Wild Animals in Hoh River Bottom Free of 'Fever'

Protector Boyd McCracken of the state game department said today that no wild animals in the Hoh river bottom have become infected with hemorrhagic septecemia (shipping fever).

McCracken said he started driving the elk out of the Hoh bottom more than a week ago after two herds of cattle in the area became infected with the contagious shipping fever.

He did not succeed in removing the elk to Goodman creek, as planned, but said he has managed to keep the herd scattered and away from the infected area. He said today that he intends to cover the area at least once a week in the future to keep them scattered, and away from the infection.

McCracken was resting at home in Forks today, "footsore and weary," after his elk driving experiences.

ELK NOT STUPID

"Those elk are not as stupid as I thought they were," he said. "They certainly managed to keep me guessing."

The state game protector described his elk drives as going fine for the first day; then on the second day he said one or two elk would start dropping out of the herd. By the third day, he'd end up with no elk.

McCarcken said that at different times of the year the elk act differently when driven. He thinks that springtime probably has something to do with their present reactions. They seemed to "just get tired and quit," he said.

At other times during the current drive McCracken said the elk would start circling, then after they had circled a couple of times and really muddled up their tracks, the herd would break up and scatter.

SCATTER, THEN GATHER

McCracken finally discovered that if he followed one animal's tracks out of the muddle they eventually would lead him back to the herd, because in a mile or so, all of the elk would come together again.

During the drives McCracken said he often was within 15 or 20 feet of the animals. As he approached closer, he said the elk would break and start running. Then they would stop and wait until he neared them again.

Earlier this week Veterinarian J. D. Stevens of Sequim said that the shipping fever among the domestic animals apparently was under control. The disease had been isolated to one herd, he said, and no animals have become infected recently. Stevens said about 500 domestic animals in the area have been vaccinated since outbreak of the disease in the lower Hoh.

Park Board Reviews Spring Improvements

Spring improvement work at Lincoln Park and at playfields throughout the city was reviewed by park board members at their Thursday night meeting.

Board Secretary Mrs. Fred VanScoyoc reports that many improvements are underway at Lincoln Park. These include the clearing and burning of stumps and trees to make more parking space for automobiles. Trails through the park are cleared and large boulders removed from the former deer park. Part of this space may be used for parking.

Tennis courts are now ready for use and more play equipment is ordered. This includes a basketball and croquet set.

The park board and Clallam county fair board are cooperating on erecting a fence along the fairgrounds race track to keep horses from running into the park. Cedar poles for the fence are already cut by park workmen.

The lower park clubhouse now is completely ceiled in knotty pine and is available for club meetings or private parties. Four organizations now use it as a meeting place. No charge is made for it use and firewood is furnished free for the stove and fireplace. Persons wishing to reserve the clubhouse may contact Caretaker F. Hayden Morris, Mrs. VanScoyoc said.

The upper cooking shelter is now enclosed on the north and west to stop breezes.

Board members decided not to allow overnight camping in the park, or the building of fires by children under 12 unless accompanied by an adult.

At Lincoln heights playfield, Sixth and G streets, land is cleared to make room for a baseball diamond or other sports requiring a large space.

The playfield on Seventh, between C and D, is leveled on the Seventh street side in preparation for lawn seeding.

Jessie Webster Park will have an old shed removed to improve its appearance.

Park workmen soon will prune and spray Hawthorne trees along East First street to control caterpillars. A few cottonwood trees at Lincoln Park will be cut down and burned because of the heavy infestation of caterpillars.

Play equipment at all playfields is being readied for summer use, Mrs. VanScoyoc concluded.

BABY'S BURNS FATAL

WAPATO —(AP)— Ten-weeks-old Thomas Heilman died Wednesday night of burns received five days before when his crib caught fire. The child was being treated for a cold with steam inhalations when the blaze started. His mother, Mrs. Frank Heilman, is recovering from hand and arm burns received in attempting to beat out the flames.

Vandenberg, Who Isn't Running, May be a Dominating Influence in Nebraska Primary

By Associated Press

The possibility developed today that Senator Arthur Vandenberg—who says he isn't running—may influence the result of Nebraska's GOP presidential primary.

Vandenberg is one of seven whose names have been entered in next Tuesday's voting. Nebraska republicans will say then what man they would like the party to nominate for president at the June Philadelphia convention.

The Michigan senator isn't campaigning. In fact, he tried to get his name withdrawn. This was in line with his repeated statements that he isn't a candidate and will not "connive" in a draft movement.

But Nebraska politicians who wnow their way around say there is some strong sentiment in the state for the chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

They contend that he is likely to be among the top four Tuesday. The three leaders generally are expected to be Harold E. Stassen, who walked away with the Wisconsin primary, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Robert A. Taft.

WHO WILL BE LEFT?

The politicians here haven't figured out yet which of the three would be hit hardest by an unexpectedly large Vandenberg vote.

Stassen, who has been unstinting in his praise of Vandenberg's record, hinted at a news conference here yesterday he thinks the vote cast for some of those who aren't campaigning in Nebraska may cloud the primary outcome.

Besides Vandenberg, the names of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Gov. Earl Warren and House Speaker Martin will appear on the Tuesday ballot. None of the latter has made a campaign, although Warren made one speech in the state.

MacArthur, who gathered in eight delegates to Stassen's 19 in Wisconsin, is not looked upon as much of a factor in the contest here.

Stassen appeared confident as he continued a series of speeches in which he planned to wind up his personal appearance campaign at Fremont tonight.

By virtue of his win in Wisconsin, the former Minnesota governor has turned the tables on Dewey.

Where in Wisconsin it was a case of Stassen fighting for his political life, now it is a case of Dewey making a last-ditch fight.

Dewey's supporters conceded privately that unless the New York governor tops the list here, he will be out of the running for the GOP nomination. The effect of two defeats in a row, they said, would cost him the secondary—and even some primary—support among delegates he needs to win the nomination.

Mob Seizes Palace At Bogota, Site Of Big Conference

BULLETIN

BOGOTA, Colombia—(AP)—A mob took the national palace, scene of the Pan-American conference, by assault today and set fire to some rooms.

The government of Colombia was temporarily in the hands of the demonstrators.

The riot came soon after Jorge Elieger Gaitan, leader of the liberal party, was shot down in a downtown street and gravely wounded by an unidentified assailant.

While Gaitan was being operated upon in a hospital a crowd of about 1,000 men quickly formed and marched upon the palace shouting "death to Laureano."

Presumably the reference was to Laureano Gomez, conservative party leader and head of the Colombian delegation to the Pan-American conference.

CONFERENCE BOGS

BOGOTA, Colombia —(AP)— The The Pan American conference bogged down today in its efforts to obtain unanimous support of a resolution against communism.

A Chilean source said Chile plans to ask the American nations next week to approve her anti-communist resolution, even if there is no unanimity.

Last week Chile distributed among the delegates a draft calling for condemnation of what it termed foreign-inspired subversive activities. Chile asked the Pan American delegates to suggest changes they might deem necessary.

The Chilean source said the resolution had not been submitted to the conference because efforts still are being made to achieve unanimous approval in advance. Some nations have opposed bringing the matter before the parley unless assurance of such unanimity is obtained.

Further, the Chilean informant said Mexico and Venezuela had not decided whether they will support the resolution in the form it has been suggested by Chile.

The two nations are reported to oppose the conference directing individual governments on what action to take against communism.

Other delegations are said to be against the present wording of the proposed resolution.

European Union Assured of U. S. Military Support

By John M. Hightower

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The projected western European union now seems sure of strong American military support as a way to strengthen the west against feared Russian expansion.

In the opinion of Washington officials, however, several major problems remain to be worked out, including the precise forms this support may take.

Belgian Premier Paul Henri Spaak, who has conferred here this week with President Truman, Undersecretary of State Lovett, and other leaders, told a news conference the European nations will ask for military as well as recovery help later on.

First, Spaak said, they want to consolidate their new organization which so far has gone through only the first stages.

Spaak was one of the prime movers in a five-nation meeting at Brussels a month ago which drafted a treaty for economic, political and military cooperation among the western states.

BY 5 NATIONS

The five nations which did the drafting were Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, and Luxembourg.

The United States, in statements by President Truman and Secretary of State Marshall, already is on record as approving the formation of this western bloc.

Also, as Spaak reminded reporters last night, Mr. Truman told congress on March 17 that this country intends to back up the free nations of Europe in their struggle to maintain their freedom against communist Russia.

Even before Mr. Truman spoke, state and defense department officials had been studying what steps along that line the American government might take. Their studies recently have been intensified, and Lovett told a news conference Wednesday that some definite ideas have been worked out although no formal policy decision has yet been made.

TWO METHODS SEEN

Two main lines of action are foreseen.

One is for the United States to undertake the arming of western European forces insofar as they need assistance in the form of guns, ammunition, planes, tanks and the like.

The other is in the form of an outright military alliance which the American government might make with the western bloc as a unit. The senate would have to ratify any such step as this, and the whole congress would have to approve the arming decision by passing on money requests.

Hartley to Press for Quick, New Anti-Strike Curbs If Court Action Against Lewis Fails To End Coal Strike; Railroads Get New Curb

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The 26-day old mine shutdown forced the government today to order coal burning rail service cut to half of normal.

The reduction is effective at midnight, April 15, and presumably would be cancelled if mining resumes before then.

There appeared no immediate prospect, however, of an end of the walkout despite a new threat of action against John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers.

Rep. Hartley (R-NJ) said that if the Taft-Hartley labor law which he helped write fails "to put the brakes" on Lewis, he will ask for stiffer laws. Hartley is head of the house labor committee.

The pending new cutback in coal-burning freight and passenger train service was ordered by the office of defense transportation and the interstate commerce commission to save dwindling supplies of coal.

ODT said Wednesday the railroads had stocks enough to last only 22 days.

70,000 RAILROAD MEN IDLE

The 25 percent cut ordered today is in addition to a similar reduction put into effect earlier by ICC and ODT. Those curtailments have made approximately 70,000 railroaders idle.

Coal-burning locomotives normally handle about 45 percent of the passenger trains and 65 percent of the freight service.

The strike has crippled operations in other industries, especially steel. In all, approximately 164,000 workers in various fields are idle in addition to the 400,000 soft coal miners.

Rep. Hartley told reporters the possibility of further congressional action aimed at Lewis hinges on what happens to the union leader when he answers a contempt citation in court Monday.

"If it develops that the Taft-Hartley law is adquate to deal with him, I'll proceed with hearings immediately," Hartley said.

The White House, in the meantime, said it had no comment on a published report that the administration has given up hope of ending the strike within the next 10 days.

Hartley said that if he decided a tougher law is necessary his committee's first move will be to act on a proposed amendment to apply the Sherman anti-trust law to labor unions.

"There's no reason why the anti-trust laws shouldn't apply to labor monopolies exactly as they do to business monopolies," he said.

This would take in industry-wide strikes, the lawmaker added.

Russian Guards Fire Into U. S. Zone

BERLIN —(AP)— Russian guards at the border of the U. S. and Soviet sectors of Berlin fired several shots into the American zone today. They said they shot into the air to frighten away a group of black-marketers.

An alarm was sent out for U. S. military police, but when they arrived the area was quiet. American authorities indicated there would be no protest.

20 Officers of Hitler's SS Are Convicted

By Thomas A. Reedy

NUERNBERG, Germany —(AP)—Twenty officers of Hitler's SS (elite guard) were convicted of wholesale murder today in an American finding so biting the death penalty for many seemed inescapable. Sentences will be announced tomorrow morning.

A three-judge court found them guilty on all three counts of an indictment charging the killing of at least a million Jews, gypsies and others classified by the nazis as racial undesirables. Only two of the 22 men in the dock were found innocent in any degree.

The judgment was handed down by presiding Judge Michael A. Musmanno of Pittsburgh. He summed up the counts as "plain murder." The conviction was the most all-embracing in the history of the Nuernberg war crimes trials.

One SS captain was acquitted of two counts—war crimes and crimes against humanity. He was convicted of the third — membership in a criminal organization; namely, the SS and the SD (a department that ran a spy system).

One corporal was found innocent of all three charges because he once quit the SS and got back into it only through the draft.

Convicted of all three counts were four SS generals, 12 colonels, three majors and one lieutenant.

They were commanding officers of the Einsatz commandos. There were units, none of more than 2,000 men, established by Reinhard Heydrich, chief of the security service. They were sent into Russia behind the rampaging German armies to wipe out whole classes of people Hitler and Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler thought were better off dead.

GOP Senate Leaders Give Military Legislation Priority Over Other Business; Decks Cleared For Bills

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Senate republican leaders agreed today to place military legislation ahead of all business.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said the senate will begin consideration of temporary draft, a larger air force, universal military training or any other defense measure as soon as its armed services committee reaches an agreement.

Taft, chairman of the republican policy committee, said it might take all next week and possibly two weeks to agree upon a bill.

Personally, Taft said he is winning support to increased funds for the air force and a temporary draft if the latter is necessary to fill up the ranks of the armed services. He still opposed UMT, he added.

Although major attention was centered on boosting the nation's air power, other moves followed the lines laid down by Secretary of Defense Forrestal. He cautioned congress not to build up one military arm at the expense of any other.

"National security demands balanced forces," the secretary declared, adding "dollars alone do not guarantee the delivery" of military goods.

These were highlight developments along the lengthening preparedness front:

1. The house armed services committee drew up a draft bill requiring registration of all men 18 through 30, but making only those 19 through 25 liable for two years' service.

Veterans with a year or more war service would have to register, but would be exempt; those with 90 days, but less than a year's service also would be exempt if they join reserve units of the army, navy or air forces.

Forrestal, who will testify at opening hearings Monday proposed much the same legislation, but his called for registration of men up to 45.

2. The house appropriations committee raced into hearings on a bill to pour $725,000,000 into a warplane expansion drive... Forrestal put the "highest priority" label on these funds for the air force and fleet aviation.

3. Secretary of the Navy Sullivan said President Truman will ask congress to boost merchant ship building funds from $39,500,000 to $100,000,000. The added money would be for new vessels suitable for troop transport and for an increased tanker fleet.

4. Mr. Truman asked congress to increase the export-import bank's lending authority by $500,000,000 to finance further economic development in Latin America.

Voluntary Controls Best, Declares Foreign Aid Chief

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Paul G. Hoffman, who thinks voluntary controls are better than federal regulation of industry, took over today as America's new foreign aid chief.

Immediately after he was sworn into office, Hoffman sat down with President Truman and his cabinet to hear the president's council of economic advisers renew a call for standby rationing and wage-price controls.

Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation, has full cabinet rank in his $20,000 a year post as administrator of economic cooperation. Chief Justice Fred Vinson administered the oath to the 56-year-old automobile manufacturer in Mr. Truman's office.

Members of the cabinet and the economic advisory council headed by Edwin G. Nourse watched with Mr. Truman. The ceremony was brief. There was no speech-making.

As ECA chief, Hoffman will administer the $5,300,000,000 European recovery program. He sat in on the cabinet meeting because of the close connection of the domestic economic picture with aid for western European nations in their resistance to communism.

Chiang Admits 7 Best Divisions Lost in Manchuria

By Harold K. Milks

NANKING — (AP) —Chiang Kai-Shek said today seven of his best divisions were destroyed in Manchuria but declared defiantly the communists cannot conquer China.

In one of the frankest public speeches of his long career as China's leader, the generalissimo told the national assembly:

"I confess seven of the government's best divisions were destroyed in Manchuria. They were my best armies that under my command accomplished the revolutionary campaigns with glory."

These divisions are being reorganized, Chiang said, adding: "I refuse to admit defeat because our fighting strength is still powerful."

(Chiang evidently meant the divisions were destroyed over a considerable period of time. There has been no recent heavy fighting in Manchuria.)

Chiang spoke deliberately and seriously. The assemblymen, in deference to his serious mood, withheld applause. He made no mention of the presidency, which he says he wants to turn over to someone else.

"In north China," he said, "our strength under Gen. Fu Tso-Yi is growing. I guarantee within six months to annihilate all communists below the Yellow river (in central China.)"

Conceding "we have made serious military mistakes," Chiang said his armies are changing strategy. No longer will they try to defend all points, but will concentrate for decisive blows. As he phrased it, the new strategy is one of "big eat little."

The generalissimo criticized the "failure of the people to observe our program of austerity saying "if that situation is continued our reserves will be worthless, regardless of their size."

"I appeal to you all to save the nation from this danger."

Woman Says Mate Dared Her to Shoot Him; Faces Murder

OKANOGAN, Wash. — (AP) — A 27-year-old housewife, who told police her husband slapped her face and dared her to shoot him, was charged today with second degree murder.

Prosecutor John Hancock said the woman, Mrs. Dorothy Marschewka, related in a statement that her husband, Arthur, 27, had been drinking and became abusive after they quarreled.

She said he placed a loaded .22 caliber rifle in her hand, slapped her face, called her vile names and dared her to shoot him.

He was shot through the heart.

A note found by investigators asked that the wife not be prosecuted if Marschewka was found shot, the prosecutor said.

Gongs, Flutes, Murmurings of Jap Priest Had Different Meanings for Two Americans

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)— Temple gongs, reed flutes, and a Japanese priest murmuring in his oriental tongue—

That, reasoned the navy commander and the red-haired girl, was just a beautiful going away ceremony for their departure from Tokyo.

The girl, Miss Elizabeth Church, 28, enrolled as an oriental languages student at the University of Washington, Seattle, after her arrival last fall.

Recently, she translated a document the priest had given her.

It was a marriage certificate.

And, explained the retired commander, Frederick W. Ebersole, today:

The departure ceremony actually was a Shinto marriage ritual.

The marriage was annulled, to the great relief of both, by Superior Judge Alfred J. Fritz here yesterday.

Ebersole, 34, socially prominent San Francisco chain store executive, already was married and the father of three children. He and his wife had been separated since 1943, but were reconciled after his return. That nullified an interlocutory divorce — not final for a year — which his wife had obtained last July.

Ebersole was public works officer for the navy at Yokosuka naval base, on Tokyo bay. Miss Church was a research assistant with army intelligence.

Both, Ebersole explained, were interested in Japanese culture, particularly the Shinto religion. Among their friends was a wealthy Japanese who had a Shinto ceremonial chamber in his house.

"He told us he had arranged a beautiful going away ceremony for us," recalled Ebersole.

"We thought that was nice. * * *

"After the party was over, Miss Church and I went to our respective quarters and, shortly afterwards, we both were returned separately to the states."

BOYS HATE WAR, TOO

SEATTLE —(AP)— Two six-year-old boys developed an almost adult dislike for war today.

The boys, Johnny Lyons of Tacoma and Carl Blackstock, Jr., Seattle, were buried by sliding earth yesterday while playing "war" in a deep sewer excavation.

Screams of young Blackstock attracted a neighbor, J. E. McMullan. He pulled out the Blackstock boy and scooped away earth with his hands so Lyons could breathe. Firemen completed freeing the latter boy and revived him with artificial respiration. Neither was injured.

The idea of creating a new German reich out of the three western zones of allied occupation gathers momentum as it becomes increasingly clear that Russia has sealed off and assumed permanent control of eastern Germany.

Further striking indication of this trend came from a speech delivered before the German state legislature in the British zone by General Sir Brian Robertson, the military governor. Speaking with the personal approval of British Foreign Secretary Bevin, we are authoritatively informed, Sir Brian said:

"Come forward determined to make the best of that larger part of your country which is on the right side of the iron curtain. Make up your minds to stand against these gentlemen who, with democracy on their lips and truncheons behind their backs, would filch your German freedom from you."

Well, that's plain talk. The general didn't mention communists specifically but there's no doubt that he was talking about them and was advising the Germans to reconcile themselves to losing Russian occupied eastern Germany, together with their capital, at least for the time being. And as I pointed out in a previous column, the inability to reconstitute the country with Berlin as the capital is a major tragedy to the people, not only for sentimental reasons but because it is one of the world's greatest cities and is the hub of European rail transport.

While Sir Brian was making this significant declaration, Maurice Couve De Murville, distinguished French negotiator for German affairs, arrived in Berlin to be the guest of General Lucius Clay, commander of the American zone. Wes Gallagher, AP chief of bureau in Berlin, tells us that De Murville's trip is interpreted in authoritative quarters as a move to remove the difficulties in way of a merger of the French with the British and American zones. The latter two already have established politico-economic cooperation.

If the western allies decided to combine their three zones, the new reich will have a population of about 43,600,000 as against some 20,732,000 in the Russian zone. And because of the split, there will have to be a sweeping and arduous readjustment of the economy of both sections.

Obviously it will take long to rehabilitate a new reich and create a fresh economic structure. The war devastation in many parts of western Germany is terrific, especially in that all-important industrial Ruhr. Whole cities have been destroyed.

Still, western Germany can be rebuilt into a new state. We can go further and say it must be rebuilt, for it is needed as a keystone for the western European economic structure.

RED-BREASTED MERGANSER

(Mergus serrator)

LENGTH: 22 IN. WINTER RESIDENT

Other names: Shelldrake, Saw-bill, Fish Duck.

Although very abundant on salt water in winter, this merganser is rare as a breeder in Washington. It appears on Puget Sound and the Strait in winter, living entirely on a fish diet.

When a herring "ball" is located, these birds join other seabirds and gulls for the feast. It is interesting to watch their maneuvers. The hovering gulls first locate the herring and their screams attract not only the mergansers and other ducks, but also auklets, murrelets and grebes that come tumbling into the mass of fish, diving instantly. This sends many fish to the surface to be taken by the gulls, while the salmon attack from below. Without the help of the diving birds the gulls would get nothing.

These mergansers have also learned to hunt in flocks. They can be seen in shallow bays where they circle a school of small fish, driving them toward the shore. At the last moment they make a rush and, with much splashing, drive the fish on the beach where they are eagerly caught and devoured. In flight these mergansers travel in a strait line, and when flushed scatter in all directions, to reassemble later.

The red-breasted merganser is not as large as the American and not as heavily built. The drake can be distinguished by reddish band across the breast and by the loose crest at the back of the greenish-black head. The remainder of the underparts are white, back black fading to gray on rump wings marked with white; sides gray and neck white. The female, like the American female, has a brown head and neck; upper parts grayish, underparts white, and wings marked with white.

They nest on the ground near the water differing from the tree-nesting mergansers. The nest is made of leaves and grasses and lined with down from the breast of the parent bird. Eight to ten buffy-white eggs are laid.

Few birds enter our fresh water streams on our Peninsula but they are commonly seen in our harbors and all protected waters. In spring, pairs may be seen on salt-water sloughs, but they do not nest here.

CARROTS

Carrots are one of the crops that every vegetable gardener grows. In spite of the great variation of soils in this district, it is hard to find a garden where several rows are not in evidence.

The ideal soil for them is a light, sandy loam, preferably one in which several other vegetable crops have been grown in preceding seasons. The soil should be easily workable and as deep as possible, to enable the roots to grow downward without any interruption which might cause them to become "fangy."

For a carrot crop, do not use manure or humus as a means to lighten the soil during the season when the carrots are to be grown. If humus materials are used they should be applied one full season before the carrot crop is to be planted.

SOWING THE SEED

Where there is plenty of garden room, the rows should be placed one and a half feet apart, but if space is to be considered they may be as close as 12 inches between the rows.

Hoe out very shallow rows, so that after covering, the seed is only about a quarter inch under the soil. Plant the seed very thinly. No matter how careful you are, there will be hundreds of "thinnings" to pull out.

TIME TO PLANT

If your carrot soil is light, a first planting may be made in late March. Plant just a couple of rows then, for a crop of early carrots. The main plantings may be made later. For the average garden, plant half the main crop in early April and the other half in early May.

Should the soil be at all wet or sticky, or if it clings to the tools and does not work easily, it is best to delay all planting until the soil "works" well. In wet, sticky soils, carrot seeds find it hard to germinate well.

THINNING

Carrot seedlings are slower than most other vegetables to come up, so don't be surprised if they don't appear for three weeks. When the seedlings are big enough to handle, which is generally when the third real leaf has formed, they should be thinned out into a single row, with the plants two inches apart. Take care when thinning to pull them carefully. Choose a day when the soil is wet. Many gardeners place one hand on the soil against the best plants while pulling the thinnings with the other. This will avoid disturbance of the roots of those that are to remain.

About a month after the first thinning the remaining plants will have grown considerably and should be thinned again by removing every other plant. This will leave the plants at a distance of four inches from each other.

WORMS IN CARROTS

Many gardeners, unfortunately for their health, gave us growing carrots during the last few years, on account of a little worm which gets into the roots. It is QUITE EASY to avoid this pest, provided precautions are taken to PREVENT it. This pest arrives soon after the young carrot plants are about two inches high, in the form of tiny greenish-black flies which lay their eggs on the "collar" of the carrot plants. These eggs quickly hatch into legless yellow larvae which bore into the skin of the carrot root and by continuous tunneling cause the rusty patches on the roots. When this happens the foliage will wilt slightly. A badly infested carrot will often die entirely.

When full grown, the larvae leave the carrot root and turn into brown pupae in the soil near the row. These hatch out into a new crop of flies about the last of July. Eggs are again laid on the "collar" and as soon as they hatch the larvae again enter the carrot root, which is now much stronger and can resist the attack better. This time the presence of the worm is indicated by the turning of the leaves to a reddish color. When full grown this time, the pest leaves the root and remains in the soil all winter.

CONTROL

The flies are attracted by the carrot odor which is given off by the leaves. When thinning, take care to destroy all removed plants. To prevent the attack, any material which has a strong odor may be spread along the row just after the plants are an inch high. There are seven proven preventives.

1. Scatter napthalene powder along the row.

2. Varnish or shellac thin lattice strips. Let dry until "tacky" or still sticky and then press onto napthalene flakes that have been spread on a paper. Allow to dry and place the pregnated sticks along the planted rows.

3. Place a length of thick soft string that has been dipped in creosote or carbolic along each row.

4. Mix a teacupful of kerosene to a bucket of sand (or sawdust) and scatter along each row.

Care must be taken to avoid any chance that the preventive material gets covered but that it remains on the surface of the soil where it will be effective. Should it become covered the repellent properties are lost and a new application will need to be made. Also, if it gets mixed into the soil, the roots are quite liable to become tainted with either the "moth ball" or "oil" flavor.

If the first infestation of this pest is entirely prevented in spring, there is very little chance of the "second crop" in early August. Should there be any plants in the row whose leaves show any "russet" color, pull them as soon as it is observed.

Didn't Guess Right; The Faithful Sue

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Joe Jeffers, founder of the Temple of Yahweh, is accused in a damage suit of telling his flock that the Russians would bomb the United States in 1947 and kill everyone but them.

Jeffers' accusers, Mrs. Anna Lee and Mrs. Caroline Brunell of Los Angeles, seek $12,857 damages, saying that his story led them to part with valuable property. They allege that Jeffers, now serving time in McNeil Island federal prison in Washington state for auto theft represented to his congregation that they would move into the white house and that he would rule the United States as the "king of kings."

The plaintiffs allege they were told they would be "queens under the new order." They also said that Jeffers told them the "flying saucers" seen in the skies last year. were weapons manned by Japanese.

Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Brunell directed their suits against Jeffers, his wife, Helene, and the temple organization. Mrs. Brunell asks $1,387.50 of the amount as wages, claiming she worked 15 hours a day at the temple for nearly five months.

Seize Man in South For Spokane Robbery

MEMPHIS, Tenn. —(AP)— A man identified by the federal bureau of investigation as a one-time card dealer and son of a former mayor of Grand Junction, Tenn., was being held here on a charge of aiding in the holdup of a Spokane bank two weeks ago.

He was Robert Howard Roche, 42, of Spokane.

D. S. Hostetter, special agent in charge of the Memphis FBI, said Roche was charged with aiding Josephine Bernice Ray, now held in Spokane in a Spokane bank robbery March 29.

The agent said Roche claimed he waited outside the bank in a taxi while the woman entered and held up the bank. He quoted Roche as saying he took half the stolen money and departed.

The bank's loss was reported at $1,200.

British Traffic Violation, Russians Say, Caused Crash

BERLIN—(AP)—Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky today blamed a British traffic violation for Monday's British-Soviet plane collision.

The Russian military commander said that unless he was assured British planes will observe four-power flight rules, he intends to "take measures for the protection of the safety of air traffic over the Soviet occupation zone."

He turned down the idea of a four-power investigation of the crash, which occurred on Berlin's outskirts and killed 15 persons. He favored an inquiry by a Soviet-Gritish commission.

Sokolovsky stated his position in a reply to communications on the crash from his British counterpart, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson. He described the British version of the accident as slander. His letter was published in Taegliche Runschau, official newspaper of the Soviet military administration.

Robertson said on his return here this morning from Duesseldorf that he intends to deal immediately with the Russian reply. He gave no hint of what he intends to do.

Arriving in Berlin at about the same time was Maurice Couve De Murville, one of France's top diplomatic negotiators. He is to meet ranking officials of the western allies and many believe negotiations for a closer linking of the French zone wth British-American bizonia are on tap.

The marshal's letter reversed the position he took Monday after the accident. At that time he expressed regret and assured Robertson the Russians did not intend to interfere with flights down the allied air corridor to Berlin.

The collision was between a British European Airlines Viking transport, which crashed in the Soviet zone, and a Russian Yak fighter, which fell in Berlin's British sector. The Russian flier, 12 Britons and two Americans were killed.

The Russian-controlled Berlin radio said last night Sokolovsky had promised to do away with Soviet secret arrest and trial of Germans.

He did so, it reported, in reply to appeals from communist leaders Wilhelm Pieck and Otto Grotewohl.

The western powers have charged that thousands of Germans are being held without trial in Soviet-zone concentration camps.

Dispatches in Berlin's socialist press this morning said a new wave of arrests against anti-communists was being conducted in the Russian zone.

A Tip to Farmers

LARAMIE, Wyo. — (AP) — Ever thought about a Christmas tree farm?

W. O. Edmondson, Wyoming agricultural extension service forester, has. He's decided it could make farmers some money in their off-season while using spare land.

"By planting an acre a year to trees spaced six feet each way, a grower can market about 1,000 trees a year after the first trees have grown to merchantable height," says Edmondson, adding that will take six to 15 years, depending on the species used.

Nation Headed for Biggest Depression, Says Grange Master

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— The master of the national grange says the nation is headed for the biggest depression ever.

Addressing a group of insurance men, Albert S. Goss, of Washington, D. C., declared yesterday:

"We are piling up a new abnormal food surplus and as soon as we stop furnishing tremendous credits to Europe we will have another collapse of our economy.

"Instead of a depression of the scope of 1929 and thereafter, we will have one so tremendous that it could possibly plunge the world into one of its darkest periods. Communism could flood over the world at that time."

The solution, as Goss sees it: Put Europe back on its feet, industrially, as well as agriculturally, and establish stable prices on the world market.

SEATTLE—(AP)—A University of Washington dental student, Stanley Lloyd Mewhirter, 23, was home today after more than a month's absence. But a physician said "everything is very vague for him."

The youth was returned yesterday after being located in Portland.

Dr. John Brown, an uncle of the youth, and Sheriff Harlan Callahan said he was unduobtedly suffering from amnesia.

Stabilization of Wheat Prices At $2 Is Prediction

SPOKANE—(AP)—Probable stabilization of wheat prices at $2 a bushel is predicted by Albert J. Borton, field agent for the grain branch of the production and marketing administration.

He based the prediction, made before members of the state PMA yesterday, on an international agreement signed last month by 36 nations. The maximum price under the agreement, he said, is equivalent to $2 a bushel at Portland.

The agreement provides that 33 importing nations will buy 500,000,000 bushels of grain annually from the U. S., Canada and Australia.

The U. S. export quota is 185,000,000 bushels or approximately 17 per cent of the total crop forecast for the nation this year, he said. Canada will be the largest shipper with a quota of 230,000,000 bushels.

Chives may be grown in a pot indoors in winter and used for flavoring scrambled eggs, cottage cheese, salads and other dishes.

BIG QUESTION: HOW CAN YOU WIN?

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ever get tired of hearing friend wife say accusingly:

"I spent the whole afternoon in the beauty shop and you didn't even notice the difference?"

Sure you have. What did you do about it? Nothing, of course.

Ever have the same incomparable creature ask you as you started off to work:

"Why do you keep trying to give your boss the impression you are the bottom sack in the laundry truck?"

Of course you have. What did you do about it? Again nothing. Listen to the tale of a man who did try:

One day this week as I lunged toward the door after breakfast to catch the 8:21½ a.m., bus, I mumbled at Frances:

"How I look, honey? Okay?"

"Sure, just like bushman — as usual," she said.

"Who's bushman?" I asked as I sprinted out the door.

"That Chicago fashion plate you try to imitate," she said.

It was only after I got on the bus that I remembered who bushman is. He's the famous gorilla at the Lincoln park zoo. That made me mad. So I thought I would show her. I figured I could outlook any ape.

I got off the bus at the Grand Central Palace where some 70,000 beauty parlor operators are staging the international beauty show. I stomped into a men's salon and found Saul Meth, a makeup artist and hair stylist.

"Give me the whole menu," I said, "from soup to nuts."

"That means," he said, "a haircut, manicure, shampoo, shave, mud pack, tonic, sunlamp treatment, shoe shine and a cold permanent wave."

That slowed me up.

"I don't know about that mudpack and permanent wave business," I hesitated.

"Don't be foolish," he said. "The mudpack will take the office soot and grime from your skin and leave it glowing like a baby. Your hair is getting thin on top. The wave will make it look like you got twice as much hair. A lot of ex-soldiers are getting mudpack treatments and permanent waves nowadays."

"What did you do in the war, Saul?"

"I was in the infantry," he said. I felt better.

"Okay, doughfoot, plow ahead."

Well, I didn't mind it so much except when a lady came by and watched Saul put on the curlers for the wave and said, "my, I could never get my husband to do that." yoo-hooed. "Oh, you great big beautiful doll."

Three hours after I climbed into the chair I stepped forth a new and changed man. That's what Saul insisted.

"You've got the new masculine look all right," he assured me.

That evening I went home all set to surprise Frances with my new ultra-male glamor.

"Still think I look like your pal Bushman?" I asked, giving her a full view of my mudpack-softened profile.

She looked me over critically.

"No," she said. "Bushman doesn't wear a suit that needs pressing like you do."

How can you win?

Home Grown Vegetables Richest in Health Value

Although the younger members of the family are prone to turn up their noses at spinach nevertheless most vegetables are good for them. Often the produce you purchase at the neighborhood vegetable stand is stringy and unpalatable by the time you cook it. The time that elapses between harvesting and cooking might have something to do with this. Maybe that's why Johnny doesn't like his spinach. At least when you grow fresh vegetables at home they can be eaten within a few minutes after harvesting.

Carrots contain a high amount of Vitamin A which is believed valuable for warding off colds. This variety is also beneficial for your eyes. The vitamins in carrots are especially valuable because of their immediate availability.

If you're suffering from rheumatism then eat lots of broccoli. It is quite rich in Vitamin C which dieticians claim will help your illness. Beets contain large quantities of sugar, also Vitamins A, B1 and G.

Cabbage is another protective food. Select the green heads rather than those that have been blanched as the former possess more nutritive factors. If cabbage causes indigestion then try chewing it a little bit longer.

Historians have claimed at one time or another that onions possess hair-restoring qualities. It remains, however, for present day scientific experiments to prove. Parsley is also good for the eyes and is high in iron and Vitamin C.

In ancient times lettuce was used as a sedative. The most vital parts of the plant from a diet viewpoint are the green sections. The white leaves are not as rich in vitamins as those that show a nice shade of green. This is true for all vegetables, not just lettuce. Green lettuce is an excellent source for Vitamins A, B1 and G.

Harry Scott Family Nearly Steps On Derelict Jap Mine

Harry Scott, West Eighteenth and M, said today he and his family almost stepped on a derelict Japanese mine embedded in driftwood on the ocean beach west of Lake Ozette, Thursday.

Scott said they were taking advantage of the spring vacation to visit the ocean beach and look for shells and glass fishnet-floats. They hiked the three miles from the end of the road to the ocean beach and had just started to enjoy their outing when they came upon the mine.

Scott definitely identified the large article as a mine. He said it had horns that were plainly visible although it partially was buried in the sand.

The Scotts returned to Port Angeles last night to notify the coast guard of their find. They intend to return to the beach sometime today and hope to be on hand when the navy detonation crew arrives to destroy the mine.

Eileen M. King Weds Robert M'Crorie At Queen of Angels

A nuptial high mass at Queen of Angels Church Saturday morning united in marriage Eileen Mae King of this city and Robert Myles McCrorie of Sequim. Rev. Bernard Neary, OSB, officiated at the double ring ceremony in a setting of white stock and lilies.

The bride's gown of heavy bridal satin was fashioned with a train, yoke and long sleeves of lace. Her finger tip veil was held by a headed halo and she carried a bouquet of white hyacinths and orchids combined with white plumes. John King of Seattle gave his sister in marriage.

MAIDS

Rita King served as her sister's maid of honor and bridesmaids were Gladys McCrorie, sister of the groom, and Patricia Partridge. They wore colonial gowns of pink, yellow and aqua respectively with matching headbands of tulle and carnations. Their colonial bouquets of carnations also matched the gowns.

William McCrorie was best man for his brother and ushering were Gary Kish and Philip Tichen.

Ringbearer and flower girl were four-year-old twins Tommy and Sharie Gaboury. He wore a black corduroy suit with white collar and she was dressed similar to the bride and carred a basket of flowers. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gaboury.

Soloist Delores Jarvis sang "Ave Maria" during the service. She was accompanied by Darlene Heller.

RECEPTION

Mrs. John King poured at the reception for 150 guests at the Eagles hall. Mrs. William King served and Mrs. Harry Myles was at the punch bowl. William King proposed the toast to the bride and groom. Sharon Lemon was in charge of the guest book.

After a trip to Vancouver, B. C., the couple will return to Sequim May 1 to live. For traveling Mrs. McCrorie wore a pink wool gabardine suit, white accessories and bonnet of natural straw.

FAINTS WHEN HE FINDS BILLFOLD LOST IN THEATER

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. —(AP)— When janitor Les Burke got to work at a movie theater early yesterday morning an unidentified man was waiting for him.

"I think I lost my billfold in the movie last night," the man told Burke. "There was $700 in it."

Burke took the man to where he had sat the previous night. The janitor picked up a bulky wallet and handed it to the man.

He promptly fainted. After Burke had doused the man's face with water reviving him, he staggered out of the theater, mumbling: "I must have fainted — it's too good to be true."
