Average daily attendance during the year. Males, 177; females, 160; total, 337.

Percent of attendance of average belong, 94.

Per cent. of attendance of whole number enrolled, 68.

Number of children of school age in the district, June 1, 1893, not enrolled in school during the year, 150.

Number of cases of tardiness during the year. Males, 330; females, 491; total, 824.

Number of pupils neither absent nor tardy. Males, 25; females, 19; total, 44.

Number of pupils in First grade	194
Number of pupils in Second grade	96
Number of pupils in Third grade	52
Number of pupils in Fourth grade	40
Number of pupils in Fifth grade	50
Number of pupils in Sixth grade	32
Number of pupils in Seventh grade	30
Number of pupils in Eighth grade	25
Number of pupils in High School	10

Number of months school was taught in all departments, 7.

Number of months school was taught in the four higher grades, 8.

Number of teachers employed in the schools. Males, 5; females, 5; total, 10.

Average wages paid teachers per mouth, including superintendent's salary, $58.

Total sum paid teachers for the year, $4,160.

Number of janitors employed	5
Total sum paid jaunitors for the year	$ 281 75
Total sum paid for wood during the year	99 05
Cost of supplies for the year, for chalk, pens, pencils, paper, copy books, tablets, reports, brooms, including $75.15 of stock on hand at beginning of the year	194 98
For stock now on hand	20 00
For stoves, books, tables, chairs, etc	111 45
Total for supplies of all exclusive of fuel	326 43
For rent, repairs and improvement on buildings	47 12
For clerk's services	102 50
For judges of election	18 00
Interest on bonds	1,243 10
Estimated value of school buildings including the grounds	7,450 00
Estimated value of school furniture	1,500 00
Estimated value of apparatus, including maps, globes, charts, etc	400 00
Estimated value of school library	1,000 00
Amount of insurance on building	3,700 00
Amount of bonds outstanding	16,500 00

SUMMARY OF FINANCIAL REPORT.

Amount on hand July 1, 1892.
Special fund	$ 2,989 81
General fund	174 14
Total	3,163 95
Received on special fund from 5 mill tax, etc	4,233 24
Received from general fund apportioned by county superintendant	4,018 05
Total	8,251 30
Total receipt for the year including the amount on hand at the beginning	1,141 25
Disbursements:
Paid for teachers' wages	4,160 00
Paid for rents, repairs, fuel, janitors, clerk's fees and other incidentals	749 60
Paid for furniture, apparatus, library and supplies	201 28
Paid interest on bonds	1,243 10
Total	6,353 98
Balance on hand July 1, 1893	5,061 27

This balance is from the clerk's accounts. The county treasurer reports a balance of $5,928.15 which shows that there are outstanding warrants against the general fund to the amount of $566.88. This financial exhibit is very encouraging, showing a gain during the year in the special fund of $2,638.34 and a real gain in all funds of $1,897.32.

There is no financial exhibit for previous years on file in the clerk's office or superintendents. But order stubs and bills shows that there was paid during the year ending June 30, 1892:

For teachers wages	4,619 00
Making average wages per month exclusive of music teacher	53 50
Including music teacher	51 30
For janitors	340 72
For wood	163 00
For such supplies as chalk, ink, pens, pencils, papers, brooms, etc	508 06
For books, stoves, desks, globes, etc	1,340 49
Total for supplies exclusive of fuel	1,848 55
For clerks' fees	109 00
For insurance on buildings	87 00
For judges of election	9 00
Total disbursements, exclusive of cost of building and improving grounds during the year ending June 30th, 1892	8,419 30

The management for the year just ended has been economical; but none too much so for the times. Had the board known how much money there was on hand in time there would have been another month's school for all departments, but they could not get a statement until about the time the school closed.

The district will, in all probability receive $3,000 more from the state apportionment during the coming year than it did last year. As the special fund receipts will likely be about the same as in the past year, financially it is in a hopeful condition.

But the school enrollment compared with the number of pupils of school age in the district speaks poorly for our people. The average number belonging and the average daily attendance compared with the whole number enrolled is even more discreditable, and the number of cases of tardiness is a disgrace to parents, pupils and teachers. The school registers show that the year just closed was not an exceptional one in this respect. No school can attain, or maintain a high standard of excellence with such irregular attendance or so much tardiness.

The course of study for our schools is so arranged that a pupil of average ability by regular attendance and earnest application can complete the work of each grade in one year of nine months. As the last school year was cut short the standard for promotion was lowered somewhat in order to promote all who could possibly do the work of a higher grade.

Parents should examine the course of study and know what is expected and required of their children. They should also carefully inspect the report books each month and note the standing in deportment and application, as that is taken into account in promotion.

O. A. Tiffany,
Superintendent.

Items From Quillayute.

Most of the Quillayuters who went up to Forks to spend the Fourth returned today. They all claim that this celebration at Forks was the most enjoyable and the most largely attended celebration ever held in the Quillayute country. The principal events of the day were:

IN THE FORENOON

Reading the Declaration of Independance.

Songs, recitations and speeches.

Judge Lamoreux was the principal orator of the day.

IN THE AFTERNOON

Foot races.

Base ball. Quillayute vs. Forks.

Horse races and dancing.

There were about three hundred people present most of whom were visitors. Evidently the residents at Forks had expected that for they had provided for everything that would give pleasure and comfort. The visitors speak very highly of the Forks prairie people for their generosity, hospitality and good program that they had prepared. This celebration was a credit to Forks and to the whole Quillayute country.

No sign of hard times at Forks last Fourth.

Farmers here will not cut their hay for two weeks yet.

A good cargo of oats is expected this year.

We have fine growing weather here. Sunshine with a little rain mixed.

Vegetation is from a month to six weeks later this year than it was last.

CHARGES PREFERRED

Against City Clerk Humphries Are Withdrawn.

THE CITY COUNCIL CANVASS THE

Returns From the Special Election and Declare the Bonding Proposition Carried—The City Wins a Number of Suits in the Superior Court—Special Committees Appointed to Formulate Plan of Procedure for Water Developing Scheme.

The council met in regular session Wednesday evening, with Mayor Smith in the chair, and Councilmen Kreuger, Rose, Beam, Carver, Reed and Ristine, present.

The council canvassed the returns from the several wards of the special bonding election held last Saturday.

A resolution was introduced bv Councilman Carver, which was adopted, certifying to the number of votes cast in the several wards for and against propositions Nos. 1 and 2. Councilman Beam introduced a resolution certifying to the votes cast in each ward, and the majorities as signified. The resolution was adopted.

Attorney Hatch requested that the council defer action for one week on final passage of the ordinances providing for the establishment of Railroad avenue, extending streets over tide lands and establishing and defining limits of wards, as the opinion of the supreme court on tide lands in this city will soon have been rendered, which decision is absoluse to permit of intelligent action in this matter. The council granted the request.

Councilman Ristine submitted a communication in which he withdrew the charges preferred against City Clerk Humphries at a former meeting.

City Clerk Humphries arose and stated that he had no doubt that when Councilman Ristine preferred the charges he acted conscientiously, honestly believing that he was performing his duty. Since, however, it has transpired that the charges were not well-founded, and with becoming courage and fairness he withdrew them. If at any time he (the clerk) had acted indsicretly or unwisely he sincerely regretted it, as he desired to perform his duty in a faithful and in an impartial manner.

Mayor Smith said that he was exceedingly glad that this distasteful matter had terminated so happily and satisfactorily. The council certainly had demonstrated an unswerving purpose to fearlessly perform its duty. As soon as it had discovered that it labored under a mistake, no time was lost in rectifying the same.

City Treasurer Seevers requested permission to transfer the city funds from the several funds to the general fund, so as a sufficient amount would be available to meet accruing interest on outstanding city bonds which soon becomes due. The privilege was granted.

The city attorney announced that decisions had been rendered in a number of suits in which the city was interested, recently, in the superior court, in its favor.

The question of advertising for the sale of the bonds recently voted, was discussed at confiderable length. The opinion was quite generally held that the better plan would be to negotiate private sale, as possible, as past experiences proved far better results were thus obtained.

A motion prevailed that a special committee, comprising three councilmen, be appointed to examine the plans and specifications of the proposed water power, outline a plan of procedure and report, if possible at Saturday's meeting. Councilmen Beam, Carver and Ristine were appointed as such committee.

The council adjourned to meet Saturday afternoon.

MORE RESERVATION TELEGRAMS.

Again the Incredulous Demand Confirmation of the Secretary's Report.

If the Secretary of the Interior has not by this time been thoroughly convinced that the people of Port Angeles are an incredulous, skeptical aggregation, it certainly is not because he has not had good and sufficient cause.

No sooner is a telegram received from the department of the interior regarding the status of the appraisement, than the secretary is overwhelmed with a shower of dispatches, the exceedingly superfluous nature of which is, a confirmation of such telegram.

These unreasonable, foolish and unnecessary importunities soon become positively wearisome, and create a very unfavorable opinion as to the intelligence of a people, as there is no more indubitable evidence of stupidity and ignorance than skepticism and incredulity.

Not convinced of the authenticity of a telegram which briefly announces that Secretary Smith had approved and signed the appraisement, Mr. E. H. Foster was urged to wire the Secretary for a confirmation of the same. Yielding to the request the following telegram was sent:

PORT ANGELES, July 10, 1893.

Hon. Hoke Smith, Secretary of the Interior:

DEAR SIR:—Has appraisement of Port Angeles reservation been approved and signed by you?

E. H. FOSTER.

The following reply was received:

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 11, 1893.

E. H. Foster, Port Angeles, Wash.:

DEAR SIR:—Port Angeles appraisement has been approved and signed. General Land offic now formulating instructions for same.

WM. SIMS,
Acting Secretary.

And now is there not some brilliant individual who will rise supreme to the demands of the hour and wire the secretary for a confirmation of Mr. Foster's telegram?

A Rare Chance Offered by the U. S. Clothing House.

Knowing the very general desire among our customers for good family portraits we take pleasure in announcing to them as well as to the public at large, that we have made arrangements with one of the largest and best known portrait copying houses in this country, to copy for us a large number of photos, which we are to send them. All that is necessary is to pay for the frame, which we will furnish at the lowest wholesale price. Samples of portra nd frames are on exhibition at our store, and as our liberal offer will insure orders in large numbers, your early visit is desired. These photos are to be enlarged and finished in crayon and India ink to life size, of the same size and quality as have been sold for years at $10,000 each; and we propose to make a present of one of these elegant portraits to each of our cash customers, as soon as their purchases at our store amount to $10 00. The price of our goods will remain just as low as heretofore but we trust that this unexampled offer on our part will greatly stimulate cash trade and induce all to buy for cash as well as to prove to the public generally that it is not only our aim to sell goods closely for cash, but to please our customers in other ways, and to occasionally deal with them with extra liberality in repayment for their custom, which they have so generously showered upon us in the past, and which we have no doubt they will continue to give us in the future.

Respectfully,

THE BLACK CAT

By EDGAR ALLAN POE.

For the most wild yet most homely narrative which I am about to pen I neither expect nor solicit belief. Mad indeed would I be to expect it in a case where my very senses reject their own evidence. Yet mad am I not, and very surely do I not dream. But tomorrow I die, and today I would unburden my soul. My immediate purpose is to place before the world plainly, succinctly and without comment a series of mere household events. In their consequences these events have terrified—have tortured—have destroyed me. Yet I will not attempt to expound them. To me they have presented little but horror; to many they will seem less terrible than baroques. Hereafter perhaps some intellect may be found which will reduce my phantasm to the commonplace—some intellect more calm, more logical and far less excitable than my own, which will perceive in the circumstances I detail with awe nothing more than an ordinary succession of very natural causes and effects.

From my infancy I was noted for the docility and humanity of my disposition. My tenderness of heart was even so conspicuous as to make me the jest of my companions. I was especially fond of animals and was indulged by my parents with a great variety of pets. With these I spent most of my time and never was so happy as when feeding and caressing them. This peculiarity of character grew with my growth, and in my manhood I derived from it one of my principal sources of pleasure. To those who have cherished an affection for a faithful and sagacious dog I need hardly be at the trouble of explaining the nature or the intensity of the gratification thus derivable. There is something in the unselfish and self sacrificing love of a brute which goes directly to the heart of him who has had frequent occasion to test the paltry friendship and gossamer fidelity of mere man.

I married early and was happy to find in my wife a disposition not uncongenial with my own. Observing my partiality for domestic pets, she lost no opportunity of procuring those of the most agreeable kind. We had birds, goldfish, a fine dog, rabbits, a small monkey and a cat.

This latter was a remarkably large and beautiful animal, entirely black, and sagacious to an astonishing degree. In speaking of his intelligence my wife, who at heart was not a little tinctured with superstition, made frequent allusion to the ancient popular notion which regarded all black cats as witches in disguise.

Pluto—this was the cat's name—was my favorite pet and playmate. I alone fed him, and he attended me wherever I went about the house. It was even with difficulty that I could prevent him from following me through the streets.

Our friendship lasted in this manner for several years, during which my general temperament and character, through the instrumentality of the fiend intemperance, had (I blush to confess it) experienced a radical alteration for the worse. I grew day by day more moody, more irritable, more regardless of the feelings of others. I suffered myself to use intemperate language to my wife. At length I even offered her personal violence.

My pets of course were made to feel the change in my disposition. I not only neglected but ill used them. For Pluto, however, I still retained sufficient regard to restrain me from maltreating him, as I made no scruple of maltreating the rabbits, the monkey or even the dog when by accident or through affection they came in my way. But my disease grew upon me—for what disease is like alcohol?—and at length even Pluto, who was now becoming old and consequently somewhat peevish, even Pluto began to experience the effects of my ill temper.

One night, returning home much intoxicated from one of my haunts about town, I fancied that the cat avoided my presence. I seized him, when in his fright at my violence he inflicted a slight wound upon my hand with his teeth.

In his fright at my violence he inflicted a slight wound upon my hand.

The fury of a demon instantly possessed me. I knew myself no longer. My original soul seemed at once to take its flight from my body, and a more than fiendish malevolence, gin nurtured, thrilled every fiber of my frame. I took from my waistcoat pocket a penknife, opened it, grasped the poor beast by the throat and deliberately cut one of its eyes from the socket! I blush, I burn, I shudder while I pen the damnable atrocity.

When reason returned with the morning—when I had slept off the fumes of the night's debauch—I experienced a sentiment half of horror, half of remorse, for the crime of which I had been guilty. But it was at best a feeble and equivocal feeling, and the soul remained untouched. I again plunged into excess and soon drowned in wine all memory of the deed.

In the meantime the cat slowly recovered. The socket of the lost eye presented, it is true, a frightful appearance, but he no longer appeared to suffer any pain. He went about the house as usual, but, as might be expected, fled in extreme terror at my approach. I had so much of my old heart left as to be at first grieved by this evident dislike on the part of a creature which had once so loved me.

But this feeling soon gave place to irritation. And then came, as if to my final and irrevocable overthrow, the spirit of perverseness. Of this spirit philosophy takes no account. Yet I am not more sure that my soul lives than I am that perverseness is one of the primitive impulses of the human heart—one of the indivisible primary faculties or sentiments which give direction to the character of man. Who has not a hundred times found himself committing a vile or a silly action for no other reason than because he knows he should not? Have we not a perpetual inclination, in the teeth of our best judgment, to violate that which is law, merely because we understand it to be such?

This spirit of perverseness, I say, came to my final overthrow. It was this unfathomable longing of the soul to vex itself—to offer violence to its own nature—to do wrong for the wrong's sake only—that urged me to continue and finally to consummate the injury I had inflicted upon the unoffending brute. One morning in cold blood I slipped a noose about its neck and hung it to the limb of a tree; hung it with the tears streaming from my eyes and with the bitterest remorse at my heart; hung it because I knew that it had loved me and because I felt it had given me no reason of offense; hung it because I knew that in so doing I was committing a sin—a deadly sin that would so jeopardize my immortal soul as to place it—if such a thing were possible—even beyond the reach of the infinite mercy of the most merciful and most terrible God.

On the night of the day on which this cruel deed was done I was aroused from sleep by the cry of "Fire!" The curtains of my bed were in flames. The whole house was blazing. It was with great difficulty that my wife, a servant and myself made our escape from the conflagration. The destruction was complete. My entire worldly wealth was swallowed up, and I resigned myself thenceforth to despair.

I am above the weakness of seeking to establish a sequence of cause and effect between the disaster and the atrocity. But I am detailing a chain of facts and wish not to leave even a possible link imperfect. On the day succeeding the fire I visited the ruins. The walls, with one exception, had fallen in. This exception was found in a compartment wall, not very thick, which stood about the middle of the house, and against which had rested the head of my bed. The plastering had here, in great measure, resisted the action of the fire—a fact which I attributed to its having been recently spread. About this wall a dense crowd were collected, and many persons seemed to be examining a particular portion of it with very minute and eager attention. The words "Strange!" "Singular!" and other similar expressions excited my curiosity. I approached and saw, as if graven in bas-relief upon the white surface, the figure of a gigantic cat. The impression was given with an accuracy truly marvelous. There was a rope about the animal's neck.

When I first beheld this apparition, for I could scarcely regard it as less, my wonder and my terror were extreme. But at length reflection came to my aid. The cat, I remembered, had been hung in a garden adjacent to the house. Upon the alarm of fire this garden had been immediately filled by the crowd, by some one of whom the animal must have been cut from the tree and thrown, through an open window, into my chamber. This had probably been done with a view of arousing me from sleep. The falling of other walls had compressed the victim of my cruelty into the substance of the freshly spread plaster, the lime of which, with the flames and the ammonia from the carcass, had then accomplished the portraiture as I saw it.

Although I thus readily accounted to my reason, if not altogether to my conscience, for the startling fact just detailed, it did not the less fail to make a deep impression upon my fancy. For months I could not rid myself of the phantasm of the cat, and during this period there came back into my spirit a half sentiment that seemed, but was not, remorse. I went so far as to regret the loss of the animal and to look about me, among the vile haunts which I now habitually frequented, for another pet of the same species and of somewhat similar appearance with which to supply its place.

One night as I sat half stupefied in a den of more than infamy my attention was suddenly drawn to some black object reposing upon the head of one of the immense hogsheads of gin or of rum which constituted the chief furniture of the apartment. I had been looking steadily at the top of this hogshead for some minutes, and what now caused me surprise was the fact that I had not sooner perceived the object thereupon. I approached it and touched it with my hand. It was a black cat—a very large one—fully as large as Pluto and closely resembling him in every respect but one. Pluto had not a white hair upon any portion of his body, but this cat had a large although indefinite splotch of white covering nearly the whole region of the breast.

Upon my touching him he immediately arose, purred loudly, rubbed against my hand and appeared delighted with my notice. This, then, was the very creature of which I was in search. I at once offered to purchase it of the landlord, but this person made no claim to it—knew nothing of it—had never seen it before.

I continued my caresses, and when I prepared to go home the animal evinced a disposition to accompany me. I permitted it to do so, occasionally stooping and patting it as I proceeded. When it reached the house, it domesticated itself at once and became immediately a great favorite with my wife.

For my own part I soon found a dislike to it arising within me. This was just the reverse of what I had anticipated; but—I know not how or why it was—its evident fondness for myself rather disgusted and annoyed me. By slow degrees these feelings of disgust and annoyance rose into the bitterness of hatred. I avoided the creature, a certain sense of shame and the remembrance of my former deed of cruelty preventing me from physically abusing it. I did not for some weeks strike or otherwise violently ill use it, but gradually, very gradually, I came to look upon it with unutterable loathing and to flee silently from its odious presence.

It was a black cat—a very large one.

What added no doubt to my hatred of the beast was the discovery on the morning after I brought him home that, like Pluto, it had been deprived of one of its eyes. This circumstance, however, only endeared it to my wife, who, as I have already said, possessed in a high degree that humanity of feeling which had once been my distinguishing trait and the source of many of my pleasures.

With my aversion to this cat, however, its partiality for myself seemed to increase. It followed my footsteps with a pertinacity which it would be difficult to make the reader comprehend. Whenever I sat it would crouch beneath my chair or spring upon my knees, covering me with its loathsome caresses. If I arose to walk, it would get between my feet, and thus nearly throw me down, or, fastening its long and sharp claws in my dress, clamber in this manner to my breast. At such times, although I longed to destroy it with a blow, I was yet withheld from so doing, partly by a memory of my former crime, but chiefly—let me confess it—by absolute dread of the beast.

This dread was not exactly a dread of physical evil—and yet I should be at a loss how otherwise to define it. I am almost ashamed to own—yes, even in this felon's cell, I am almost ashamed to own—that the terror and horror with which the animal inspired me had been heightened by one of the merest chimeras it would be possible to conceive. My wife had called my attention more than once to the character of the mark of white hair, of which I have spoken, and which constituted the sole visible difference between the strange beast and the one I had destroyed.

The reader will remember that this mark, although large, had been originally very indefinite. But by slow degrees—degrees nearly imperceptible, and which for a long time my reason struggled to reject as fanciful—it had at length assumed a rigorous distinctness of outline. It was now the representation of an object that I shudder to name—and for this, above all, I loathed and dreaded, and would have rid myself of the monster had I dared—it was now, I say, the image of a hideous, of a ghastly thing—of the gallows! Oh, mournful and terrible engine of horror and of crime, of agony and of death!

And now was I indeed wretched beyond the wretchedness of mere humanity. And a brute beast, whose fellow I had contemptuously destroyed—a brute beast to work out for me—for me, a man, fashioned in the image of the high God—so much of insufferable woe! Alas! Neither by day nor by night knew I the blessing of rest any more! During the former the creature left me no moment alone, and in the latter I started hourly from dreams of unutterable fear to find the hot breath of the thing upon my face, and its vast weight—an incarnate nightmare that I had no power to shake off—incumbent eternally upon my heart!

Beneath the pressure of torments such as these the feeble remnant of the good within me succumbed. Evil thoughts became my sole intimates—the darkest and most evil of thoughts. The moodiness of my usual temper increased to hatred of all things and of all mankind, while from the sudden, frequent and ungovernable outbursts of a fury to which I now blindly abandoned myself my uncomplaining wife, alas, was the most patient of sufferers.

One day she accompanied me upon some household errand into the cellar of the old building which our poverty compelled us to inhabit. The cat followed me down the steep stairs, and nearly throwing me headlong exasperated me to madness. Uplifting an ax, and forgetting in my wrath the childish dread which had hitherto stayed my hand, I aimed a blow at the animal which of course would have proved instantly fatal had it descended as I wished. But this blow was arrested by the hand of my wife. Goaded by the interference into a rage more than demoniacal, I withdrew my arm from her grasp and buried the ax in her brain. She fell dead upon the spot without a groan.

This hideous murder accomplished, I set myself forthwith and with entire deliberation to the task of concealing the body. I knew that I could not remove it from the house, either by day or by night, without the risk of being observed by the neighbors. Many projects entered my mind. At one period I thought of cutting the corpse into minute fragments and destroying them by fire. At another I resolved to dig a grave for it in the floor of the cellar. Again I deliberated about casting it into the well in the yard; about packing it in a box, as if merchandise, with the usual arrangements, and so getting a porter to take it from the house. Finally I hit upon what I considered a far better expedient than either of these. I determined to wall it up in the cellar, as the monks of the middle ages are recorded to have walled up their victims.

For a purpose such as this the cellar was well adapted. Its walls were loosely constructed and had lately been plastered throughout with a rough plaster, which the dampness of the atmosphere had prevented from hardening. Moreover, in one of the walls was a projection, caused by a false chimney or fireplace that had been filled up and made to resemble the rest of the cellar. I made no doubt that I could readily displace the bricks at this point, insert the corpse and wall the whole up as before, so that no eye could detect anything suspicious.

And in this calculation I was not deceived. By means of a crowbar I easily dislodged the bricks, and having carefully deposited the body against the inner wall I propped it in that position, while with little trouble I relaid the whole structure as it originally stood. Having procured mortar, sand and hair, with every possible precaution I prepared a plaster which could not be distinguished from the old, and with this I very carefully went over the new brickwork. When I had finished, I felt satisfied that all was right. The wall did not present the slightest appearance of having been disturbed. The rubbish on the floor was picked up with the minutest care. I looked around triumphantly and said to myself, "Here at least, then, my labor has not been in vain."

My next step was to look for the beast which had been the cause of so much wretchedness, for I had at length firmly resolved to put it to death. Had I been able to meet with it at the moment there could have been no doubt of its fate, but it appeared that the crafty animal had been alarmed at the violence of my previous anger and forbore to present itself in my present mood. It is impossible to describe or to imagine the deep, the blissful sense of relief which the absence of the detested creature occasioned in my bosom. It did not make its appearance during the night, and thus for one night at least since its introduction into the house I soundly and tranquilly slept—aye, slept even with the burden of murder upon my soul!

The blow was arrested by the hand of my wife.

The second and the third day passed, and still my tormentor came not. Once again I breathed as a free man. The monster in terror had fled the premises forever! I should behold it no more! My happiness was supreme! The guilt of my dark deed disturbed me but little. Some few inquiries had been made, but these had been readily answered. Even a search had been instituted, but of course nothing was to be discovered. I looked upon my future felicity as secured.

Upon the fourth day of the assassination a party of the police came very unexpectedly into the house and proceeded again to make rigorous investigation of the premises. Secure, however, in the inscrutability of my place of concealment, I felt no embarrassment whatever. The officers bade me accompany them in their search. They left no nook or corner unexplored. At length for the third or fourth time they descended into the cellar. I quivered not in a muscle. My heart beat calmly as that of one who slumbers in innocence. I walked the cellar from end to end. I folded my arms upon my bosom and roamed easily to and fro. The police were thoroughly satisfied and prepared to depart. The glee at my heart was too strong to be restrained. I burned to say if but one word by way of triumph and to render doubly sure their assurance of my guiltlessness.

"Gentlemen," I said at last as the party ascended the steps, "I delight to have allayed your suspicions. I wish you all health and a little more courtesy. By the by, gentlemen, this—this is a very well constructed house." In the rabid desire to say something easily I scarcely knew what I uttered at all. "I may say an excellently well constructed house. These walls—are you going, gentlemen? These walls are solidly put together." And here, through the mere frenzy of bravado, I rapped heavily with a cane which I held in my hand upon that very portion of the brickwork behind which stood the corpse of my wife.

But may God shield and deliver me from the fangs of the arch fiend! No sooner had the reverberation of my blows sunk into silence than I was answered by a voice from within the tomb—by a cry, at first muffled and broken, like the sobbing of a child, and then quickly swelling into one long, loud and continuous scream, utterly anomalous and inhuman—a howl—a wailing shriek, half of horror and half of triumph, such as might have arisen only out of hell, conjointly from the throats of the damned in their agony and of the demons that exult in the damnation.

Of my own thoughts it is folly to speak. Swooning, I staggered to the opposite wall. For one instant the party upon the stairs remained motionless, through extremity of terror and of awe. In the next a dozen stout arms were toiling at the wall. It fell bodily. The corpse, already greatly decayed and clotted with gore, stood erect before the eyes of the spectators. Upon its head, with red, extended mouth and solitary eye of fire, sat the hideous beast whose craft had seduced me into murder and whose informing voice had consigned me to the hangman. I had walled the monster up within the tomb!

Jane Conklin, Emma Jane Bailey, Belle Miller, Louisa Conklin, Thomas Conklin and William G. Conklin, Defendants. } No. 712.

Action brought in the Superior Court for the County of Clallam holding terms at Port Angeles, and complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court on the 24th day of May, 1893.

To the Above Named Defendant:

You are hereby notified that Benjamin R. Brierly, Plantiff, has filed acomplaint against you in the Superior Court of the State of Washington, for the County of Clallam, holding terms at Port Angeles, which will come on to be heard sixty days after the first publication of this summons, to-wit: Sixty days after the 2d day of June, 1893, and unless you appear and answer the same on or before the 15th day of August, 1893, the same will be taken as confessed and the prayer of said complaint granted.

This action is brought by the plaintiff as owner in fee of lot one [1], in block fourteen [14], of the original townsite of Port Angeles in Clallam county, State of Washington to quiet the title thereto. Plaintiff claims that Wm. G. Conklin died intestate and without leaving any debts, and that at the time of his death Wm. G. Conklin was the owner of said lot one [1], and left as his only heirs at law the defendants and one Clara Conklin, now deceased. That after the death of said Wm. G. Conklin, to-wit: on the 15th day of January, 1890, the defendants and Clara Conklin, by deed of that date, conveyed said lot to one Silas Goodwin, and that said Silas Goodwin conveyed said lot to plaintiff, and that plaintiff conveyed the same to one M. A. Longfellow, and that said Longfellow has reconveyed the same to plaintiff. That no administration was ever had upon the estate of said Wm. G. Conklin, and that administration thereon was wholly unnecessay. That defendants and each of them claim an interest in said property adverse to plaintiff. That defendants setforth their interest or claim to said lot in this action or be forever barred from asserting any claim thereto, and plaintiff prays judgment for such relief as he may be entitled to in the premises.

JOHN W. TROY.....Editor

A MATTER OF HISTORY.

Ex-president Harrison is to be pitied. Father Time has dealt harshly with poor old Benjamin. Whether the loss of his beloved wife, whether the harassing details of the presidency or whether the disappointment felt in not receiving the indorsement of the people for his administration has hurt him the worse is not known. Suffice it to say that the ex-president has been seriously effected by something, or by everything. It is difficult to say whether his statements in a late interview are due to childishness or an utter recklessness to facts, contrary to the former habit of the man.

To one or the other of these causes must be attributed his statement that the Sherman act was passed and agreed upon to prevent more radical legislation. This is not the record, Mr. Harrison, nor can it be the history of the Sherman act.

The Sherman act was a bill passed by a Republican house, a Republican Senate and approved by Mr. Harrison himself. There was no fear of a more radical measure, on the part of the masses, even were there cause to fear such should it become law, as the people fully understood that Mr. Harrison was clothed with the power of veto, and they regarded him as a man with the courage of his convictions. Therefore, the Sherman act was not voted for by "gold bug" Republicans, because of any fear Nor must it be forgotten that Mr. Conger, the Republican Chairman of the Conference Committee on this bill, to sustain his report called it a Republican measure, "in line with Republican judgment and Republican policy." It was afterwards endorsed by Republican state and national conventions from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Mr. Harrison would not wilfully deceive the people, so he must be getting childishly forgetful, or carelessly reckless as to actual history.

The Sherman act is Republican legislation, enacted more as a temporary makeshift to carry the Republican party over the anticipated coinage trouble, than for anything else. It was the same old story. An election was pending, and the vote of the silver states was wanted. The vote could not be had if a Republican president vetoed a free coinage bill. If he signed one, the Republican contributors would refuse to contribute, and the East would be lost. It was passed to keep Mr. Harrison and the Republican party out of a hole.

This is important only so far as it goes; as a matter of history, as it were, but it is best to keep the history straight before the people.

WELL DONE.

The citizens of Port Angeles can always be depended upon to do the right thing when the interests of their homes are at stake.

When THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER last fall said that the citizens of Port Angeles would vote to purchase the Electric Light plant it understood the temper of the people of this city.

Every city should own and operate its own light and water plants. This has been demonstrated time after time, if, indeed, it needs demonstration. No corporation should be granted the right to make profit on the necessities of the citizens when the citizens are in shape to provide their own necessities at a less cost and with less friction than otherwise. The citizen of Port Angeles understand this.

They, further, have faith in the future of Port Angeles. They expect that at a day. not distant, long before the quarter century franchise of the Electric Light Company expires, a city of no mean proportions will flourish on Port Angeles bay, and, learning from the experience of other cities of the greed of corporations organized for profit, that it would not be wise to quibble over a few thousand dollars in price now, when hundreds of thousands are at stake, they promptly and with rare unanimity voted for the issuance of the necessary bonds to purchase the plant. Thus one more franchise will have soon been restored to the people. Port Angeles has done well.

SOME COMMON-SENSE.

One of the hardest students in the Northwest on economics is Hon. Franklin K. Lane. His conclusions are reached after careful investigation. It naturally follows that his Tacoma News is one of the best and soundest papers in the nation, and it never uttered sounder doctrine or truth than when it said:

Inasmuch as hard times came under the Harrison administration and now continues under laws which were made during the Harrison regime it does seem somewhat impudent to speak of "Cleveland hard times."

It is not impudent, but a manifestation of the most gross ignorance. If the fear that Cleveland would ruin the country with free trade were the cause of the late panic the protected manufacturer would have been the ones to fail. But the last number of Bradstreet's shows that the large failures were not of manufacturing concerns, but of money-loaning concerns. There were fewer failures of manufacturing establishments either in protected or unprotected lines during the first six months of this year than of last.

Would it not be quite as honest and far more reasonable for Democrats to assert that the McKinley bill is the cause of all this financial disturbance? That bill is in effect, it has seriously abridged certain lines of business, under its influence wheat has fallen lower than for twenty years—here, we might say is the reason for all the depression we have seen.

BE FAIR.

The New York Tribune is unfair when it accuses the president with purposely delaying the call for a special session of congress that Democratic congressmen may be educated up to the duty before them. The fact is the president has desired that not only Democratic congressmen may be taught the lesson of the times, but that Republican congressmen and the people, the rank and file generally, may have ample opportunity to study the situation and arrive at as near the right and with as much patriotic unanimity as possible.

In such times as now confront the people of our country, patriotism dictates that all should be fair. None should shirk a responsibility, but every citizen owes his country his best services. This is no time to attempt to put any man or any party "in the hole."

MAJOR MCKINLEY has commenced his campaign for re-election as Governor of Ohio, and a sad task for the major it is. The people have repudiated every issue on which he has won fame. The McKinley bill, the Force bill, the Sherman act, all the important issues for which the valient governor has fought, have passed in review before the people and are now quietly at rest in the graveyard of exploded theories. McKinley's only chance is to look like Napolean and say as little as possible.

IN appointing Jas. W. Jones, of Port Townsend, Auditor of the customs house, Collector Saunders secured the services of a worthy, competent and highly deserving young man. Mr. Jones is a native of the young state of Washington, who is worthy of his state, and a Democrat who is worthy of the Democratic party.

PORT TOWNSEND had her annual city election Monday, and as usual the Democracy carried everything in sight, from Mayor down, except the city marshal. It is becoming quite popular to be a Democrat these times.

THE bald-headed row of contributors will probably slightly deminish now that a bald head is not regarded as sufficient cause for a pension.

A Distinguished Visitor.

Hon. James Perkins, of London, England, a member of the corporation of London, spent several days in the city this week. Mr. Perkins is a much traveled man, each year devoting several months to this delightful pastime and interesting pursuits. He has visited the world's fair, Yellowstone Park, British Columbia and this state.

Of Yellowstone Park he speaks in glowing terms, regarding it the most sublime spectacle in natural scenery he has ever seen in all his travels.

Imagine the fascinating and novel sport of catching trout from one of the cool flowing mountain streams and with graceful, natural motion swing the line over your shoulder with a beauty of a trout dangling at the end, it drops into the seething, surging depths of a glyser, n a few minuets to be removed most deliciously and temptingly prepared for human use.

Washington is, in his opinion, a wonderful region—a land of great possibilities; of varied resources the development of which will produce great wealth.

The Law is Unconstitutional.

Last Tuesday Judge Gordon, of Olympia, granted a writ of mandamis ordering County Auditor Moore of that county to record certain deeds and mortgages for property on which taxes were due. The effect of this decision is to declare unconstitutional the law passed by the last legislature forbidding county auditors from recording instruments for property against which taxes remained unpaid.

"Meg's Diversion."

Through a stupid oversight THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER omitted a deserved mention in lest week's issue, of the meritorious production by the Angeles Dramatic Club of the interesting play, "Meg's Diversion," on the evening of the 1st inst.

The production of this drama, evidenced on the part of the players, exceptional skill and ability, very creditable, indeed, in amateurs.

The following is the role assumed by the players:

Jeremy Crow	L H Smith
Ashley Morton	E E Seevers
Jasper Pidgeon	Wm Turkington
Poland Pidgeon	W H Smythe

COMMISSIONER'S MEET.

The Board of Equalization Will Set

THE SEVENTH OF AUGUST.

Contract Let For Bridge Across Hoko River—The County Will Claim Protection Island—The County Finances—The Commissioners Meet Again the 3rd of August.

The county commissioners met Monday, July 5th pursuant to adjournment of July 30, the day being utilized in the consideration of road matters.

JULY 6.

The board ordered that the expenditure of $300, on bridges, under supervision of supervisor of road district No. 34

Report of road supervisors of districts No's 5 and 16 read and approved.

The report of E. A. Fitzhenry, who, in conjunction with the surveyor of Jefferson county, had in compliance with instructions of the board surveyed and established the Clallam-Jefferson boundary line, was read and approved.

The board further ordered that the county claim the territory therein set forth, including Protection Island.

C. L. Willoughby resigned as conconstable for Ozette precinct. August Palmquist was appointed to fill the vacancy.

JULY 7.

Report of viewers on the Harry Hawkinson road was accepted. A review of this road was ordered, commencing at a point on the Clallam-Jefferson county road opposite the school house and extending in as direct a line as possible to connect with the present survey. The following were appointed re-viewers to meet the county surveyor at a time to be designated by the said surveyor: Otto Sinders, Jackson Johnson, Thos. Bell, jr., and Julius Wenaman.

The bid of W. H. Lambert, being the lowest, was accepted to construct the bridge across the Hoko river at or near the Hoko falls. The consideration is $1,475.

The plats of Cohalier's addition to Port Angeles and the Angeles Heights addition were presented and approved.

JULY 8.

The funds of the middle division of the road bond fund having been overdrawn, work was ordered discontinued on all roads in that division.

The board will meet on Monday, August 7th, for the purpose of equalizing the assessed valuation of property within the county.

After careful investigation it was found, owing to the suspension of the First National Bank of this city in which a larger amount of county funds were deposited, it would be impossible for the board to fully comply with the requirements of the laws of the state of Washington, by counting the money in the money in the treasury and further investigating the treasurer's accounts, it was ordered that when the board adjourned that it be until Thursday, August 3, at which time the said duty shall be performed according to law. It was found that the treasurer's book show that there was in the general fund on June 30, $43,010.06.

The board adjorned to meet August 3d, at 9:30 a. m.

G. A. R. RECEPTION.

The Department Commander and Adjutant-General Entertained.

Last Tuesday evening Pacific Post No. 48, G. A. R., gave a reception at the opera house to Department Commander Sinclair and Adjutant-General Holmes, who, by the way, are on a tour of inspection of the posts in their department which comprises Washington and Alaska.

These gentlemen expressed themselves as delighted with Port Angeles, and well-satisfied with the flourishing condition of the post of this city. A creditable program was produced for the entertainment of the guests, refreshments were served and thrilling reminiscences and incidents of the war related in that graphic manner ever of deep interest to the old soldier.

RACES AT SEQUIM.

Interesting Program Arranged for Saturday, July 22nd.

An interesting and what doubtless will prove exciting series of races will take place at Sequim on Saturday, the 22nd inst.

For the first race the following horses have been entered: "Triggertail," by H. B. Crockett, and "Ben," by Jos. McKissick. Half-mile best two in three. Purse, $100 a side.

In the second race Jno. Brown, jr.'s "Gen'l Knox," and Allie Evans' "Pete," have been entered. Half mile best two in three. Purse, $50 a side.

Other races will be arranged during the interval, and an exceedingly enjoyable day's pastime is assured by the management.

Sequim enjoys the distinction of having one of the best race courses in the state, and will in years to come, no doubt, become very popular with sporting men, and the scene of some of the future great races of the state.

At the Races.

An eager and curious crowd gathered on first street, near the public school building, last Saturday afternoon, agreeable to an announcement that a horse race would take place there, between one of Dungeness' swiftest runners and Murphy, the champion of British Columbmbia, Both horses were on the course, in excellent trim and the money had been put up. But some disagreement arose and the race was declared off.

For the amusement of the crowd two scrub races were arranged, affording an interesting exhibition of speed and daring riding.

It is understood that the municipal authorities demanded the rigid enforcement of the ordinance, prohibiting fast riding or driving within the city limits, which caused the indefinite postponment of a race which had been arranged for last Monday. Sometimes the too rigid or unreasonable enforcement of the law has a decided pernicious effect, viewed either from a business or social standpoint.

Reserve Lots.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned will receive filings and take proofs in all matters of claims to Port Angeles Townsite Reservation Lots, as well as Homestead and Pre-emption Claims. As the county receives a great and much needed benefit from the fees paid the clerk in such cases, and the cost to the claimant is never any greater at the court house than if paid to private parties, and as all lots and parcels of land become taxable as soon as title passes to individuals, it is deemed of interest to all having such claims to make their filings and proofs before the Clerk of the Superior Court.

THEY VOTE FOR BONDS.

Citizens Unanimously Favor Municipal Ownership

OE THE ELECTRIC LIGHTING PLANT.

A Light Vote Cast—Only 39 Votes Agains the Proposition—The City of Port Angeles Will Now Own its Lights—Fifth Wark Casts the Highest and Second the Lowest Vote.

The result of the special election held in this city last Saturday almost unanimously evidenced that citizens favor municipal ownership of lights.

The total vote cast was 417.

Of these 378 were for bonds "yes," and 39 for bonds "no."

According to the foregoing figures the necessary 3-5 required for bonds "Yes" would be, 249.6.

The vote on the proposition in the several wards of the city was as follows:

First Ward—Plans "yes," 28; plans "no," 4; bonds "yes," 26; bonds "no," 6, total, 32.

Second ward:—Plaos "yes," 33, plans "no," bonds "yes," 33; bond3 "no," 1, total 34.

Third ward—plans "yes," 66; plans "no," 9; bonds "yes," 69; bonds "no," 6; total, 75.

Fourth ward—Plans "yes," 80; plans "no," 6; bonds "yes," 84; bonds "no," 5, total, 89.

Fifth ward—Plans "yes," 83; plans "no," 20; bonds "yes," 92, bonds "no," 12, total, 83.

Sixth ward—Plans "yes," 74, plans "no," 9; bonds "yes," 74, bonds "no," 9, total, 83.

The city will now advertise twenty days for the sale of the bonds.

The work will doubtless be let by contract to the lowest, responsible bidder.

It is sincerely to be hoped that some local firm will be fortunate enough to secure the contract, as that would insure the expenditure of a greater amount of money and employment of labor in the city.

The council will, doubtless act with wisdom and discretion, and whatever course they ultimately conclude to pursue, will be, in their honest judgment, for the best interest of all concerned.

COUNTY NEWS.

Interesting Paragraphs From the County Press.

Port Crescent Leader.]

The ruins of Port Crescent's spendid mill plant are somewhat discouraging on closer inspection. The fire made thorough work and scarcely a vestige of the massive timbers of the mill building remain. Even the wharf that was being built of slabs and edgings has been completely burned while the tide was out. After more than a week here and there the smouldering fire remains in isolated places. On Monday night Mr. E. L. Thompson, adjuster for the Northwest Fire & Marine Insurance Company of Portland, made a survey of the loss. Mr. Karlsall, a Seattle machinist was also present to estimate the machinery. As soon as the insurance companies act on the report of the adjuster the rebuilding of the mill will take more definite shape. The loss of the present season is keenly felt, however, and the fire is a great misfortune to the entire community. The cedar lumber of Port Crescent has achieved a splendid reputation in Seattle, Tacoma and Portland markets and the output was just beginning to be sent to the Omaha market, which would have afforded a steady and profitable business. It is to be hoped that the rebuilding of the mill will not be long delayed.

Mr. Charles Adie, of Neah Bay, has been appointed chief operator of the government telegraph line along the straits. His headquarters will be at Neah Bay.

Mr. Chas Jones returned Friday from Port Townsend and started for his ranch on the Upper Solduck. Mr. Jones has been prospecting in the Olympics and has made some rich finds which he promises to soon making public.

Mr. Wm. K. Clark is a lucky man. He shot his fire crackers this year with the zeal of a successful candidate for the leading Federal appointment in Clallam county. After a bitter fight by the opposing elements of the Democratic party of Clallam county Mr. Clark is the appointee of Collector Saunders as deputy collector at Port Angeles, vice Mr. H. K. Bickford, resigned. Mr. Clark's commission took effect the 5th inst. Without mixing in the Democratic family quarrel in the least the Leader is free to remark that Mr. Clark is an honrable gentleman, an honest man and will make a faithful and competent Federal official. We regret that all our Democratic friends cannot have officies and without ignoring the transcendent merits of the boys who are left out in the cold, cold world. the Leader extends its sincere congratulations to Mr. Clark on his appointment to a place of honor and responsibility. his predecessor has maintained the office with the highest degree of efficiency, and Mr. Clark will do himself honor if he equals the record made by Mr. Bickford.

ABOUT THE RESERVE.

Squatters Will Soon Perfect Title to Their Lots.

INSTRUCTIONS BEING PREPARED

By the Commissioner of the General Land Office for the Register and Receiver to Govern the Sale of the Lots—Flattering Opinion Expressed of Port Angeles.

The following telegram from Washington of more than passing local significance, appeared among the Associated Press dispatches of Wednesday:

The appraisement of lots and parcels of land at the townsite of Port Angeles, Wash., by the commission appointed by Secretary Noble under section 2381 of the revised statutes has been approved by the interior department.

The commissioner of the general land office is now preparing instructions to the proper register and receiver for the sales of said lots and parcels of land.

Settlers under the law are entitled to purchase at the appraised price the town lot on which they live and one other upon which they may have made valuable improvements.

The remaining lands are to be sold to the highest bidder above the appraised value.

The whole townsite aggregates about three thousand acres.

The commissioner of the general land office is now engaged in drawing up instructions for the sale of the lots. Each settler is to be given opportunity before every one else of purchasing the lot upon which he resides, or he may purchase one upon which he has made valuable improvements in addition to one which he resides upon.

The commissioners who made the appraisement speak enthusiastically of the future of the new city, the general prosperity of which is now unhampered. They regard the harbor as one of the best on the Pacific coast. It is probable that the arrangemente necessary for the sale of all the unclaimed lots may be made before the end of the coming fall, and the city will become full-fledged in every sense of the word.

First Class Dining Room.

Miss A. D. Richart will open to the general public in the Frank Link building on Front street, a first class dining room, on Saturday, July 1st, at 5 p. m. The patronage of the general public respectfully solicited, and every effort will be made to merit a share of the trade. Special attention given to dinner parties and suppers for social gatherings.

ATTENTION.—Any person desiring a carriage to any part of the city, will find the undersigned on Lincoln street wharf, nearly opposite the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Passengers taken to and from all boats; also baggage promptly delivered. Terms reasonable. Orders left at the Y. M. C. A. or at Maggart's second hane store on Front corner Oak streets. Prompt attention given to all orders. Patronage respectfully solicited.

WM. H. DOUGLAS.

The Sun Shines Once More.

The sun shines once more, says the Colfax Commoner, in the field of finance and business throughout the United States, and the storm which has been overtopping many institutions of the country seems to have passed away. Failures are diminishing everywhere. Money is flowing westward, both from Europe and across the continent and confidence is restored. Banks on this coast are resuming business where temporary suspension became necessary, and the outlook seems to justify the prediction that money is to be freer than for a long time past. Washington, says the West Coast Trade, stands in the way to reap the rewards of returning business confidence and activity in a greater measure than almost any other portion of the country, and she is going to push to the front from this time forth with her old-time vim and snap.

Tribune-Times Building.

Last Monday Contractor Crosby with a force of men began the construction of the Tribune-Times' new home on west Front street.

The dimensions of the new structures will be 24x60 feet, two stories high. The plans and specifications demonstrate the fact that the interior will be arranged with an eye to convenience and comfort, containing the appointments of a modern newspaper office. It will be ready for occupancy in about sixty days.

Auditing Jefferson County Books.

Mr. Douglas Young has been called upon by the Commissioners of Jefferson county to audit the books of the auditor and treasurer of that county. Mr. Young previously audited a portion of the county's official books, and his being again called upon speaks highly of the manner of work done.

New Photograph Gallery.

David T. Smith, the photographer, has located in the city and expects to have a fine suite of rooms soon. He is at present engaged in taking views of the town and squatter's cabins. Fourth of July pictures made by him are on exhibition at the Photo Parlor on Dolan's wharf. If you want a fine photograph of your residence, turnout or stock, don't fail to employ Mr. Smith. He has had long and successful experience in the business and is an artist in everg respect.

ASTHMA CURED BY DR. TAFT'S ASTHMALENE

Instead of flying to the door gasping for breath, seeming as if each one would be your last, you have only to take a few doses Asthmalene when the spasm is broken, the breathing becomes easy and you feel as if an angel of mercy had unloosed the iron grasp of the fingers of death. The happiest moment of your life will be when you have used a few bottles of Dr. Taft's ASTHMALENE and it has cured you of Asthma. We mail to any Asthma sufferer a trial bottle FREE and prove that it does Cure Asthma act gently but promptly upon the kidneys, liver, stomach and intestines; cleanse the system effectually; dispel colds, headaches and fevers; cure habitual constipation, making enemas unnecessary. Are acceptable to the stomach and truly beneficial in effects. A single TABULE taken after the evening meal, or just before retiring, or, better still, at the moment when the first indication is noted of an approaching cold, headache, any symptom of indigestion or depression of spirits, will remove the whole difficulty in an hour without the patient being conscious of any other than a slightly warming effect, and that the expected illness failed to materialize or has disappeared.

Sold by druggists. Dr. Taft Bros. M. Co., Rochester, N.Y

Disease commonly comes on with slight symptoms, which when neglected increase in extent and gradually grow dangerous.

If you suffer from Headache, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, ... TAKE RIPANS TABULES

If you are Bilious, Constipated, or have a Disordered Liver, ... TAKE RIPANS TABULES

If your Complexion is Sallow, or you suffer Distress after Eating, . . TAKE RIPANS TABULES

For Offensive Breath and all Disorders of the Stomach, ... TAKE RIPANS TABULES

Ripans Tabules Regulate the System and Preserve the Health.

HAVE YOU TRIED DRUGS AND FAILED

TO FIND A CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, KIDNEY, LIVER and BLADDER COMPLAINTS, DYSPEPSIA, LAME-BACK, &c.

DR. SANDEN'S ELECTRIC BELT with Electro Magnetic Suspensory will cure without medicine all of the above troubles. Those who suffer from Nervous Debility, Losses, Drains, Lost Manhood, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Poor Memory, all Female Complaints, and general Ill health, the effects of abuses, excesses, worry or exposure, will find relief and prompt cure in our marvelous invention, which requires but a trial to convince the most skeptical. In ignorance of effects you may have unduly drained your system of nerve force and vitality —which is electricity—and thus caused your weakness or lack of force. If you replace into your system the elements thus drained, which are required for vigorous strength, you will remove the cause and health, strength and vigor will follow at once. This is our plan and treatment, and we guarantee a cure or refund money.

Our 200 page book "THREE CLASSES OF MEN," should be read by every young, middle-aged and old man, sent sealed, free. Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt is no experiment as we have restored thousands to robust health and vigor, after all other treatments failed, as can be shown by hundreds of cases throughout this and other States, who would gladly testify, and from many of whom we have strong letters bearing testimony to their recovery after using our Belt.

WE HAVE CURED THESE—WE CAN CURE YOU!

CENERAL DEBILITY CURED.

San Francisco, Cal., August 14, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Before I used your belt I was troubled with lost vigor, vital weakness, and almost a complete loss of power. I would get up with a very tired feeling, bones aching, etc.; since using your belt I have had a new lease of life. I now enjoy life better than I have for ten years past. I have the utmost confidence in your treatment. You can publish this statement, also have others write or call on me. Truly yours, H. A. BOWEN, 26 and 28 Turk St.

RHEUMATISM AND LAMENESS CURED.

Portland, Oregon, April 18 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I got one of your belts two weeks ago for rheumatism, from which I suffered for several years. For the past six months I had not been able to work. Your belt has placed me in almost perfect health in the two weeks I have used it. I can walk comfortably, and feel like a new man generally.
M. E. HUGHES, Proprietor International Hotel.

NERVOUS DEBILITY—LOSS OF VIGOR.

Tacoma, Wash., October 24, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I have been using your Electric belt for general nervous debility, and to-day feel better than I have for five years. I have gained in vigor daily, and am strong in every part.
Yours gratefully, CHAS. LUETKA.

LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM.

Portland Oregon, September 26, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Years of exposure and hard work, combined with the strain coming from the jar of an engine, gave me a severe case of lame back, from which I suffered for seven years. I was so bad that I could not bend my back. Was all doubled up with it. I bought one of your belts. It helped me inside of two days, and I continued to wear it for four months, being perfectly cured. That was two years ago, and I am as well to-day as I ever was in my life. I know your belt well, and I know lots of people who have been cured by it. Many others need it, and if they would try it they would find it the same as I did —the best remedy in the world. I am located here permanently, and will be glad to talk with any one who wants to inquire about it.
ROBERT BURREL, Engineer Hotel Portland.

LOST VITALITY AND STRENGTH.

Everett, Wash, June 18, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Since wearing your belt I have been greatly benefited. I feel my old energy fast returning; and after a month's use of the belt I find myself twice as vigorous as before. My memory is now nearly perfect, and each day shows for the better. I feel much stronger than before using the belt. Yours truly, HENRY SCHULTZ.

THE DR. SANDEN ELECTRIC BELT

is a complete galvanic battery, made into a belt so as to be easily worn during work or street, and it gives soothing, prolonged currents which are instantly felt throughout all weak parts, or we forfeit $5,000. It has an Improved Electric Suspensory, the greatest boon ever given weak men, and we warrant it to cure any of the above weaknesses, and to enlarge shrunken limbs, or parts, or Money Refunded. They are graded in strength to meet all stages of weakness in young, middle-aged or old men, and will cure the worst cases in two or three months. Address for full information.

SWEETHEART, FORBEAR!

"Sweetheart, forbear!" Thus said I to my dear
She, with rebellious grace,
The light of wayward fancy on her face,
And some half smile, half tear;
"Nay, silence is not peace;
'Twere better far than this wholly to cease!
If I should know no more
The rapture of revolt, the joyous strife,
The free, unfettered air I breathed before."

So we long time assailed with hot debate,
And kindling voice and word,
Deep problems, which a myriad souls have striven—
Fore knowledge, freedom, fate.
Till, wearied out at last,
Hand clasped in hand, without a word we twain,
Gazing at a moonrise on the silvered main,
Knew a strange calm enfold our doubt with sleep,
And all the stress and conflict stilled and past.
—Lewis Morris in Black and White.

STEAMBOAT FRANK.

"What place was that?" asked a tall, aristocratic planter, as the steamer pulled away from the landing into the dusky river.

"Kerry's Landing," said the man beneath the black slouch hat, who had just stepped aboard. "Good place to leave; nothing but swamps."

"How far to Davis' plantation?"

"'Bout three hours. Another durned swamp. Stop there?"

"Yes. Got a plantation back from the river a piece. Swamp is right through. Three hours, eh?"

"Yes. Didn't suppose there was land enough along there to plant one."

"Oh, it's all right when you get to it. Going to be dark, ain't it?"

"Should say so. Got a good pilot, though."

"First rate. Do you play?"

"Sometimes, if the game's good. Who's in it?"

"Nobody much. Drummers and such like. Oh, Wheeler of Richmond. Know him?"

"No; who is he?"

"Not much; cotton edger. Safe game."

"All right; I'm in. That spray's little wet, ain't it?"

"Rather; let's go inside."

"What's the limit?"

"Two hundred. Have a cigar?"

"Yes, thanks. Here we are."

"Any room here, gents? Whew! it's cloudy."

"Yes, lots of room. Hello, colonel: come in," says a voice from the smoke. "Bring out the drink, nigger. I say, colonel, what you're going to have?"

"Little whisky—rye."

"Rye whisky there, nigger. Hold on, there—I want another card. All right. Don't your friend take anything?"

"Don't know; you had better ask him."

"I'll take the same, stranger," from beneath the hat."

"All right. How do they run, colonel?"

"Fair to middling. Haven't been up for some time. What's the news?"

"Nothing much. Queer about Nichols, wasn't it?"

"Yes; how did that happen?"

"Well, there are several stories going around. Some say they put up a job to do Steamboat Frank, and he got the best of them. Comin in, colonel?"

"Yes."

"You, stranger?"

"Yes."

"All right. Never did think much of that feller Nichols anyway."

"Same here; bad eyes."

"You're right. How many do you want? Three. Frank killed two, didn't he? Who was the other fellow?"

"Don't know. Some one from Texas, I think."

"I raise you 50," here broke in a Spanish accent from the lower end of the table.

"Hello, Sig! Right in it, eh? I'll have to raise you. How did that killing come off anyhow? Know anything about it Wheeler?"

"Oh, easy enough, from what I hear. They got to playing a pretty stiff game, and Frank took all the money. They were hard losers and tough men generally. They accused him of cheating and started the row, and he simply wiped them out."

"And they were not the first ones that he has wiped out either."

"No, you are right. If all the reports are correct, he has a pretty long list back there, but they do say that know him that he is as square as a die and wouldn't kill a chicken without he had to, but when some one comes along and takes him for a mud flat or sand bar the way things jingle around that locality is a caution to Christmas bells in a great city."

And then he branched out into several amusing anecdotes regarding him; of his heavy games and ugly scrapes; of his cool nerve and ready wit; how upon one occasion a Texas ranchman had, by his loud and braggadocio manner, contrived to offend the more quiet tastes of Steamboat Frank; had been backed over the taffrail of a boat with a cocked revolver uncomfortably near his nose, and after being towed for a mile or two was at last hauled aboard again and contained less starch and more gentleness of manner.

"But there is one fellow who has got in on Frank, who don't allow any time for fooling. He is a big New Orleans gambler called Blazer."

"Blazer? You don't tell me," said the colonel. "I know him; hard lot, they say."

"Yes, you're right, and they say he is the man who has driven Frank from the river."

"What, Blazer? How is that?" asked the colonel.

"Well, you see it is a long story. There was, as is usual, a woman in it. She sort of liked Frank best, I suppose. Can't blame her much, after seeing Blazer, eh? Face like a Chinese funeral, only more so. Frank must be a corker if he looks worse than she does. Well, anyhow, Frank got the girl, and Blazer has been trying to down him ever since. Frank had asked him to come out and settle it two or three times, but Blazer's peculiar gift doesn't seem to lie in that direction. He lies some other way better. You see, he has a strong pull down at the Crescent, and Frank's case don't have time to settle down as any other man would. The fellows Frank settled were great friends of Blazer's, and I heard a rumor that the whole thing was a job cooked up to do Frank, but don't know as there is anything in it. If there was a job, it failed in its object anyhow. Your deal, stranger. Bad for Frank, though, just the same."

Thus pleasantly amused the time flew by unnoticed, until presently the whole party were aroused to the consciousness that the quiet man at the far corner of the table, whose face was concealed beneath the brim of his hat, was winning all the money in the crowd.

"You are playing great luck," remarked the colonel.

"Yes, easy money. First I've seen lately."

The party became slightly nettled, and the colonel proposed extending the limit. They all agreed, and the stranger still kept on at his old gait.

"I'm done," said one of them presently as he threw down his hand.

The stranger was still playing in the same easy, half careless manner, his bets being made without any apparent thought, while the others were more deliberate and played with the greatest caution.

"I think we had better let out a few more laps in this limit," said the colonel as he warmed to the music.

"Suppose we cut loose altogether," suggested the Spaniard in a tone of feigned calmness, although his eyes blazed with excitement. Some of them assented, the rest dropped out and watched the battle.

"Who's in this time?" asked the stranger as he began to deal. "All right, here you go. What's up, gents?"

"Five hundred," said the colonel as he threw a note in the center of the table.

"I'll have to raise you 500, colonel," said the stranger as it came to him.

"One thousand above you," said the colonel.

"Fifteen hundred," shouted the Spaniard as he threw down the stuff. The rest here dropped out.

"Two thousand better, my friend," said the stranger.

They raised him again, and things were growing interesting when the stranger quietly mentioned 10,000, and taking up a rubber purse that had been lying upon the table counted out the money.

"I'm done," said the colonel, throwing down his hand.

"I, too," echoed the Spaniard in a dejected manner.

"Ah, well, so it goes," said the stranger, as he reached for the pot, throwing down his hand, containing only a pair of jacks.

"Well, I be——," said the Spaniard.

"Me, too," said the colonel.

Suddenly there was a loud knock at the door, and a rough voice shouted "Open up!". Every one started in surprise except the stranger, who was busy stuffing the money into his rubber wallet.

"What do you want?" asked some one as he opened the door.

Three burly forms pushed hurriedly in, but all stopped simultaneously when their eyes fell upon the stranger, who was standing quietly with two big revolvers trained upon them.

"Good evening, gents. Your peremptory entrance seems to be a little rude. Suppose you drop your guns."

The clatter of several heavy articles was heard upon the floor.

"You might put up your hands—sorry to trouble you."

Six hands were at once seen in the neighborhood of the ceiling.

"Lucky the game was done; ha, colonel? These officers are always troublesome. 'Bout face, there, you fellows; keep your hands up if you don't want to know how it feels to get hurt. Forward, march! Look out for the stairs; that's good. Right dress (as the men stood by the rail upon the boiler deck). Now, then—one, two, jump!"

A heavy splash immediately followed his words. The boat was just rounding the bend and not more than 20 yards from shore.

"Bon voyage," said he, sticking the revolvers in his pockets.

"Captain, land me at the nearest woodyard on the other side."

"All right," said he, making a signal to the pilot. Immediately the faint, faraway jingle of bells was heard, and the boat turned her nose toward the opposite bank.

"Good night, gents," he called to the crowd hanging around the rails as the gangplank was slammed into place. "I always did prefer this mode of landing."

"Who was it?" asked the Spanish accent, as the boat swung out into her course again.

"Steamboat Frank," said the captain.

"I thought so," muttered the colonel.

Cardinal Newman at Dinner.

On an occasion when Cardinal Newman was dining at a friend's house, a noble lord among the guests, wishing to draw him out with respect to the upshot of political contests in the Roman states, said, "Things are sadly disturbed just now in Italy, Dr. Newman." Staring into space in an apparently vacant manner, he replied, "Yes, and in China." No one present said a word more on the subject.—San Francisco Argonaut.

PROBATE NOTICE.
