THE CITY ATTORNEY

Tells the Council That It Must Comply With the

PROVISIONS OF THE ELECTRIC

Lighting Proposition—The City Engineer Files An Estimate of the Cost of Grading and Otherwise Improving Eighth Street—The Council Reject the Port Angeles Water Company's Contract Ordinance.

At the council meeting last Wednesday evening the mayor and all of the councilmen were present.

The city engineer, E. A. FitzHenry, submitted an estimate of the cost of clearing, grading, bridging and sidewalking Eighth street, the total of which is $39,526.25. The estimate was for three and a quarter miles of the street beginning at M street on the west and terminating at Grand Avenue on the east. The report was received and filed.

The street commissioner was authorized to ascertain the assessed valuation of lots abutting on Eighth street and report at next regular meeting.

City Attorney Lamoreux submitted an opinion on certain changes in the plans and specifications of the electric lighting works, one of which was that the city is empowered to use either a round or square flume. Further, the surveyor estimated from the basis of using round flumes, and the grade is established in accordance therewith, and below the hydraulic grade line. To change to the use of square flumes, the grade will have to be changed.

In regard to the location of the power house, ordinance No. 127½ adopted and ratified at the special election was clear and specific, not elastic and evasive, and plainly and definitely says it shall be "located at the water front." He held the opinion that the ordinance in this particular cannot be evaded. The report was accepted and filed.

A petition from retail liquor dealers was submitted. The request of petitioners is that the adoption of ordinance No. 213, entitled, "an ordinance regulating the sale of vinous liquors, and the juice manufactured from the grape,' provides that any party or parties can engage in the sale of such liquors in quantities of not less than one pint and upwards by paying into the city treasury the sum of $25 annually. This, the petitioners maintained is a rank injustice to retail liquor dealers, who pay semi-annually the sum of $200 into the city treasury. They then petitioned that the council either reduce their license one-half or increase the license of wholesale dealers to $200, payable one-half every six months.

A committee was appointed comprising Councilmen Graybill, McGill and Carver to meet the liquor dealers association and wine dealers, to arrange a plan for the equitable settlement of the matter.

The bond of Peter Chambers executed to protect the city in the fulfillment of the contract of the former to furnish the city with 100 cords of wood at $2.40 per cord to be payable in warrants, was accepted.

The applications of Chas. Cross and William Banks under ordinance No. 213 were rejected.

Ordinance No. 216 changing the time of meeting of the regular sessions of council from seven to half past seven o'clock from May 1st to October 1st in each year, was passed and approved.

Ordinance No. 214, providing for a contract with the Port Angeles Water Company, was read to its final passage after being amended in various particulars, but the adoption of the same was defeated, Councilmen Beam, McGill and McLaughlin voting for and Councilman Crockett, Krueger, Carver and Graybill voting against its adoption. The council adjourned.

A NOVEL PLAN

Adopted to Operate the Dry Creek Shingle Mill.

It is indeed gratifying to know that the Dry Creek shingle mill is being operated to its fullest capacity, cutting 100,000 shingles per day, and giving employment to about forty men.

The novel plan devised by Receiver Thos. Malony, which would permit the operation of the mill on a safe basis, assuring both to the creditor and to the employe reasonable protection for each his interest involved, is worthy the publicity that THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER will give it.

The arrangement was entered into on the 5th of last May between Thos. Malony, receiver of the Port Angeles Mill & Lumber Company and James B. Love and Frank Madison and others whose names are subscribed to the agreement as employes of the mill, on the following conditions:

"Now therefore, it is agreed by and between the parties hereto that the said parties of the second part, and all others who enter into the this agreement as parties of the second part, shall receive for their labor the sum set opposite their respective names in this agreement, provided, however, there shall remain enough money in the hands of the said receiver to pay the same out of the products of said mill, after paying out of said products the following fixed and agreed charges, which it is mutually understood and agreed by all the parties hereto are to be paid first and are a prior charge and lien on any and all moneys, or other income from the products of said mill, that is to say; that said receiver shall, under the orders of the court, operate said mill, and out of the moneys and income arising from such operation from the products thereof, there shall be first paid the cost of stumpage if necessary to be purchased; second, the costs and expenses of necessary and needed repairs of the mills, trucks, wharf, harness and buildings and all other machinery and implements necessary in the operation of said mill; third, feed and supplies for teams and cattle necessary in the operation of said business; fourth, groceries and necessary supplies for the boarding house, for the employes only; fifth, all the expenses necessary to be incurred in and about the operation of said mill; sixth, the payment of the interest due on the note and mortgage held by the plaintiff in this action, to-wit: the sum of forty-five ($45) dollars per month, which payment shall commence on the first day of June, 1894, and a further payment of forty-five ($45) dollars per month on the accrued interest due on said note, which second payment shall commence on the first day of August, 1894, and both of which payments shall continue during the operations of said mill under this agreement; six and a half, fifty dollars ($50) per month on accrued taxes; seventh, out of the remaining proceeds of the products and income of said mill, there shall be paid the wages of the employes who sign this agreement and take part in the labor, connected with said mill, and of the receiver, provided there shall remain sufficient funds in the hands of the receiver to pay the same after the payment of the afore mentioned and preferred claims, and if the remainder of said proceeds shall not be sufficient to pay said employes and receiver in full, then the said parties of the second part agree to accept, in full compensation and payment of their wages due them, for any and all work and labor, a pro rata dividend of such remainder."

A New Departure.

Gate City Lodge I. O. G. T. made a new departure at their last meeting on Wednesday night when 29 of the members present took the Juvenile Templar's obligation, which includes total abstinence from tobacco in any form, from profane language and gambling, as well as intoxicating drink. The obligation was administered by Rev. Jonas Bushell, who is one of the members and a past Grand Chief Templar of the state. Alvah McDonald is the superintendent of the temple soon to be formed.

IT WAS M'GEORGE DAY.

The School Election Very Hotly Contested.

THREE CANDIDATES EACH FOR CLERK

And Director—It Results in the Re-Election of McGeorge and Babcock—An Interesting Program at the Minerva—The Women Members Will Give a Unique Entertainment Next Monday Evening.

The school election last Monday was doubtless one of the most hotly contested ever held in the district.

The announcement that Mr. D. O'Brien had very wisely and sensibly withdrawn from the contest, was followed with the intelligence that the name of Mr. R. Fowler, a very highly respectable gentleman, would be submitted to the voters as a candidate. The public declination on the part of this gentleman, of the honor tendered him, brought out the name of Mr. James Stewart, of Tumwater Heights, as an available candidate. Then the name of Mr. Wood was publicly announced, both accepting the nomination. This presented to the voters of the district three candidates, any one af whom, doubtless, would have filled the office efficiently and acceptably.

For clerk there were three candidates, Messrs. Babcock and Smythe, and Mrs. W. L. Ketchum.

The total vote cast was 672, there being, however, only 660 votes cast for director.

From the beginning it was clearly apparent, judging from public expression, sentiment and interest that Dr. McGeorge was incomparably the strongest candidate. The voter heartily endorsed his public record, favored fair, impartial and just apportionment of the district, giving every portion of the city representation on the board.

A large number of women voted, and it is almost useless to add, they most successfully repulsed the advances of political workers, who were quite profusely scattered over the school play-ground, eagerly proffering advice and giving to the voter directions prescribed in doses, well-shaken, and guaranteed to be the panacea for all ills. As is generally the case these intercessions were for the most part in vain.

The voter possessed intelligence enough to decide for himself, and is is almost unnecessary to add that he acted independently, with discretion and wisdom.

The result, while to a few a disappointment, is generally satisfactory and meets with warm public approval.

The gentlemen elected are clean, worthy and capable. They will, no doubt, serve the people faithfully and honestly, and when their term of office will have expired, they will leave behind them a good public record.

Following are the names of the candidates, and the vote received by each.

Last Saturday afternoon the little eight-year-old son of Mr. Boughman, who resides in the western part of town, was thrown from a horse, striking on his right side with such force that his right arm was broken near the elbow. Dr. Lull was called and reports the fracture quite severe.

He Knew Its Worth.

Dr. M. J. Davis is a prominent physician of Lewis, Cass county, Iowa, and has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine at that place for the past thirty-five years. On the 26th of May while in Desmoines, en route to Chicago, he was suddenly taken with an attack of diarrhoea. Having sold Chamberlain's Colio, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for the past seventeen years, and knowing its reliability he procured a 25 cent bottle two doses of which completely cured him. The excitement and change of water and diet incident to traveling often produce a diarrhoea. Everyone should procure a bottle of this Remedy before leaving home. For sale by J. C. Hansen.

W. C. T. U. ITEMS

BY MRS. C. B. MAXFIELD.

The regular meetings of this Union will be held on the first and third Fridays of each month at 2 p. m., and on the second and fourth Friday evenings at 8 o'clock. The gentlemen members are requested to attend the evening meetings. All are cordially invited to all meetings of the union.

The W. C. T. U. pledge: "I hereby solemnly promise, God helping me, to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine, beer and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic of the same."

For God and home and native land.

The next evening meeting of this Union will be held at the residence of Rev. Jonas Bushell, Friday eve, June 22nd, at 8 o'clock.

The meeting last Friday evening was full of enthusiasm, and plans are being made for future work. The evil resulting from the liquor traffic in Port Angeles should nerve every true christian and temperance man and woman to greater activity and more earnest labor against this hydra-headed monster, who is ruining so many lives, and casting a gloom over so many homes.

Remember the temperance sermon by Rev. J. M. Baxter, in the M. E. Church, June 17th, at 8 o'clock.

On a New York street recently, an old man was staggering along, trying to make his was, when a policeman who knew him took him to the station, where he died before medical aid could be summoned. A few years ago he was worth a million dollars. Strong drink brought him to a pauper's grave.

Whittier once wrote to a friend, "If I ever feel like envying anyone it is not the world-famous author, but some serene, devout soul who made the life of Christ his own and whose will is the divine will."

We are often told that "women are out of their sphere when they get mixed up in public reform." Mrs. Talmadge of Puyallup, in answering the above, says: "Perhaps those who make this remark have an idea that women have sprung up at this age of the world like mushrooms, to show themselves for a time and then disappear. Let those who think this go back into the past 3,000 years, and see Deborah with the Sword of the Spirit, leading an army on to victory and judging Israel for forty years, then coming down to Christ's time, and they will see that God made a woman one of the most powerful instruments for good."

Paul says, "I commend unto you Phebe, our sister, that ye receive her and assist her in whatsoever business she had need of you." Centuries have passed since then, a new world has sprung up, a new government has come into existence. It is a country of liberty into which men came to obtain rest from tyranny and oppession and for freedom to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences. They made this a righteous government, founded on God-given principles, the influence of which pervaded every institution and every household, and not until Godless men tried to import from Godless nations the vices which accompany beer, rum, wine and whisky, did the women of this country rise up in force, and owing to their indefatigable efforts, temperance has made long leaps toward the desired end.

To be sure, woman's sphere is the household, but when Providence seems to make it so necessary that she fill another place, the work of which is pushing toward the interests of Church and State to a purifying and holy end, then she finds herself just as well adapted to one sphere as the other and if we were aided by Christians wholly consecrated to God's service —these vile dens of iniquity would soon be swept out of existence and these stray ones who are sailing on the black sea of intemperance would be saved for the lower lights from good deeds would be burning so bright it would be a welcome refuge for every wandering soul. But, alas, the lights are dim along the shore—faded out for want of oil, and the sin-sick soul see but a faint flickering spark behind the cold damp mists of indifference." If the temperance people would work half as hard to save the boys from the saloon as the keepers of these dens do to ruin their victims there would be a temperance work done that would surprise the world.

Are You Insured?

If not, now is the time to provide yourself and family with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy as an insurance against any serious results from an attack of bowel complaint during the summer months. It is almost certain to be needed and should be procured at once. No other remedy can take its place or do its work. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by J. C. Hansen.

Boils, abscesses, tumors, and even cancers, are a result of a natural effort of the system to expel the poisons which the liver and kidneys have failed to remove. Ayer's Sarsaparilla stimulates all the organs to a proper performance of their functions.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be at once advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.

CHAPTER XXVI.

ALL ABOUT MUTTON.

On the twelfth day of that month my lethargy was dissipated and at the same time the ghost laid in a singular manner. As I sat beside my fire, nodding as my custom was, I was startled into sudden animation by a loud yet dull thud as of some heavy body falling in the long gallery. Snatching a brand from the fire, I hastened thither, and at the spot where the bones formerly lay and where I had discovered the brown cake I found a fat sheep lying motionless on the ground. I was now wide awake, active and even excited. When I heard the noise, I guessed at once what caused it. The ghost was no impediment to me, for it was only about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and his solemn marchings to and fro would not commence till midnight. The sheep was quite dead. I bled her as she lay, and though practically ignorant of the butcher's art skinned her partially, cut out certain layers from the breast, and returning to my fire roasted them. I was not consciously hungry and had no longing for flesh food, but being now wide awake and actively intelligent I knew that meat would do me good, and that if I was not to die I should eat it. The odor and steam of the frizzling chops, however, at once awakened a furious appetite. I ate with a relish, and returning to the carcass of the unfortunate sheep hacked off two more chops, fried and ate them. I would have eaten more but I knew how dangerous such indulgence would be after long abstinence. Then I drank copiously from that little glittering pencil of descending water to which I have referred. I used to drink of it sometimes by the simple process of opening my mouth to receive it, at least when I was in good health and spirits. Finally I filled myself a pipe of tobacco and enjoyed a good smoke, a luxury in which I had not indulged for a long time. Finding myself unusually gay and vigorous, I might almost say defiant and pugnacious, I determined to stay awake till 12 o'clock and see whether the ghost would reappear. I suspected that my weak and nervous condition had something to do with the presence of the apparition. Twelve o'clock passed, and I, yet I saw absolutely nothing that night, nor did I ever afterward once perceive either that antique martial figure or anything at all suggestive of the uncanny and supernatural as long as I remained in the cave. I have heard and read of various methods of laying ghosts and exorcising evil spirits. Mutton chops nicely broiled and eaten by an extremely hungry man laid my ghost and laid him effectually. Divine providence saved me my life or my reason on this occasion. I don't think I am a boaster, but from what I recollect I am convinced that if the ghost had appeared that night, as he had been in the habit of appearing for so many nights previously, I would have confronted him, barred his path and questioned him. Familiarity breeds contempt. Every night for 2½ hours I had been now for weeks watching the steady passage of this sinister figure as it paced to and fro along the north wall of the cavern. I slept soundly that night and awoke in the morning alert, energetic and ravenous. Of course I attacked the sheep again, but what was my surprise to find on this occasion another great brown cake close beside the sheep, quite fresh and seemingly baked on the previous day. Moving around with my torch, I discovered half a dozen others, some of them quite stale. It was evident that Charley had been again at work and seemingly now enabled, without let or hindrance, to roll me down a cake every second day, as he had promised. Having now both mutton and bread to eat with it, I rapidly recovered my health and strength, and the knowledge that one at least of my brothers was firmly convinced that I was at the bottom of the "Devil's Parlor" filled me again with hope. I skinned and jointed my sheep, and collecting from various little hollows near the pool all the salt procurable proceeded to corn as much of it as it was not likely that I should eat fresh, rubbing the salt well in with my hands. As my supply of salt was limited, I eked it out by soaking each piece of mutton in the tidal water. After each steeping I dried the piece at the fire and again plunged it in the salt water. Between times I rubbed the salt vigorously into it. Indeed I succeeded in preserving the whole sheep very well. With renewed energy and zeal I now returned to my suspended labors at the window and worked there with a will and from early morning till late at night with little intermission. My bread came to me as regularly as it did to the prophet at the brook Cherith. I had bread, meat and fish and even vegetables, if one can count edible seaweed as such. All was going well with me. Early in December my last piece of brass had worn too small to be of service. I melted all the little pieces which I had saved, made for myself thereby a very bright brand new chisel and scored away industriously. Though I knew that this tool would not bring me to the sill, that it would be worn out before I could effect my deliverance, yet not once did my heart and hope flag. I had brass buttons on my clothes. I had my watch, watch guard and chain. I would melt them, too, into a chisel. Even with flint stones, when all the metal gave out, I could do something. I now began to feel confident that if only my life were spared long enough I would carve my way out of my den. This energy and vigor seemed to be all my own, generated in my unconquerable will, and yet it all came from that poor clifted sheep and my brother Charley's brown bread. I have to record with shame that after the fall of that sheep I became much less pious than I had been before, and yet on the whole my sufferings in this subterranean prison and the marvelous, including Charley's vision, and the miraculous way in which my life had been preserved, and by which I was restored safe to the upper world, gave such a serious turn to my thought and manner of life that, though frequently assailed from without and from within by infidel reasonings and suggestions, I have never since then doubted the existence and omnipresence of an overruling Providence. The going out of my fire in the second cavern seriously alarmed me. The thought was continually present in my mind that my fire here by the seals' pool might go out too. This haunting fear prevented me from sleeping soundly. I was perpetually starting up at night and examining the heap of ashes in which my precious brands were imbedded to see if they were alive. Impelled by this fear, I became a chandler and succeeded in making some extraordinary candles. When I afterward showed one of them to my mother, I thought she would never cease laughing.

A bowl shaped depression in the floor of the cavern near the pool served me for a pot. In this I rendered the fat of the sheep, having first heated the rock with fire. In the meantime I made wicks of twisted sheep's wool—very thick and clumsy wicks they were, but quite good enough for me. When I had a dozen of these ready, I commenced to make my candles. I drew each wick through the little pool of liquid tallow and then hung it to dry between two bowlders suspended from a piece of timber laid crosswise. This labor gave me more amusement and satisfaction than any one can realize. At home we used to make our own supply of candles. Once every year there was a great candle making day. Then the big coachhouse was cleared out, huge quantities of tallow rendered and hundreds of "dips" made and stored up for the year's consumption. This was always a great day for us while we were children and always looked forward to as a most joyful event. My mother always presided over this operation. Indeed in all respects she was a good housekeeper and as like the lady described by King Solomon as any one I have ever met at home or here.

In short, I made a good store of candles, each almost as thick as my wrist in the middle, but at the lower end bulging out to the size of a turnip. After this, when I went to sleep, I used to light one of my candles, and thenceforth was able to pay proper attention to my slumbers, which I could not before, owing to the manner in which my dreaming thoughts continually revolved round the idea of the extinction of my precious fire.

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE LAST ATTEMPT UPON THE SEALS' TUNNEL.

Becoming now heartily tired of that niche cutting labor, I determined to make a fresh attempt on the seals' tunnel. On the last occasion I had failed, but at that time I was living upon a fish diet. My food now was fish, roast mutton and wholesome brown bread. I was far stronger and would certainly be able to penetrate several yards farther in the tunnel which led from that second blowhole into the sea.

I had very carefully preserved as much of that touchcloth as was not necessary for the lighting of my second fire. Now, again taking it, as before, in my purse and securely fastening the latter with whipcord till it was quite water tight, I dived through the first reach of the tunnel. Not to be tedious here, especially as my attempt was frustrated, let me say that I lit my fire as before and made several most determined attempts to penetrate the tunnel beyond the second blowhole, the little one three yards in diameter. I learned now exactly at what point of time my power of retaining breath was half exhausted. I kept on diving and groping along the tunnel till I reached that point of endurance and then returned. As I became acquainted with the nature of the tunnel I found myself at each fresh attempt able to travel farther. All my efforts, however, were fruitless. Save that second small blowhole I could not find another. Finally I determined to give up for good all thoughts of making my escape by the tunnel and to devote my energies to the slow but in the end sure method of cutting footsteps in the incline at Curry's Window. Before, however, finally betaking myself to the great cavern and renewing my labors at Curry's Window I made a complete exploration of this minor one, which opened off the first blowhole. Here now I lit a great many fires and explored it in every part, hoping that I might there meet with something that might be of service to me. At last, in a remote corner which I had not quite illuminated formerly, I discovered a beam of timber of considerable size. I notched it with my knife. All the outer part was quite soft and crumbling, but as I went on cutting I discovered, to my joy, that the inside was quite hard and sound. I saw at once that a more rapid means of escape lay before me. I could cut this beam into small blocks, convey the blocks through the tunnel and pile them up at Curry's Window. Had I made a proper exploration of this minor cavern when I was here before I might have been at home now. I returned home, dined joyously and smoked my tobacco down to within two inches of the end of my coil of Limerick twist.

I have mentioned before that I knew a good deal of poetry by heart, and that the repetition of what I knew was a great comfort to me during the whole time of my imprisonment and prevented my mind from preying on itself. This night I repeated the whole of the first three books of "Paradise Lost," which I had committed to memory when a schoolboy. I had indeed a good deal of difficulty with that passage in which the chief persons in satan's host are identified with the gods of the gentile nations in and around Palestine, but eventually got all correct. I believe I did not go to sleep till near morning, and when I did at last fall asleep slept an unconsionably long time. When I awoke, it was late in the afternoon of the next day. Without waiting for breakfast, I dived through the tunnel, and coming up in the minor cavern found that my fire, though carefully covered up with ashes, had gone out. This was a great blow to me, for the mahogany beam from which I hoped to cut pieces was in a remote part of the cavern, and I feared to venture toward it in the dark. I might lose my way then, and although in the long run I might find my way back to the water, yet it was quite possible that while groping round there in the dense darkness my fire in the great cavern might go out. Indeed I was somewhat divided in my mind already as to whether it was my best plan to stick to the mahogany or to my work of stair cutting. Now at all events I determined, as I had no light by which to work at the great beam of mahogany, to betake myself to the big cavern and the neighborhood of my own fire and work steadily at the stairs in Curry's Window. Accordingly I did so and found the work progressing far faster than I had expected.

One day, I considered it the 11th, but it was really the 12th of December, for I had missed one day during that season of exhaustion and apathy, I was returning to my work after dinner, a meal of which I regularly partook at 3 o'clock, which, however unfashionable, was our dinner hour at home. I was whistling lustily and had just turned the angle of rock where the cavern, after going straight inland, turned again in a line parallel with the coast, trending toward my headquarters at the seal pond, when I saw in Curry's Window, between me and the sky, a slight, boyish, long legged figure. At the very moment that I perceived it this figure shouted, or rather screamed, "Jack!" I as quickly shouted "Ned!" and also as loudly as I could roar, "Stop, stop! Stay back!"

"Stop, stop! Stay back!"

but I might as well have shouted to a madman. In exactly the same manner as I had done, he first pushed himself eagerly along the incline; then he slid with no power to check himself, then came rushing down the steeper portion of the slope and tumbled into the heap of seaweed which I had piled there. Had he seen me at any distance beneath him, he would at once have suspected the nature and depth of the incline and remembered that I was a prisoner there against my will. But my voice came to his ears as from one standing almost on the same level with himself. In starting from the foot of the incline the bowlders stood up higher and higher as one passed into the interior. So he did not suspect the existence of the great depth which separated him from the ground below the incline. So Ned, too, was trapped, and the cavern held two prisoners instead of one.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

EDWARD FREEMAN'S NARRATIVE.

The preservation of my brother's life in the first instance and his final escape from his place of imprisonment were both due, as I often heard my father assert and as Jack and myself also believed, to the grace of God and not the wisdom of man. The police and the coast guards were quite at a loss all through and could do nothing. Even the clever detective who came from Dublin and spent a fortnight here observing and considering went away again in a sort of passion. It was the extraordinary vision seen by my little brother Charley that led him to roll loaves into the place where Jack was really imprisoned and so perhaps saved his life. Finally I myself found out the secret of his imprisonment, not by any wise calculations, but by a sort of inspiration which came to me quite unsolicited. One day—shall I ever forget it?—a whimsical thought, but really a prompting of Providence, came upon me as I sat at the table just before breakfast balancing a spoon on the edge of a teacup and thinking about Jack. Might not something happen or some idea strike me if I were to go to Dhu-Corrig fishing for cunner, just as my brother did? When I lost an arrow, I used to come back to the spot whence I shot it and shoot another in the same direction and with equal force in order to find the first. It was this that put me in mind of the plan which I was now about to execute. I said nothing about it to any one, but taking my rod set off for Dhu-Corrig. I fished carelessly or pretended to fish for some time. Then I got tired. "This," I said, "is perhaps how Jack felt six months ago. Fish not taking, nothing to do, I will try another rock, but there are none here on the right, only the sheer wall of cliff; try leftward then." I clambered along here till I came to a deep fissure in the cliff side. It ran sheer down to the sea, really a rather horrible chasm or long profound cleft, at the bottom of which the sullen waters seemed talking to themselves. I had already explored this cavern by sea, having sculled a boat through it from end to end, for it was too narrow for rowing. Where I now stood it was too wide to leap across, but as I looked up and down I saw a place where an active leaper, gifted with a fair share of nerve, might leap it over. Not that the cleft was really so very wide at this point, but the narrowness of the foothold at the other side and the darkness and depth of the abyss below brought the consequences of failure before the imagination in a somewhat appalling manner. Still keeping my rod in my hand, I leaped it, right glad to find that my foot did not slip on the narrow and sloping ledge at the other side. Just then the conviction started suddenly into my mind that I was on Jack's traces. My heart beat so that I could hear it, and I had to stand still for a considerable time before its beatings and my general agitation would permit me to go on. I was now on the side of an al-

ANGELES' INDUSTRIES.

If the people of Port Angeles desire to prosper and to build a city, they must, rather than live on what they expect others to do for them, get to work for themselves. Already many have commenced to realize this, and as a result we have today three saw mills and two shingle mills in active operation and two shingle mills in process of construction and at least one other that will be commenced before fall. Besides this, the ship yard at the east end presents an animated appearance with the three schooners that are being pushed to completion by a corps of ship carpenters. Messrs. Beardsley and Mynatt are working a crew of men in their brick yard on First street and will turn out a good supply this summer. This is moving in the right direction. Port Angeles must commence producing, if we expect to get in on the ground floor when times commence improving.

There are many other industries that could be established at a small cost, that would give employment to men, and bring money to the town in exchange for their labor, and it behooves our citizens to make an honest effort to set them on foot. Amongst others, an ice factory, and fish packing establishment could be established at a small cost. Fresh fish could be delivered at Port Angeles cheap, and there is a good market in the East for ice packed fish.

These things are within reach of the citizens of Port Angeles at the present time. If it is desired to retain our population it will be necessary to give men work, and the only safe way to do that at the present time is to utilize the natural resources of our forests and waters.

The movement has commenced in the right direction, let it continue.

THE CONSUMER PAYS THE TARIFF.

A favorite hobby with the Republicans has always been that the exporter pays the tariff tax. The ridiculousness of this cannot be more clearly demonstrated any place in the country than right here in Clallam county. The Dominion government has placed a tariff of 25 cents per bushel on potatoes, nevertheless, Dungeness potatoes are being shipped into Victoria by the steamer load and they realize a better profit than they do in selling in the Seattle market. Does it not seem clear that the Victoria consumer pays at least 25 cents per bushel more for their potatoes than is paid on this side of the straits?

The tariff is always paid by the consumer in the way of advanced prices in the long run. No matter whose gold is handed over to the collector of customs for duty, it is added to the price of the article and enters as much into its cost as the original cost of production.

WHILE the rest of the country has been suffering from floods and storms, the fortunate citizens on the west side of Puget Sound have been permitted to follow the even tenor of their way in peace. The farmers have put in larger crops than ever before and prospects for a large yield were never better. Indeed, from present indications, the Clallam county farmers are going to reap richly this year. In other localities the wheat, potato, oat, hay and hop crop have been ruined. The result is apt to cause a good price for the abundant crop of our farmers.

QUILLAYUTE valley people will celebrate Independence Day at La Push this year. It is understood that a goodly party of Angeles people will make the occasion one for an outing. They will make the trip on horse back and be gone about 10 days. THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER suggests that the Hastings Steamboat Company run an excursion from up-Sound ports on that occasion, and make the day one not to be forgotten. A trip out on the ocean and to as pretty a place as La Push should be a taking attraction for a Fourth of July celebration.

MEMBERS of the legislature will be the only important political officers to be elected this fall in Washington. The state officers hold over two years longer.—Tribune-Times.

How about members of Congress? There must be successors chosen this fall to John L. Wilson and Wm. H. Doolittle.

THE Beaver Leader calls on the board of county commissioners to enforce the law requiring the county officers to be run on the amount of fees earned. The requirements of this law, neighbor, have been fully complied with during the present administration of Clallam county.

FOR nearly three weeks no newspaper east of Chicago has been able to reach its Western readers on account of floods.

THE Tribune's neatly laid plot for the control of the school board did not go down.

SOME INAUGURAL ADDRESSES.

An Excellent Program and a Pleasant Evening at the Minerva.

An excellent, refreshing and spicy program was produced at the Minerva Literary Society last Monday evening. It was the initial program of the new regime, and from a literary point of view was exceedingly meritorious. The first number on the program by Mrs. H. B. Willson, "A Literary Review," was admirably fashioned and artistically arranged, and proved a decidedly rich literary treat.

A reading by Mrs. Taylor, on the subject of art, was warmly approved.

Mr. Louis R. Cole was to have favored the society with a paper, but owing to pressing business demands, was unable to comply, so he took the members on a delightful journey among the stars. The description of Mars was very interesting, unfolding many facts, gathered from astronomical research, of that heavenly planet.

The inaugural ceremonies were a feature of the evening.

The president, Mr. R. A. Grimes, was called upon and feelingly thanked the members for the honor conferred, and said that he would endeavor to do all in his power for the advancement of the society.

Remarks were made by the vice-president, Mrs. H. B. Willson, the secretary, Mr. A. N. Taylor, and the treasurer Mrs. H. E. Lutz.

But speaking of inaugural addresses, the gem of the evening, embracing elegance of style, finish of sentences, polish of rhetoric, peppered sarcasm, cutting irony and subtle humor, that of the marshal, Miss Rose E. Pitts, stands out in bold relief, matchless in the originality of thought, and the sublimity of satire.

Following is the address:

Being singularly conscientious in my ideas of official responsibility, and equally remarkable for a tendency to augment, rather than lessen the duties of such positions, I, in entering upon the agreeable labors to which these self-denying (?) people have appointed me, deem it a privilege to make this formal acceptance. While important and honorable positions in this society have silently and ignominously sustained a change of incumbents, the spirit of courageous reform bids me stand forth as the exponent of that ever correct and needful factor to the dignity of all useful institutions—the acknowledgements of its favors, and grateful sensibility of the honor of its preferment.

"Public office," it has been said, "is a public trust," as this declaration goes ringing down the ages.

Further, I deem it necessary to make these remarks for the following reason: I cannot but see, obtuse as is my perception, that certain of this society are entertaining one of the greatest mistakes of modern times, namely, the circumstances to which is due my office of marshal and the respective efforts of myself and them to secure this result. I would correct your erroneous conviction that this greatness has been thrust upon me. Distinctly understand that I achieved it. The feminine world, whose aim is "woman's rights and the extermination of man," will rejoice to hear that another laurel has been added, another position has been vacated to the "fair sex," as they gallantly designate us. And now that this is irretrievably done, I am so elated with the result that I choose without solicitation to reveal the methods and plan of my campaign. You will all appreciate my statement that it is somewhat embarrassing to be looked upon as a candidate for office; at least those will do so who were here last Monday night, for those 23 people stared, most unwisely conscious, each from his neighbor's face into the too-inviting depths of the gently undulating "Sleepy Hollow" chair which occupies the rostrum. The situation was apparent, 'tis true, 'tis pity, and pity 'tis, 'tis true. Upon seeing which:

Slow I resolved within my tactful brain
'Twere folly in this place to remain,
Why linger where the din and roar of battle e'en now comes on apace?
But lie the e'er the battle smoke
Prevents escape from scenes like this,
Walk blocks away, far from the maddening crowd,
And let the conflict rage,
Remain, thou'lt swift be carried on
Into the thickest of the fray,

No friend bethink him of a place for thee
He'll stuff the ballot, aught he'll do
At thy expense to make his own election sure,
Escape, vanish, leave, and when, at last, they find,
That places five cannot them all supply,
Each, fierce within his heart, will say,
She'd better do for this last place than thou.
Swift the conclusion will succeed,
Then will the chiefest traitor of them all
Stand in the congregation of the Left,
And move that "this position be
By vote unanimous bestowed on she."

The sequel you all know; not in the depths of the water pail, neither on top of the shelf nor under a box was I to be found. All went well, and I consider it augurs well for my administration that I am universally congratulated, The utmost good wishes seem to attend me.

I have heard that "public office is a public trust." I would also add that it is sometimes expensive. In view of this fact, I wish to state my plan of paying my campaign debts. It's the same old plan: I have made up a "slate." And I do not expect any one to decline, for it is selected with special regard to the handsome appearance they will make as a staff. Of course no one is selected to whom I am not personally indebted in this matter.

The duties of the marshal, according to the constitution, are specified under the following heads:

1st. Preparing the ballots at Election. There is in this society an artist, who will, in taking charge of this department, doubtless be glad to act upon my suggestion in regard to the ballots and in the future; namely, that all ballots have portraits of the nominees painted on them. This work will be paid for by said nominees, and I think will prove an excellent plan to lessen the number of these turbulent creatures, at the same time adding a novel and interesting feature to this charming society; providing that all who are now officers, will be exempt from this regulation. The gentleman who merits this appointment because of his polite withdrawal in my favor is Mr. L. R. Cole.

2nd. To act as ushers at public entertainment, incidentally to carry extra chairs and remove same after sessions, I have placed the names of these gentlemen, they having used strenuous and praiseworthy effort in my behalf, to-wit: A. N. Taylor, Mr. Mackintosh, Mr. Ware and H. B. Willson.

3d. To assist the treasurer in collecting dues and fines, I have reserved as my own especial department.

4th. And lastly. To obey the official orders of the President. As our constitution is silent as to a member performing the duties of two offices, I have selected for this duty one who is well versed in it, having performed it for the last three months. I also owe him this recognition, as by promoting himself to the Presidency, I secured this opportunity to be his successor. It is needless to announce the name of Mr. Grimes (same old party)

One person to whom I am very much indebted, but whom I did not appoint because of said person's present occupation in the study of parliamentary laws, has been rewarded in a substantial manner which she declared quite satisfactory.

In closing, I would remind the society that you now have a corps of deputy marshals of whom you may well be proud. We trust that law and order and the utmost good-will will prevail during the ensuing term. And I shall esteem it an especial favor if any incivility or want of attention on the part of my appointees be promptly reported. Do not seek by bribes or fees to spoil that sweet consciousness which shall be ours of having nobly performed an ignoble duty, of gracing an ungracious position, of humbly standing in the courts of duty, unenvied and serene."

The critic of the evening, Mr. John W. Troy, then occupied the floor with an arraignment of the imperfections of speech, action, attitude and manner of those who participated in the production of the program, and of members generally.

A Dairyman's Opinion.

There is nothing I have ever used for muscular rheumatism that gives me as much relief as Chamberlain's Pain Balm does. I have been using it for about two years—four bottles in all—as occasion required, and always keep a bottle of it in my home. I believe I know a good thing when I get hold of it, and Pain Balm is the best liniment I have ever met with. W. B. Denny, dairyman, New Lexington, Ohio. 50 cent bottles for sale by J. C. School election last Monday.

The revenue cutter Grant was in the harbor last Tuesday.

A large number of women voted at the school election last Monday.

Miss Luella Hall will represent the "Goddess of Liberty," on the Fourth.

The Port Angeles Opera Club will produce the "Chimes of Normandy," on the afternoon of the Fourth.

The steamer Evangel will be placed in service on the Seattle-Angeles-Neah Bay mail route after July 1st next.

"From Sumter to Appomatox" at the opera house next Friday evening the 22d inst., for the benefit of the Fourth of July fund.

A social hop will be given at the opera house this evening, the net proceeds of which will be devoted to the Fourth of July fund.

The contest for school clerk was quite spirited. There were three candidates: Messrs. C. L. Babcock, W. H. Smythe and Mrs. W. L. Ketchum.

Dr. Joseph Hickey and bride, of Chicago, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bowman, of this city. Mrs. Hickey is a sister of Mr. Bowman.

Messrs. C. L. Babcock and C. L. Stakemiller returned Monday from Spokane, whither they had gone to attend the annual session of the grand lodge I. O. O. F.

Messrs. King and Meredith will conduct a public dance hall on the afternoon and evening of the Fourth, in the building on the north corner of Front and Oak streets.

It is rumored on apparently good authority that the steamer Geo. E. Starr will again be placed on the Seattle-Angeles route by the Puget Sound-Alaska Steamship Company.

East Clallam had quite a spirited contest over the school election at that place Monday. Editor Geo. W. O'Brien for clerk and T. M. Clark for director, were the successful candidates.

The Lyceum-League of America will give an entertainment in the First Congregational church next Tuesday evening, which will include a literary program, installation of officers and refreshments.

It is a fact worthy of mention that 20,000 of the brick from the first kiln of the local yard has already been ordered by the turpentine works, and will be used in rebuilding the oven, which collapsed last fall.

A party comprising Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Lamoreux, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Gay will ride horseback to La Push, where they will spend the Fourth. They will be absent about ten days.

The Garland did not arrive until ten o'clock Thursday evening—the delay being caused by her undergoing the annual inspection at Seattle. This is a relapse of the "try one day come the next" service Angeles was inflicted with in days gone by.

The Fourth of July finance committee has done remarkably well, receiving subscriptions from nearly all of the business men, some as a matter of course giving more liberally than others, while collectively the contributions evidenced a generous public spirit, considering the depressed condition of business.

The Port Angeles Dramatic Club have received an invitation to produce the military drama, "From Sumpter to Appomatox," from the manager of the Townsend opera house. The club will accept and will arrange to play there the latter part of the month.

Two important subjects will be presented at the Congregational church next Sunday. In the morning the pastor will preach on "The Church and Its Authority." In the evening, "Our Public Schools." All who can, should make a point of attending.

The brick yard on the corner of First and Oak streets, of which Messrs. Mynatt & Beardsley are proprietors, is rapidly progressing with the first kiln, which will contain 100,000 bricks and will be ready to burn by the first of July.

THE FOURTH.

The Finance Committee Meet With Excellent Success Soliciting Funds.

Three of the members of the Fourth of July finance committe, Messrs. J. A. Wilson, E. E. Seevers and T. T. Aldwell, have met with excellent success in the canvass of the town for subscriptions to the Fourth of July fund.

The committee approached very few who refused to give, in fact, the depressed condition considered, the subscriptions were quite liberal. If the liberality of business men obtains throughout the town, the fund will be swelled to the $400 mark.

The committee are busily engaged arranging a program, land and equatic sports, games, etc., which will, doubtless, prove interesting and exciting to the spectator.

It will doubtless be ready for publication next week.

The Floats.

The committee of ladies appointed on floats met in the board of trade room last Wednesday afternoon and arranged for three floats to represent Victoria, the states, with the "Goddess of Liberty," and the third will be a boat on wheels to represent something suggestive of the event.

Another feature will be thirteen young women on horseback to represent the thirteen original states. The Victoria float will be under the direction of Mrs. Chas. E. Mallette, the states, Mrs. L. D. Stewart; the boat, Mrs. Wm. Bell, and the young women on horseback, Mrs. W. H. Lambert.

Superior Court Notes.

The superior court has continued in session during the week, and will not finish its duties from present indications until Tuesday of next week.

The trial of Jos Safie, charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, commenced last Friday was finished Saturday. It will be remembered that Sofie struck Samuel Fernie with an axe some time ago, inflicting a severe wound. Sofie was found guilty of assault and battery. A motion for a new trial was denied and yesterday he was fined $50 and costs.

Frank G. Jones was tried this week on a like charge, the weapon used being a revolver with which he shot William Waechter, slightly wounding him. The fracas was the result of a quarrel over a horse, the ownership of which was disputed. The verdict was, guilty of assault and battery. A motion for a new trial is pending.

Yesterday the case of Wallace Mynatt vs. S. G. Morse, sheriff, was tried. The suit was for the recovery of $200 for a horse and wagon that the sheriff attached for Schwabacher Hardware Company, of Seattle. Mynatt claimed and proved exemption. The jury gave him judgment for $145. The sheriff is protected by a bond of indemnity.

Garlick's Red Rose Potatoes.

Almost two years ago Mr. Garlick of Lost Mountain precinct, planted a few hills of the potato known as the California Red Rose, with the view of introducing it into this county if it proved to be a prolific bearer. His success was astonishing. He did not know but the "year" had something to do with it, so he tried it again last year. The result was even better than the first year. From his start of a few hills the year before he harvested about two tons last year, and had no trouble in disposing of nearly all he had to his neighbors at five cents per pound. He has placed a few sacks for sale with the Farmers' Mercantile Co., of Dungeness.

Notice for Publication.

United States Land Office,
Seattle, Wash., Feb. 9th, 1894.

Notice is hereby given that in compliance with the provisions of the Act of Congress of June 3. 1878, entitled, "An Act for the sale of timber lands in the states of California, Oregon, Nevada and Washington territory."

He names as witnesses: M. J. Carrigan, Iver Estensen and Horace White of Fairholm, wash., and William Dedman of Gettysburg, wash, Setting Type by Wire.

Donald Murry, a newspaper man of Sydney, has invented and patented a device by means of which an operator in New York, with a keyboard before him like that of an ordinary typewriter, cannot only produce typewritten copy in New Orleans, but, it is claimed, can operate a typesetting machine here and deliver his matter thus in lead ready for the forms. Not only that, but the same operator, by using a number of telegraph lines, can set up the same copy simultaneously in a dozen different places. In this operation any ordinary currents are used, such as are capable of being relayed and are subject to all conditions of ordinary telegraphy. The work can be done with the same speed as an ordinary typewriter is operated and dispenses with all clockwork mechanism, synchronously moving type wheels and other cumbrous devices. It is said to be capable of manipulating some 80 different characters.—Press and Printer.

Cordite Versus Gunpowder.

The days of gunpowder as a charge for naval guns are numbered, as some experiments just concluded at the government proof butts, Woolwich, appear to prove a decided superiority for cordite. A 6 inch quick firing gun was loaded with 29 pounds 12 ounces of the ordinary black gunpowder and yielded a velocity of 1,890 feet per second, with a pressure strain on the gun of 15 tons per square inch. The same gun was charged with 14 pounds 3 ounces of cordite and gave a velocity of 2,274 feet per second and a pressure of 15.2 tons. More important still, after 250 rounds had been fired, there were no signs of erosion.—London Telegraph.

Buried In a Ghoul Proof Grave.

Mrs. G. F. Routon, wife of a West Newton pioneer, was buried at that place a few days ago. She was 58 years of age and was an exceedingly large woman, weighing 352 pounds. This necessitated a casket 6 feet long, 28 inches wide and 19 inches deep. A few weeks ago an attempt was made to rob a grave at West Newton, near the lot in which Mrs. Routon was buried, and this led the relatives of Mrs. Routon to have a ghoul proof grave vault of iron made.—Indianapolis Journal.

Trade and Shipping

Review of Seattle Market for the Past Week.

SEATTLE, June 14, 1894.

Exchanges at Seattle, Tacoma and Portland clearing houses to-day were:

	Clearances.	Balances.
Seattle	$ 75,943.28	$17,776.23
Tacoma	82,207.00	14,295.00
Portland	231,403.00	33,455.00

The past week has been a quiet one in trade matters, although somewhat better than the week previous. No goods outside of hay and grain are coming in, on account of high waters, which have blocked shipments from the East, and as telegraphic communication is also cut off, Eastern prices are not known, which accounts for the very small changes made this week.

There are no bananas in the markets, although a shipment is expected Thursday.

Cherries are in fairly good good demand, but the quality of the stock on hand is poor.

Home grown strawberries are coming in, although the price is high yet, being quoted at $6 per case.

Lemons are in good condition, and selling at $3.25@4.00.

The Most Successful Gas Engine

In the market is run without an electric spark battery. Theory is all very well, but the every day experience of constant practical use is the best test of merit. The man who runs a launch and finds himself drifting with the tide and wind because the "spark" fails to ignite the charge of gas in his engine; the man who prints a daily paper and fails to get it off on time because the "spark" again fails; the man who has fruit that is injured for lack of irrigation because "spark" fails in his engine that runs the pump not only such parties but others who have trouble from like causes should bear in mind that the Hercules gas and Gasoline engine is free from such difficulties. The ignition is simple and sure. Send for catalogue. If you want second-hand engines of other makes at cheap rates we can supply you. We have a number taken in trade and cannot take any more until these are realized on. PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY, Front and Alder streets, Portland, Oregon.

HAVE YOU TRIED DRUGS AND FAILED

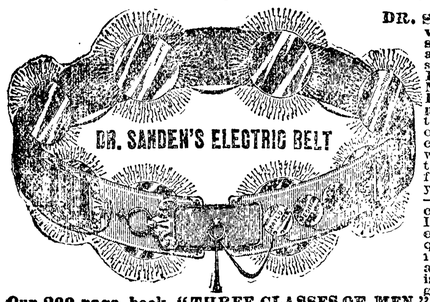
TO FIND A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, KIDNEY, LIVER and BLADDER COMPLAINTS, DYSPEPSIA, LAME-BACK, &c.



DR. SANDEN'S ELECTRIC BELT with Electro Magnetic Suspensory will cure without medicine all of the above troubles. Those who suffer from Nervous Debility, Losses, Drains, Lost Manhood, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Poor Memory, all Female Complaints, and general Ill health, the effects of abuses, excesses, worry or exposure, will find relief and prompt cure in our marvelous invention, which requires but a trial to convince the most skeptical. In ignorance of effects you may have unnatly drained your system of nerve force and vitality—which is electricity—and thus caused your weakness or lack of force. If you replace into your system the elements thus drained, which are required for vigorous strength, you will remove the cause and health, strength and vigor will follow at once. This is our plan and treatment, and we guarantee a cure or refund money. Our 200 page book "THREE CLASSES OF MEN," should be read by every young, middle-aged and old man, sent sealed, free. Dr. Sanden's Electric Belt is no experiment as we have restored thousands to robust health and vigor, after all other treatments failed, as can be shown by hundreds of cases throughout this and other States, who would gladly testify, and from many of whom we have strong letters bearing testimony to their recovery after using our Belt.

WE HAVE CURED THESE—WE CAN CURE YOU!

GENERAL DEBILITY CURED.

San Francisco, Cal., August 14, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Before I used your belt I was troubled with lost vigor, vital weakness, and almost a complete loss of power. I would get up with a very tired feeling, bones aching, etc.; since using your belt I have had a new lease of life. I now enjoy life better than I have for ten years past. I have the utmost confidence in your treatment. You can publish this statement, also have others write or call on me. Truly yours, H. A. BOWEN, 26 and 28 Turk St.

RHEUMATISM AND LAMENESS CURED.

Portland, Oregon, April 18 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I got one of your belts two weeks ago for rheumatism, from which I suffered for several years. For the past six months I had not been able to work. Your belt has placed me in almost perfect health in the two weeks I have used it. I can walk comfortably, and feel like a new man generally.

M. E. HUGHES, Proprietor International Hotel.

NERVOUS DEBILITY—LOSS OF VIGOR.

Tacoma Wash., October 24, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—I have been using your Electric belt for general nervous debility, and to-day feel better than I have for five years. I have gained in vigor daily, and am strong in every part.

Yours gratefully, CHAS. LUETKA.

LAME BACK AND RHEUMATISM.

Portland Oregon, September 26, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Years of exposure and hard work, combined with the strain coming from the jar of an engine, gave me a severe case of lame back, from which I suffered for seven years. I was so bad that I could not bend my back. I was all doubled up with it. I bought one of your belts. It helped me in ide of two days, and I continued to wear it for four months, being perfectly cured. That was two years ago, and I am as well to-day as I ever was in my life. I know your belt well, and I know lots of people who have been cured by it. Many others need it, and if they would try it they would find it the same as I did—the best remedy in the world. I am located here permanently, and will be glad to talk with anyone who wants to inquire about it.

ROBERT BURREL, Engineer Hotel Portland.

LOST VITALITY AND STRENGTH.

Everett, Wash, June 18, 1892.

Dr. A. T. Sanden, Dear Sir:—Since wearing your belt I have been greatly benefited. I feel my old energy fast returning; and after a month's use of the belt I find myself twice as vigorous as before. My memory is now nearly perfect, and each day shows for the better. I feel much stronger than before using the belt. Yours truly, HENRY SCHULTZ, most sheer cliff, one which, when seen from the water, seemed quite sheer and untraversable, but I found a little ledge like a road leading onward and upward. One part of it was very dangerous, but after passing this I came upon rough, craggy ground, quite easy to get over. This rough way led steadily upward along the face of the cliff. By it alone was the rock traversable, and it was not wide. If Jack came along this cliff at all, I would now find him or his body. I went on and on for nearly a mile, the little ledge being always traversable, and at last, quite suddenly, arrived at a large opening in the face of the cliff, which I had never noticed before. I may add that, unlike Jack, I did not care much for sea fishing, was seldom on the water and had never scanned our cliffs with his hawk's eye and inquiring mind. As I stood in the mouth of this cave I was too filled with hope and fear to cry out. Presently I heard the sound of feet, as of some one stepping briskly over rocks, and even springing actively from one to another, though all was dark within. Then a cherry whistle sounded in the interior. The air was "Vilikins and His Dinah." Well I knew who whistled. It was either Jack or his ghost. There was a smooth incline of rock sloping inward just in front of me. Crying out I know not what, I slid or even cast myself down this incline. I heard Jack roar at me to stay back, but I could not, for the incline rapidly grew steeper, till at last it was nearly sheer. So I came tumbling down and fell and rolled over upon something soft. In a moment I was on my feet again and found myself in my brother's arms.

As soon as we recovered ourselves Jack brought me round his vast underground domain, relating all his history as we went, while I told him all that had happened in the outer world. Though I, too, was now entrapped, I did not mind it in the least. I was surprised—delighted with all I saw—Jack's tame seals, his fire burning so mysteriously in the huge darkness.

CHAPTER XXIX.

LIFE OF THE TWO BROTHERS IN THE CAVERN.

Next morning in fine spirits we both rose early and after breakfast commenced rolling such bowlders as we could set in motion in the direction of Curry's Window. We worked hard till dinner and went at the work again shortly afterward, not desisting till we were hardly able to stir from fatigue. At supper Jack said: "I fear, Ned, that our task is a bigger one than I anticipated. We have now got to Curry's Window nearly all the bowlders that you and I together can remove." I poohpoohed Jack's low spirited view of the situation. I was so delighted with the novelty of everything I could not even for a moment harbor such thoughts. That we two could not almost as soon as we chose climb out at Curry's Window or in some other way escape triumphantly out of our prison I utterly refused to believe. If it were not for the sorrow of our people at home, which I knew must be great and heartbreaking, I would have been as happy as any one could be. It was all so like what might be read in a famous boys' story book, and yet it was all true. Here we were both immured in our vast cavern, amid strange echoes and reverberations, in a huge darkness faintly lit by the light of our fire, with our seals, like Elijah's ravens, bringing us food. It was all so strange and interesting. At first I was obliged to keep well out of view of the seals, who after the first alarm gradually became accustomed to my presence, though it was several days before I ventured to show myself, and it was then only by slow degrees that I could get them to tolerate me. They were very susceptible to music. I saw from their motions that they liked my whistling better. Jack was displeased at this, or I thought he was, so I forbore and took every opportunity of alluding to the extraordinary affection which subsisted between them. At the end of the second day we had shifted to Curry's Window every movable bowlder, yet the top of the heap was still a great distance from the window. We could not pile one stone on the top of another, owing to their smoothness and roundness. The base of this pile had to be made broad. We had to use for the pediment many of our precious stones. With our two fishing rods, or rather the butts of them, the bones of the sheep and the scanty bits of sound timber found in the cave, we proposed now to make a ladder, but soon dismissed that notion. The ladder would have been much too short for our purpose, as we found after a very careful calculation. "I fear you are right, Jack," I said at last one evening as we sat ruminating by the fire. "Tomorrow we must begin cutting steps in the rock. It is too bad to think that all your labor was thrown away." Those first steps that Jack cut were now useless, being covered by the bowlder stones.

"There is a better plan than that," said he. "In the lesser cavern there is one fine beam of timber, which is quite sound when you get to the depth of two or three inches. It is far too heavy for us to roll into the water, but we might cut it into movable lengths and get the piece through the tunnel. I think that is our plan, but it will be long and hard work, for the beam is mahogany." We agreed to adopt that plan and to set to work in the morning. I, for my own part, made a proposition of a different kind. It was to send out a message attached to one of the seals. After a little consultation we hit upon a good way of doing so. To write a letter was easy enough. I had paper, a bit of pointed stick, a hard fiber of seaweed, anything at all indeed, would do for a pen, and our own veins supply the ink. But how send this letter out attached to a seal and at the same time preserve it from the water and render it conspicuous and noticeable to any one observing the letter carrier. We were not long in discovering the right plan. Jack had carefully preserved every portion of that unfortunate sheep which might be put to any conceivable purpose. The bones, such of them as were not still enveloped in mutton, were in a place by themselves. The entrails, dried and twisted, were now strong cords. Among the other relics of the sheep he had preserved the bladder. It was just the thing for our purpose. We would put our letter into the bladder, blow it out, bind the mouth of it firmly with twine and attach the bladder to our seal. So the letter would be preserved from the action of the water, and any one seeing our seal would see also the bladder floating behind him when he rose to the surface. The seal would in that case be certainly pursued till shot. Jack, who was very sentimental, and indeed naturally so, about his herd of seals, did not quite like the plan, but finally consented to the immolation of one. We selected a seal called No Good. He was tame enough, but so far as Jack and myself were concerned a bad fisherman. In fact, he could never be taught to bring in a fish at all, though being young he was one of the liveliest of our herd. This unproductive member of the family was selected to be the bearer of our letter. Next morning we wrote our letter and fastened the bladder to one of No Good's legs, leaving a length of about two feet of sheep gut between the bladder and his leg. We now dismissed No Good and proceeded to carry our other purpose into execution. There was now no necessity for repeating that toilsome operation by which Jack had formerly kindled a fire in his parlor if it were possible, for indeed he had exhausted his materials. I had in my pockets some lucifer matches. Two or three of these we selected, and binding them up tightly in Jack's purse we stripped and took to the water, Jack going first. Waiting for a few minutes till he should be quite clear of the tunnel, I followed, not indeed without unpleasant qualms, for it was an ugly business, and though I could swim and dive as well as my brother I was not at all so brave, stout hearted and determined as he was. Indeed I have never met any one so fearless as he was. On this occasion my heart failed me, and after groping in the cave for a few seconds I came out again as I had gone in. Then I said to myself, "If I do not get through soon, Jack, suspecting some accident, will return, and we may meet in the tunnel with disastrous consequences." Making up my mind fully to get through this time, I dived again and was quite surprised to find how easy the business really was. I came up, of course, in dense darkness and shouted, "All right!" I heard some one cry: "Swim this way. I will lend you a hand." Soon I was helped onto the rocky shore, and when we had collected some timber and dried our hands we struck the matches and lit a fire. When I, for my own part, had sated my curiosity by exploring the parlor, we both set to work upon the great beam and began to cut from it such a length as we thought we could roll into the water, and found it, as Jack had predicted, very slow work indeed. In spite of the fire at which we repeatedly warmed ourselves, we soon grew cold. "This won't do at all," Jack said. "If we are to do a good day's work here we must swim in with our clothes on, dry them at the fire, then dress ourselves and work comfortably." We returned as we came, dressed ourselves, dived again through the tunnel, and after drying our clothes and putting them on worked with our knives at the beam for the rest of that day. We then covered up the embers in ashes, returned to the big cave and dined. That night we determined to quite shift our quarters, at least for the present, and to remove some of our food into the parlor. This we did next day, taking with us a good deal of mutton and bread. We brought through the bread easily enough—viz, by making a bag with the sheep's skin and tying it up so tightly as to be quite waterproof. On the previous day we had been rather surprised to find that the seals seemed quite as fond of our society in our new quarters as in the old. There were one or two of them sporting in the dark water beside us all day as we worked. Though Jack, using all his most effective gestures and phrases, continued to impress upon them that they should get us fish, they did not do so. Our new and strange condition and the absence, I suppose, of Scamp from the scene had interrupted the association of ideas which my brother had with so much trouble succeeded in establishing in their minds. We therefore determined to bring Scamp in too. Jack unloosed the fellow for the first time. His delight was unmeasured, and so much did he relish his freedom that during the greater part of that day we were unable to capture him again. Eventually we succeeded and had the satisfaction later on of finding his parents bring him a fine codling, only a portion of which was their son permitted to devour. Of course the moment we seized Scamp we proceeded at once to secure him and compel him to make his "lodging on the cold ground." Here, then, we continued for four days, industriously cutting our way into the heart of the big mahogany beam, each of us working at his own notch. We now saw our way clearly to escape. This great beam of timber was amply sufficient for our needs, but we also saw that the cutting and preparation of it would take a long time. We foresaw, too, some difficulty in getting the pieces through the flooded tunnel, but imagined we had a promising method of working out the problem.

At the M. E. Church.

The children of the Sunday School took an active part in the exercises with recitations, dialogues, and in the singing and responsive reading. The music throughout was good.

Children's Day on Pine Hill.

Children's Day was observed by the Congregational church on Pine Hill in an excellent manner.

The speaking and singing by the children showed careful training and reflected great credity on those who had charge of the exercises.

The little church was very tastefully decorated and a new carpet matting on the pulpit platform bore testimony to the good taste and working power of the ladies of the church.

The large number present showed the interest taken and the very generous collection gave evidence that the hard times has not made people too selfish to do what they can to show their appreciation of the kindness of the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Society, who were the originators of the school there.

The responsive reading was entered into heartily by all and the day will long be pleasantly remembered.

Only the Scars Remain.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc.," writes HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Woolen Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., "none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last, my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."
