Review of Seattle Market for the Past Week.

CEREALS STILL GOING HIGHER

Some Brands of Flour Going Up—Chop Feed, Oats and Barley Higher—Canned Meats Higher Clearing House Balances

SEATTLE, April 27, 1894.

Exchanges at Seattle, Tacoma and Portland clearing houses to-day were:

	Clearances.	Balances.
Seattle	$111,029.52	$56,534.21
Tacoma	61,060,00	11,060.07
Portland	308,000.00	127,000.00

The upward tendency in cereals has been continued during the past week, but not to such an extent as the week previous. Reports from California show that the drought still continues, making a short crop probable. Oats and barley have advanced $1 per ton, and chop feed has been marked up $2. Some brands of flour have advanced, making nearly all brands higher than heretofore.

Potatoes continue at about the same prices for good varieties, but poor quality goods are plentiful and prices for them are low. Other vegetables remain unchanged.

In the wholesale grocery trade there are few changes. All canned meats are very firm and some have advanced.

Beans have taken another move upward, from a ¼ to ¾ of a cent, according to variety.

Lard has advanced ½ cent in tierces, but other packing house products are unchanged.

Logging in Clallam.

This country's greatest material resource is its timber, and a good lumber market will do us more good than any other good fortune that could fall to our lot.

Every extension of the work of milling and logging in Clallam county is watched with keenest interest by every citizen, as it means that much more money to be distributed in return for labor and timber, two things which our county has in abundance.

A new logging outfit is about ready to begin work at the mouth of Twin rivers, being the first logging yet attempted in that township, which was opened for filing by the United States Government about three years ago, and has, substantially, all passed into private ownership.

The stretch of timber along Twin rivers is as fine as any in the county and it stands so near to the salt water that it can be logged with comparative ease.

The new outfit consists of Messrs. E. P. Jones, and A. E. and Wm. P. Tower. They will begin work on the Jones claim which lies at the beach, between the mouths of east and west Twin. From there they expect to extend their skid roads back through the claims of M. M. Lawrence and Wm. P. Tower, a distance of about two miles. These contain some of the finest timber standing, and as they are contiguous, they can all be reached by one system of roads.

Denounced, Dishonored.

The Chicago Herald (Dem.) does not deal gently with Senator Hill, indeed, we have yet to see the Democratic paper that has a word to say in his defense. The Herald says: "For Senator David B. Hill there is no excuse for the wontonness of this treachery, nor for the corrupt political ambition, selfishness and greed in which it was engendered. His name is crossed out of the Democratic books. His place is among the camp followers of the Republican party." The Indianapolis Sentinel (Dem.) also says: "David B. Hill stands before the Democratic readers of the country unmasked, a hypocrite, a pretender, a Democrat no longer."

THE RED LETTER DAY.

The First National Bank of Port Angeles

RESUMED PAYMENT YESTERDAY.

It is Now Upon a Sounder, Better Financial Basis Than Ever—The Officers and Directors Who Will Manage and Direct Its Affairs—The Opening of the Bank Create a More Hopeful Feeling Amongst the Business Men of Angeles and Clallam.

Last July the distrust, uneasiness and impatience of a large number of the principal depositors of the First National Bank of this city impelled a run on that institution, which precipitated the inevitable result of forcing it to close its doors to the general public. This occurred at a most inopportune time—at the height of the great financial panic, when hundreds of the oldest and what were generally believed to be the solidest banking institutions, were suspending payment over the country, when distrust and general business paralysis prevailed everywhere, and when money loaners would not entertain a loan at any rate of interest or upon any security. This was the condition in the East, in the very money centres where securities were never before questioned and always would command a ready loan. And how much more discouraging and deplorable such a condition in a new place situated in a comparatively new commonwealth, far removed from the established centres of commerce and of business? This was the appalling and overwhelmingly discouraging condition which confronted the management of the local bank at the time it suspended payment. And would it have been strange or unnatural had they have become dismayed and relinquished as countless thousands did, who, like they, were creatures of adverse circumstances, over which they had no control.

These men, however, knew no such word as fail, arose supreme to the demands of the hour, undaunted and determined to overcome every obstacle and rescue the bank from the financial straits into which it has been forced. The object was laudable, was worthy and although the condition of the times was most positively and most decidedly unfavorable to success, they persevered and finally have triumphantly succeeded, and the First National Bank of Port Angeles resumed payment and opened its doors yesterday, upon a solider, firmer financial foundation than since its establishment.

The resumption of this institution is, indeed, auspicious. It unmistakably evidences a better, more wholesome, more encouraging condition of business throughout the country. It marks the beginning of better feeling in Port Angeles and in Clallam. It is the forerunner of a commercial and industrial movement setting in, that will develop into a period of imprecedented prosperity.

The bank resumes partially under a new management. The following have been elected directors and officers: C. W. Thompson, President; Edmund Seymour, Vice-President; C. E. Mallette, Cashier; D. W. Morse, Frank Chambers Geo. C. Hatch, C. P. Brown.

These gentlemen are conservative, reliable, successful business men, who, no doubt, will administer the affairs of the bank in an impartial, intelligent and safe manner, that will command the confidence of the general public.

The citizens are to be congratulated over the successful disentanglement of the First National Bank from its financial difficulties, and its management are deserving of praise and commendation for their untiring and ultimately successful efforts to overcome the grave obstacles in the way of the achievement so devoutly wished.

The Revenue Cutter Grant Arrives.

Last Sunday the United States revenue cutter Grant steamed into the harbor from San Francisco, thus successfully terminating a four and a half months voyage from New York around the horn into the waters of Puget Sound. The actual number of sailing days were, however, only sixty-nine. The Grant was in command of Capt. Tozier, an old, experienced Pacific coast navigator, who, during the past quarter century, has commanded, in these waters, a number of the government's revenue boats.

The Grant is a first-class steamer of 362 tons burden, mounts four guns and was built at Wilmington, Del., in 1871. In point of tonnage, she is number 4 among the revenue vessels, and her complement consists of seven officers and thirty-three men, the largest number of any vessel in the revenue service. The Grant's voyage around the Horn was begun under very auspicious circumstances, but during its progress and at the end affairs were different. She left New York on the morning of December 6th, and from there to Barbadoes, which was reached on the 14th, pleasant weather prevailed. She sailed from there on December 18, and put into Bahia with disabled engines on January 1. Twelve days later the voyage was resumed, and Montivideo was reached on the 19th, and from then until February 5, she was in the dry dock and incidentally in quarantine, for yellow jack had been met at Montevideo. Valparaiso was reached February 28th, and March 1st, the Grant started for Callao, arriving on the 6th. San Diago was reached March 17th, and San Francisco a few days later. She sailed from San Francisco at 10 o'clock April 17th, and arrived here Sunday. The officers' list includes the following: Capt. D. F. Tozier, First Lieutentant, Francis Tuttle, executive officer; Second Lieut., F. H. Dimock, navigator; Second Lieut., G. L. Carden; Third Lieut., T. H. Lewis, Chief Engineer J. A. Doyle, First Assistant Engineer W. J. Phillips, Second Assistant Engineer, W. E. MacCoun. Accompanying Capt. Tozier on the long trip around were his wife and daughter. Mrs. Judge Scott was also a guest from New York. At San Francisco Judge Scott, Capt. Grant, of the tug Discovery, and Lieut. Tuttle joined the vessel. Just what disposition will be made of the Grant is not known, but one thing is certain, she is not going to Bering sea.

Life Saving Station at Flattery.

Port Townsend Call: What is our Senator in Washington doing toward having the life-saving station established in the vicinity of Flattery Rocks? Is it possible that Senator Squire—the man who went recently before the treasury department and succeeded in the interest of the Seattle saloon and dive keepers by having the Yorktown detained at Seattle—does not possess influence enough to have the government take steps for the much needed protection of life. The people of Puget Sound have done everything in their power to have this station established; the masters of vessels that have recently been wrecked near Flattery Rocks have recommended, in their reports, the establishment of a first-class station; now the matter rests entirely with our representatives in Washington. This is a matter that should not be delayed. It should have precedence over the interest of Seattle whisky sellers.

THE CHERRY STREET

Ordinance Creating an Assessment District.

THE CITY ENGINEER ESTIMATES

That the Opening, Grading and Sidewalking of That Thoroughfare Will Cost $15,000—Celebration of the Seventy-Fifth Anniversary I. O. O. F.—The Superior Court Awards Van Lehn et al. Damages Unjust Levy.

The council met in regular session last Wednesday evening.

The petition of Henry Landes for rebate of taxes amounting to $7.50 was allowed.

The use of the council chamber was granted the People's party every Friday evening.

W. C. Williams, manager, informed the council that he had sold $13,000 of the electric lighting bonds, and requesting that the treasurer be instructed to forward such amount of bonds to some bank in Seattle. The matter was referred to the finance committee.

Ordinance No. 211, introductory to grading Cherry street was passed and approved by the mayor. The city engineer submitted an estimate of the probable cost of the improvement of this thoroughfare, which aggregates $15,000 for grading and sidewalking.

The petition of J. W. Brow to have the plat of Doyle's sub-division of suburban lot No. 20, original townsite vacated, was rejected.

Ordinance providing for the licensing of wholesale liquor dealers was passed to its first reading and referred to the ordinance committee.

Several protests were filed by parties claiming the ownership to certain abutting property on Cherry and Eighth streets, to having such streets created local improvement districts. The city attorney was instructed to take immediate action to secure Lincoln street as one of the highways of the city. The city attorney was also instructed to proceed to Seattle if necessary, for the purpose of obtaining information bearing upon the proper manner in form of preparing ordinances relating to grading and improving streets in this city.

The street commissioner was instructed to have two holes cut through the ceiling of the council room and one through the roof of the building.

The limit of time for filing notices protesting against the improvement of Cherry street was fixed for Monday, May 21, 1894.

After passing claims approved by the proper committees, the council adjourned.

"Friendship, Love and Truth." Only three words, yet how much they suggest to every Odd Fellow true and tried in the principles of that order. The three links, each representing the noblest, grandest emotions of the human heart, sentiments, the inspiration of which stimulates lofty aspirations and paves the way for the accomplishment of laudable purposes and philanthropic deeds.

Yesterday the seventy-fifth mile-stone in the existence of Oddfellowship in this country was reached, an event which was appropriately observed throughout the length and breadth of the land in every city, village and hamlet wherever this order is represented.

Its growth in this country has, indeed, been remarkable during the three-quarter century, but the zenith of its fame and of its greatness has apparently not yet been reached, as it shows to-day even greater vitality, vigor and usefulness in its particular sphere than at any other period of its existence.

In Port Angeles Oddfellowship is well represented with two flourishing lodges, the membership of which nearly reaches 200. And the members are numbered amongst the better, more progressive element of business and professional men. With this a fact it would be need less to add that the day was properly observed. With the break of morn an exceedingly refreshing and copious shower prevailed, which continued throughout the day, contributing the only disagreeable feature of the celebration.

The exercises in the opera house proved very interesting. The decorations were tasteful and artistic, particularly is this true of the floral offerings, the most beautiful and artisticaliy designed of which was contributed and arranged by Mr. Smythe, the florist. This floral motto, with the letters "F. L. and T." skillfully adjusted in the center, occupied the place of honor on the stage, and was the observed of admiring observers during the day.

The Rebekahs served delicious refreshments in the old council chambers from 11:30 until 1:30. The following excellent program was produced in the opera house, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon:

Music.....Orchestra
Oration.....Geo C Hatch
Solo.....Mrs. John W Troy
Duet...Herb Hamilton and Rosie Burns
Recitation.....Edgar Graham
Solo.....Lou Smith
Selection.....Orchestra
Solo.....Ben Keller
Selections.....Orchestra and Band

A dance in the evening was the concluding number, and to many the crowning feature of the program.

Van Lehn Wins.

Last July B. F. Van Lehn et al, purchased from C. E. Bell & Co., a stock of goods, paying therefor certain real property, $500 in cash and $200 city warrants. Three days later Cash, Murry & Co., and other Seattle creditors attached the property. Van Lehn et al replevined the goods, giving a replevin bond in the sum of $8,000. Following this, other creditors levied on it and the sheriff sold the property. Van Lehn then brought a replevin suit, which was tried, the jury rendering a verdict against them. The court granted a motion for a new trial The second trial came on to be heard with the same result.

Last Tuesday Judge McClinton granted another new trial.

After the sheriff sold the goods on the second levy, Van Lehn sued him for the value of the same, $2,400. This last claim came up for trial Wednesday last, the court holding that inasmuch as Van Lehn, et al, had given a replevin bond, that while the suit was pending in the superior court it was not a just levy, therefore Van Lehn et al, were entitled to recover from the sheriff the value of the goods thus levied upon.

A Receiver Appointed.

The Superior court was recently petitioned by some of the principal creditors of the Port Angeles Mill and Lumber Company, to appoint a receiver in the hands of whom to place the business of that company for the equitable adjustment and settlement of its accounts.

Yesterday the court acquiesced in the appointment of Mr. Thomas Maloney, of this city, as receiver.

This company owns and operates the Dry Creek lumber and shingle mill, which it has operated, seemingly, under adverse circumstances, as its management has had during the past three years a succession of financial difficulties that would overwhelm, discourage and crush the spirits of the bravest of men.

It is to be hoped, however, the receiver will see his way clear to continue the mill in operation, as it has certainly been a source of revenue to the city, and has as well provided employment to a large number of men.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be at once advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

Portland, Oregon, September 26, 1892.
Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Years of exposure and hard work, combined with the strain coming from the jar of an engine, gave me a severe case of lame back, from which I suffered for several years. I was so bad that I could not bend my back. Was all doubled up with it. I bought one of your belts. It helped me in side of two days, and I continued to wear it for four months, being perfectly cured. This was two years ago, and I am as well to-day as I ever was in my life. I know your belt well, and I know lots of people who have been cured by it. Many others need it, and if they would try it they would find it the same as I did—the best remedy in the world. CHAPTER III.

SAMUEL WATKINS ON THE DISAPPEARANCE.

I have to report a very mysterious disappearance which took place in this neighborhood last Wednesday, the 10th inst. The eldest son of our rector, the Rev. Mr. Freeman, left home in the afternoon to go fishing and never returned. He was seen by a boat's crew shortly afterward fishing from the rock to which he had announced that he would go for that purpose. For reasons which I need not set down I am absolutely certain that he did not run away. That he slipped from the rock and was drowned is also well nigh incredible, for he was a splendid swimmer and a remarkably athletic and spirited young man. Nor is it credible that he met with foul play in such a spot and at such a time, for he had nothing with him to excite cupidity; he was very popular, too, in the neighborhood, and after making many secret inquiries I do not believe that he had an enemy in the whole countryside. It is possible no doubt that from some other part of the country an enemy may have followed him hither, killed him unawares on the rock and flung his body into the sea. The ground, however, has been carefully dragged under my direction by the coast guards of the adjoining station. They found nothing, not even his rod, which disappeared along with him. Subsequently I secured the services of the diver who is at work on the construction of the Coosdarig pier for the board of works. He came next day with his diving apparatus and assistants and made a careful inspection of the ground without discovering anything. If young Freeman was drowned here, his rod, weighted as it was by a heavy brass reel, should have been found. Altogether the case is mysterious, nor can I frame any theory which would rationally account for it. I have caused advertisements to be inserted in all the Connaught papers giving a description of young Freeman.

SAMUEL WATKINS.

MY DEAR HARRY—You cannot imagine how much I have been upset about this affair, which is now a week old, but which still supplies me with as much perplexity and as much sorrow and pain as if it occurred only yesterday, indeed a great deal more. John Freeman, the lost boy—I find it hard to picture him as anything but a boy—has been known by me intimately since he was 13 years of age. I can honestly say that I have never known a finer, braver, more honorable and more affectionate lad. He is not exactly handsome, though he has the brightest and fieriest eyes of glowing hazel that I ever saw and a very beautiful mouth; nor clever, yet at the same time not deficient in intelligence. What has always attracted me to him is partly a certain simplicity which neither public school life nor college life has yet succeeded in impairing, and something in his manner and expression which suggests that he not only never did entertain but never could entertain a mean thought. I have known him intimately since he first went to school, and you may be assured he is all that I represent him and more. He is absolutely without vice, though I hear that during the last term he has begun to smoke a little. As to physique, though not tall, he is the strongest and almost the most athletic youth whom it has ever been my good fortune to meet, large limbed, muscular and brimful always of the most perfect health and unfailing good spirits. As a swimmer and diver I never saw his equal. I have often seen him strip on a wild day in December or January and swim long distances to recover some curlew or pigeon which he had shot. But enough of this. Suffice it to say that not only as the constabulary officer of this district, but as his own close personal friend, the astonishing and mysterious disappearance of poor Freeman under the circumstances detailed in the official report has been to me a most severe blow. I have done and am doing my best. But every night finds me here in my den cogitating aimlessly over this tragedy, for the worst of it is that I am unable even to imagine a theory which will in the least square with the facts. I must at least seem to be doing something. I frame now one theory of the disappearance, now another, and send out my men and institute searching parties on the assumption that those theories are correct, but at the same time I know that so far from being correct they are in each case incredible and even absurd. Every one looks to me to solve the mystery, to recover the body or explain at least how he was killed or stolen, and I am no more able to do so than to translate Confucius from the original Chinese.

When you were with me last summer, the Freeman family were away from home, but you remember the position of the rectory, which is visible from the rock behind my cottage, and its situation with respect to the rock called Dhu-Corrig, which lies at the end of this picturesque valley. The Rev. Mr. Freeman is a gentleman for whom I have always felt a great respect, but one with whom I was never able quite to hit it off, and our relations have latterly become very strained indeed. I could never get into the habit of steady churchgoing. If I went to morning service, I staid away from evening ditto, and sometimes without valid excuse have omitted both morning and evening service. My behavior appeared still worse when contrasted with that of the coast guard officer, old Crumps, who as regularly as the bell tolls on Sunday morning and Sunday evening and Wednesday evening, too—for we have a service then also—may be seen, usually with a cigar in his mouth, but always with a big Bible adorned with blue markers under his arm, wending his way to the house of prayer. Long since Mr. Freeman began to speak to me about my irregularities and at first in a perfectly polite manner. I promised amendment, but did not amend. Then as "the pastor of my flock," such was his expression, he spoke to me very sternly indeed about the duty incumbent on all progressing Christians of attending the house of God. Both the manner and the matter of these exhortations I resented, always, I hope, remembering that he was not only a clergyman, but an elderly man, and of proud piety and rectitude. I said nothing calculated to offend, but I felt myself becoming stiff necked and rebellious and all the old Adam rising strong within me, and I dare say this came out in my manner and the tones of my voice.

But things reached their climax not long after you left me and when Mr. Freeman and his family had returned to the rectory from a short visit to an adjoining country, where he has a small landed estate, very much mortgaged, I believe, and a residence called Castle Cove. The family spend a fortnight or three weeks there every summer and were about to make their annual migration when John Freeman was lost. There is an old maiden lady in this parish who delights in giving the most trivial conversation a theological turn. One unlucky day while visiting at her house in company with my wife I became so daring and free spoken as to declare that in my opinion the days mentioned in the first book of Genesis were ages or long intervals of time and not days in our sense of the word. I believe that in Dublin such an opinion would pass without exciting astonishment, and indeed I have been told that it is held by some clergymen of piety and repute. A few days later I was subjected to a very pastoral visit from Mr. Freeman. I refused to retract my heresy, was obliged to listen to language of a very cutting description indeed, and ever since my relations with Mr. Freeman have been, as I have said, strained, and our mutual salutations of the very coldest character. He thinks I am corrupting the flock, and I think—well, no more of that now. If he was harsh and censorious then, he is plunged in deep tribulation now.

The next brother is Edward, a tall, loose jointed, black eyed and merry stripling, far more popular than John, owing to his pleasant ways and ready speech, greatly devoted to flute playing and performances on the cornet-a-piston, and a magnificent leaper and swimmer, though by no means as powerful and athletic as his brother John, who—but I think I have sufficiently described him already. There is no girl. Next comes Sam, who is somewhat of a nondescript, a staid, self contained, stubborn sort of boy. The fourth son is a little boy called Charley, a weird looking child, all eyes, like a young crow, and who never laughs. Mrs. Freeman is as quiet and unassuming as her husband—at least where his pastoral authority and sense of theological duty are concerned—is not. She is kind, gentle, most hospitable, a truly Christian lady.

You have now a rapid sketch of this bereaved family, which if this mystery produces any fresh complexities or developments, as I suspect it will, may be of service to you for the better understanding of my subsequent letters. It may, too, put you into a better position for giving me a hint or clew concerning any possible explanation of the mystery which may suggest itself to you. Of such be not sparing, write at length, fully weighing and considering all the facts. Was John Freeman drowned or murdered or spirited away and hidden, or did he run away, or was he swept off by the tide and picked up by a passing ship? Consider all the possibilities and write. When we were at the depot together, I remember you used to guess out the mystery of a novel from the first few chapters. This disappearance is curiously like the first chapter of a novel. Bring your guessing and solving powers to bear upon it and oblige, yours truly, SAMUEL WATKINS.

CHAPTER IV.

Every one had given up all hope of ever seeing my brother again when one person, if a child of 8 may be called a person, strongly and continually began to assert that he was alive. How I became possessed of this conviction I now proceed to relate. It happened in this manner: On the night of the 31st of July, exactly three weeks and a day after the disappearance, I had a very singular experience, which, in spite of all absurd theories of brain waves, telepathy and I know not what, I still firmly believe to have been an instance of divine interposition. It was upon a Wednesday night, as I particularly remember, because my father always had service on Wednesday nights. I had been to church and returned with the rest of the family. I went to bed as usual at 7:30 in good health, if not in good spirits. Truly during those weeks we were all terribly afflicted and cast down. Between 8 and 9 o'clock as I lay wide awake I saw not a dream, but a clear, waking vision. At the time I was not thinking of Jack at all. I had just got into bed and was lying on my back and looking upward into the dark. I became aware of a light not far from me on the left and thought at first that some one had come into the room with a lamp. Turning a little to one side, I saw a fire burning red and smoky, from which went up a good many sparks. This was all I saw at first, but presently I became aware that some one was sitting near it with his back toward me, bareheaded and perfectly still. It was Jack. I sat up and called him by his name. But he made no answer and did not move. Then I asked him a succession of short quick questions as to what he was doing, why he did not answer me, etc. There was darkness all round the place illuminated by the fire, but afterward I remembered having seen rough shiny points of ragged rock on which the firelight faintly played and flickered. I did see clearly a large fish which lay beside him on a flagstone close to the fire. To judge by his attitude, he appeared to be gazing intently into the heart of the blaze. Once he stooped forward a little as if to feed the fire. Still shouting questions, I sprang from my bed and rushed toward him, intending to lay my hand on his shoulder. Then I came violently into collision with something solid; it was a wardrobe which stood against the wall of the room in front of my bed. Recovering myself, I could see the vision still before me as clear and distinct as if I saw it with my eyes; indeed I have not the least doubt that I did see it with my eyes. Then soft arms were laid around me, and I was raised up. It was my mother, who had run up stairs, hearing my cries. She put me back in bed. All the whole family had rushed to the room greatly frightened by my screamings and loud, excited talk. Though there were candles in the room, I still saw the apparition, vision or whatever it might be called, and still urging my mother and brothers to see it, too, was deposited in bed and even forcibly held down; then when I was again able to look in the same direction the vision was gone.

Of course my mother concluded at once that I was ill, laboring perhaps under an acute gastric attack, the commencement of a gastric fever, and I was treated in the assumption that I was suffering from that common child's malady and dosed with the usual medicines. My mother was surprised in the morning to find no sign of illness upon me and still more so when the doctor declared that I was perfectly well.

Though I was kept in bed, my brothers were admitted to see me. Of course I told over and over again the whole story of the vision.

"Jack is alive somewhere," I kept saying, "and must be searched for."

"Why do you go on like that, Charley?" they said. "Don't you know that he is dead? It was a dream."

"It was no dream," I answered. "I was as broad awake as you are. I saw him, and how could I see him if he wasn't alive?"

"But how could he be in the room? There is no trace of fire here. How can you be so foolish?"

"No," I replied, "he wasn't in the room, of course. When I struck the press, which stands against the wall here, I could see him still beyond me. So of course he wasn't in the room. But he was somewhere else, and I saw him, and he is alive."

On the following night, shortly after the big mahogany clock in the lobby struck 8, I continued to watch intently for the reappearance of the vision. Nothing came, however, though I heard the clock strike 9. But on the following night I had an experience quite as surprising to myself, though not to others, as that vision of the fire and my brother sitting between me and it. A few minutes after the clock struck I seemed to grow suddenly and curiously cold, and while still staring out into the darkness I was aware of the words the "Devil's Parlor" coming into my mind. I did not hear the words at all with my ears. It was as if my mind had ears and that I heard the words in that way, very clear and distinct, but not at all as if spoken by any audible voice. I did not cry out or make any noise on this occasion, but resolved to stay awake and tell my brothers when they came to bed. I fell asleep, however, before they came up. In the morning I awoke them and told what had happened. They treated me as little Joseph was treated by his brothers; nevertheless I saw them look significantly at each other. After breakfast and before school hours they went off together, Ned bringing his cornopean with him. The "Devil's Parlor" was an awe inspiring cleft, the opening to some deep and mysterious subterranean hollow in the side of a long hill which lay about a mile westward from the rectory. As I afterward learned, my two brothers went to the cleft, shouted down into it both together, and Ned blew his cornet-a-piston, mouth downward, awaking huge echoes and reverberations there. Then they listened, but heard no reply. They hardly spoke to me at all after this and never about my mysterious visions and experiences. The same day I took from the sideboard in the dining room a great homemade brown cake, and going off by myself rolled it down the "Devil's Parlor." Two days afterward I took and rolled down another and continued to tell every one that Jack was alive and in the "Devil's Parlor." I had rolled down some half dozen cakes in this manner when my mother, who was aware of the rapid disappearance of her cakes, discovered me in the act of making off with one.

That night she and my father had a consultation on my case, and the following day I was sent off to an uncle and aunt who lived in an adjoining county. Of course my parents thought that my mind was affected, and my mother attributed it to excessively long school hours and too much brain work. At my uncle's I had nothing to do but amuse myself, and gradually I came to think that perhaps what my uncle and aunt said was true, and that these experiences were only dreams or lively imaginations, which was the expression they used. I was to come home at Christmas, but early in November a messenger arrived with a letter from Ned addressed to my uncle, telling him to send me home at once. Something very strange had occurred in the meantime—something that caused my visions and voices to be regarded at home in a quite new light.

RESUMES PAYMENT.

Every true citizen is devoutly thankful, and every loyal citizen sincerely feels that there is genuine cause for congratulations over the happy and satisfactory adjustment of the affairs of the First National Bank of Port Angeles, which permitted that institution to resume payment yesterday,

The feeling of relief, the restoration of confidence, the air of cheerfulness, hopefulness and buoyancy which pervaded the community yesterday was, indeed, significant of the fact, whether well or ill-founded, it matters not which, that the turn in the affairs of this people after months in suffering and travail, had at last been reached, and the tendency would be onward and upward until general prosperity would again reign supreme. Let it be devoutly hoped, that the expectations of the most sanguine will not be doomed to bitter disappointment, but rather on the contrary the reasonable desire for better times will be fulfilled to the uttermost.

This much, however, is true, the resumption of the bank is exceedingly auspicious and timely. The confidence partially destroyed, the distrust created abroad by its suspension, the inability of the community to maintain the integrity of its credit, redeem its business obligations, will again be restored. The failure of a bank is the result, of course, of the violation of cardinal business principles, chiefly among which is extending credit to patrons with questionable securities, or securities that cannot be realized upon only in the flood-time of prosperity. Conservatism is, therefore, the beacon-light that marks the course the management of any great enterprise must pursue.

The local bank had abundant securities, the greater amount of which was absolutely good, but not immediately available, consequently the unreasonable demands of depositors forced its suspension at a time when it was really in a solvent condition, could it have realized upon its securities.

The management deserves credit, however, for the courage, determination and earnestness with which they have pursued unfalteringly the laudable purpose of overcoming the financial straits into which the bank was precipitated to a triumphant issue.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND recently sent to the senate the appointment of Felix G. Cockrell as postmaster at East St. Louis, Mo." This leads the Chicago Times to suggest that the president should put in a few hours each day under the careful tutefage of baby Ruth's governess.

"Resolved, That the un-Democratic course of Thomas J. Geary in reference to the Wilson bill is hereby condemned;"

Senator Hill and Thomas J. Geary must conclude that there is no place for them in the councils of the party they have so shamefully betrayed.

THE Democrats and Populists of Portland, Oregon, have fused and they are making a winning fight for the city and county government.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY.

Since assuming control of the Colony mill the leasers have wrought a radical change in the condition of the mill. The machinery has been thoroughly overhauled, and is now in almost perfect, in fact better condition than ever before, and ready for long continued operation.

The management gives evidence of vigor, energy and vim, as its movements will not be confined to a limited local market, the demands of which are at present insufficient to keep the mill in operation, as satisfactory arrangements have been made to export to California the entire output of the mill.

It is exceedingly gratifying that these gentlemen have had the courage and breadth of business perception to extend their business operations beyond the uncertain, fluctuating and unsatisfactory limit of a local market, which at best would not for years to come utilize the output of a large commercial mill.

The situation of Port Angeles for the establishment of large commercial saw mills is supurb, viewed either from the point of shipping or available merchantable timber, and that these advantages have not long since been utilized, seriously reflects to the discredit of the community.

Frank Hatton Reviews In Facetious Style Senator Morgan's Hawaiian Report.

Some day, in the sweet by and by perhaps, we shall know exactly what Senator Morgan's report on the Hawaiian investigation really means. We shall know whether it is intended as a manly demonstration of American sentiment or a suave and servile whitewashing of a discreditable blunder—whether it is a shriek of the noble bird of freedom or the still small warble of the lowly cuckoo.

For the present we are able to disentangle from the bewildering labyrinth of its language one isolated fact of moment—the fact that Mr. Morgan and a majority of the committee with him believe in the annexation of the islands. Out of that wild and tossing sea of rhetoric we have succeeded in snatching this lonely derelict. But all the rest of it is enveloped in a tender haze of volubility, which, while it accomplishes wonders in the way of stimulating guesswork, is valueless as a guide to definite conclusions. The utterance appears to be confused with howevers and notwithstandings and moreovers, and there is in it an opulence of "if so, why not?" profundity that baffles exact analysis.

According to this astonishing document, everybody connected with the Hawaiian incident behaved like a statesman, a scholar, a hero and a patriot. Mr. Stevens was correct, and so was Mr. Blount. President Dole is a great man on the right track, and Liliuokalani a perfect lady, if somewhat in distress. The United States authorities acted wisely in recognizing the queen's downfall, and the administration has kept well within its lawful powers in trying to set her up again. In a word, the report furnishes a common ground upon which all men may meet and where all sorts of opinions can find encouragement and sympathy.

As we say, there is just one downright proposition to which the bewildered citizen may cling, and that is the clear, unequivocal and unmitigated declaration by seven out of the nine parties to the report that they favor the annexation of Hawaii by the United States.—Washington Post.

HARK FROM THE TOMBS.

Conviction of Voters Who Came From New York's Doleful Prison.

Three men were convicted in the court of oyer and terminer on Monday (two of them pleaded guilty) of the offense of voting from the Tombs in violation of section 3 of article 2 of the state constitution, which declares that "no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence while in the service of the United States, or while kept in any almshouse or other asylum at public expense, or while confined in any public prison."

The case of the defendant Cady, who was found guilty by a jury, was peculiar. He had voluntarily resided for seven years, without commitment for any offense, in the Tombs. He had no other home. He was not qualified to vote from any other domicile. He registered and voted from the city prison, from which he readily obtained egress, and he was tried and convicted. Judge Barrett announced, however, that he would give a certificate of reasonable doubt, so that the question whether a man without a home, except such as he obtains for himself in a city prison, is actually and totally disfranchised, might be decided by a higher court. The situation is certainly an odd one.—New York Sun.

Heavily Insured Monarchs.

The crowned heads of Europe seem to take a great deal of stock in life insurance. It is announced that the king of Portugal has just taken out a $200,000 policy on his life, but that is an insignificant investment compared with those of some of the other potentates. The late Emperor Frederick of Germany was insured for $4,000,000. The queen regent of Spain has her life insured for a large amount in behalf of her two little daughters, following the example of her husband, whose death mulcted the various companies in which he was insured for $5,000,000.

King Leopold of Belgium's life is heavily insured, as is also that of Queen Victoria. The queen's husband, the late prince consort, was insured for close upon $5,000,000, the income of which has been enjoyed by his widow. About the only sovereign in Europe who is not insured is the czar of Russia, the companies regarding him as too unsafe a risk on account of the nihilists.—Boston Herald.

High Praise For the Landlord.

Two well dressed strangers came to the Virginia hotel four days ago and registered from Louisville. They left yesterday, leaving their bill of $17 unpaid, and the following note:

"Man's inability to successfully portray his thoughts, his mental powers being incapable to correctly define his meaning, is why I will not endeavor to burden you with an attempt at expressing my thanks for your treatment so gentlemanly, etc., during my stay. Extend to your menials also my thanks. May your shadow never grow less, and may continued prosperity shine in unclouded warm rays on your benevolent head."—Staunton (Va.) Dispatch.

The Khedive's Favor.

It is well to be on good terms with the khedive of Egypt. This young monarch has lately presented a beautiful bracelet to a young English woman who took his fancy, the value of which is beyond calculation. It is gold set with scarabei, and each stone is upward of 4,000 years old. Some of these belonged to high priests in the days of the pharaohs, and the inscriptions on them relate to magic. —Alexandria Letter.

The Canon Smokes Cigarettes.

Those who delight in discovering inconsistencies in personal conduct are pointing out that Canon Wilberforce, the new canon of Westminster, is an inveterate cigarette smoker, says a London correspondent. He has for years waged a fierce crusade against intemperance, the opium trade and vivisection.

Who Says Rheumatism Can Not Be Cured

My wife was confined to her bed for over two months with a very severe attack of rheumatism. AN EXCELLENT PROGRAM

The entertainment given at the Congregational Church last Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Lyceum League, has been generally spoken of as meritorious by those privileged to attend.

The numbers of the program were very creditably produced, receiving from beginning to end the sincerest of approval.

The purpose of the entertainment was to raise funds with which to pay for a large portrait of the Father of his country, which the League has presented to the public schools of the city—an exceedingly commendable object, and one in which the promoters deserve success. The following is the program:

Eighth Street Improvement.

Property owners on Eighth street petitioned the council last Wednesday evening, approving their action in a former petition, which prayed for the opening, grading, sidewalking and planking of that street, with the exception of the latter, as upon maturer consideration of the question, the fact was forced upon them that the cost of planking the street would necessitate an additional outlay of a large amount of money, the expense of which property owners were at present in no condition to bear. Then again, the traffic on that thoroughfare will not be for some years to come sufficiently heavy to demand planking, viewed from that standpoint it would be burdensome and unnecessary.

AFFIDAVIT:

Personally appeared before me, this day, Frank McGill, Mayor of the city of Port Angeles, Malcolm McGill, City Councilman from the Fifth ward of the city of Port Angeles; C. K. Humphries, City Clerk of the city of Port Angeles, and T. T. Aldwell, merchant, in the city of Port Angeles, who, being duly sworn according to law, disposes, and says, each for himself:

Referring to the affidavit of T. M Graybil, Councilman from the Fourth ward of said city, as printed and published in "The People," a newspaper published in the city of Port Angeles, in its issue of Tuesday, April 24th, 1894, bearing upon the issuance of a certain warrant upon the general fund of said city, in the sum of One Hundred Dollars (100 00), and payable to the order of C. K. Humphries, the proceeds of which were to be applied to defray the expenses of the committee, appointed by the Mayor and Finance Committee of said city, to proceed to Seattle, to sell certain warrants, in order that the interest due on bonds sold should be promptly met, we, and each of us, further deny that said T. M. Graybill was not made aware that such general fund warrant was to be issued.

We, and each of us now dispose and say, that the said T. M. Graybill, Councilman from the Fourth ward, concurred in, agreed to, and advocated the issuance of such warrant aforesaid, that such agreement, concurrence, and advocacy, took place on the night of January 24th, 1894, at the office of T. T. Aldwell, Esq., on Front Street, in said city, shortly after the adjournment of the City Council of said city on Wednesday night, January 24th, 1894, and that then and there said T. M. Graybill, Councilman from the Fourth ward, stated that "$25 each was little enough" for such special committee to proceed to Seattle upon.

A NEW SUN MOTION.

Professor Stevenson Has Completed a Wonderful Invention After Years of Labor.

Professor E. E. Stevenson, a well known educator and writer of Quincy, Mass., announces the completion of an invention on which he has been laboring for years, which, he says, will revolutionize the present methods of obtaining motive power. Professor Stevenson has pursued his investigations and experiments in Quincy all winter and has at last brought his idea to a head. Professor Stevenson said: "The forces which have thus far been utilized by the genius of man are the laws of gravitation and chemical reaction. In the broad field of research and investigation we find the possibilities of the future in molecular attraction, musical vibration and the refraction of light.

"To understand the theory on which I have been laboring you must understand the corelation of forces or the transmutation of energies. We use force to produce light. It is upon the reverse of this theory that I have labored, and my experiments are at last proving satisfactory. I have found that the heat of an ordinary kitchen stove generates energy sufficient, if controlled, to drive the machinery of the Pillsbury mills, and the flames of a Bunson electric burner would furnish power to light by electricity 1,000 lights."

In Professor Stevenson's experimental machine, however, the heat of the sun alone has been used. This machine consists of three brass cylinders connected by means of tubes and valves with a glass reflector behind the central cylinder. A piston moving laterally connecting with a balance wheel gives the motion. The shaft on which the balance wheel hangs passes through the end of the machine and contains a drive pulley, which makes the force available. This machine is operated by the sun, working with great rapidity.—Boston Journal.

SOMETHING IN THIS NAME.

But the Man Whose Property It Is Wishes He Had Not Recalled It.

The mystery that has been surrounding the identity of David Draughn has been solved and in a way that is likely to give David much trouble. Draughn was several weeks ago dragged from the railroad tracks in the south end of the city just in time to save him from being mangled. It was then discovered that he had been beaten almost to death. He was carried to the Grady hospital, and when he recovered physically it was found that his mind was a perfect blank as to past events—so much so that he even did not know his own name.

Finally under the care of the surgeons there came back inklings of the past, and one day last week he electrified everybody about the hospital by rushing about and declaring he "had it." He had caught what he said was his last name. He was taken by detectives up into North Carolina, and at Culberson, near Murphy, he found friends, but he was not Draughn, at least not there. He had been known there as Dr. F. D. Heath and had lived there for several months last summer, but Heath and Draughn are one and the same man, and it developed that under the former name he has three living wives. One lives in Salem, No. 2 in Asheville and No. 3 in Bryson City, Va. His mother, Mrs. Frank Barr, the wife of a printer, also lives near Salem. He will be prosecuted for bigamy and is very sorry he has found out who he is. —Atlanta Cor. St. Louis Republic.

A Loaded Farm.

For many years a sandy mound on the H. A. Maize farm, just south of this city, has been known as the hiding place of the fox. This winter the animals have been unusually numerous and created havoc in the henneries. The losses became so great that the farmers held a meeting and decided to blow up the mound and rid themselves of the pests. A large quantity of dynamite was purchased, and four large charges were put into the ground. For some reason the fuses failed to discharge the explosive, and the stuff is now buried in the mound. The mound is one of the most productive spots on the farm, and as the farmer does not know just where the dynamite lies he is in a pickle to know what to do, as he is afraid to dig into the mound for fear he may strike the stuff and send himself to kingdom come. The owner of the farm insists that the dynamite must be found, as he realizes that the fact of it being buried on the farm is going to hurt the sale of the farm or forever render several acres of his best land valueless.—Wooster (O.) Dispatch.

Good Business Women.

"It is very much easier to transact business with women than it was a score of years ago," said a lawyer who has much to do with the settling of estates. "Formerly I found it next to impossible to get women to understand even simple legal terms, and as for any technical phraseology I might just as well have talked Greek to them. But I had a client the other day that it was actually a pleasure to do business with. She was a woman in middle life, and one whom I would never have expected to find so intelligent on such subjects, but she entered into the argument, went through all of the intricacies, and followed me through the devious ways of a complicated real estate transaction in a fashion that not only delighted but amazed me.

"I note with the greatest pleasure a growing tendency in this direction. I could wish that I might live in the first half of the next century, for I fancy that society and the business world in general will be in a very much better state than it is at present. I believe the fathers of daughters will live long enough to see their girls reflecting quite as much credit on them by their business faculties as ever their sons did.

"It is all very well to talk about women in business and say disparaging things of them and indulge in all sorts of little vicious slaps and uncharitable remarks, but when one comes down to actual facts the business woman of today stands well up in the ranks. When there are taken into consideration the obstacles they have to contend with and their newness in this sort of work, this is not the least remarkable feature of the situation. The country is full of women who raise their families with great credit to themselves and meanwhile conduct various sorts of business with the very best of financial results. Comparatively little is said about it on account of a tendency in the minds of many men to discourage and belittle anything that looks like feminine competition in the business world. But all these men are wasting their time and strength. The movement is well started and is going on with a force as resistless as all of the other processes of evolution."—New York Ledger.

An Automatic Press Feeder.

An ingenious arrangement has been devised and put in operation by a London concern by which the automatic feeding of single sheets of paper to printing machines of the ordinary cylinder pattern, or two feeder, perfecting, lithographic or ruling machine is carried out in an entirely satisfactory manner—the apparatus, in a word, while of simple construction and management, is capable of automatically separating a single sheet of paper from the bulk and laying the sheet to exact register in the grippers of the machine. In the accomplishing of this effect two boards are affixed in the usual position on the sides of the machine, which sides also carry two vertical sliding frames surmounted by a crosshead, which supports a radial beam for the purpose of regulating the weight or pressure upon the paper, the apparatus being allowed sufficient play on the slides by means of antifriction pulleys. The motive power for carrying the sheet forward is taken by means of a chain drive from the shaft of the cylinder, thus insuring that no sheet is fed except in accord with the motion of the cylinder.

Hot In Australia.

The weather in Australia during the antipodean summer has been unusually hot and oppressive. In Adelaide during January the thermometer several times registered over 100 degrees in the shade, and one day it climbed to 107 in the shade and 163 in the sun. In Melbourne the 100 notch has been reached more than once, and the scorching north winds have made the atmosphere exceedingly oppressive. The foregoing figures are from weather observatory readings, and probably do not represent by several degrees the temperature of the city streets.—Melbourne Letter.

A Boston man who has acquired and kept riches says that one of his rules of life has been never to lend any money on personal promises to pay that he was not willing to give away and able to lose.

Garlick's Red Rose Potatoes.

Almost two years ago Mr. Garlick of Lost Mountain precinct, planted a few hills of the potato known as the California Red Rose, with the view of introducing it into this county if it proved to be a prolific bearer. His success was astonishing. He did not know but the "year" had something to do with it, so he tried it again last year. The result was even better than the first year. From his start of a few hills the year before he harvested about two tons last year, and had no trouble in disposing of nearly all he had to his neighbors at five cents per pound. He has placed a few sacks for sale with the Farmers' Mercantile Co., of Dungeness.

A Bright Lad,

Ten years of age, but who declines to give his name to the public, makes this authorized, confidential statement to us:

"When I was one year old, my mamma died of consumption. The doctor said that I, too, would soon die, and all our neighbors thought that even if I did not die, I would never be able to walk, because I was so weak and puny. A gathering formed and broke under my arm. I hurt my finger and it gathered and threw out pieces of bone. If I hurt myself so as to break the skin, it was sure to become a running sore. I had to take lots of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It has made me well and strong."—T. D. M., Norcatur, Kans.

W. C. T. U. ITEMS.

BY MRS. C. B. MAXFIELD.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Stephen Raymond, corner Front and Francis streets, on Friday, May 4, at 2 p. m. Election of officers will take place at this meeting, and all members are requested to be present.

The regular meetings of this Union will be held on the first and third Fridays of each month at 2 p. m., and on the second and fourth Friday evenings at 8 o'clock. The gentlemen members are requested to attend the evening meetings. All are cordially invited to all meetings of the union.

Young man there is no safety except in total abstinence. Beware of the first glass. Do not count him your friend who asks you to take a drink.

Municipal elections in Colorado possess unusual interest this year. for the reason that they are in a true sense the voice of the people. Reports so far have been highly encouraging to advocates of woman suffrage and to friends of good government generally. Even our opponents testify to the wholesome influence of woman's presence at the polls. Those who are watching results under the new political regime says that the temperance question is to be a leading issue, and that it is evident that candidates who are not pronounced friends of the cause may expect but little support from the women voters. In Kansas also the influence of women was such as to compel the nomination of "clean" men—men pledged to the support of the prohibitary law. Results in both states show that rather than submit to "petticoat government" by risking the election of a woman's ticket, male citizen's preferred to secure the nominations of officers acceptable to the "better half" of the voting population.—Union Signal.

The W. C. T. U. pledge: "I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine, beer and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic of the same."

Temperance statistics are never very impressive, except to temperance people, but here is a point from England which is worth everybody's attention. While pauperism has increased enormously during the past few years, the board of guardians of sixteen different cities report that they have never seen a total abstainer from intoxicating drinks come to the workhouse for relief.

A vote of thanks was tendered THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER at the last meeting of the Port Angeles W. C. T. U. for their kindness in giving a column for temperance items for our union.

All clergymen are requested to give temperance address once a month in their respective pulpits.

The Salvation Army will give a welcome meeting at their barracks fn this city on next Tuesday evening, May 1. Staff-Capeain and Mrs. Morton, commanding officer of the Northern Pacific division, will be guests of the local contingent and will conduct the services. A novel feature of the services will be the giving away of two babies. Coffee and cake will be served after the production of the program. A cordial welcome is extended to all.

Saved Her Life.

MRS. C. J. WOOLDRIDGE, of Wortham, Texas, saved the life of her child by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."
