AN ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY IS AIM OF THE BOLSHEVIKI

AFTER CONQUEST OF POLAND PLAN IS TO WAR ON THE WORLD

(By Associated Press)

KOLNO, Poland, (By courier to Dlottowen, East Prussia.), Aug. 16.—Soviet Russia intends to seek an allegiance with Germany to make war on France, and if it succeeds, to undertake a conquest of England and eventually America, officials of the Bolsheviki regime told the Associated Press today.

When the Polish war, considered a purely Russian business is finished, a note will be sent to Berlin, they declared, demanding permission to transport troops across Germany for the French campaign. On refusal, which is taken for granted, a revolution will be instituted in Germany the success of which Bolsheviks asserted they were prepared to assure by force of arms.

With these ends in view, Russian soldiers, who have been told all wars shall cease with victory over the Poles are being subjected to propaganda, which declares Frenchmen will be shot on sight, but that the Germans are friends who will soon be comrades. These admissions have been corroborated by information gathered by the correspondent in conversations with German representatives of East Prussia newspapers who interviewed the Bolshevik army chiefs. Bolsheviki leaders declare that within three weeks they will completely control Poland, including the Polish corridor, which they intend to occupy, leaving a ten kilometer neutral zone about Danzig.

When the correspondent arrived here, crossing the border at Czerwone, by the aid of Poles and a wagon filled with straw, he called on the Polish Soviet commissary who recently was established in office by the Bolshevik military.

Hans Scharnewsky, the commissary, is a Polish Jew, with protruding eyes and blond mustache, and wears a white collar. He acknowledged the correspondent's greeting and then sat down to dinner and ignored the American. At the commissary's side a Russian soldier armed with a revolver, stood watch and all conversation was interpreted to him in Russian. The commissary's assistant a former German officer, said this Russian was a Soviet representative who watched all business transacted by Scharnewsky and reported to the soviet contral government, although he never interfered with the commissary's procedure.

When the commissary finished eating his meal of soup, steak, smothered with onions, potatoes and beer, he stalked to his office, directing the corrospondent to wait. After an hour he returned, demanded the correspondent's passports, which he gave a cursory inspection and then returned to his office.

After waiting two hours, the correspondent wandered about talking to inhabitants among whom were many Jews. He was told they did not know whether they were going under Russian, Polish or German rule, but said they had heard rumors there would be a plebiscite in which the people would be permitted to vote whether they desired to adhere to Russia, or Germany. Inhabitants declared such a vote would be overwhelmingly for Germany.

Everywhere the people asked for news of the war and other news of the world saying all intelligence came from the German border through conversation with German guards, who sometimes gave them German newspapers.

There is no commerce with the rest of Russia by telephone, telegraph or railway and inhabitants of villages along the frontier have been existing on the products of the farms.

All honor to the hustling Herald contestants who worked hard to obtain the rich prizes.

The most interesting and exciting election ever held in old Clallam County was the Daily Herald subscription campaign which came to a successful close Saturday night at 9 o'clock.

It was a truly wonderful race. The numbers of votes cast for the various candidates ran up into the millions and it was quite late Saturday night when the diligent judges, who had labored hard finally made up the grand totals and announced the results. The utmost accuracy was observed by the judges in tallying each candidate's votes and to say it was a most difficut and tedious task is putting it very mildly. Very fortunately, the gentlemen who served as judges in the election were all accustomed to handling figures and to accounting with the greatest exactness and this fact made it possible to complete the count in the time they did.

The Herald wishes to take this means of expressing its thanks and its sincerest gratitude to every contestant in the list for their part in making the campaign the success that it has been. Starting out a trifle slow, the campaign became faster and faster and more interesting and exciting day by day until it became the most talked of subject in the entire county.

It is doubtful if there was a home in the entire limits of Clallam county that was not interested in the success

PLOT AGAINST COX FAILED TO WORK RIGHT

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 16.—An unsuccessful attempt to arrest Gov. Cox on a charge of speeding and an accident to one of the cars of newspaper men accompanying him furnished excitiment today in the motor trip on the return from Wheeling, W. Va.

The attempt to arrest the governor and his party was declared by Roy E. Leyton, adjutant general of Ohio, to have been planned by republicans to embarrass the Democratic nominee. He said a warning of the plan had been received yesterday.

At Jacksontown, Ohio, about 32 miles east of Columbus, the party rode slowly through, disregarding outstretched arms of a shirt-sleeved man, Within a few minutes two motorcycle oficers stopped the cars, declaring all under arrest and demanding their return to the town. Gov. Cox identified himself, but the officers said they had had orders to arrest all four automobiles "no matter who they contained" on charges of speeding.

The cars, however, proceeded in spite of the officers.

RIOTS RENEWED IN BELFAST AT THE WEEKEND

(By Associated Press)

BELFAST, Ireland, Aug. 16.—Rioting was renewed last night but no fire arms were used. Shortstand, a nationalistic area in east Belfast, was the battle-ground and contending parties threw stones at each other. Four Nationalists were arrested and one constable taken to a hospital.

A fight early for possession of a military airplane which having left Fermoy with dispatches, was forced to land between Killarney and Tralee, was serious. Official accounts say one soldier was killed, that four of those who attacked the plane were killed and three attackers were wounded.

The plane had been left under a military guard. A large band of Sinn Feiners opened fire, which the soldiers returned. The battle lasted three hours before the raiders were driven off.

Another outbreak is reported from Londonderry, serious results being prevented by police interference. Saturday night there was much indiscriminate revolver firing here and attacks on pedestrians.

Two weeks ago Councilman Horstman proposed a resolution of intention to improve Fifth street and the alley in order to bring the matter before the residents of this proposed improvement district in concrete form, but this was withdrawn because of the opposition of Councilman Filion who represents that ward.

THE SUNDAY HERALD.

Warm approval was expressed today on every hand of the latest Herald enterprise—the Sunday Herald, which made its first appearance yesterday. But yesterday's issue was only the beginning and as it happened was produced under unusually difficult conditions, including short notice and short-handedness in the mechanical department. The Sunday Herald will griw in size and in favor from week to week.

THE CONTEST.

Details of the Herald's big prize contest, printed Sunday and today, will give our readers some idea of the result of a very complete canvass of Clallam county for subscriptions to the county's leading and pioneer daily newspaper. The result is the bringing to The Herald of the most complete subscription list in any newspaper office on the coast. The Herald, from now on, will go to practically every home in the county and to every logging and mill camp in the territory. The city circulation was the largest of any newspaper prior to the contest and of course the result of the canvass has been to place it so far in advance of any competitor that there is no comparison worth making.

Business men will appreciate The Herald's enterprise. To start the contest involved an appropriation of more than $2,000 for prizes and an expense account which could be estimated to run into another $1,000 during the six weeks. The returns upon this investment were problematical. However, the publisher made a careful estimate, largely based upon the popular regard for The Daily Herald, of which he had ample proof, and figured that the business would stand the strain successfully. It did. His estimate fell short of actual receipts by $700, so that the result exceed expectations.

The distribution of $2,000 worth of prizes in a community of this size is an event of some significance, especially as all but one of the prizes, a course in a business college, were purchased in the city. The Herald's enterprise gives the merchants of the town an unequalled medium of communication with customers in city and county, and should do much to build up the city's trade and advance the interests of both city and country.

DOG POISONING.

The Herald, today prints another story of a pet dog poisoned. It would, with infinite relief, print a story of the poisoner caught,(and hereby expresses the hope that some method may be employed whereby the person guilty may be thrown into the bay and told never to set foot again in this city.

Every summer this person—there must be something devilish in his composition — gets in his deadly work and usually the best dogs and those especially beloved by their owners, are the victims. The unfortunate animals poisoned, as recently, with crushed glass, dies a miserable and lingering death, in great pain.

The Herald does not know just what ought to be the fate of this enemy of dogs and Man, of whom the dog is the first friend. But it does know that in his darkened soul must lurk ample punishment for his misdeeds.

VILLA'S SURRENDER.

Francisco Villa's announcement that he intends to retire to private life has been interpreted by the majority of the American press as an omen of peace and stability for the new Mexican government. Among those writers however, who are less enthusiastic, there is plenty of divergence of opinion as to what the step signifies. Some feel that his extradition ought to be demanded by the United States and others think that the favorable conditions under which he is to be welcomed back to civil and civilian life will simply encourage banditry, and others look at his "reform" as only temporary.

The event is not without its "gentle irony," the New York Globe (Ind.) declares, especially evident to eGneral Pershing, "who owed his chance in the great war" to the part he played in the expedition to "get Villa;" and the New York Tribune (Rep.) pictures the ex-bandit in after years as a conservative, "guarding his cattle from the maraudings of some future Villas," and hero of legends that perhaps may grow to the proportion and charm of the tales of Robin Hood.

The Wheeling Register (Dem.) considers that Villa's surrender "marks the dawn of a new day in Mexico," and in accomplishing it, the Richmond Times Dispatch (Dem.) asserts, the new government has done more to "reestablish order in that unhappy country than any single act that has signalized its accession to power," thus showing, in the opinion of the Indianapolis News (Ind.), that it is "in practical control of the whole country." The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot (Ind. Dem.) feels that there can be no doubt and the New Orleans States (Dem.) looks upon the event as "a feather in the cap" of the new regime. The LaFayette Journal-Courier (Ind. Rep.) is emphatic:

"The de la Huerta government has accomplished at one stroke," it says, "more progress in the direction of stable peace for Mexico than was achieved in the long and bloody years of Carranza's reign."

The Times (Dem.- of El Paso, which knows Villa as a nearer if not dearer acquaintance, is not over-optimistic about his future:

"Villa's elimination is a long step toward restoration of order and seemingly would bring recognition of the new regime by the United States much closer. But Villa is nothing more than a bandit. In fact he is under indictment for murder in the United States. It may be that demands will be made for his extradition."

The Arizona Gazette (Ind. Dem.) considers that punishment instead of pension shoud await Villa and his men. "What an outrage! What a travesty upon justice! God pity poor Mexico when such things as this may come to pass! What is to become of a country where murder and rapine are rewarded by rich gifts and the mark of Cain is a coveted badge of honor!"

"Nothing in the world can beat Tanlac as a medicine," said A. F. Barr, of 4615 Park Blvd., San Diego, Calif. Mr. Barr is one of the best known and most highly esteemed real estate, loan and insurance men of San Diego.

"I am feeling better and stronger than for twenty-eight years," he said, "and I can't make any endorsement of Tanlac too strong.

"My troubles started with indigestion and gas on my stomach, then my nerves went to pieces and at times I couldn't bear people talking in my presence. Nothing I could do seemed to help me and I remained in this condition twenty-two years. I fell off in weight to a hundred and nine pounds and got so I couldn't sleep at night, my stomach swelled up with gas after nearly every meal and I became so weak I had to give up my business almost entirely. I tried everything I knew of but didn't even get temporary relief.

"One day my doctor said: Why don't you try Tanlac? I believe it will help you. I acted on his suggestion at once and before I had finished the first bottle I was astonished at the way I had improved. I kept on getting better right along until now I am a well man, after suffering more than a quarter of a century. I eat anything, my stomach and nerves are in excellent shape and I have more strength and energy than for twenty-five years. My recovery is the talk of the neighbors, and if anyone doubts this tell them to see or write me."

The Girl Who Smiled Through

By MARION RUBINGAM

DOUBT.

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

Alice Fairbanks is called "The Happy Lady," by the children of her town, because of her bright smile and sunny nature. Her optimistic qualities have made her rise superior to such saddening circumstances as her father's death, her mother's invalidism, and the hard work necessary to stretch a tiny income. When she meets, falls in love with and becomes engaged to David Thorne, her cup of happiness seems overflowing.

An aunt dies, leaving a year old daughter penniless. Alice generously gives up her trousseau money to send it to Lois for fare, and the Fairbanks taker her in to live with them. Lois is exceedingly pretty and very feminine, and gradually absorbes David's interest.

CHAPTER 25.

Mrs. Fairbanks, sensitive to a superlative degree, as are most invalids, spent the next few days in bed. Alice, thinking her mother needed to be quiet and away from everyone, moved her upstairs to her room and herself slept in the little living room. This little downstairs room was ordinarily Mrs. Fairbanks' favorite spot. Such life as they had passed through it, and here she was in touch with household affairs and convenient for neighbor's visits. But this sudden change in condition made it desirable to keep her away from everything.

Alice was alone the next afternoon. Lois had announced suddenly that she was going for a walk.

"I haven't explored the town yet, you know," she explained.

And Alice, guessing she was going to meet David secretly, said nothing. She did not know where they were going but the air of intimacy and secrecy which she had seen the evening before made her sure that there was some sort of appointment.

Of course, she might be wrong—

David had said the night before that he was to drive out to the Farm that afternoon, and mentioned the work he was to supervise. So, if that were true —and she turned hot at the very thought of doubting a word David said. But if that were true, t he n Lois had gone too. Lois had dressed with particular care that day -- another fact that added to the feeling of conviction that was taking possession of Alice.

There was a light step on the porch, and looking up, Alice saw Clara coming in. She was profoundly grateful for the interruption.

"How's your mother?" Clara asked. "I heard she was ill and came to find out. I brought along some sewing." She unrolled a bureau scarf she was making and settled herself to talk.

They chatted of various things for an hour; then, girl-like, drifted into talk of boys and love affairs.

"Were you ever jealous?" Alice, asked.

"Yes, often. Remember Eddie, Howe? I used to be mad about him, and when that little Lipton girl came along and took him away from me, I was most awfully jealous," Clara confessed frankly.

"It's the worst feeling in the world, isn't it?" sympathized Alice.

"It is, and its such an unworthy feeling, and such a hopeless one," Clara philosophized. Then pursuing the line of thought that Alice had suggested, she asked presently.

"What made you say that? You've never been jealous. You never even looked at a man until you met David. And you're engaged to him. Do you mean to tell me you are jealous?"

Alice said nothing, could say nothing in fact. After all, what had she to be jealous of? David was off at the Farm, his duties lay there, Lois might really have gone for a walk—and even if she had gone with David, that signified nothing!

"Are you jealous of Lois Kennedy?" Clara demanded suddenly. "Tell me, Alice dear. You know I'd do anything in the world for you, and you know we have always told each other things."

"Alice looked over at her friend. Then she told her what she knew and what she suspected, told it shamefacedly, for fear Clara would think her foolish.

"Of course, she's gone with him, and of course she's going to get him away from you, if she can," Clara summed it up. "It's clear as daylight. She hasn't any money and she thinks David has—he has, you know, but I suppose you never even dreamed of asking him—"

"What difference would that make to me?" Alice asked resentfully.

"None to you—plenty to her," Clara announced. "Lois hasn't any home, nor any family; she's come here to see what her chances are of getting a husband. David looked like a possibility and she's going to get him if she can."

"She may fall in love with him, but I doubt whether a girl like Lois has room for love of anyone but herself in her heart. You know, I was more or less in love with him myself, but he never looked at me. And I wasn't jealous when he fell in love with you, because I knew you would make him a better wife than I. I would be jealous of Lois, though, for she isn't good enough for him."

Long after Clara left, Alice sat idly looking into space. Lois wasn't worthy of David—but what would she do about it?

What could she do about it?

Tomorrow—Decision.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

AN UNUSUAL LETTER.

"Do you know what I'm going to do," writes a bright little letter friend. I am going to write a letter to myself to be opened at about the time I am 50 and tell myself a lot of things that perhaps I won't see then as I do now.

"I'm going to say: 'Mrs. or Miss Who ever you are then: Don't you fret about every little thing that comes along, and don't you say a single sour thing about everyone, because there are a lot of things about everybody that you don't know and if you are sour you never will know. If you are sweet and sincere and trustworthy, maybe people will talk to you about some of these wonderful things and it does make you love them so."

She Hopes Her Plain Talks Will Help.

"There is going to be some pretty plain talk in that letter, and if I need it, maybe it will jar a little; but if I need it, the purpose of my letter will be accomplished anyway.

"What do you think of the idea?" she asked me.

That is a corker, of course.

Only I wish she had told me a little more about what's going into that letter.

I'm not so young as she, so perhaps I can't suggest as well, but I can think of several things of which 20 or 25 might well remind 50 or 60.

Young People Will be Young People.

For instance, that young people love to have a good time and giggle and be noisy over nothing, and that there is no use expecting them to be quiet and sedate like older folks;

That young people do not like older people who are always saying that young people don't behave as well as they used to in their days;

That young people have a passionate desire to run their lives their own way and that any help must be accomplished by tact, not by pigheaded interference;

Perhaps You Can Add Some Suggestions.

That children and young folks are very intense and, because they lack perspective, often suffer as much from what seem to their elders small troubles, as if those troubles really were large.

I wonder what 50 or 60 would say to that letter from its old self?

I wonder if, as my optimistic little friend is so sure, the purpose of the letter would be accomplished?

For it is one thing to know a thing is true. It is quite another to feel it so stoutly that the feeling becomes a spring of action.

BEAUTY CHATS by EDNA KENT FORBES

Some correspondents seem to think that it is necessary to keep the finger nails highly polished. As a matter of fact, the best looking nails are never too bright. A certain amount of gloss is all right, but a high gloss is very bad looking and thoroughly undesirable.

A great many people also seem to think that it is necessary to use a lot of polishing paste or powder. Now this is very bad because most of these polishing preparations are quite drying in character, and if used too often will make the nails look old and ugly. As a matter of fact, the nails can be kept as highly polished as is desired if they are given a quick buffing with a clean nail buffer every week, and an extra polish once a week when a more thorough manicure is necessary.

A certain amount of buffing is excellent for the nails for it stimulates the circulation, keeping them soft and young in appearance, and in some cases doing away with the ugly little ridges that spoil the appearance of the entire hand.

The simplest and best way to keep the finger nails looking as though they had been freshly manicured is to push back the cuticle around the edge of the nails as soon as you have washed your hands and while the skin is still warm and soft from its immersion in soap and water. If this is done every day, and if the finger nails are gone over with a nail buffer for a few seconds, they will keep their well-cared few days it may be necessary to reshape them by using a bit of pumice paper.

S. C. M.—If your parents do not approve of using powder or rouge, you can keep your skin from becoming shiny by wiping it over occosionally with a plain chamois cloth. This will leave the skin as soft as though you had used a fine grade powder. Rouge is not necessary if you are perfectly healthy. You can make cucumber juice to bleach the skin of freckles or sunburn by slicing ripe cucumbers thin and stewing them with a very little water, straining off the juice.

PROPOSED TO THE PEOPLE BY THE LEGISLATURE.

To be voted on November 2, 1920.

REFERENDUM BILL NO. 1.

AN ACT to authorize the issuance of State Bonds to provide funds for the construction of a state system of hard surfaced trunk line highways.

STATE OF WASHINGTON,
Office of the Secretary of State.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: In obedience to the state constitution and an act of the legislature approved by the Governor, March 12, 1919, entitled: "An Act providing for the construction of a state system of trunk line hard surfaced highways, providing for the issuance, sale and redemption of state bonds to create a fund for such purpose, and for the submission of this act to a vote of the people," there is hereby published for the consideration of the voters of the State of Washington the following proposed act of the legislature of said state:

CHAPTER 99.
(S. B. 240.)

AN ACT providing for the construction of a state system of trunk line hard surface highways, providing for the issuance, sale and redemption of state bonds to create a fund for such purpose, and for the submission of this act to a vote of the people.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Washington:

Section 1. A state system of trunk line hard surface highways shall be acquired and constructed by the State of Washington as soon as practicable, upon the highways of the state along the routes herein described, so as to connect with each other the different communities and principal cities of the state as near as may be, to-wit:

(1) The Pacific Highway from Blaine to Vancouver; also a highway running from Seattle to Des Moines and thence by the most feasible route to Tacoma.

(2) The Sunset Highway from Renton to Spokane and thence east to the Idaho state line.

(3) The Inland Empire Highway.

(4) The Olympic Highway.

(5) The National Park Highway from Tacoma to Ashford and thence by the most feasible route to the Rainier National Park; also from Elbe to the Pacific Ocean at Holman.

Section 2.—The highways constructed or improved under the provisions of this act shall be finished with a wearing surface of Portland cement concrete, bituminous concrete, asphalt, brick, wood block, stone or other material equally permanent and durable, not less than eighteen feet in width, laid upon Portland cement concrete base of a minimum thickness of five inches: PROVIDED, that if the state highway commissioner shall deem it impracticable to improve any portion of any highway herein described by paving as herein provided, the state highway board may provide for the improvement of such portion of the highway in such manner as in its judgment will best accommodate travel thereon.

No part of the money apportioned under this act shall be used, directly or indirectly, to pay any premium or royalty on any patented or property material, specifications, process or type of construction, unless purchased or obtained on open actual competitive bidding at the same or a less cost than unpatented articles, or methods equally suitable for the same purpose.

Section 3. Whenever the making of any part of any road to be improved or constructed under the provisions of this act, or the locating of a route or any part thereof, or the obtaining of road building materials for such work, requires that private property be taken or damaged, the state highway board shall have the right to acquire any such property by purchase or by condemnation in the manner prescribed by law for the acquirement or condemnation of lands necessary for the public uses of the state.

Section 4. The state highway board shall divide the state highways into convenient sections for construction purposes, and shall make diligent effort to have the entire trunk line system of hard surface highways completed within six years after the taking effect of this act. The construction work shall, so far as possible, be commenced in different sections of the state at approximately the same time and carried on until all work is completed.

Section 5. The funds provided by this act for the acquisition, construction and improvement of the state system of trunk line hard surface highways shall be expended only for surfacing and the construction of the necessary subgrade therefor including the purchase of machinery or supplies. All construction work shall be done under the supervision of and upon plans and specifications prepared by the state highway commissioner. Contracts for the construction and improvement of said trunk line highways shall be let by the state highway board to the lowest and best responsible bidder, or bidders, on such terms and conditions and on open competitive bidding after public advertisement in such manner and for such times as may be prescribed by said state highway board.

The state highway board shall have power to provide for the furnishing by the state of any tools, machinery, supplies or materials needed for such work, and in the event the state highway board undertakes to furnish such tools, machinery, supplies or materials such tools, machinery, supplies and materials, shall be purchased by the state highway board on open competitive bidding.

Section 6. The state highway board is authorized to cooperate with the proper authorities of any city or town of the third or fourth class and expend moneys for the improvement of any portion of any highway herein described which may pass into or through any such city or town.

Section 7. All highways herein described when constructed along permanent grades and alignment shall be permanently controlled and maintained by the State of Washington.

Section 8. For the purpose of providing means for the payment of the cost of construction of said state system of trunk line highways there shall be issued and sold bonds of the State of Washington for an amount not exceeding thirty million dollars ($30,000,000.00), to bear interest at a rate not to exceed five per cent (5 per cent) per annum, payable semi-annually.

The issuance, sale or retirement of said bonds shall be under the general supervision and control of the state highway board. Such board may in its discretion provide for the issuance of coupon or registered bonds, to be dated, issued and sold from time to time as the construction work progresses, in such amounts as may be necessary to provide money to pay for said work and the expenses incidental thereto. All of the bonds issued hereunder shall mature at the rate of one ($1,500,000.00) principal each year, commencing in the year 1922 and ending in the year 1941. Such bonds shall be signed by the governor and the state auditor under the seal of the state, and any interest coupons attached to such bonds shall be authenticated by the fac-simile signatures of the same officers. Any bonds may be registered in the name of the holder on presentation to the state treasurer or at the fiscal agency of the State of Washington in New York, as to principal alone or both principal and interest under such regulations as the state highway board may prescribe. Said bonds shall be in such denominations as may be prescribed by the state highway board and embody an absolute promise of the State of Washington to pay both principal and interest in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of value and fineness, at such place or places as the state highway board may provide, and to levy sufficient taxes each year to pay the interest and principal of said bonds as they become due. All bonds issued under the provisions of this act shall be sold to the highest and best bidder or bidders, on such terms and conditions and on open competitive bidding after public advertisement and at such times as may be prescribed by the state highway board, but not for a sum so low as to make the net interest returned to the purchaser exceed five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, as computed by standard tables, upon such sum.

Section 9. The money arising from the sale of each issue of bonds shall be deposited in the state treasury to the credit of a special fund to be known as the "State Trunk Line Highway Fund," which shall be used in carrying out the provisions of this act.

Section 10. All moneys paid to the state under the provisions of chapter 142 of the Session Laws of 1915, commonly known as the Motor Vehicle Code, and all acts amendatory thereof, over and above such moneys as shall be estimated by the secretary of state to be necessary for the A. Palrserwice & Co., supplies ..... 712.40 purpose of administering said chapter 142, shall be first appropriated and used for the purpose of paying and discharging annually the principal and interest on such bonded indebtedness then due and payable, and shall from time to time be deposited in a special fund to be known as the "State Trunk Line Highway Bond Redemption Fund." Each year after this act becomes effective, and until all of said bonds have been retired it shall be the duty of the state board of equalization to include in the tax levied for state purposes a direct annual tax for such amount as shall be necessary and sufficient, in addition to the moneys collected under said chapter 142 and paid into the said state trunk line highway bond redemption fund, to pay the interest annually as it shall accrue on each and every bond issued under the provisions of this act and also to pay and discharge the principal of such bonds at par value as such bonds shall respectively fall due: PROVIDED, that no such direct annual tax shall be levied for any year in which sufficient money is collected under said chapter 142 and paid into said bond redemption fund to pay the interest as it shall accrue on said bonds for that year and also to pay and discharge the principal of all of said bonds falling due during such year.

Any surplus of money collected under said chapter 142 after the payment of the expenses of administering said law by the secretary of state and providing for the payment of the principal of and the payment of the interest on bonds falling due during that year, as aforesaid, shall be paid into a fund to be known as the "State Trunk Line Highway Maintenance Fund," and used for the purpose of maintaining the roads herein described in pursuance of appropriations therefor by the legislature.

Any surplus remaining in the state trunk line highway maintenance fund over and above that expended in pursuance of appropriations for the maintenance of roads as herein provided, shall annually be distributed to the various counties, cities and towns of the state in the following manner:

To the various counties of the state in which are located primary highways the improvement and maintenance of which is not provided for by this act, for the maintenance of such highways; and to the various cities and towns of the state in which are located streets forming a part of the route of any primary highway through such city or town, for the maintenance and improvement of such streets, a sum not to exceed two hundred dollars ($200.00) per mile for each mile of such primary highway and streets.

Primary highways and city and town streets, in order to come under the provisions of this act for maintenance purposes, must be of a character equal and up to the standard of permanent highway construction. All sums apportioned to counties shall be placed in the permanent highway maintenance fund of such county. All sums distributed to cities and towns shall be remitted by the state auditor to the cities and towns entitled thereto and shall be expended by such cities or towns only for the maintenance or improvement of such streets. The state highway board shall determine what streets in cities and towns form a part of the route of any primary highway through such city or town, and what primary highways the improvement and maintenance of which is not provided for by this act, and shall between the 15th day of February and the 15th day of March of each year certify in triplicate, one copy to the state treasurer, one copy to the county commissioners of each of such counties, and one copy to the clerk of each city or town affected by the provisions of this act, the number of miles of primary highway, or city and town streets entitled to apportionments as provided by this act. Any surplus remaining in the state trunk line highway maintenance fund after the making of such apportionments shall be distributed to the various counties of the state in proportion to the amounts paid into the permanent highway fund by the various counties of the state and placed in the permanent highway maintenance fund.

Section 11. Whenever any county shall have expended any moneys from the road and bridge fund or from the proceeds of bonds in the improvement or construction of any of the highways described in this act by paving such highway, the state highway board shall, if such paved highway is of proper and durable hard surface type to make it practicable to do so, utilize such paved highway in the system of state trunk line highways provided for in this act. If any highway so paved by any county be so utilized, the state highway board shall determine the amount by which the utilization of such paved highway lessens the cost of improving and constructing the state trunk line system of highways provided for in this act, and such amount (in no event to exceed the actual amount of the first cost of construction paid from the funds of such county) shall be placed to the credit of such county in the permanent highway fund in six annual installments, beginning on the first day of January, 1922, or, if the board of county commissioners of any county so elect, such payment, instead of being credited to such county in the permanent highway fund, shall be paid to such county to be used in the payment of any county bonds issued by said county for the improvement of any such highway.

Section 12. This act shall be submitted to the people for their ratification at the next general election in accordance with the provisions of section 3 of article VIII of the state constitution; and in accordance with the provisions of section 1 of article II of the state constitution, as amended at the general election held in November, 1912, and the laws adopted to facilitate the operation thereof.

Passed the Senate March 3, 1919.

of some of the hustling candidates toward the "home stretch." Votes literally poured into the ballot box the last few days and every individual candidate, regardless of standing in the list, should feel mighty proud today of the hundreds and hundreds of friends who valiantly supported them throughout the election. In an election of this nature a candidate finds out who are her, or his, real friends and the support that was given the workers proved beyond question that each neighborhood and community was represented in the election by its most popular person.

It would be impossible, according to the judgment of the management of the contest to go through the country adjacent to Port Angeles and throughout the city itself and select girls who possess more friends or are more popular that those who competed in The Herald's campaign.

The contest was the most elaborate ever attempted by a Clallam County paper, and in this connection the Herald desires to state that the able management of C. H. Kerns, of the firm of Kerns & Kerns, in conducting the contest proved a source of gratification not only to this paper, but to each and every candidate. Mr. Kerns was fair and square with all candidates and may well be termed "The Safety First" contest man.

Each candidate received complete protection, and the ballots were safeguarded against the knowledge of any individual as the judges have testified. These gentlemen have the appreciation of both The Herald and Mr. Kerns for their verdict in the fairness and thoroughness of the contest, and they spent most of the night in the laborous work of going through the great bulk of ballots.

To the candidates at large The Herald expresses its deep regard and assures them that it deeply enjoyed the friendship and hearty co-operation that came from the association.

Good health is impossible when the kidney are weak, overworked or diseased. When they fail to filter out of the blood the poisons and impurities that cause sore, swollen muscles and joints, backache or rheumatic pains, prompt steps should be taken to give the kidneys and bladder the help these symptoms nidicate they need.
