A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

Judge Carusi Mortally Wounds Dr. I. R. Herrick.

AN OLD FEUD CAUSED THE DEED.

The Incident Briefly Told Which Leads to the Crime—Scene of the Shooting—A Pathetic Death Scene—The Coroner's Inquest and Complete Report of the Jury—The Funeral Services.

Last Tuesday afternoon a sad tragedy occurred in which Dr. I. R. Herrick was mortally wounded and Judge S. P. Carusi quite seriously injured. The cause which led to the fatal quarrel was a feud of long standing existing between the combatants. This enmity gathered as time past on until the feeling engendered towards each other was that of intense, deadly hatred. Threats of personal violence were exchanged by either, in fact, the result of the mortal combat gives foundation for the conclusion that either had determined upon a personal settlement of his grievance whenever a favorable opportunity offered.

The incident which aggrevated the tragic and unfortunate termination of affairs occurred some time last December. A young girl of unsavory reputation was at the time under medical treatment by Dr. I. R. Herrick. Becoming more or less intimate with the doctor she gave him fifty-five dollars, which subsequent events proved had been stolen by her from her father. At the time Dr. Herrick had strong suspicions that the girl had not come by the money honestly. He was, however, assured that the money belonged to her.

Having occasion then to take a trip up-Sound he gave the matter no further thought, but before leaving, however, he told a number of friends of the incident as well as of his suspicions of criminality on the part of the girl, adding that if his suspicions should prove well-founded he would refund the money.

Upon the doctor's return from Seattle, he learned that a warrant was to be sworn out for his arrest. P. A. Meagher, who was city marshal at the time, applied to Carusi for a warrant, the latter advising him to stay proceedings for a few days. Carusi then made known the facts of the case to Mrs. D. M. Blackwood, to whom the doctor was at the time paying devoted attentions. With the unselfish devotion of a true, noble woman, she stood ready to do anything in her power to help the doctor out of his distasteful position, even to parting with valued jewels. She gave Carusi a soltaire diamond ring was placed in hands of C. P. Brown, cashier of the First National Bank, who advanced the required sum upon it, believing it was the property of S. P. Carusi. The doctor had solemnly pledged himself to redeem the ring, and had upon several occasions raised quite a sufficient amount for the purpose, but adverse circumstances arose which defeated his purpose. The doctor's procrastination and evident indifferance in the matter provoked several letters from Carusi severely criticising him for his negligence, and demanding that he (the doctor) give the matter immediate attention.

Learning of the engagement of Dr. Herrick and Mrs. Blackwood, Carusi used the incident to influence Mrs. Blackwood from marrying the former. It is alleged from a reliable source that he even went further, speaking in most uncomplimentary and damaging terms of of the doctor's past career. The interference did not, however, avail, as the couple were married the 24th of last month.

The affair culminated on September 4th when Mrs. Herrick received the following note from Mrs. Carusi:

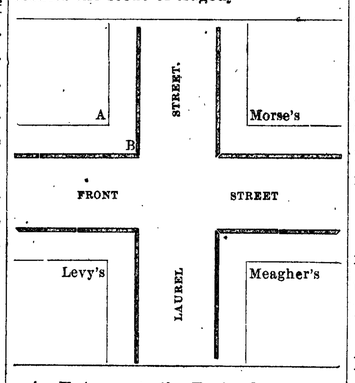
"Mrs. S. P. Carusi regrets that circumstances have arisen which render it imperative to return all existing evidences of former friendship between Mrs. Herrick and herself.

MONDAY, August 4, '93."

Accompanying this note was sent several articles which Mrs. Herrick had given Mrs. Carusi. The receipt of the note, breaking every tie of friendship, again fanned the smouldering flame of hatred and enemity existing between Herrick and Carusi into an intense, consuming fire, and what ultimately proved uncontrollable, bloodthirsty desire for revenge.

Tuesday afternoon Herrick and Carusi met on the corner of Front and Laurel streets, only a few feet from the doorway of the Turf saloon. They approached each other in an excited manner, a few vile invictives passing between them when Herrick struck Carusi over the head with a cast iron wrench nine inches long, weighing nine ounces, inflicting an ugly cut about two and a half inches long, which did not, however, fracture the skull. S. D. Maxwell, who was standing near by, seized Herrick, pinioning his arms and firmly holding him in a helpless, harmless attitude. Carusi, who by this time had recovered from the force of the blow, which had apparently dazed him, drew his revolver, a double action Smith & Wesson thirty-eight caliber, and reaching over Maxwell, who was standing between him and Herrick, shot the latter, the bullet piercing the upper lobe of the right lung.

The following roughly drawn diagram locates the scene of tragedy



A—Entrance to the Turf saloon.

B—Scene of the tragedy.

Herrick fully realized the gravity of the situation, as he turned to Carusi and said "Look, what you have done!" He then walked into the saloon and sank into a chair. From that position he was carried to the office of Dr. Lull, where a number of physicians were in waiting to alleviate the suffering of the dying man. The attending physicians were A. B. Lull, F. S. Lewis, J. P. Frizell and H. C. Willison, of Townsend. The unanimous opinion expressed was that the wound was fatal, and life could only be prolonged for a few hours at the most. The patient lingered between life and death, life apparently only being held by a slender cord, forced by the gravity of the injury to the very highest tensure. At about 9:30 the patient rallied for a few momets, gathering only spasmodic strength, gradually relaxing and steadily failing until 12:15 when dissolution took place.

From the time of the shooting almost to the end, the doctor was conscious, and readily recognized those around him. The death scene was most pathetic, surrounded by his grief-stricken young wife the attending physicians and a few intimate friends, he gradually passed into that sleep from which no traveler has ever been awakened without the realms of the great undiscovered country.

Wednesday forenoon the attending physicians held a postmortem, the results of which demonstrated that the bullet had entered the right breast about two inches below the clavicle and about two inches to the right of the sternum, passing downwards and backwards, perforating the superior lobe of the right lung, thence downwards and through the posterior lobe of the liver, passing back of the right kidney slightly lacerating it and lodging in the crest of the ilium.

From this it will be seen that the bullet passed through the essentially vital parts of life, death being inevitable.

The untimely and tragic passing away of Dr. Herrick removes from this stage of action a personality of versatile talents. A man of striking address, a brilliant, fluent and peculiarly fascinating conversationist, a man of wonderful capacity and grasp in his chosen profession, having a mastery over details which was simply remarkable, a mind of logical and analytical turn his diagnosis of a case, or analysis of a subject was always clear and penetrating. In the pursuit of his profession his career was of great promise having always been signally successful in his practice. In the realm of business the subject of this sketch woefully lacked the discipline, the training and the experience, which so forcefully teaches the absoluteness of rigidly observing its inexerable rules, a pardonable fault, however, of which many of America's most eminent men are unfortunately addicted. A man of intense passions, he erred, as poor, weak humanity ever will throughout all time. The graces of his character were many, however, the dominating trait of which was his unswerving loyalty to his friends. Of him it can never be said he betrayed a friend.

A member of one of the first families of the South, he occupied a high social position before coming to this state.

Dr. Herrick was a young man, only 26 years of age, was a native of Kentucky, and a graduate of the Vanderbilt University, of Nashville, Tenn., which is the present home of his aged parents.

Judge S. P. Carusi. came to this city several years ago, is an old resident of the coast, having been a man of prominence in Arizona, California and Washington, and is well-known all over this coast. He is a man of powerful physique, of more than ordinary ability, and is police magistrate of this city. At the present time he is at his home on East Front street, under the care of Dr. Strother, who pronounces the injuries inflicted serious, although not fatal.

THE CORONER'S JURY.

The coroner's jury was impaneled Wednesday afternoon by Coroner McGeorge to inquire into the cause of the death of Dr. I. R. Herrick.

The first witness sworn was S. D. Maxwell, whose testimony was substantially as follows:

"While sitting in front of Frank Meerwaldt's saloon I saw Dr. Herrick talking to H. B. Willson. I turned my attention from them to the head of the wharf for a few minutes, when I again saw the doctor he was standing by the electric light poll at the corner. At that time Judge Carusi came along, I think from the west or across the street. He had a law book under his arm. I next saw the Judge's hat fall, and he either threw the book or dropped it. I am not certain which; at the same time I saw the doctor raise his hand with something in it, which to me looked like a gun. I immediately left my seat, went up to him, took hold of him, but before I got to him he struck Caausi with this instrument. I said to him as nearly as I can remember, "For God's sake, doctor, what is the matter? You don't want any trouble here on the corner." He replied, "Let me get at him." He then said excitedly, "Don't let him shoot me," I assured him that he would not shoot. At that time there was a report close to me. The doctor said, "I'm shot in the abdomen, Mac." I said let go of me, and he let go and ran. Then I turned to Carusi and said, "For God's sake, put up your gun." I repeated that. Carusi replied, "I don't want to kill the man." I replied you have shot him once, don't shoot him again. He then said putting his hand to his head. "See what he has done." The doctor said speaking to Carusi, see what you have done." Just about that time some one in front of Meerwaldt's saloon, I think it was Judge Clark, said, "Don't make a show of yourself." The doctor was then assisted into the saloon. The place of the shooting was the northwest corner of Laurel and Front streets.

The instrument used by Dr. Herrick looked to me like a sixe-sided wrench, not such as I am accustomed to seeing, as a buggy wrench. The last I saw of it was when the doctor was taken into the saloon. It was an iron wrench, six or eight inches long. I took hold of the doctor just after he struck the last blow. That is, I saw only signs of previous blows. I had hold of the doctor when the shot was fired. I was standing between them when the shot was fired. I held the doctor by one arm, the arm that held the wrench, I think. I held him with the other hand on the coat. I knew Carusi was behind me and as I held the doctor with the left hand near the lapel of the coat, by the report of the pistol I knew it must have been on the left side of me. My hand was powder-burned and some of my coat, which caused me to believe that it was close to me. I saw Carusi with the pistol until he dropped it by his side. Mr. O'Brien took it from him. I did not see the pistol until after the report.

"Carusi was greatly excited and looked wild. He had a large scalp wound. Looked to me as though the scalp was laid open."

H. C. Williams being called and sworn testified as follows:

Ques. Do you known anything touching an altercation which took place between Mr. S. P. Carusi and I. R. Herrick yesterday, and if so state what you know concerning the cause of the death of I. R. Herrick?

Ans. Judge Carusi and I came down yesterday to Mr. Hatch's office together, C had a law book and some papers in his hand which Mr. Hatch had just made out. We separated at foot of the stairs on the sidewalk, the judge then went west across the street; went down the opposite side towards Mr. Meerwaldt's corner. Dr. Herrick was then going along so they met there at that corner, and I think they had some words before they got close together. I heard loud words, don't know whether it was between them, then Dr. Herrick struck him, could not tell what he struck him with. I simply saw the motion of his hand striking, it was about 80 feet from where I stood, that staggered the judge and he threw his hands up in the air with his books in his hand, he then stepped forward and threw them into Herrick's face, then Herrick struck him again in the same manner as before, then followed what Mr. Maxwell stated and it was just as he stated it. I saw the shot afterwards, it was fired by Judge S. P. Carusi.

The witness from this time on corroberates the testimony of S. D. Maxwell.

A. O. Brien being called as witness, after being sworn testifies as follows.

Ques. State what you know of the circumstances as to the death of I. R. Herrick and concerning the altercation which took place yesterday between Dr. I. R. Herrick and Judge S. P. Carusi?

Ans. I was standing on the east corner of Meerwaldt's saloon, on Laurel street, I turned my attention west and saw Judge Carusi's hat flying to the ground. At the same time he threw his hands in the air with a book in his right hand, he stepped forward and threw the book, at that I saw Herrick make another move with something in his hand, he struck a downward blow on Carusi's head. Carusi at that stepped around, he was facing me as the blow was struck, I was then just starting toward them, just as I was starting Carusi had stepped around with his back toward me and facing west. Whilst I was going there towards the two parties the shot was fired, at that the hand that held the gun was dropped to his, Carusi's, side. I can't say for certain who fired the shot, I did not see the smoke from the gun. Mr. Maxwell was between Carusi and Herrick when the shot was fired. I continued towards them after the shot was fired, when I got to them I caught Mr. Carusi's hand which held the gun and said, "Judge give me that gun." He said, "no, that was his, that he wanted it" or something to that effect. He seemed to hold a pretty tight grip of the gun in the meanwhile he was staggering partly, whilst he was staggering I pulled his fingers from the gun and took the gun away from him. I put the gun in my pocket and walked off—I have the gun yet—here it is —exhibiting a pistol—It has not been out of my hands since excepting that I left it at home this morning and went up and got it. It is in the same condition as when I took it from the Judge. It is a small Smith & Wesson the ball it carries as near as I understand it, is a 38 caliber ball [the pistol here being left in the charge of the coroner.] Just as I was approaching Carusi and Herrick as before stated. I saw In Herrick's hand what looked like a bar of iron about ⅛ an inch thick with a curl in the end of it. I don't know that I could identify it.

When I saw Carusi's hat fly off I was between 18 and 20 feet from them.

While Maxwell was holding Herrick, he said to him not to hit him again, next I heard was "Put up your gun." As I got to Carusi he put up his hand to his head and said "See what you have done."

It was only a few seconds from the time I saw the hat fall until the shot was fired.

This all occurred between 1 and 2 o'clock on September 5th, 1893, in Port Angeles, corner Laurel and Front streets, Clallam county, Wash.

Ques. Did you see the shot fired?

Ans. I only heard the report, the first I saw was the gun in his hand down by his side. A. O'BRIEN.

Dr. F. S. Lewis being first duly sworn testified as follows:

Ques. You are a physician are you not? Were you called yesterday to attend Dr. I. R. Herrick?

Ans. Yes.

Ques. State what condition you found him in?

Ans. I found him in Dr. Lull's office lying on the floor. I examined him. I found him in a state of collapse, with scarcely any pulse. I opened his clothes front and found what appeared to be a bullet wound about 2 or 3 inches below the collar bone about midway between the breastbone or sternum and shoulder over the second rib. I did not probe for the bullet at that time. I was with him most all the time from his injury to his death. I was present at his death, and since that time I have held a post mortem examination of the body.

I found that a bullet had entered his body, as above stated, had passed inward and fractured the second rib on right side. It was deflected downward and backward passing through the right lung, the right lobe of the liver, behind the right kidney and lodged on the crest of the ilium, between the muscels and ligaments. I extracted the ball and passed it into the hands of the coroner. The ball produced by the coroner. I identify this as the ball extracted by me as I stated.

Ques. What is your opinion of the cause of Dr. Herrick's death?

Ans. I was caused by a revolver bullet wound of the lungs and liver.

Ques. Was the immediate cause of the death of Dr. Herrick, the course of the bullet extracted by you at the post mortum examination?

Ans. It was.

Ques. Did you make a thorough post-mortem e xamination?

Ans. Yes sir.

Ques. Did you find any indications on the body of anything else which might have caused death?

Ans. I did not, except the hemorrhage caused by the bullet wound. The post mortem examination was held in Dr. Lull's office in Port Angeles, Clallam county, Wash., on the 6th day of Sept., 1893, in the forenoon. I attended him first in Dr. Lull's office about half past two o'clock on the afternoon of the 5th day of Sept., 1893, he died on the evening of the same day at twenty-five minutes to 12 o'clock p. m.

Interesting Paragraphs From the County Press.

East Clallam Record.]

Commissioner George Lamb has succeeded in getting the property taxes reduced one half in the town of East Clallam, a measure that will be greatly appreciated by the people here as the assessor had rated values too high in proportion to the values put upon property in the other towns of the county. For instance the assessment of Dungeness property was away below that of East Clallam and although it had been raised 100 per cent it is not yet as high as the assessment here. Credit is due Mr Lamb for getting the taxes down to a proper level.

Can See His Brain Pulsate.

A remarkable surgical case was that of little Charlie Fisher, who was recently discharged from the Eastern District hospital, Brooklyn. The little patient, while riding with his grandfather on Bedford avenue a week or two ago, received a fracture of the skull and was so seriously injured that life was despaired of.

The horse, rearing up, kicked over the dashboard, his left foot striking Charlie's forehead. The three-year-old boy was taken from the carriage immediately after the accident in an unconscious state. An ambulance was summoned and Surgeon Gifford took him to the hospital without an idea that he would ever recover consciousness—the boy's skull was so horribly mangled. But House Surgeon Orrell worked hard, taking broken fragments of skull from the wound for three or four hours.

In all, fifty-six little pieces of skull were taken from the child's forehead, and there is now a round circle about the size of a fifty cent piece over the right eye where the brain is exposed. Its pulsation can plainly be seen. If the patient had been older a recovery, the doctors say, would not have been so remarkable.—New York Advertiser.

Electricity in Mining a Big Success.

The steady and successful operation of the Gold King stamp mill at Telluride, Colo., by electrical power, from the last of May, 1891, to the present, has been of incalculable benefit, not only to the mining interests of San Miguel, but to those of the state and country in general. It has never been operated a winter through before, but run the past year twenty-four hours per day and six days in the week from the time it started up. During the time the total stoppage of the mill by reason of the deficiency of power has averaged less than sixteen minutes per day, and of the whole amount of time lost 80 per cent. has been due to necessary work on the turbines and in changing the source of the water supply for mill purposes. Its success has inspired confidence in investors, and its first fruits are seen in the letting of the contract for the building of a 130-stamp mill on Bear creek.—Helena Journal.

Roosters Spoiled the Judge's Charge.

Two crowing roosters destroyed the effect of Judge Chambers' charge to the jury in the recorder's court Friday morning, and furnished great amusement to the crowd of spectators. The case was one of arson, and the charge of the judge proceeded in this wise:

"Gentleman of the jury," said the judge—"Cock-a-doodle-doo," shrieked one rooster—"you have heard the evi"—"Cock-a-doodle-doo," answered the other rooster—"dence on both sides of this case, as given by the different"—"Cock-a-doodle-doo"—"witnesses, and the arguments of the prosecutor for the people—"Cock-a-doodle-doo"—and the attorney for the defendant

"You have heard the rooster—I—I mean the defendant—tell where he was on the night of the fire"—"Cock-a doodle-doo!"

The spectators were by this time unable to restrain their laughter, and the judge looked appealingly toward the doortender, who closed the rear door. But this did not entirely drown the sound of the barnyard fowl, as every once in awhile the faint echo of a "cock-a-doodle-doo" would mar the solemnity of the courtroom and cause a smile to overspread the features of the urbane and dignified judge.

The cause of the roosters' presence was afterward explained when they were brought into the courtroom and introduced as evidence in another case.—Detroit Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean.

Overtures from the Sponge Trust.

The Sponge Gatherers' association met at the room over the store of J. P. Roberts Monday evening, when President Allen Curry stated that a proposition had been received from the sponge trust through their local representative suggesting that the association enter into an agreement to sell all its sponges to the trust for a term of years, for which a fair price would be offered and bonds given and required for the faithful performance of the agreement.

Mr. Arapian addressed the meeting at considerable length, offering several specious arguments in favor of his propositions, declaring himself in favor of the Sponge Gatherers' association and stating that if he should withdraw from the trust the same would be very badly crippled and would be compelled to dissolve at once.

Mr. John Lowe, Jr., who had almost been persuaded to withdraw from the association, now declared his intention of supporting it more strongly and approved of its actions.

The meeting was also addressed by Messrs. Whitmore, Pinder, Watkins and B. W. Kemp, who made some telling remarks. Every one interested in sponge catherin was urged to join the union.

A Valuable Autograph.

An autograph fiend from New York was recently visiting a friend in Detroit, and naturally he brought his album along, and he also talked much on autographs, their rarity, value, etc.

"Well," said the Detroit man one day, after a list of high priced autographs had been shown him, "your figures are not in it with one I saw here some years ago."

"Whose was it?" asked the friend with much interest.

"A gentleman's living here at the time, but now dead."

"What did it bring?"

"Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars,"

"Aw, come off. I know autographs, and I know one never sold for such sum."

"Just the same I tell you this one did."

"Who paid for it?"

"One of the banks in the city. It was on a check, and the same autograph would have brought a million, net, if the gentleman had happened to want that much for it."

After that the fiend put his album in his trunk and left it there.—Detroit Free Press.

Two Remarkable Epitaphs.

The two most remarkable epitaphs in the United States are those of Daniel Barrow, formerly of Sacramento, and that of Hank Monk, Horace Greeley's stage driver. The former reads as follows: "Here is laid Daniel Barrow, who was born in Sorrow and Borrowed little from nature except his name, and his love to mankind, and his hatred for redskins. Who was nevertheless a gentleman and a dead shot, who through a long life never killed his man except in self defense or by accident, and who, when he at last went under beneath the bullets of his cowardly enemies in Jeff Morris' saloon, did so in the sure and certain hope of a glorious and everlasting morrow."

Hank Monk's epitaph reads thus: "Sacred to the memory of Hank Monk, the whitest, biggest hearted and best known stage driver of the west, who was kind to all and thought ill of none. He lived in a strange era and was a hero, and the wheels of his coach are now ringing on the golden streets."—St. Louis Republic.

Temperature for Growing Mushrooms.

The mushroom in American pastures seldom starts into growth before the end of August or September, when the temperature of the soil has reached about 60 degs.; hence this is taken as the temperature which the cultivator of the mushroom ought to endeavor to maintain in order to successfully grow this vegetable. A very experienced cultivator, however, states that he has found this temperature to be rather too high in growing the mushroom in houses prepared for the purpose. He finds that he has much better success with an even temperature of 55 than 60 degs.—Meehan's Monthly.

Nearly 2,500 Immigrants on One Ship.

There came to Baltimore recently the largest number of immigrants ever landed from one ship in any port of America from a foreign land. When the steamer Oldenburg, Captain Gatheman, from Bremen, was made fast at Baltimore and Ohio pier 9, Locust Point, 2,493 men, women and children came over the gangplank into their adopted country. They were a hardy, respectable looking throng. Schumacher & Co., agents of the ship, paid $1,246.50 to the custom service as the per capita tax upon the immigrants. There were not over 200 among the immigrants who had not been born in Germany. About 100 were Russians, and a few were Scandinavians.

The nearest approach to the number brought by the Oldenburg was 2,430 immigrants landed here in April, 1891, by the Weimar.—Baltimore Sun.

One Way of Stopping a Runaway.

A Southern California vaquero performed a remarkable feat in San Francisco recently. While riding his mustang he suddenly came upon a runaway team. The vaquero rode close to the animals and, bending over until he almost touched the ground, caught the reins, which were trailing. There was a sudden evolution of man and beast, and the brave mustang stopped as though shot. Its hind legs were doubled under its body, its forelegs were extended and Jose sat erect with the reins of the team wound tightly around the horns of his saddle. As the reins drew taut there was a prodigious jerk, a tearing of the pavement under the broncho's stubborn feet, a snapping of harness, and the big horses, checked in their impetuous rush, were thrown to the ground and captured.—Exchange.

Moving a House Across the Ocean.

The old house at Fenny Drayton, England, the birthplace of George Fox, the founder of the Society of Friends, is to be taken down piece by piece. The parts are to be carefully numbered and packed for shipping to this country, where it will be re-erected. The site has not yet been decided.—Chicago Herald.

A father and seven of his children were seized with diphtheria recently in its most virulent form near Landersdale, Ind. Two of the children are dead and the others are not expected to survive.

A California Sculptor's Work.

Douglas Tilden, the deaf and dumb California sculptor, has completed in clay at his Paris studio a group of heroic size which he proposes to cast in bronze and send to the World's fair. One of this sculptor's works is now to be seen in Golden Gate park, at San Francisco. The subject of the last is a struggle between two Indians and a she bear (grizzly), whose cubs the Indians are trying to make off with. A Parisian critic says of the group: "It is broad in treatment and daring in execution without exaggeration. The figure modeling of the two Indians is of high power, strong and harmonious at the same time. He has succeeded in showing not the mutilation of the two Indians by a ferocious brute, but a fine realization of a struggle for mastery and life which thrills with interest." This sculptor has been working in Paris four years, and was the first American to receive "honorable mention" at a Paris salon.—San Francisco Chronicle.

An Unlucky Locomotive.

Engineer Knowblow, of the Erie, has finally agreed to preside at the throttle of engine No. 670 of that road. This is the machine that passed through the two terrible wrecks on that road at Ravenna on July 3 and at Kent on Sept. 30. When it came out of the Meadville shops recently none of the boys wanted to sit at the right hand side of the cab in the unlucky engine, and it was only after considerable persuasion that Engineer Knowblow was persuaded to take charge of the hoodooed locomotive. Railroaders are like sailors—they have their superstitions, and an engineman no more likes to run an unlucky machine than does an old tar to sail on certain unfortunate vessels.—Pittsburg Post.

From London to Chicago for $125.

Tours suitable to all pockets are being arranged by the London Polytechnic Young Men's Christian institute. A yachting trip to Norway, lasting three weeks, and including a visit to the land of the midnight sun, is to cost only £12 15s.; the island of Madeira can be visited for £12, while £7 5s. will cover the expense of sixteen days in the Bernese Highlands. There is also to be a trip to the Chicago World's fair, costing only twenty-five guineas from Liverpool.—London Tit-Bits.

The Jews and the Moon.

Dr. Goldziher refers to the occasional luniolatry of the Jews. "Queen or princess of heaven," he writes, "is a very frequent name for the moon. Even in the latest times the Hebrews called the moon the 'Queen of Heaven,' and paid her divine honors in this character at the time of the captivity. What was the antiquity of this lunar worship among the Hebrews is testified (as has long been known) by the part played by Mount Sinai in the history of the Hebrew religion. The mountain must in ancient times have been consecrated to the moon."

The peculiar symbol of Ashtaroth and the other lunar deities appears to have been a heifer or a figure with a heifer's head and horns resembling the crescent moon.—London Standard.

A Bright Little Animal.

Taking his size into consideration, the mole is the strongest animal we know. Whatever he does, too, he does with all his might. One can see the reason of the comparison "blind as a bat;" but why folks should ever say "blind as a mole" is incomprehensible to me. Watch him as he runs about in the bright sunshine, after a spell of underground work, and tell me whether you think those eyes of his, small though they are, do not serve him in good stead. And that beautiful coat never shows any dirt upon it, no matter how clayey the soil may be among which he works.—Pall Mall Budget.

When White Stockings Were Worn.

Those who are middle aged well remember when white and balbriggan were the two colors universally worn. In those years colored stockings, except in silk, were very rarely seen, and a large item in everybody's wardrobe was dozens of stockings, a clean pair being often as necessary as a clean collar. At the present day Germany manufactures the greatest amount of hosiery.—Dry Goods Economist.

One of the Earliest Weapons.

The sling was one of the earliest inventions in the way of a weapon, and was itself an improvement on the stone thrown by hand, which was the rudest and most primitive method of fighting.—Harper's Young People.

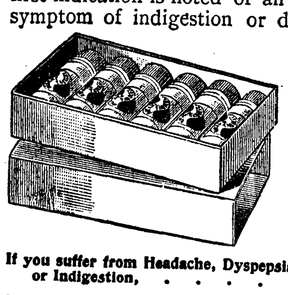
TABULES

act gently but promptly upon the kidneys, liver, stomach and intestines; cleanse the system effectually; dispel colds, headaches and fevers; cure habitual constipation, making enemas unnecessary. Are acceptable to the stomach and truly beneficial in effects. A single TABULE taken after the evening meal, or just before retiring, or, better still, at the moment when the first indication is noted of an approaching cold, headache, any symptom of indigestion or depression of spirits, will remove the whole difficulty in an hour without the patient being conscious of any other than a slightly warming effect, and that the expected wellness failed to materialize or has disappeared.



Disease commonly comes on with slight symptoms, which when neglected increase in extent and gradually grow dangerous.

The Stomach of a Fish.

Mr. Hyman Herman, who has been fishi. 'n Keg creek, near Sandersonville, Ga., during the past week, has returned. He had most remarkable luck in the piscatorial sport, and brought to some of his friends large assortments of fish. He gave one string to Mr. Mack Duggan, and while the cook was cleaning a large channel catfish she was dumfounded by discovering two brass buttons in the fish's stomach. On close inspection the following inscription could be discerned on one of the buttons: "Gen. Wheeler, 1864." The other button contained these words, "Sherman bound for the sea."

They were scratched on the under side of the button by some sharp pointed instrument.

It is an historical fact that during Sherman's raid through Georgia he camped one night on the banks of Keg creek, on the same ground which General Wheeler had occupied the night before, and soon after a freshet washed the buttons in the creek. Mr. Duggan has the buttons and intends sending them to the World's fair. He has been offered twelve dollars for them, but refused the offer.—Atlanta Constitution.

Summer Dress of Congressmen.

Visitors to congress are not struck by the dignity of attire affected by senators and representatives in these warm days. True, the atmosphere of both chambers is almost unbearable lately, but that need not deter the senators from maintaining a little care in assuming negligee. To see a great legislator strolling around in limp trousers that would aptly costume a Joshua Whitcomb is not edifying. The absence of waistcoats is not a crime; indeed, it is a sensible fashion if proper care is bestowed upon the arrangement of the garments that remain. In this connection the fashion bulletins for congress should advise gentlemen who lay aside their waistcoats to supply themselves with ample belts, or even the despised "Gordon sash," if they wish to preserve the admiration of visiting constituents. It is very hard to have any veneration for a body of men costumed with the lack of care displayed by the senate for the last few weeks.—Mrs. McGuirk in Kate Field's Washington.

Pope's Villa for Sale.

Another historic house is in the market. This is Pope's villa, Twickenham, which once belonged to the great poet, and was the scene wherein he composed many of his works. It has been occupied for nearly a quarter of a century by Mr. Henry Labouchere, M. P., and was some years ago associated with the performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" by a company of amateurs and professionals, which formed quite an epoch in the history of pastoral plays.

The grounds are extensive and run down to the river's edge. The show place in them is the grotto which is supposed to have been Pope's favorite resort. The villa is prettily situated in a rest of trees and faces toward Ham house, the residence of the Earl of Dysart.—London Star.

Motors for Hot Weather.

t merely an aggravation when ian, with pleasing expectancy, e sidewalk shaded by great s, to find, instead of the coolelonging to shade, outrushing s of hot air through grating and ent window. How much more rtable it would be for the occuwere the hot furnaces and boilers ed to go fireless through summer, o grow cool, cold, frigid—until the sort of weather came again! This t be accomplished by bringing in a electric motor or two and a couple old wires. It would not only conto the bodily comfort of all in the ity, but be a profitable change for er users.—Practical Electricity.

Hundreds of Idle Ships.

English capitalists are complaining at he number of steamers that are lying lle in that country. PRAISEWORTHY ACTIVITY.

The house of representatives deserves great credit for the activity it is displaying in getting to work on the tariff. They have rules that will permit the majority to rule, that will prevent too much waste of time. This does not mean that they have made it possible for the speaker to run the whole congress or to pass bills at his pleasure, as with Reed's congress. It simply means that the majority, being actually present, can when they so desire force a vote on a proposition.

The large majority of congress is strongly in favor of radical legislation on the tariff, and it is in charge of a committee that fully understands its business. They are men who have closely watched the operations of the tariff for years, and have made it their chief study. Further, they are the active and vigorous young men in congress who do not let time drag.

So, all things considered, the people are to be congratulated that their long felt and oft-expressed desire to see that old protection fraud wiped from the statute books is about to be realized. They are to be congratulated that not much longer will the barons of protection be permitted to legally rob them; that soon that grosest piece of class legislation ever championed in this country with impunity, the McKinley law, will be forever consigned to its grave, to ever remain the ghost of stolen privileges and down-trodden rights that have been reclaimed.

REPEAL CERTAIN.

There is not any question but that the Senate will pass the bullion purchase repeal bill at no distant day. Even the stubborn opposition of the Western silver senators cannot stand out long against the positive majority of more than a dozen who favor the repeal of the thoroughly despised Sherman act. The Senate has been known to talk a bill to death, but this was always when it was backed up by strong public sentiment. In the present case, however, there is a difference, as public sentiment is on the side of the majority, and it is daily growing more strongly so.

But after repeal, what?

There are many schemes being developed, and many rumors that the administration will propose a method to materially increase the currency. With it will be plans providing means to get the money in circulation. There is no doubt but that the administration is fully determined to give the people more money, and that the large majority of Congress will approve, is certain. This is what the people want, and if they get it, there will be little crying over the defeat of silver except amongst those who are personally interested in silver mining.

THE St. Louis Republic properly reminds those Democratic papers of the east which have so bitterly denounced the Populists for their stand during the present panic, that the Democratic party owes the Populists for a great service. Had it not been for the People's party, old prejudices would have long kept the states west of the Mississippi in the Republican column. Then they have largely assisted to drive the old "bloody shirt" out of politics. The People's party has done much that is good, if it has given us Peffer, Lewelling and Waite.

EX-SENATOR INGALLS is going to re-enter politics. He evidently does not think he has made as good a job as he thought of the Republican party of Kansas, but he mistakes. It is sure dead, and the senator will waste his time in trying to do it over again. Ingalls really ought to know better, for didn't he hold the inquest on the corpse himself?

THE lesson above all others taught by Tuesday's tragedy is that the man who carries a revolver is a public enemy, and should be dealt with accordingly. Nine-tenths of the murders committed have had their origin in the fact that a coward or a fool had a loaded "gun" in his pocket.

THE city council is doing much hard work to keep the people who are here at work. Better streets and happier people will be the result.

DIVING FOR GOLD

A Novel Plan to Gather Gold Deposited at the Bottom of Streams.

"You never heard of anyone looking for gold in the mountains in a diving suit, did you?" inquired Mr. S. R. Haddock of a Port Crescent Leader man the other day.

"No, I never did," was the Leader's response.

"Well, Captain Benjamin has been taken up into the mountains with his diving outfit by a Seattle syndicate. You know Captain Benjamin who used to run to Port Crescent as the captain of the Ferndale. Since his steamer burned he has been a diver by profession."

"Who in the world took him to the mountains? Has someone discovered a submerged mine that was worked by some forgotten people thousands of years ago? That would be quite novel."

"It is nothing as romantic as that. Simply some Seattle people, among them a man who has valuable interests in Clallam county, have determined to test a new theory. Up in the gold district there is a stream called Ruby creek which is full of cataracts and at the base of each fall is a deep pool formed by the action of the water. These Seattle people believe that the sand accumulated in the bottom of these pools will be found to be full of gold. They have taken Captain Benjamin up with his diving suit to bring up sand from the bottom of these pools and they will soon know whether there is gold in it or not. You need not be surprised if this novel form of mining causes a new gold excitement up on Ruby creek."

BRITISH TUG LORNE SEIZED.

Deputy Collector Clark Fines the Lorne for Towing in American Waters.

Last Wednesday Deputy Collector Clark fined the British tug Lorne, Capt. Locke, for the violation of Section 4370, revised statutes, which provides a penalty for British tug boats towing American vessels bound on a coastwise voyage in American waters. The vessel being towed by the Lorne was the McNear, Capt. Swan, which was bound from San Francisco to Port Angeles.

Capt. Locke, protested most bitterly and vigorously against the fine, which amounted to $622.

Deputy Collector Clark acted directly under the instructions from Collector Saunders.

Capt. Locke secured satisfactory bonds and the vessel was released.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE

Career of Miss Hattie Hastings Who Had

A CHARACTER AND A REPUTATION

Which had Ever Been Above Suspicion and Free From Reproach and Scandal—An Interview With Her Aged Father in Which He Expresses Great Surprise and is Grieved over His Daughte'r Act.

A representative of THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER has gleaned the following interesting facts about the life of Miss Hastings, of this city, recently apprehended in the act of smuggling by a U. S. Customs officer on the Victoria-Puget Sound steamer:

Miss Hattie Hastings was born in Mendota, Ill., in 1872, of which city her father, James Hastings, was a prominent citizen for twenty-eight years having been its mayor for four years, and delivered the welcoming address to General U. S. Grant when he visited there after his return from his trip round the world.

From Mendota the family removed to Lincoln, Neb., where they lived for three years, and from there they went to Springfield, Mo.

They came to Puget Sound in '80 and have resided in Port Angeles for the past four years where they have been prominent in social circles.

Miss Hastings has ever been held in high esteem in this city. Known as a young woman of exceptionally fine character, whom the tongue of scandal has never touched. She is very bright and intelligent in conversation, having a keen sense of humor and possesses a fund of wit which has made her society much sought by those who esteemed it an honor to be numbered among her acquaintances. Much surprise has been manifested here by her friends over her smuggling escapade, as she was considered about the last person who would engage in such business. It is generally believed that her only object was to assist her parents, who are both aged and in impovished circumstances.

Mr. James Hastings was seen a few days since by a representative of THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER, and said:

"I cannot imagine what caused Hattie to attempt such a thing as smuggling, and I am certain that the idea that she is one of an organized ring of smugglers is without foundation, as she certainly appreciates her social position, and must have known that detection was certain.

She left Port Angeles on the 24th of last month, ostensibly for Portland, where we have many friends, and where our household goods have been stored since we gave up the European hotel in this place.

"She has a brother living in Denver, who has been for years connected with the Rocky Mountain Detective Agency, and who, in such capacity, has made an enviable reputation. Hattie is now out on bail, and for the present is in Port Townsend, but will return to Port Angeles in a few days."

Miss Hastings feels her position keenly and appears very much broken in spirits since her arrest.

A Good Thing to Keep at Hand.

A SHOOTING AFFRAY.

Mrs. Easter Attempts to Kill Adolph Nicholli.

Last Friday ewening a sensational shooting affray occurred in this city in which Mrs. Mary Easter was the aggressor and Adolph Nicholli the object of wrath.

The actors in what promised to be tragic act came to this city about two years ago and built a cannery, the woman claiming that she furnished all the money.

They both occupied rooms in the cannery building, but on many occasions quarreled, Mrs. Easter claiming that Nicholi had too much to do with other womeh. At one time she followed him to Astoria and brought him back from the embraces of some other woman. Things went on about half smoothly until the 28th inst., when Nicholli returned from a trip to Portland, bringing with him another woman. At once Mrs. Easter became angry, and, arming herself with a revolver, started out on the warpath. She saw Nicholli standing across the street from the cannery, and at once began to shoot at him. She fired three shots, which went wide of their mark, after which the cartridges in her revolver refused to explode. Meantime Nicholli ran into the house of J. W. Strother, hiding upstairs, and neighbors disarmed the infuriated woman. At this she came up to a gunstore to get another revolver, but went into the private room of a saloon, where she soon became very much intoxicated. Starting for her home she fell in the street and was arrested by Policeman Cook and locked up in the city jail. The next morning Nicholli left for Seattle. She claims that Nicholli has squandered over $6,000 of her money and is very bitter toward him, frequently expressing regret that her aim was so poor.

MURDER OR SUICIDE?

A Man Found Horribly Mutilated in His Cabin.

BEAVER, Wash., Sept. 5, 1893.

Yesterday evening while John Konopaski and Charlie Waronke were out claim hunting, they came upon a cabin, finding it nailed up through curiosity broke it open. In the corner of the cabin they found the body of a man covered over with blankets.

They immediately started for Beaver, a distance of about three miles, to report their discovery to Justice of the Peace Lamoreux. Justice Lamoreux immediately subpoenaed a jury and started for the cabin. Upon arriving they examined the body and found that a 32 calibre bullet was lodged in one side of the skull while the other side appeared to have been broken by some blunt instrument.

Upon investigation everything gave evidence that the unfortunate man was the owner of the cabin. A pin was found upon which was the initial S. The clothing on the body corresponded in measurement with that found in the cabin, even the shoes that were found were the same size as those on the dead man's feet.

The letters and books that were in the cabin gave the name of Mr. Wm. Schelsing, and went to show that he was the owner of the cabin.

The examination was postponed until Saturday, September 9th.

The crime was supposed to have occurred last November.

Nothing of value was found on his person.

It is thought that robbery was the cause, and that a man named Roberts, who was introduced by Schelsing as his friend last November, is suspected of the crime. Roberts has not been seen since that time. He has a brother-in-law, who has been engaged on the Pierce county court house at Tacoma, and it is suspected that Roberts is in Tacoma.

THE DEAD TRYST.

As I went by the harbor when folk were abed
I saw my dead lover in the boat pulling in;
My love he came swiftly and kissed my whitening head,
And my cheeks so hollow and thin.

And face to face we nestled by the wash of the foam,
And after long sorrow the joy it was sweet.
I combed his locks of honey with my little silver comb,
And with my hands I warmed his feet.

The sea fog crept round us as white as the wool,
And he lay on the sea sand with his head on my knee,
No night wind broke the silence, nor any shrieking gull,
In that death white fog from the sea.

And then I crooned him over our sweet songs of old;
Ochone, I could not warm him, and never a word he spoke.
I loosed my heavy hair then, the gray locks with the gold,
And wrapped him in a living cloak.

I never thought to ask him the wherefore he had come,
Or if his heaven were lonely and this earth so dear;
I prayed with eager longing that the cocks would be dumb,
And the nighttime last a year.

Ochone, the cocks came crowing, and he arose and went,
His darling black head hanging, out through the sea fog's snow.
Oh, wherefore, darling, darling, did you break my dull content,
And why did you come but to go?

—Katharine Tynan in Atalanta.

Talk About Garters.

Very few women nowadays wear the regulation old fashioned garter, though many cling to the "elastic" band in yellow worn below the left knee. This is the emblematical luck bracelet, and is worn simply because it is regarded as a mascot and not because of its especial efficacy in keeping up the stocking.

To make one feel perfectly taut and trim the silk elastic harness that anchors at one end to the corset and at the other to the stocking is the most reliable style known. Besides in this there is nothing unhealthy, which is more than can be said of the band either above or below the knee.

Women who possess handsome garter buckles will of course wear them, even though they know the shape of the limb is sure to be distorted by the tightening process brought to bear upon it—that is, if they wear them above the knee, and no one but a real old fogy would wear them below it, though the single yellow one might be tolerated just for good luck.

The side straps can be made just as dainty and can utilize six buckles instead of two, which ought to be a certain recommendation to the extravagant maiden of the day. Whether made quite plain, with only nickel clasps and slides, or adorned with bejeweled ornaments that are useful as well as decorative, this style of holding up the stocking is to be strongly recommended, owing to its æsthetic aid in keeping limbs in shape, as well as for the feeling of security it gives the woman who knows that, come what may, she has the assurance that her stockings are not bagging at the knees or in unsightly wrinkles above the shoe tops, a knowledge that, strange as it may sound, is a sort of moral support, for no woman can even feel respectable when her stockings are not as free from wrinkles as a ballet dancer's tights.—Philadelphia Times.

Thought She Was a Man.

What would be the surprise of the Parisian Academy of Inventors, who sit in solemn conclave on the results of other people's ingenuity, to learn that the C. M. Westover who some years ago invented a cart for carrying dirt out of mines and tunnels, to the great saving of animal labor, is a woman! Under the impression that she was a man they have conferred upon her the title of member d'honneur, with a first class diploma and a big gold medal. All this Miss Cynthia Westover found in a large, official looking envelope that came to her addressed to C. M. Westover. It is a question if, when the members of the French board discover their mistake, they will appreciate the humor of their situation. They will probably only wonder anew at the versatility of the American woman.—New York Letter.

Diamonds for Rifle Sights.

A report is running the rounds of Paris that the diamond is to appear in a new light—namely, as a sight on a gun barrel.

The smoldering enmity between France and Germany has been the cause of a great many remarkable improvements in materials of warfare, and the proposed new use of the diamond will count one more on the French score.

It remains to be proved that the idea is practical. One can see that the brilliancy of the gem would be an instantaneous guide to the eye and would show up in half light. Whether the stone would hold its position in the rough and tumble of soldier life is a question that is likely to tip the scale the wrong way. —Cor. Jewelers' Review.

More Justice and Less Law.

There is getting to be too much foolishness about the courts anyway. Smart lawyers are continually taking advantage of the law to shield open violators of the law, and judges permit it. A lot of sensible men, who don't know a mandamus from a nebular hypothesis, should be elected judges, with instructions to laugh at the shystering practitioners when they tried to shield "well known criminals." A little more justice and a little less law is needed in the criminal courts of the country.—Kansas

He Cut the Rope.

The architect Viollet-le-Duc was one day on the Schwarzenberg glacier, at a height of about 9,000 feet, accompanied by Baptiste, the guide, who marched in front. The two men were attached to each other by a rope, as is usual in Alpine mountaineering.

The guide had passed over a crevasse, but when M. Viollet-le-Duc attempted to cross it he failed and fell into the abyss. The guide tried to pull him out, but instead he found himself gradually descending.

The architect perceived that his companion, if he persisted in the attempt to save him, would surely share his fate, and he asked if Baptiste had a family.

"A wife and children," was the answer.

"Then," said Viollet-le-Duc quietly, "I shall cut the rope."

He did so and fell, but a block of ice thirty feet lower down stopped his descent. When Baptiste saw this, and that for a time the danger was lessened, he went in search of help and returned with four stout peasants. Three hours afterward Viollet-le-Duc was extricated.

In spite of his perilous position, the ruling passion was strong with the artist, for, although he was almost covered with icicles from the dripping water, he had contrived to make drawings of the novel effects he was able to perceive.—Youth's Companion.

Anecdote of Sherman's Son.

A detachment of soldiers were told off to take charge of young Tom (now Father) Sherman while crossing the pontoon bridge across the Potomac when the armies of the country were coming to Washington to take part in the great review there in 1865. He was then about eight years old.

One of the men asked him if he expected to grow up as smart a man as his father, the general, and he promptly answered, "No!" "Why?" was the next question. "Well," he replied with the same readiness, "there are plenty other men who have grown up, and why ain't they as smart as my father?"—Philadelphia Times.

Peter Cooper's Earthly Reward.

New Yorkers need not be reminded of what they owe to good old Peter Cooper, who began life in earnest when a boy in a hat factory, and who died lamented by the thousands whom his earnest, charitable life had blessed. It might be said that Peter Cooper made his money solely for the good he could do with it. At all events he lived to a great age and saw the practical benefits that arose from his well directed efforts. To have died knowing that a whole city was in mourning and that a great nation was sounding his praises was in itself a reward for money rightly spent and time consumed. —New York World.

Brigandage in Jail.

To read of brigandage in Italy makes one doubt if this can be the Nineteenth century. Here is a country, one of the oldest seats of European civilization, where the first requisite of stable government, security of life and property, is wanting. The country groans under the financial burden of an army and navy big enough for a vast empire, and yet the troops appear to be so busy looking for an invader on the northern frontier that they cannot suppress the robbers and murders of the interior. The authorities should reduce the army and hire a police force.—Toronto Globe.

Nell's Observation.

Little Nell, dining with the grown up members of the family, gazes contemplatively at each one in turn, then remarks slowly, "All the ladies has they bangs over they noses and all the gentlemen has they bangs under they noses."—Harper's Bazar.

The body is now looked upon as the fit companion of the soul. Even its appetites, in their proper sphere and within their normal limits, are regarded with high respect, not merely as contributors to our pleasure, but as essential to our highest welfare.

The honor of the invention of printing has been claimed by Mentz, Strasburg, Haarlem, Venice, Rome, Florence, Basle and Augsburg. The first three are entitled to consideration.

A horsefly will live for hours after its head has been pulled off. The head of the mosquito hawk will continue eating its victim when separated from the thorax.

DR. SANDEN'S ELECTRIC BELT with Electro Magnetic Suspensory will cure without medicine all of the above troubles. Those who suffer from Nervous Debility, Losses, Drains, Lost Manhood, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Poor Memory, all Female Complaints, and general ill health, the effects of abuses, excesses, worry or exposure, will find relief and prompt cure in our marvelous invention, which requires but a trial to convince the most skeptical. In ignorance of effects you may have unduly drained your system of nerve force and vitality—which is electricity—and thus caused your weakness or lack of force. If you replace into your system the elements thus drained, which are required for vigorous strength, you will remove the cause and health, strength and vigor will follow at once. This is our plan and treatment, and we guarantee a cure or refund money. Our 200 page book "THREE CLASSES OF MEN," should be read by every young, middle-aged and old man, sent sealed, free. Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt is no experiment as we have restored thousands to robust health and vigor, after all other treatments failed, as can be shown by hundreds of cases throughout this and other States, who would gladly testify, and from many of whom we have strong letters bearing testimony to their recovery after using our Belt.

WE HAVE CURED THESE—WE CAN CURE YOU!

GENERAL DEBILITY CURED.

San Francisco, Cal., August 14, 1892.
Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Before I used your belt I was troubled with lost vigor, vital weakness, and almost a complete loss of power. I would get up with a very tired feeling, bones aching, etc.; since using your belt I have had a new lease of life. I now enjoy life better than I have for ten years past. I have the utmost confidence in your treatment. You can publish this statement, also have others write or call on me. Truly yours, H. A. BOWEN, 26 and 28 Turk St.

RHEUMATISM AND LAMENESS CURED.

Portland, Oregon, April 18 1892.
Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I got one of your belts two weeks ago for rheumatism, from which I suffered for several years. For the past six months I had not been able to work. Your belt has placed me in almost perfect health in the two weeks I have used it. I can walk comfortably, and feel like a new man generally.
M. E. HUGHES, Proprietor International Hotel.

NERVOUS DEBILITY—LOSS OF VIGOR.

Tacoma, Wash., October 24, 1892.
Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I have been using your Electric belt for general nervous debility, and to-day feel better than I have for five years. I have gained in vigor daily, and am strong in every part.
Yours gratefully, CHAS. LUETKA.

LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM.

Portland Oregon, September 26, 1892.
Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Years of exposure and hard work, combined with the strain coming from the jar of an engine, gave me a severe case of lame back, from which I suffered for seven years. I was so bad that I could not bend my back. Was all doubled up with it. I bought one of your belts. It helped me inside of two days, and I continued to wear it for four months, being perfectly cured. That was two years ago, and I am as well to-day as I ever was in my life. I know your belt well, and I know lots of people who have been cured by it. Many others need it, and if they would try it they would find it the same as I did—the best remedy in the world. I am located here permanently, and will be glad to talk with anyone who wants to inquire about it.
ROBERT BURREL, Engineer Hotel Portland.

LOST VITALITY AND STRENGTH.

Everett, Wash, June 15, 1892.
Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Since wearing your belt I have been greatly benefited. I feel my old energy fast returning; and after a month's use of the belt I find myself twice as vigorous as before. My memory is now nearly perfect, and each day shows for the better. I feel much stronger than before using the belt. Yours truly, HENRY SCHULTZ.

TO THE HOP GROWERS, FARMERS, MILL MEN AND OTHERS.

Who desire to buy groceries right: Ordinarily you think nothing of paying any kind of a price for Groceries. Times having changed. If you ever expect to git on top and stay there, stop the leakage.

THE HUNDREDS WHO HAVE TRADED WITH US

Lnow there is as much difference as day and night between our prices and those they have been paying.

ANOTHER THING TO CONSIDER:

Until we entered the field other dealers were getting outrageous figures. Now these dealers howl and squirm. Everything (that is good) that ever was made has been imitated. We are leaders in prices and originality, and have lots of would be followers.

AMONG OTHER THINGS DO A LITTLE THINKING.

There are one hundred and fifty-five (155) grocers in Seattle. We are the leading house. Why? Simply behause we sell the very best goods for the least money. It matters not where you live, we will guarantee to save you money if you buy groceries from us.

TERMS—All orders must be accompanied by cash. Remittances can be made by express, money order, postal note or registered mail.

N.B.—Send no checks on interior banks. We can only use checks on Seattle banks and cannot send out goods unless these terms are complied with.

SPECIAL NOTICE—Send your full name and address with proper shipping instructions. Send all remiitances direct to the house, as we have no traveling agents. WE MAKE NO CHARGE FOR PACKING OR DELIVERY TO RAILROAD STATION OR WHARVES.

We quote only a few articles, and will cheerfully furnish prices on anything in the grocery line. Reference, Dexter, Horton & Co., bankers, Seattle, and Scandinavian-American Bank, Seattle.

Our Best—This is the name of a brand of Baking Powder put up expressly for us—It is the very best baking powder that money and brains can manufacture. We claim it equal to the "Royal" or "Prices" and offer it for much less money. In place of spending thousands of dollars in advertising, and adding this cost to the price of the Powder, we have decided to introduce it among our customers. Royal and Prices baking powder are first-class, still these people spend hundreds of thousands of dollars in keeping their names before the people. Who do you suppose pays for all this? You and everybody who buys their powder. Try a can of OUR BEST POWDER in your next order; if it is not fully as represented return it and we will cheerfully refund your money. Compare these prices with Royal and recollect what we say regarding the quality of OUR BEST BAKING POWDERS. Full weight—guaranteed.
