The Tanning Extract Industry and the World's Fair—A Great Industry that Promises Wonderful Results for this County.

The board of trade held a largely attended meeting on Monday night. Under a suspension of the rules the following gentlemen were unanimously admitted to membership: Capt. Hatch, of the steamship Monticello; Capt. L. B. Hastings, of the Hastings Steamboat Company, Dr. H. C. Willison and J. C. Hansen.

Dr. Gore, as chairman of the committee on transportation, reported that he had made favorable terms with Capt. Hatch for an excursion to Seattle and return under the auspices of the board of trade, the tickets to be $2 for the round trip and good for three days. The board unanimously endorsed the proposition. Dr. Gore then said that we had arrived at a point where we deserved some consideration at the hands of the Northern Pacific railroad company and stated that if they would run a boat here every five days so as to connect with the Pacific Coast Seamship company from San Francisco they would amply repay them. He then introduced Mr. Yerkes, of the Northern Pacific railroad, who said he had consulted with Mr. Jackson, who said he could give a boat every Saturday. In his report to headquarters he had told how our town was growing and had said there were now more people here than in Port Townsend and had sent a very favorable report to St. Paul, but had received a reply that the people here were pulling for the Canadian Pacific railway, and protested against the secretary of the board of trade representing a railroad company.

Colonel Coolican here addressed the board, he said that when first the colony proposition came up he had gone to the Union Pacific and was almost insulted by the officials of those roads. He had then got the Canadian Pacific people interested by writing to headquarters, and they had immediately dispatched a man here to look after our business—since which time the other roads had shown a little more interests in Port Angeles.

The matter was referred to the committee on transportation, to be reported at a meeting to be held at 3 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, at which meeting Mr. Yerkes expressed his intention to be present.

The Tanning Industry.

One industry that will create a surprise at the Washington World's fair in 1893, will be the exhibit showing the possibility of development in the tanning business in this new state.

From some malicious, or other misrepresentation, the tanners of the east have allowed to be established the idea that the entire northwest is devoid of all materials useful in the tanning industries. One man who has devoted a great deal of time and energy in refuting this false notion is Mr. David A. Kellogg one of the best known pioneers of Seattle. When interviewed recently by the Washington World's Fair Press Agent, Mr. Kellogg gave the following interesting statement of the case:

"Tanners of the eastern states are beginning to realize that their supply of tanning materials is growing alarmingly scarce and they are ready to seize upon any reliable new scource of supply. This is a chance for Washington to come to the front in an industry that will bring thousands of laborers here and develope an industry that will add millions to our productive and taxable wealth. We have a most excellent hemlock tan bark in this state, and analyses by acknowledge experts show that this bark is at least fourteen per cent stronger than the best Pennsylvania tan bark. Why, over here on the Clallam, or Olympic peninsula we have an area of 100x30 miles from which we can cut an average of 30 cords of hemlock bark to the acre. The trees range from 75 to 125 feet in height to the first limb and their average diameter is two feet. The Pacific Tanning Extract Works, of San Francisco, have a $60,000 plant at Clallam Bay and their output is 20 barrels a day.

"Another good thing about our hemlock is the fact that the wood or timber of the trees is excellent for inside finishing work, and, again, the lands from which the hemlocks are cut are good for almost any agricultural purposes.

Arrangements have already been made to collect fine displays of hemlock bark and wood in the polished and raw states. Careful and remarkable analisis of the barks will be shown and every effort made to develop this dormant but promising industry.—Clallam Bay Record.

PROSPEROUS TIMES COMING.

A Prominent Business Man Recently Returning from the East Talks.

In an interview with a Tacoma Ledger reporter a prominent business man says:

"The political campaign is an unusually dull one—just why this is so has not been satisfactorally explained, though a great many attribute it to the fact that the country is assured of having a tolerably conservative administration in either event. An election was never know to exercise so slight an adverse influence upon trade as the present one. Business is looking up all over the east, especially in the texile manufacturing interests, where the tone is bouyant, or rather jubilant. An officer of the Vacuum Oil company told me that they had had an excellent trade of late in the east and in the middle west.

"I am strong in the opinion that this better spirit in trade is working west, and I think that by a year from now we will feel the effects of it here most forcibly over the whole Sound. Many easterners will find their way out here during the world's fair. There are thousands who, if they once give way to a life-long desire to come west, and come as far out as Chicago, will argue that they might just as well see the whole of the country at the same time. I tuink that we shall be very appreciably benefited by this class.

"When they see that we don't all carry revolvers in our hip pockets and wear leggins, they will argue, here is a conservative city filled with eastern people; it's a nice place for the boys to come out to anyway. If the boys get here the argument will be, the climate is mild and equable and the people are of a desirable class, why not spend a year with them or perhaps move out to be with the boys? Yes, look for a very appreciable benefit from this class ot travel next season."

ARGUMENT.

Henri, Marquis of Corneville, who has been since childhood, owing to civil war, an exile, returns to his ancestral home on the occasion of the great annual fair which is being celebrated in the village that receives its name from his chateau.

It is one of the old-fashioned Norman villages of the seventeeth century.

In the first act, the curtain rises on an assemblage of village gossps, discussing scandal and small talk. Serpolette, a cross between Fanchon and Boulotte, is the topic of conversation among the belles of Corneville. She comes in just in time to turn the tables on the others, and turns their taunts into expressions of rage. Gaspard, an old miser, wishes to marry his niece, Germaine, to the principal magistrate of the district, the bailli. This arrangement does not suit Germaine, nor a young fisherman named Jean Grenicheux, who pretends that he has saved her life from drowning on a certain occasion. To escape from the power of old Gaspard, Germaine takes advantage of the privileges of the fair (a similar scene to that in the first act of "Martha"), and becomes the servant of the Marquis. Her example is followed by Grenicheux and Serpolette.

The second act is taken up with the supernatural visitors who have made the Castle of Corneville so long an object of dread. Henri determines to find out the real character of these ghostly appearances, and discovers that it is all the work of the old miser, who has concealed his treasures in the chateau. The discovery drives Gaspard crazy, especially when he hears the bells of the chateau ringing for the first time since the flight of the old Marquis.

The third act represents the grand fete given in honor of the return of Henri to his ancestral home. Serpolette arrives as a marchioness, as some papers, found in the chateau, indicate that she is the lost heiress. The miser, however recovers his reason, and shows that Germaine is the true marchioness. A love duet between her and Henri, and the reconciliation of all parties, bring the romantic story to a close.

English and American Land Owners.

There is a constant fend between the suburban residents and the Sunday excursionists. The suburban resident goes to New York in the morning and goes back in the afternoon, except on Sunday, when he stays at home. It would suit him if the Sunday train service were almost entirely stopped, except one morning train out into the country and one evening train back to let his personal friends go out and spend the day with him. The Sunday excursionist represents to him a concentration of the destructive forces of mankind, so he goes to Tuxedo or Wave Crest or some reservation where excursionists are not permitted to go, and when he gets rich enough he builds a place in the midst of grounds wide enough to hide him from the road, and puts out watchmen to prevent people he does not want from coming in and tramping on the grass.

This is more an American than an English feeling. In England almost all of the show country places are open to visitors under restrictions which are generally observed. It would be regarded as an improper and unsocial thing for an Englishman with a fine country place to drive people off the grounds. Instead of that he welcomes visitors and provides guides to take them around and look after them.—New York Sun.

Big Prices for Old Toys.

Old toys so very seldom survive the rough work which their possessors give them that if by any chance they do weather the storm they become extremely valuable. A collection of old playthings, many of which belonged to royal children, has just been sold at the Hotel Drouot, and some of the articles fetched prices which even their artistic merit and their strange survival of the vicissitudes would hardly have seemed to merit. For instance, a little doll, rather less than a foot high, but clad in a panoply of steel, "armed at all points exactly cap-a-pie," but perfectly modeled, and made at the time when Louis XIII sat on the throne of France, sold for 615 francs; and even this price was eclipsed by that given for a tiny set of carriages carved in wood and accompanied by little wooden soldiers, made not consule plauco, but when Napoleon was first consul, which brought in neary 1,000 francs. A miniature kitchen, interesting as being an exact model of that useful houshold apartment, tempo Louis XVI, and a little jointed doll, sixteen inches high, dressed in a broche silk Watteau dress, fetched 340 francs and 110 francs respectively. Many other toys belonging to bygone epochs sold at almost fancy prices.—Galignani Messenger.

Rat Exterminators.

An old trapper has been bringing from the mountains for two weeks a number of peculiar little animals that have puzzled a good many people to tell what they were. They are about the size of a common cat and have large bushy tails like that of the raccoon. Their bodies are long and slender and well protected with a thick growth of brownish colored hair. Their eyes are black and snapping and when teased they growl and spit like a cat, showing a row of teeth as sharp as cambric needles. The name of these little animals is the Bassiris, and they are a species of the civit cat, ranking between the fox and the weasel. They are better than all the pussies in creation as rat exterminators, and about twenty of them have been turned loose in different warehouses and livery stables in this city.—San Francisco Call.

Racing on Wooden Legs.

A race on wooden legs from Bordeaux to Biarritz and back, a distance of 303 miles, was begun yesterday. Eighty-one stilt runners entered for this race left the Hotel de la Gironde at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, being "played off" by a brass band. They were accompanied by a party of bicyclists, whose duty was to see that fair play was observed. Among the racers was the Arcachon baker, Silvain Dornon, who traveled on stilts, or claimed to have done so, from Paris to Moscow.

A quarter of an hour after the stilt racers had set out from Bordeaux a party of eighteen women and young girls, also mounted on stilts, left Bordeaux for Cerans, having undertaken to run there and back, a distance of fifty miles, in the day.—London News.

Hydrophobia and the Dog Catchers.

A great deal of rot about hydrophobia is being printed in the newspapers just now. It is done, we suppose, in order not so much to scare people into having their pet dogs licensed and muzzled as to give the dog catchers the sort of moral support they certainly need in the pursuit of their infamous business. So yarns about mad dogs and their depredations are invented and published, a great many sensitive people are terrorized and the dog catcher drives a profitable trade. There is no truth in these blood curdling tales. There has not been a case of hydrophobia in Chicago this year, and it is a question whether there actually ever has been any.—Chicago News.

TRIUMPH FOR PRINCIPLE.

While the great majority of the American people rejoice over the honor conferred upon America's most distinguished and far-seeing statesman Tuesday, there is a cause in the result for far greater satisfaction.

The American people have declared that "Protection is a fraud"

They have given notice to the world that henceforth, the United States shall stand out upon the high stand of commercial freedom, and, also, that they will not longer tolerate legislation in the interest of one class at the expense of another,

The result on Tuesday was the greatest triumph in the history of campaigns for the masses.

First, the masses of the Democratic party, refusing to heed the sage policy advice of the politicians, declared in the National convention that "Protection is a fraud," and contrary to the spirit of the constitution. They emphasized this by nominating the most pronounced leader of advanced American thought on this line for president. They then went before a people who had been studying these problems for the last five years, and who already realized and felt the "fraud." The people, true to their convictions, sustained the party.

The leaders of political parties may learn from this that it is not only right to be honest with the masses, but it is also good politics.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

The People's party proved itself a feature in the campaign, but it did not show the strength claimed for it by enthusiastic members, many of whom really expected the election of Mr. Weaver.

Despite all doings and efforts put forth, the Populists were unable to make a break in the solid south, and. in fact, they have lost congressmen.

They probably gain one senator in Kansas.

The position of the Peoples' party nationally in the future is one of doubt. If the new administration should give the people free coinage of silver or in some other satisfactory manner increase the circulating medium, with a reduction of the tariff, making times better and living easier for the laboring and farming classes, it is possible that the Peoples' party will then disintegrate.

If they do not get what they have asked for, nor any concession at all, it is probable that the party will show even greater strength in the next contest than it has in the last.

In local politics, the Peoples' party will for several years, at least, be an important factor all over the West and South. In the meantime, nothing but good can come from the Peoples' party movement.

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED.

The result of the election in Clallam county was not what was desired orexpected by THE DEMOCRAT, but a few grains of comfort are yet to be had.

THE DEMOCRAT commenced its fight nearly a year ago for reform, and, with the best light at its command, it pointed out the way to better government and showed wherein the last administration had failed. It was hampered by opposition from unexpected quarters, but the result of its good work is clearly shown in the reduction of a Republican majority from about 200 to about 50 in Clallam county.

The fight is over and THE DEMOCRAT has nothing but congratulations for those successful. We shall wait and see.

The incoming administration will receive full credit for all it does, which we trust and believe will not be a little.

THE DEMOCRAT exceedingly regrets the continued control of John H. McGraw, et al.

Let us all hope that Mr. McGraw has learned and taken to heart the result of recent elections, and that he will give the people the benefit of it all.

THE DEMOCRAT takes especial dedelight in the national result. The principles it has advocated since its birth will now be carried into effect, and the executive will be he whom THE DEMOCRAT has always regarded as the leading and most pronounced advocate of true Democracy in the land.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Grover Cleveland's position in history will be as the leading statesman of his age.

This has been the estimate placed upon Mr. Cleveland already by advanced thinkers of all parties.

The reasons for this are easily understood.

Mr. Cleveland possesess in a remarkable degree the elements of statesmanship in this age of reason. He is a clear logical, reasoner who always deals with the principles at issue; he is honest and courageous.

Mr. Cleveland's name will go down in history parallel with that of Jefferson, Jackson and Seward—the greatest statesman of his time.

In his party, Mr. Cleveland will be regarded as one of its great teachers; second only to Jefferson. Mr. Cleveland is the most successful reformer, who has appeared upon the political arena since the war.

THE election is over. Now let the people give their attention to the community's business welfare, and to the development of their city and county.

LET personal feeling drop and party prejudice subside. Of more importance in society than politics, is our home

THE people of the United States have said in very emphatic tones, "Republican protection is a fraud."

CHICAGO is, indeed, on a fair way to supremacy. Her Democratic majority rivals New York's.

THE Democracy did not need New York, but kindly took it under its wing.

IT is a solid South and a solid North—both Democratic, however.

DON M. DICKINSON has evidently caught those "western rainbows."

LET'S be thankful the election is all over.

The Washington Development Company have spared no expense in the finishing up of their office. It now being completed presents a fine appearance.

The building on Laurel street owned by Mr. Lewis Levy has been rented by the dressmaking firm of Lee & Souther. They moved in their new quarters to-day.

Mrs. Catherine Agnew died Monday night at the residence of her son, Mr. Charles Agnew, near this city. Mrs. Agnew was over 70 years of age. Paralysis was the immediate cause of death.

The Republicans held a meeting in the opera house Saturday night. They had a large audience, which, as usual, was very much amused. The speakers were Messrs. W. R. Gay and George C. Hatch and the band played—

The Gate City Band appeared in their uniform for the first time last Saturday night. They are very artistic and the boys should be proud of them. Angeles can now boast of a band that cannot be equalled outside, of Seattle neither in talent or appearance.

At a well attended meeting held in the opera house last evening Pacific Post No. 8 appointed Post Commander, D. P. Quinn, Adjt. P. W. Gallup and Captain H. K. W. Ayers as a committee to co operate with the board of trade in the old soldier movement. The Old Soldier Colony chose Byron Bowman, P. Randall and Lafayette Mathews for the same purpose.

A joint meeting of Republicans and Democrats was held in the opera Monday evening. Very enthusiastic addresses were made by some of the candidates on both tickets. The meeting was opened by the Republicans at 7 o'clock and closed by the Democrats at 11 o'clock. The Republicans spoke for an hour and a half, when the Democrats took charge. A very large, intelligent audience was present. Sweet music was discoursed throughout the evening by the Gate City Band.

Yesterday afternoon the Board of Trade held a well attended meeting. Mr. Yerkes in behalf of the Northern Pacific addressed the Board of Trade and read some correspondence which showed that his road was favorable to Port Angeles—and he was assured that the citizens had a friendly feeling toward his road, but that they wanted to receive fair treatment on transportation from them. The president was authorized to admit to honoray membership the members of the old soldiers now here on presentation of their credentials.

The shingle industry is causing a rapid increase of the population of Whatcom county. Mills are springing up in every part of the county, bringing an influx of valuable residents. At present considerable difficulty is experienced in securing adequate transportation facilities, owing to the movement of wheat east of the mountains, so that the mill owners find it impossible to fill their orders, which have been greatly on the increase during the past few months.—Fairhaven Herald.

A Curious Salvage Case.

Perhaps the most curious salvage case on record is that of the ship Two Friends, which stranded on the coast of Cuba and was abandoned by her crew. Another ship, the John Blake, met a similar fate, and her crew, in attempting to find a landing place, came across the Two Friends, which they managed to get off and to navigate to England without further mishap. The judge who tried the case decided that salvage services had been rendered, but of only ordinary difficulty and merit, inasmuch as the crew of the John Blake salved the Two Friends in order to save their own lives. The owners of the John Blake of course got nothing, but the salving crew received £350 out of the total value of £1,237.—New Orleans Picayune.

Deceptive Enumeration.

Felicia—My last offer of marriage was flattering, but I refused it.

Rowena—Well, no girl ought to accept her first proposal.—Kate Field's Washington.

A Hotly Contested Campaign.

MAJORITIES REDUCED.

Democrats Elect John W. Troy, A A. Richardson, M. J. Clump, D. W. Bryan and E. A. Fitz Henry—The Populists Get a Commissioner.

Clallam county has witnessed a hot campaign with a mixed result The Democrats have elected John W. Troy, county auditor; A. A. Richardson, county clerk; M. J. Clump, county treasurer; D. W. Bryan, prosecuting attorney and E. A. Fitz Henry, county surveyor.

The Democratic county central committee can congratulate itself with materially reducing the Republican majority in the county.

Chairman W. K. Clark is entitled to great credit for the noble fight he has made against the fearful odds in political strength and campaign funds. His work has been conscientious, able and honest—for the whole ticket. Mr. Clark has proven himself a leader of exceeding discernment and sagacity.

On the other hand, unfair advantage was taken in one or two instances by the opposition to Democratic candidates. Especially was this the case with reference to the auditorship. Malicious and unwarranted lies were circulated everywhere, while the whole Quillayute county was filled to overflowing with circulars willfully intended to deceive the voters. This was done at a date too late to be denied, and undoubtedly partly destroyed the work of the campaign in that section, and worked to the disadvantage of the entire Democratic ticket.

The result by precincts, Neah Bay to be reported, is as shown in the following table.

A YOUNG CITIZEN DEAD.

Charles R. Brewster Passes Away at Seattle.

A telegram was received this morning announcing the death of Chas. R. Brewster at Seattle last night.

Mr. Brewster was one of the brightest and most promising young citizens of Port Angeles, where he has resided about three years.

Mr. Brewster was a prominent member of the order of Knights of Pythias, having filled many important offices in that order and being a member of the Grand Lodge.

The funeral will probably be directed by the local Knights of Pythias lodge.

Mr. Brewster is a son of C. W. Brewster of this city.

Christian Endeavor Meeting.

On Wednesday evening November 13th, the earnest, enthusiastic young christian workers of Port Angeles assembled at the first Baptist church and organized a society known as the Young People's Christian Endeavor, of which the letters Y. P. S. C. E. are an initial sign. It was a good move in the glorious work of lifting men up and leading souls to Christ. It is a work "for Christ and the Church." The following officers were duly elected: President, W. H. Van Lehn; Vice-President, E. McCormick, and Secretary, J. A. Martin. The first regular meeting will be held Sunday evening Nov. 13th, at 6:30 p. m., at the First Baptist Church. Geo. H. Scott of Ballard Union, leader. Subject, Acts 13:1–13. Come everyone and learn of the good work that can be done at one of these meetings. Good music and free seats.

Is Now President-Elect of the United States

ADLAI E. STEVENSON

Vice-President-Elect — Protection is a Fraud, Said the Democratic Platform, Ditto, Said the American People.

THE election is over. The result is the most decisive since 1872. While the Democracy of the Nation, believed that their cause was a righteous cause, and deserving of a fully expected victory, it hardly hoped for such an unanimous verdict of approval as was given.

Cleveland has carried a large majority of the electorial vote of the north, he having carried California, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Wisconsin and 6 districts of Michigan, besides the solid South, giving him 300 electors.

Harrison has carried Iowa, Maine, Massachusets, Minnesota, Montana, New Hamphshire, North Dakota, Oregon, Pensylvenia, Rhode Island, Vermont, Washington and 8 districts of Michigan with 112 electors.

Weaver has carried Colorado, Kansas, Nevada and South Dakota with 21, electors.

The following are doubtful:

Idaho, Nebraska, and Wyoming with 11 electors,

The doubtful states are all probably for Weaver except Wyoming which is probably for Cleveland.

The next congress is Democratic in both branches. The latest summary of the House shows a Democratic majority of 100, this will probably be increased by the official returns. The principle Democratic loss in congressmen was in Iowa. They gained two congressmen in California.

The Democrats will gain senators in New York, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and probably Montana and Wyoming.

The Populists gain one in Kansas. The Republicans are losers in every instance.

The Democrats elect state tickets in Massachusetts. Indiana, Illinois, Wyoming and Colorado.

Great demonstrations of Democratic joy have been the rule all over the nation for three days. The general feeling is all was done by the tariff and Cleveland's popularity.

McGRAW WINS.

Returns from Washington so far indicate the election of McGraw and the republican state ticket by a small majority. The Legislature will probably be republican on joint ballot by a good working majority.

Intelligent Ants.

Several species of ants in South America make raids on the black ants, rob them of their larvæ and compel the poor black ants to be their slaves. In the burying of their dead, ants show wonderful intelligence, having cemeteries, and even bury their slaves in a different place from their masters and are quite up in funeral pageantry. Much may be learned from ant life in their wonderful government, sanitary arrangement, common brotherhood, nursing and care of the young, temperance and love of fresh air.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Rare Books to Be Sold.

For some time past it has been rumored that the famous Althorp library, which Dibdin called the finest private collection in the world, was about to be sold, and now the announcement is made upon authority. It is hoped to sell it en bloc, but should that not be possible it will be put up to auction. Selling the most famous of the world's private libraries in a lump can mean only one thing—selling it to America. We trust that may not happen, since Lord Spencer's collection contains many volumes which it is a national pride to possess—such, for instance, as the famous Valdarfar "Boccaccio," which Lord Blandford wrested from the second Earl Spencer for £2,260, to be ultimately bought for Althorp for the bagatelle of £750. It will be an epoch making sale, for this great library contains some 50,000 volumes, mostly priceless.

Scarce editions on vellum and large paper, magnificent printing and dazzling bindings by Pasdeloup and Roger Payne—these are its glories. Many of the books, too, have famous histories. They have felt the touch of the Pompadour or of Diane de Poitiers or the elegant grasp of Francis I. There are eighty-two out of the ninety-nine known productions of Caxton, to say nothing of the famous Mentz "Psalter," a copy of which has fetched £5,000. To sell the Althorp library, indeed, is almost as though we were to sell the rarest rarities of the printed book department of the British museum.—St. James' Gazette.

A Volcano at Sea.

Only last fall there was a strange occurrence near the island of Pantellaria, between Sicily and Tunis, which would have filled the imagination of a Homer or a Virgil with pictures of a supernatural monsters and poetical fancies about the extravagant doings of the deities of the sea.

A submarine volcanic eruption occurred there, and the inhabitants of the island saw what seemed like some great fish disporting himself in the troubled water, while columns of smoke arose around him.

Those who ventured near to the scene in boats saw hot volcanic bombs, composed of black scoriaceous material, rising to the top of the water and there running and darting about in the most singular fashion under the impulse of the steam which they discharged. Some bounded more than sixty feet up into the air as the steam exploded.

Such outbursts of heated matter from the bed of the sea furnish perhaps an even more impressive indication than ordinary volcanic eruptions do of the strange conditions prevailing at no great depth beneath the surface of the earth.—Youth's Companion.

An Antidote for Mosquito Bites.

The best antidote for the bite of a mosquito undoubtedly is ammonia, weakened with a little water or salt and water. Some people go so far as to press the poison out of the bite with some small metal instrument like the point of a watch key before applying the antidote. This prevents the painful swelling that sometimes occurs. As in other cases, "one man's meat is another man's poison," and the same remedy will not apply to all individuals. Some find camphor most efficacious, and salt and water will not avail. Ammonia, however, seems to be generally successful as a neutralizer of the mosquito poison. Where there are large quantities of mosquitoes and no reason for their appearance is apparent, it is well to look about the premises for something which attracts them. An uncovered barrel of rainwater will bring them in hordes, and damp places and stagnant pools are spots where they delight to congregate.—Salem Gazette.

Ball Lightning.

During a severe thunderstorm Monday the phenomenon of ball lightning was seen in this village. An inspection of the locality shows that the ball was located between a telephone wire and a conductor pipe about three feet distant, and was doubtless of the nature of an electric brush preceding the disruptive discharge. It was of a reddish color and exploded with a report like a musket, but did no damage, nor was it attended by any smell perceptible to those who saw it, although they were distant not more than five feet.—Lyons (N. Y.) Cor. Science.

Wagner's Son Coming Here.

Herr Siegfried Wagner, the only son and heir of the composer, Richard Wagner, and of Frau Cosima (daughter of the Abbe Liszt), is making the modern grand tour. Last autumn he visited England, but letters which have just arrived state that he is now visiting Japan and China and will return home to Baireuth via San Francisco. In New York the adherents of German opera propose to organize in his honor an important fete, in which of course his father's music will play a prominent part.—London News.

A Double Golden Wedding.

A double golden wedding was celebrated a few days ago at Thompson, Conn. The principals were Deacon and Mrs. Hiram Arnold, of Thompson, and Deacon and Mrs. Alvin Green, of Westerly, R. I. Deacon Arnold is Mrs. Green's brother, and both couples were married by the same clergyman at Pawtucket, R. I., in 1842.—Yankee Blade.

Petunia Cuttings.

If you have a choice petunia among the seedlings in your bed of summer blooming plants, make cuttings from it for use in winter. Stick these cuttings in the soil near the parent plant, and they will soon take root and be in fine condition to pot by the time cold weather comes.—Exchange.

Goodby to the Ice Cart.

A Wilkesbarre lawyer has invented a practical and cheap household apparatus for rapidly cooling boiling water and making it palatable without ice.—Scranton Truth.

A Heifer in a Bathtub.

A number of cattle were landed at the Weems line wharf yesterday morning. Their driver was James Groucher. The animals seeming quiet, Groucher started to drive them without any ropes. On reaching Conway street a heifer, which had been moving along very placidly, became very much animated, and made things very interesting for the balance of the herd. The street being too wide for her she danced up an alley between 129 and 131 Conway street. A gate blocked her way, but only momentarily. Through it she went, and then another obstacle presented itself, Mrs. Emma A. Poole, who proved to be no more of a stop to the heifer's onward progress than Fort Carroll would be to a modern man-of-war. In a moment Mrs. Poole was knocked to the ground, and in the kitchen it went. There some destruction of property was committed, but not enough to satisfy the heifer.

The dining room was next entered, where the well known quadruped-in-a china-shop scene was re-enacted. The hallway was then taken in, and a lamp was knocked down. The heifer wanted to conquer higher worlds, so she went upward into a bedroom. Here, temporarily, repose was sought on the bed, but it fell under the animal's weight, other damage being done during this occurrence. From here, the weather being warm, her heifership went into the bathroom and hopped into the bathtub. Mrs. Poole then commenced calling for help, and, with the assistance of a blue coated soldier, drove the animal out, and she at once sailed up Hanover street and there entered another house, but did no damage. The driver finally caught the animal—Baltimore American.

An Infatuated Tomcat.

Miss Ethel, daughter of D. W. Pease, of West Carrollton, is the possessor of a Maltese cat. Early in the spring the cat deserted his place in the house and took up his abode with the chickens, remaining day and night in the chicken yard. He soon formed an attachment for an old black hen, which was reciprocated, and the two became inseparable. Thus matters went on for some time, when the hen, remembering that the usual season for multiplying and replenishing her species had arrived, selected a nest in the poultry house and made known her intentions in the usual way. She was at once supplied with the necessary eggs and commenced business. This, it was supposed, would end the rather strange flirtation and Tommy would return to his mat on the porch, but not so. Judge of the surprise of the family on going to the poultry house the next day to find that his catship had taken possession of the adjoining nest with the nest egg and was sitting in the most approved fashion.—Cor. Dayton (O.) Herald.

A Gaudy Uniform.

Warden Aull has adopted a novel method of keeping track of such convicts as are continually planning to escape. Thursday morning he surprised three of the most incorrigible by dressing them up with a flaming red flannel blouse and cap. Across the back of the blouse in plain view is a broad white strip of canvas marked in large, plain letters, "Convict No. —." The pants are the regulation stripes. It was a great surprise to the convicts.

As they marched to the canal they were subjected to a great deal of raillery.

The warden says these three have kept the officers and guards busy for some time trying to keep run of them. With these suits on they can be easily watched from the various posts and their every movement noted. All who attempt to escape hereafter will be treated in like manner.—Folsom (Cal.) Telegraph.

Georgia's Profits from Fruits.

The Georgia fruit crop is a big thing this year, and everybody is interested in knowing what the growers will make out of it. In the peach and grape crops alone conservative estimates show that about 500 carloads of peaches and 100 carloads of grapes will leave the state for foreign markets during the present season. The estimated receipts for the peach and grape crops combined are $750,000.

Reports show that the peaches are well formed, of good size and perfectly sound, and this, together with the decrease in yield from last year, makes good prices and ready sales an assured fact. Other important fruit crops will largely swell the total sales, and lots of summer money will be put in circulation where it will do good.—Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun.

A Famous Sculptor of Italy.

Professor Pio Fedi died at the age of seventy-six. He suffered for several years from paralysis. He was one of the best modern sculptors of Italy, an imitator of Canova and a follower of the Greek school. Some of his best statues are at the Loggia del Arcagno, at the Uffizi and the Old Palace. One of his "Christs" adorns the upper part of the Scala Santa at Rome. From every part of Italy telegrams of sympathy have arrived. His funeral was very grand. All those who belong to the Academy of Art and all the notabilities of the town followed his body; innumerable garlands and bouquets covered the funeral car.—Florence Cor. Galignani Messenger.

Harvard Examinations.

Harvard university is spreading her net over a very wide extent of territory this year. It is announced that examinations for admission to that institution are to be held simultaneously in no less than twenty-five places, including England, Germany and Japan. It looks as if Harvard wanted the earth and was in a fair way to get a large section of it.—Boston Herald.

Fatally Shocked by a Hanging.

Lee Ennis, a young colored woman of Huntsville, Tex., who witnessed the hanging of Alf White on Saturday, fainted when the drop fell and died late that night from the effects of the shock.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Walled Cities in India and China.

The first glimpse we get of an eastern walled city unfolds at once memories of our childhood days, which have perhaps never been awakened since, and the pictures of our childish books, which impressed themselves so vividly upon our minds, are reproduced in the bright colors of old, when we are brought face to face with the quaint battlements and the dark gateways, with the accessories of bright, burning sunshine and turbaned figures and processions of camels and the listless calm of the tropical land. Such old cities are still to be seen in India, still walled in the old fashion and still peopled by the figures of the Biblical picture book.

Closely akin to them are those walled towns standing on the canals of mid-China, passing through which, say at the close of day, when every tower and every roof stands out clearly cut against the brilliant western sky and we are challenged by a grotesque figure, armed with a spear and probably wearing armor, the illusion is complete, and for the moment we find it hard to realize that we are traveling at the end of the Nineteenth century.

Even in much changed Japan there are old cities which still retain their walls of the age of feudalism, and in the very heart of the capital the imperial palace is surrounded by the same quaint fortifications which in old troublous times made it an imperium in imperio, although the walls are crumbling and the gates are never shut, and the moats have been abandoned to the lotus and to carp of monstrous size and fabulous age.—Cor. Chicago Herald.

The Azores.

In 1580 the Azores came under the power of Spain, and in the history of the next twenty years their name is frequent as the favorite battleground of the English and Spanish fleets. The partiality was, indeed, mainly on the side of the former, and for a good reason. These islands lay right in the track of all vessels sailing to and from that enchanted region known then to all men as the Spanish Main. On the highest peak of Terceira, whence in clear weather the sea could be scanned for leagues around, were raised two columns, and by them a man watched night and day. When he saw any sails approaching from the west he set a flag upon the western column, one for each sail; if they came from the east a similar sign was set up on the eastern column.

Hither in those days came up out of the mysterious western seas the great argosies laden with gold and silver and jewels, with silks and spices and rare woods, wrung at the cost of thousands of harmless lives and cruelties unspeakable from the fair lands which lie between the waters of the Caribbean sea and the giant wall of the Andes. And hither, when England too began to turn her eyes to El Dorado, came the great war galleons of Spain and Portugal to meet these precious cargoes and convoy them safe into Lisbon or Cadiz before those terrible English sea wolves could get scent of the prize.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Important Advice.

A gentleman who believed that to an important extent clothes made the man, even when the man is a royal personage, visited the Comte de Chambord at Frohsdorf a few years ago. The Comte de Chambord was the grandson of Charles X, the last Bourbon king of France, and the French Royalists called him Henri V, and hoped, until his death, in 1883, to restore him to the throne. The marquis, of whom this story is told, was a Parisian, a man of fashion and an ardent Royalist. The Comte de Chambord was glad of an opportunity to talk over political affairs with a man who must know what was going on in Paris; so after a few minutes' chat he said: "Marquis, it is not often that I have a chance to talk with any one so well informed on the signs of the times in Paris as yourself. Now in case I return to Paris, what would you advise me to do?"

He waited for a bit of profound political philosophy. The marquis looked at "Henri the Fifth" and hesitated. Should he venture on a great liberty? But his advice had been asked; as a loyal subject he would give it frankly. "Sire—monseigneur," he stammered, "I think you had better give up your German tailor and have your trousers made in Paris." "My trousers!" "Yes, sire; pardon me, but your trousers are out of fashion."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Strange Effects of Extreme Cold.

Dr. Moss, of the English polar expedition of 1875-7, among many other things, tells of the strange effects of the extreme cold upon the candles they burned. The temperature was from 35 to 50 degs. below zero, and the doctor says he was considerably discouraged when upon looking at his candle he discovered that the flame "had all it could do to keep warm." It was so cold that the flame could not melt all of the tallow of the candle, but was forced to eat its way down, leaving a sort of skeleton candle standing. There was heat enough, however, to melt odd shaped holes in the thin walls of tallow, the result being a beautiful lacelike cylinder of white with a narrow tongue of yellow flame burning on the inside and sending out many streaks of light into the darkness.—St. Louis Republic.

An Unlucky Number.

"I should think Pope Leo XIII would be a very unhappy man?" said Judge Pennybunker. "I should think he would be troubled with dreadful forebodings?"

"Why so?" asked Colonel Yerger.

"Because he can never sit down to the table without being the thirteenth—Leo XIII," replied Judge Pennybunker.—Texas Siftings.

Beating His Way Around the World.

An American from Boston has reached Paris on a voyage around the world, "personally conducted" by himself under entirely novel circumstances. His avowed object is to complete the whole trip without the expenditure of any money whatever, and, according to his own statement, he has already crossed the ocean and visited England and Germany in accordance with the conditions of his self imposed task, which also contains the stipulation that he must do no work on the voyage. Needless to say that our traveler's rather unusual methods do not meet with the approval of all the hotel keepers whom he honors with his custom, and in Berlin he underwent one month's imprisonment for failing to pay his bill.

The only wonder is that this unusual kind of traveler does not spend most of his time in jail, but, needless to say, he is gifted with an unlimited supply of what may be best described as "self confidence," and is a past master in the peculiarly American art of "bluffing." As he himself puts it, "If I can only make a man laugh I've got him!" and certainly there is a sublime assurance about his system which must force a smile even from his victims. Our circumnavigator has, of course, not set himself any particular route for his voyage, as he is dependent on "free passes," and has to be content with what he can get in that direction. Thus, to reach Paris from Berlin—as the railway companies declined to oblige him—Mr. Cook traveled via Bremen and London. He is now hoping to reach the Riviera, but what his itinerary will be is a matter of conjecture even to himself.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Killed by a Skyrocket.

An impromptu celebration that was held in honor of the arrival of a delegation of Turners from Freeport, Ills., was suddenly brought to a close by the almost instant killing of a man. A skyrocket, supposed to have been set off by a crowd of young boys, penetrated his forehead, and part of the stick was broken off and left imbedded in his brain.

As the procession reached the corner of Blue Island avenue and Polk street Philip Knopp, who had been watching the parade from the sidewalk, was struck by a skyrocket. The man's head and face were covered with blood, and Officer Halle, calling assistance, carried him into a neighboring drugstore. Dr. Lahey was summoned, and Knopp was sent at once to the county hospital. On the way Dr. Lahey extracted part of the stick, eight inches in length and three-eighths of an inch square. It had entered just above the right eye, and had gone through the brain until the end was blunted against the back of the skull. Knopp lived only a few moments.—Chicago News Record.

Cowboy Sailors Not Just the Thing.

Captain Hanson, of the new schooner Spray, on her maiden voyage from the Suislaw river, in Oregon, had a lively experience with cowboy sailors. With six of this new variety the captain put to sea. Hardly had he got outside when a strong southeast gale came up. The schooner rolled fearfully and the cowboys became terribly sick and lay in a heap in the forecastle perfectly helpless. The captain and his mate succeeded in lowering the foresail, and with the mainsail and jibs set the schooner was driven before the gale at a terrific rate. Several seas were shipped and one of the cowboys was washed against the lumber on deck, breaking his leg. When the weather moderated the captain put into Port Townsend, where the injured cowboy sailor was sent to the Marine hospital. Two sailors were engaged and the schooner made the trip down in twelve days. The five cowboy sailors have decided not to go to sea any more.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Big Bills for Witnesses.

Dr. G. De F. Smith has filed a claim against the city for $500 for services as an expert witness for the people in the trial of Carlyle W. Harris, the medical student, for the murder of his wife, Helen Wilson Potts Harris.

Professor Witthaus, the chemical expert who made the analysis of the contents of the dead woman's stomach, has filed with the district attorney a bill of $5,000 for that service.

Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, another expert witness in the case, has collected a bill of $1,500 for his services, and other bills from expert witnesses have been filed which bring the total cost of the expert testimony for the people up to $9,000.

The bills of the medical experts who testified in the trial of E. M. Field aggregate $4,000, and none of them has yet been paid.—New York Evening Sun.

A Queer Story of Two Apple Trees.

About sixty-four years ago Thomas Carr, living near Medora, in Jackson county, set out an apple orchard on his farm, about one-half mile southwest of Middleville, and having two apple trees left he gave them to his sons, John F. and G. W. The boys set these trees out along the fence, near the orchard, and they both grew well. John was the first to die, and on the day he died his tree fell. G. W. lived to be an old man, became known as a colonel, was chairman of the convention that framed the present constitution of Indiana and died only a few days ago at Crawfordsville. It is a coincidence that his tree also fell on the same day he died.—Cor. Indianapolis Journal.

Food for Hot Weather.

The foods that are converted into heat—that is, keep up the heat of the body—are starches, sugar, and fat; and those that more particularly nourish the nervous and muscular system are the albumen and salts. The largest proportion of summer food should consist of green vegetables, cooked or as salads; white or lean meats, such as chicken, game, rabbits, venison, fish, and fruits.—Dr. N. E. Yorke Davies in Popular Science Monthly.

A Startling Array.

The proclaimed purpose of the McKinley tariff is to enable American employers to pay higher wages to American workingmen. Yet diligent search and much challenging have failed to discover a single workingman who rejoices in any such benefit, while Mr. John De Witt Warner has collected for the New York Weekly World a truly startling list of cases in which reductions have been made in the wages of men employed in the shops and mines of protected capitalists. His list includes reductions in 71 iron and steel factories, 13 in coal companies, 18 in woolen and worsted mills, 12 in clothing factories, 4 in cotton mills or groups of cotton mills, 2 in pottery establishments, 2 in glass works and 30 in miscellaneous industries. The reductions have ranged from 5 to 30 per cent. and have affected thousands of workmen and their families.
