THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER.

VOL. 7. NO. 13. PORT ANGELES, CLALLAM COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1896. PRICE FIVE CENTS

POPULISTS FOR BRYAN.

Thos. E. Watson, of Georgia, For Vice-President.

WEAVER MAKES A STRONG SPEECH.

The People's Party at St. Louis Nominate William J. Bryan By a Vote of 1042, Norton, His Opponent and the Choice of the Middle-of-the-Road Men, Receiving Only 312 Votes.

The People's Party National Convention adjourned Saturday evening after a most interesting and exciting session of four days at St. Louis. From the first, it was clearly to be a contest between those who sought the endorsement of the Democratic ticket and the "middle of the road" Populists.

The middle of the road Populists were strong amongst the southern delegations. These had all the support that could be given by Republicans.

Eastern dispatches and papers say that Mr. Mark Hanna had arranged to provide the campaign expenses of a middle of the road ticket if it would be accepted. It was also maintained by the leaders of those who desired to see the Chicago ticket endorsed, that McKinley money was freely used to secure the nomination of a third ticket. However, it is but fair to add that the middle of the road Populists were such from principle. The southern Populists had been contesting with the Democrats for supremacy in several states and in this they had in numerous instances had the assistance of the Republicans, so they were not disposed to be friendly to the Democracy.

Senator Butler, of North Carolina, a nominal fusionist, was made chairman and the Bryan men won a substantial victory in the selection of Allen, of Nebraska, as permanent chairman. They were also victorious in the platform committee, in securing the adoption of a money plank, which was substantially the same as the declaration in the Chicago convention. At this stage of the proceedings the middle of the road men gave up the idea of preventing an endorsement of Bryan and concentrated all their efforts toward preventing an endorsement of Sewall for vice-president. To this end they won a decisive victory by carrying the minority report of the committee on rules, which provided for the nomination of a vice-president. Though the majority was small it foreshadowed the nomination of a Populist for that place.

At this stage of the proceedings Hon. W. J. Bryan telegraphed Senator J. K. Jones, chairman of the National Democratic Committee, to withdraw his name unless Sewall was also nominated.

The ballot was then taken and Ex-Congressman Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, was nominated for vice-president. This was at midnight on Friday. Saturday morning Bryan wired Senator Jones substantially as follows:

"Considering all the circumstances and conditions, I concluded that the Populist convention should not consider my name for presidential candidate, but if it determines to nominate me, notwithstanding this declaration, that there may be no misunderstanding, I desire in advance to say that I shall not during the campaign discuss any other issues than those outlined in the Chicago platform. I desire above everything else to be instrumental in having enacted into the laws of the United States the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present ratio of 16 to 1, without awaiting the consent of any other nation.

"Nor am I willing to be placed in the attitude of securing help from other political organizations by sacrificing my associate upon the ticket. He is as squarely upon the Chicago platform as I am myself and he has defended the cause of bi-metallism against much greater opposition than have the men of the west and south. I desire to be left free to support Sewall during the campaign. It is due myself and the People's convention that there should be the most outspoken frankness between us."

To this dispatch there was attached a postscript requesting that the statement be read to the convention before the balloting was commenced.

The Bryan men were now in control, and although Senator Jones and Governor Stone, of Missouri, desired and attempted several times to read Mr. Bryan's dispatch, they were refused the opportunity to do so.

Stone was crowded off the platform by the chairman once, who maintained that a Democrat had no right to address the convention.

J. B. Weaver placed Bryan in nomination for president, making an earnest speech in favor of uniting all the hosts of reform to fight the forces of gold and monopoly. The nomination of Bryan was seconded by fifty others, including middle of the road men.

Call, of New York, nominated Col. Norton, of Chicago.

Debbs refused to permit the use of his as also did Coxey. Bryan received 1042 votes to 312 for Norton with 11 scattering. Bryan was declared the nominee and the convention adjourned.

Weaver's Speech Nominating Mr. Bryan.

"Mr. Chairman: I arise before you this morning, in my judgment feeling it it to be the most critical period that has ever occurred in the Populist party. I know I have in my heart but one aspiration or lingering intention—to do nothing in this convention or say one word in this presence that would militate against the growth, strength, security and purpose of the Populist party. I may say I have two aspirations in connection with that party. The first is incorporated with my life work. This is to preserve, untarnished and unbroken, the principles we have contended for during the last twenty years. (Applaus.) Gentlemen, I do not want any one to charge that my second purpose is to preserve the organization for its present and future usefulness in every part of this Union. You have all read the papers this morning. You have read the manly dispatch from the Democratic nominee for president, Hon. William J. Bryan. (Applause.) No man could have done less and be a man. His manly attitude concering the action of this convention we must all respect, and every member of it who reads the proceedings of this convention must do the same. But, my fellow citizens, this question has reached a point where neither Mr. Bryan nor his personal friends have any right whatever to say what the action of this convention shall be. This is a greater question than the personality of candidates, and I as an individual tell you that as a fact. Last night, after I had read the telegrams from Mr. Bryan, I refused, and I here and now utterly refuse, to confer either with Mr. Bryan or Mr. Jones, as to who shall be the nominee of this convention. (Loud applause.) That is a matter that we have a right to determine for ourselves. It is the relief of millions of people that is at stake. Now, then, I am here to do but one thing, and to ask consideration and attention from this convention to that one thing. I know, if I know anything, that I am proceeding on right lines. You know how long I fought in that behalf. Listen now to what I have to say. I have been your standerd bearer, and I know I was undeserving. In 1880 I was your choice, and twelve years afterward, unsolicted, you made me your standard bearer in 1892. I did my best. I did all I could with the means at my command to support your principles among the people. Now I stand here in this juncture of our party's history and I shall proceed to deliver my conviction deliberately upon the condition of affairs and ask that you will pardon me, although an extemporaneous speaker for more than forty years, and permit me to read from a manuscript what I have to say.

"In that midnight discussion between Brutus and Cassius concerning the contemplated battle at Phillippi, Brutus urged that their cause was ripe, their fortunes brimful at the height and ready to decline. Said he:

"'There is a tide in the affairs of men
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune;
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and miseries.'

"And then in a dramatic climax, he exclaimed:

"'On such a full sea are we now afloat.
And we must take the current when it serves,
Or lose our ventures.'

"For twenty years we have been pleading with the people to espouse the sacred cause which is at stake in this campaign. We have constantly urged through good and through evil report that our principles were more important than party associations; were above all considerations of private fortune or the petty and feverish ambitions of men. We have thus far suited our action to our words, made through five presidential campaigns, stretching from 1876 to 1892. You correctly estimated the purpose of old party managers, and events have sustained every specification in your indictment against them. Millions of honest men within old party ranks were deceived, lured into ambush and betrayed. But not a single one of your pickets has ever been caught napping or been taken by surprise. To your devoted efforts is largely due the revival of economic learning in this country, which has enabled the Democratic party to assume the present admirable attitude. Your work now promises much to mankind, and is about to break forth in complete victory of the industrial masses. Though oft repulsed by the multitude whom we have liberated, though crucified in return for our kindness, yet through it all we have steadily confided in the righteousness of our cause and the final good sense of the people. We still believe that this nation has a mission to perform which bad men will not be permitted to destroy, and recent events indicate that the nineteenth century is not, after all, to close with friends of freedom despondent in the western hemisphere.

"This country has recently witnessed a new pentacost and received another baptism of fire. The recent convention at Chicago sounded a bugle call for union, which can neither be misunderstood nor go unheeded. In patriotic utterances and action it swept away all middle ground and opened the way to a formidable organic alliance. They not only made union possible; thank heaven, but they have rendered it inevitable.

"From every beginnig our organization days made party feeling subordinate to principle. We will not here reverse ourselves and refuse to accept victory now so easily within our reach. We will not refuse the proffered assistance of at least three million free silver Republicans simply because they have shown the good sense to come with an organized army fully equipped and manned for battle. Let them have their own divisions and army corps. Let them manifest their own esprit de corps. The field of glory is open to all competitors who are fighting for the same principles.

"The Populists have already shown their prowess in many engagements during twenty years of struggle. If our allies can strike sturdier blows at plutocracy than we can; if they can scale the battlements of the gold power more gallantly than our old veterans and are able to plant their colors one foot nearer the citadel of the enemy than we can ourselves, let every Populist cheer and support them in their heroic work. We will all march under the flag, keep step to the same music, face the same foe, share in and shout over the same triumph.

"We cannot be mistaken concerning the real issue involved in the struggle of the present year. It is between the gold standard, gold bonds and bank currency on the one hand, and the bi-metallic standard, no bonds and government currency on the other. The people are asked to choose between enforced idleness, destitution, debt, bankruptcy and despair on the one side, and an open door of opportunity under just laws and normal conditions on the other. The situation presents the mightiest civic question that ever convulsed a civilized nation. The conflict can neither be postponed nor avoided. In the name of the suffering people, I affirm that this is no time for dissension nor party divisions. The supreme hour for action has arrived. If we would be victorious we must make common cause with the heroic men who dominated the Chicago convention. No other course is either prudent or desirable. We are not asked to abandon our party, nor would it be wise to do so. If it is to be preserved we will, in my judgment, be compelled to that course which I am about to indicate.

The silver Democrats have lined up as an organization. Now let the Populists, free silver Republicans and the American silver party do likewise. From an embattled square—impenetrable to the assaults of the confederated gold power. After due consideration, in which I have fully canvassed every possible phase of the subject, I have failed to find a single good reason to justify us in placing a third ticket in the field. The exigencies of the hour imperatively demand that there shall be but one. I would not endorse the distinguished gentlemen named at Chicago. I would nominate them outright and make them our own and then share justly and rightfully in their election. The situation is a striking verification of the old adage, that 'the path of duty is the path of safety.' Take this course and all opposition will practically disappear in the southern and western states, and we can then turn our attention to other parts of the field. Take any other and you endanger the whole situation and strengthen the arm of our common adversary.

"If you allow the present happy juncture to pass, all the heroic work of twenty years will be thrown to the winds. Our guiding hand will disappear in the momentous conflict just when it should be stretched forth to steady the ark of our covenant. We would prove to the world that we are devoid of capacity to grasp great opportunities and lacking in strength to grapple with prodigious emergencies. The people have a gallant champion in the field, who is leading a revolt against the plutocracy of Christendom. Every oppressor, every plutocrat in two hemispheres has turned his guns upon him. The subsidized organs have openly proclaimed that he must be crushed by any means at whatever cost. The confederated monopolies have laid aside their parties and their politics and are marching in hot haste against him. Let us signal to him to hold the fort—that we are coming—and then hasten to his relief. Gentlemen, I want to say to you in all earnestness, that assailed as is this gallant knight by the sleuthhounds of the money power of the world, you may deliberate here as long as you please, but you cannot prevent the people from rushing to the support of their recognized defender and leader. If you will not say the word, they will break over all restraints and go themselves, leaders or no leaders, and may God bless them for so doing.

"Therefore, in obedience to my highest conceptions to duty, with a solemn conviction that I am right, I place in nomination for the presidency of the United States a distinguished gentleman, who, let it be remembered, has already been three times endorsed by the Populist party of his own state—once for representative in congress, once for United States senator and only last week for the presidency. I name that matchless champion of the people, that interpid foe of the corporate greed, that splendid young statesman, William J. Bryan, of Nebraska.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Democratic County Committee Meets and Calls a Convention.

The Democratic county convention, to select delegates to attend the state convention, has been called to meet August 8th at Port Angeles.

A telegram was received from Hon. Thomas Malony, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, Monday stating that the Democratic state convention would meet on August 12th, 1896.

The short time thus allowed to prepare for a county convention required quick work, so Chairman H. B. Willson, of the County Central Committee, hastily summoned as many members of the executive committee as were accessable and they went into session at Democratic headquarters. About a dozen were present. Chairman Willson presided.

It was decided that the county convention should be held August 8th, 1896, at 2 o'clock p. m., and the primaries on August 6th.

It was provided that the central committeemen in country precincts could provide for holding their primaries at an earlier date if it were more convenient so to do.

The appointment of delegates was fixed at one at large for each precincts, one for each ten votes cast for Hon. B. F. Heuston at the last election and one for each fraction thereof of five or more votes so cast. The appointment is the same as that for the convention held last May. The precinct representation will be seen in the "call" which is published this week.

The convention will be to select delegates to the state convention only. It was decided by the committee that it would be too early to hold the convention for the nomination of a county ticket.

McKinley and Hobart Club.

A McKinley & Hobart Club was organized Saturday night at Thompson's hall. Judge J. G. McClinton was elected president; B. C. Keller, secretary; Thad Wagner, assistant secretary; D. W. Morse, treasurer; and Chas. Beam, sergeant-at-arms. Six vice-presidents, one from each ward, were also elected.

The permanent officers were designated as the executive committee.

Messrs. Ellsworth, Carrigan, Stanley, Cole and Dorsey were appointed a committee to report on constitution and bylaws at next meeting.

Three cheers were then given for the Republican nominees and the meeting then adjourned.

Last summer one of our grandchildren was sick with a severe bowel complaint. Our doctor's remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo. This certainly is the best medicine ever put on the market for dysentery, summer complaint, colic and cholera infantum in children. It never fails to give prompt relief when used in reasonable time and the plain, printed directions are followed. Many mothers have expressed their sincere gratitude for the cures it has effected. TO OUR READERS.

The present political campaign is of uttermost importance to the people of every section of this country. Especially does it concern the interests of the citizens of the great West.

The Republican party has declared most positively for a continuation of the policy that has brought devastation to those industries which are the bulwarks of our country. They have said that Americans are impotent to legislate for themselves. They propose to fasten upon the people for all time the rule of the money changer. They have nominated for president a man who is bound hand and foot to the monied interests of the country. They have put his campaign in the keeping of millionaires whose opposition to labor and whose adhesion to the conditions that have wrung their millions from a patient people is well known. These people have boasted that they will raise a corruption fund of $10,000,000 with which to consummate their plot.

The people, represented in the Democratic convention at Chicago, the Populist convention and the Silver convention at St. Louis, after a campaign, fought out at the primaries, more thorough than any in the history of the Nation, have accepted the issue. They propose to reclaim the rights that have been wrested from them and given as privileges to be enjoyed by those who have paid the price.

In this fight the DEMOCRAT-LEADER has enlisted. Until the close of the campaign all its energies will be devoted to the cause of the masses as promulgated by these conventions of the people. The extent of these efforts of necessity depends much on the assistance rendered by its readers. Printers must be paid. The expense of running a newspaper is large. Therefore, the DEMOCRAT-LEADER asks those who sympathize with it in its fight for the cause of liberty to assist as much as possible.

The subscription price has been reduced, until after election at least, to one dollar a year, fifty cents for six months.

A discount of 50 per cent. will be given to those who are in arrears if paid now.

So, the DEMOCRAT-LEADER asks that every effort be made by its subscribers to square their accounts and to pay for one year or six months in advance.

It asks that readers do all they can to extend its circulation. It is its desire that it be put into the hands of every voter in Clallam County for the campaign.

As was announced last week, the business management of the paper has been placed in the hands of Mr. A. J. Cosser, a young man of splendid abilities and unbounded integrity. All bills due and to be come due should be paid to him. He will also pay all bills contracted by the paper since July 20th.

A FRANK CONFESSION.

It has been said that "a frank confession is good for the soul." If this be true, the New York Sun must be in possession of a much improved conscience.

In discussing the possibility of a victory for free silver coinage and a method by which those who hold money could follow that the might not lose by the change of standards, the Sun says:

"The owners of real estate and of tangible personal property will neither lose no gain by any alteration in the money standard. Hence every one who has money at his disposal can protect himself against loss through free silver by converting his money into land, houses and merchandise of various kinds. If, besides, he borrows more money and uses it for the purpose, he will make a profit on the transaction at the expense of the man from whom he borrows. Under the reign of silver at 16 to 1, a farm or a house and lot now worth $10,000 will be worth $20,000; a bushel of wheat now selling for 50 cents will sell for $1, and sugar, coffee, tea and similar articles will advance in the same proportion."

This why the people favor free coinage. The free silver advocates maintain, (and who is there to dispute it), that what the country needs more than anything else, that prosperity might follow, is that money be invested in trade and commerce.

Under present conditions, money is hoarded because there is more profit to the holder to keep it than to invest it. Farm lands and every product of labor are constantly going down in price. Therefore, it pays better to keep one's money than to invest it. If prices should advance there would then be more profit in business.

Now the Sun admits that if we had free silver money it would become necessary for him who holds money to quit his nefarious occupation and go into legitimate business.

Buy land, it says.

What would that mean?

It would mean a market for lands, of course.

Buy houses.

That would also mean a market for land and for lumber, nails and everything that enters into the construction of houses.

Buy merchandise.

And thereby make a market for wool and all kinds of farm produce and other products of labor.

Then you have the wheels of industry in motion, an opportunity to earn a living and to make a fair profit on your property.

Vote for free silver coinage and those who have money will follow the Sun's advice. Then, and then only, will we have prosperity.

THE New York Journal has analyzed the list of "bolting Democratic newspapers" which is going the rounds of the Republican press. It shows that about one-third of the papers are not nor never were Democratic in politics. Another third of them have not bolted, and about two-thirds of the remaining third are fighting McKinley harder than they are Bryan.

REPUBLICANS have got no further in the "campaign of education" than to call the Democrats anarchists, repudiationists and crazy lunatics. And the great silver movement continues to move.

JAMES G. BLAINE ON SILVER.

Extract from a speech delivered in 1880.

"I believe the struggle now going on in this country and in other countries for a single gold standard would, if successful, produce widespread disaster in and throughout the commercial world. The destruction of silver as money, and establishing gold as the sole unit of value, must have a ruinous effect on all forms of property except those investments which yield a fixed return in money. Those would be enormously enhanced in value, and would gain a disproportionate and unfair advantage over every other species of property. If, as the most reliable statistics affirm, there is nearly seven billion dollars of coin or ballion in the world, very equally divided between gold and silver, it is impossible to strike silver out of existence as money without results that will prove distressing to millions and utterly disastrous to tens of thousands.

"I believe gold and silver coin to be the money of the constitution, indeed, the money of the American people anterior to the constitution, which the great organic law recognized as quite independent of its own existence. No power was conferred in Congress to declare either money should not be money. Congress has, therefore, in my judgment, no power to demonetize either. If, therefore, silver has been demonetized, I am in favor of remonetizing it. If its coinage has been prohibited, I am in favor of ordering it to be resumed. I am in favor of having it enlarged."

A COUNTY FAIR.

There can be no question but that the Beaver Leader is right in suggesting that great good came from the fair held in this county last year. The enterprising citizens who inaugurated and carried to a successful conclusion the first Clallam County fair did much more for the county than would appear at first glance. The claims that had been made for our county in the way of natural resources were demonstrated to be true. In fact, it was found that much more was true than had ever been claimed.

A better fair could be given this year in every particular than last year. The crops are universally better, and the exhibit last year set people to thinking of other things that could be shown to the advantage of our county.

It is certainly to be hoped that the good work commenced last year may be continued this year.

A LITTLE more than a month ago James Hamilton Lewis asked the P.-I. some pointed questions. They have not yet been answered. Can't the Republican organ do it satisfactorily to itself?

NOT A CORPORATION LAWYER.

The Republican story that Mr. Bryan is a railroad attorney has been effectually disposed of. Jas. Creelman of the New York World, and Mr. A. R. Talbot, Mr. Bryan's law partner, have shown that this too is a campaign lie.

They say that when Mr. Bryan and Mr. Talbot formed their partnership, Mr. Talbot was attorney for the Missouri Pacific railroad, that Bryan urged him to give it up, but Talbot refused, whereupon it was agreed that the railroad business should be Mr. Talbot's personal affair and that Mr. Bryan would not have anything to do with it or share in the profits. In fact, Mr. Bryan was attorney in many cases against the Missouri Pacific in which his partner was counsel for the railroad company. It may be added that Mr. Bryan won most of these cases.

This is not all. Bryan was offered a salary of $10,000 per annum to represent the Standard Oil Company, after completing his term in Congress, but he refused the offer, prefering to choose his clients and take less money.

WELL DONE.

The Populist National Convention did well. The Populists recognized the condition and they arose equal to the occasion. To have done otherwise than they did would have been to jeopardize the people's cause.

Now there is but one question before the American people. It is either McKinley and monopoly or Bryan and equality before the law. There can be no doubt about the action of the American people. Their good sense and patriotism will unquestionably prevail. They will choose William Jennings Bryan to be their president.

DISAPPOINTED in its hope that the endorsement of Bryan by the Populists would be prevented by Mr. Hanna, the P.-I. is now trying its hand at manipulating a Populist convention. It is seeking to prevent the union of the silver forces in this state by patting the Populists on the back and urging them to retain their identity by staying in the middle of the road. If we mistake not, the Populists of this state understand the P.-I. too well to pay much attention to it.

CHARLES F. FISHBACK, the eloquent Seattle orator, who has for several years been the chief reliance of the Republicans on the hustings of this state, is supporting Bryan and Sewall, and will take the stump for silver this year. His first speech will be at the Seattle Bryan ratification meeting.

DUNGENESS, July 27th, 1896.

Editor Democrat-Leader:

DEAR SIR—Your Dungeness correspondent in last week's edition has been filling the column with considerable misleading church news which the good people of Dungeness resent, and as in the past will resolutely relegate an imposter to a back seat and eventually from the community altogether. It is a fact that no minister of the gospel of any other faith than that of the M. E. Church can come, or even think of coming, into this community than this selfsame imposter misconstrues motives and puts himself immediately on the defensive. Notwithstanding he is quite willing to accept aid for his support from the very element he publicly abuses.

The friends of Mr. Lamoreux have for a long time been pressing him with warm invitations to visit Sequim and Dungeness and no sooner has he set a date to address the people than he is at once maligned and the purpose of his visit better known to this correspondent of yours than even Mr. Lamoreux himself. Of course, the Methodists were not consulted regarding his coming and as they consider the Dungeness field holy ground to themselves they are very jealous of any reverend gentleman stepping into their "croquet ground." Knowing the difficulties and failures in the past to have other ministers invited to preach from the Methodist pulpit, in this instance they were not consulted. Mr. Lamoreux stated to the large congregation he addressed at Dungeness, that he regretted and felt sorry his visit was, through the public press, misconstrued. He did not come into this community to organize a church. Such a thing was never thought of. He came to fill a promise and fulfill an invitation. He believed in church unity for Dungeness, and this thought since his departure has been taken up by all who heard him. The community generally and those who have been insulted and driven from the Methodist church, will give their hearty support to a union church, which people of every belief may come to worship and where no throne will be tolerated for a "pope of Dungeness."

He claims to have a process for saving the gold superior to the Banta machine. He left Monday, but expects to return in a week or ten days.

Marine Band Dance.

The ball given last Friday under the auspices of the Washington Marine Band was a most delightful affair. He declared himself highly pleased with his week's outing and says that he has been handling the rod for twenty-five years and has fished in nearly every lake of any note in the Northwest, but for fishing and magnificent scenery he never saw any place that could by any possible stretch of imagination be made to compare with Lakes Sutherland and Crescent.

Mr. Deveral took home a large number of speckled beauties which he caught, and says we may expect a number of his sporting friends over in the near future.

He was much pleased with the people whom he met here, and declared they are the most hospitable that he ever saw.

Why

Do people buy Hood's Sarsaparilla in preference to any other,—in fact almost to the exclusion of all others?

Because

They know from actual use that Hood's is the best, i. e., it cures when others fail. Hood's Sarsaparilla is still made under the personal supervision of the educated pharmacists who originated it.

The question of best is just as positively decided in favor of Hood's as the question of comparative sales.

Another thing: Every advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla is true, is honest.

Scribner's Magazine, August, 1896.

The Fiction number of Scribner's Magazine contains six short stories and a little comedy, in addition to several special articles of wide popular interest, including the first paper in Mr. A. F. Jaccaci's picturesque account of his journey "On the Trail of Don Quixote," and Mrs. Alice Morse Earle's "Old Gardens," describing the old-fashioned flower-gardens that still persist in some New England villages.

Artistically, this issue contains several features new to magazine audiences. Vierge, the great French illustrator, seldom seen in periodicals, has made twenty-five drawings for the Don Quixote article that are his very best work. He will furnish abundant pictures for two more articles describing Mr. Jaccaci's interesting tour in La Mancha. Miss Cecilia Beaux, an American painter who has achieved distinction also in France, furnishes the frontispiece of this number—her first illustration for any magazine. Another artistic novelty is the series of marginal illustrations and decorative borders, printed in two colors and filling sixteen pages. Orson Lowell, whose reputation has been made as an illustrator by his work in this magazine, has made these unique drawings to accompany a brilliant little play by Anne Eliot called "As Strangers."

The cover, printed in twelve colors, is from a drawing by Will H. Low, and is the most elaborate ever made for an American periodical.

The short stories in this issue are all by American writers, and, as is the custom with Scribner's Fiction Number, sever new names appear that are likely to be heard from. It is a notable fact that many story-writers now eminent made their first appearance in these fiction numbers!

"Charm He Never So Wisely" is the first magazine story of Eleanor Stuart—a tale of great beauty describing the love of a famous tenor for a princess. George W. Cable, whose reputation was won by his short stories, contributes "Gregory's Island," a powerful study of the reformation of a drunkard.

CLALLAM'S HOT SPRINGS

Have Stirred Up a Spirit of Contest.

NOT A MYTHICAL HEALTH RESORT.

"Charley Jones Fitzpatrick" Protests Against Granting Them to Any Individual, But the Land Office Decision is to the Effect That the Guileless Fitzpatrick's Allegations Are Not Sufficiently Backed Up By Facts to Justify Withholding a Patent to the Homesteader.

Buried in the heart of the Olympic mountains is a remarkable set of mineral springs, said to cure any ills that flesh is heir to, and also alleged to be at this time visited by large numbers of people, and to be known as one of the most noted health resorts in the Pacific northwest. Chas. Jones Fitzpatrick has some kind of a claim upon these springs and he has asked the government to investigate the waters of the spring and reserve the land about it from sale and set it apart for the use and benefit of a suffering public.

These springs are alleged to exist several miles south of Lake Crescent, across a big mountain, and are within the boundaries of section 32, township 29 north, range 9 west. The matter came to the notice of the government by a protest made by Fitzpatrick to the allowance of a homestead entry of Harry J. Moritz, covering the land about the springs. When the protest was presented at the Seattle land office the local officials were in a quandary how to proceed, as the plat showed no record of springs or minerals, and so sent all papers to Washington City, suspending all action. They have just been returned, and the case disposed of. The government sees no reason why it should interefere to set off these alleged springs for the good of sick humanity Mr. Lamoreux, referring to the protest, says:

"The protest is sworn to, but is not corroborated. It says that in section 32, township 29, range 9 west, are a large number of very valuable hot and cold mineral springs, possessing medical virtues, which are visited by large numbers of people, who use the waters for the cure or alleviation of rheumatism, neuralgia and many other diseases, and that because of the curative powers of these waters, the said springs are now one of the best known health resorts in the Pacific Northwest. That section 32, in which these springs are situated, is now open to the public, which has free access to the springs."

In a supplemental protest or affidavit, Fitzpatrick alleges that there is coal and saline land in section 32, and that coal has been found in four places in the township. Attached to the affidavit is a diploma awarded "Charley Jones" for the best exhibit of anthracite coal at the Clallam county fair ot 1895, which coal he says came from the township.

The commissioner says that lands containing mineral springs are subject to disposal under the agricultural land laws in the regular way. Protestant does not state what proportion of saline matter is contained in them, nor that they are valuable for their salt, and does not make allegations specific enough or sufficient to warrant any action by the general land office.

The same is true as to the allegations of anthracite coal. Protestant does not say that the coal is valuable for fuel, or that it is used for fuel, or that the land is more valuable for coal than for agriculture, or that the diploma given on coal by Clallam county was on coal mined in section 32. Moritz' claim is to be allowed.—Seattle Times.

We desire to say that mineral springs do exist as indicated in the protest.

"Charley Jones Fitzpatrick" may have been a little lame in making his allegations specific enough, but that mineral springs exist there is no question. It is by no means a "mythical health resort," but a real live one. Charley Jones Fitzpatrick is clearly of the opinion that they are about as big as the Geysers, of Yellow Stone Park, but of that there are conflicting views. He evidently has a heart that bleeds for the ills of suffering humanity and to that extent he calls forth our deepest brotherly love.

However, we are inclined to be a little careful about pouring forth our wealth of affection upon this paragon of philanthropy, for the only "mythical" feature of the whole business is "Charley Jones Fitzpatrick." We've been around these 'ere parts for quite a spell, but we have never had the pleasure of meeting the honorable Fitzpatrick. In fact, we have never heard of such a man. It may be that some gentlemen of the Irish nobility has been lurking in our midst all unawares and has consented only in the cause of rheumatic humanity to make his identity known.

But there is much less uncertainty about the springs themselves. They lie just south of Lake Crescent, in the Solduck valley. To reach them one must cross the lake and start directly west and wind around the west base of the mountain separating the lake and valley, which, in a bee line, are distant apart something less than six miles, but by trail it is a good fifteen mile trip.

There are several springs in the group. The water of several is so hot that it is impossible to bath in it without it being moderated. That they possess strong medical properties there is no question. During the past three years a large number of persons have been greatly relieved by use of the water. Capt. Morgan, of the steamer Evangel thinks they are the greatest springs on earth.

Last summer he spent several weeks there. He had been sadly afflicted with rheumatism, but be came away thoroughly cured. When he started for the springs he could hardly walk or lift an arm and when he came out he declared he felt like a young man and could carry as big a load as the best of them.

They have been known, also to affect some wonderful cures of skin diseases and as an efficient anti-fat they are unequaled. If the editor of the Times will come down we will take him out and convince him of the superior qualities of the springs, and give him some excellent trout fishing at the same time.

Then he will wish that he had never doubted and scoffed us.

BRYAN AND SEWALL.

The Silver Convention Endorses the Action of the Chicago Convention.

The silver convention was in session last week at St. Louis, having adjourned Friday evening. It was composed of nearly 1,000 delegates from all over the Union. Most of them were old line Republicans. From the commencement it was plain that there would be an endorsement of Bryan and Sewall.

Congressman Newlands, of Nevada, was temporary chairman and W. P. St. John, the New York free silver banker, was permanent chairman.

The convention adopted a one issue silver platform. Speeches were made throughout the three days' session. A permanent party organization was effected and Bryan and Sewall unanimously endorsed for president and vice-president. A vigorous campaign of education was decided upon.

DOUBLE DEATH.

Robert Stark and Abe Tinkey, of Sequim, Succomb to Alcohol.

Word was received here Wednesday afternoon that Robert Stark and Abe Tinkey, of Sequim, were dead from the effects of wood alcohol. Both were hard drinkers. They were found on the bed in Stark's house, but too far gone to be saved. Stark was the postmaster at Sequim.

Tinkey was a man of unusual intelligence. He was from Michigan, and is thought to have a son living in Saginaw in that state. He came out here in the employ of Merrill & Bliss, the great lumber men. Whisky ruined him.

Mallette Party.

Mrs. C. E. Mallette and her Victoria guests, Misses Cameron, Speers and Robinson, united in entertaining a large number of their Angeles friends at Mrs. Mallette's residence last evening. The front of the house was prettily decorated with chinese lanterns.

During the evening Miss Cameron read a splendid review of the works of Charles Dickens. A prominent feature of the evening was the contest participated in by all of answering about 100 questions written out beforehand. They covered the whole range of creation. Mrs. Carusi came out victorious and received a handsome bottle of perfume as her reward for auswering more than anyone else. Refreshments were served about midnight. Songs and recitations then filled out the early morning hours. There were present:

Mr. and Mrs. Carusi, Mr. and Mrs. G. Meagher, Mr. and Mrs. Strong, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, Mrs. Brewster, Mrs. Lutz, Misses Cook, Guptill, Lutz, Fuller, Edith Cook; Messrs. Embree, Smith, Cole, Grimes, Miller and White.

Angeles vs. Victoria.

The Olympic Base Ball nine went over to Victoria Saturday and gained new laurels by their excellent playing. The club is made up of the boys who expect to win the Examiner trophy, and the Victoria game demonstrates that they stand a good chance to secure the prize. The Victoria nine was made up of the best ametures in that city. It took ten innings to decide the contest, our boys winning by a score of 2 to 1.
