Splendid Showings Made by Treasurer Nailor and Police Judge Penniman

Council met in special session at an earlier hour Tuesday evening for purpose of installation. After adjourument, regular session convened with all members present.

Police Justice Penniman submitted annual report, showing total number of cases tried, ten; of which two were ordered out of town, one partially insane taken to Seattle, one discharged, six fined, aggregating $26. He also recommended a small monthly salary—$15 or $20—be paid the day marshal in lieu of fees, as at present, in order that it might be made possible for him to spare time necessary to enforce city's ordinances, especially of those relating to the running at large of horses, of cows with bells at night, of shooting within city limits, and the licensing of dogs. Also that provision be made for a pound in order that ordinances might not be a dead letter.

Treasurer C. E. Nailor submitted report for quarter ending Dec. 31, 1905, showing the following recapitulation:

Indebtedness fund	$1,371.14
Municipal Bond Int	1,906.09
Elec. Light Bond Int	2,520.87
Current Expense	823.75
Lighting	505.78
Cemetery	85.17
Front St. Imp	276 34
First St. Imp	430.55
Total in Treasury	$7,919.69

Coupons in amount of $630.00 were paid from Mun. Bond Int. Fund and $720.00 from Elec. Lt. Fund.

Current expense fund shows receipts of $5,374.45 taxes, $900.00 from saloon licenses, $10 from police fines, $10 pool table licenses, $10 show licenses, $216 Filion note and interest. Balance from last report "overpaid" $813.82, warrants paid $792.88, 10 per cent paid to State on three liquor licenses $90.

Bonds of health officer, attorney and city clerk approved.

A communication was received from W. S. Caldwell, representing Angeles Boosters Club, proposing to furnish finished lumber, stencils and paint for signs desiginating city streets, and requesting City to have signs prepared and put in place. Councilman Bown recommended the action of club and moved matter be referred to street committee with power to act. Coun. Grubb stated that street signs had been talked of a number of times before, that they were a needed improvement, that he appreciated effort of Club, but thought they should not be allowed to pay out the money, and that the city should bear all expense. Coun. Hallahan was not willing to leave matter entirely to judgment of street committee, suggesting signs might be placed on many street corners in outskirts of city where not necessary and where they would soon be destroyed; he raised the question of tin being preferable to wood; thought city had gotten along very well without signs and would do well without if cost were to be excessive; moved amendment that committee submit plans and probable cost. Bown thought Club should be met half way and in proper spirit and expenditure limited to $20. Coun. Brumfield said of course they would be limited to inhabited portion of city, but that a detailed plan should be worked out. Motion as amended passed.

Following bills were allowed:

Firemen, response to alarm	$ 42.00
Wise and men, streets	49.70
Geo. Porter, engineer	110.00
Filion Co., lumber	4.00
D. O'Brien, wood	85.50
Filion Co, lumber	5.74
Angeles Water Co., Oct. water	25.00
" " " Sept., water	25.00
Gutenberg Bros., mdse	16.10
Geo. Turkington, polling place	4.00
L. N. Rood, polling place	2.00

After requesting clerk to read a generally signed petition for the re-appointment of Marshal Church, Mayor Appleton made following appointments:

K.Y.Church, city marshal.
C. Wise, street superintendent.
Judge Penniman, police justice.

Appointment of engineer deferred till return of Mr. Porter to city.

RELIEF CORPS ENTERTAIN

Patriotic Christmas Tree Presided Over by a Wonderful Santa Claus.

The ladies of the Relief Corps treated the members of the G. A. R. Post to a Christmas tree, in Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday evening last, and gave the old fellows a jolly good time. The tree was a beautiful sight and held a fine gift for every old soldier. The Santa Claus was "out of sight" in make up, and from his whiskers to the flounces on her skirt, looked the real article. There was a fine program and a jolly good time all around; refreshments being served and games played till midnight. The whole thing was a real surprise, and came as a grateful contrast in the lines of the old men benefitted. The heroism of forty-five years ago is often overlooked by the youth of today, and it was a real treat to be kindly entertained for the sake of the services of Auld Lang Syne.

F. & A. M. INSTALLATION

Presentation of Handsome Jewel to Past Master.

The officers of Port Angeles Lodge No. 69, F. & A. M., recently elected, were installed, on Monday evening last, by P. M. James Stewart. A feature of the evening's work was the presentation to W. M. John C. Hansen of a magnificent solid gold past master's jewel, from the members of the lodge, in token of genuine appreciation of the past year's work. Rev. W. H. Whelan, chaplain of the lodge, made the presentation speech and every sentence found an echo in the hearts of the members. The lodge has taken on new life recently and is growing rapidly. Several unaffiliated members have obtained dimits recently, and will affiliate with the local lodge.

For cough and colds no remedy is equal to Kennedy's Laxitive Honey and Tar. It is different from all others—better, because it expels all cold from the system by acting as a carthartic on the bowels. Affords immediate relief in Croup, Cough, Colds, Whooping-Cough, etc. Children love it. Sold by C. E. Nailor & Co.

ANGELES, PORT OF OPPORTUNITY

New Motto Voices the Belief of Everyone Interested in the City

The Angeles Boosters Club at its Monday evening's meeting, upon report from committee as to probable cost, decided to appropriate funds sufficient for street signs at all the more prominent corners of the city, requiring possibly four hundred signs in all, providing the Council would co-operate in furnishing labor for painting with stencils and placing signs on fence corners.

"Angeles, Port of Opportunity," the motto selected by committee appointed for that purpose, was approved by the Club. The five dollars was awarded to L. R. Flowers, who submitted the suggestion. Having been a member of that committee, consisting of Rev. Edwards, chairman, C. S. Bown, E. W. Merrill and Alf. A. Davis, the writer would add that the difficulty experienced by the Club, which rendered the selection of a watchword seemingly hopeless, continued up to the last moment of the committee's work. Out of the 150 suggestions about 25 were really good; of these about half were phrases suitable for local use only, in line with the Boosters by-law "Boost; Don't Knock" The others were available, more especially, as advertising phrases; the final selection was made between one of each class. Perhaps it will be of interest to some of our readers, as it was to the committee after the decision was reached, to know that the best local phrase was sent in by Mrs. John Trumbull.

A special engraving, on a different plan than usual, will be designed to show the harbor and incorporate the wording.

Chairman Caldwell of committee on city park reported on the character of first growth fir recently cut, and another report was made on second growth timber having been cut in the past two weeks. It was suggested that inasmuch as the beauty of the future park would largely depend on the old firs, as is the case in Seattle and Tacoma parks, and that inasmuch as such firs are all to few and should be jealously guarded, it would be better to prohibit cutting altogether; that if decaying firs are cut for city wood, the city is only getting the worst of it in another way.

Election of officers postponed to one week from next Monday.

Big Deal By Western Firm.

An example of western enterprise is shown in the purchase of the entire line of samples from the National Parlor Furniture Co., of Chicago, by the Teale-Hills Furniture Co. of Seattle. When the big deal was closed the Seattle firm started a sale that has made them the talk of the town.

Perfection can only be attained in the physical by allowing nature to appropriate and not dissipate her own resources. Cathartics gripe, weaken—disipate, while DeWitt's Little Early Risers simply expel all putrid matter and bile, thus allowing the liver to assume normal activity. Good for the complexion. Sold by C.E. SURVEYORS AT ELWHA

Peninsular Road Survey Completed Along Lake Sutherland.

The surveying crew has finished running a line from the big lake to within three miles of the Elwha, says Mr. Knight, who returned Wednesday from an outing with Al Widman at Lake Sutherland. They started in at Barnes' on Crescent, following the rangers' trail along the lake's edge and coming out on the Sutherland road near Wilson's, continuing parallel with that road until it crosses Indian creek. P. Chambers will move the camp today from Wilson's to McDonald's on the Elwha.

The soothing and comforting effects of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, when applied to piles, sores, cuts, boils, etc., subdues pain almost instantly. This salve draws out the inflamation, reduces swelling and acts as a rubefacient, thus circulating the blood through the diseased parts, permitting or aiding nature to permantly remove the trouble entirely. A Bad Risk.

"My new theater," boasted the manager, "is absolutely fireproof. Stage, walls, seats, even the curtain—all made of steel."

"You have overlooked one thing," objected the insurance man. "I attended the show last night and I observed that your actors are undeniably wooden. It's a big risk."—Cleveland Leader.

Real Manhood.—When men cease to be for sale—when they have decency enough to refuse to be bribed, common honesty enough to be true to their vows, and courage enough to do their duty, then we can say that men are more precious than gold—then shall they take on real manhood.—Rev. N. W. Stroup, Methodist, Cleveland, Ohio.

Humbugs.—If labor unions and employers' associations would both cast out from their membership infidels and socialistic humbugs, and take in a few level-headed preachers they would learn more in six months than they have learned in the past ten years.—Rev. F. E. Hopkins, Congregationalist, Chicago, Ill.

Get What You Ask For!

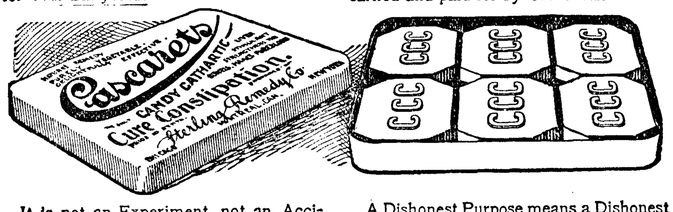
THERE is a Reason—
Why the Good People of America buy Cascarets as Fast as the Clock Ticks.

Every second some one, somewhere, is Buying a little Ten-Cent Box of Cascarets.

1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6—60 times to the Minute, 60 Minutes to the Hour, 3600 Boxes an Hour, 36,000 Boxes a Day of Ten Hours, 1,080,000 Boxes a Month, and then some.

Think of it—220,000 People take a Cascaret tablet each day. Millions use Cascarets when necessary.

The Judgment of Millions of Bright Americans is Infallible. They have been Buying and Taking Cascarets at that rate for over Six years.



It is not an Experiment, not an Accident or Incident, but a sound, Honest Business, based on Time-Tried-and-Tested Merit, never found wanting.

There is a Reason.

Cascarets are the implacable foe of All Disease Germs; the incomparable cleanser, purifier and strengthener of the entire Digestive Canal.

They Act like Exercise on the Bowel-Muscles, make them strong and active—able to Help Themselves do their work—keep themselves clean.

Cascarets are the safe-guard of Innocent Childhood against the Dreadful Death-dealing Dangers that threaten the Lives of the Little Ones.

They are Purely Vegetable, absolutely Harmless, always Reliable and Efficient, a true, faithful, loyal servant of Mankind.

Over Five Millions of Dollars have been Spent to make the merits of Cascarets known, and every cent of it would be lost, did not sound merit claim and hold the constant, continued friendship, Patronage and Endorsement of well-pleased people year after year.

There is also a Reason—
Why there are Parasites who attach themselves to the Healthy Body of Cascaret's success—Imitators, Counterfeiters, Substitutors.

They are Trade Thieves who would rob Cascarets of the "Good Will" of the people, and sneak unearned profits, earned and paid for by Cascarets.

A Dishonest Purpose means a Dishonest Product and a Disregard of the Purchasers' Health or Welfare.

Beware of the Slick Salesman and his ancient "Just as Good" story that common sense refutes.

Cascarets are made only by the Sterling Remedy Company, and the famous little Ten Cent "Vest Pocket" box is here shown. They are never sold in bulk.

Every tablet marked "CCC."

Be sure you get the genuine.

Danny Deever.

"What are the bugles blowin' for?" said Files-on-Parade.
"To turn you out, to turn you out," the Color Sergeant said.
"What makes you look so white, so white?" said Files-on-Parade.
"I'm dreadin' what I've got to watch," the Color Sergeant said.
For they're hangin' Danny Deever, you can 'ear the Dead March play,
They've taken of his buttons off an' cut his stripes away,
An' they're hangin' Danny Deever in the morning'.

"What makes the rear rank breathe so 'ard?" said Files-on-Parade.
"It's bitter cold, it's bitter cold," the Color Sergeant said.
"What makes that front-rank man fall down?" said Files-on-Parade.
"A touch of sun, a touch of sun," the Color Sergeant said.
They are hangin' Danny Deever, they are marchin' of 'im round,
They 'ave 'alted Danny Deever by 'is coffin on the ground;
An' 'e'll swing in 'arf a minute for a sneakin' shootin' hound—
Oh, they're hangin' Danny Deever in the mornin'.

"'Is cot was right-'and cot to mine," said Files-on-Parade.
"'E's sleepin' out an' far to-night," the Color Sergeant said.
"I've drunk 'is beer a score o' times," said Files-on-Parade.
"'E's drinkin' bitter beer alone," the Color Sergeant said.
They are hangin' Danny Deever, you must mark 'im to 'is place,
For 'e shot a comrade sleepin'—you must look 'im in the face;
Nine 'undred of 'is county an' the regiment's disgrace,
While they're hangin' Danny Deever in the mornin'.

"What's that so black agin the sun?" said Files-on-Parade.
"It's Danny fightin' 'ard for life," the Color Sergeant said.
"What's that that whimpers over'ead?" said Files-on-Parade.
"It's Danny's soul that's passin' now," the Color Sergeant said.
For they're done with Danny Deever, you can 'ear the quickstep play,
The regiment's in column, an' they're marchin' us away;
Ho! the young recruits are shakin', an' they'll want their beer to-day,
After hangin' Danny Deever in the mornin'.

WHAT JOY THEY BRING TO EVERY HOME

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained, by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty-cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

Cucumber Pickles.

Wash and fill two quart can with freshly picked cucumbers of any desired size. Add to them two heaping tablespoonfuls dry mustard; two heaping tablespoonfuls salt, and fill can with good cold cider vinegar. It doesn't matter whether you have an airtight top or not; a cork with cloth tied over or put in crock. If you like more mustard or salt it will do no harm.

Shepherd's Pie.

Fry one sliced onion in a quarter of a cupful of melted butter until of a golden brown, add a quarter of a cupful of flour, cook until frothy, then stir in gradually one pint of brown stock, season with salt and pepper and cook three minutes. Nor stir in three cupfuls of cold meat cut into small pieces, mix well, then turn into a buttered baking dish, cover with seasoned hot mashed potato, brush with egg and brown in the oven.

Plain Vanilla Cream.

To make a nice, plain vanilla cream, large enough for dinner for a small family, take one quart of fresh cream, sweeten it with two cupfuls of powdered sugar, and add two teaspoonfuls of extract of vanilla. Stir this mixture rather gently with a patent egg-beater, or with a small cream whip, till the sugar is quite dissolved, then put it into the freezer and freeze it.

The Pessimists.—There are people who are patterns of good morals and yet steal away the enjoyment which other people have in their surroundings and possessions. A man's happiness is one of his richest possessions and there is no greater menace to society than the cynics, pessimists, and those gloomy morbid persons who make a business of robbing other people of the music and sunshine of life.—Rev. BLOOD POISON THE BLACK FLAG

The black flag is an emblem of horror and dread. When it is hoisted by an army, the order has gone forth that "no quarter" will be given, everything must be destroyed. Helpless women and children, as well as opposing soldiers, meet the same fate, and a trail of desolation, suffering and death is left behind. Contagious Blood Poison is the black flag of the great army of disease. This vile disorder is known as the blackest and most hideous of all human afflictions, overthrowing its victims and crushing out the life. It is no respecter of persons; no matter how pure the blood may be or how innocently the disease is contracted, when this awful virus enters the circulation the hideous, hateful and humiliating symptoms begin to appear, and the sufferer feels that his very presence is polluting and contaminating. Usually the first sign of the disease is a little sore or ulcer, but as the blood becomes more deeply poisoned the severer symptoms are manifested, the mouth and throat ulcerate, the glands in the groins swell, a red rash breaks out on the body, the hair and eyebrows come out, and often the body is covered with copper-colored spots, pustular eruptions and sores. In its worst stages the disease affects the nerves, attacks the bones and sometimes causes tumors to form on the brain, producing insanity and death. Not only those who contract the poison suffer, but unless the virus is driven from the blood the awful taint is handed down to offspring, and they are its innocent victims. Blood Poison is indeed a "black flag." Mercury and Potash, so often used, never can cure the trouble. These minerals merely drive the symptoms away for awhile and shut the disease up in the system, and when they are left off it returns worse than before. This treatment not only fails to cure blood poison but eats out the delicate lining of the stomach and bowels, produces chronic dyspepsia, loosens the teeth and frequently causes mercurial rheumatism to add to the patient's suffering. S. S. S., the great vegetable medicine, is the conqueror of this vile disease. It goes down to the very root of the trouble and cures by cleansing the blood of every particle of the poison. S. S. S. does not hide or cover up anything but clears the entire circulation of the virus and puts the system in good healthy condition. It cures safely as well as certainly, because there is not a particle of mineral in it. We offer a reward of $1,000.00 for proof that S. S. S. is not purely vegetable. When the blood is purified and strengthened with this great remedy the symptoms all pass away and no sign of the disease is ever seen again; nor is there left the least trace to be handed down to posterity. Special book with instructions for self-treatment and any medical advice desired will be sent without charge to all who write.

Several years ago I had blood poison and my flesh was in an awful condition. Great sores would break out and nothing I put on them would do any good. My hair and eyebrows fell out and I was "a fright." My mouth was so sore I had to live on milk and water. I took Mercury for a long time and instead of getting better I continued to grow worse and my arms and hands became solid sores. My legs were drawn so I could not walk and I felt that my time was short here if I did not get some relief. I began to use your S. S. S. and it helped me from the start. After taking it awhile the sores all healed, my rheumatism was cured and to-day I am a strong, well man. It got all the mercury out of my system and it cured me sound and well. Nerve Fag.

If You Waste Your Nerve Energy, After Awhile You Will Suffer For It.

You can waste nerve force by excess, over-work, worry, anxiety, etc.

You can weaken yourself by not eating proper food or securing sufficient rest to renew the nerve energy you use up.

The proper treatment, in addition to good phosphatic food, such as whole meal bread, prepared cereals, etc., is Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

This is as truly a brain and nerve food as any food you could eat, and besides, furnishes strength and tone of its own, which goes to the weakened nerve system, and sets it to rights.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a refreshing, revitalizing tonic food-medicine for the brain and nerves. It reconstructs worn-out nerve tissue, and fills your languid brain with new life and vigor.

Dr. Miles' Nervine has made so many marvelous cures, of people so sick the doctors thought they were incurable, that it is today the standard medicine in many thousands of American homes.

The first bottle is guaranteed to help you, or druggist returns your money.

"The extreme heat, close confinement and intense mental strain incident to the banking business, has caused me to suffer with nervousness and insomnia. It gives me pleasure to say that I have used Dr. Miles' Nervine with very satisfactory results in the treatment of these affections. I am now on my fifth bottle, and eat and sleep well, in fact have almost forgotten that I possess nerves."—R. L. DALBY, Asst. Cashier, State Bank, Texarcana, Ark.

SEGUIN NOTES.

Tuesday and Wednesday were "drummers" days; the stage was loaded both days, J. B. Knapman driving them to Dungeness in the afternoon.

The infant son of A. O. Nelsen has been very sick the past week.

Mrs. James Grant of Washington Harbor was taken to the home of her grand-parents Wednesday, last, suffering from a mild form of insanity. Dr. McGeorge is treating her and has hopes of restoring her reason without the aid of specialists. It is much hoped that he may succeed for it would be quite sad to remove her to an infirmatory as she has a small child less than one year old. Her husband is almost broken down with grief.

Messrs. Nickolson and Gafney of the Immigration Bureau were visitors to Seguin Wednesday.

G. H. Davis and Chas. Hirsch made a visit to Segum this week in the interest of Port Angeles beer.

Dr. Butler of Angeles was in town Wednesday, treating several sufferers.

Philips Peterson has returned to his position in the Seguin Trading Co., after a months vacation spent on Vashon Island.

The Seguin Local Telephone Co., elected the following officers at their meeting Jan. 6: James Pettit, President; C. W. Cook, Treasurer: C. W. Carpenter, General Manager.

Lon Doran was in Seguin the past week shaking hands with old chums.

Pev. Carlisle P. B. Martin, L. L. D. Of Waverly, Texas, writes: "Of a morning, when first arising, I often find a troublesome collection of phlegm which produces a cough and is very hard to dislodge; but a small quanity of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will at once dislodge it, and the trouble is over. I know of no medicine that is equal to it, and it is so pleasant to take. I can most cordially recommend it to all persons needing a medicine for throat or lung trouble. For sale at Mathewson's Pharmacy.

CELEBRATED 68TH BIRTHDAY

Judge Jas. G. McClinton Agreeably Surprised.

Judge McClinton was agreeably surprised on Saturday evening last, the occasion being his 68th birthday. Mrs. McClinton planned the surprise and carried it out most admirably, at their home on Seventh street, the invited guests being old friends and near neighbors. As soon as the host recovered from his surprise, he extended a hearty welcome to the visitors, when all proceeded to the dining room and sat down to a table that was a pretty picture with its perfect appointments of damask, silver and china; and the menu served demonstrated the culinary ability of the hostess. After all had partaken of the bountiful repast, and were still seated at the table, Mrs. McClinton prepared the way for another and more lasting surprise by asking each gentleman present to recite an incident or two of his life; when the last gentleman was called upon he rose to his feet, and, after a few remarks befitting the occasion, on behalf of those present, presented Mr. McClinton with a smoking set in silver, of four pieces.

Although completely taken by surprise, and impressed with this testimonial of the regard of his friends, Mr. McClinton feelingly and happily responded to the generous words of Mr. Willson, thanking the donors for their highly prized gift, saying he would ever cherish it as a memento of one of the happiest events of his life.

As the evening waned the company dispersed, carrying remembrances of the pleasant evening and wishing their host and hostess many more happy anniversaries.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best Made.

"In my opinion Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best made for colds," says Mrs. Cora Walker, of Porterville, Cal'f. There is no doubt about its being the best. No other will cure a cold so quickly. No other is so sure a preventative of pneumonia. No other is so pleasant and so safe to take. These are good reasons why it should be preferred to any other. The fact is that a few people are satisfied with any other after having once used this remedy. For sale by W. J. Mathewson.

A LITTLE GIRL I KNEW.

There was once a little girl I knew,
With dark hair braided down her back;
She lived next door, as some girls do,
And I couldn't help seeing she had a knack
For washing the steps and tending the flowers
(For the house was a little way from ours).

I couldn't help hearing the pleasant sound
That dishes make when they touch the pan;
I wasn't the kind to hang around,
But I saw and heard as a fellow can.
(And she was a girl about as spry
As a trout that leaps to snap the fly.)

And when the windows were opened wide,
She made the beds and swept the floor,
Dusted the things on every side,
And then through the open kitchen door
I saw her stir the pudding and cake,
And make the coffee and broil the steak.

You know I surely could hear and see
(Their house of course not far away),
And I wasn't as dumb as some might be,
But I managed once some words to say.
And so, concluding a fresh combine,
She moved from their house into mine.

Lady Holland's Debt.

STITCH, stitch. How busily the bright needle darted in and out of the pretty silk, catching some stray sunbeams on its gleaming point—sunbeams that flickered first on the gilded picture frames, then on the carpet's wonderful blue roses, lastly on the curly head of the little seamstress who sat sewing near the window. The casements were thrown wide open, and in with the sunshine came whiffs of freshly mown lawns, sweet peas and syringa from the old-fashioned garden outside.

The summer's beauty made the industrious worker sing lightly to herself, though heaven knows there was not much cause for song in little Cissy Blackwood's life unless it were that she was the belle of Molesley, and had the brightest brown eyes and the sunniest curls you could wish for. And it was only the village boys who discovered how charming and refined Cissy was and how melodious the clear voice that was now daring to carol within the gloomy walls of Holland court.

Anstey Cheshurst, second son of the widowed Lady Holland, found quite a number of excuses which carried him into his mother's boudoir, where the clever fingers made up elaborate toilets for his women folk. Ah! those presses, those hours of patient labor! Many a month had Cissy waited, and many a month more was she likely to wait for the money which was owing to her.

Such a large sum that it was sufficiently alarming to cause another line beneath Lady Holland's eyes as she planned and plotted each wakeful night on the difficult problem, viz., how to keep up "appearances," rank, Holland Court and a town residence on next to nothing a year. True, her eldest daughter was disposed of to a penniless young baronet—oh, dear! that trousseau, how the money did mount up—but there were still three damsels for sale. So far their education, smart dresses and lack of wearying accomplishments had failed to have the desired effect, and no one seemed disposed to pay Lady Holland as a chaperon, seeing what a difficulty she had in settling her own daughters.

Still, rich Miss Ingots, her present guest, seemed undoubtedly impressed with her unmarried son, with his handsome bearing and ready tongue. His sole income, a legacy, was only small compared with the figures of the lady's fortune. His "wild oats" were well known in Molesley, but beauty covers a multitude of sins, so Miss Ingots approved of him, faults and all.

So far, so good. But Anstey, well aware of his mother's intentions, took a wicked delight in alternately petting and teasing the heiress, delaying all efforts to secure this golden treasure with the most irritating coolness. He knew quite well how to charm Miss Ingots, and he knew equally well how to be the perfect ideal of manly attraction. And Anstey enjoyed himself thoroughly, increased the number of stolen interviews and looked down admiringly at the lovely face that brightened at his coming. He had always preferred wild roses to gardenia.

"You must not come and talk to me any more, Mr. Anstey; it would vex her ladyship terribly if she found it out. Please keep away," said Cissy. But her voice lacked emphasis, and Anstey did not keep away. Though tolerably in awe of his lady mother he thoroughly enjoyed stealing a march on her and the sedate Miss Ingots, who, poor thing, could not purchase Cissy's youth and sweetness—in spite of the tempting advertisements—with all her wealth.

The first steps were soon taken, others following quite naturally. Anstey found out where the young seamstress lived and was to be found at the gate a great deal too often, so Cissy said, but as she smiled irresistibly up at him while saying so the culprit was not deterred from coming again at the first opportunity.

Anstey was honorable enough to feel both worried and indignant on learning the extent of his mother's debt when Cissy confided to him how very much she would like the money.

"I shall feel quite rich then," said Cissy joyfully, "for I have quite a lot of money in the bank. You see, I have nobody to spend it on, for I haven't a relation in all the world."

"Lucky little woman," sighed Anstey.

"Ah, I don't know about that. You like to belong to someone and feel they care about you."

"You know I care."

The remainder of the conversation was incoherent.

"Your account shall be settled in a week or two," my lady promised with the air of one who confers an unspeakable benefit. "I have overlooked it for quite a long time, but there have been so many things to see to."

What kindness! What condescension! Cissy was surely to be envied as she folded the costly brocade round my lady's gaunt figure, murmuring inaudible thanks with her mouth full of pins. And yet the weeks passed by and no money appeared. Cissy began to feel more and more anxious. She grew restless under my lady's calm patronage.

Perhaps it was the memory of a certain face, the echo of whispered words, that caused the patient worker to wait still longer, planning fresh attire with unfailing cleverness and success. Even Miss Ingots in her Parisian creations looked overdressed and vulgar beside the perfect taste and cut of Lady Holland's gowns. So thought my lady herself as she glided down the passage to her boudoir—still, for want of space, a temporary workroom—and her noiseless footsteps enabled her to witness a very interesting scene within.

The half-opened door revealed Cissy sitting idly at the table, a mass of silk and chiffon lying untouched in her lap, as she listened eagerly to her companion's talk. On the table, perilously near her ladyship's new bodice, sat Anstey Cheshurst, leaning forward to admire more fully the brown eyes that watched him with such unfeigned admiration.

I cannot actually declare that my lady's hair stood on end, perhaps had it cost less it might have done so, but at any rate her eyes flashed with indignant anger and her bony fingers could have torn Cissy in pieces with the greatest pleasure. It would never, never do for Anstey to flirt, however harmlessly, with this ignominious little worker. (Lady Holland, a chemist's daughter, had gone to the same school as Cissy's mother, the daughter of a farmer.) Goodness only could conjecture what Miss Ingots might do if she ever suspected such a thing. Anstey must be made to see that amusement with the bourgeois was too dangerous in their present position—of course she did not consider for a moment Cissy's feelings in the matter. People of that class, my lady said, were mercifully born without feelings. Certainly she ought to have known. Anger quickened her usually deliberate movements, but she was yet too slow to prevent a scene that positively paralyzed her. Anstey, jumping lightly down from his undignified seat, said a few loving words to Cissy and kissed her dimpled chin with ardor. His mother shivered from head to foot and glared at the unconscious pair with helpless fury.

Her scapegrace son then quitted the room as his mother swept in by the second door nearly speechless with wrath. It was a pity Anstey did not look around before he closed the door; he little guessed the tableau he left behind him, and yet, Lady Holland, what did you ever do that gave you the right to look down at that shrinking little maiden with such scorn and bitter contempt? I own she is a foolish little creature, for she pays her small bills regularly, helps those who cannot repay her and never wins money by gambling with those who cannot afford to lose. It certainly could not have been through any feeling of conscious merit that Lady Holland frowned at the startled face, which seemed to say: "I couldn't help it; really I couldn't. Please forgive me."

"I witnessed your disgraceful conduct with my son, Miss Blackwood. You will have the goodness to collect your things instantly and leave the house. Your services are no longer required."

The tone brought a vivid color into Cissy's cheeks, and a curious, rather teasing twinkle danced in the brown eyes as she said demurely: "I was going to tell your ladyship that I could not come any more after to-day. I only came because your ladyship wanted this dress for your grandchild's christening."

"I would rather go in rags than keep you a minute longer in this house."

"Certainly, your ladyship; and my account?"

It was no use reviewing empty purses; the money was not forthcoming, so Lady Holland took refuge in righteous indignation.

"Your account, indeed! After the scandalous scene that has just taken place I wonder you have the effrontery to ask me. You may consider yourself extremely lucky, Miss Blackwood, if I do not warn everybody of your most disgraceful conduct."

"And the equally unpardonable behavior of your son," retorted Cissy, facing the angry woman quite calmly. "But you are right about the money, Lady Holland, it has been paid."

What did the girl mean? Was she mad? Or, had Anstey discovered the debt and paid it? Hardly possible, for Anstey and his mother were generally in a state of petty warfare, and her numerous debts were carefully hidden from his critical eye.

"Perhaps you will have the goodness to explain what you mean?"

"When I said I was paid," explained Cissy, "I did not mean it was paid in money, but I have received what is more than its equivalent. For some time I hesitated out of respect for you, but your treatment exhausted my patience. I am all alone in the world, so—so—I——"

"Finish your sentence. I have yet to learn why Mr. Cheshurst troubled himself in my affairs."

"Your son has paid me no money; he could not do so. Unworthy though I am of the honor I am your ladyship's daughter-in-law. Anstey knew it was hopeless to invite you to our wedding, so we were married quite privately at the Church of St. Andrew's yesterday. Good morning, your ladyship."—London Tatler.

SHE LOVES FLOWERS.

China's Empress Dowager Has a Passion for Them.

Her Majesty's love of flowers was one of her characteristics which seemed most incompatible with the idea I had formed of her from what I had heard, and her love of flowers and all nature caused me first to change that idea. It seemed to me no one could love flowers and nature as she did and be the woman she had been painted.

She had flowers always about her. Her private apartments, her throne-rooms, her loge at the theater, even the great audience hall, where she went only to transact affairs of state and hold official audiences—all were decorated with a profusion of flowers, cut and growing, but never, though, of more than one kind at a time. She wears natural flowers in her coiffure always, winter and summer; and however careworn or harassed she might be, she seemed to find solace in flowers. She would hold a flower to her face, drink in its fragrance and caress it as if it were a sentient thing. She would go herself among the flowers that filled her rooms, and place, with lingering touch, some fair bloom in a better light, or turn a jardiniere so that the growing plant might have a more favorable position.

The Chinese do not place certain cut flowers in water, but keep them dry in bowls or vases to get their full fragrance. The Empress Dowager had some quaint conceits about the arrangement of these. She would have the corollas of the lily-bloom or the fragrant jasmine placed in shallow bowls in curious, star-like designs, beautiful to look at, as well as most fragrant.

Her passion for flowers being generally known among the courtiers, princes and high officials, they send daily offerings to the palace of all that is rare and choice in the way of plants and flowers; for they know this is one present her Majesty will always accept and appreciate.

There are some quaint customs in the palace as to flowers and fruits that grow within the precincts. Though the princesses and ladies have the freedom of the gardens and may pull as many flowers and cull as many fruits as they wish, it is not etiquette for them to gather the smallest flower or to touch a fruit when in the presence of the Empress Dowager, unless they are specially told to do so. When her Majesty tells them to pull a flower or fruit, the permission is gratefully accepted and that special flower or fruit religiously kept. The first fruits of every tree and vegetable, the first flowers of every plant and growing shrub in the palace grounds, are considered sacred to their Majesties, and no princes, attendant, or eunuch would touch a flower or fruit until the Empress Dowager had been presented with the first of them. All these apparently trivial marks of respect to the sacred persons of their Majesties were religiously observed.—Century.

Danish Dinner Custom.

A pretty table observance in Danish families is for children, even little ones who can scarcely toddle, to go gravely after dinner to salute their parents and say, "Tak for mad" (thanks for the meal). Even visitors shake hands with their host and hostess and go through the same formality.

The Barn Lantern.

Lanterns are undoubtedly the safest things to use in the barn, and if they are hung properly and protected as indicated here there will be little or no danger from fire. Take a piece of inch board and from it cut a circle twelve inches in diameter; then buy a piece of galvanized wire netting fifteen inches wide and four feet long, then a piece of bright new tin eighteen inches square, a hook with a flat end, so it can be screwed to the wall. Then build a shelf fifteen inches wide and twenty inches long. Nail the shelf in a convenient location in the barn, then on the wall back of the shelf nail the piece of tin which acts as a reflector as well as protects the wall.

Fasten the hook on the wall above the tin. Then make a cylinder by nailing the wire to the edge of the circular piece of board, lacing the ends of the wire together with stout twine. Set this on the shelf and slip the lantern inside of it, hanging the bale of the lantern on the hook. The wire cylinder protects the lantern yet does not shut off much light, and by having the hook curved there will be little danger of the lantern falling, even under quite a hard blow. The illustration shows all of the details for constructing this arrangement.—Indianapolis News.

Buying Mixed Feeds.

Why any feeder of farm stock should buy mixed grains is more than one can understand, unless he is too lazy to do the mixing himself. Time was when screenings were just what was claimed for them, the smaller grains which dropped through the sieves when screening was done for the first grade of grains. Now screenings are quite likely to be the sweepings from the mill floors and contain anything from nails to tobacco quids. Any of the grains used for feeding stock of any kind can be bought without mixture and one can tell by examination if they be reasonably pure. They cost some more than the mixed feeds, to be sure, but they are cheapest in the end, for less has to be fed. Of all the bad mixed feeds the ground feeds are the worst, for it is practically impossible to know what is in the mixture, that is, for the ordinary observer to ascertain. In feeding poultry it has been demonstrated time and again that it pays to pay 25 per cent more for the grains by themselves than to feed the mixtures bought in that form.

Finishing Off Coops.

One of the economics in the poultry business is to have coops which may be used for any desired purpose without making it necessary to in any way subdivide the main poultry house. Coops for sick fowls, coops for the roosters, coops for the broody hen and coops to finish off the birds which are to go to market later. One of the best designs for the latter purpose can be built on the sunny side of the barn or the poultry house proper, thus saving the expense for lumber. This coop is three feet in width, and any length desired, but figured so that the lumber will not cut to waste.

Hake the frame of rough lumber, using any odds and ends one may have around the place; cover roof and sides and ends with tarred paper. For ventilation, a six-inch space is left the entire length of the house at the lower end and this is covered with wire netting. For further ventilation holes are bored in one end at the high side near the top. At the lower part of the house under the ventilating space the boards are arranged so that the one nearest the ground is hinged to the one above it for ease in cleaning the coop. The door in one end is made of any size desired, although the smaller the better, twenty inches square being a good size.—Exchange.

Poultry Notes.

It is pretty hard to feed the hen too much if the food is of the right sort. Improper feeding does more harm than excessive feeding.

Have you tried the dry feeding system, now practiced by most of the well known poultrymen of the country?

Eggs are the basis of the poultry industry. Egg farming is the most profitable branch of poultry culture. But in order to get eggs we have to keep hens as a sort of necessary incumberance.

For Barb Wire Cuts.

When a horse has been injured on wire the first thing to do is stop the flow of blood; this may as a rule be done by bandaging it up tight. It may also frequently be best to apply powdered alum or common saleratus, both of which will generally be found effective. In a few hours, considerable swelling will set in; this should be reduced either by applying cold water frequently, or, what is really better, applying pure kerosene oil, not only to the wound, but also to the swollen parts. No bandage should be kept on where kerosene is used, as it will then cause the hair to fall off temporarily, and as soon as it is safe to do so, the sore should be carefully washed with soft water and castile soap. This ought to be repeated daily until the sore heals. One of the best healing medicines for horseflesh that I have ever used can be put up at any drug store, as follows: One-half pint of alcohol; one-half pint of spirits of turpentine; 1 ounce of pure glycerine; mix all together in a large bottle and shake well before using. Apply only with a feather at morning and night. The sore should never be bandaged. By daily washing it will in this way heal up very rapidly. I can personally testify to the effectiveness of this simple remedy, as we have made use of it in numerous cases, with the best results, where every other remedy we tried failed to heal up the sore on the horse.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Practical Gate Fastener.

A swing gate is somewhat of a nuisance, unless it is arranged with a fastener that will act as desired. The idea illustrated is a simple one, as will be seen. Take a strip of one by four material and cut it of convenient length, as shown at figure 1. It must, however, be long enough to extend beyond the cross bar D and the upright piece at Figure 2, both of which pieces are double—that is, one on either side of the gate. Two iron pieces (b) are bolted to the boards 1 and 4, as shown. The fastener works in this manner: To unfasten, pull the board 1 to the left, which raises the end opposite 1 on account of the placing of b, and when released drops toward 1 and finally rests on the board marked 3. A close study of the illustration will show how simple the plan is, and how readily it may be put in operation on any swinging gate, provided always the gate is properly hung and works smoothly.—Indianapolis News.

SWING GATE FASTENER.

Cut Bone and Animal Food.

Just the day the fowls are brought into the house and confined to the run of a small yard they begin to pine for animal food which they had in abundance on the range. It is this lack that is at the bottom of the egg falling off rather than any other cause, as will be discovered, if one will take the trouble to look into the matter. It must be understood, however, that animal food does not mean anything in the shape of meat one can get. There are plenty of meat scrapes on the market that are good enough for fertilizer, but decidedly not of value for feeding poultry. If one can arrange with the local butcher to supply what meat is wanted for the fowls he will have no trouble provided he buys meat that is not tainted and does not lay in a supply too large. Green bone answers the same purpose to some extent, but it is hard to grind and must be ground fresh to be of value. With a small supply of animal food, green bone and green food of some kind one ought to have a good production of eggs throughout the winter, following any plan of feeding that has a reasonable amount of variety.

Seed Potatoes.

Every one knows that when seed potatoes are allowed to sprout and the sprouts are broken off, as they often are when the potatoes are kept in a dark cellar, the tuber is perceptibly weakened, the yield lessened and the ripening retarded. The best way to keep seed potatoes is in cold storage. It is important that the temperature should never fall below 35 degrees, nor should it rise much above 40 degrees. In a press circular sent out by the Ohio station it is advised that the seed potatoes should be shoveled over frequently, as this prevents sprouting to a certain extent where cold storage is not available. Planters are reminded, however, that under certain conditions this sprouting process may be used to advance the early ripening of the crop. If the tubers are placed stem end down in single layers in shallow trays in a slight and moderately warm room, they will send out short, stubby green sprouts, which will remain in that condition for weeks, and if the potatoes are then planted without breaking the sprouts, they will start immediately.

Policemen.—Blue cloth and brass buttons and a club do not make a policeman. We have thought it did; we are awakening to better sense.—Rev. Cortland Myers, Baptist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Christianity.—This Christianity of ours is no myth. You can throw your weight on the promises of God and they will not go down.—Rev. A. Z. Conrad, Congregationalist, Boston, Mass.

Environment.—Character cannot be inherited nor entailed; it is a virtue influenced by environment, for a man is known by the company he keeps.—Rev. W. T. Dixon, Baptist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Eternal Being.—Christ and His word are identical—the word was made flesh and dwelt among men. The Son of God had no beginning and will have no end. He is an eternal Being.—Rev. J. F. Blair, Baptist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Name of Jesus.—Jesus is to us the sweetest name that is ever breathed on mortal tongue. We lisp it at our mother's knee and it is the last utterance in our mortal agony as the soul goes to the great beyond and into eternity.—Rev. T. H. Rice, Methodist, Atlanta, Ga.

Gospel of Discontent.—The more a man has the more is required of him. Far more than we know the gospel of discontent is being drilled into the masses and armies are being arrayed against wealthy respectability. What is our escape?—Rev. N. M. Waters, Congregationalist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The River of Nations.—The nation is like a river; the water flows and passes away, but its place is filled continually if the springs at the fountain head do not fail. We must maintain Christian morality and education, and keep strong the banks of liberty.—Rev. W. F. Crafts, Baptist, Washington, D. C.

Special Favors.—No type of religion which represents the world as run on the principle of special favors to individuals can command the highest respect or allegiance of mankind. It is like getting by personal influence the ear of the chairman of a meeting.—Rev. W. B. Thorp, Congregationalist, Chicago, Ill.

Physical Energy.—Physical energy is an absolute requirement for success. No matter where a man is he must do some kind of work—he must labor with his hands. The Almighty fiat pronounced in the Garden of Eden was that labor should forever be the destiny of man.—Rev. J. F. Atkinson, Episcopalian, Elizabeth, N. J.

The Laws of God.—A spiritually minded person is one whose life is controlled by the laws of the invisible kingdom of God, as set forth in the New Testament. His code is love toward God and man. It is his fixed purpose to obey this law no matter what it may cost him.—Rev. A. S. Gregg, Methodist, Worcester, Mass.

Strange Idols.—We boast of 13,000,000 of Catholics in this country, but how many millions have we lost because of disregard for the authority of bishops and priests? How many of those whose forefathers worshiped at the altars of God are now the devotees of strange idols?—Rev. P. F. O'Hare, Catholic, Greenpoint, N. Y.

Inspired Music.—When Handel had finished his great "Hallelujah Chorus" and played it for the first time upon the organ in the presence of his pupil, Arne, as he played the tears ran down his cheeks, and he said when he was through, "These notes are not mine, they came from God through me."—Rev. LETTER TO CONGRESS

PRESIDENT TELLS OF PANAMA CANAL WORK.

Says Great Progress Has Been Made and that Canal Will Probably Be Constructed Within Limit of Estimates and More Quickly than Was Anticipated.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The letter of President Roosevelt transmitting to congress the annual report of the isthmian canal commission and the Panama Railroad Company, together with a letter from Secretary Taft transmitting the same, says:

"The work on the isthmus is being admirably done and great progress has been made, especially during the last nine months. The plant is being made ready and the organiaztion perfected.

"The first work to be done was the work of sanitation, the necessary preliminary to the work of actual construction, and this has been pushed with the utmost energy and means.

"In a short while I shall lay before congress the recommendation of the commission and the board of consulting engineers as to the proper plan to be adoptled for the canal itself, together with my own recommendations thereon.

"All the work so far has been done not only with the utmost expedition, but in the most careful and thorough manner, and what has been accomplished gives us good reason to believe that the canal will be dug in a shorter time than had been anticipated and at an expenditure within the allotted amount.

An Object of Pride.

"All our citizens have a right to contribute their services on the high standard of efficiency and integrity, which has hitherto been maintained by the representatives of the government in doing this great work. If this high standard of efficiency and integrity can be maintained in the future at the same level which it has now reached, the construction of the Panama canal will be one of the features to which the people of the republic will look back with the highest pride.

"From time to time various publications have been made, and from time to time in the future similar publications doubtless will be made purporting to give an account of jobbery or immorality or inefficiency or misery, as obtaining on the isthmus. I have carefully examined into each of these accusations which seemed worthy of attention. In every instance the accusations have proved to be without foundation in any shape or form. * * *

"Every specific charge relating to jobbery, to immorality or inefficiency, from whatsoever source it has come, has been immediately investigated, and in no single case have the statements of these sensation mongers and the interested complainants behind them proved true.

False Reports Deplored.

"The only discredit inhering in these accusations is to those who originate and give them currency, and who, to the extent of their ability, thereby hamper and obstruct the comlpetion of the great work in which both the honor and the interest of America are so deeply involved. It matters not whether those guilty of the false accusations utter them in mere wanton recklessness and folly or in a spirit of sinister malice to gratify some personal or political grudge.

"Any attempt to cut down the salaries of the officials of the isthmian commission or of their subordinates who are doing important work would be ruinous from the standpoint of accomplishing the work effectively. To quote the words of one of the best observers on the isthmus, 'demoralization of the service is certain if the reward for successful endeavor is a reduction of pay.'

"We are undertaking in Panama a gigantic task—the largest piece of engineering ever done. The employment of the men engaged thereon is only temporary, and yet it will require the highest order of ability if it is to be done economically, honestly and efficiently.

"To attempt to secure men to do this work on insufficient salaries would amount to putting a premium on inefficiency and corruption. Men fit for the work will not undertake it unless they are well paid. In the end the men who do undertake it will be left to seek other employment, with their chief reward the reputation they achieve. * * *

Courts Investigation.

"I repeat that the work on the isthmus has been done and is being done admirably. The organiaztion is good. The mistakes are ordinarily few, and these few have been of no consequence. The zeal, intelligent and efficient service of the isthmian canal commission and its subordinates have been noteworthy.

"I court the fullest, most exhaustive and most searching investigation of any act of theirs, and if any one of them is shown to have done wrong his punishment shall be exemplary. But I ask that they be decently paid and that their hands be upheld as long as they act decently. On any other conditions we shall not be able to get men of the right type to do the work, and this means that on any other condition we shal insure, if not failure, at least delay, scandal and inefficiency in the task of digging the great canal."

TO ADVERTISE STATE.

Conference at Tacoma and Several Schemes Suggested.

Tacoam, Jan. 8.—After three hours discussion in the rooms of the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce, twelve delegates, representing nine commercial organizations of the state, voted to recommend to Gov. Mead the expenditure of $8,000, a portion of the amount remaining of the appropriation of the state of Washington to the Lewis and Clark exposition, in further advertising the resources of this state in the Middle West.

Three plans were suggested: First, moving pictures with lecture and a small exhibition of natural products; second, books or pamphlets profusely illustrated, and third, by the maintenance of a press bureau. It was voted that any one or all of these plans would meet the approval of the various commercial bodies.

The final selection was left to a committee composed of Gov. Mead, Attorney General Atkinson, Secretary of State Sam H. Nichols, Elmer E. Johnston, executive commissioner of the Lewis and Clark exposition, and Deputy Commissioner of Publicity an migration Allen.

The probable scheme will i ,clude the moving pictures, with running talk, the distribution of some literature and perhaps the exhibition of a few small cabinets of products.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM OVER CANADA-MEXICO TURNPIKE

Seattle, Jan. 8.—Secretary James B. Meikle, of the Chamber of Commerce, epxresses keen gratification over the enthusiasm with which the proposition to build an interstate trunk wagon road from the Canadian to the Mexican border has been received all along the line of the proposed pike.

He has given it as his belief that within the year every county in the state of Washington through which the road is to pass will have taken up the work.

In speaking of the huge undertaking, Secretary Meikle said:

"'It is the intention of the officers of the Washington Good Roads Association to take up the matter of improving a trunk line road from British Columbia to Mexico, with the other counties along the line of the proposed road, at the earliest date possible.

"The proposition has been received with so much enthusiasm that I believe it will be easy enough to get every county through which the road will pass in Washington to take up the work this year, and with strong, united effort we ought to have a good road clear across the state in three years.

"Such a road would give a great impetus to traveling for pleasure. Nowadays people travel long distances, as we say, for pleasure. But it is not for the pleasure of traveling. It is rather for the pleasrue to be found at the end of the journey. With such a road as the one proposed the pleasure would be in making the journey—in the act of traveling. What outdoor pleasure would be greater than a trip a hundred or a thousand miles over such a road, through such a country as it would traverse? It would be worth a journey from the uttermost ends of the earth to enjoy the pleasure of such a trip, and we would find that many people would come to the Coast just to make the trip.

Benefits of Road.

"Such a road would be a great benefit to the country from a business standpoint. Thousands would travel over it every week with teams and automobiles. The result would be a large development of the rural sections.

Towns and villages would grow up along the line; hotels would be built to accommodate the tourists; a large market for the products of farms, orchards and gardens would be created; horse raising would become a most profitable industry; factories and repair shops to supply the needs of travelers would spring up and thrive, and other enterprises would prosper, and property values would increase in a large measure.

"This is no dream and there is no guess work in it. All of these statements have been demonstrated by the experience of France, which has been given a new life by the developments of the past few years on account of her good roads.

"It is no use talking about it. All the arguments are in favor of the scheme and there is no good argument against it.

"Let us build the road."

NEW DIAMOND FIELDS.

Canadian Geologists to Investigate Hudson Bay Country.

New Westminster, B. C., Jan. 5.—The association of Canadian geologists, of which Dr. Ami, of Montreal, is president, is about to commence a thorough search of the Hudson bay district for diamonds. Dr. Ami is certain that it was early glacial formations from the north of America that left the precious stones recently found in Wisconsin and Michigan, and on the strength of the supposition that some of these stones were left on the Canadian side also backed by the fact that minerals among which diamonds are very often found are plentiful in the Hudson bay district.

If the precious stones are not found around Hudson bay a movement will be made west along the proposed line of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway.

DELAY RATE MEASURE

ANTIS PROPOSE TO AWAIT ACTION BY HOUSE.

Their Plan is to Defer Consideration Until Late in Session, When Chances for Talking Measure to Death Would Be Considerably Improved.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A clash between the administration and anti-administration forces of the senate committee on interstate commerce is imminent. They have almost reached the parting of the ways on the question of railroad rate legislation. One of the most spirited controversies that has yet marked these meetings took place Friday, when the proposition was advanced to defer final action upon a rate bill until the house f t representatives had Mr Dotheir desires ver, Mr. Tillman and Mr. Newlands were the only so-called administration members present. They objected and declared for immediate action. They wanted the work of framing a bill to begin. Chairman Elkins and Mr. Aldrich were among those who suggested that it would be better to defer action, inasmuch as the house was the popular branch and legislation could be pushed through under limited debate, while no such thing was possible in the senate. They said the opinion in the upper body could be crystalized more readily if it were known what the house desired.

Trying to Conciliate Democrats

Mr. Dolliver is striving so to amend his rate bill as to meet certain objections of the Democratic members of the committee. If he can do this, he can secure a majority numerically, as Clapp and Cullom, two other Republicans, it is said, will support him.

Chairman Elkins declares there is no intention of filibustering in the committee. It is the belief, however, of the administration men that if rate regulation is to be kept out of the senate for a month or longer the president's policy may be defeated because of the opportunities for unlimited debate and the consideration of the great supply measures will make impossible chances of a compromise.

At Friday's session of the committee Senator Dolliver moved to take up his bill and consider it section by section. He argued that if the bill could be taken up and all portions on which the committee could not agree be voted out it would furnish a basis for an early report to the senate. He failed to obtain the adoption of the motion or any decision in regard to it, but it was agreed that an early consideration of the various pending measures should be had. This agreement, howwever, did not take the form of a definite program.

The house of representatives has gone forward with the understanding that the senate would report and pass a bill before it would be called upon for action. The house committee has had no hearings, while the senate committee has been occupied the greater part of the spring and fall in hearings. It is thought it may require a month or six weeks to get a rate bill out of the house committee and call it up for consideration. Indications are that the anti-administration forces have won first blood in the great contest that is being quietly waged on the rate question. The senate committee will not hold another meeting until next Friday.

As far as can be learned, the senate Democrats will not unite on any bill. Senators Tillman and Newlands, both members of the interstate commerce committee, have bills pending. The former said that Senator Dolliver's bill was an elaboration of the ideas that he had advanced in his brief measure and that he could support it "if no attempt is made to make the Democrats the tail to the president's kite."

CHICAGO CITY COUNCIL SCENTS BIG GRAFT

Chicago, Jan. 10.—In a search for a $5,000,000 graft said to have been disbursed among builders of water tunnels and sewers in Chicago, a committee appointed by the city council will investigate the books in the offices of the comptroller and the commissioner of public works. The inquiry, which will cover the last administration, was started in the council Monday, when Assistant Corporation Counsel T. J. Sutherland declared that grafting on an enormous scale had been possible through a combination of corrupt contractors, broken agreements, bills for "fake" work, and connivance on the part of corrupt officials. He said that at lesat $5,000,000 could be recovered if suits were brought in the courts.

Investigate Immigration Office.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Upon complaint to Commissioner Sargeant, secret service men have been detailed to investigate the Seattle immigration office. Orders have been given that this is to be thorough and assurances are made that there will be no whitewashing.

The Weyerhaeuser Timber Company will expend in the near future about $50,000 in enlarging and installing new machinery in its mill at Everett. Among the new machinery to be installed will be a band saw with an eleven-foot cut, the largest of its kind ever built.

4. Requirements that the insurance companies shall keep their accounts in such a fashion that illicit relations with financial enterprises of various kinds will not be possible without detection.

5. A uniform system of audits.

6. Standard forms of policies which will not permit of ambiguous and elusive provisions.

10. Prohibition of the control of subsidiary financial institutions by life insurance companies.

11. Restrictions as to deposits carried with and loans to banks and trust companies.

12. Restrictions regarding investment in corporate enterprises in process of promotion, the success of which is a matter of speculation.

13. A requirement that insurance directors or trustees shall not have business affiliations which will interfere with their judgment in passing upon financial proposals submitted to their insurance companies.

14. A requirement that a greater proportion of funds shall be invested in real estate, bonds and mortgages than now is turned into these channels by the larger companies.

CANAL METHODS TO BE INVESTIGATED BY SENATE

Washington, Jan. 10.—The senate has adopted two resolutions of inquiry, one of them to authorize an investigation by the committee on interoceanic canals into the general conduct of the affairs of the Panama canal, and the other an inquiry by the finance committee into the question of the exchange rate on money on the isthmus. The first was reported from the canal committee by Mr. Millard, and the second is the resolution presented by Mr. Bailey, with the provision relative to the sale of the Panama railroad bonds omitted.

The remainder of the session was devoted to a speech by Mr. Morgan on the railroad rate question. He advocated the settlement of all differences over rates in the courts, according to common law methods, as calculated to do away with much awkward machinery.

Colville Agreement Submitted.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The agreement made with the Colville Indians for the cession of the south half of Colville reservation has been sent to congress by the secretary of the interior. The secretary recommends legislation by congress to make the agreement effective. A bill for this purpose has already been introduced by Repesentative Jones.

Commission for Labor Troubles.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Representative Townsend, of Michigan, has introduced a bill empowering the president to name a commission of seven members to act in emergencies in case of differences between employers and employes where the mails and interstate commerce may be affected.

Will Block "Sooners."

Lander, Wyo., Jan. 10.—The military authorities at Fort Washakie, in the Shoshone reservation, which will be opened to settlement next June, have been instructed by the war department to establish a cavalry patrol around the reservation to prevent the trespassing of would-be "sooners" upon the lands to be opened.

Lafollette Takes Oath.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF CLALLAM COUNTY

Entered as Second-class Matter in the Post Office at Port Angeles, Washington.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN CLALLAM COUNTY.

Subscription Price $1 per year.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 12, 1906.

The business of Port Angeles has shown a decided gain during the past year, says W. F. Delabarre of the Citizens' National. Every business house enters the new year under improved conditions. As an evidence of general improvement, the deposits of the Citizen's Bank have increased one hundred per cent during 1905. At the recent election of officers John Hansen, H. J. Bugge and G. M. Lauridsen became members of the board of directors, other officers remaining the same.

The commencement of permanent operations at Irondale will not only be a big thing for Townsend but will help the whole west side. Every additional industry brings the day of railroads that much nearer. Iron smelters require ore of many varieties to mix for the various grades and the demand will cause renewed interest in the many iron deposits of this county.

That work on the Port Angeles Peninsular will surely be started by March 1st is still insisted upon by Mr. Carrigan. It would seem all too short a time in which to get in shape for active construction, after the preliminary survey is completed, but we hope the incorporators have not been over sanguine in that respect.

Police Judge Penniman's recommendation that the day marshal be paid a small salary received prompt attention by the council. The city will now be in shape to require better service from the police department.

Cured Lumbago.

A.B.Canman, Chicago, writes March 4, 1904, "Having been troubled with Lambago, at different times and tried one physician after another, then different ointments and liniments, gave it up altogether. So I tried once more, and got a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment, which gave me almost instant relief. I can cheerfully recommend it, and will add my name to your list of sufferers."

We have been asked, by one of our business men, as to the date of the letter, concerning the selling of elk meat, published in our last issue. It was written five years ago. The gentleman inquiring believed he knew who wrote the letter, that he was at present living on the Elwha, and is confident the party, so assumed, is not, and has not been violating the present law. We did not give the date because we quoted the letter merely to show the practice prevalent in the recent past and to draw the inference that among those so engaged at that time would be found a portion of the men who were violating the law a year ago. From our point of view the date is immaterial, but we accept the statement that these people are not now shooting elk, and are heartily glad to learn of it.

The Baptist Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor began the year with the following officers: Pres., Florence I. Ely; Vice Pres., Lisle Beam; Treas., Norman Kloke; Sec'y, Leland Beam; Organist, Minnie Linn; chairman of devotional committee, Tassie Menary; chairman of lookout committee, Nellie Garvin; chairman social committee, Rose McMullen.

Oliver Eby went to Seattle Monday to purchase the spring and summer stock of dry goods for the new store of Knight & Eby.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.
