BENNINGTON MEMORIAL

Men of Squadron Entertain at Opera House, Saturday Evening, 16th.

The men of the Pacific Squadron have arranged to give a high-class vaudeville entertainment at the opera house, Saturday evening, Sept. 16th., the purpose of which is to raise money to be applied to a fund to erect a monument to the memory of the men who lost their lives through the dreadful accident on board the U.S.S. Bennigton.

In a circular letter recently issued, Commander-in-Chief Goodrich says:

"It is proposed that the officers and men of the Pacific Squadron erect, at the Military Cemetery on Point Loma, where the majority of the "Bennington's" dead lie at rest, a suitable and dignified monument to the memory of those gallant seamen who recently lost their lives while in the service of their country through the boiler explosion on board that vessel. * * * Nothing seems more appropriate to this end than a plain granite shaft, as lofty as can be secured, mounted for all time on a commanding site, in view of the shipping entering the harbor, in which they came to anchor for the last time; of visitors to the city; and of the residents of San Diego whose timely and noble acts of Christian Charity it will serve to keep in perpetual remembrance."

It is estimated that the shaft will cost about $5,500. In addition an effort will be made to raise $1,000 to be invested in some trustworthy bonds the interest of which will be used in the care of the graves.

The officers and men of the squadron have taken up the matter in a most commendable spirit and are giving liberally of their money and time to bring about a successful issue. Every cent realized through the entertainment will be used in this good cause.

Mr. John Falconer, who has entire charge of the affair, promises that every one who attends will not only have the satisfaction of helping along a most worthy cause, but will enjoy a splendid show. The program will be made up entirely from talent off the ships of the squadron.

The flagship's band will also assist which will add materially to the pleasure of the evening. After the performance is concluded the chairs will be removed and everyone will be expected to remain and dance until morning. The ship's band will furnish the music for the dance.

And That's No Josh.

The Street Committee and their families are invited to a meeting to be held on East Front Street soon, and they can also bring the Street Commissioner to help pilot the party over the old, rotten sidewalk at the corner of Front and Francis streets; but be careful, as some of the plank are entirely missing, and as there is only a drop of about two feet the holes can be left open to break a school pupil's leg when school opens this month. No attention need be paid to the dozen or so broken plank on the north side of Front street, but at the particular spot mentioned, the holes are in "bunches."

Kindly Remembered.

A happy sequel to the story of rescue of the men from the destroyer Paul Jones, as published in these columns three weeks ago, is now told in the following words: "Presented to Miss Mary E. Wood, by J. Ellrs, E. Olsson, and E. Fleming, for Heroism and Bravery in rescuing us Aug. 12th, 1905, Port Angeles Bay, Wash."—the inscription engraved on a handsome gold watch which with chain, was presented to Miss Wood upon the arrival of the Paul Jones from Victoria last Monday. A gift that will be cherished by Miss Wood all through life.

Clallam Good Enough.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Dey and daughters drove down from Seguin, Tuesday. Mr. Dey's experience on the Seguin prairie, though probably not so very different from that of others, shows what can be done by a man of reasonable energy on a small piece of timber land in this county. They came here from Kansas five years ago and bought forty acres of timber land, afterward disposing of ten—twenty acres have been cleared—Mr. Dey buying a stump-puller for the purpose—and the feed raised keeps a herd of ten or twelve cows, which yield an income of better than fifty dollars per month. Since May 12th there has scarcely been a day that they have not had fresh fruit on the table, and they have apples, prunes, plums, etc., for the winter—all raised in an orchard planted but four years ago. Mr. Dey has sold 1,200 cords of wood, the result of clearing, at $1.25 per cord, and he says there is all the work a man wants, with team, at $4 per day. Clallam county is good enough for him!

A Lucky Youngster.

Roy Christopherson, son of the proprietor of the Globe Hotel, while playing on the dock fell in the water where it is about 20 feet deep and floundered about some little time, when rescued by a boat's crew from the fleet. It came near being Roy's last tumble; he usually gets in the bay about once a week. The lad is about 8 years old, and strange to say, when rescued, was perfectly dry, although being in the cold salt water nearly 15 minutes, and had each pocket well-filled with fish, just to show his superb luck.

Band Concerts.

Rear-Admiral Goodrich has again, in a letter to Mayor Appleton and Collector Aldwell, very kindly placed the flagship's band at the disposal of the city. Band concerts will be given at the opera house Monday and Thursday evenings of each week, commencing next Thursday. Manager Stakemiller has donated the use of the house and the concerts will be free to all. The band will also give a concert at Civic Park to-morrow, Saturday, afternoon. All are invited.

Shipped Fish Scrap.

The P. S. N. Co's freighter, Samson, called in Monday for a cargo of fish scrap and shingles. She took 3,300 bags of fish scrap, weighing about 170 tons, and worth about $5,000 to Tacoma. The Craig Company has also produced about $4 000 worth of oil so far this season. The steamer McKinley, which has been in Seattle for boiler repairs, will be used from now on in securing fish more especially for the oil.

Millinery Opening.

Miss Lucretia Peddicord wishes to announce the opening of a fine new stock of millinery in the Warren Dodge building, formerly occupied by Harvey's grocery, on Tuesday, Sept. 12th. Her stock of street and tailored hats, recently selected at Portland, is up-to-date and includes the New Polos, Tommy Atkins and French Sailors. The balance of the stock, consisting of trimmed or dress hats, will be in later. She will be pleased to have all ladies call and see the goods whether they buy just now or not. New Ideas in trimming and first-class work.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION

All Children Must Be Sent to School; Superintendents Must Enforce Law.

The fall and winter term of the public schools opens next Monday, Sept. 11th. After a vacation of fourteen weeks, the bell at the Central school building will, on next Monday, sound its glad cling' clang bidding the school children of Angeles come, and again take up the serious preparation for life's problems.

Prof. Mahaffy, who for the past eight years has so successfully and efficiently managed the city schools as superintendent, has with the school board made careful preparations during vacation for the coming school year and looks forward to the most satisfactory and successful year of local school history. The scholars will all be pleased with the new school books. The high will find quarters after next week in the new building now being constructed at the rear of the Central building and in the east upper room of the Central building. Prof. Ullery will have charge of the first room and Prof. Treby of the second room. Another room is added to the Lincoln Heights school, owing to an increase of pupils.

In speaking of school matters to an Olympic-Leader reporter, Supt. Mahaffy thought that about four hundred and seventy boys and girls would respond the first day. He looks for a somewhat larger attendance after the first week because of the enforcement of the new compulsory education laws. Under this law every child between the ages of eight and fifteen years, not excused by the county school superintendent, must attend either public or private schools during the entire school year. In the past from three to six months' attendance at school was satisfactory. Now children must attend so long as the schools are open.

School authorities failing to enforce the truancy law are liable to a fine of from $20 to $100 and the parents of children illegally out of school may be fined in any sum not greater than $25.

Twenty-five per cent of the state school fund will be forfeited by any school district failing to enforce the compulsory education law. As the apportionment is based on the number of days of attendance, it is of the greatest importance that there should be as few cases of absence from school as possible. An absence of one pupil for one day means a loss of about nine cents to the district; twenty days a loss of $1.80.

"In incorporated towns or in villages the board of directors shall appoint an attendance officer who may also be a regularly appointed constable or marshal; in all other districts (except in cities) the county superintendent shall act as attindance officer." Such officer shall arrest without warrant a truant child, and forthwith deliver the child so arrested into the custody of a person in parental relation to the child or to the teacher from whom the child in then a truant, or to a justice of the peace.

There will be a teaching force of fifteen, including the superintendent. The assignment of teachers is as follows:

Prof. L. M. Mahaffy, city superintendent and teacher in the high school.

Samuel Treby, principal of the high school.

Ira L. Ullery, assistant principal high school.

Herbert Babcock, 8th grade Central school.

GOLDEN WEDDING PARTY AT SEGUIN

Invitations read that Mr. and Mrs. Potter would receive their friends at their home the 28th of August, 12 M.

Mrs. McGeorge, Mrs. Thos. Jones and Mrs. Thad. Wagner were chosen to receive guests. At 12 M. they escorted the aged couple to a grove near by, where had been erected a pavilion, covered with vines and flowers. The six daughters, dressed in white, wearing golden colored ties and white hats, marched in front, followed by six little grand-daughters, dressed in white, strewing flowers before their grand-parents, Mrs. Mathews playing the wedding march. Then came the youngest child of Mrs. McDougall, who is the youngest child of Mrs. Potter, in the arms of Mrs. Thos. Jones. In the child's hands was a cushion with a gold ring upon it. The Rev. Brooks O. Baker, of Port Townsend, in a few well chosen words spoke of the joyful occasion. The babe was then brought forward and presented the ring, Dr. Baker blessing it, when the groom placed it upon the bride's finger, renewing his marriage vows he made fifty years ago.

Three hundred persons warmly clasped the hands of the dear old couple. Then the wedding feast. And what a feast it was. Wm. Potter had provided an ox which was roasted whole and the savory odor was indeed an appetizer. The ox was roasted to perfection. Over 125 guests sat at one table, there being two others equally as full.

TREATY OF PORTSMOUTH FORMALLY EXECUTED

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 5.—The treaty of Portsmouth was signed shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon in the conference room of the navy yard. The firing of a national salute of nineteen guns was the signal which told the people of Portsmouth, Kittery and Newcastle that the peace of Portsmouth was an accomplished fact, and the bells of the three towns were soon pealing forth a joyful refrain.

For 47 minutes those outside the conference room anxiously awaited the signal. Suddenly an orderly dashed up to the entrance to the peace building and waved his hand to the gunner a few feet away, and the opening shot of the salute rang out on the clear air of the soft September afternoon, proclaiming peace between Russia and Japan. Three o'clock was the hour set for the final session of the conference. An hour before that time a heavy thunderstorm was in progress. But as Mr. Witte and Baron de Rosen left the hotel in an automobile at 2:15 o'clock for the navy yard the rain stopped.

When Baron Komura and Mr. Takahira entered their automobile twenty minutes later the sun suddenly shone, which brought forth the remark from Baron Komura:

"It is a good omen for peace."

This remark was cheered by the crowd that gathered to see the Japanese depart.

It was 3:45 when the plenipotentiaries entered the conference room from their respective offices. Almost immediately the copies of the treaty were laid before them and their signatures affixed.

Baron Rosen Speaks.

Baron de Rosen was the first to break the silence. Rising from his seat the ambassador said a few words which one had only to hear to know that they came from his heart. He began by saying that he wished on behalf of Mr. Witte, Russia's plenipotentiary, and in his own name, to say a few words.

"We have just signed," continued the ambassador, "an act which will have forever a place in the annals of history. It is not for us, active participants in the conclusion of this treaty, to pass judgment on its import and significance. As negotiators on behalf of the empire of Russia, as well as the empire of Japan we may with tranquil conscience say that we have done all that was in our power in order to bring about the peace for which the whole civilized world was longing.

"As plenipotentiaries of Russia we fulfill a most admirable duty in acknowledging that in negotiating with our hitherto adversaries, and from this hour our friends, we have been dealing with true and thorough gentlemen, to whom we are happy to express our high esteem and personal regard. We earnestly hope that friendly relations between the two empires will henceforth be firmly established and we trust that his excellency, Baron Komura, as minister of foreign affairs, and one of the leading statesmen of his country, will apply to the strengthening of these relations the wide experience and wise statesmanship he so comprehensively displayed during these negotiations which have been so comprehensively concluded."

Baron Komura Replies.

Baron Komura replied that he shared entirely the views of Baron de Rosen. The treaty of peace which they had signed was in the interest of humanity and civilization, and he was happy to believe that it would bring about a firm and lasting peace between two neighboring empires.

He added that it would always be pleasant for him to recall that throughout the long and serious negotiatiions which they had now left behind, he and his colleagues invariably received from the Russian plenipotentiaries the highest courtesy and consideration, and finally he begged to assure the Russian plenipotentiaries that it would be his duty as well as his pleasure to do everything in his power to make the treaty in fact what it professes to be in words—a treaty of peace and amity.

At the conclusion of Baron Komura's remarks, Mr. Witte arose and said he desired to see Baron de Rosen and the Japanese plenipotentiaries alone for a few moments. The four retired to the Russian office and were closeted for ten minutes. What transpired in that final conference of the plenipotentiaries the world may never know. The plenipotentiaries refused to discuss it even with their secretaries.

TREATY PROVISIONS

The peace treaty opens with a preamble reciting that his majesty, the emperor, and autocrat of all the Russias, and his majesty, the emperor of Japan, desiring to close the war and having appointed their respective plenipotentiaries and furnished them with full powers, which were found to be in form, have come to an agreement on a treaty of peace and arranged as follows:

Article 1. Stipulates for the reestablishment of peace and friendship between the sovereigns of the two empires and between the subjects of Russia and Japan, respectively.

Article 2. His majesty, the emperor of Russia, recognizes the preponderant interest from political, military and economic points of view of Japan in the empire of Korea and stipulates that Russia will not oppose any measures for its government, proection or control that Japan will deem necessary to take in Korea in conjunction with the Korean government, but Russian subjects and Russian enterprises are to enjoy the same status as the subjects and enterprises of other countries.

Article 3. It is mutually agreed that the territory of Manchuria be simultaneously evacuated by both Russian and Japanese troops. Both countries being concerned in this evacuation, their situation should be absolutely identical. All rights acquired by private persons and companies shall remain intact.

Article 4. The rights possessed by Russia in conformity with the lease by Russia of Port Arthur and Dalny, together with the lands and waters adjacent, shall pass over in their entirety to Japan, but the properties and rights of Russian subjects are to be safeguarded and respected.

Article 5. The government of Russia and Japan engage themselves reciprocally not to put any obstacles to the general measures (which shall be alike for all nations) that China may take for the development of the commerce and industry of Manchuria.

Article 6. The Manchurian railway shall be operated jointly between Russia and Japan at Kouang-Tcheng-Tse. The two branch lines shall be employed only for commercial and industrial purposes. In view of Russia keeping her branch line with all rights acquired by her convention with China for the construction of that railway, Japan acquires the mines in connection with such branch lines which fall to her. However, the rights of private parties or private enterprise are to be respected. Both parties to this treaty remain absulutely free to undertake what they deem fit on expropriated grounds.

Article 7. Russia and Japan engage themselves to make a conjunction of the two branch lines which they own at Kouang-Tscheng-Tse.

Article 8. It is agreed that the branch lines of the Manchurian railway shall be worked with a view to assure commercial traffic between them without obstruction.

Article 9. Russia cedes to Japan the southern part of Sakhalin island as far north as the fiftieth degree of north latitude, together with the islands depending thereon. The right of free navigation is assured in the bays of La Perouse and Tartare.

Article 10. This article recites the situation of Russian subjects on the southern part of Sakhalin island, and stipulates that Russian colonists there shall be free and shall have the right to remain without changing their nationality. Per contra, the Japanese government shall have the right to force Russian convicts to leave the territory which is ceded to her.

Article 11. Russia engages herself to make an agreement with Japan giving to Japanese subjects the right to fish in Russian territorial waters of the Sea of Japan, the Sea of Okhotsk and Bering sea.

Article 12. The two high contracting parties engage themselves to renew the commercial treaty existing between the two governments prior to the war in all its vigor, with slight modifications in details and with a most favored nation clause.

Article 13. Russia and Japan reciprocally engage to restitute their prisoners of war on paying the real cost of keeping the same, such claim for cost to be supported by documents.

Article 14. This peace treaty shall be drawn up in two languages, French and English, the French text being evidence for the Russians and the English text for the Japanese. In case of difficulty of interpretation, the French document to be final evidence.

Article 15. The ratification of this treaty shall be countersigned by the sovereigns of the two nations within fifty days after its signature. The French and American embassies shall be intermediaries between the Japanese and Russian governments to announce by telegraph the ratification of the treaty.

Two additional articles are agreed to, as follows:

Article 1. The evacuation of Manchuria by both armies shall be complete within eighteen months from the signing of the treaty, beginning with the retirement of troops of the first line. At the expiration of the eighteen months the two parties will only be able to leave as guards for the railway fifteen soldiers per kilometer.

Article 2. The boundary which limits the parts owned respectively by Russia and Japan in the Sakhalin island shall be definitely marked off on the spot by a special limit of graphic commission.

Boycott Enjoined.

San Francisco, Sept. 4.—Judge James H. Beatty, of Idaho, in the United States circuit court, has granted an injunction asked for by the Seattle Brewing & Malting Company against Peter Hanson, the San Francisco Labor Council and the various unions and persons that have been engaged in boycotting Rainier beer. The injunction prohibits the use of boycotting circulars or advertisements designed to injure the business of the complainant by boycotting its patrons or by any other means.

ALLIANCE IS DENIED.

No Agreement Between Great Northern and Grand Trunk.

St. Paul, Sept. 5.—Robert I. Farrington, second vice president of the Great Northern railway, denies the rumor that James J. Hill has made an alliance with the Grand Trunk Pacific. This, he says, is an old fabrication.

Several months ago a similar rumor was current in St. Paul, and it was thought to have originated from the promoters of the Vancouver, Westminster and Yukon company. The Great Northern is the lessee of this property, and under the bill recently up in the Canadian parliament has obtained the right to purchase it.

Hence it would not be unreasonable to suppose that in the event of the Vancouver, Westminster and Yukon being extended to the north, to form a connection with the Grand Trunk Pacific at a point near Fort McLeod, the Great Northern would seek an intimate traffic agreement with the promoters of the extension, especially as the mileage of the proposed extension is said to be less to Vancouver city than to the proposed terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Mr. Farrington says that under no circumstances will Mr. Hill build north of Vancouver. Such being the case it does not seem reasonable to suppose that the Grand Trunk Pacific would go into an alliance with Mr. Hill, unless it abandoned the construction of that portion of its lines west of Fort McLeod.

With Vancouver as a terminus, Mr. Hill could control the grain situation of the British Northwest. It would be all shipped to Vancouver, thence to Seattle, whence it would be consigned to the Orient in the Hill ships.

If there is any truth in the rumor, in spite of the denial of the official of the road, it would seem that the move of Mr. Hill is a hostile movement against the Canadian road rather than an alliance.

JAPS GOT ALL THEY WANTED.

Russian Declares Diplomatic Victory Ridiculous.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 4.—"The Japanese consented to the peace terms because they got all they wanted," said Prince Wollonsky commenting on the Portsmouth agreement.

"Stories to the effect that Linevitch overawed them, that Witte fooled them, are ridiculous. The south half of Sakhalin island, Korea and Liaotung peninsula treble Japanese territory. Port Arthur, with Dalny, is the best possessed by Japan. By returning Manchuria to China, together with the Chinese Eastern railway, Japan will clear a Milliard of roubles ($510,000,000). Furthermore, it has secured valuable fishing and hunting rights in Siberian waters and much cash under various headings. Not the least of its gains is its preponderating influence in the far East, to say nothing of its prestige throughout the world.

"All these things we have lost, besides much treasure and many lives. We were well equipped for prolonging the war. We had half a million soldiers and abundant supplies already at the front. Russia would not have risked losing anything, while it had a chance to gain everything. Japan could have gained nothing more and it had a chance of losing everything. Witte's claim that Russia remains a great power in the far East is absurd. Our interest in the far East is gone forever."

CHICAGO PRINTERS BEGIN BIG STRIKE

Chicago, Sept. 4.—An acute stage has been reached in a new labor war in Chicago. Nineteen of the largest printing houses in Chicago were without a union compositor last evening as a result of a series of strikes inaugurated by Typographical Union No. 16 against members of the Chicago Typothetae. The purpose of the strike is to compel the Typothetae as an organization to accept the demands of "closed shop" and that eight hours constitute a day's work. Further strikes are expected in case other houses do work for concerns at which strikes have been begun as a result of the posting of notices of an intention on the part of the employers of an intention to inaugurate "open shop" and "nine hours" where it is claimed contrary conditions have been the rule.

Pending such assistance to strike-affected firms the strike leaders pronounced the strike complete and declared the outcome a matter of endurance, a spread here or to other cities not being contemplated for the present at least.

Not counting other employes in the nineteen printing houses involved printers to the number of nearly 500 are idle. The strikers say that eight large establishments will remain neutral, not accepting work for houses where strikes are in progress.

To Operate Above Celilo.

Walla Walla, Sept. 4.—Definite arrangements have been made by the Open River Association for boats to operate at both ends of the Celilo portage road. The steamer Jerome has been secured to operate on the Columbia above the portage road and in a few days the boats that have been secured for the river below the portage will be announced by the executive committee. It is expected that the boats will be running within ten days.

Will Meet in America.

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 4.—The final meeting of the Congress of Reformed Religions has accepted the invitation of Professor Doane of Boston to hold the next congress in the United States.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

THIRTY-NINTH ANNUAL SESSION MEETS AT DENVER.

The Usual Elaborate Decorations and Enthusiastic Reception to the Veterans—Council of Administration Holds Its Initial Meeting.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 5.—The first official business of the thirty-ninth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic was transacted yesterday, when the national council of administration met and selected E. B. Stillings, of Boston, for the office of junior vice commander-in-chief, to fill the vacatncy caused by the death of Commander-in-Chief William W. Blackmar, and the promotion thereby of the two officials below him in line.

The council also approved the work of the executive committee performed during the interim since the last encampment, and audited the accounts of the official visit of Commander-in-Chief Blackmar upon the reception tendered his party by Gen. George W. Cook, chairman of the local executive committee. The latter is characterized as a "host with a bigger heart than all others," in the report, which is now made public by the council for the first time.

Incoming trains added thousands to the host of Union veterans of the civil war who had previously arrived, and 50,000 is now regarded as a conservative estimate of the number of strangers who will be in the city this week.

Enthusiastic Reception.

The old soldiers received an enthusiastic reception from their local comrades.

Various state headquarters were opened yesterday in the hotels, and the Colonial Dames' Society kept open house in commodious quarters for the veterans and their friends, after holding a reception in honor of Gen. John R. King, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., members of his staff and the ladies of his party.

A reception was also given to distinguished visitors at the Woman's Club by the Women's Relief Corps, Department of Colorado and Wyoming.

The workingmen's parade in the celebration of Labor day was viewed with pleasure by many of the visitors. There were about 5,000 marchers in the labor parade. Indian dances in the City park were a feature of the day's entertainment.

Streets Gaily Decorated.

The streets last night were thronged and the strains of martial music are heard throughout the downtown district.

Drum corps and brass bands, followed by grizzled veterans, march to and fro between department and national headquarters, while sightseers fill the sidewalks and congest the street curbings.

The streets are brilliantly illuminated and the national colors are flying in all sorts of form from every building in the business section. Visitors say the decorations are the most elaborate ever attempted in honor of a Grand Army encampment.

The program proper of encampment events today included a parade of the naval veterans and the military organizations. Camp fires begin tonight. The national encampment legislative body will convene in secret session Thursday morning.

ANGLO-JAPANESE TREATY.

Important Modifications Said Lately to Have Been Made.

London, Sept. 4.—The conclusion of the new Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance, which the Associated Press announced on August 25, had been signed, has only now become definitely known to the English newspapers, which are keenly interested in it and are anxiously discussing its probable contents.

An important modification, binding either power to come to the assistance of the other, if attacked by one, instead, as in the old treaty, by two powers, causes inquietude in some quarters, where it is thought to add enormously to Great Britain's responsibility, but, on the whole complete satisfaction is expressed as to the scope of the new treaty, as far as it is at present known.

The Daily Telegraph, representing the views of the government and well reflecting the opinions of a majority of the newspapers, in an editorial says:

"The new Anglo-Japaneses treaty will guarantee the terms of the Portsmouth treaty. It will check any insane idea of Russian revenge, will render impossible any anti-Japanese coalition, and effectually terminate the scramble for China."

It is supposed that the new treaty establishes an unqualified defensive alliance between Great Britain and Japan, and it is believed not unlikely that India is included in the sphere of territory over which the treaty aims for the preservation of the status quo. Should this prove the case, its value to Great Britain will be enhanced.

Discovers New Land.

Stockholm, Sept. 4.—A letter from Reikjavik, iceland, written by a member of the Duke of Orleans' Greenland party, says the expedition discovered a new and unknown land, which was named Terre de France, and also discovered that Cape Bismarck is a part of a large island and not the mainland, as hitherto assumed.

BAN ON THE BOYCOTT

IMPERIAL EDICT TO VICEROYS IS ISSUED.

Commands Governors of Provinces to Take Measures for the Suppression of the Movement and Holding Them Strictly Responsible.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 4.—China has placed the boycott of American products under the imperial ban. An edict has been issued by the government commanding viceroys and governors of provinces to take measures for the suppression of the boycott and holding them strictly responsible.

The state department at Washington has received a cablegram from Minister Rockhill, giving a summary of the edict. The cablegram was forwarded immediately to the president. The text of the cablegram follows:

"Imperial edict published yesterday says that the long and deep friendship between the United States has never been tried as now. The United States government has promised to revise treaty, and people should peacefully await action of both governments. Boycott wrong and harming friendly relations. It (edict) commands viceroys and governors to take effective action, making them strictly responsible. Undoubtedly will have good effect. Shanghai reported yesterday situation improving.

Demand for Tonnage.

Shanghai, Sept. 4.—There is a large demand for tonnage for Newchwang, which meets with an excellent response. The imperial decree received here today has greatly softened the effect of the anti-American boycott. In his decree the emperor refers to the long friendship which has existed between China and America, and also to the desire expressed by the latter to negotiate amicably a new treaty. He advises all Chinese to refrain from boycotting Americans while the discussion regarding the new treaty is progressing

MIKADO SENDS THANKS TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Oyster Bay, Sept. 6—President Roosevelt has recieved from the emperor of Japan thanks for his "disinterested and unremitting efforts in the interests of peace and humanity" and an expression of the Japanese emperor's grateful appreciation of the "disinterested part" the president has taken in the establishment of peace in the far East.

The cablegram, which was received from the emperor personally, follows:

"The President: I have received with great gratification your message of congratulation, conveyed through our plenipotentiary and thank you for it. To your disinterested and unremitting efforts in the interests of peace and humanity I attach the high value which is their due, and assure you of my grateful appreciation of the disinterested part you have taken in the establishment of peace based upon principles essential to the permanent welfare and tranquility of the far East.

"MUTSIHITO."

The cablegram from the Japanese emperor puts an end to the rumors that the emperor was dissatisfied with the terms finally concluded by the plenipotentiaries.

The concluding sentence of the cablegram is especially significant. It evidently voices the belief of the Japanese emperor that the treaty just concluded at Portsmouth will be for a permanent peace.

OSCAR REMAINS FIRM.

Denied That He Has Changed His Mind as to Norway Throne.

Stockholm, Sept. 6.—The semi-official Dagblad in strong terms denies that King Oscar has changed his mind, and declares that he is still in opposition to any prince of the house of Bernadotte ascending the Norwegian throne.

King Oscar, the paper says, has expressed himself as being deeply wounded at the reports that he is in favor of the candidacy of a Swedish prince, despite repeated statements to the contrary.

Rich Strike Near Nome.

Seattle, Sept. 4.—Bringing meagre details of what is said to be a rich strike, the White Star steamer Ohio has arrived in port from Nome and St. Michael. When the vessel sailed August 23 Purser Van Sycle says there was considerable excitement on the streets of Nome occasioned by a report of a big strike only a few miles from town. The details of the find were not made public, but it is expected that the steamers Oregon and Senator, now en route, will have full particulars.

Komura to Sail on Dakota.

Seattle, Sept. 4.—Baron Komura, peace plenipotentiary from Japan, and his suite will return to their native land by way of Seattle, sailing from this city on the steamship Dakota, which leaves September 20, according to information received from Portsmouth, N. H. The party will probably reach Seattle a few days before the sailing of the liner, and will be asked to become the guests of the local Japanese colony and the Asiatic Club, of this city.

LUMBER AND GRAIN BURN.

Bad Blazes in the Suburbs of Portland—Many Cars Destroyed.

Portland, Or., Sept. 2.—With a gale blowing at the rate of thirty miles an hour from the east, fire yesterday, starting about noon, destroyed the dock of the Oregon Railroad & Navigatiion Company and the Pacific Coast Elevator Company's warehouse in Lower Albina.

The wind carried the flames across the Willamette river, and the dry kiln of the Eastern and Western Lumber Company on the West side also burned.

Previously a fire at St. Johns, a suburb of Portland, one and a half miles down the river, below the destroyed docks, had destroyed the plant of the St. Johns Lumber Company, the Oregon Fir Company's mill and the wood yards of the Peninsula Wood Company.

A hundred freight cars on the O. R. & N. tracks in Lower Albina caught fire, and twenty-five of them were completely destroyed, including their loads of wheat, lumber and miscellaneous freight.

The total loss will approximate over $250,000. The amount of insurance is not known at present, but it is stated that a good portion of the loss is covered.

COURTMARTIAL ORDERED FOR COMMANDER YOUNG

Washington, Sept. 1.—Secretary Bonaparte, in his action on the findings of the court of inquiry in the case of the Bennington, severely arraigns some officers of the vessel for failure to look after the safety valves; orders Commander Lucien Young before a courtmartial to clear himself "of the charge of neglect of official duty;" directs the courtmartial of Ensign Wade on the charge of "neglect of duty," and disapproves the court of inquiry's finding that the Bennington was "in an excellent state of discipline and in good and efficient condition."

Ensign Wade was in charge of the machinery. The action as to Commander Young was taken in view of the fact that the court of inquiry in its findings and opinion did not pass expressly upon his conduct and the question of his responsibility for the explosion. Secretary Bonaparte, however, approves the court of inquiry's endorsement of the creditable conduct of all the survivors of the officers and crew of the Bennington "after the explosion occurred."

In his review of the findings Secretary Bonaparte, with relation to the statement that the Bennington was "in an excellent state of discipline and in good and efficient condition, says:

"The department does not consider this particular finding sustained by the evidence; the proof tends strongly to show that the enlisted force of the engineering divisions had been permitted to fall into habits of laxity and inattention in the discharge of their duties, and that at least some of this force were also imperfectly instructed regarding their duties. In the view of the department the evidence establishes further that certain appurtenances, to-wit, the safety and sentinel valves of at least one boiler were not in an efficient condition at the date mentioned, and had not been in such condition for a considerable time previously, and in the judgment of the department this evidence renders the statements that the ship was in a 'good and efficient condition' and that the boilers were in 'fair condition and efficient,' inappropriate to the facts disclosed by the proof."

LUMBER FOR CHINA.

Puget Sound Mills Asked to Figure on Order for 25,000,000 Feet.

Seattle, Sept. 4.—Puget Sound mills have been requested to figure on an order for 25,000,000 feet of lumber for delivery in China. The order is one of the largest ever brought to the mills of this part of the country, and in value represents about $2,500,000.

The mills furnishing the lumber will probably have to furnish tonnage, which will have the effect of placing the orders in the hands of a few of the leading mills instead of a general distribution. The cargo price of lumber at the present is about $10 per thousand. Four years ago the same lumber sold for $14 per thousand.

Local lumbermen decline to divulge the names of the parties who are placing the orders, but the report that China is in the field for 25,000,000 feet of timber is confirmed by several prominent mill men of Seattle.

The order about to be placed represents about twenty-five cargoes.

ORDERS MANY CHAIR CARS.

Seventy-Five New Coaches to Be Built for Harriman Lines.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—What is claimed to be the largest order ever given by a railroad in this country has just been approved by the executive officers of the Harriman lines. It calls for 75 extra long modern coaches, fitted with chairs upholstered in green. The total cost will be $750,000, the cars costing something over $14,000 each. They will be used in the system west of Ogden—Southern Pacific, Oregon Short Line, Shasta route and Pacific Coast line. In addition to the passenger equipment, orders have been given for 5,200 freight cars of various kinds and 136 new locomotives. The cost of the new cars and engines will be close to $2,000,000. The contracts will call for 1906 delivery.

Must Pay Depositors.

Denver, Sept. 6.—Judge John T. Mullins, of the district court, has ordered Receiver Stevick, of the Denver Savings bank, which closed its doors August 19, to pay depositors immediately a dividend of 10 per cent.

FIRE PUBLIC PRINTER

PRESIDENT ASKS FOR PALMER'S RESIGNATION.

Keep Commission Has Been Investigating and Is Said to Have Found a State of Affairs Existing Detrimental to the Best Interests of the Government.

Washingtton, Sept. 6—Public Printer F. W. Palmer practically has been ousted from office. It is learned authoritatively that President Roosevelt has demanded Mr. Palmer's resignation, to take effect September 15.

The demand of the president for Mr. Palmer's resignation was due primarily to the latter's action in trying to force Oscar J. Ricketts, foreman of printing, and L. C. Hay, a foreman of division, out of the government printing office.

As soon as President Roosevelt had learned of the situation that had developed he directed Public Printer Palmer to forward to him his resignation.

For several months before President Roosevelt left Washington for Oyster Bay he was looking about for a suitable man for the position. He offered it to John A. Belcher, of New York, who declined it, having something better in view.

The investigation made by the Keep commission into the letting of the contract for seventy-two linotype typesetting machines for use in the government printing office disclosed a serious condition of affairs, the office force being divided into cliques detrimental to the government service. This investigation is to be continued.

With the incoming of Mr. Palmer's successor—and there is ample authority for the statement that he has not been selected yet—it is expected that a thorough reorganization of the working force of the government printing office will take place.

Among the men mentioned in connection with the office are Oscar J. Ricketts, whom the public printer sought to remove; H. L. Bryan, chief clerk of the office; William S. Rossiter, chief clerk of the census bureau, and John Leech, public printer in the Philippines. The office pays a salary of $4,500 a year. The annual disbursements of the government printing office aggregate about $7,000,000.

LAW AGAINST GRAFT.

New York Legislature Puts Ban on Some Forms.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 4.—An act of the last legislature, which took effect September 1, is decidedly against the practice of corrupting purchasing agents, whether they be maid servants whom the grocer gives a bonus in return for her mistress' trade or the agent of a great commercial house whose patronage means tens of thousands of dollars a year to the manufacturer that gets it.

The law makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $10 to $500, or by a fine and year's imprisonment, to give, offer or promise an agent, employe or servant any gift or gratuity whatever without the knowledge of the principal, employer or master of such agent, employe or servant, with intent to influence his action in relation to his employer's business.

The penalty also applies to agents that request or accept gifts or commissions given for this purpose.

DRIFTING TOWARD REPUBLIC.

Republican Idea of Government Gaining Ground in Norway.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—Dr. D Waldenstrom, one of the leading figures in Swedish politics, close friend of King Oscar, member of the riksdag for twenty years and a leader in religious reform in Scandinavian countries, is in Chicago for a brief stay.

In an interview Dr. Waldenstrom asserted that Norway was drifting with apparent certainty toward the formation of a republic. While Norway, he declared, may get a king, his personal view was that the republicans as against the friends of monarchical government idea were gaining ground. Dr. Waldenstrom said the action of Norway had been a hard blow to King Oscar.

Engineers to Visit Isthmus.

Washington, Sept. 6.—The board of consulting engineers of the Panama canal at a meeting here discussed various details of organization. The special committee on procedure made a partial report. While no formal action has yet been taken it has been practically determined that the board will accept the invitation of Chairman Shonts to visit the isthmus the last of the month, when the commission meets in Panama.

Sarafoff's Raiders Out.

London, Sept. 4.—Information has been received in London from Sofia that 800 Bulgarian-Macedonian insurgents, followers of Boris Sarafoff, have left Sofia and are expected to raid Turkish territory. It is supposed in Sofia that some big movement is on foot, and the Turkish authorities fear serious disturbances. The Bulgarian bands in Macedonia are extremely mobile.

Porte Declines—Powers Insist.

Constantinople, Sept. 6.—The porte has replied to the note of the six embassies, declining to accept the scheme proposed by them for the fiscal control of Macedonia. The powers insist upon the acceptance of the scheme.

DEPEW COMPANY PAYS.

Indebtedness to Equitable Has Now Been Liquidated.

New York, Sept. 4.—Announcement has been made by the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society that the indebtedness to the Society of the Depew Improvement Company has been paid, the principal and interest amounting to $293,950.82. The correspondence incident to the transaction was also at the suggestion of President Paul Morton made public, to the end, Mr. Morton said, that the impression unjust to Senator Depew might be removed. Mr. Morton expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the adjustment of the matter.

The correspondence consists of three letters of even date, the first addressed to Mr. Morton by the attorneys for the Depew Improvement Company, announcing that the reorganization of the Depew Improvement Company had perfected the title to the property not covered by the Equitable mortgage and was prepared to take over the property which secured the loan, paying in cash to the Equitable the face of the loan and interest. The second letter, also addressed to Mr. Morton, is from Senator Depew, who states explicitly his part in the transaction between the improvement company and the Equitable society, and points out what he declares are inaccuracies in the published statements, through which many injustices have been done him.

The third letter is from Mr. Morton to Senator Depew, expressing his satisfaction at the adjustment of the matter and suggesting the publication of the correspondence.

TROLLEY TO PORTLAND FROM PUGET SOUND

Seattle, Sept. 2.—Philadelphia capitalists who have large electric railroad interests in the Pacific Northwest are said to be behind a scheme to connect Portland and Seattle with an electric system, and much of the preliminary work has been done. Secrecy has been maintained as to details and plans, but it has been stated that negotiations have been entered into by the projectors of the enterprise with business men of Tacoma, Seattle, Portland and Olympia and other cities through which the line will pass, for the purpose of arriving at some estimate of th amount of business which could be expected by the road.

It is also reported that within a short time several corps of locating engineers will be placed in the field to complete the engineering work of the road.

F. R. Brown, of Philadelphia, representative of the capitalists who control the Portland Consolidated Railway Company, will return from San Francisco within a few days, says the Portland Oregonian. It isunderstood that Mr. Brown has been making investigations preparatory to beginning active work in construction of the electric railway projected to connect Portland with Puget sound cities.

Engineers have gone into the physical features of the route and have reported that low gradients and easy curvature can be had for the entire route, to a connection with suburban lines from Portland along the Columbia, or by a route through Clarke county, Washington, connecting with the ferry at Vancouver.

Immediately after the announcement had been made of the acquisition of the Portland Consolidated Railway by the Clark and Seligmann interests, it was officially stated that the new owners expected to make large investments in improvements and construction of suburban lines, and this projected line to Tacoma, to connect with the present interurban system that links that city with Seattle, is understood to be the carrying out of that policy.

FIRE AT ADRIANOPLE.

Flames Destroyed Seven Thousand Houses Saturday.

Constantinople, Sept. 5.—Fire at Adrianople Saturday caused enormous damage. Seven thousand houses were destroyed in the Greek, Armenian, Bulgarian and Jewish sections. There were many victims. With the exception of the Catholic church, the mosques, the schools, a convent and the telegraph offices, few buildings were insured.

Fraud in Writing Risks.

New York, Sept. 4.—Evidence of extensive fraud in the writing of life insurance on risks known to be bad has been brought to the attention of the Armstrong investigating committee. It is asserted that in this class of fraud there has been collusion between the officers and agents of the companies of high standing. Subpoenas summoning the medical examiners of some of the companies have been issued.

Many Land Filings.

Vernal, Utah, Sept. 6.—More than 60,000 acres of land on the Uintah reservation have been filed upon as homesteads by persons who drew lucky numbers in the recent drawing at Provo. So far the names of 555 persons entitled to make filings have been called at the land office, and of these 381 have responded and filed on homesteads.

New Registration Necessary.

Everett, Sept. 4.—About 500 voters who have registered for the Everett election this winter, will have to reregister. New books, complying with the registration law passed by the last legislature, have just been procured. All voters who have registered to date have been enrolled in the old books, making their registration invalid.

Early Risers

THE FAMOUS LITTLE PILLS.

For quick relief from Biliousness, Sick Headache, Torpid Liver, Jaundice, Dizziness, and all troubles arising from an inactive or sluggish liver, DeWitt's Little Early Risers are unequalled.

They act promptly and never gripe. They are so dainty that it is a pleasure to take them. One to two act as a mild laxative; two or four act as a pleasant and effective cathartic. They are purely vegetable and absolutely harmless. They tonic the liver.

IN MEMORIAM

OF MRS. J. LLOYD ALDWELL.

MRS. L. A. JONES.

Dear Fredrica, can it be
That one so fair and young,
Has passed beyond the Mystic Sea,
What shadow o'er thee hung?

That thou for whom life held so much,
Of hope and peace and love,
Should be thus early called away,
To realms of Eternal Life above.

In that world above thou hast found
Eternal Rest,
And a joy that is holy and calm,
But, oh, on the hearts that loved you
best,
There falls no soothing balm.

Within our hearts thy grave is green,
And guarded with the fondest care;
While often bright angel hands,
Will plant sweet flowers there.

Immortal flowers of Hope and Love,
Fadeless, and pure, and bright,
Drawing our hearts to heaven above,
For comfort strength and light.

Yet in this affliction our Father hath
Deep purpose, a-near or a-far;
Triumphant o'er the Gates of Death,
There beams the Bethlehem Star.

Port Angeles, Wash., Aug. 27, 1905.

SON-LOVE.

He dreamed a crown and in his dream
he blazed
A forest-way through pathless woods which band
The nigh approach of Fame's fat-
fruited land;
Heart up in coming dusk with colors
raised
He breached the edging underbrush—amazed,
To greet the unpicked gardens at command;
Then ran and with a feverous, thin hand
Plucked the rich spoil, devouring as he gazed!

Yet when from Opportunity's short roll
Time called the name of him who thus awhile
Had breathed the incense of the laureled day;
He rent the matchless sweetness from his soul
And faced the groaning treadmill with a smile,
Because a mother softly whispered
—stay!

Old Love Letters

THE letter slipped from her hand and lay upon the carpet at her feet. The scented sheet of paper, rosy from the fire, seemed to blush with the message it had brought. For six months she had been expecting Edgar Duval to ask for her hand, but his letter found her more undecided, more ill at ease than she could have imagined. Yet, she liked him. Five years he had been her friend. Ever since their mock-marriage at the country schoolhouse he had been resolved to make her his bride in reality. He was bright and attractive; their tastes were congenial. She realized that their marriage would mean much for her and for her parents. And yet——

And yet, that morning at church, the sight of a face had dispelled all the glamour she had sought to cast over her friendship for Edgar Duval. The face was not so handsome as that of the man whose letter lay at her feet; it was not so distinguished; but it was the face of the man she had loved. How long had that been? Or had she really ceased to love? She stared into the hollow among the glowing coals and tried to see the picture of herself as she was six years ago.

"WHICH SHALL I DESTROY?"

Six years ago the thought of teaching school had not occurred to her. Why should it? She was just graduated, and Morton Summers was her accepted lover. Every one knew they expected to marry when he should have won his way for them in the West. It seemed hard to the lovers that they must be separated a year while his uncle in Colorado "tested the young fellow to find if he was made of the right stuff." But Morton left her in her Missouri home, full of hope, and conscious of the power to wait. Letters were exchanged regularly at first, but after awhile they were not sent so often. Her heart was as true and as loving, but family cares took much of her time, and fancying he delayed his answers, she delayed her responses even longer, partly as a punishment, partly thinking it would spur him to greater regularity. Then came the time when he wrote no more. Too proud to ask an explanation, she waited, hiding from all the sick heart, the fear, and at last the certainty. He had ceased to care for her, she concluded; absence and change of scene and friends had wrought their inevitable result. From others she learned that Morton had left his uncle's employ and had gone farther West; no one seem to know just where, not even the uncle. Among strangers he had lost himself to those who had known him as a boy.

He had not been in her thoughts that morning as she sat in the choir, waiting for the first song to be announced. Indeed, she was thinking of Edgar Duval who sat behind her among the tenors. She was tracing the history of their acquaintance and friendship from the night she leaned upon his arm under the bride's veil in the mock-marriage. When she became sure of Morton's infidelity, she found Duval's companionship a relief. As the years passed, she began to wonder if she could care for him in the way he evidently cared for her. Sometimes she told herself the image of her faithless lover was fading from her heart. And then a chance recollection would tear down the building of months.

It was so on that Sunday morning. She was about to convince herself that she really loved the tenor with the rich full voice, the changing smile, the distinguished lift of the head, the man who had been true to her while she had offered him no hope of reward. And wondering if this were so, and half-believing he might bring her happiness, her eyes wandered to an obscure corner of the little church, and there found the face of her girlhood's romance. Her heart stood still, and she grew cold from head to foot, but her face did not alter. She turned her eyes upon the open song book, but all during the service, though she looked intently at the minister, she saw nothing but the pale face of Morton Summers. How much older it appeared! and yet so like the old face, her heart ached miserably.

When the congregation was dismissed, he waited to greet her. His manner was very quiet; his hand scarce touched hers. In answer to her conventional question he said he would be in town only till the morrow.

She did not ask him to call, but swept past, her hand upon Edgar Duval's arm. And now in the afternoon this letter had come from the morning's escort, asking her to be his wife. She wished it had not come to-day. Presently she picked it up, and read it slowly through. Again it fell from her listless fingers. Suddenly she shuddered and stirred the fire. If it had come yesterday!

At last she rose hurriedly and going into the next room, returned with a small ebony box. She unlocked it, and drew forth a bundle of old letters and a few queer objects, whose value lay only in the associations of past thoughts and feelings. She untied the faded ribbon and began to read the letters. They were all from Morton Summers.

"No matter how long it may be," they ran. "No matter what happens, I will always trust you, you will always trust me." Perhaps all lovers have written so. The tears presently hid the words. Through the blur, tender epithets shone, "Darling—Sweetheart." She never tired of gazing upon them. It was as if his voice still called her thus. She dashed away the tears, and caught sight of the letter upon the floor. She held it up in one hand and seemed to weigh it against the bundle of old love letters. How much older they were than the love of which they spoke!

"Which shall I destroy?" she asked aloud, stepping to the fire. "I cannot keep both. Poor Edgar, he loves me so faithfully! Poor Morton—he loved me once! And I—and I? God help me! I love him still! I know—I know," she faltered, the tears again rushing to her eyes, "that I shall love him always."

She cast Edgar Duval's passionate appeal into the flames and sinking back into the chair, buried her face among the letters of long ago, kissing them wildly. She had made her choice; the choice of a lonely life, a life of privations and toil, but a life which could be lived true to its ideals and its girlhood's faith.

"Yes, she is at home,' said the maid to the tall, pale stranger, "she is in the parlor. Will you walk in?"

She had not heard the doorbell, nor did she notice the opening of the door. She did not live in the room, just then, but in a fairy wood with golden splashes from the sun, and fragrant perfumes now vanished many years, and a gentle voice—yes, she lived with it, and with eloquent eyes, and a clinging hand. Her mind was so far away she could not hear the footsteps drawing near, nor see the startled gaze riveted upon the old letters heaped in her lap.

A sudden exclamation of surprise and pain brought her, with a violent shock, back into the present.

Thinking Edgar Duval stood near at hand, she glaced down with dismay at the love letters, while her cheeks, still damp from tears, grew crimson. Then seeing it was Morton her confusion and distress sought relief in anger. She hurriedly dashed the letters into the box, crying out the first words that occurred to her.—

"You have no right here!"

"These give me the right," cried Morton, his eyes burning as he tore the letters from her grasp, and held them up. "They speak for me to-day as they spoke six years ago. Hear them, darling. Every word is true. You loved them once—you love them now—I saw it in your eyes as I entered."

She turned upon him, her eyes blazing.

"You come to me after all these years—after all these years—you come and speak of love after"——

Her voice faltered. There was something in his gaze which slew her anger and made her grow afraid from the sudden hope too wonderful for belief.

"Dear sweetheart—the only one I ever loved"—he faltered, extending his arms, "there has been a terrible mistake. I came her to-day, to see you once again as a friend of the past, thinking you were Edgar Duval's wife. But when I saw you bending over those letters I knew, somehow, it was not as I had thought."

Her large eyes questioned him intently, as she tremblingly stepped back.

"How could you have thought me his wife?" And yet, perhaps if he had not come, she might indeed have been what he had believed!

"I read of your marriage in the schoolhouse, five years ago—and then I thought I understood why your letters had grown so far apart. I couldn't believe it, darling, oh, I couldn't think it true! I wrote to a friend, and he told me you had married Duval. He thought it a joke, no doubt."

She understood at last and paled, then crimsoned. Passionate joy beat in her bosom. To still her emotion, her voice sounded dreamy, far away.

"Yes, we gave an entertainment. There was an old-fashioned spelling-match and a mock-marriage. I remember the county paper wrote up the ceremony as if it were a real wedding. That was for fun, of course. I remember how we laughed over it. And you saw that—and you believed it true! Oh, Morton, while we were laughing at the account, you were—you were"——

She could say no more; sudden sobs interrupted her pitying voice. But he did not need her pity now. He felt, as her head sank upon his breast, and the love of youth spoke in eloquent silence, fresh and warm and true from lips to lips, that he needed nothing in all the world but what had been his long ago.

"And you must leave in the morning?" she asked, after a long silence. He looked into her smiling yet tearful eyes, and laughed aloud. He drew her down beside him upon the divan. The light laughed, too, as it gleamed upon some old letters which lay scattered at their feet. And in the hollow among the burning coals, a crinkling, blackened paper seemed to crouch and cower, as if to hide from sight. Above it the grate fire snapped merrily. Thus from above the ashes of a lost hope, how often happiness casts its radiant light!—Waverley.

WHERE POCAHONTAS LIES.

Body Is Believed to Repose Beneath Gravesend Church.

From its vicar I have just received a photograph of the parish church at Gravesend, beneath which lie the remains of Pocahontas, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. I am told, however, that the Virginians who are counting on removing the bones of the Indian princess from Gravesend to Jamestown, U. S. A., are likely to be disappointed, as all trace of these interesting remains has been lost.

According to the generally accepted story, Pocahontas was taken with smallpox just as she and Capt. Rolfe were starting back to Virginia; died in her husband's arms on the sailing day, and was buried in the rector's vault of Gravesend's parish church. But the present church is the third to serve the little parish, and the fires which destroyed the previous buildings did their work so well that now the location of the original vaults can only be guessed at. In rebuilding the chancel many years ago the late rector, Dr. Haslam, discovered a number of the curious barrel-shaped coffine of the early seventeenth century pattern, but these were so charred and corroded that the rector could learn nothing about their occupants.

The Virginian's proposal, however, has raised considerable discussion in London and has drawn from one writer half a column of doubt as to whether Pocahontas ever was an Indian princess, anyway, and whether she came here as the wife of John Rolfe. This iconoclast declares that Pocahontas was an Indian adventuress brought to England as a speculation by the Governor of Virginia for exhibition purposes, and that she was called a princess to make her more interesting.

More than a year ago a party of enthusiastic Virginians who were "doing" London and vicinity got on a train and went down to Gravesend. They were so pleased with their visit that they promised the parish church a pulpit built from solid oak cut at Jamestown. The pulpit has not turned up. A party of ladies, also from the vicinity of Jamestown, some time ago promised to send from home a stained glass window as a memorial to Pocahontas. The window has not appeared. Gravesenders are hoping that if the American patriots send an envoy to undermine their church in search of Pocahontas' bones he will bring along that pulpit and memorial window.

Body in Ice Five Years.

Had Ole Sjostron's tomb of ice on an arctic island in the Bering Sea remained undisturbed 100,000 years, at the end of that ponderous stretch of time the face and form of Ole would have looked as natural and lifelike as at the moment of the fisherman's death.

Five years ago this young Norwegian, Sjostron, disappeared from Baranoff station. Nobody knew what became of him, and finally people ceased to wonder. A few weeks ago the body was found completely imbedded in the ice and so thoroughly preserved that not even the slightest indication of change had set in.

The barkentine City of Papeete has arrived from Barnaoff and the news of this remarkable discovery was brought by her first mate, Knute Peterson.

"Five years in the ice," said Peterson, "has not made a bit of difference in his appearance. When they found him he looked as if asleep, but, sure enough, he was cold in death—even more so than the ordinary dead man. They suppose that he lay down on the glacier while intoxicated and fell asleep and that after he had frozen to death the ice formed over him."

Strange as this story may seem, the incident is not strange to those who know the arctic icefields. Bodies of the mammoth have been found similarly imbedded in the ice.

The sailor's information about the finding of Sjorstron's body is meager, but it is presumable that, instead of being caught and imprisoned in the glacial ice, the fisherman died on the soft soil of the tundra and that his body became covered up and frozen with it.—San Francisco Chronicle.

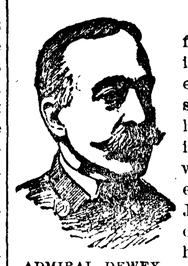
PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE.

BIG BATTLESHIP STILL SUPREME.

By Admiral George Dewey.



ADMIRAL DEWEY.

The battleship is still the supreme factor in the modern navy, and the policy of this government should be that of every other nation—build more battleships. The torpedo craft cannot be relied upon; its radius of action is limited; it cannot do effective work in rough weather; it is liable to get out of order easily, and in the battle of the Sea of Japan these boats were not able to get close to the battleships until the latter had been virtually destroyed and their secondary batteries rendered useless.

I have no doubt that those opposed to the building of battleships will try to extract arguments from the operations of the torpedo boats in the Korean strait. They will still claim that a battleship costing millions is at the mercy of a torpedo boat costing a few hundred thousand dollars. That sort of argument has been used for a century.

There is one great lesson of the Togo-Rojestvensky battle which the United States and all maritime powers must take to heart, and that is the education and training of the crews of the warships. The failure of Rojestvensky can only be attributed to the lack of training of his officers and men. You cannot make sailors and gunners within a year. You must take ample time to educate your crews and you must require them to observe constant application. At Manila the guns of the Spanish were equal to those we had and some of them larger, but it was the accuracy of aim and the discipline of the crews that won the battle so far as human power is concerned.

HELP THOSE WHO HELP THEMSELVES.

By Andrew Carnegie.

A library requires the recipient to read and study. He becomes more sensible and rises in the social scale. I have little faith in benefiting people who do not benefit themselves. You cannot boost a man up the ladder unless he does some of the climbing himself. If people read they will soon learn how to better the conditions under which they live. In other words, the only way to improve the submerged tenth is to improve their tastes and habits. It is a question of the submerged tenth versus the swimming tenth, and more can be done by helping those who help themselves.

I have given a tremendous amount of thought to this great question and have come to the conclusion that the least rewarded of all professions is that of the teacher in our American higher educational institutions. New York City generously and very wisely provides retiring pensions for teachers in her public schools. Very few of our colleges are able to do so. The consequences are grievous. Able men hesitate to adopt teaching as a career, and many old professors whose places should be occupied by younger men cannot be retired.

FOOD FADS STUDIED BY FARMERS.

By George K. Holmes.

So precise have many farmers and dealers become in their estimation of the nature and value of consumers' fancies that they analyze them and translate them into sense impressions, and give numerical weights to these impressions more accurately than they could guess the weight of a hog or the number of bushels in a corn crib.

Place a farmer and a city bred man in the presence of a large variety of apples, and the farmer, likely, will select for his eating such apples as a Rhode Island greening, a northern spy, a Grimes golden, or a Jonathan, and the city man, governed in his choice by different sets of nerves, may select a Ben Davis, Baldwin, Stark, or Missouri pippin. Taste is the fruit grower's principal test of an apple, if he has to eat it himself, but different qualities are of chief importance when he considers buying consumers in general, most of whom are townspeople.

In the estimation of the old lovers of buckwheat cakes, buckwheat flower has suffered because of the growing demand for whiteness. Formerly buckwheat flour was slightly brown and the buckwheat flavor was unmistakable and easily detected, but more recent milling processes have made this flour much whiter, and, besides this, the adulterator has not neglected the opportunity to promote the whiteness by combining with the buckwheat flour some cheaper and whiter wheat flour.

Butter and cheese are almost universally colored to meet the popular demand, and this demand varies so in different sections of the country that it is necessary for manufacturers and shippers to prepare their shipments especially for the sections of country in which they are to be consumed; for instance, Washington demands a darker butter than Chicago, and New Orleans demands one still darker than Washington.

MECHANICS IN THE BUSINESS WORLD.

By Jonas Howard.

Which trade is the best to enter for a man ambitious to secure his own shop or business through a trade, no one would have the temerity to say absolutely. There are several of a nature similar that will run strong favorites on this question. As a class they stand quite separate from those in which the chance for the worker is reduced to a minimum. To the writer the trades which might be classed as the easiest to become independent of an employer are: Carpenters, plumbers, painters, printers and cigarmakers.

The other class may be said to include machinists, metal workers, architectural iron workers, boot and shoe workers, electrical workers, tailors and woodworkers. These are only the principal lines of each class, there being several minor trades which might be included in one or the other. But these are the principal trades offered to the man who wishes to learn a craft. They include in their ranks the greater share of skilled laborers in the country. They are the most important.

That there is a chance for the journeyman to become contractor in these trades is shown by the fact that nearly all the employers in these lines once worked for wages at a trade themselves. This means that it has been done and can be done again. Through working at the trades for several years the workman becomes acquainted with the men who have such work to be done, and often they leave their positions to work for themselves through the suggestion of others.

NEED OF RAILROADS IN PHILIPPINES.

By William H. Taft.

There are only 120 miles of railroad in the Philippine Islands. In barbarous Algeria there are 2,000 miles, although the territory is very little larger and the population is not as great by one-third. This gives a fair idea of the disproportion in the matter of railway mileage in the Philippines, when you compare it with that of tropical colonies similarly situated in other parts of the world. Nothing else will so contribute to the education, elevation and uplifting of the people as the construction of railroads through different parts of the islands. Nothing else will so contribute to their commercial prosperity, because the railroads will make it possible to bring the enormous crops, which can be raised on various parts of the islands, to the seaboards for exportation.

NEW HEAD OF THE G. A. R.

Gen. John R. King Has a Brilliant Record as a Soldier.

Gen. John R. King, the new Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, succeeding the late Gen. W. W. Blackmar, is one of the oldest members of the organization and holds the position of pension agent in Washington. He was born in Maryland and at the age of 17 became a soldier, and participated in many of the battles fought by the Army of the Potomac. For six months he was a prisoner of war and three times was wounded. Gen. King took an active part in organizing the Boys in Blue, which organization subsequently was merged into the Grand Army. In 1900 he was unanimously elected Commander of the Department of Maryland, and now is a member of Wilson Post No. 1.

GENERAL KING.

CATHERINE THE GREAT.

An Odd Woman Was This Empress of the Russians.

A recent writer says of Catherine the Great, Empress of Russia from the year 1762 to 1796:

"She rose at 6 and lit her own fire. Her table was ideally simple. From the reproach of overeating and overdrinking she was free. Though she could not sing a note, she and Prince Dashkoff, who could sing no better, occasionally performed in a concert. A sudden burst of the most exalted and ridiculous discordant tones was the consequence, one seconding the other, with scientific shrugs and all the solemn, self complacent airs and grimaces of musicians. From this perhaps she passed to a cat concert and imitated the purring of a cat in the most droll and ludicrous manner, always taking care to add appropriate, half comic, half sentimental words, which she invented for the occasion, or else, spitting like a cat in a passion, with her back up, she suddenly boxed the first person in her way, making up her hand into a paw and mewing outrageously."

While playing whist one night Catherine could not get her page to answer the bell. "After she had rung twice, again without effect, she left the room, looking daggers, and did not reappear for a considerable time. The company supposed that the unfortunate page was destined to Siberia or at least the knout. As a matter of fact, Catherine on entering the antechamber found the page, like his betters, busy at whist.

"When the bell rang he happened to have so interesting a hand that he could not make up his mind to quit it. Now, what did the empress do? She dispatched the page on her errand and then quietly sat down to hold his cards until he should return."

Various Ideas as to Hades.

"I am writing," said an author, "a monograph on the infernal regions as the heathen races of the world have at different times imagined them.

"The infernal regions of Buddhism are horrible. They comprise a great hell and 136 lesser hells. In these hells, according to the sculptures of the Buddhist temples, men are ground to powder and their dust turned into ants and fleas and spiders. They are pestled in a mortar. The hungry eat red-hot iron balls. The thirsty drink molten iron.

"Islamism says of the infernal regions: 'They who believe not shall have garments of fire fitted to them; boiling water shall be poured on their heads and on their skins and they shall be beaten with maces of iron.'

"In the Scandinavian mythology, the mythology of Odin and Thor, we are told that 'in Nastrond there is a vast and direful structure with doors that face the north. It is formed entirely of the backs of serpents, wattled together like wickerwork. But the serpents' heads are turned toward the inside of the hall and they continually send forth floods of venom, in which wade all those who commit murder or forswear themselves.'

"In the past the Christian idea of the infernal regions was as hideous as the heathen idea, and in their sermons clergymen loved to describe hell. The present tendency, however, is to avoid discussion of this place—to dwell upon the gentler and more lovely side of Christianity."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. A sluggish liver gives a coated tongue, bad breath, constipated bowels. Correct all these by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar coated.

Equality.—There is a difference in grade between the general and the private soldier, yet let no man grow discouraged because his place is humble. The sexton is at times as indispensable to the church as your pastor. The poorest maker of shoes is not to be compared in our general classification of men with the man who preaches from your pulpit; but at the last great day there will be an unprejudiced one who will judge only from the quality of the shoes and the goodness of the sermon as to the worth of the work of the two men.—Bishop J. S. Key, Methodist, Sherman, Texas.

A WOLF IN THE DOORYARD.

To attack a savage and hungry wolf in the open with no weapon but a slender stick of dry wood is a feat comparatively few men would care to undertake, even in defense of a fellow creature. A wolf which recently strayed into Billerica, Mass., found a young woman there who had no prejudice against personal encounter with him, and who risked her own life in a struggle to save her dog.

Billerica lies along the Shawsheen and Concord Rivers, about eighteen miles northwest of Boston. The valley of the Shawsheen is quite heavily wooded in irregular tracts. Two wolves escaped from a menagerie in Lexington, near the river, in October, and finding shelter in these woods began a search for support in the henroosts and pastures of neighboring farmers. One was soon shot by a man whom it had attacked in his dooryard. The other remained at large, and created excitement in all the neighboring towns.

Billerica Center is so far from the Shawsheen woods that few persons believed the wolf would appear there. No thought of the brute occurred to the members of the King household, on the edge of the village, but one Saturday evening there was a commotion in their hen-yard. Some one or something was evidently disturbing the fowls, and Carlo, guardian of the house, rushed out to discipline the intruder.

Carlo is a tiny Scotch terrier, bothered by masses of long hair which fill his eyes and impede his steps. But he is not lacking in courage. Wolves were new to him, but when he found one trying to break through the fence of the hen-yard he attacked him bravely, and snapped at his heels. The wolf, disappointed in the hens, evidently concluded that Carlo would do as well. It whirled, grabbed him by the neck and started for the road.

Miss Cora King is a school teacher, young and determined. Carlo is her especial pet. She came out of the house close behind him to see what was frightening the hens, and saw the wolf running away with her dog. That was no time for hesitation or for hunting men-folk. Miss King picked up a stick and threw it at the wolf, which whirled about and faced her. Then she picked up another stick, the first she could reach, and rushed at the animal. The wolf waited for her till she was almost upon him, then turned and ran, carrying the dog. Miss King pursued, and soon came so near that the wolf dropped the dog in the road and made off at top speed. He could face men, but a school teacher with a stick was too much for him.

Then, the strain being over, the eternal feminine prevailed. Miss King sat down in the road beside her mutilated dog, and wept copiously and loudly from grief and nervousness. There the members of her family found her a few minutes later, and beside her Carlo, inert and apparently lifeless. But the little dog's hair had helped to save his life, and he soon came to, wagged his tail, and began to bark exactly where he had left off.

It was a clear moonlight night. The wolf was hunted till after midnight, when it escaped into the river woods to be shot at daybreak by a young farmer, whom it attacked as he was driving through.

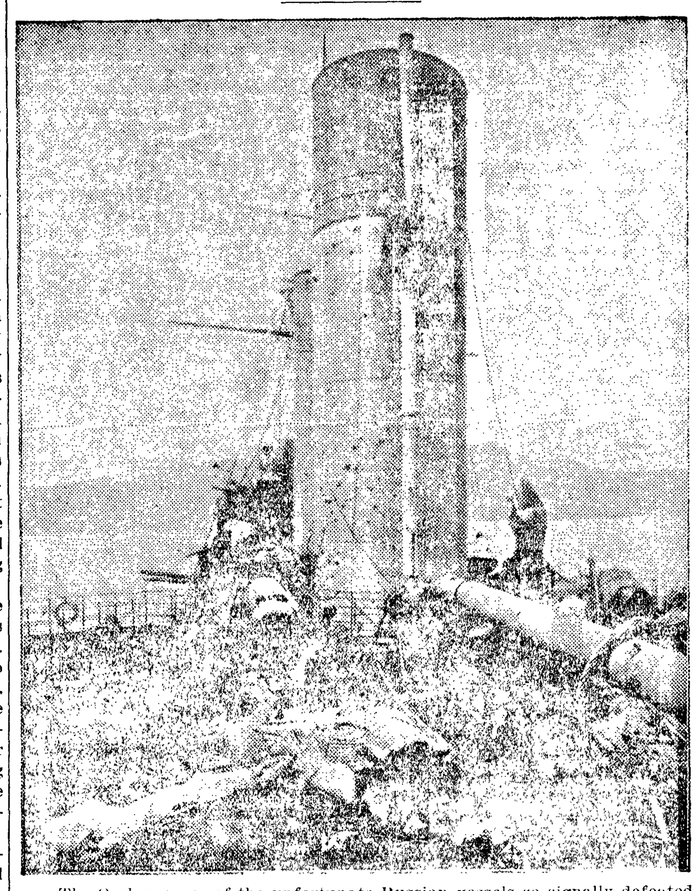
HAVOC WROUGHT BY JAPANESE GUNS.



The Orel was one of the unfortunate Russian vessels so signally defeated by Admiral Togo in the naval battle of the Sea of Japan and she was among the vessels pursued by the Japanese after they had scattered their opponent's fleet. She was attacked near Liancourt rocks, surrendered and was taken to Maiscuru. Some idea of the destructive force of the modern naval gun can be gained from the photograph here shown, the first taken after the battle.

ROCKEFELLER'S FACE.

Ida M. Tarbell's Description of the Oil King's Physiognomy.

Study the photograph, the last taken of Mr. Rockefeller, study George Varian's powerful sketch from life made in 1903, and say if it be worth while to be the richest man in the world at the cost these portraits show, writes Ida M. Tarbell in McClure's for August. Concentration, craftiness, cruelty, and something indefinably repulsive are in them. The photograph reveals nothing more. Mr. Varian's sketch is vastly more interesting for it suggests, besides, both power and pathos and no one can look long on Mr. Rockefeller without feeling these qualities. The impression he makes on one who sees him for the first time is overwhelming. Brought face to face with Mr. Rockefeller unexpectedly, and not knowing him, the writer's immediate thought was, "This is the oldest man in the world—a living mummy." But there is no sense of feebleness with the sense of age; indeed there is one of terrific power. The disease which in the last three or four years has swept Mr. Rockefeller's head bare of hair, stripped away even eyelashes and eyebrows, has revealed all the strength of his great head. Mr. Rockefeller is a big man, not over tall but large with powerful shoulders and a neck like that of a bull. His head is wide and deep and disproportionately high, with curious bumps made more conspicuous by the tightly drawn, dry, naked skin. The interest of the big face lies in the eyes and mouth. Eyes more useful for a man of Mr. Rockefeller's practices could hardly be conceived. They are small and intent and steady, and they are as expressionless as a wall. They see everything and reveal nothing. It is not a shifty eye—not a cruel or leering one. It is something vastly more to be feared—a blank eye, looking through and through things, and telling nothing of what they found on the way.

But if the eyes say nothing the mouth tells much. Its former mask, the full mustache Mr. Rockefeller has always worn, is now completely gone. Indeed the greatest loss Mr. Rockefeller sustained when his hair went was that it revealed his mouth. It is only a slit—the lips are quite lost, as if by eternal grinding together of the teeth—teeth set on something he would have. It is at once the cruelest feature of his face—this mouth—the cruelest and the most pathetic, for the hard, close-set line slants downward at the corners, giving a look of age and sadness. The downward droop is emphasized by deep vertical furrows running from each side of his nose. Mr. Rockefeller may have made himself the richest man in the world, but he has paid. Nothing but paying ever ploughs such lines in a man's face, ever sets his lips to such a melancholy angle.

VILLAGES ARE TO VANISH.

Three Hamlets to Be Obliterated to Increase New York's Water Supply.

Three more of the Croton valley's most picturesque villages are soon to be obliterated to meet the ever-increasing demand of New York City for water. The hamlets doomed by the watershed authorities are Croton Falls, Cross River and a part of the town of Somers. The houses, churches, stores, shops and even the cemeteries are to be blotted out, leaving only the bare land, which will be flooded with water, making two lakes, each about four miles long. The first of the villages to go will be Cross River, where New York has begun the erection of an immense dam to cost $3,000,000, one of the busiest manufacturing centers of Westchester County. It has a population of 500, with a postoffice, three churches, two schools, a cemetery and a half dozen stores and shops.

The place was founded in revolutionary times and was famous generations ago for its paper manufactories. The people will be paid for their property at "market value," but this will hardly compensate them for the loss of their homes and the breaking up of their associations.

About 700 persons in the three condemned towns will lose their homes and business, and most of them will be compelled to go out in the world and begin life over among strangers. In the case of the old people the circumstances are pathetic, and many sad scenes are expected when the time arrives for them to bid farewell to the homes and neighbors they have known since childhood.

OLD PEOPLE
Their Pains and Ailments

Any taint of the blood quickly shows itself with old people, and troubles, which a younger, more vigorous constitution holds in check, take possession of those of advanced years. A mole, wart or pimple often begins to inflame and fester, terminating in a sore that refuses to heal. Wandering pains of a rheumatic character are almost constant, the joints get stiff and the muscles sore, while sleeplessness and nervousness make life a burden. The natural activity of the body is not so great in old age and all the organs get dull and sluggish, failing to carry out the waste matters and poisons accumulating in the system and they are taken up and absorbed by the blood, rendering it weak and unable to properly nourish the system. There is no reason why old age should not be as healthy as youth if the blood is kept pure and strong. S. S. S. is purely vegetable and is the safest and best blood purifier and tonic for old people, because it is gentle, but at the same time thorough in its action, purifying the blood of all poisons and foreign matter, strengthening it and toning up the entire system by its fine tonic effect. Almost from the first dose the appetite increases, the general health begins to improve and the pains and ailments pass away.

I had a severe attack of La Grippe, which left me almost a physical wreck. To add to my wretched condition, Rheumatism developed. In a short time after beginning S. S. S. I was relieved of the pains and have gained in flesh and strength and my general health is better than for years. I heartily recommend S. S. S. for all blood diseases.

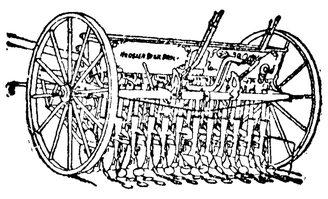
Why Hoosier Drills ARE Perfect Sowers



A Perfect Drill is impossible without a feeding device that will sow the grain evenly under all conditions. The ordinary gravity feed sows by weight. The greater pressure on the feed opening when going up hill makes it sow more than when coming down, when this pressure is removed; the same on side hills. NOT SO ON THE HOOSIER. It has Perfect Force Feed; sows by measure, consequently always sows the same; and pressure does not affect it. Enlargement in the Feed Cup just where the Feed Roll takes hold of the seed prevents cracking. Write for "The Feeding of the Seed in Hoosier Drills." That tells all about it.
