SHOULD PASS HONOR AROUND

Jeffersonians Refuse to Disgrace Fair Name of County Forever.

Many of the people of Jefferson county, those who knew Mr. Bishop best, hoped that he would see the error of his ways and eventually withdraw as an independent candidate for the joint senatorship. But it seems, according to the Post-Intelligencer in reporting an interview with Mr. Bishop, that he is not to be deterred from his purpose, but that he is in the race to stay to the finish.

The Port Townsend papers continue to pour hot shot into Mr. Bishop's campaign. The Call says that the only persons in Jefferson county who have any "hope for Mr. Bishop's success is the firm of Bishop & Bishop, composed of William Bishop of Chimacum, and William Bishop of Chimacum."

We also quote from the Call:

There is probably no citizen in any of the three counties comprising the joint-senatorial district who is not ambitious to see the western part of Washington progress and prosper. Nor is there any man who will claim that success in anything can be attained without unanimity of action. Anything that tends to divide one section against the other is not conducive to the good of either.

Clallam county is looking at Jefferson county with eager expectancy at the present moment to see what stand the majority here is to take on the senatorial question. They will wait to see if Jefferson is to debase herself by repudiating the regular nominee, or whether she will be found in the right place when the ballots are counted. San Juan is waiting with justification, to see whether or not Jefferson is going to offer the insult of repudiating their chosen son in the race for the toga. And combined with these are the straight forward people of all parties in Jefferson who are holding their breath for fear that Jefferson may, through some terrible mistake forever degrade and debase herself in the eyes of the state at large.

Neither persons nor personalities should enter into this feature of the campaign. The issue is simply this: the regular nominee of the regular convention opposed through the independent candidacy of the man who went down to defeat in that convention. What makes the possible crime more heinous is the fact that the man who is thus going against all precedents of honorable politics has, times without number, been signally honored by the party he now seeks to disrupt and destroy.

It does not appear to any unbiased observer why Jefferson county should always hold the senatorship. The honor has twice come here and there is no earthly reason why it should not be passed around. Clallam and San Juan had more rights respectively to ask the honor this year than did Jefferson for the reason stated. Is Jefferson then to merit the title which has been quietly whispered—that of being a hog?

Jefferson should be saved from the impending catastrophe by the voters, and The Call confidently believes that when election day comes around, the count of the ballots will show that there is honor in the county, and that the fair name of Jefferson is not to be forever disgraced.

Road Fund Bonds.

The official ballot for the coming election will contain one very important proposition, which the voter, in his desire to select the best men from the various candidates, should not overlook. This is the matter of issuing bonds to the extent of $34,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary, to cancel the outstanding general road fund warrants of the county. There is already approximately $8,500 interest, due and unpaid, on warrants amounting to $24,632, and it is for the purpose of stopping this interest that the bonds are proposed by the county Board. The bonds are to be exchanged at not less than par value for warrants and interest or sold at not less than par value and the proceeds used for payment of warrants. A lower rate of interest will be thus secured, and the road fund placed on a cash basis.

The contract for grading Laurel, between First and Front streets, was let this morning to Woods and Johnson, they to do the filling at 35c per yard. They will fill from the Morse corner, and finish with broken stone from quarry.

Democratic Meetings

The democrats will open the campaign with a big rally at Port Crescent Saturday evening, Oct. 20. Meetings will also be held at East Clallam on Thursday, Oct. 25th; at Forks, Friday, Oct. 26; Quillayute, Saturday, Oct. 27th, and at Tyee, Sunday, Oct. 28th. The meetings will be addressed by local candidates and others. Turn out and hear the political issues discussed in a fair and impartial manner.

Republican Meetings

At East Clallam Monday Oct 22; Beaver, Oct. 23d; Forks, Oct. 24th; Quillayute, Oct. 25th; Port Crescent, Oct. 27th; Seguin, Nov. 2; Dungeness, Nov. 3; Port Angeles, Nov. 5th. Local candidates will address these meetings.

COUNCILMAN COWAN

Elected Tuesday Night to Represent Sixth. Ward.

Mayor made verbal report in matter of possible water supply, that measurements by engineers showed the combined flow of Ennis and Lake creeks to be aproximately 500 cubic feet per minute and that of Little river 550 cubic feet per minute, thus settling the disputed question of water supply and leaving the probable cost of each proposed system the chief matter to be considered by the council, which is now awaiting returns on their application for a water right on Lake Creek.

Bid of Brown & Lewis to supply wood for electric light plant accepted, the price being $2.50 her cord, one-fourth first and three-fourths second growth fir.

Ordinance fixing tax levy was adopted.

New crossing ordered on Front, east side of Laurel.

Geo. Cowan was elected to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Councilman Bown of sixth ward.

Bills allowed: Lumber, $33.26; supplies, $10 50.

BAKER BURGLARIZED

Bricks and Cordwood the Modern Instruments of Profession.

The periodical burglary occurred at Baker & Son's on schedule time on Wednesday night and, as usual, only a few articles were taken. Bricks were thrown thru the rear window, next the door, which was then easily opened, but after considerable effort prying open an inside door, fastened by hook and staple, the burglars became bolder and, going around to the front heaved a chunk of wood thru a large glass and gained admittance. So far, Mr. Baker has missed two or three fine revolvers and two gold watches. Other revolvers and watches, field glasses, guns, and fine tools were not molested, showing the people were not after plunder for profit, but had conceived a desire for a watch and revolver apiece and took that as an easy and safe means of getting them. This is the third time the store has been broken into in eighteen months.

SALE BROUGHT $4253.00

Spirited Bidding a Surprise to Treasurer Burnside.

The sale of lands, and lots in various so-called additions, which had been advertised in these columns for the past three weeks, was held Tuesday, being well attended and very satisfactory in results to the county officials. Fifty-three pieces of acreage were sold, varying from three-fourths acre upwards. Also lots and blocks in twenty-four additions to Angeles and Crescent. The total receipts were $4258.00. The P. S. Mills & Timber Co., Filion Mill & Lumber Co., Comomox Land Co., and R. D. Merrill and Merrill, Ring, Bliss Co., the latter being represented by Jno. Trumbull, were the largest buyers. Dr. W. B. Wells of Hoquiam, C. D. Allen, T. S. Brophy, Geo. W. Thompson, and W. J. Ware, were among the local buyers.

The registration books closed Tuesday, with a total of 488 entitled to vote at the coming election, or practically the same number as in previous years. The various wards are: 1st, 88; 2nd, 92; 3rd, 42; 4th, 91; 5th, 103; 6th, 72.

MAKES GOOD IMPRESSION

John L. Blair Makes Many Friends On Trip Thru Clallam County

The opening rally held by the republicans at the opera house last evening was well attended, the audience being very attentive and enthusiastic as well. Judge Hatch, as chairman, made a brief forceful address in opening the meeting and introducing the speakers, Senator Piles, Lieut.-Gov. Coon, and Mr. Blair. The Senator's address was devoted chiefly to an outlining of the principles and record of his party, pointing out the prosperity of the day and explaining the reasons therefor. He believed a change in control would again result in panic and a period of hard times such as prevailed during Cleveland's administration, which he charged entirely to the party then in power. His address was forceful, the points being well made, and his delivery such that it was a pleasure to listen to him.

Both Senator Piles and Lieut.-Governor Coon spoke of the attempt to divide the republican ranks in the question of joint senatorship. They believed Mr. Blair should have every vote of his party, not only because he is the candidate of the party of prosperity, nominated in regular convention, but because he is thoroly competent and capable to represent the district with credit to himself and to the people of the West Side. They told how Mr. Bishop, being honestly defeated, had openly congratulated Mr Blair, promising to assist him in the campaign; that he had been invited to speak in San Juan county and had accepted the invitation, finally, at the last moment, wiring it was impossible to go and giving no real reason for his default.

Mr. Blair undoubtedly made many friends by his visit to our city. A pleasant, honest, courtly gentleman of advanced years, his face and bearing showed him to be of that type of American citizenship upon whose patriotism and honest efforts the success of our country has ever depended. He stated he was just a plain farmer, making no pretense of being anything else; that he did not seek the nomination, nor know it was to be tendered to him until the night before the county convention. He said that upon arriving at Seattle he was surprised and pleased to learn that Clallam's candidate was a son of one of his old friends in Minnesota; there was no rivalry between Mr. Farmer and himself; when it became apparent each county was ambitious to secure the senatorship, and a deadlock was likely to result, Mr. Farmer had withdrawn, with a gallantry characteristic of the family, in favor of the older man and he had been chosen. Mr. Blair also addressed a few words to his soldier friends, stating he had been with Sherman on his march to the sea, and asking his comrades to stand by him now. Prior to coming west he had lived in Minnesota, where he had at one time been honored by a place in the state legislature. In short, every word indicated a plain, truthful gentleman of the old school, one who is entitled to the support of every voter of his party, and who will do his level best to care for the interests of the district, should he be elected.

UNION PACIFIC WILL CONDEMN RIGHT-OF-WAY

Seattle, Oct. 17.—Rejecting right of way proposals from J. J. Hill and private property owners, and failing to secure favorable consideration of its application for a franchise on Fourth avenue, the Union Pacific, through its corporation in this state, the Oregon & Washington Railroad Company, has filed thirty petitions in the superior court for condemnation of a right of way strip ninety feet wide along Fifth avenue south. The avowed purpose is to secure a right of way for a distance of nearly two miles, crossing the holdings of nearly fifty property owners, the heaviest of which is the Great Northern, through its subsidiary corporation, the Seattle & Montana.

The route is the same one as that offered by J. J. Hill, of the Great Northern and private property owners, but is sixty feet wider than the one tendered.

LABOR TROUBLE IS FIXED UP

Chicago Contractors and Labor Unions Come Together.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—A threatened tie-up of the building operations in Chicago was averted at a conference between members of the Building Contractors' League and representatives of the plumbers' and steamfitters' unions. The trouble came because of strikes ordered by both the plumbers and the steamfitters over the right to install pneumatic tubing. The contractors threatened to lock out the plumbers and steamfitters unless they settled the trouble among themselves.

TYPHOON DAMAGE

TEN THOUSAND LIVES LOST IN RECENT STORM.

Forty-Seven Steamers and Sailing Vessels Wrecked or Damaged—Property Loss About $20,000,000----Empress of Japan Brings News.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 16.—Ten thousand lives were blotted out, forty-seven steamships and sailing vessels wrecked or badly damaged, a thousand junks swamped, turned over or battered to pieces against the stone walls of the Praya; 80 per cent of the lighters, launches, yachts, houseboats and small native craft entirely destroyed; many wharves wrecked, many damaged, as the result of a typhoon lasting but two hours at Hongkong on September 18, according to advices brought by the Empress of Japan, one of the few vessels to escape the disaster, which arrived here yesterday.

The damage at Hongkong and Kowloon and vicinity was estimated at over $20,000,000. The damage in the city was not enormous, being confined to uplifted roofs, broken windows, etc. The bulk of the loss was in the harbor and on the water front.

The Empress of Japan but the day before gave place at the Kowloon Company's wharf to the steamer Changsha, which was entirely wrecked at the dock. Kowloon sustained the heaviest loss, but all sections of Hongkong and the Hinterland suffered.

There were twenty-four Europeans among the killed. The others were Chinese, mostly the boat and junk population. These usually run for shelter when the warning gun is fired, but this morning the signal was fired at 8:10, and at 8:30 the typhoon was at its height.

The junk men skurried for shelter, colliding with each other, cutting down yachts and houseboats, striving through the driving rain to reach Causeway bay. Thousands were soon thrown into the sea, lashed by the fury of waves twenty and thirty feet high.

It was evident soon after the storm began that the shipping could not ride it out, and vessel after vessel dragged, swerved and was driven on shore, some being piled right among the stately buildings which line Hongkong's sea front.

HINTS FOR SETTLERS ON IRRIGATED LANDS

Washington, Oct. 16.—For the guidance of the great number of people from humid regions who settle on the immense areas of Western lands opened to settlement, the department of agriculture has issued a report on "Practical Information for Beginners in Irrigation."

There are several million acres open for settlement in the United States, and irrigation works built by private enterprise and by the national government will provide a water supply for more than 1,000,000 acres of arid lands. The report says this is certain to cause an influx of settlers into Western America during the next few years. The report discusses arid soils and water supplies generally and tells how to locate and build farm ditches, prepare land to receive water, irrigate staple crops and how much water to apply.

"Experience throughout the arid regions," the the report says, "is demonstrating that the greatest danger to irrigated lands is lack of drainage. Water applied to crops raises the ground water, which brings with it the salts dissolved from the soil. Capilarity brings this water to the surface where it evaporates and the salts accumulate until all vegetation is destroyed. The only insurance against this is proper drainage, but economy in the use of water and thorough cultivation will check the rise of ground water, or lessen evaporation and decrease the danger."

HIGHER THAN MT. HOOD

Eagle Chief, in Eastern Oregon, Always White-Headed.

Baker City, Or., Oct. 15.—A discovery has just been made by T. R. Berry, locating engineer for the Grand Ronde Water Company, who has just come in from the mountains suffering from an injury received in a mountain slide. In surveying for altitudes, reservoir sites and a ditch line, Mr. Berry discovered a mountain peak named Eagle Chief, between Imnaha and the head of Minum river, forty miles northeast of Baker City, that measures higher than Mount Hood, which is 11,235 feet, and thus becomes the highest mountain in Oregon.

Eagle Chief is perpetually snowclad and is sourrounded by a chain of forty lakes, amidst Alpine scenery. Aeronoid measurements will be corrected in the spring.

Atkinson to Retire

Wenatchee, Oct. 12.—Attorney General John D. Atkinson, who has been in this city for several days, has returned to Olympia. When questioned as to his future activity in politics he said: "I have no intention whatever of running for office again, but shall confine my time henceforth to my own interests. As soon as my term of office expires I shall return to take up my permanent residence here; possibly before that time."

HINDUS REFUSED LANDING

Vancouver B. C. Authorities Do Not Want Dusky Immigrants.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 17.—The city of Vancouver is guarding the Dominion government immigration shed on the water front to prevent any of the Hindus held there from leaving. This holding up the federal prerogative of immigration is almost certain to precipitate active trouble between the city and Dominion government, and the Canadian Pacific railway, on whose steamships the Hindus arrived, may be drawn into the dispute.

The Hindus in question, more than a hundered in number, were brought on the steamship Empress of Japan.

When the police appeared on the wharf the Canadian Pacific authorities declined to admit the officers. Notification was also served on the city that the latter would be held responisble for all damage suits arising out of the detaining of the Hindus.

In the evening Dr. Munro, Dominion government inspector, ordered all the Hindus to be taken into custody and to be returned to the Orient by the steamer on which they arrived. His reason is that they might become a charge on the community. This is the most sweeping order of the kind ever made. The steamship company will appeal to the courts.

STOCK SHOW A FEATURE

Big Exhibit Planned for A.-Y.-P. Exposition—$100,000 Appropriated.

Seattle, Oct. 17.—It was announced at the headquarters of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition yesterday that the executive committee had voted the livvestock committee $100,000 to pay the expenses of getting up an exhibit.

The $100,000 will not come out of the $650,000 subscribed by the citizens of Seattle, however, for by the time it is needed gate receipts will be available for the purpose. It has not been decided when the stock show will be held, but it will be after the exposition has been in progress for some time.

At the stock show there will be animals not only from the Pacific Northwest, but from the Eastern states, and a considerable number from abroad. The stock show at the Lewis and Clark fair cost only $40,000 and it was one of the drawing cards of the exposition.

J. W. Clise is chairman of the committee. Associated with him are C. D. Stimson, W. H. Paulhamus, of Puyallup; D. Edward Frederick, and T. N. Haller. Mr. Clise said yesterday that he considered that the holding of the stock show would assure support to the exposition from all parts of the United States.

PRISON BAG SPECULATION

Investigation Being Made By State Board of Control.

Walla Walla, Oct. 13.—The board of control arrived here Wednesday and has been occupied in inspecting the new wing of the penitentiary; in planning for the enlargement of the capacity of the jute mill and in investigating the charges of speculation made in connection with the sale of grain bags. The report on the grain bag question will be made to the governor and will be made public within two weeks.

It is said that the board found much evidence that speculation in grain bags has occurred at several points in Eastern Washington and the report will fix the responsibility. The form of application prescribed by the board was not used, but the old form, in which the applicant was not required to make an affidavitt hat the sacks were for his own use on lands owned or leased by him.

ASK INCREASED DIVIDENDS

Pullman Stockholders Want Larger Share of Profits.

New York, Oct. 13.—Edward W. Henck and Henry E. Smith, of this city, and A. B. Kellogg, of Buffalo, have been named as a committee of Pullman company stockholders to ascertain what legal steps may be necessary to secure a larger disbursement in dividends from the company and to report at a subsequent meeting, which will be called by Mr. Henck, chairman of the committee. About 5,000 shares were represented at a meeting of stockholders held here. It was decided that the committee appointed shall attend the annual meeting of the Pullman company in Chicago in November and present its request for a larger dividend to the board of directors. If the request meets with no favorable action upon the part of the directors it is proposed to take more radical steps.

Say Hill Is Surveying South

South McAllister, I. T., Oct. 12.—It is learned that a party of surveyors in the employ of J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, has left this city to obtain right of way for the new line to the gulf. The engineer in charge of the surveying party declined to discuss the matter.

New Captain for the Minnesota

Seattle, Oct. 15.—Chief Officer Austin of the steamship Minnesota will succeed Capt. John H. Rinder. He was given command of the big Hill line rSaturday night and will take the vessel to sea October 20. It is likely the vacancies will be filled by promotion.

Wants Municipal Water System

North Yakima, Oct. 13.—Councilman Armbruster will submit an ordinance to the city council at the meeting Monday night, authorizing an election to be held December 4, to vote on the question of building and operating a municipal water system.

APPEAL TO POWERS

CHINA WANTS JAPAN TO RETIRE FROM MANCHURIA.

Hopes Intervention Will Force Japan to Yield Peaceably, but Prepares for War—Trusts in Japan's Financial Straits to Assist Her Cause.

London, Oct. 15—It is freely asserted in diplomatic circles here that serious trouble is brewing between China and Japan. The British minister at Peking, it is declared, has notified the British government that China is preparing a note to the powers asking them to compel Japan to restore Manchuria to her. According to the reports China some weeks ago sounded all the powers as to how they would receive such a note and was informed that, if properly presented, it would receive every consideration.

China takes the position that at the outbreak of the war between Russia and Japan the mikado's government made public declaration that the war was a "holy one" and was undertaken by Japan for the purpose of preserving the integrity of her neighbor from Russia. Japan won, and since the treaty of Portsmouth was signed has gone right ahead with her preparations for the Japanization of not only the entire province of Manchuria, but of the adjacent provinces.

China now fears for her independence, diplomats assert, and her only hope is in intervention by the powers. She is preparing for war, but her hope at present is in intervention by the powers, for she has little hope that she will be able to do much against Japan, should it be necessary to fight.

However, the diplomats of China know that Europe is jealous of Japan and that Japan is nearly bankrupt. First the war, then famine, then floods, all combined to tax the resources of the mikado's people, and the Chinese officials feel that if the powers were to unite in a demand that Japan restore Manchuria to her, Japan might consent, as she is hardly in a position to resent a concentrated "request," and then again, she is on record that she went to war only to secure the "integrity of China."

TREAT FOR CONVICTS

Theatrical Performance Is Given at State Penitentiary.

Walla Walla, Oct. 13.—For the first time in the history of the state penitentiary a theatrical performance has been given in that institution. The large dining room was utilized for the purpose, cells being used for dressing rooms.

Every convict in the institution witnessed the performance, two shows being given owing to the fact that the dining room was not large enough to seat the entire prison population The bill consisted of specialties, a local vaudeville house furnishing the performers. The prisoners appeared to enjoy the show immensely and each player was rewarded with liberal applause.

A feature of the entertainment was a series of moving pictures.

WERTERN WASHINGTON COAL LANDS WITHDRAWN

Seattle, Oct. 13.—Fifteen townships of coal land in Jefferson, Whatcom Skagit and King counties were yesterday reserved from entry by the local United States land office upon receipt of telegraphic orders from Washington. The reservation of coal lands in Jefferson county came as a surprise to Receiver J. Henry Smith, who stated that to his knowledge there had never been any known coal land in Jefferson county. None is known to be taken up.

The reservations were made by the government as a result of recent geological survey reports.

STATE PUBLICITY

Gov. Mead Speaks at Spokane Ad Men's Banquet.

Spokane, Oct. 13.—Gov. Mead was the chief speaker at the first banquet of the Spopane Ad Men's League at the Hotel Spokane, about 200 buisness men being in attendance. The governor said that while not a buyer of space in publications, he is advertising the best piece of goods in the world's market—Washington.

He spoke of the commonwealth as being distinctly a young man's state.

He said he would present to the legislature at the coming session a plan to give the state the widest publicity and to make its resources known from ocean to ocean and from the international boundary to the gulf.

There were serveral other prominent speakers at the banquet.

New Engines are Monsters

Everett, Oct. 17.—One of the six new engines recently purchased by the Great Northern has arrived at the yards here. The engines are said to be the largest in the world. They weigh 105 tons and are what is known as the Mallette compounds. They have twelve drive wheels, four pistons, four cylinders and two boilers. The engines are capable of hauling eighty loaded freight cars up a 1 per cent grade. They will be used to haul passenger trains over the Cascades.

EIGHT HOUR LAW APPLIES

Men Engaged on Irrigation Work Will Be Included.

Washington, Oct. 15.—In response to a request from the secretary of the Interior, the attorney general has prepared an opinion holding that the general eight hour law applies to work in connection with irrigation reclamation service. He says that there is no conflict between the general law and the eight hour provision of the reclamation act, and that, regardless of that provision, men may work overtime in cases of an "extraordinary emergency," as provided in the old law.

He also holds that firemen, pumpmen, and blacksmiths and their helpers come within the terms of the act. Several thousand men will be affected by the decision.

MR. MOODY INSISTS ON FULL INVESTIGATION

Washington, Oct. 15.—In response to inquiries regarding the status of the investsigation into affairs of the Standard Oil Company, with a view to determining whether the company is operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, Attorney General Moody said that Messrs. Morrison and Kellogg, who were appointed to investigate the Standard Oil methods, had accumulated a vast amount of testimony bearing upon the case. This testimony was now being gone over and it was quite likely that a definite conclusion would be reached within the next few weeks as to whether there had or had not been violations of the anti-trust law.

It is well understood that Attorney General Moody is to retire from the cabinet and resume his law practice in Boston January 1, and it is stated that he fully intends to take the personal responsibility, before he retires, of instituting proceedings against the Standard Oil Company and of publicly stating that in his judgment such proceedings would be justified by the facts obtained.

SALT DEPOSIT PUTS LAND IN MINERAL CLASS

Olympia, Oct. 13.—Replying to an inquiry from Land Commissioner Ross, Attorney General Atkinson held that a deposit of salt left by the drying up of an old lake, should be considered mineral and the land in question, if belonging to the state, must not be sold, but may be leased under the procedure set forth in Pierce's code, section 8,172.

The land commissioner was unable to determine whether the salt could be sold under the act permitting the sale of timber, stone, fallen timber, hay and gravel, etc., or leased under the section referred to above. The deposit over which the question arose is located in Douglas county.

FOR BENEFIT OF UNEMPLOYED

London Will Establish "Exchanges" in Various Parts of the City.

London, Oct. 15.—To deal with the unemployed question during the coming winter, the central (unemployed) body is establishing twenty-seven "exchanges" in different parts of London where those desiring work may apply. Twenty of theses have already been located.

In a report issued by the exchanges committee it is stated that "There will be no attepmt to make work or provide special work for the relief of those registering at the exchanges, the object simply being to provide centers at which exployers seeking work people and work people seeking employment may at once get into touch with one another."

Olmsted to Lay Out Grounds

Seattle, Oct. 13.—John C. Olmsted one of the most famous landscape architects in America, has been chosen to lay out the grounds of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, and is expected to arrive from the East early in the week to undertake his task. Secretary Sheffield arranged terms with Mr. Olmsted by telegraph, it being desired to get him as soon as possible in order that no time be lost in getting at the work of beautifying the site. While nearly three years remain before the opening of the exposition, it is realized that the time will be none too long to perfect the elaborate scheme for a beautiful setting which Mr. Olmsted is expected to fur nish.

Securing Labor Data

Olympia, Oct. 13.—In securing data for his forthcoming report, State Labor Commissioner Charles Hubbard sent out a large number of blanks to all clases of working people with a request that the blanks be filled out and returned. Blanks similar in character were also sent to employers. The chief questions asked pertained to wages and hours, and, among other things, whether the person answering was married or single and to what extent they were able to save money from their wages.

Do Not Want Free Seeds

Rock Island, Ills., Oct. 13.—Free distribution of seeds by congress was frowned upon in a resolution adopted by the Farmers' National Congress, in session here. It recommended that the money thus spent be devoted to investigating agricultural methods in foreign lands and introducing them here through agricultural schools. Other resolutions urged the consolidation of the third and fourth class mail matter with a reduction in the rate to eight cents a pound.

tarrh of the stomach and is therefore a remedy for dyspepsia.

Hon. M. C. Butler, Ex-U. S. Senator from South Carolina for two terms, in a letter from Washington, D. C., writes to the Peruna Medicine Co. as follows:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, besides a good tonic."

Catarrh of the stomach is the correct name for most cases of dyspepsia. In order to cure catarrh of the stomach the catarrh must be eradicated.

Only an internal catarrh remedy, such as Peruna, is available.

Peruna exactly meets the indications.

Apple Pandowdy.

Butter a baking dish and put in to it a layer of peeled and sliced apples; then butter, sugar and cinnamon to taste; add another layer of apples, with butter, sugar and spice, and a small cupful of warm water. Make a rich biscuit crust, cut with small biscuit cutter, and place upon the apples, not too closely; make slowly until well done, and serve either with lemon sauce or cream and sugar.

For thousands of years men have wondered how it is that birds fly so easily. They have tried in vain to imitate them. The best they can do is to go up by the aid of a balloon and try to direct the balloon in its course. Certain birds are known to have flown the Atlantic ocean, a distance of 3000 miles, without resting and without the aid of any balloon whatever. No one would believe that birds could fly the way they do but for the fact that they see them at it every day. Under no circumstances can man imagine how it would be possible for him to sustain himself in the air as a hawk or an eagle or a water fowl or a vulture or a buzzard, even if he were equipped with wings and feathers. It seems that he would not have the strength. But the strength of these creatures of the air does not seem to be so very much greater in proportion to size than the strength of a man. But let's look at the matter in another light. Birds can see by night much better than in the day. The same is true of the leopard and other beasts of the night. It has been proven by science that certain animals can perceive ultra-violet rays with the naked eye, whereas man cannot. It is not uncertain that the lower animals have some of their five senses more highly developed than man, but some scientists believe that they have senses which man has not. How else is it that certain animals can tell of the approach of a storm while the sky is clear and tranquil? They have been known to act queerly some hours before earthquakes or other seismic disturbances of which man had no foreknowledge whatever. There are certain animals whose actions will always foretell the approach of a cold snap. Is it any wonder that in ancient times many animals were worshipped as sacred? And while we attribute to the lower animals senses which we do not possess, and for which we even have no name, is it not reasonable to imagine that birds understand some law of nature that permits the almost total disregard of the law of gravitation which has never before this time been even conjectured? If this happens to be a dull day with you, here's something worth puzzling your head about a little.

When James J. Corbett was placed under bond to keep the peace a few days ago he said: "I am a gentleman in good standing." Was a gentleman ever in any other kind of standing?

"The luck of some men," we heard a man say to-day, "is better than a license to steal."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

NOT BLAMELESS, HERSELF.

When the postman brought Mrs. Cummings her weekly letter from her old school friend, she held it, unopened, for a moment, and addressed her husband, who would have preferred to finish his morning paper in peace.

"Thomas," said Mrs. Cummings, "Thomas, you'll have to read it for me; you know both pairs of my glasses are at the optician's. You ought to be glad, when you don't have to wear them," she added, moved to reproach by her husband's expression.

"Oh, of course I am glad, delighted!" said Mr. Cummings, hastily; and he proceeded to read, with many interruptions, an account of the doings in Mrs. Lane's family, which might be supposed to interest her friend.

"I thought so," said Mrs. Cummings, when the letter had been read, even to "Yours affectionately, Mary J. Lane." "She never mentions that green-gage plum receipt. I've asked her for it in every letter since April 12th, and here it is June. Next time I shall write pretty severely. If she's losing her memory she might as well realize it, and keep my letters at hand when she answers."

"Hullo, there seems to be an extra slip in here," said Mr. Cummings, as something in the envelope interfered with the return of the letter to its covering. He took out the slip and read:

"'When you send me Anna Conant's address, for which I've asked you in every letter since April 8th, I shall be glad to forward the green-gage recipe. Perhaps your husband will help—'er—My dear, there's a most interesting letter from Madrid in the paper. I think you'll enjoy reading it," said the merciful husband, as he returned Mrs. Cummings' letter to her lap.

HUNTED BY A COUGAR.

Narrow Escape of Man Who Thought These Beasts Harmless.

Most hunters and naturalists say that the cougar will not hunt man, writes Charles J. Lisle in Outdoor Life. I thought so for fifteen years, then learned I was wrong. I came near learning it just a second too late.

I had been fishing in a small stream in Northern Idaho, and was about to start for home when I saw a large cougar cross an open space between two trees. I had hunted cougars for years and thought I could safely despise them, even though unarmed. So I went on.

But this cougar was different from others. It came out to meet me. I motioned as if to throw a stick at it.

Still it crept nearer, snarling and showing its teeth as it flattened itself in the grass. I ran a few steps toward it, hoping to frighten it. Instead it crouched for a spring, for I was not more than a rod away.

Thoroughly frightened, I yelled at the top of my voice. No panther ever screamed more horribly, nor in such deadly earnest. That was effective, for the beast dashed back into the wood in fright, while I lost no time in returning to camp.

Securing my rifle, I carefully retraced my path up the stream where I had seen the cougar. As I intended to prospect the country for several days, I dared not risk the animal attacking me again unprepared.

I walked through the heavy windfall timber with rifle cocked and ready for instant use. But I saw no sign of the cougar. I crept over logs, following the course of the stream, up beyond where I thought I had heard the bellowing of cattle.

Still I found nothing. I was obstinately pressing forward when I felt a premonition, an overpowering inclination to look backward. The look came near being my last.

The cougar was hunting me. There on the log I had just climbed over and just in the act of springing on my back was the largest cougar I had ever seen.

Silent and sure as a shadow it had followed my trail, waiting for just this moment. Already it was contracting its muscles as I swung my rifle around.

There was no time to aim. With a quick snapshot I fired at the creature, jerked the lever of the gun desperately to throw in another cartridge and braced myself for the shock.

The shock did not come. The one bullet had done the work of death. The cougar, with its back broken, hung helpless across the log, unable to finish the spring it had begun.

In its agony it seized a young pine tree growing beside the log and made its great teeth meet in the tough wood. The tree was as large as a man's leg.

I have the cougar skin as a trophy, with only two seconds between us in the race for its ownership, I count it as a prize worth keeping. And I go no more unarmed out into the great woods, with the words of naturalists as my only protection against wild beasts. I much prefer a good rifle.

Ought to Know.

"Your dog has perfectly beautiful teeth," said the caller, trying to be agreeable.

"How do you know?" asked the pretty girl.

"He shows them to me every time I come to the house," was the reply.—Detroit Free Press.

Making Excuses.

"A number of statesmen refuse to depend on the judgment of the common people."

"Well," answered Farmer Corntossel, "after the poor judgment shown by us common people in puttin' 'em up for office, I don't know as I blame 'em."—Washington Star.

Country boys who long for the advantages of city schools should be comforted by the remarks of a physician who spoke at the recent convention of the American Medical Association. He said that the American boy is the best-educated boy in the world because his school takes him least away from his home; and that the country boy is better educated than the city boy because he is at home most of his time. School may be a supplement to the home, but it is not a substitute for it.

Salmon Loaf.

Take salmon, remove the bones and break into flakes with a silver fork. Add four tablespoonfuls of melted butter, one cupful of breadcrumbs, one-half teaspoonful of salt and four well-beaten eggs. Corn Meal Muffins.

Sift a rounded teaspoonful of soda three times, with a teaspoonful of salt, through two even cups of Indian meal. Beat three eggs light, the whites and yolks separately. Whip into the yolks a tablespoonful of sugar, stir into this two large cups of buttermilk, add the prepared meal, beat hard for a minute, all the stiffened whites, and fill muffin rings with the batter. Bake in a steady, hot oven, covered, for ten minutes, then brown.

Egg Salad.

Arrange a head of lettuce on a platter; cut six hard-boiled eggs in half crosswise, take out the yolks and pound them fine; mix with one and a half tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one even teaspoonful of mustard, pepper and salt, and enough vinegar to thin sufficiently. Cut a little of the end of each half egg to make it stand, arrange among the lettuces leaves and fill with dressing.

SSS THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS

The ingredients that enter into S. S. S. and the method of combining and preparing them so that they build up and strengthen every part of the body, make it the greatest of all tonics. S. S. S. is nature's remedy—PURELY VEGETABLE—and while it is restoring the lost appetite, overcoming that tired, run-down feeling, and other ailments common to Spring, which warn us that it is necessary to take a tonic, it is purifying the blood of all poisons and waste matters so that it can supply to the system the strength and nourishment it needs to keep it in perfect condition during the depressing summer months that are to follow.

Spring is the season when most every one needs a tonic. It is nature's time for renewing and changing; and as everything puts on new life, the sap rises in vegetation, the earth thaws out from its winter freezes, and all respond to Spring's call to purge and purify themselves, there is a great change also takes place in our bodies. The blood endeavors to throw off the poisons and accumulations which have formed in the system, and been absorbed by it, from the inactive winter life, and calls upon every member to assist in the elimination. The system is often unequal to the struggle, the appetite grows fickle, the energies give way, the spirits are depressed, and a general run-down condition is the result.

Then the body must have assistance—it must be strengthened and aided by a tonic, and S. S. S. is the ideal one. Being made entirely from roots, herbs and barks, it does not disagreeably affect the system in any way as do most of the so-called tonics on the market, which contain Potash or some other harmful mineral ingredient to derange the stomach and digestion, unfavorably affect the bowels, or otherwise damage the health. S. S. S. tones up the stomach and digestion and assists in the assimilation of food; it rids the system of that always-tired, worn-out feeling, and imparts vigor and tone to every part of the body. It re-establishes the healthy circulation of the blood, stimulates the sluggish organs, and calms the unstrung nerves which make one feel that he is on the verge of prostration. S. S. S. gives an appetite and relish for food that nothing else does, and by its use we can find ourselves with as hearty, hungry an appetite in Spring as at any other season.

It acts more promptly and gives better and more lasting results than any other remedy, and is absolutely safe because of its vegetable purity. Dyspeptic, irritable, nervous, debilitated people will find S. S. S. is just the medicine that is needed for the purification of the blood, which, from its diseased or impure condition, is causing their trouble, as well as for toning up and helping the entire system. When you take your tonic this Spring do not experiment, but get the best—the tonic with forty years of success behind it, and the one endorsed by the best people all over the country—S. S. S., THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS. It is necessary at this time, when the system is depleted and weakened at every point, that the right remedy be used—one that is especially adapted to the condition, and S. S. S. has proved itself to be this remedy for many years. If it is taken at the first sign of Spring the system will be so built up and strengthened that the disagreeable affections of the season will not be felt as warmer weather comes on.

AN EFFORT TO PULL THROUGH THE DAY.

I have used S. S. S. quite extensively and unhesitatingly recommend it as the best blood purifier and tonic made. I am a machinist by trade and at one time my system was so run down that by 10 o'clock every day I would be completely exhausted, and it was with the greatest effort that I could pull through the balance of the day. Since taking S. S. S., however, all this has disappeared. I am a strong, vigorous man, abundantly able to do my day's work, my appetite has been whetted up so that I can eat anything, my sleep is sweet and refreshing, and I know further that it has purified my blood and put it in good condition. I cannot speak too highly of your great remedy, S. S. S.

817 W. Broad St., Columbus, O. A. B. MONTGOMERY.

SHE FOUND IT THE BEST SPRING TONIC.

On two occasions I have used S. S. S. in the spring with fine results. I can heartily recommend it as a tonic and blood purifier. I was troubled with headache, indigestion and liver troubles, which all disappeared under the use of S. S. S. My appetite, which was poor, was greatly helped. I can eat anything I want now without fear of indigestion, and my blood has been thoroughly cleansed of all impurities and made rich and strong again. As a tonic and blood purifier it is all you claim for it.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CHURCH SERVICES

Congregational Church. Sunday School at 10 a. m. Morning worship at 11:00. Rev. Geo. N. Edwards, pastor.

The first of a series of sermons on "The Church and the Community" will be given Sunday morning. A cordial invitation is extended to the members of churches not holding regular services at present to worship at this church and to strangers and non-church-goers to make this their church home and renew the habit of church worship. The following topics will be considered:

The Brotherhood of Society.

The Need Men have for the Expression of the Religious Life.

The Need of a Definite Place and Time of Worship.

The Value of Working Together for Moral Ends.

Jesus and the Church of Jesus.

A question box has been placed in the vestibule and members of all congregations are invited to leave there questions or suggestions bearing upon this general subject, How Can the Church be of more Benefit to the Community? A Sunday evening address will probably be given to the consideration of the contents of the question box.

Topic for Sunday evening, "The Character of Joseph."

Baptist Church, services morning and evening, second and fourth Sunday of each month. Rev. Reid Hale, pastor.

First Church of Christ Scientist: Services will be held at Science Hall, Second St Sunday at 11 o'clock. Sunday school at 12 o'clock. Wednesday evening meetings at 7:30. Reading room open every afternoon from 2 to 5. All are welcome.

In Memoriam

Whereas, Death has again passed our guard and invaded our order, and removed from us one of our most respected members. Our beloved sister, Mrs. Clara Culver departed this life at her home Sept. 22. Sister Culver was a charter member in Pacific W. R. C.

Resolved, That it is with sorrow that we part with our sister, who was loved by all. She was always a willing worker in the order, and her memory will always be kept fresh and bright in our hearts.

Resolved, That the sympathy of this order be extended to the sorrowing husband and sister. That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our order, and copy be sent to the husband and sister. Respectfully submitted in T.C.L.

Grouse Was Frozen Stiff

Those who have gone up on the high places in quest of venizon and pork, during the past week or so, have not enjoyed an outing of unalloyed pleasure, not by any means. C. A. Laurens spent three days of last week in the country tributary to Morse Creek, shooting but one deer, which escaped by taking to the stream. He says it rained and snowed continuously, keeping them soaked thru and making one night spent in the timber, without shelter, blankets, or fire, extremely disagreeable.

Willis Mathewson and party, who left early in the week for Cox's ranch, leaving the keys at home, had an easy time in comparison, camping out in the barn, but penned in by one of the worst snow storms they ever experienced. But one deer was seen, and the boys aver that they would have had venison were it not for a bad attack of buck fever on the part of Frank Lyster. In rebuttal, Frank says on a previous trip he was the only one to bag any game, shooting a big bear, hence it stands to reason he would have got the deer, had he had half a chance. He says the rest of the party was jealous because the three of them shot 34 times at one fool grouse before bringing it down, Beers making the prize record with 32 shots before calling for help.

They Stand Alone.

Standing out in bold relief, all alone, and as a conspicuous example of open, frank and honest dealing with the sick and afflicted, are Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, over-worked, debilitated, nervous, "run-down," pain-racked women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous remedy for weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness, all catarrhal affections whether of the stomach, bowels, kidneys, bladder, nasal passages, throat, bronchia, or other mucous passages, also as an effective remedy for all diseases arising from thin, watery or impure blood, as scrofulous and skin affections.

Each bottle of the above medicines bears upon its wrapper a badge of honesty in the full list of ingredients composing it—printed in plain English. This frank and open publicity places these medicines in a class all by themselves, and is the best guaranty of their merits. They cannot be classed as patent nor secret medicines for they are neither—being of known composition.

Dr. Pierce feels that he can afford to take the afflicted into his full confidence and lay all the ingredients of his medicines freely before them because these ingredients are such as are endorsed and most strongly praised by scores of the most eminent medical writers as cures for the diseases for which these medicines are recommended. Therefore, the afflicted do not have to rely alone upon Dr. Pierce's recommendation as to the curative value of his medicines for certain easily recognized diseases.

A glance at the printed formula on each bottle will show that no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs enter into Dr. Pierce's medicines, they being wholly compounded of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American forest plants. These are best and safest for the cure of most lingering, chronic diseases. Dr. R. V. Pierce can be consulted FREE, by addressing him at Buffalo, N. Y., and all communications are regarded as sacredly confidential.

It is as easy to be well as ill—and much more comfortable. Constipation is the cause of many forms of illness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, two a mild cathartic. All dealers in medicines sell them.

FRUIT AND FLOWERS

AS TO CINERARIAS.

How to Grow These Popular Plants For Winter Bloom.

There are very few plants easier of culture than cinerarias and again there are just as few things we know of that become so utterly worthless if their simple requirements are not attended to.

The seed of cinerarias may be sown any time after the first week in August. It should be sown in shallow, well drained pans in soil composed of loam, leaf mold and sand in about equal proportions. The surface should be made perfectly level and even. Then the seed may be sown somewhat thinly, covering it with fine sand and water with a fine hose. After the seed is sown place the seed pans in a frame with the sash sloped to the north.

When the seedlings are large enough to handle they should be potted into the smallest pots with soil composed of rotted turf chopped up and leaf mold in equal parts, with the addition of a liberal sprinkling of clear sand. The second shift should be given whenever the roots are well through the soil in their first pots. The soil for the second and still more so for the following shifts should have, in addition to the loam and leaf mold, a reasonable proportion of rotted cow manure and it may help to lessen the quantity of leaf mold when shifting for the last time prior to flowering.

Remove plants into the greenhouse by the middle of October, where the temperature should not exceed 55 degrees.

When the plants begin to show flower they will be greatly benefited if they are given liquid manure regularly. This stimulant is likely to be harmful, however, if it is too strong or if given when the plants are dust dry (a condition that should not exist). Weak cow manure is as good as, if not better than, anything else and immediately after watering with it give the plants some pure water. In handling cinerarias look for good foliage in order to secure good flowers.—Gardening.

For Fine Chrysanthemums.

The thinning of buds should go on from day to day. The value of the crop depends on thinning. One good flower is worth ten poor ones. The plants have now branched out into leaders and laterals. The leaders, of which there may be from three to five, will form what is termed the crown bud, one bud on each stem. The plant will branch again, forming leaders known as terminals, with buds known as terminal buds, or the termination of the plant's growth. As a rule the crown buds form the best flowers, but if they form too early let the terminals grow and take out the crown bud. Nip out all buds except those in the center of the cluster. Keep show plants staked and tied up to induce shapelness. Give all plants plenty of water and liquid manure twice a week.—L. A. C.

Care of Pansy Seedlings.

Some of the finest pansies appear in September after the heat of summer has passed. If plants are wanted for bloom in winter or early spring the seeds should be sown outdoors after the summer heat is over. Water them well and shade them by means of boards or slats. As soon as the tiny seedlings appear above ground remove the boards so that the plantlets may have light and air. If these plants are to bloom in spring, pinch out all flower buds that appear in winter and cover them lightly with hay or evergreen boughs. Too heavy coverings smother and choke pansy plants. A fresh lot of plants should be grown every year.—Exchange.

Peach Trees For Planting.

In the matter of setting out peach trees the first essential is the tree. I want the largest tree of its age I can get. In the matter of trimming, our whole theory is to have a low headed tree, headed down rather than in. I do not want close heading, but a free circulation of air and plenty of sunshine. We have never used small trees. It always seemed to me that a good big tree, with a good root system, is capable of growing into a bigger tree.—Joseph Barton, New Jersey.

Handling the Apple Crop.

More farmers and orchardists are now equipped with storage facilities than ever before, yet the greatest care must be exercised in picking, sorting, packing and storing, to say nothing of the necessity of closely studying market conditions. Many in the heavy apple producing sections of New York, Michigan and the southwest are planning to evaporate apples in a large way, marketing in that form.

John and T. F. Trumbull and their sister, Mrs. E. B. Webster, were called to Townsend Wednesday by telegrams announcing the rapid decline of their brother William, who came to his sister's home there early last summer. afflicted with consumption, which had resulted from a cold taken while mining in Idaho. The end came Wednesday morning at nine o'clock, just before the arrival of members of the family from Angeles and Seattle. Will had visited Angeles several times in the past eight years, having many acquaintances here. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, forty years ago. Most of his life has been spent railroading, as brakeman, conductor, and clerk in freight departments. His is the first death in a family of twelve children, all of whom, save one, live in Washington, and, with their mother, were present.

We see that the Times Clothing Mart have just received a new line of suit cases and grips and trunks.

RAIN IN THE WOODS.

When on the leaves the rain insists,
And every gust brings showers down:
When all the woodland smokes with mists,
I take the old road out of town
Into the hills through which it twists.

I find the vale where catnip grows,
Where boneset blooms, with wetness bowed;
The vale through which the red creek flows
Turbid with hill-washed clay, and loud
As some strange horn a wildman blows.

Like knots upon the gray-barked trees
The lichen-colored moths are pressed;
And, wedged in hollow blooms, the bees
Seem clotted pollen; in its nest
The hornet creeps and lies at ease.

The butterfly and forest bird
Are huddled on the same gnarled bough,
From which, like some rain-voweled word
That dampness hoarsely utters now,
The tree toad's voice is vaguely heard.

I crouch and listen; and again
The woods are filled for me with forms—
Weird, elfin shapes in train on train
Arise; and now I feel the arms
Around me of the wraiths of rain.

O, wraiths of rain! O, trailing mist!
Still fold me, hold me, and pursue!
Still let my lips by yours be kissed,
Still draw me with your hands of dew
Unto the tryst; the dripping tryst!

A Daughter of the Aztecs

I HAVE always contended that a 5 o'clock tea is no place for a man, and even yet I marvel that I should have been inveigled into responding to Mrs. Allerton's bit of pasteboard in person.

You always know quite well what to expect—a room so dark you stumble over things, and a confused and irritating cackle of many women talking at once, and the necessity of swallowing a lot of stuff that is a reproach to your lunch and an insult to your forthcoming dinner.

I must say Mrs. Allerton does things better than most, and it is really a precious privilege to inspect her cups, but as I opened the door a confused murmur of voices met me, and in a moment more I found myself in the thick of the hubbub, making my bow over Mrs. Gray's fat hand.

"Oh! doctor," she said, moving aside her draperies and waving me into a seat beside her. "don't you know, you are just the one person in the world I am dying to see."

"Professionally, madam?" I asked, as she tapped me on the hand with ponderous playfulness.

"No, no, you naughty thing; I was just telling these ladies about Philip Hartness marrying a cowboy, or something of that kind, out in Texas."

"But that you said it," I murmured faintly, "I wouldn't have believed it possible. Of course, we all know that the Texas law is effete and weak-kneed except in the matter of horse dealing; still——"

"Oh! you horrid creature," Mrs. Gray cried again, tapping me with her fan. "Now, do be a good boy and tell us just how it happened, for I know you were there and assisted at the orgy, or rite, or whatever they call such functions. Is she pretty, for I suppose that, after all, in this case the cowboy is a she?"

I looked hopelessly around, saw no means of escape, and then I thought of my friend and his young wife, and remembered that these women held her social destiny in their hand. Mrs. Gray herself was not unkindly, and in the faces turned toward me was one in whose deep, dark eyes I read understanding and sympathy.

"Dear madam," I said, "your requests are commands. To begin with, Dolores—it is a sad little name, isn't it?—is something more than pretty. Her mother was a Mexican. You needn't your shoulders. She comes of one of the old Aztec families, and I assure you they scorn our best blood as something entirely too much of yesterday to be seriously considered, and her people raised a pretty row when Dolores' mother fell in love with an Englishman and persisted in marrying him. Poor thing, she didn't live long enough to fulfill their prophesies and regret it, but she bequeathed Dolores the finest eyes you ever saw—deep, dark, lustrous, with a tawny flash in them that makes you remember them when you have forgotten how perfect is the oval of her face and how blood red the scarlet line of her mouth. She was a sensation in Paris——"

"What! Paris?" in incredulous chorus from my audience.

"Yes," I answered quietly. "She was educated in Paris. You see, her father owns the cattle on a thousand hills, or whatever is the modern equivalent to that, and he worships Dolores. She never had what you would call good breeding. She lived alone with her father at their hacienda until one time she chanced to go with him to the city to sell the cattle. Some women looked curiously at her and made a slighting remark on her clothes, or appearance, that struck fire to the proud little heart.

"'I am an Aztec!' she said, fiercely, to her father that night. 'I will not be shamed by los Americanos. Give me the education and clothes that befit my birth. Paris is the heart of the world. I will go there.' And her father, who had never thwarted her in her life, made the journey with her, and left her in a famous pension with a letter of credit that must have staggered the proprietress.

"It was while Dolores was in Paris that I came to know her father. I got interested in a scheme for buying a large ranch on the Rio Grande, so went over to America, and fell in love with the life, and spent two or three years, mostly at their hacienda. It was the merest coincidence that Philip Hartness came over to visit me the summer that Dolores returned. She was already there when he arrived, and pleasant as life had always been, it took on a new charm from her presence.

"She would ride with us, all the strong, quick, joyous young life flaming in her cheeks, or at night she would sing, her grand, pure, rich voice ringing out on the clear air, and we would sit in the dark fancying how such dramatic fire and passion could sway and hold a multitude, and saying Marchese was right to predict for her a brilliant career—if only she would stretch forth her hands and pluck the laurel.

"Am I enthusiastic? Well, the fault is rare enough in these days to be easily pardoned, and you will better understand how Philip fell in love. I saw it from the first and warned him. But he stayed—the witchery of her beauty was upon him.

"At first I don't think he was altogether happy in it. I suppose it is inevitable that we cannot escape from the standard of comparison to which we are reared. You see, if one has always thought of life as a mill pond, where one may paddle about at will, it must be startling to suddenly find one's self launched on a boundless sea with the wind filling every stitch of canvas and the bow pointing to undiscovered countries. It was like that with Philip; Dolores enthralled every sense with her beauty and fierce love, but he could not reconcile her with his traditions.

"God knows how two young and foolish creatures would have tangled the threads of life and love, but that Fate came in and ended the matter in a way that would have been melodramatic enough anywhere else but on the Rio Grande.

"One day—it was a perfect day, I remember, and the prairies were like an azure carpet of bluebells—we, Dolores and her father, and Philip and I, had been riding far, going to a distant part of the ranch to pick out some cattle for shipping. Toward evening the weather, which had been so fine, grew suddenly hot and oppressive. The white heat quivered and there seemed a suppressed excitement in the very air.

"We had come rather unexpectedly upon the bunch of cattle that we were seeking, and the cowboys looked grave, for the sultry weather presaged the storm, and they were trying to round up the cattle for fear of a stampede. Sometimes, you know, cattle become hysterical at the coming of a storm, and break away, flying anywhere away from their causeless and senseless terror, trampling down everything in their path.

"It was only too obvious that we had exposed ourselves to this danger. There was nowhere to go, and the only chance was in keeping the herd quiet, as can often be done by the knowledge of human presence. Presently there was a deep and ominous roar, the trembling herd lifted their heads and listened, a bull bellowed wild and fierce, we felt rather than saw the tremor that ran through the cattle, a blinding flash of lightning tore the heavens in two, the thunder pealed and crashed, and the stampede had begun.

"Fly, fly for your lives!" was the hoarse cry, and I had only time to see that the herd had broken in the direction of Hartness and Dolores.

"Together, side by side, they rode before the maddened cattle, Dolores with her face pale as death. By and by Philip's horse stumbled, the first sign of failing strength in a mustang; another stumble, and Dolores drew from her breast a little revolver her father had given her: another stumble—the herd was gaining on them—and she fired: the horse and rider came down together.

"She flung herself off her own horse and pulled Philip, dazed and stunned, behind the animal, and crouched over him while the herd swept by. We found them thus. Dolores was unhurt, but Hartness' head had been struck by a hoof as the cattle went over them; and when we carried him back to the hacienda it looked as if he had come to the end of the chapter, and that his love story was to be brief after all.

"Dolores' grief and despair were maddening. I remember thinking it would be almost worth dying to be so mourned. We could not drive her away from his bedside, and so it chanced that she saved his life after all, perhaps. We could not rouse him from a stupor that seemed settling down into the insensibility of death; and, at last, in utter despair, I turned to Dolores and bade her sing. Poor child, she was too wild with grief to know what she did, and almost involuntarily she began the bugle call for 'taps'—you know it——

Ah, love, good-night; must you go
When day and night I need you so?

"He seemed going very fast toward that land where there is no 'lights out,' but her passionate entreaty recalled him, and he opened conscious eyes upon the world again.

"'Dolores,' I heard him say, feebly, and she took his hands in hers and began covering them with kisses, and then I slipped out of the room. What followed was not for you or me to know, only, as you say, Mrs. Gray, I stayed on for the wedding."

The deep eyes I had looked to for sympathy were humid with unshed tears, and even Mrs. Gray's fat hand was not quite steady as she passed her cup back for more tea.

"You make a romance of it," she said; "but does the Mexican aloe bear transplanting to our cold England? Will your Dolores be happy among us?"

"Quien sabe," I answered, with a shrug; "the mystery of love is past finding out."—Illustrated Bits.

TWO FROM WASHINGTON.

Horse Trading at the White House—Trials of Mr. Carr.

The President was talking about the miserable White House stable, which is built on low ground behind the White House, is antiquated and so damp that the horses kept in it are affected. He said that the condition of the stable is so bad that he does not keep his own riding horses there at all, but boards them at a private stable.

"You see," said the President, "the place is damp and unhealthy. My horse Wyoming caught cold there and died. The stable has had a bad effect on every horse kept there. They all get the heaves—every horse but one," almost shouted the President. "Think of that!"

"How many horses are there in the stable, Mr. President?" somebody asked.

"Why, I don't know, but I'll find out," and the president punched a button for Secretary Loeb.

"Loeb," he said, as the secretary came in, "how many horses are there in the stables now?"

"Twelve," said Loeb, explaining that two of them are work horses and two some other kind, and going through the list.

"How many of them have the heaves?" continued the president.

"One has the heaves," Loeb replied.

"Why, Loeb," said the president, "I have been telling these men that every horse there but one has the heaves, and now you come in here and say only one of them has the heaves. How do you explain that?"

"But, Mr. President," said the thrifty Loeb, "I traded off all those with the heaves for healthy ones."

The president laughed.

"Well," he said, "I guess after this nobody can say this administration is not run on business principles."

Wilbur J. Carr, of the State department, had occasion to call at the house of a neighbor late at night. He rang the doorbell. After a long wait a head was poked out of a second floor window.

"Who's there?" asked a voice.

"Mr. Carr," was the reply.

"Well," said the voice as the window banged shut, "what do I care if you missed a car. Why don't you walk and not wake up people to tell them about it?"—New York World.

Titles to Arctic Lands.

The voyage of the Canadian government cruiser Arctic to the far north suggests for consideration the question of the ownership of some far northern lands. For many years explorers of various nationalities—British, American, Scandinavian and others—have ventured into the frozen wilderness lying between the Dominion of Canada and the north pole and have there discovered lands thitherto unknown and have named them and planted flags upon them. There has been much international rivalry in the work of elaborating the arctic map and of pushing on toward the pole.

But there has been little thought in the minds of the adventurers or in that of the public of the delimitation of international boundaries in the realms of paleocrystic ice and eternal snow. But now the Canadian government brings that thought to mind in the intimation that the dominion extends clear to the north pole and that all the lands which have been discovered and explored in those regions, no matter by whom, are under the British flag.

Academically the question is somewhat complicated and might form the subject of interminable argument. There are those who hold that discovery give title to new lands, while others insist that title is not perfected without actual occupation and permanent settlement. But how if the lands in question are not fit for or susceptible of settlement?—New York Tribune.

Kaiser Gives Warning.

The kaiser's keen eye for military matters is illustrated by an incident which occurred near Metz a few days ago during rifle practice. While the men were firing at long range the emperor threw himself flat on the ground and crawled behind the firing line looking for mistakes. He found one man aiming without having correctly adjusted the sight, and creeping still closer to him unobserved, shouted in his ear: "You will be imprisoned for at least three days for that mistake if any officer sees it." The soldier, greatly alarmed to find the imperial commander-in-chief had detected his negligence, quickly remedied the error, and the emperor proceeded on his tour of inspection along the ground.—Brooklyn Citizen.

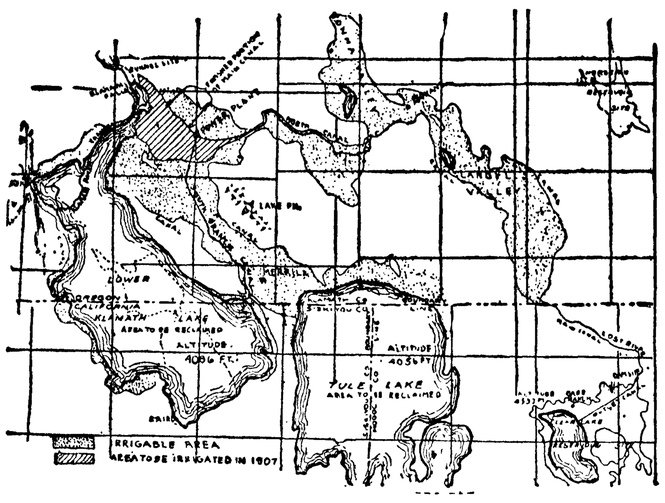
VAST IRRIGATION PROJECT WELL UNDER WAY.



Work is being pushed on the vast Klamath, Ore., reclamation scheme, well under way, to make productive 230,000 acres of land now useless. Of that area there will be 15,000 acres ready for the plow of the irrigator next spring, says C. M. Hysell in the Portland Journal.

The main canal, which leads from the lower end of the upper Klamath lake to a point in the desert nine miles east of the town of Klamath Falls, is being rapidly constructed. The water is carried from the upper lake through a tunnel under a hill just north of the town. This tunnel is being rapidly constructed. It is being driven from both ends, and also by drifting from shafts sunk along the right of way. The tunnell will be completed during the coming winter. It will be 3,300 feet long, 13½ feet wide on the bottom and 14 feet 4 inches high, with an arched roof. Through it will flow a volume of water 11 feet high.

The nine mile section of the main canal to be completed in next February will cover about 13,000 acres of first-class agricultural land that is now semiarid, excepting for one-third of this area that is already susceptible of irrigation from an old project, known as the Ankeny canal, now owned by the government. A large part of the remainder is covered with sage-brush and still held in private ownership, although subscribed by the present owners to the government project and subject to sale under the formula prescribed by the irrigation law. Each private owner is allowed to retain 160 acres. He must sell the rest of his holding or ultimately submit to having the Water Users' Association sell it at public sale.

Ultimately there will be hundreds of miles of canals and ditches.

Through this whole project and extending from Klamath Falls to Tule lake, will run the channel of the Klamath river, providing perpetually water transportation for the farmers. While the lakes will be lowered nearly 15 feet by the irrigation plan, the present river channel will be dredged and deepened, forming a canal for navigation uses.

Marvelous, Quaint and Curious.

Styles of Long Ago.

The monstrous appearance of the ladies' hoops, when viewed behind, may be seen from the following cut, copied from one of Rigaud's views. The exceedingly small cap, at this time fashionable, and the close upturned hair beneath it, give an extraordinary meanness to the head, particularly when the liberality of gown and petticoat is taken into consideration; the lady to the left wears a black hood with an ample fringed cape, which envelops her shoulders, and reposes on the summit of the hoop. The gentleman wears a small wig; the skirts of his coat are turned back, and were sometimes of a color different from the rest of the stuff of which it was made, as were the cuffs and lapels.

Egyptian War Chariot.

This chariot, which is mentioned in various parts of scripture, and more especially in the description of the pursuit of the Israelites by Pharaoh, and of his overthrow in the Red Sea, was a very light structure, consisting of a wooden framework strengthened and adorned with metal, and leather binding, answering to the descriptions which Homer has given of those engaged in the Trojan war.

The sides were partly, and the back wholly, open; and it was so low that a man could easily step into it from behind; for there was no seat, the rider always standing in war or hunting, though when wearied he might occasionally sit on the sides, or squat, in eastern fashion, on his heels. The body of the car was not hung on the axle in equilibrio, but considerably forward, so that the weight was thrown more upon the horses. Its lightness, however, would prevent this from being very fatiguing to them, and this mode of placing it had the advantage of rendering the motion more easy to the driver. To contribute further to this end, the bottom or floor consisted of a network of interlaced thongs, the elasticity of which in some measure answered the purpose of modern springs.

The Egyptian chariots were invariably drawn by two horses abreast, which were richly caparisoned. The chariot of Egypt ordinarily carried two persons, one of whom acted as the warrior, the other as the charioteer. Occasionally we find three persons in a chariot, as when two princes of the blood, each bearing the royal scepter, or flabellum, accompanying the king in a state procession, requiring a charioteer to manage the reins.

Pre-Adamite Bone Cave.

Among the wonders of the world, the bone caves of the pre-Adamite period deserve a prominent place. It is to this period that the extensive remains of Mammiferæ found in the strata of the Pampas of Buenos Ayres, and in the caverns which are scattered in such vast numbers over the continents of Europe and America, and even in Australia, are to be ascribed. Of these caverns, a most extensive one, and among the first which attracted attention, is situated at Baylenreuth, in Franconia, and the engraving which we here given represents a section of it.

The entrance of this cave, about seven feet in height, is placed on the face of a perpendicular rock, and leads to a series of chambers from fifteen to twenty feet in height, and several hundred feet in extent, in a deep chasm. The cavern is perfectly dark, and the icicles and pillars of stalactite reflected by the torches present a highly picturesque effect. The floor is literally paved with bones and fossil teeth, and the pillars and corbels of stalactite also contain osseous remains. Cuvier showed that three-fourths of the remains in this and like caverns were those of bears, the remainder consisting of bones of hyenas, tigers, wolves, foxes, gluttons, weasels, and other Carnivora.

Arabi Pasha.

In a little house up a by-street of the Mohammedan quarter, old, friendless, broken, lives the man who might have ruled Egypt.

If you ask twenty people in Cairo today, "Where is Arabi Pasha?" fifteen will tell you that he is dead, while the other five do not know. In fact, after the bombardment of Alexandria he was sent to exile for life in Ceylon, but was allowed some four years ago to return to his native city.

It was only after a week's hard ferreting that I discovered, through a native journalist, the whereabouts of the great man.

Even now, in his seventieth year, he is a big man; in his prime he must have been immense. White hair and beard; a broad, thoughtful forehead, surmounted by the Turkish tarboosh; kindly eyes, dulled a little by age but lighting up wonderfully when he talks about things which interest him; a straight, powerful nose; a large mouth, which must once have been hard and cruel, now softened by adversity. Though the day is warm, he wears an overcoat, and he walks heavily on a massive ebony stick.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Secretary of commerce and labor, Oscar B. Straus.

The general understanding for some time has been that Attorney General Moody will retire on January 1, and that Secretary Shaw will follow him on March 4 next.

Mr. Meyer, who will become postmaster general, is ambassador to Russia. He is a native of Massachusetts and has been well known as a business man.

The appointment of Mr. Straus caused considerable surprise, as it will be the first case where a citizen of the Hebrew race has been made a member of the president's cabinet. He was born in 1850 and is well known as a merchant, diplomat and author. He represented the United States as minister to Turkey on two different occasions and was appointed by President Roosevelt to fill the vacancy caused by the death of former President Harrison as a member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague.

SPOKANE SHORT OF FUEL OF ALL KINDS

Spokane, Oct. 22.—With winter approaching and frosts already commencing, Spokane faces a fuel famine. Coal is not to be had. Inquiry of all of the fuel companies discloses empty bins and no prospect of shipments. The supply from Roslyn has been stopped and the Wiceming mines are sending none at present. Wood dealers stated that they had on hand enough to supply the city's fires for one day only. More is coming by railroad, but a prolongation of the cold snap would mean a cleaning out of every yard. Wood retails for $7 a cord, and the price is advancing.

Pullman and all points in the Palouse country are threatened with a fuel famine. In fact the famine is now being felt in many places. There is no coal or wood to be had in many towns and prices are steadily advancing. Wood cannot be secured in Pullman, and the last sold at $7.50 delivered. Not a carload of coal has been received for several weeks and there seems to be little prospect of the shortage being relieved in the near future. The price of coal has not advanced, but it is impossible to get any at any price.

Dealers say they have had orders in for three months and have no information when they will be filled. Should a cold wave strike the country there will be suffering for want of fuel.

CONFLICTS BETWEEN LORDS AND COMMONS

London, Oct. 22.—Parliament will assemble Tuesday with two vexatious controversies before it, and the meeting rpomises to attract renewed attention to public questions. The session will be marked by two conflicts, one between the house of lords and the house of commons over the education bill, and the other between the government and the labor party over the workingmen's compensation bill.

During the recess now coming to a close the socialistic wing of the labor party has opposed the government's candidate and the struggle will be something of a test of the government's ability to hold the support of the labor members of the house of commons.

The controversy between the house of lords and the house of commons over the education bill may lead to serious consequences, and possibly cause an appeal to the country, for the two houses are apparently irreconcilable over the measure.

The house of lords shows little disposition to yield to the lower house, and the main purpose of the bill, that of giving the country a better educational system, is for the time being forgotten in the intensity of the strife between the two houses.

The Irish question is a slumbering volcano which may break out at any moment, but there is believed to be a tacit understanding that it will go over to the next session for full discussion.

Perishing to Go to Philippines

Washington, Oct. 23.— Brigadier General Pershing, who has been assigned to the command of the department of California, has been ordered to proceed to the Philippines about January 1, to relieve Gen. Lee, who retires on that date.

PROFITS "ON THE SIDE"

Testimony at Kansas City Before Interstate Commission.

Kansas City, Oct. 24.—Commissioners Clark and Lane were on hand yesterday when the interstate commerce hearing was resumed in the districrt court. Twenty grain dealers, elevator men and railway ocfficials were subpoenaed to testify.

E. W. Shields, elevator agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, and manager of the Simons Shields Grain Company, of Kansas City, who was instructed by the commissioners Monday to return here from St. Louis to testify, proved an important witness.

Mr. Shields said he was in Chicago last fall, when he was called upon to advise about a special rate for grain for export. He helped to make a rate effective several days later and bought corn right and left. He shipped three and a half million bushels before other dealers learned that the reduced rate would be made.

Again, this summer, he happeneed to be waiting around the office of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway when the railroads agreed upon a cut of 2½ cents a hundred on wheat, equivalent to a cut of 1½ cents a bushel. He sold 700,000 bushels for delivery under the rate.

HILL AND HARRIMAN INTERESTS CONFERRING

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Conferences are being held in Chicago between the Hill and Harriman forces with a view to settling some of the differences which exist between them in the Northwest, regarding construction of new railroad lines.

The new Portland terminals and the new lines which the Hill interests are constructing along the north bank of the Columbia to Portland and the new road which the Harriman interests are building from Portland north to Seattle are among the subjects which are being discussed.

The Hill interests are represented by Howard Elliott, president, and C. M. Levey, third vice president, of the Northern Pacific.

The Harriman interests are being taken care of by Julius Krutschmitt, director of maintenance and operation; W. W. Cotton, general solicitor of the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company, and J. P. O'Brien, vice president and general manager of the same road.

It is believed the interests have decided that fighting is expensive, but thus far there has been no material progress toward peace. In the same connection J. D. Farrell, Mr. Harriman's representative in the Northwest, is here and going over the route of the new lines which the Harriman people are extending into Seattle. The Portland terminal fight was the first matter considered. So far as could be learned the question has not yet been settled. But the way is being paved for an agreement, at least with regard to the arrangement of tracks.

PENNSYLVANIA TREASURER ALLEGES GREAT GRAFT

Johnstown, Pa., Oct. 24.—At a political meeting here last evening which was attended by 3,000 people, State Treasurer William H. Berry read a typewritten answer to a series of questions asked him by the Republican advisory board, in which he made the statement that when he took charge of the state treasury some months ago from $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 in cash and securities which should have been in the treasury were not turned over to him. He says he discovered this fact only recently, as the books of the office were from six to nine months behind, and were only brought up to date by months of night work on the part of his force.

Treasurer Berry declared his belief that this money was in the pockets of certain prominent politicians, and that he proposed to bring action for its recovery just as soon as the work of bringing the books up to date was completed.

Speaking of the new state capitol, recently completed at a cost of about $13,000,000, he said that it contains more than three and a half millions graft.

Seven Took the Immunity Bath

Minneapolis, Oct. 24.—Seven men were given the "immunity bath" yesterday by United States Attorneys Houpt and Ewart and Special Agent H. B. Duncan, before the special grand jury summoned to hear evidence in connection with railroad rebating. It is said that the evidence so far has tended to show that a rebate of ½ cent per bushel has been received by a prominent firm of grain men on all grain shipped over the Great Northern.

To Round Up Indians

Washington, Oct. 20.—Upon the application of Gov. Brooke, of Wyoming, Secretary Taft, by direction of the president, has instructed Gen. Greely to dispatch a troop of cavalry to Wyoming to round up and return to their reservations the Ute Indians who are now causing a disturbance in that state.

Chinese Bids Unsatisfactory

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Theodore Shonts, who was here a day or two ago, said there were no Chinese at work on the isthmus and none would be employed there. He said the invited bids for Chinese labor were unsatisfactory and the government would not employ them.

REPORTED ON CUBA

TAFT AND BACON DETAIL OCCURRENCES TO PRESIDENT.

Situation on Island for a Time Was Difficult and Dangerous. Elections Will Be Held Before Evacuation—Navy to Be Withdrawn.

Washington, Oct. 20.—President Roosevelt has had a long conference with Secretary Taft and Assistant Secretary Bacon, who made a full report of all that had occurred in Cuba since the United States intervened to restore order.

Conditions in the island and the views of the officals as to the future were discussed, the president desiring a thorough understanding of the situation. The financial feature of the intervention also was taken up and the possible appointment of a fiscal agent for the United States was considered. It is expected that some responsible banking institution will be selected for this purpose. None of the conferees were willing to make more than a general statement regarding the conversation.

Panama matters were also discussed. It has been decided to appoint a governor as well as an American minister for Panama, although the president is not yet ready to anounce the names of the persons selected. When Gov. Magoon was at the isthmus he filled both positions.

Secretary Taft will not accompany the president to the isthmus. The present expectation is that the president will not be accompanied by any member of his cabinet or other high official.

Speaking generally of the results of his mission to Cuba and the prospects for the political future of that island, Secretary Taft said that success had been attained in one important point at least, namely, the fighting had been stopped, and he did not believe that it would be renewed even after the withdrawal of American forces.

Gen. Bell to Return

It had been a difficult and dangerous situation for the time, as the commission had to deal with an undisciplined force of perhaps 20,000 men under arms and scattered about the island, making it difficult to reach them directly. It was the real purpose of summoning Gen. Funston to Cuba to assist in this work, for which he was puculiarly qualified, owing to his acquaintance with many of the leading spirits of both sides, and in which he was entirely successful. There had never been any intention of placing him in command of the entire American forces, and when his work was done in connection with the cessation of active hostilities he returned to the United States, according to the original plan.

Secretary Taft said that he is anxious to have Gen. Bell return to Washington as soon as possible, as he is needed here in connection with business of the general staff, but that officer had worked so long and well in the Philippines in precisely such problems as now confront us in Cuba, he speaks Spanish with such fluency and understands the methods of doing business with such people as the Cubans so thoroughly that the secretary feels he is the best representative he can have in Cuba. The secretary hoped, however, that it will be possible to recall Gen. Bell to Washington in the course of a month or two.

Elections Before Evacuation

The secretary preserved his usual attitude when the question of the length of time of the American stay in Cuba was brought up and said it was impossible to make any prediction. When the bad feeling stirred up by the revolution has subsided and there is ample assurance that elections can be held without violence and with a disposition to abide loyally by the results on all sides, then only will the retirement of the American forces be in order.

Secretary Taft said that it will take three or four weeks to install the new government after the elections.

Relative to the disposition of the military and naval forces in Cuba, he said that it had been decided to withdraw as soon as possible a number of marines.

The marines will be replaced by sildiers and the number of these, originally fixed at 5,000 men, will probably be increased to about 7,000. The secretary declined to state what proportion of the expense of this army will be charged against Cuban revenues special order which he will issue soon.

There is no longer need for maintaining a considerable naval force in Cuban waters, so Secretary Taft has recommended to the president, who approved the suggestion, that all warships now there be withdrawn, with the exception of two or three gunboats.

Crucible Company to Rebuild

Hoquiam, Oct. 23.—The contract for rebuilding the works of the Shaw Crucible Company, which were destroyed by fire this summer, just after a successful cast of steel had been made from the black sands of North Beach, has been let and work on the enterprise will be commenced at once. The bulk of the money has been raised in the East. The contract calls for the construction of several new buildings, which are to be made of corrugated iron, thus making them fireproof; also new furnaces, as the old ones were destroyed. It will take several months to complete the contract.

BUCKET-SHOPS.

BY the recent failure of a firm of "brokers and bankers" during a rising market, the public, especially those persons who lost money, were enabled to get a momentary glimpse into the workings of a "bucket-shop." A bucket-shop is an establishment ostensibly engaged in buying and selling stocks, bonds and other securities for customers. It differs from a legitimate brokerage establishment in that it has no membership in any reputable stock exchange nor any valid correspondence with any member of such an exchange. In its transactions no stock certificate or any equivalent changes hands. The customer who "buys" merely bets that a stock will rise; the customer who "sells" merely bets that a stock will drop. Most customers of bucket shops, being ignorantly optimistic, are "bulls;" they believe in a rising market, and therefore "buy." A quiet or a sinking market wipes out most of their bets, to the profit of the broker. A rising market presses the broker; he conveniently goes into bankruptcy, the customer does not get his money, and the swindler goes into business again in another town or under another name.

The secretary of any great exchange will inform anyone who asks, by letter or otherwise, whether a "broker" is legitimately connected. Transactions with legitimate brokers, although they are always dangerous for ignorant investors, are nevertheless safeguarded against dishonesty by the records of the exchange, which can be brought into court to show in each case who bought and who sold, and what brokers were agents. Trading with a bucket shop is foolish from a business standpoint, and if engaged in with full understanding, it is an offense against public morality.—Youth's Companion.

CHANCES AT HOME.

ONCE upon a time the ambitious boy who lived in a small town had but one great aim in life—to get to the city as soon as possible. He had to do it; it was the only way he could hope to win place and wealth in the world. The small town that he called home held nothing for him. The town lawyer had a waiting list a yard long for young men who sought the coveted position of reading law in his office, the bank could have the pick and flower of a dozen high school graduates when it came to selecting a bookkeeper or clerk, the stores were mouse-eaten and dead. He simply had to go to the city if he wanted a chance to show what was in him. And go he did, for a majority of the business population of our cities hails from the small town and the country. The young man who stayed in a small town in the old days was regarded as a fellow who had no ambition, little capacity, and a great laziness.

But now things are different. A young man is not a candidate for the loafer's bench on market square because he stays in the old home town after he is old enough to have started his climb to the top. In fact the chances are that he is a wise boy, that he has weighed the advantages of city and town life, their respective opportunities and rewards, well and carefully, and has chosen his way deliberately and in full consciousness of what he does. And it is to be said that there is no reason in the wide world why he is not wiser, why his choice is not better than the fellow who has packed up, bade the old folks good-by and cast his lot in the realm of hall bedrooms and killing competition.

The small town of the Middle West, the progressive small town, and most of them are progressive nowadays, offers the ambitious young man of wide open eyes and unremitting energy probably as good a chance to win place, if not better, than the great cities. The world moves, and in the future biographies of great men there will have to be room for that of the "son of poor, but respectable parents" who did not "betake himself to the city at an early age," but who, on the contrary, looked about him where he stood, saw he was well located, and proceeded to make the most of surrounding opportunities with a profitable result. Even now there are several captains of finance who never had to go to the city to get their millions, who never went 100 miles from the spot of their birth to find the field of their operations, and who are thanking their stars that they didn't.—Utica Globe.

THE LANGUAGE AGAIN.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S conversbun to the fonetic methud ov speling is sumwhat surprizing. The Prezident duz not luk like a man that wud make a stab at a fad like that, but it seemz yu never can tel. But now that he has taken up the new idea, what is going to result? Nothing, absolutely. How could it, when about all the advocates of the spelling reform are people who can't spell anyway? Catch the average seeker for light on orthography, and you'll catch a person who understands that "cat" begins with a "k" and that it may end with one or two "t's," at the option of the speller.

It is a good thing to be a good speller. Bad orthography is a detriment to many a man's business and a handicap in more ways than one. But the English language as constructed at the present time, though it have its peculiarities and its idiosyncrasies, is a pretty good old language, and any attempts to make radical changes in the method of putting it together are practically certain to fail. What we want more than spelling reform is a closer study of words in their present construction. That there are absurdities which might be eliminated with profit is true, but scholars insist that the language as a whole is good enough; and that ought to "go."—Williamsport (Pa.) Grit.

RUSSIA'S INFAMY.

ALL riots lead to the Jews in Russia. At Siedlce, according to the Associated Press dispatches, there was first an attack on the police by terrorists. Then the troops came into action and the Libau regiment left its barracks in a fury and made not for the terrorists but for the Jewish quarters. It went shooting right and left, and was followed by a sympathetic crowd that helped in the pillage and slaughter. The soldiers themselves sold their plunder openly under the eyes of their officers.

Such tales of bloodshed are repeated again and again. They elicit indignant protests all over the civilized world, but governors and military officers encourage the massacres just the same. They bring such infamy upon their country that public sentiment everywhere is turning strongly against it as though it were a land of barbarians.—Chicago Record-Herald.

THE REIGN OF REASON.

Although the son of the house had seen something of life, he was impressed by the fine raiment and languid grace of the summer boarder at Willowbrook Farm. But his father had seen more of life.

"I had thought she was some older than she says," remarked the son meditatively one rainy morning as he and his father were at work rubbing up harnesses.

"How old does she allow she is?" inquired the owner of Willowbrook Farm, no name being mentioned.

"Well, last night as we sat out on the porch," said the young man, with a dreamy, reminiscent air, "she said she wished I could 'see spring steal over the land' down in the Evangeline country. She said, 'I've seen it nine times; I have never missed it since I was a girl in my teens.'"

"Well," said the father, after a quick glance at the unconscious face opposite his own, "how old do you make her by that?"

"She can't be more'n twenty-eight at that rate," said the young man, his eyes apparently fixed on a pitchfork.

"I guess you haven't considered how backward some springs are," remarked his father, dryly, after a short pause, "and how there's some of 'em that don't do any 'stealing' to speak of, on account of being behindhand.

"I'm a-going to let you be the one to go down to the village for the mail the rest o' these summer evenings. The ride will kind of air you out—and there isn't going to be much more moon for one spell, now she's quartering in this rain."

MRS. WILLIAM ASTOR.

Her Long and Honorable Social Career Is Ended.

The long and honorable social career of Mrs. William Astor is practically ended, by the laws of nature. She is failing physically and mentally and while she may be spared a few more years, they will be spent in travel and rest and she will not again resume that leadership of New York and Newport, which will probably never be duplicated.

Mrs. Astor earned her right to the position of social leader long before Ward McAllister, the epicure, recognized her as such. It was she who gave the first grand private dinners, which are now quite common, and it was through these entertainments that Mrs. Astor became better known than any woman of the time. Mrs. Astor's dinners were formal affairs, but they were not stiff and irritating. They were, in fact, stately to a charming degree, and her guests, though they were always made at ease, even felt that they were participating in a function and not a romp.

It was through these affairs that Mrs. Astor, though she never sought for anything but the pleasure of her friends, earned her right to social leadership. Nowadays such dinners as Mrs. Astor astonished society with are duplicated at Newport often five and six times in an evening, but it was Mrs. Astor who gave the first, and it was she who was alone in thus entertaining for some years. Mrs. Astor's formal balls were much like her dinners, in that they were delightfully formal without being cold and repelling. There were always indications of lavish expenditure, but there was never any such vulgar features as often characterize entertainments of today. She could entertain without the use of the negro minstrel and the ragtime. Her cotillon favors were always elegant rather than grotesque and comic, and yet everybody always craved an invitation to a ball at Beechwood.

MRS. WILLIAM ASTOR.

Her dinner companies were usually given for some distinguished personality, perhaps a prince, a duke, or maybe a count. She always had every foreign notability in town on her list, for each invariably brought credentials to her from some friend at court.

Thus Mrs. Astor has been a sort of social censor. She was the best known American woman in all the courts of Europe, and foreigners coming over without letters to her were utterly without the slightest means of social entree.—Utica Globe.

Had Not Learned It Yet.

A bank official, who has many amusing stories at his tongue's end, tells of a stolid German woman who went into the bank one morning to deposit a fat roll of bills, and open an account.

She was asked to sign her name in the book reserved for the signatures of depositors, and began to do so with many twistings of her face and pauses after the painful completion of each letter.

Suddenly she stopped, and after a period of dismayed reflection looked appealingly at the benevolent young man on the other side of the broad writing-shelf.

"I haf Katrina done," she said, pointing to her work with the pen; "but my secont name, I don't p'lieve I can write him. I don't peen marriet to dis man long alretty—only long as yesterday."

When Solid Iron Floats.

Experiments show that if a ball of solid iron is lowered into a mass of liquid iron by means of a metal fork the ball at first sinks to the bottom with the fork. But in a few seconds it leaves the prongs and rises to the surface, where it continues to float until it melts. The rising is explained by the expansion of the ball, due to heating, whereby it becomes, bulk for bulk, less dense than the molten metal.

Laughed Too Soon.

Fields—I beat Lumpkins on a horse trade in great shape yesterday.

Barnes—Got your money yet?

Fields—He paid half down and is coming around with the rest to-morrow.

Barnes—No, he isn't; he was buying that horse for me.—Detroit Free Press.

What has become of the old fashioned breed of pony known as a "Buckskin?" There never was a mule as mean as a "Buckskin" pony.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN CLALLAM COUNTY.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1906.

Congressman Jones will speak to the people at Dungeness on the afternoon of the 31st and in Angeles on same evening.

A vote for Mr. FitzHenry is an endorsement of as competent, as obliging, and as trustworthy an official as ever did his level best to properly transact the business of the county. A good officer is surely entitled to two terms—give him the endorsement of your vote, and he will step down and out at the close of his second term with the good wishes and high esteem of every voter in the county.

Mr. Richardson, for county attorney, continues to devote much of his time, stumping the county for the success of the democratic ticket. The people know Mr. Richardson, and know that he is earnest and consistent in what he says. His record as an attorney and his record as county clerk from 1893 to 1897 is an open book; he has not been found wanting, and we believe the public interests, in the highest sense, will be promoted by his election.

Those who attended the democratic rally at Port Crescent last Saturday report an enthusiastic meeting and a general good time. Some twenty persons went down from Angeles, including a number of ladies, who went to accompany Miss Annette Trumbull, the nominee of the party for Supt. of Schools. Miss Trumbull met with an enthusiastic ovation at the hands of the men of the Crescent logging camp, many of them declaring that for once at least they would be gallant and vote for the woman.

Elsewhere in this issue is a letter from our friend, A. B. Reagan, of Mora, endorsing the candidacy of K. O. Erickson for commissioner from the Third district. Mr. Reagan is a neighbor of Mr. Erickson and what he says may be relied upon. The people are certainly to be congratulated that both the Third and the Second districts have placed in nomination such able men as Mr. Erickson and Mr. Lauridsen, who are endowed with good judgment that amply equips them for the most important posts within the gift of the people. They will have for counsel and aid, Mr. Bugge as holdover, one of the best of the excellent board that will retire at the close of their terms.

No one is so well qualified for the important position of coroner as a competent physician, and that's one reason, a valid one, why Dr. D. E. McGillivray is the right man for the place. He is already as good as elected.

Is Pledged to Equal Taxation

John Hickok, the nominee for county assessor on the republican ticket, requires no introduction to a large number of the voters of Clallam county, and his party owes no apologies or explanation for his nomination. That came to him unanimously, and if elected—as he will be—he will owe allegiance to ALL the people of the county—not to any faction or class of men.

While Mr. Hickok is so well known in the county as to render any formal introduction seem useless, still, among the new population of the county there may be some that have not the pleasure of an acquaintance of this genial and capable gentleman, therefore the Olympic-Leader takes pleasure in introducing him.

Mr. Hickok is a man particularly fitted for the position of assessor, both by education and long experience in the affairs of men. He is a member of the firm of The Clallam County Abstract Company and an expert in that line of business; is familiar with each and every sub-division of land in this county. He has been especially employed by the county for the past twelve years to write up the assessment rolls, and is therefore familiar with every detail connected with the work. If experience counts for anything, no better choice could have been made.

Mr. Hickok has been a resident of this county for nearly twenty years, and has been closely identified with the material prosperity and upbuilding of the community all these years, and is today one of its heavy taxpayers. This fact alone should appeal to the voters of Clallam county as being sufficient evidence of interest that an assessment made by him would be fair and just. Mr. Hickok, being free from all bias or control of any interests whatsoever, has pledged himself—before the convention that nominated him—that if elected to make a fair, just and equitable assessment of each and every class of property contained in this county. What more can the voters ask?

A public official who would keep his office open only on such days, and only during such hours of those days, as did not interfere with his private business would not be tolerated in the average community for a moment. The public pays for a full week's work and has a right to demand that it be not inconvenienced in order that its employees may earn additional money elsewhere. If the salary be not sufficient, it must be remembered no man is forced to accept the position.

Mr. FitzHenry has ever since the first year of his residence in the county, been one of its most public spirited citizens. He has always been in line, with his shoulder to the wheel, for the election of the best men on either ticket. He has filled the office of county clerk satisfactorily to all alike, and is pre-eminently derserving of your endorsement.

Ely Sherman Hitch

Ely Sherman Hitch, who had been a sufferer from a spinal disease for some time, was given his release on Saturday last and passed over to the Great Beyond. The funeral services were held Sunday morning at 11, from the residence of his parents, corner 11th and Cherry, Rev. C. E. Fulmer speaking the words of comfort and consolation to the family.

Mr. Hitch was born in West Union, Iowa, December 9, 1867; moved to the Fall River Valley, Shasta Co., Calif., and from there came to Angeles in 1891. He was married to Miss Abbie Sturdevant on the 29th of October, 1905. Two sisters, Mrs. Blanche Sturdevant and Mrs. Lillie Gerson were also present to lend comfort during his last days and to cheer their aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hitch.

The family wishes to thus extend their thanks to the many friends for kindness and assistance rendered.

Clutching at Straws

The new daily promised for Port Townsend has so far failed to put in an appearance. The Call says that rumor has it that the new paper is to be issued "primarily to bolster up the fast waning prestige of William Bishop, the bolting nominee for the joint-senatorship, and promises to attract much attention, if it, as is threatened, can demonstrate to the party in particular and the party at large any justifiable grounds for the step Bishop has taken to read himself out of the party which has for so many years showered its highest honors upon him and which, the first time his domineering is disputed in open and honorable convention, lays aside all precedent, tramples on republican principles and seeks to set himself up above the party which made him. If it be true that the new publication is to issue both morning and evening it will require all available of both issues from now to November 6th to make clean the page in the record of party perfidy.

Since the above was in type the "daily" has made its appearance. It is a ten by twelve circular and will have four issues. Each will be loud in its condemnation of the papers of Port Townsend because they were not for sale to a bolter—and silent as to reasons why the voter should turn down plain, honest, farmer Blair. Bishop has evidently arrived at the straw clutching stage.

Great storms, high winds, extreme cold and snow seems to be the order of the day in many parts of the country. The one that prevailed along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains on the first of the week was the severest in years for the season. Happy is the man who has cast his lot on the Olympia peninsula, where storms seldom occur and where perpetual spring is the rule.
