they melt in the glass. The usual conclusion by the hypnotized patron is that it is about time to buy another drink.

The other day members of the Advertising Club of New York sealed into the cornerstone of their new building a number of predictions on how Americans will live in faraway 2004, the year the club celebrates its hundredth anniversary.

There was little held out attractive enough to make a middle-aged man of today want to hang around overtime just to greet these dubious benefits of the twenty-first century.

A man who canvassed clothing designers, for example, came up with this soul-clabbering portrait of the dame of tomorrow:

"Women will carry their own little flying machines in jewelled handbags and fly through the air with irridescent wings. Clothes will contain their own air-conditioning units.

"The great immodesty will be public exposure of eyes. Men and women will dress very much alike. Clothes will be mechanically contrived and electrically controlled."

Isn't that something to look forward to! Ladies flapping about like junebugs, flying blind because they don't dare show their glimmers for fear of losing their reputation! Or maybe glaring at you through a periscope because you splashed mud on their rainbow wings.

When the snow goes in spring, you'd suffocate until you could phone up the repair man and say, "Joe, can you buzz over quick and tune up my trousers for summer? I feel a heat wave coming up my ankles."

Or when you poked a hole in your sock, you'd have to beg the wife, "honey, can't you sew up the rehostat so I won't be late to the office? Before you changed suits you'd have to pour water in the battery and check the coat with a wheatstone bridge and a voltmeter.

With man and wife dressing alike there'd no longer be any doubt about who wore the pants in the family. (As if there is now!)

Of course this strange new world will probably have other compensations to make it more liveable for people afraid to go out in a storm in their 2004-model electrically-wired raincoat unless it has a lightning rod, too. Racehorses that you lay $2 on will probably be guaranteed to run on wheels instead of their knees. Paychecks will be of rubber and stretch enough to pay all bills, including the one for Junior's new atom-powered helicopter. Golf will have all its temper-fraying uncertainties removed, as it will be played with built-in radar that always assure a hole-in-one average.

Oh, the future will have its advantages, and our antiseptic progency will probably enjoy it. But we'll stick with the dirty old germ-bit world of today. The hardest thing about any life is getting used to it—and we're used to this one.

KILLED BY TRAIN

REPORT ON METEOR

EUGENE—(AP)—The meteor that startled Oregon and Washington Dec. 19 apparently blew up about 10 miles southwest of Mount St. Helens.

This was the report from J. Hugh Pruett, Pacific coast director of the American Meteor Society and astronomer for the Oregon system of higher education.

The meteor, he said after studying reports from observers, first was sighted over Oregon. It traveled almost due north until it exploded, he said.

Pruett also is tracing another meteor whose green light was seen from California northward a few days later.

ALL THE HUB-BUB OVER A THUMB

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Alfred Schrier, 21, was hurrying to catch a bus when he was struck by an automobile.

He was knocked to the pavement and a crowd quickly gathered. He struggled to get up but several pairs of hands restrained him. "Don't move," chorused several voices. "You may have a broken back or something." Helpful onlookers swathed him in a blanket.

Sirens screamed. Police arrived. The crowd got bigger. Finally an ambulance picked Schrier up and rushed him to Hollywood receiving hospital.

There he was thoroughly examined. The diagnosis:

A sprained thumb.

FISH FOR ITALY

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The state department informed Senator Magnuson (D-Wash) today it has included 10,000 tons of canned fish for Italy in the interim aid program.

The senator had urged that products of the Pacific northwest be included in the program and that care be exercised not to interfere with the region's economy by wheat purchases for export.

NO CIVILIAN POST

BERLIN—(AP)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, U. S. military governor of Germany, said today he does not want to serve in a civilian post as high commissioner when the state department takes over administration of the U. S. occupation zone.

Secretary of State Marshall said yesterday in testimony before the senate foreign relations committee that the state department hopes to take over administration of the zone from the army June 30.

"I have no desire to serve here in any capacity except military," Clay told a reporter. He recalled he had asked for permission to retire from the army in 1948.

As compared with the 1930-40 average of 300,000 tourists, Baker said, there were 612,052 U. S. motorists here last year.

Three Meanings Of NLRB Are Explained

WASHINGTON — (AP)—The general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), Robert N. Denham, probably has more authority than any other labor official in the government.

But you'd never know it from his title.

The title suggests he is a legal adviser to the five-man NLRB. He's not that at all. He is independent of the board. He's more like an "administrator" or "chief prosecutor." He has eight times as many people working under him as the board has.

These points are important in following the growing number of cases in which unions and employers are being charged with unfair labor practices under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The term "board," for NLRB, can have different meanings. In the Taft-Hartley Act itself, "board" is used three ways:

1. Sometimes it means the five men who decide cases (Chairman Paul M. Herzog, John M. Houston, James J. Reynolds, Jr., Abe Murdock and J. Copeland Gray).

2. Sometimes it means the general counsel (Denham), who investigates and prosecutes cases.

3. Sometimes it means the whole outfit, considered as a federal agency (826 employes).

Now the NLRB in the third sense—that of one agency—occupies a tricky old seven-story apartment hotel, the Rochambeau, which abounds with full-length mirrors, doorbells, bathrooms and doors that lead through tiny passageways and right out into the corridor again.

The agency has 382 employes at the Rochambeau and 444 field employes in 30 other cities.

When you get into actual cases, it is misleading to refer to the NLRB as though it were one agency, because the Taft-Hartley Act had the practical effect of splitting it into two agencies—the five-man board and the office of the general counsel.

The five-man board and the members' staffs comprise 84 persons. Denham's office has 711, including all 444 field employes.

To make it more complicated, yet a third group has its home at the Rochambeau, composed of 28 "hearing examiners" and their three employes. The examiners have the role of independent judges.

One of the two main duties of the five-man board is to decide what union, if any, shall represent certain groups of American workers. It does this with the help of Denham's field personnel.

The other main duty relates to unfair labor practices. Now here is the way the three Rochambeau groups fit into that picture:

Suppose a union or an employer files an unfair practice charge The Denham office investigates. The Denham office has the sole power to decide whether to issue a complaint and call a hearing.

If it issues a complaint, it also has the power—and sometimes the duty—to ask for a court order temporarily halting the alleged unfair practice pending a decision.

The five-man NLRB can't issue such complaints and can't ask for such court orders.

An examiner journeys from Washington to preside over the hearing. The hearing is like a court trial, with a representative of Denham acting as prosecutor, and the party who filed the original charge helping him.

The examiner makes a preliminary verdict. If any party objects to it—and usually someone does—the case moves to Washington for the five-man board to decide.

If the board's verdict is "guilty," it orders the unfair practice stopped If necessary it can ask a federal court to enforce the order.

PRODUCTION UPWARD

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The National Coal Association today revised its estimate of 1947 bituminous production upward to 619,000,000 tons, raising the possibility that final figures will fall only slightly short of an all-time annual record.

The association last week estimated the 1947 production at 617,000,000 tons, a new peace-time record. The all-time mark was set in 1944, when 619,576,000 tons were produced. The 1946 production was 532,000,000 tons.

Brazilian Police Battle Reds Over Publishing Paper

RIO DE JANEIRO—(AP)—Police fought today with communists attempting to publish an edition of their newspaper in the wake of congressional action withdrawing the last vestige of legality from the Brazilian communist party.

Four communists were wounded. Police broke into the printing plant, using tear gas bombs and machine guns, when workers refused to halt presses printing an edition covering the action by the chamber of deputies last night stripping Brazilian communists, the largest communist party in the western hemisphere, of all elective posts.

President Eurica Gaspar Dutra signed the anti-communist bill into law soon after the chamber of deputies acted. Communists affected included a senator, 14 deputies, 60 state legislators and 18 members of the Rio de Janeiro city council. The senate had passed the bill previously.

The outburst came when police inspector Fredgard Martins sought to enforce an order to close the newspaper for 15 days. He was refused admittance to the plant and returned later with 10 police. The workers were ordered to open the door.

Pistol shots from within answered the order. The 10 policemen fired pistols into the door as riot sirens shrieked. A carload of 40 red-capped shock police rolled up, armed with tommyguns. They raced toward the door under fire and sprayed the shop with bullets. Then they blasted holes in the grating, through which they shot tear gas, nauseating gas and asphyxiation gas. The communists inside hurled incendiary bombs and hand grenades at the doorway, but none landed outside.

The gas took effect swiftly, and soon 20 communists staggered out. The police, now numbering about 100, arrested them as they emerged, after their five-hour siege.

One story about the first importation of expert brass workmen into the United States from England says the men were hidden in casks and smuggled on board a ship.

Nebraskan Urges That Washington Become A 'Power Public' State

SEATTLE — (AP)—Charles Fricke of Columbus, Neb., prominent in public power activities in that state, today urged Washington to follow Nebraska in becoming an "all-power public state."

In an address prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Washington Public Utility Commissioners Association, Fricke said steps taken in Nebraska by which locally controlled power districts acquired generating and distributing facilities of private companies, were similar to those proposed in this state by public utility districts and the city of Seattle for purchase of Puget Sound Power & Light Company properties.

The same meeting heard Hugh B. Mitchell, former U. S. Senator, advocate a Columbia valley authority as the best solution of the Pacific northwest power problem and Dr. Paul J. Raver, Bonneville power administrator, discuss regional power supplies and demands.

Mitchell said the power shortage in Washington is properties.

The same meeting heard Hugh B. Mitchell, former U. S. senator, advocate a Columbia valley authority as the best solution of the Pacific northwest power problem and Dr. Paul J. Raver, Bonneville power administrator, discuss regional power supplies and demands.

Mitchell said the power shortage in Washington is "real and acute" and will continue at least until 1954, even if all possible construction work is done meanwhile.

He added that last year's congressional action, in curtailing construction work at Grand Coulee dam, and on Montana and Idaho projects and in slashing appropriations for Bonneville has further complicated the situation.

Leprosy Inevitable Among Some Yanks

CHICAGO— (AP)—The prevalence of leprosy in areas where American troops were stationed makes appearance of "a few cases" after long incubation periods "almost inevitable," the Journal of the American Medical Association reported today.

The Journal mentioned this possibility in an editorial which forecast that various tropical fevers and other exotic diseases would turn up in areas in the United States where they formerly were rare or nonexistent.

"Exotic diseases now must be constantly expected," the Journal said. "Diseases probably most frequently met will be malaria, bacillary dysentery, amebiasis, filariasis, and intestinal protozoan infestations." It added that other rare tropical diseases were expected to occur in scattered numbers with probably a few cases of leprosy being recorded

Unite To Support Recovery Plan, Plea of Partymen

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A republican and democrat urged today that congress put party differences aside and join in support of a European recovery program.

Senator Hatch (NM), the democrat, carried his proposal further with an appeal for joint action on legislation to curb inflation.

Senator Smith (NJ), Hatch's republican colleague on the senate foreign relations committee, called for a "non-political" settlement of the administration-GOP argument over who shall operate the Marshall plan for European recovery.

With Secretary of State Marshall standing firm on the contention that he must control vital policy decisions, Smith told a reporter he thinks a compromise is imperative with house republicans who want a separate government corporation set up to administer the foreign aid program.

In a speech prepared for senate delivery, Hatch proposed that the republican and democratic policy committees be invited to sit with the foreign relations committee to consider President Truman's proposal for a 51-month program of economic aid for Europe expected to cost $6,800,000,000 in the first 15 months.

The New Mexico democrat said this representative group could agree on an "American policy" with regard to foreign affairs and predicted the house would back up such a decision and that it would be approved by the president.

"If party politics guides or directs any of us in these critical days of destiny," Hatch declared. "Only disaster can or will result."

Hatch praised Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich) of the foreign relations committee for what he described as the Michigan senator's example of a "non-political and non-partisan approach to these world wide issues."

In this role Vandenberg appealed to Marshall for help in solving what he said may be the "greatest controversy" facing congress over the foreign aid program—how it is to be operated.

Two Armed Robbers Get $20,000 In Gems from Salesman

SEATTLE — (AP)— Sam Epstein, Seattle jewelry salesman who was robbed in Bremerton yesterday of diamonds reported worth more than $20,000, said today he recognized one of the two armed robbers as a "tough" whom he had seen on the ferry in recent weeks.

"I think they had been casing me for quite a while," he said.

Epstein sells jewelry from store to store without maintaining an office.

He said he had just alighted from a bus in Bremerton when a car drove up with two men. One, displaying a pistol, stopped him and demanded:

"O.K., give us the stuff!"

"They knew I had it all right."

SOUTHERN BASKETBALL TEAMS PLAY TONIGHT

LOS ANGELES — (AP)—Basketball in the southern division of the Pacific Coast conference takes the floor tonight with all four teams launching the 1948 campaign in a new style of schedule.

Stanford University takes on the University of Southern California in the first game, and California and UCLA play in the second game of the double-barreled program at Olympic auditorium.

The next night it will be California against USC, and UCLA against Stanford. A capacity throng of 8,000 is expected both nights.

Stanford boasts the best pre-conference record, with seven wins out of eight games, including victory over last year's champions of the conference, Oregon State.

IRONMEN DROP GAME TO SAN DIEGO TEAM

(By Associated Press)

The Seattle Ironmen, far ahead in the northern division of the Pacific Coast Hockey League, couldn't hold San Diego's Maurice Vaillancourt last night and the Skyhawks, in fourth place in the southern division, won 4-3.

Vaillancourt slipped in the winning goal with 33 seconds of play remaining on his home court. It was his third of the night.

In the only other game last night the San Francisco Shamrocks closed out their annual northern road trip at Portland with a rousing 9-7 win over the Eagles. It was the Shamrocks' third victory in five games in the north and the 10th straight loss for the tailend Eagles.

Tonight Fresno goes against the Oaks at Oakland and Tacoma plays at Vancouver.

FRITZ CRISLER GETS PLAQUE FROM COACHES

NEW YORK—(AP)—The nation's college football coaches, who voted Fritz Crisler of Michigan "1947 coach of the year," gave him a plaque at a dinner here last night.

Before more than 300 coaches, sports writers and sports personalities, Governor Thomas E. Dewey—himself a Michigan alumnus—presented the plaque to Crisler.

Dewey said the final line of Michigan's victory song, "Champions of the West," now could be changed to "Champions of the Nation."

Odell May Get Call As Husky Grid Mentor

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Nearly all the lobby rumors circulating around the gatherings of the American Football Coaches Association and the National Collegiate A. A. have to do with the possibility that Howie Odell will leave Yale for some more fertile coaching field.

In particular, the story is that Odell will take over the vacant coaching job at the University of Washington.

Odell is embarrassed to a considerable extent by all this talk, because he has no quarrel with Yale's athletic authorities, but he admits freely that he's interested in the Washington job and thinks he may be in line for it. And he's willing to listen to anyone else who is around making offers. He expects to meet representatives of West Virginia and Nebraska but doesn't know what these talks will lead to.

Meanwhile, there was reliable talk that if Odell leaves Yale, attempts will be made to sign Herman Hickman, Army's line coach, as head man at New Haven.

"I have talked with the people from Washington and I'm sure that I am at least one of the men they are considering," Odell said today. "But I want to emphasize that I always have gotten along very well with everyone at Yale. They have been wonderful to me there.

"But as a professional coach, I think I might do better at Washington or some other college. Yale is an old-line school and is very uncompromising in its attitude toward athletics. Every body who enters Yale has to be in the top ten percent of his class and you know you don't find a lot of good football players there.

Yale's athletic director, Bob Kiphuth, said yesterday Odell was "free to leave Yale if he wants to, even though his appointment has three more years to go before it expires."

Odell's appointment at Yale is the same as any member of the faculty, and there is no contract, the athletic department at New Haven stressed.

Odell's "professional" attitude, incidentally, may throw some light on the objections raised against the N.C.A.A. 'sanity code,' another popular subject of discussion. Coaches and athletic directors who regard football as a business appear to be in the majority among those who feel that the code is impractical and unenforceable.

This code, embodied in a series of constitutional amendments adopted in principle a year ago, is ready for presentation to the NCAA membership at tomorrow's final business meeting.

The last preliminary steps were taken yesterday when the means of enforcing the principles were drawn up by the NCAA executive committee and discussed and clarified at the "conference of conferences."

The regulations call for the creation of two committees. One, known as the constitutional compliance committee, will have as its main purpose interpreting the rules and answering questions concerning specific practices. The second is a fact-finding committee, to be drawn from a larger panel to investigate specific cases and to report back to the compliance committee.

ASTORIA WINS OVER SEATTLE HOOP SQUAD

(By Associated Press)

It was "tail-enders" night last night in the Pacific Coast Professional Basketball League race.

Astoria surprised the pace-setting Seattle Athletics and came through with a 55-52 overtime victory, and Bellingham nipped Vancouver 68-66 in a toss-up encounter. But the biggest surprise of all were the Portland Indians who slapped a 48-37 defeat on the Tacoma Mountaineers.

It was the Rose City five's third win in 22 season starts and their first in the last 13 games. But after breaking away from a 2-2 deadlock, the Indians were never headed. After holding Tacoma scoreless from the field for 10 minutes, Portland took 12-8, 22-15 and 32-27 quarter margins.

A staunch defense also brought Astoria's win over Seattle. The Chinooks held the league leaders to a single field goal in the third quarter to climb from a 30-23 halftime deficit to a 37-35 quarter lead. Six times the lead changed hands and three times it was tied in the final quarter.

Dave Howard's quick basket broke the 47-all count early in the overtime and Astoria was never headed again.

Bellingham's two-point triumph over their Canadian rivals moved the Fircrests within a single game of the leading Seattle five and brought about the night's highest scoring. Norm Baker, Vancouver forward, picked up the tally marbles with a 29-point splurge, 8 more than recorded by Bellingham's Butch Gainer.

No games are scheduled tonight.

SANDBERG QUITS

SEATTLE — (AP)—There's another football coaching berth vacant at the University of Washington.

Roy (Sandy) Sandberg, whose 1946 "B" and 1947 frosh elevens both were unbeaten, has accepted an offer from Washington State College and will be on hand when Head Coach Phil Sorboe calls spring practice at the Cougar institution.

Sandberg, Bellingham born, was graduated from WSC after three letter-winning seasons of football and baseball. He came to Washington in 1942. He became a free agent with the resignation of Ralph Welch as Husky mentor.

Great Battle Is Expected Against Kitsap Wolves

Port Angeles basketball fans can look forward to the unexpected when the Roosevelt Roughriders go into battle against the North Kitsap Wolves tonight in Roosevelt gym.

Reports from Kitsap county indicate that Coach Harley Sutphin of the Vikings has done a great deal of experimenting in synchronizing his aggregation for the coming league campaign. One game would emphasize ball handling, another defensive tactics, and another offensive strength.

DANIELS' CONDITION GRAVE

RALEIGH, N. C.—(AP)—Josephus Daniels, 85-year-old publisher, continued in a grave condition today at his home here where he has been ill with bronchitis since Monday.

Members of the family said there had been no overnight change. Physicians continued the use of an oxygen tent to help his breathing.

Daniels, former secretary of the navy and ambassador to Mexico, "lost a little ground" early last night, relatives said.

John Marshall, who was appointed chief justice of the U. S. Supreme court in 1801, served 34 years, longer than any other chief justice, and is credited with shaping its present importance in American government.

AUTO DEMOLISHED

SHELTON — (AP)—A 1947 model automobile driven by Gustave Warberg, Bremerton, was totally destroyed yesterday, State Patrolman Bill Hitshipiller said today, when it skidded and went off the side of the Shelton-Bremerton highway near Belfair. Warberg, alone in the car, was uninjured except for bruises.

Ford, Others Named In 251 Million Lawsuit

NEW YORK —(AP)— Henry Ford 2nd, the Ford Motor Co., the Dearborn Motors Corp., and seven other officers and directors of the companies were named defendants in a $251,000,000 damage suit filed yesterday in federal court by Harry Ferguson, Irish-born farm machinery inventor.

The suit charged that the defendants infringed on patents by copying the Ferguson line of farm tractors and violated anti-trust legislation by conspiring to drive the plaintiff's firm, Harry Ferguson, Inc., of Detroit, out of business.

In a statement at Detroit, Henry Ford 2nd described the complaint as "ridiculous," and "full of untruths." He said Ford officials would be "very happy to meet all of the allegations. . . at the proper time and place."

The complain involved one of the largest amounts ever sought in a civil action here. The suit estimated capital value of the Ferguson company at $80,000,000 and said action of the defendants impeded profitable operation of the company.

Pitching Horseshoes

COST ROSE $75,000 TO GET WHALEN TO SPEAK

I once spent $75,000 to Get Grover Whalen to say hello to me. It was the best investment I ever made.

It happened back in 1938 when Grover was the boutonniered bashaw of the New York World's Fair. Without his nod, no important attraction could set up shop on the Midway.

I came in from Fort Worth and moved into a hotel with 24-hour switchboard service. Object: To give Mr. Whalen a chance to get in touch with me. Why did I figure I rated such special attention? For several reasons—(a) the county-sized carnival I had produced at Fort Worth in 1936, (b) my merger of dampness and damsels at the Cleveland Aquacade in 1937, (c) the six pages Life had devoted in 1938 to saying I was almost as good as my press agents made me out to be, and (d) the size-12 fedora I was wearing that season. I couldn't see how anybody in his right mind would try to run a midway without me. Eleanor and my sister Polly agreed.

But Mr. Whalen didn't. For months my telephone played dead. I began to feel like the bride on the steps of the church. And then came hit on the head number one. The papers announced that a gent named John Krimsky had been put in charge of entertainment. "Who dat?" I screeched. "What did he ever do?" I found out soon enough. Johnny had married the daughter of an important Tammany contractor named Atwell. And I had been around New York long enough to know that if it was a waste of time to fight City Hall, it was an ever greater waste of time to tangle with Tammany.

A few days later came hit on the head number two. A press agent named Maurice Mermee was appointed director of concessions. "Rose," I said to myself, "maybe they can't run a World's Fair without you, but it sure looks as if they're going to try."

When the phone didn't ring for another month, I decided to swallow my ego—by that time it was the size of a flea's wrist watch I phoned the Messrs. Krimsky and Mermee and asked for an appointment. After letting me polish their waiting room furniture for a while, the great men finally received me in a room full of graphs and charts. They were painfully polite. In beautiful English they told me how they appreciated my interest, but unfortunately most of the space on the midway had already been allotted.

"Allotted to what?" I snarled. "Peep shows, shooting galleries, babies in bottles? What makes you think these ausgespielt wonders will make Peoria come to New York?"

The Messrs. K. and M. smiled patronizingly and pointed to the graphs and charts which proved that the fair was going to play to 75,000,000 customers.

That night I wore out a lot of carpet. "If you want a piece of pie," I said to myself, "you better get to the head baker himself—Grover Whalen. And if he won't let you in to see him, you've got to figure out a plot to make him come to see you."

By morning I had such a plot, and it was as complicated as a Rube Goldberg invention. It involved writing and producing a musical comedy and finding a theatre-restaurant big enough to house it.

That week I rented a $2,000,000 knick-knack called the French Casino—formerly the Earl Carroll Theatre. I concocted an extravaganza revue with an exposition background, titled, "Let's Play Fair," and its hero was—you guessed it!—Grover Whalen. Then I engaged the elegant Oscar Shaw to portray the elegant Grover. The scenery and costumes for this pretty package came to a not-so-cool $75,000.

An hour after the papers announcing the show hit the street, Mr. Whalen was on the phone. "I understand you're going to do a show ridiculing me," he snapped.

"I'd suggest you come and see for yourself," I purred. "I'll save a downfront table for you on opening night."

I was betting that no man could stay away from a show in which he was the leading character. It was a cinch bet. On opening night, Mr. Whalen arrived half an hour before curtain time. My maitre d' did everything but sweep the aisle with palms as he showed him to his table. Well-coached waiters formed a bucked line to insure an adequate supply of Pol Roget '26.

When Oscar Shaw first came onstage, you could have toasted bread on Grover's good-looking face. But a moment later, he was all smiles. The actor portraying him was wearing striped pants and a morning coat which had set me back 200 simoleons. He walked, talked and sang gracefully, wisely and knowingly.

When the show was over, Mr. World's Fair invited me to join him.

"How'd you like it?" I asked.

"Delighted," said Mr. Whalen. "It's a fine show, and we could use something like it out at the Fair. Drop into my office tomorrow morning and we'll talk about it."

The next day the Messrs. Krimsky and Mermee didn't know what hit them. With Grover's help, I tied up the 10,000-seat Marine Amphitheatre at the entrance to the Midway. And in fairness to Grover let me say that the Aquacade paid more rent the next couple of seasons than the rest of the Midway put together. The day we clocked our 5,000,000th customer, I dropped in the Administration Building and told Grover about the hoax.

Grover laughed. It was a lucky thing for the Fair that you selected Oscar Shaw to play me," he said. "Had I seen myself as Jimmy Durante, I doubt whether there would have been an Aquacade."

EXTORTION LETTER

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— A 20-year-old housewife was held in jail today on a federal charge of sending an extortion letter to Actress Betty Grable.

Mrs. Jane Bean was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner David B. Head yesterday and ordered held under $1,000 bond pending a hearing Jan. 15.

Richard B. Hood, FBI chief here, said his agents arrested Mrs. Bean after a letter was written to the actress demanding $5,000 to prevent kidnaping of the youngest child of Miss Grable and her husband, Bandleader Harry James.

FIRED; THEY SUE

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Ring Lardner, Jr., Lester Cole and Edward Dmytryk have filed suits for a total of $3,165,925 against movie studios who removed them from their film jobs for refusal to answer questions before a house committee on un-American activities in Washington.

Dmytryk, producer and director, asked $1,783,425 from R-K-O Studio.

Lardner, a writer, demanded $1,382,500 from Twentieth Century-Fox and asked that his $2,000 weekly contract be declared in force. Cole's suit, directed at M-G-M, asked an injunction ordering the studio to put him back on his writing job at $1,150 weekly.

Aviation — And — Shipping

The coast guard cutter Winona returned to Port Angeles at 9:40 a.m. today from a month's weather duty in mid-Pacific. The tide was high when the Winona arrived, and families and friends lining the Angeles Gravel and Supply Company dock, looked up to the deck of the cutter towering above them to greet the coastguardsmen who have been away since before Christmas.

William Arbeiter made his cross-country solo flight from Port Angeles to Seattle and Bremerton yesterday in the Ercoupe. Arbeiter hopes to get his private license soon.

The highest tides of 1948 will occur on January 24 and 25 and on December 18, when the water in the Port Angeles harbor will reach the 8.7 foot mark. Today's tide of 8.1, at 9:50 a.m., accompanied by a slight swell, pounded high against the waterfront, but did no damage. Last year's highest tide occurred on December 23, when it reached the 9.1 foot mark here, and flooded Ediz hook runways, but did no damage.

WARNINGS UP

SEATTLE —(AP)— A small craft warning was hoisted at 6 a.m. today along the Washington coast through the Strait of Juan de Fuca and in Puget Sound south to Seattle. The warning was to expire at 6 p.m. Fresh to occasionally strong southeast winds were expected to shift to southwest during the afternoon.

Schools Sponsor Marionette Show Saturday Afternoon

Don George, Puppeteer, will present a show for adults and children Saturday beginning at 1 p.m. in Roosevelt high school auditorium. The show is sponsored by Lincoln, Washington and Jefferson elementary schools.

George opens the performance with a brief lecture in which he tells the origin and history of puppets and marionettes. He discusses the various kinds of puppets, and explains their construction and manipulation.

He then turns the program over to a red-haired marionette, Paul Bunyan, Jr., who acts as master of ceremonies for the remainder of the performance.

Little Paul, the puppet, finds a whole world of adventure between the pages of a large story book on the stage. From the pages step assorted characters from Alice in Wonderland, Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" and others. Special acts include a trapeze artist, and the grand climax when two boxers stage a violent match of several rounds' duration which is finally won by the hometown hero.

The entire performance lasts approximately one hour.

Phonograph Records For Library Patrons Soon

Plans for a phonograph lending library neared completion yesterday with the installation of specially built record cabinets in the Port Angeles Public Library.

Selected recordings, purchased with money donated by the Business and Professional Womens Club and the Port Angeles Evening News, are in stock. As soon as these records are catalogued they will be circulated to patrons in much the same manner as books, Jennilu Norris, librarian, said.

"In other cities where similar service is provided to borrowers, money to start and maintain it, is generally provided by cash donations from individuals and groups. Credit for instigating the project here goes to the members of the Business and Professional Womens Club and they plan to solicit the aid of other clubs to carry it out," Miss Norris said.

In the beginning the library committee prefers cash donations. Later, used records could be accepted.

Money for records may be sent to Mrs. Georgia Sullivan, treasurer of the business women's organization, or to Jennilu Norris, general chairman of the project.

Cold Weather Ends Big January Thaw

CHICAGO — (AP)—Snow, rain and colder weather ended at least temporarily today the fairly mild weather in parts of the midwest, east and the New England states.

TO MEET KING

COPENHAGEN—(AP)—Bareheaded and smiling, Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma boarded a train for Switzerland today to meet former King Mihai of Romania and complete plans for their wedding.

The blonde princess departed aboard a regularly scheduled train and with complete absence of ceremony.

Railway officials had opened the royal waiting room for her, but she disdained its use. Smilingly her father, Prince Rene, told bewildered station officials:

"Don't worry about us. We're just ordinary people, anyway."
