Beaver Leader.

Carl Oberg has opened a blacksmith shop on his ranch at the junction of the Bear with the Solduck.

Quillayute will in the near future have a new society; the reformers are said to be behind the movement.

Hans Hansen has received a letter from Representative John L. Wilson, stating that the committee on rivers and harbors will recommend favorably to the House of Representatives, the survey of the harbor at the mouth of the Quillayute river.

The county road dispute on the upper end of the Quillayute prairie is finally settled, to the great satisfaction of the traveling public, who from now on know where the road is, and there is no more danger of any blockade in the future.

Elmer Decker, "Sandy" Thompson and Sam Kelley passed through Beaver this week on their return from above Collins, where they have staked some valuable claims which they intend to homestead. These men have recently made final proof on land at Forks, but they have enough faith in the future of the country to freeze on to all the land the law allows them. Their heads are level.

Herman L. Scheatzka, the well-known blacksmith from Boston, has gone up-Sound on an extended business trip. During the summer he will visit the Alaskan gold-fields and return to Quillayute on the Port Angeles railroad in order to reach home in time to vote at the coming election. Mr. Scheatzka is a sound and solid Andrew Jackson democrat, and by no means belongs to the goldbug wing of democracy.

The L. S. L. E.

A few of the ladies of Port Angeles have organized a society known as the L. S. L. E. They hold their meetings in the afternoon of each Saturday, at the home of some one of the members, and spend a few hours in the discussion of such subjects as state and national laws and constitutions and current events. The last meeting held at Mrs. Ballou's was very interesting. Six new members were added to the roll. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Worthley.

A Forty Mile Ride.

E. R. Swetnam, of Fairfax Station Virginia, says: "A party came forty miles to my store for Chamberlin's Cough Remedy and bought a dozen bottles. The remedy is a great favorite in this vicinity and has performed some wonderful cures here." It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough and is a favorite where known.

The Government Will Determine the Feasibility

OF IMPROVING QUILLAYUTE HARBOR.

Homestead Filing on Timber Land—St. Patrick's Day in Port Angeles—Levy Wins His Damage Suit—Notes From the Midwinter Fair—The Minerva Literary and Musical Entertainment.

Referring to the proposed harbor improvements at the mouth of the Quillayute river, the Beaver Leader says:

"Puget Sound's next period of prosperity must come from its lumber business. Facilities of transportation have been enormously multiplied and extended, but they have been nullified by the financial depression existing over the entire world, affecting so disastrously both the domestic and foreign market for lumber.

"A good paying demand for Puget Sound lumber is something we may reasonably expect very soon, and that will at once put this country in good condition. Lumber is as staple as wheat and not nearly so plentiful in the world.

"The Quillayute country expects to shace in the next boom in the lumber business by means of the opening of the mouth of the Quillayute river and the utilization of the magnificent system of waterways flowing through a common outlet.

"Hon. W. R. Hoole is one of the foremost advocates of the harbor improvement at the mouth of the Quillayute. He has been at work for some time to secure the attention of the government to this needed improvement where a small sum of money would accomplish such great results. He has just received a letter from Hon. John L. Wilson, member of Congress from this state, who writes that he secured the incorporation in the river and harbor bill of an appropriation for a preliminary survey of the mouth of the river by government engineers. This is the entering wedge. The engineers cannot help seeing the feasibility of the plan and their favorable report will cause immediate action."

Levy Wins Again.

During the week the case of Lewis Levy vs. Fleischner, Mayer & Co., of Portland, occupied the attention of the Superior court until Wednesday evening, when the jury brought in a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, in the sum of $2,435.

It will be remembered that at the last term of the superior court this case came on for trial, resulting then in a verdict for the plaintiff of $2,100. At that time the supreme court of the state had rendered a decision in a case upon the development of certain errors discovered in the Levy case. The attorneys for defendants in this case argued for a new trial upon these grounds, the court finally admitting the points well taken and granted the motion for a new trial, which resulted again in a verdict for the plaintiff.

The suit was brought to recover damages against defendants for serving a writ of attachment and closing store before bill of goods had fallen due and when plaintiff was possessed of 924 acres of unencumbered property and an $8,000 stock of goods. The attachment and close of store resulted in injury to businese reputation and financial loss to plaintiff, consequently the suit for damages. Messrs. Hatch and W. R. Gay appeared for the plaintiff, and Messrs. Moody and Minor, of Portland, for the defendants.

They Want the Best.

"The people of this vicinity insist on having Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and do not want any other," says John V. Bishop, of Portland Mills Indiana. That is right. They know it to be superior to any other for colds, and as a preventative and cure for croup, and why should they not insist upon having it.

A LITERARY AND MUSICAL TREAT

The Minerva Literary Society Will Give Its Initial Public Entertainment.

The Minerva Literary Society of this city will give its initial public entertainment at the opera house next Wednesday evening. A varied program will have been prepared, comprising literary, musical and histrionic selections, the production of which will doubtless afford a very enjoyable evening's treat. The object in giving the entertainment is to raise a fund with which to establish a library for the society.

The inception, growth and achievements of the Minerva Society would furnish material for a very interesting page in local history.

Beginning under auspices not at all favorable, it encountered obstacles at times exceedingly discouraging, while in the struggle for its maintenance there arose difficulties, appearing overwhelming, success finally crowned the efforts of its guiding spirit, the secret of which rests in the fact that its promoters had a well defined purpose, which was steadfastly kept in view and for the accomplishment of which they unwaveringly labored. When these facts are seriously considered, it neither seems strange nor remarkable that the Minerva society should have experienced a rapid growth and wonderful advancement on the part of its members in literary pursuits.

In literature as in other fields of knowledge, a liberary with standard works is absolute, to aid the student in acquiring the information sought.

That the general public will appreciate the praisworthy effort of Minervans with a generous attendance at the entertainment next Wednesday evening, there is little doubt. The following is the program:

Can File a New Homestead.

Register O'Toole, of the land office, in speaking of the rights of individuals to file on homesteads said to a Post-Intelligencer representative that he desired to make clear a point that he did not mention recently, when interviewed as to whether a man who had taken up a homestead in Kansas, subsequently deserted it and come to Washington, could file a new homestead here. "When I answered the question," said the Register, "I did not observe that the man said nine years had passed since he filed and five years since he came to this state. I take it from that that five years have passed since he gave up his homestead. This brings the case under a special act of congress which says that homesteaders who did not perfect title to homesteam entries prior to March 2, 1889, are allowed by act of congress of that date to make homestead entry of public land not exceeding one-quarter section, subject to entry, notwithstanding the previous entry. Under this act a person is not required to make formal request for restoration of homestead right."

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

The Port Angeles Orchestra's Social Hop The Feature of the Day.

St. Patrick's day closed with a grand ball at the opera house, given by the Port Angeles Orchestra which was organized a couple of months ago with Messrs. W. D. Parker, violin; Thos. S Bradley, piano; Geo. Meagher, Jr., cornet; Ed. Hatch, trombone. Each of these young gentlemen plays from sheet music at sight; and has devoted much time to practice, as was evidenced by the excellent harmony and time with which they rendered the latest favorites in dance music at this ball. They furnished an agreeable program, but were required to play some ten extras. The New Saratoga Lancers gave great pleasure to the rotaries of terpsichore. Refreshments for the multitude were furnished in the gallery. A banquet was given to the orchestra and intimate friends by Mr. Joseph Meyers, at his quarters, where some toasts and songs were brought forward by some "jolly good fellows" and the orchestra played none the less spirited on account of the royal hospitality displayed by their friend Joe. No one could fail to notice the extraordinary appearance of the many new and handsome dresses which the ladies brought out on this occasion and to consider what may be forthcoming in the ribbon line at Easter time among the youth and beauty of Port Angeles, who cannot fail to be proud of our efficient home orchestra.

California Midwinter Fair.

The second month of the California Midwinter International Exposition is realizing every expectation. The attendance has been increasing at a rate which warrants the assertion that the total attendance during the exposition will exceed the estimate made by the sanguinest of its projectors. There is no longer any doubt but that the enterprise will be a paying one. The best evidence of this lies in the fact that applications for concessions continue to come in, and concessionaires already on the grounds are enlarging their building and developing their entertainments to meet the patronage they expect to receive.

Fete days are making satisfactory impression. Vermont Day's success was duplicated in Michigan Day, which was celebrated on Monday, March 12. In this instance, Blue Monday became one of the Red Letter days of the exposition and the gate receipts are very satisfactory. The number of railroad coupons presented at the admission gates is daily on the increase. The railroad war is proving a godsend to the exposition. Excursion parties, formed weeks ago in different parts of the east, find their numbers doubled before the day of starting comes, and the result is that more people are going to see California during the period of this great Midwinter Exposition than have visited the Pacific coast in many years that have gone by.

The '49 Mining Camp, by the way, continues to advertise itself in a striking manner, though its last advertisement was entirely unintentional and came near proving very disastrous. It is the custom of the camp to send its old '49 stage coach around the grounds several times a day loaded inside and out with the employs of the camp, including the dancing girls and their partners in the fandango. On Saturday evening last the driver of the coach was a little careless in going around a turn on the hillside, near the camp entrance, and the stage coach was overturned. There were nine girls inside the coach and ten men on top. These were hurled to the ground and jumbled into a helpless mass. Seven out of the party were badly hurt, and the emergency hospital of the exposition had its hands more than full taking care of the injured. Three of the girls had their heads cut so badly that they had to be stitched, and three of the men were injured internally. Luckily, however, none of the injuries proved serious, and all the patients are progressing satisfactory toward recovery.

One of the devices which are under consideration for the purpose of drawing crowds to the exposition is a contest between a big grizzly and one of Boone's Nubian lions. The recent action of the lion in breaking through a cage partition and killing a little brown bear has suggested the contest referred to.

A LABOR EXCHANGE

Organized in This City to Provide

WORK FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

The State School Superintendent Confirms the Action of the Directors of the Port Angeles School District in Establishing the Five Block Rule—The Angeles Tide Land Survey Will be Adjusted.

A labor exchange has been organized in Port Angeles, the purpose of which is to provide employment for the city's unemployed.

The movement is one which has met with remarkable success wherever inaugurated and intelligently dominated.

The plan is admirably fashioned, co-operation being the leading feature.

Briefly, the idea is to organize a labor exchange, lease land and engage in the pursuit of agriculture; build, equip, lease and operate saw and shingle mills, sash, door, furniture and box factories and brick yards.

The plan appears feasible and doubtless will succeed, if labor will only be reasonable and temperate and bear and forbear in its dealing in the home or "charmed circle," as you may choose to term it. The trouble generally with these organizations is that the machinery is ill-fashioned and cannot operate without friction. In unity is strength, only where harmony dwells, it then is supreme and in the course of time abundantly blest.

Then again a serious mistake is made in wasting energy and time in the production of articles for which there is not a ready, responsive market.

If the unemployed of Port Angeles could utilize their energy for the production of which a sympathetic market awaited, the co-operptive movement would from the beginning be successful.

There are great possibilities in the manufacture of shingles developing with an unlimited eastern market, the expansion of which is even greater than the extraordinary advancement of the industry in Western Washington.

Clallam has magnificent cedar belts, which are as yet practically untouched.

In the manufacture of shingles is the golden opportunity presented to the labor exchange of Port Angeles a field for the profitable utilization of its labor.

And to disregard this self-evident fact, and waste time and labor in producing something for which there is no market, would be exceedingly foolish to say the least.

CONFIRMS ACTION OF DIRECTORS,

But Severely Criticises Them for Intermeddling in School Management.

OLYMPIA, March 21,—A complication that has recently arisen in the public schools of Port Angeles produces some interesting facts as well as, in course of investigation, developing an interesting point of law. A rule has been made by the directors of the school district compelling children living eight blocks or less from the school house to go home for luncheon, unless remaining for good reason. This rule was disregarded by the children of an influential citizen without a very good reason and for this the pupils were suspended by the superintendent and reinstated by the directors who immediately for reasons best known to themselves, changed the rule so as to be applicable to children living five blocks or less from the schoolhouse. By a remarkable coincidence this change exempted the suspended pupils from the operation of the rule. The case was appealed to the superintendent of public instruction, who was compelled to confirm the action of the directors, as the law authorizes directors to make rules at their own discretion. But the superintendent, as an advisory officer, seizes the opportunity to read a well-merited lecture to those who in official life appear disposed "to bend the pregnant hinges of the knee." The superintendent expresses regret at the action of the board in this case as having a tendency to demoralize the school and drive from the education field those who love honor and fair dealing.

As a warning to directors throughout the state the superintendent quotes a Vermont case, in which a young lady teacher recovered salary for an unfinished term which she refused to complete because the directors reinstated a boy whom she had expelled. The court said: "The teacher could not perform the duties of her employment without maintaining proper discipline. It was not the duty of the teacher under the contract to teach the school without maintaining discipline, and if the committee insisted she should have the boy there it was equivalent to insisting that she should teach the school without discipline, which she was not bound to do."

The Matter Will Be Adjusted.

Mr. James Stewart returned from Olympia Wednesday whither he had gone to represent local tide land owners before the state board.

Mr. Stewart's appeal to the state board resulted in the dispatch by the latter, of Engineer Gillis, who has been instructed to make thorough examination of the disputed line and make his report and recommendations in accordance therewith.

There is no doubt, Mr. Stewart believes, but that the matter will be adjusted so as the property rights of occupants will be adequately protected.

The Lakes.

Many improvements will be made at the lakes, Angeles' great pleasure resort, this year, to provide better accommodations for the comfort and convenience of visitors. A marked increase in the number of pleasure-seekers over last year is anticipated. This much can truthfully be said: No pleasure resort in Washington affords a greater variety of natural attractions than the lakes of Clallam. The rugged grandeur of the scenery, the excellent fishing and hunting, and splendid opportunity afforded for boating and bathing, gives these lakes incomparable attractions and advantages as a natural pleasure resort.

If you have not already done so, you will deny yourself a delightful outing if you do not visit the lakes during the coming summer.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

Last Saturday Walter P. Miller of this city had a narrow escape from drowning. Early in the day he started out for Morse's creek, fastened to a boom of logs which were being towed out of the harbor. When opposite Morse's creek he drew in the boat's line and pulled for the mouth of the creek. At the time, the surf was running quite high, and in attempting to make a landing the boat was capsized. Fortunately young Miller was a good swimmer and accustomed to the water, otherwise he would have been drowned, as the water is exceedingly chilling at this season of the year, this, together with the heavy surf, rendered action in the water very difficult, indeed. He kept cool, however, and succeeded in righting the boat and reaching shore, with the assistance of a gentleman who happened to be near by and came to his rescue. When he reached the shore he was completely chilled, but finally reached home, where he received stimulents and thorough rubbing and was soon restored to his normal condition.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be at once advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

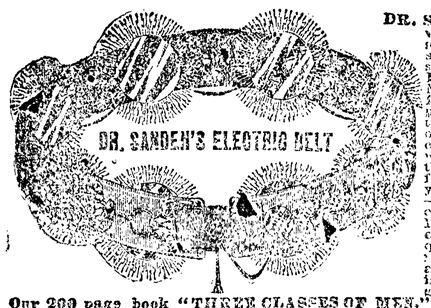
HAVE YOU TRIED DRUGS AND FAILED

TO FIND A CURE FOR

RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, KIDNEY, LIVER and BLADDER COMPLAINTS, DYSPEPSIA, LAME-BACK, &c.



DR. SANDEN'S ELECTRIC BELT with Electro Magnetic Suspensory will cure without medicine all of the above troubles. These who suffer from Nervous Debility, Losses, Drains, Lost Manhood, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Poor Memory, all Female Complaints, and general ill health, the effects of abuses, excesses, worry or exposure, will find relief and prompt cure in our marvelous invention, which requires but a trial to convince the most skeptical. In ignorance of effects you may have unduly drained your system of nerve force and vitality—which is electricity—and thus caused your weakness or lack of force. If you replace into your system the elements thus drained, which are required for vigorous strength, you will remove the cause and health, strength and vigor will follow at once. This is our claim and treatment, and we guarantee a cure or refund money.

Our 200 page book "THREE CLASSES OF MEN," should be read by every young, middle-aged and old man, sent sealed, free. Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt is no experiment as we have restored thousands to robust health and vigor, after all other treatments failed, as can be shown by hundreds of cases throughout this and other States, who would gladly testify, and from many of whom we have strong letters bearing testimony to their recovery after using our Belt.

WE HAVE CURED THESE—WE CAN CURE YOU!

GENERAL DEBILITY CURED.

San Francisco, Cal., August 14, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Before I used your belt I was troubled with lost vigor, vital weakness, and almost a complete loss of power. I would get up with a very tired feeling, bones aching, etc.; since using your belt I have had a new lease of life. I now enjoy life better than I have for ten years past. I have the utmost confidence in your treatment. You can publish this statement, also have others write or call on me. Truly yours, H. A. BOWLEN, 25 and 29 Turk St.

RHEUMATISM AND LAMENESS CURED.

Fort Land, Oregon, April 18, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I got one of your belts two weeks ago for rheumatism, from which I suffered for several years. For the past six months I had not been able to work. Your belt has placed me in almost perfect health in the two weeks I have used it. I can walk comfortably, and feel like a new man generally. M. E. HUGHES, Proprietor International Hotel.

NERVOUS DEBILITY—LOSS OF VIGOR.

Tacoma, Wash., October 24, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I have been using your Electric belt for general nervous debility, and to-day I feel better than I have for five years. I have gained in vigor daily, and am strong in every part.
Yours gratefully, CHAS. LUETKA.

LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM.

Portland, Oregon, September 28, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Years of exposure and hard work, combined with the strain coming from the jar of an engine, gave me a severe case of lame back, from which I suffered for seven years. I was so bad that I could not bend my back. I was all doubled up with it. I bought one of your belts. It helped me inside of ten days, and I continued to wear it for 2 months, being perfectly cured. That was two years ago, and I am as well to-day as I ever was in my life. I know your belt well, and I know lots of people who have been cured by it. Many other should do it, and if they would try it they would find it the same as I did—the best remedy in the world. I am located here permanently, and will be glad to talk with anyone who wants to inquire about it.
ROBERT BURREL, Engineer Hotel Portland.

LOST VITALITY AND STRENGTH.

Everett, Wash., June 18, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Since wearing your belt I have been greatly benefited. I feel my old energy fast returning; and after a month's use of the belt I find myself twice as vigorous as before. My memory is now nearly perfect, and each day shows for the better. I feel much stronger than before using the belt. Yours truly, HENRY SCHULTZ.

THE DR. SANDEN ELECTRIC BELT

The gate to the swamp stood open now, but no one save the big negro appointed to watch Sidonie went in and out. I sometimes strolled in that direction and looked down into the melancholy vista of somber shade and desolate bog, wondering how the criminal—that beautiful, intense, tropical creature, stripped of her stolen finery, clad in the coarsest raiment, fettered like an animal—was existing. What anguish, what despair must be hers! No hope, no ray of light!

At such times I pitied her. I remembered her beauty, her gayety, her grace. I recalled her words of tragic prophecy, "Remember, Prudence, whatever comes, that I loved him as few women love." Poor, wretched, misguided Sidonie! Her sin had been that she loved too well.

Then, when I returned to the sickroom and looked at my friend, when I heard the moans of pain and witnessed the struggle for life, all my pity for Sidonie vanished, and every outraged instinct of my nature cried out for revenge upon the heartless, soulless, brazen creature who had wrought this havoc and disaster.

I now come to an event so awful, so frightful that even the remembrance, dimmed as it is by the mists of years, causes a wave of terror to roll again over my being. I sometimes live it over in my dreams and wake screaming and sobbing, and if I should live to be a hundred years old I can never efface that terrible scene.

Let me tell it as calmly as possible. It was one dull November afternoon, when a ghostly mist was settling down over the landscape and fine spatters of rain were beating irregularly against the window panes, that George, Sidonie's jailer, rushed into the library, where the colonel, Maurice and I were sitting, and with trembling voice and shaking hands implored his master's forgiveness, for Sidonie had escaped.

"Escaped!" cried Colonel Marchmont in a terrible voice. "You black rascal, what does this mean?"

"'Deed, mars," cried the man, rolling his eyes in terror, "it mus' be de debbil hisself help her. W'en I lef' her to come up for her suppah, she was chained all right. Allus look de las' t'ing ter see ef she's fastened. W'en I goes back jus' now, she's gone, de chain broken in two."

"Send for Jake," interrupted Colonel Marchmont imperatively. "Come, Maurice, we must not lose a moment. Think of that creature free to do further mischief!"

Presently the plantation was astir. Negroes ran hither and thither, the bay of the bloodhounds was heard, and Jake, Maurice and the colonel, with a crowd of negroes, were hurrying toward the swamp, intent upon recapturing the fugitive.

I went to Portia's room to see if the unusual tumult had annoyed or alarmed her. She had roused from her sleep and raised herself with difficulty on one slender arm. Her great eyes questioned me, and she feebly asked:

"What is it, Prudence?"

"Nothing, dear; do not distress yourself. Lie down; lie down."

"I heard the dogs baying—I heard angry voices. What is it? Tell me. I will know."

I hesitated.

"Tell me," she repeated, and a faint red spot appeared on either cheek. "I must know. There is trouble, is there not? A slave has run away—who is it?"

I could not speak.

"Ah, I know!" she cried. "I know—I feel—it is Sidonie?"

I bowed my head.

"Where are they? In the swamp? Ah, yes, beating the place with dogs and guns. She will be taken, shot, perhaps torn to pieces. Oh, my poor Sidonie! I have forgiven her. Let her go. Prudence," wildly, "go quickly. I can trust you. Follow them to the swamp. Find Jermyn and tell him that I, Portia, beg him to let Sidonie go—tell him it distresses me. I cannot bear it. I forgive her with all my heart," and she fell back exhausted on the pillows.

I summoned the nurse as quickly as possible, and as Portia still urged and insisted I should carry her sublime message to her husband I set out through the mist and the rain to Dead Man's swamp.

CHAPTER XIX.

OBLITERATION.

I ran down the path, through the gate, nor even stopped till I was under the widespreading shade of the moss laden trees. The mist wrapped me about; the rain beat against my face. Afar in the distance I heard the sullen bay of the bloodhounds and the shouts of the pursuers. I did not realize my danger, never thinking that one false step might plunge me into the morass, from which it would be almost impossible to extricate myself, but stumbled on, hoping to come up with the others. But their voices receded farther and farther. I called, but received no answer. Blindly I struggled on, groping and feeling my way, until at last the appalling truth burst upon me that I was lost in that awful place!

I stopped and reflected upon the gravity of the situation. It was nearly night, and there was a dense fog shutting me in. Portia and the servants at the house would believe me to be with Colonel Marchmont and of course the latter and Maurice, if they gave me a thought, supposed I was with Portia. If the fog did not lift, or if I could not summon relief by calling, I should be forced perhaps to spend the night in the swamp.

I dared not move. I put out my hand and caught at the branch of a tree. Faintly through the fog I could discern bits of the ugly morass stretching everywhere about me. The only thing for me to do was to stand still and cry aloud for help.

This I did again and again, but there was no response. At length, frightened and unnerved, I leaned against the tree near which I stood and burst into tears.

"What shall I do?" I moaned aloud. "What shall I do? Must I spend the night in this fearful place?"

Did my senses deceive me? Had I gone mad, or did there come from out the thick fog close by me a burst of laughter, shrill, harsh and mocking.

My heart stood still as I listened. Yes, there was no deception. Again that taunting, wicked laughter.

"Who—what is it?" I stammered, and my tongue was thick and my lips parched as I faintly articulated the words.

"It is I," answered a voice through the drifting fog, "it is I—your old friend Portia—or rather Sidonie."

"Sidonie!" I cried, "where are you?"

"Not far away," came the taunting voice, "but I shall soon be much farther."

"Oh, Sidonie," I implored, "come to me. Let me take your hand. I have good news for you. Portia has forgiven you everything and sent me here to plead with her husband on your behalf. Come. You know the swamp. Lead me out, I beg, and I will hasten with her message to Colonel Marchmont."

I saw a white upturned face.

Again that burst of fiendish laughter.

"Come to you—take your hand—lead you out!" came the voice; "impossible, you poor little gray mouse. I cannot bother with you. I am going on another errand."

"Oh, do not leave me, Sidonie," I implored. "Do not leave me here in this desolate place alone."

"I must"— How strange her voice! Was it dying away?

"Come back; come back!" I cried in terror.

"I cannot—I cannot—goodby—goodby"——

Scream after scream broke from my lips as I realized that she was leaving me. I was well nigh insane with fright.

Just then the fog parted like a curtain before me, and there in the black morass at my feet I saw a white upturned face, which seemed to fling a defiant smile at me as it slowly sank from sight in the ooze and horrible slime.

Then, as if clutched from beneath, the long black hair outstretched upon the filthy water was dragged down.

One slim, white hand remained an instant, fluttering like a broken winged bird.

Then it was gone!

CHAPTER XX.

LOVE.

When they found me lying against the tree staring like a dead woman at the fatal spot where a life had been obliterated, they lifted me tenderly and carried me like a child back to the house and my room.

I did not weep. I did not faint nor grow hysterical, but I was like stone. I seemed to have no sensation or volition.

Over and over I saw that fearful sight. Over and over I heard that burst of mocking laughter.

The climax to the nervous strain under which I had been for weeks nearly dethroned my reason.

What saved me?

Love.

I was lying on the broad couch before the open fire in the library staring in the glowing coals, seeing there again that hideous picture, when the door gently opened and Maurice entered.

He bent over me and said gently:

"Poor little brave fighter! You had to succumb at last, didn't you? Courageous little Bunker Hill! When I consider the fortitude you have displayed for weeks, I am filled with admiration. To think of all the horrors you have endured to be capped by that fearful experience in the swamp—well, well," he paused as if unable to proceed.

"But," he continued after a moment's silence, "we can't have our crack warrior laid low. No, indeed. Just tell me how this plantation will be run, who will take care of Daphne, nurse Portia well, look out for Jermyn's comfort and —occasionally give a kind little smile to a fussy old fellow like me?"

"Will you be my wife?"

I smiled faintly.

"That's right. I like to see you smile, Prudence. It lights up your plain, severe little face and makes you beautiful in my sight."

"Beautiful!" I said contemptuously.

"Yes, beautiful!" he retorted. "Not with the classic beauty of Portia's face nor the diabolical witchery of that poor creature whose beauty was her ruin, but the beauty of goodness, kindness, loyalty and bravery—the beauty of holiness, little woman. Prudence," gently lifting me in his arms and kissing me tenderly on the eyes, "do you know those clear, truthful eyes have looked down deep in my heart? I love you. Will you be my wife?"

It is said joy never kills.

The words I had longed to hear were a balm to my sick and tired heart. I wept, and the tears did me good.

I had never known love nor congenial companionship. I had never dreamed they could come into my colorless existence. And yet my heart was as young and fresh as a girl's and responded to affection as a thirsty flower extends its cup for a drop of dew.

Love and happiness were mine at last. Heaven was in my hands.

When Colonel Marchmont unexpectedly entered the room a few minutes later, he paused confusedly, murmured an apology and turned to go, when Maurice drew me to my feet, and leading me up to our host said in tones of mock solemnity:

"Jermyn, a most astounding geographical phenomenon will be witnessed some time within the next six months. Bunker Hill is to be transported to the shores of Lake Ponchartrain. Congratulate me!"

CHAPTER XXI.

BACK FROM THE DARK VALLEY.

Portia did not die. Slowly, laboriously, she struggled back from the valley of the shadow of death. For weeks her life hung by a thread, but tender care, devotion and love snatched her from the verge of the grave.

Only the ghost of herself she appeared when at last she was able to be dressed and carried down stairs to the library. Her feeble joy at being home once more, the pathetic happiness which shone in her great eyes—yes, even the tender little caresses she gave her favorite books and cushions—were indescribably affecting.

The meeting between herself and her child was sacred. I had prepared Daphne as best I could by telling her that mamma had been very ill indeed; that she must ask no troublesome questions, for some day when she was old enough to understand everything should be explained to her; that her mamma's heart was full of love for her, and she need never fear she would be scolded or slapped again, then took her to the door of her mother's chamber.

Portia was bolstered up by a small army of pillows, her sunken cheeks lighted by a feverish glow, her languid eyes brimming with a mother's love. Colonel Marchmont sat by the bed, holding one wasted hand.

I opened the door for Daphne and drew back as the child crossed the threshold. I heard a half suppressed cry, a rapturous exclamation, a rush of tiny feet, and I knew that in that sickroom was a little bit of heaven.

Strangely enough, Daphne at once said:

"You've been away such a long time, mamma, I thought you were never coming back."

She obeyed instructions and never asked any questions, but ever after referred to the time "when mamma was away."

At first Portia did not seem to remember what had befallen her. She appeared conscious of having passed through some hideous experience with Sidonie, the details of which were veiled in obscurity. We pressed her as little as possible on the subject, trusting that with returned health she might be able to recall the most important points of her long and cruel captivity.

And so it came to pass as we had hoped. One radiantly lovely twilight we sat upon the piazza. Portia, pale, languid, but still beautiful, wrapped in soft filmy white shawls and laces, was reclining in her great chair. Maurice lay in a hammock, idly puffing a cigar. Colonel Marchmont sat by Portia, carefully watching her every expression and anticipating her every want.

The sun was just setting in royal pomp and splendor. Long banks of fleecy purple and crimson clouds were piled in the western sky. A mild breeze was springing up, ruffling the tall, nodding lilies standing in huge jars along the piazza and lightly lifting the little rings of hair on the invalid's brow.

She drank in the scene and the soft, delicious air. She sighed in ecstasy, and smiled at each of us in turn.

Suddenly she spoke.

"Oh, how good it is to be alive!"

Her husband lifted her hand and kissed it with intensity.

"I remember it all now," she said slowly. "Yes—everything. It has been coming back to me little by little. I have pieced together all those dreadful episodes, and the whole frightful story is before me. I know you are all longing to hear it"——

"Dearest, no!" interrupted her husband hastily, "not until you are quite well and strong. Don't agitate yourself. I beg."

"I am well enough now, Jermyn," she gently replied. "I am well enough to tell you about it. I think it will be a relief to me."

"Very well then, dear one, if it is your wish."

"Jermyn," she said solemnly, laying her hand upon his head, "I have known for years that Sidonie worshiped you. I discovered this just before our marriage, when one evening I came upon her in the library passionately kissing a rose which had fallen from your coat. The discovery shocked me, and yet I pitied her and spoke kindly and tenderly to her. You know how I always loved Sidonie. I can never forget the agony and despair in her face and her voice as see cried out that I had all in life, she nothing; that she prayed and longed for death; that she cursed the hour she was born. Oh, I pitied her—I pitied her," and Portia's voice shook with sublime compassion.

There was silence for a few minutes. Then she resumed her story:

"After that I was more indulgent and considerate than ever to Sidonie. She was given greater liberty. I intrusted her with many little commissions, hoping that a busy life and a certain amount of responsibility would be some compensation for her sad fate. But she seemed to grow more and more embittered and despairing. At last, a few days before our marriage, she disappeared.

"Do you know," she said, looking earnestly at us, "I always hoped she would not be captured? While I shuddered at the thought of what her fate might be

JOHN W. TROY.....Editor

THE QUILLAYUTE HARBOR.

About two years ago Mr. Hans Hansen, of Quillayute, commenced the effort to secure an appropriation for the survey and improvement of the mouth of the Quillayute river at La Push. Other citizens afterwards joined him in his efforts, which have continued unabated until now Congressman John L. Wilson has written Mr. Hansen and Representative Hoole that the river and harbor committee will report an appropriation for a preliminary survey of the Quillayute river.

The feasibility of the proposed plaa will now be thoroughly inspected and reported upon. It is generally believed, and much to be hoped, that the survey will develope a practicable plan for the construction of a harbor at this point. The importance of the Quillayute valley is too well known to need stating here. The benefits that would accrue to the northwest generally, and to that large section of Clallam county particularly, by the possession of a harbor from which the product of that immense valley could be shipped can be better imagined than described.

Five large rivers and their tributaries have formed the largest body of agriculture lands in Western Washington, west of the Olympic mountains. These people must and will have a way to a market soon. If these seeking profitable investment do not build a railroad for them soon, they will do that or something else for themselves.

However, before anything of this kind is attempted, it will be well to ascertain whether or not a harbor can be constructed as desired. Much credit is due Mr. Hans Hansen as the pioneer of this movement. and his co-laborers for for their successful efforts in behalf of the Quillayute settlers.

THE appropriation bill of this congress commence to resemble the old Democratic expenditures before the days of the "Billion Dollar Congress." It is estimated that the expenditures for the current year will not exceed $425,000,000—a saving of $75,000,000.

THE HIGH TAXES.

THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER does not stand sponsor for the Republican board of county commissioners of Clallam county, nor does it pose as the defender of the Republican county assessor. It does not pretend to say that the high assessment of Clallam county has been properly equalized. But, in considering all these things, it will be well to take into consideration the necessity for high taxes in the county, and the cause of that necessity.

The Beaver Leader should not forget that the last administration of Clallam county was Republican, as well as the present one is, and that, while it assumed the reins of authority with a county debt of but about $16000. it left as its heritage a dept of nearly $200,000, and a list of unexpended appropriations approximating $35,000 more. Now, while the expense of county goverdment has diminished though the volume of work has increased in all the offices, yet how was provision te be made to meet this debt of Clallam county with a reduced assessment roll?

The county assessor and the county commissioners were evidently "between the devil and the deep sea."

CUT THEM DOWN.

The enlargement of the assessment roll of Clallam county this year. on account of the listing for the first time of much valuable property, the title to which has heretofore rested in the United States government, will afford an opportunity for the reduction of taxes. The valuation placed on property in this county is much too high; the rate of taxation is too high. Both must be reduced. Considering the condition of the county at the present time it would be well to fund the outstanding debt as soon as the assessment roll is approved, and from thenceforth, until the county grows and recuperates from mismanagement, hard times and high taxation, make a levy sufficiently large to meet the interest, and the actual running expenses of the county based on economic administration. and no more. By this process the basis of valuation could be gradually diminished, the rate lessened and the burden of taxation removed.

OUR HOUSE OF LORDS.

The movement for the abolition of the "American House of Lords" is not growing less. Every time the senate has to pass upon an important measure, a long list of eminent and enthusiastic converts are added to the advocates of the movement. The senate seems to be becoming a body of paid attorneys, who, like the English House of Lords, irrespective of the people's interests, are serving the interests of special classes. To-day, the most dangerous of all the trusts to which the American people are heir. is the senate trust. They have combined their special interests in such a way, that with the loose rules of the senate, they have almost full control.

The senate must be réformed or abolished.

IF the senate will treat the Wilson bill fairly, and retain its Democratic features, the Democrats will have accomplished much in their first year. They will have increased the circulating medium of the country $55,000,000. they have decreased the expense of government $75,000,000; they will have reduced taxation, on consumption about $75,000,000 more and reduced the tax that goes to the trusts and protected barons from $200,000,000 to $500,000.000. A pretty good Democratic record itself.

THE Democratic County Central Club will meet on the first Saturday in April, at the council chamber when matters of great importance to the local party will be considered. It is essential that every Democrat in the county who can should be present. It is the purpose of this club to extend a thorough organization over the entire county.

IT will be well for those who seem to see in the Wilson bill death to all prosperity for all time to come, to read the list of factories which have resumed work during the last few days, as prepared by the Tacoma Morning Union, Will Vissscher's new Republican paper, which is published elsewhere in this issue.

IF tariff reform was a good enough platform for Democratic senators to get into the senate on, it certainly should be good enough for them to stand on after election.

RETURNING PROSPERITY.

Evidenced by the Starting Up of Closed Down Mills and Factories.

The mill at Wales, Mass., owned by H. E. Shaw, after lying idle for a long time, is going to resume.

The Cameron colliery at Shamokin, Pa., resumed work after a long idleness, giving work to 2,000 men.

Every woolen mill in the city of Worcester, except that of the Harrison Woolen company, is running.

The Atlanta, Ga., gas furnaces have started up again, after having been shut down for nearly a year.

The Bear Spring iron furnaces in Stewart county, Tenn., will resume in a few days, giving employment to 300 men.

The works of the Lakeside Nail Company, at Hammond, Ill,. employing 500 men and boys, have resumed operations.

The Rockland Print Works of Haverstraw, N. Y., is running a full force and giving employment to about 1.000 hands.

The rolling mills of the Velentine Iron company, of Bellefonte, Pa., started up on full time. They have been idle all winter.

Denny's rolling mill at Columbia, Pa., has resumed work after many weeks' suspension; 300 hands will be given employment.

The big Slater mills at Webster, which employs about 1,000 hands, and which were stopped for a time last fall, are now running.

The Spang Steel and Iron company, of Pittsburg, has started up with a full force and sufficient orders for a steady run of several weeks.

The Belding Manufacturing company and Hall Brothers' Manufacturing company, employing 300 men, have started up on full time.

The Ashland Emory Mills of Port Amboy, N. J.. which have been closed down for several months, resumed with a full force of employes.

The New Jersey Cooper Extraction works at Elizabethport which suspended some weeks ago, will resume operations with 500 employes.

The Wamsutta mills, of New Bedford Mass., which have been running forty hours a week, since last August, have started on full time.

The extensive steel works, of McKee & Milson, Paterson, N. J., have resumed work with a full force of men. The works had been closed for months.

The shops of Orr, Painter & Co., stove manufacturers, Reading, Pa., resumed full handed, after an idleness of several weeks. Over four hundred men went to work.

The fifty-six hour schedule will prevail at the General Electric works, Lynn, Mass. The time increase, which affects about 1,500 men, is due to an increase in business.

The Saxonville, Mass., Woolen mills, which closed for an indefinite period in December, throwing about 250 operators out of employment, have started up again.

All the Woolen mills in the Cherry valley, between Worcester and Leicester, are running full time, except Mann Bros.' factory, which is putting in forty hours a week.

The woolen mills in Haverhill, Mass., (Congressman Stevens') are now running at full capacity after a brief shut down, and some branches have been forced to run nights to meet orders.

Among the Ohio industries resumed are the Humphrey Glass Works, employing 100 men; the Riverside furnace, employing 200 men, and the Sanitary Ware Pottery, at Tiltonville, with sixty employes.

The nail factory of the Belmont mill resumed operations at Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday, after being idle for six months. One hundred and fifty men were given employment, making in all 250 men now employed in the mill.

The large plant of the Chattanooga Tool company, which has been idle for more than three years, has been purchased by a stock company headed by George B. Durell, and will be put into operation at once with a large force of men.

Notices haxe been posted that the steel works, the blooming mill and the billet mill of the Cambria Iron company at Johnstown, Pa., will resume operation to-day. Over 1,000 men will be given employment.--Tacoma Morning Union. (Rep.)

Fruit Culture in Clallam.

The culture of fruit in Clallam county promises to be one of its principal industries. Thousands of prune, apple, cherry, plum, pear and other varieties of fruit trees will be planted this spring. Any of the varieties mention thrive and are very productive in this climate Fruit culture is not only pleasant, but a very profitable pursuit, requiring only close attention, skillful and intelligent management, the patience and steadfastness to wait five years, and the returns will be ten-fold.

Plant a few acres in fruit trees and you will have the assurance of a competency in your old age.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS.

Good Friday.

Easter Sunday.

Mr. L. Rockman of Seattle, is in the city.

Mr. H. C. Strong returned from Seattle Tuesday.

The county commissioners will meet early next month.

Mr. Frank Beahan of Tatoosh, was in the city, Sunday.

Surveyor Blackwood came in from the Solduck, Tuesday.

Will R. Gay of Seattle, was in the city several days this week.

Mr. Lewis Levy will soon leave for a brief visit to New York.

Mr. Jos. H. Fairbrook is now located at North Yakima, Wash.

Mr. Alex Henderson of Dungeness, was in Angeles yesterday.

Mr. D. S. Baker returned from a visit to up-Sound points Wednesday.

Mr. D. Lewis of Lake Crescent was in the city several days this week.

Mr. Ed. Graham, went to Victoria last Saturday, returning Thursday.

Mr. Fred Thompson of Seattle, was in the city several days this week.

Easter services will be held in the churches of the city, next (Easter) Sunday.

Mr. Robt. Borrows of Port William, was registered at the New Arlington, Wednesday.

Mr. Jno. Henson left yesterday for British Columbia. He will doubtless be away until fall.

Messrs. W. W. Dedman and M. J. Carrigan left on the Willapa Wednesday for Lake Crescent.

Attend the initial literary and musical entertainment at the opera house next Wednesday evening.

The clear, mild, spring-like weather early in the week, stimulated many citizens to begin gardening.

Tickets for the 75th Anniversary Ball, I. O. O. F., are being printed in the DEMOCRAT-LEADER job office.

The steamer Garland will take an excursion to Victoria to-morrow, (Saturday) for only $1.50 for the round trip.

Capt. D. Troutman, of Seattle, a retired Puget Sound navigator, spent several days in the city during the week.

Messrs. R. E. Moody and Will Minor, two prominent young attorneys of Portland, were in Angeles this week on legal business.

There will be the usual services by the Rev. E. Davis in the school house on Lincoln Heights on Sunday at 3 p. m. All invited to attend.

Cut-rates to jurymen and witnesses during the next term of the superior court at the New Arlington. For rates apply to the proprietor.

The initial literary and musical entertainment will be given at the opera house next Wednesday evening, by the Minerva Literary Society.

Messrs. Ward and Smith of Dungeness, of the county board of tide land commissioners, are in the city, on business connected with the harbor survey.

There will be an after Easter social dance in the opera house next Monday evening. Good music will be provided and an enjoyable time is anticipated.

The Port Angeles Dramatic Club is rehearsing for the production in this city on Decoration day of the thrilling war drama, "From Sumter to Appomattox."

The net proceeds from the public entertainment at the opera house next Wednesday evening will be devoted to the founding of a library for the Minerva Literary Society.

There will be an appropriate Easter service in the Episcopal church next Sunday at 11 a. m., and an Easter Festival for the children at 7:30 p. m. All cordially invited to attend.

The public literary and musical entertainment the production of which members of the Minerva Literary Society are rehearsing will be given in the Opera house Wednesday evening, March 28th.

A number of co-operative schemes are in the embryo, out of which, it is to be hoped, something tangible, something reasonable, and above all something practicable will evolve to provide a permanent pay roll for Port Angeles.

In a letter received from Walter Burch who is now in Alaska, he speaks encouragingly of the outlook in that country. Mr. Burch states that mining operations there will be more active and upon a more extensive scale than ever before.

The San Francisco tug boat Fearless left Sunday evening in tow of the disabled steamship Puebla for San Francisco. The Fearless arrived in the harbor with the Puebla Saturday evening, remaining until the next evening, as the weather at the cape was somewhat unsettled.

No mail boat arrived last Sunday. The Monticello was undergoing an overhauling at Seattle, and the Garland has been withdrawn from Sunday service, as she lays over at Victoria until late Sunday afternoon. An occasional omission of Sundoy's mail causes the people to more fully appreciate the advantage of an every day steamer service with up-Sound ports.

Mr. A. Greenberg of New Whatcom, a leading merchant of that city was in the city several days this week, returning home to-day. Referring to the shingle proposition recently made by a Whatcom gentleman to establish a mill in Angeles, Mr. Greenberg expressed confidence in the ability of the gentleman to carry out the enterprise, and was, he understood, perfecting arrangements at the present time for the machinery.

While in the harbor last Saturday evening the tug boat Fearless gave an exhibition of the wonderful power of her electric search light, an interesting spectacle which was witnessed by a large number of citizens. Throwing its rays in any direction over the water or land an object is clearly defined at a great distance. The light is of great advantage in approaching a dock on a dark night, as the pilot can cast the light's rays over the water frontage, and select the mooring berth of the vessel without any inconvenience, whatever.

Shingle Mills.

Mr. W. H. Lambert is earnestly laboring for the establishment of a number of shingle mills in Port Angeles, and, it is almost needless to add, his efforts are not in vain, as arrangements have almost been completed, a few preliminaries remaining yet to be adjusted, which will assure the building here of a large shingle mill by men with abundant means at command with which to operate it.

Mr. Lambert is to be commended for his laudable zeal in an industrial movement, the success of which means better times in Angeles.

Teachers' Association.

The convention of the Western Washington teachers' association adjourned in Tacoma last Saturday, after electing the following officers:

President, Superintendent F. J. Barnard of Seattle; first vice president, Superintendent G. B. Johnston of New Whatcom; second vice president, Superintendent Brintwell of Olympia; third vice president, O. B. Grant of Port Townsend; secretary, Miss Annie Heath of Tacoma; treasurer, C. N. Young of Tacoma; members of the executive committee, Charles Fagan of Seattle, Edwin Twitmyer of Seattle and Mrs. Keys of Olympia.

It was decided to hold the next convention in Seattle next October, the date to be fixed by the executive committee.

Easter Festival.

The ladies of the Congregational church will give a social Friday evening March 23rd. 1894.

There will be a booth where Easter eggs may be purchased.

A musical and literary program will be rendered. Refreshments served. Admission 15 cents.

The Farmers Mercantile Co., Dungeness, have a few sacks of Garlick's California Red Rose potatoes for sale at five cents per pound. They are the best upland potato known, are prolific bearers, smooth red in color and splendid cookers. Mail orders promptly filled.

A fine line of fancy articles at B. C. Keller's Drug Store, Opera House block.

U. S. DEP'T OF AGRICULTURE.

Weather Bureau.

PORT ANGELES, Wash., March. 21, 1894.

The Chief of the Weather Bureau directs the publication of the following data, compiled from the record of observations for the month of April, taken at this station during a period of 10 years.

It is believed that the facts thus set forth will prove of interest to the public, as well as the special student, showing as they do the average and extreme conditions of the more important meteorological elements and the range within which such variations may be expected to keep during any corresponding month:

TEMPERATURE

Mean or normal temperature, 45°.

The warmest April was that of 1884, with an average of 50°.

The coldest April was that of 1893, with an average of 43°.

The highest temperature during any April was 67° on the 26th, 1891.

The lowest temperature during any April was 27° on the 3th, 1891.

Average date on which first "killing" frost occurred in autumn, Oct. 25th.

Average date on which last "killing" frost in spring, April 15.

PRECIPITATION—RAIN AND MELTED SNOW.

Average for the month, 1.99 inches.

Average number of days with .01 of an inch or more, 12.

The greatest monthly precipitation was 3.70 inches in 1893.

The least monthly precipitation was 0.71 inches in 1885.

The greatest amount of precipitation recorded in any 24 consecutive hours was 1.15 inches on March 21st 1891.

The greatest amount of snowfall recorded in 24 consecutive hours (record extending to winter of 1884-5 only,) none.

CLOUDS AND WEATHER.

Average number of cloudless days, 6,
Average number of partly cloudy days, 13.
Average number of cloudy days, 11.

WIND.

The prevailing winds have been from the south

The highest velocity of the wind during any April was 30 miles west on the 14th, 4th, 1st, 1885, —1888 and 1889.

WM. BELL, Observer Weather Bureau.

On Tuesday Charles Jackson, an Elwha Indian, made final proof before Harry E. Lutz, Commissioner of the United States Circuit Court, on his claim in section 27 and 34 in township 31 north of range 7 west. This Indian's homestead has been for years involved in a contest with another claimant and this has now been finally settled. Messrs. Warriner E. and Victor R. Smith were Jackson's witnesses.

Homestead Filing on Timber Land.

Register O'Toole, of the land office, Seattle, in speaking of timber land and homestead entries recently said to a P.-I. representtative that while in certain cases a man cannot take timber land with a homestead entry there are cases where he can. To explain fully he said: "In all cases a man can take land more valuable for timber than agricultural purposes with a timber filing and will hold it against a homesteader, provided he has the priority of filing. A man can homestead any kind of land, except mineral land, whether valuable for timber or not, but must show priority of filing. A man con file a homestead upon land no matter how valuable for timber, and will hold it, provided he has priority of claim."

The St. Patrick's ball given under the auspices of the Port Angeles orchestra, at the opera house last Saturday evening, was quite largely attended and declared by those privileged to attend, an enjoyable party.

The 75th anniversary of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, will occur on Thursday, the 26th of April next. The eqent will be commemorated by the local lodges with a ball in the opera house in the evening.

Ice Cream Festival.

An ice cream social will be given at the Congregational church, Friday evening April 13th, 1894. A musical and literary program will be rendered. Admission 25 cents, including refreshments. The proceeds of this social will go towards Rev. Bushell's salary.

Will Begin Work.

Manager Williams, of the Port Angeles Constructing Co., states that he will begin work at once upon the city's new water power electric light plant. The grading tools, provisions, etc., arrived on the steamer yesterday, and everything will be speedily adjusted to begin work in good earnest.

Reject the Bonds.

At the regular meeting of the council last Wednesday evening, the additional bond of the Port Angeles Constructing Company was submitted to the council, and, upon examination, was found still to be several thousand dollars short of the required $20,000. Manager Williams not being present, a motion to reject the bonds under the conditions presenting prevailed. And here doubtless the matter will rest indifinately, or until such time as Manager Williams increases the bond to the required amount.

A saloon license was granted James Fitzgerald.

A large number of approved bills were ordered paid. The council adjourned.

W. R. C. Surprised.

Reciprocity seems to be a "hobby" with the local G. A. R. societies. A short time since the local post was the recipient of a surprise from the W. R. C. Last Saturday afternoon the former returned the compliment. A delicious luncheon was prepared in the old council chamber, where the members of the Woman's Relief Corps were escorted and entertained most royally.

After luncheon speeches and literary productions were the order of the hour.

The president of the W. R. C., Mrs Haynes, read the excellent selection, "The Reunion of the Tennessee."

"The Boys are Turning Grey," was produced by Mrs. Place.

A song each by Comrades Banks and Fowler, was followed with that old familiar song, "Marching Through Georgia," which was sang by Comrade Philps, all heartily joining in the chorus. Thus ended a delightful afternoon's pastime.

The Most Successful Gas Engine

In the market is run without an electric spark battery. Theory is all very well, but the every day experience of constant practical use is the best test of merit. The man who runs a launch and finds himself drifting with the tide and wind because the "spark" fails to ignite the charge of gas in his engine; the man who prints a daily paper and fails to get it off on time because the "spark" again fails; the man who has fruit that is injured for lack of irrigation because "spark" fails in his engine that runs the pump not only such parties but others who have trouble from like causes should bear in mind that the Hercules gas and Gasoline engine is free from such difficulties. The ignition is simple and sure. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, Front and Alder streets, Portland, Oregon.

If you wish your prescription filled with care and good drugs take them to B. C. Keller, Ph. G.

For the best five cent cigar in the city go to Aldwell's.

M. Hammerly, a well-known business man of Hillsboro, Va., sends this testimony to the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla: "Several years ago, I hurt my leg, the injury leaving a sore which led to erysipelas. My sufferings were extreme, my leg, from the knee to the ankle, being a solid sore, which began to extend to other parts of the body. After trying various remedies, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced great relief; the second bottle effected a complete cure."

with her fiery temper and her inordinate vanity, still it was a relief to me not to see her, and I fancied that perhaps she would be happier under different environments. Her value as a piece of property never occurred to me.

"In my new home and my new life I soon forgot Sidonie, though often a remembrance of her waywardness and her beauty would drift in my thoughts. I was often told of my folly in allowing so valuable a slave to slip out of my hands without greater endeavor to arrest her; but, as I said before, I was relieved to have her out of my sight.

"When Jernyn was summoned to England two years ago, it was with a dull sensation of apprehension that I saw him go. Ah! my dear husband, never can I tell you my emotion as I watched your carriage disappear. It seemed to me that you were going out of my life forever.

"You had not been long away when one morning Jake came to me and asked me what he should do about old Jezebel. He said that she would not remain on the plantation, but spent her time idling about in the swamp, occasionally presenting herself at the quarters for her rations, encouraging the negroes to shiftless and lazy ways and frightening them nearly out of their wits by weird practices and tales. He hesitated to punish her on account of her years and because to the other negroes she bore a charmed life. In fine, he did not want trouble if it could be avoided, and would I give him orders in the matter. I told him I would see Jezebel myself and directed that she be sent to me.

"That evening—it was just such an evening as this—I was walking alone through the grounds. I came to the wall separating the plantation from the swamp. I had always known of this old gate, but having had no curiosity concerning the swamp had never opened it. Now, as I approached it, I thought of the old negress, and the audacious idea of exploring this unknown territory suddenly entered my head. In those days I did not know fear, and therefore without any reflection I pushed open the gate and sauntered along the path leading to the heart of the swamp. I decided to investigate old Jezebel's retreat for myself and see the hut I learned she had built for her use, declaring the cabin assigned to her at the quarters not good enough for an African princess, as she proudly claimed to be.

"I wandered on, quite enjoying the novelty of my walk. The sun was setting, and the last rays darted across the pines as I entered the gloomy forest. On, on, farther I plunged into this wilderness and presently came out into the open space near Jezebel's hut.

"The old woman was sitting on the ground before the hut crooning and muttering to herself. She looked not human as she peered up at me through the tangles of her coarse, matted gray hair. For the first time I felt a trifle afraid and glanced around nervously. But there was no one in sight. Absurd, I thought. How can this weak old creature harm me? I spoke to her and asked her what she was doing there. She only stared up at me with bleared eyes and demanded who I was.

"'I am your mistress,' I said, 'and I am very much annoyed with you. I hear you will not stay at the quarters with the other slaves, but insist upon living here alone. You cannot do this. You are too old and feeble. You must go back to the plantation. It is your home. I will see that you are made quite comfortable.'

"A wicked glitter came in her eyes, and she answered that she would not go back.

"'Very well,' I said, 'since you refuse to obey me, I shall send the overseer after you, and you will be taken back.'

"During this brief parley I was conscious of a feeling that there was a listener to our conversation. I heard no sound, I saw nothing, but I could not banish that curious sensation of another presence near at hand. It was not a pleasant feeling by any means, and I turned to go.

"'Wait a moment, honey,' said the old woman suddenly. 'Come inside and see de lubbly little house I done got. I can't go fer ter leab it.'

"Though my judgment revolted, I nevertheless accepted her invitation, and stepping through the low door I stood within the miserable hut. Again that feeling that there was some one near, so strong this time that it amounted to positive terror. I spoke. 'Who is here?' I demanded.

"Then suddenly there was a rush. I was seized from behind in a strong grasp and thrown upon the bed. I shrieked for help, but the old woman quickly tied something over my mouth. As I was lying face down on the loathsome couch, I was almost suffocated. I knew that strong hands were securing mine, and presently, finding myself overcome and powerless, I lost consciousness.

"When I came to myself, I was unable to rise, being fastened down to this pallet. I could not cry out, for my mouth was bandaged. Old Jezebel's hideous face was bent over me, and in the gloom I saw another face—Sidonie's!

"I knew her instantly, though years had gone by since I had seen her. I noticed even in my pain and terror that she was more beautiful than ever, and then I remarked something else. It was this: She was dressed in the gown I had worn into the swamp, and it seemed to have been made for her.

"I could not understand it. At first I fancied she had come to my assistance and smiled faintly and pleadingly up at her. But she stared stonily at me and made no move to release me. On the contrary, she bent down and whispered these terrible words in my ear:

"'Your day is done. Your identity is not destroyed, but transferred to me. You are no longer Portia. I am she. I return to Swamplands and rule there. You remain in Dead Man's swamp—to die.'

"Again I fainted. And after that it is all like a terrible nightmare—a confusion of harsh words, of bitter drafts, of awful sounds. There were moments of consciousness when I could see through the half open door the glare of the red firelight and dusky forms leaping around it—a frightful sight; when, too, I saw the faces of my tormentors, Jezebel's like a fiend and that of Sidonie sardonic and triumphant. After many days Sidonie brought a little instrument with which they pierced my arms and injected their drugs and poisons. I begged feebly for mercy, but they showed me none. But my bodily sufferings were as nothing comparrd with those of my mind. When I could realize anything, I thought of the wicked deception being practiced upon my husband, of my child. Oh, God! it was terrible—terrible."

"My darling, my darling," cried her husband, catching her to his heart, "say no more. You will only make yourself ill again. Stop, I beg you."

"There is nothing more to say," said Portia feebly, smiling with brimming eyes and tremulous lips. "There is nothing more to say, only that I am safe and God is good."

SUMMONS.

In the Superior Court of Clallam County State of Washington.

James D. Stryker, Plaintiff, vs.
Arthur S. Kirkpatrick and Lizzie M. Kirkpatrick, Defendants.

The State of Washington to the said Arthur S. Kirkpatrick and Lizzie M. Kirkpatrick, defendants:

You are hereby summoned and required to appear within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service, which service will be complete on the sixteenth day of February, 1894, (the first publication of this summons being on the 5th day of January, 1894, and the seventh and last publication thereof being on the sixteenth day of February, 1894) answer the complaint in the above entitled action, and serve a copy of your answer on Benton Embree, the attorney whose name is subscribed to this summons, at the place specified below, that is to say, at Port Angeles, Clallam county, state of Washington, in which said place there is a postoffice, and defend the above entitled action in the above entitled court; and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you according to the demand of the complaint in said action which is now on file with the clerk of said court. The said action is brought by the said plaintiff against you to recover of and from you judgment for the sum of $149.40 with interest thereon from the 18th day of November, 1892, at the rate of two per cent. per month, and the further sum of $50.00 as attorney's fees, being the balance due on that certain promissory note date November, 18th, 1891, made by you for the sum of $248.00, payable to the order of the plaintiff one year after said date; and to foreclose that certain mortgage executed by you to the said plaintiff, on said 18th day of November, 1891, to secure the payment of said note, upon the following described lands situate in Clallam county, state of Washington, to-wit: Lot number three (3) and the west half of the southeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter, of section 33 in township 31 north of range 7 west of Willamette meridian; and for the sale of said lands to satisfy such judgment so sought to be recovered.

Who formerly resided in Connecticut, but who now resides in Honolulu, writes: "For 20 years past, my wife and I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor, and we attribute to it the dark hair which she and I now have, while hundreds of our acquaintances, ten or a dozen years younger than we, are either gray-headed, white, or bald. When asked how our hair has retained its color and fullness, we reply, 'By the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor—nothing else.'"

"In 1868, my affianced was nearly bald, and the hair kept falling out every day. I induced her to use Ayer's Hair Vigor, and very soon, it not only checked any further loss of hair, but produced an entirely new growth, which has remained luxuriant and glossy to this day. I can recommend this preparation to all in need of a genuine hair-restorer. It is all that it is claimed to be."—Antonio Alarrun, Bastrop, Tex.

Review of Seattle Market for the Past Week.

HOPS ARE DULL AND DECLINING.

Sales Made at Very Low Figures.—Eggs Weaker—Poultry Scarce and Higher—Clearing House Balances.

SEATTLE, March 23, 1894.

Exchanges at Seattle, Tacoma and Portland clearing houses to-day were:

	Clearances.	Balances.
Seattle	$ 80,586.51	$20,713.13
Tacoma	63,873.00	13,217.00
Portland	114,000.00	42,000.00

Farm products have changed very little in price during the past week, no change whatever being reported on grain or hay. There is an advance in straw, none of which is id the market just now.

Hops have declined and choice lots are now worth but 13 cents and they must be strictly choice to bring this figure. The market is very dull and what sales are made are at figures varying from 9 to 11 cents per pound. The New York product is now being put on the market which has caused a further weakening.

Eggs are weaker than last week, trictly fresh ranch now bringing but 16 cents at wholesale. There are no eastern in market.

Poultry has advanced slightly and hens are quite scarce.

While potatoes are practically unchanged, there are considerable quantities of low grade goods in the markets which sell at a low figures.

Onions are higher, while turnips are quoted lower.

All canned fruits are weak and canned meats are strong, with an upward tendency.

Halibut is in fair supply and sells for five cents per pound wholesale. Salmon is scarce at 6@7 cents, while small fish are plentiful at 4@6 cents per pound.

THE SEATTLE MARKETS.

Prices Paid to Farmers for Country Produce.

The following quotations are the prices paid to farmers and producers by Seattle business houses for articles named, the goods to be delivered in Seattle:

GRAIN—(In car load lots)—Oats, choice $17.00; barley, $13@14 per ton; wheat, chicken feed, $12; corn, $22; cracked $23.

POTATOES—$11@13 per ton.

BUTTER, EGGS AND POULTRY—Handled on commission.

HIDES, PELTS AND TALLOW—Heavy salted steers, over 60 lbs, per lb, 4c; medium, per lb, 2½c; light, under 46 lbs, per lb, 2c, and calf, per lb, 3@4; green hides, 1c less than salted; dry hides, per lb, 4½c; dry elk, per lb, 6@8c; dry deer, skins, summer, per lb, 20c; good winter, 12@15c; poor and thin winter, 5@10c; sheep skins, 15@25c; full wool, 75c; wool, 5@7c per lb; tallow, 2½@3½c.

LIVE STOCK—Choice beef cattle, 2½@3½c; choice sheep, 3c; good hogs, 6@6¼c; calves, large, 4c; small, 6c per lb.

LOGS—Superior quality, per M, fir, $4.50@6.50; choice cedar, $4.50@5.50; common, per M, $4.

Garlick's Red Rose Potatoes.

Almost two years ago Mr. Garlick of Lost Mountain precinct, planted a few hills of the potato known as the California Red Rose, with the view of introducing it into this county if it proved to be a prolific bearer. His success was astonishing. He did not know but the "year" had something to do with it, so he tried it again last year. The result was even better than the first year. From his start of a few hills the year before he harvested about two tons last year, and had no trouble in disposing of nearly all he had to his neighbors at five cents per pound. He has placed a few sacks for sale with the Farmers' Mercantile Co., of Dungeness.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism; but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert, of New Brunswick, Ill: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days I am all right today; and would insist on everyone who is afflicted with terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once."

Fifty cent bottles for sale by J. C. Hansen, The Fisher Pharmacy.

Any person desiring to travel would do well to consult J. H. Young, Agent Canadian Pacific R. R., this city, before purchasing tickets elsewhere. Unrivaled accommodations. Quick time, and money saved by this route.

Neglect of the hair often destroys its vitality and natural hue, and causes it to fall out. Before it is too late apply Hall's Hair Renewer, a sure remedy.
