The Commonwealth is sent this week to a large number of persons in Clallam County and elsewhere. in the hope that they will appreciate our motives and whether they agree with our views or not, will give us, by subscribing, a chance at least to make ourselves understood. To those who live in Clallam County, we would say, that your interests are our interests. and that nothing so aids in building up a county as a live and aggressive newspaper and, to that end, in helping us you are helping yourselves.

CHEAPER PILOTAGE.

A bill reducing pilot rates one-half, is before the legislature of Oregon and is said to have every chance of beeoming a law. Should the bill pass it will make pilotage in that state much cheaper than on Puget Sound. Pilotage is a charge made for guiding a vessel safely through more or less dangerous waters adjacent to her destined port, and operates to discourage commerce in proportion to the amount charged, as pilotage is paid by the vessel owners. Now, if commerce is a good thing for the Sound country why should we not remove all obstacles in its way? In fact why should not competent pilots be employed by the Territory at good wages and supplied to vessels free of charge? This is a matter which should demand the early attention of our legislature.

BRICK.

One of the things Port Angeles stands most in need of is a brick yard. Not an extensive concern requiring thousands of dollars of capital but a yard of moderate size; such as would supply the home demand and leave a few to ship. One or two men with a moderate capital could get a good living in that business here. If anyone desires to investigate we will give them all the information and assistance in our power. Call on or address the COMMONWEALTH.

The Seattle Times gives four reasons why those owning vacant lots in that city should improve them. The Times sees the "cat" to the extent of saying that "the value of the land is created by the population" but it gives as yet no evidence of seeing that the adoption of the Single Tax would of itself do all that the Seattle papers have been struggling for in the way of getting lot owners to improve. If the Times Editor will stop to think he will see that a vacant lot represents an opportunity for engaging in enterprise; and if the people of Seattle would stop fining those who build and engage in enterprises and put the fine on those who hold the unused opportunities these latter would be compelled to build, and thus the crowds coming to Seattle could be accommodated and the city would flourish as never before. The increase of improvements, the Single Tax on land values would develope, would employ labor at good wages and the trade of these would benefit every business man in Seattle. If the Times really wants to build up Seattle let it advocate the Single Tax.

The evidence against Bonfield and Captain Shack is accumulating in a way most discouraging to these pretended conservators of public morals in Chicago, the latest bring the confession of the jailor of the police station that a large quantity of goods stolen from the Pullman Company had been stored there by their direction. These are the men who figured so prominently in the Anarchist troubles of Chicago and did their utmost to stifle free speech. Indications are that, having been suspended by the mayor, they will soon have private apartments in the city jail. Meanwhile Judge Tuley has decided that Anarchists have a right peacably to assemble and discuss their theories as they see fit, free from police interference.

The commission appointed by Pres. Cleveland to select a site for a naval station on the Sound have reached the Territory and will procede to make the necessary investigation. They should not neglect to visit Port Angeles, a point naturally adopted for such a work commanding as it does the entrance to the Sound and having a bay in which the navies of the world could ride in perfect security from the elements. If they come here there will be no necessity of buying land as a reservation has already been made for that purpose.

We are glad to learn that the mayor of Victoria has become interested in the Single Tax movement to the extent of desiring to make a careful study of Henry George's works. It speaks well for his candor and we feel assured he will be able to see how the adoption of that system would make Victoria grow and flourish like a "green bay tree."

Austrian papers which published the fact that Prince Rudolph was killed by a bullet have been suppressed. That is the way the Austrian government encourages truth telling!

Mr. W. J. Atkinson of the Keystone Watch Co., of Philadelphia, a largely protected manufacturer has contributed $5000 and Mr. A. B. Farquar of York, Pa. a manufacturer of agricultural implements also largely protected has contributed $1250 toward the publication and free distribution of 250000 copies of Henry George's Protection or Free Trade. It is matter of special note that these are both Pennsylvania men, a state where the curse of protection is beginning to be most keenly felt both by capital and labor.

Railroads and Bankers.

The bankers and the railroad presidents have laid their heads together and determined that a new leaf shall be turned over in railway management. Hereafter there are to be no wars of rates, and everything is to be done in the interests of the stockholders. The country is to be divided up among the different systems; rates are to be fixed at such figures as the traffic will bear; and no system is to come poaching upon any other system's territory. What will happen to it if it does, would be pretty hard to say; it is assumed that the dread of provoking chaos will be sufficiently strong to induce the various presidents to stick to their agreement.

Unquestionably, it is a good thing for the commerce of the country that rate wars should cease entirely. When rates between New York and San Francisco are, one month, less than between New York and Syracuse, and the next month as high as ever, the effect on trade cannot but be evil. But it is, to say the least, very questionable if the true remedy is to be found in the practical consolidation of all the railways into one gigantic trust and the doing away with competition altogether. Anarchy is a dreadful thing, no doubt; but the absolutism that takes the place of anarchy is, if anything the more to be dreaded of the two. Our railways are something more than instrumeuts of production. They are engines of taxation as well. In organizing a national trust they are simply systematizing and strengthening their taxing power. Men who remember the old days when the stock of the Harlem railroad could be bought for five and six per cent, and who consider how little, as compared with other and less important lines, the service of that road has been improved since its consolidation with the Hudson river road, though its stock now sells at 250, will be apt to conclude that the managers of the new trust will pay more attention to the levying of taxes than to the development of commerce. To him who has sufficient power it is far easier to take than to make. If the railway combination is successful, the railways will devote their chief energies to taking, and let the country at large do the making as best it can.

The action of the bankers and presidents is really the strongest of arguments for the nationalization of our railway system. The roads confessedly cannot be profitably or equitably operated by separate corporations. Public safety demands that they should not be allowed to combine their forces for the oppression of the public.—Standard.

Our Senate Too Far From the People—It is a Relic of Monarchy For Which a Genuine Democracy Has no Further Use.

Only a little space will be needed to sustain the correctness of this principle. First it is out of harmony with our form of government to elect officers by proxy. Ours is a representative, democratic government. Our officers are supposed to, and should, represent the people directly. But our senators do not. The senate is a representative of a representative body. It is too far away from the people. In this degenerate age it is too apparent that officers are more influenced by fear of losing their seats than by love of country. The senate feels no such restraint; they are only very remotely dependent on the voter for their seats.

Then again, the present mode of electing senators opens the doors for the corruption of money in choosing them; it is only necessary to look at our present senate to demonstrate this position; it is little better than a "millionaire club." The philosophy of the thing is this: It is easier, and costs less, to buy a legislature, than it does a whole constituency. Mr. Gould understood this when he said, "It is cheaper to buy men after they are elected, than to elect them." They, the monolists and money power, have acted on this line for many years; it was this method that defeated Thurman and Van Wyck, and every senator has had the sword of monopoly suspended over him, and when his influence is dangerous to their craft, his political head goes off. As it is now, the senate had better be abolished a hundred-fold. Because it is only a tool for monopolies to enslave the people. A relic of monarchy. A house of lords.

But if we cannot abolish it, let it be transferred to the service of the people by being chosen by direct vote of the people. For the last twenty years this senate has been an unmitigated curse to our government, if not longer. But for the senate, the treasury notes would have been absolute money without the wicked exception; but for these exceptions there would never have been any gold gambling, or public debt. The people have already paid $4,000,000,000 of interest on the national debt, and nearly $2,000,000,000 on the principal. Add to this the depreciated property of all kinds, the millions of debts made all over our country, the idleness forced on millions of men every year since 1866; and know, all these curses came upon us because there were enough men in the senate who sold themselves for British gold to force the house to the exceptions on the treasury notes; making one kind of money for bankers and another kind for the people, so the people could be enslaved and robbed clandestinely.

The country would today be a hundred better thousand million dollars off (that much less debt) if the senate had been abolished with chattel slavery. So long as it continues in its present form our country is in Shylock's clutches, and "We, the people," are bound to his chariot wheels.—Pacific Union.

A Single Tax Picture.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 6.—I saw to-day a sketch for a picture which Mr. John H. Fry, the artist, has in contemplation; and as the sketch alone has already attracted attention, and brought out something more than passing comment in art circles here, I send you a description of it. Mr. Fry is a painstaking, "honest" artist; I don't know whether artists ever describe a picture as "honest," but that's the word which comes to my lips when I look at one of Fry's pictures. He is a teacher in the art department of Washington university, and his fame as an artist is not by any means confined to the corporate limits of St. Louis, but the picture tells the sort of man the artist is a good deal better than I can tell it. It wouldn't be a good picture if it did not.

He presented his sketch to the artists' guild for criticism the other day, and this is what they saw:

A little brown farm house on a rise in the prairie, a rough picket fence protecting the door yard from the road; the gate is held open by a man with a rifle on his shoulder; near by stands another armed man, while a third is carrying out the farmer's household goods and piling them up around the feet of that free American citizen, who stands in a state of daze as he watches the proceedings which make him homeless. He is not a haggard, ill fed "agricultural laborer." He is an American farmer, six feet tall, straight as an Indian, with broad shoulders and bronzed face; the sort of man one sees at country fairs, examining new agaicultural implements with curious, intelligent eyes, or stroking the sleek sides of a prize ox. By his side sits his pleasant faced wife nursing a baby. His left hand rests on the golden curls of a bright faced daughter of ten years or thereabouts.

He is evidently a patriotic farmer. for among his belongings the evictors have found an American flag—perhaps he had just brought it home to celebrate the triumph of Harrison and protection. And he is also a God fearing farmer, for the family bible lies on the flag—the little girl's name is inscribed there, I suppose, and the baby's name, and the date of his marriage to the pleasant faced woman by his side.

The dazed farmer watches the deputy sheriffs who throw out his goods so unceremoniously, while a big fat hog grunts his curious way out of a mud hole in the road and sniffs at the bible, with his fore feet on the flag.

Fry calls it "an Iowa eviction," and a clipping from the Standard, describing the Des Moines river evictions, is pasted on the margin of the sketch.

One of the artists who saw the picture said: "Look here, Fry! that's irreverent, you know—that pig sniffing the bible on the flag. You ought not to do that."

"I'm not irreverent," said Fry. "Its the landlord who's irreverent, not the artist."

When the picture is complete we will try and persuade Mr. Fry to send it to your single tax club house for exhibition. —Hamlin Russel. in Standard.

Woman's Suffrage.

Let no man or woman be mistaken as to what this movement for women's suffrage really means, writes Mrs. Fawcett in the Woman's World. We none of us want to turn the world upside-down, or to convert women into men. We want women, on the contrary, above all things to continue womanly—womanly in the highest and best sense—and to bring their true woman's influence on behalf of whatsoever things are true, honest, just, pure, lovely and of good report, to bear upon the conduct of public affairs. Some people attempt to meet the claim of women to representation by the absurdly irrelevant remark, for I can not call it an argument, that women householders ought not to vote for members of parliament because they can not be policemen and and can not be soldiers. Who wants them to be either policemen or soldiers? There must always be a certain division of labor between the sexes. The physical constitution of a woman fits her to perform certain duties, on which the welfare of society in a high degree depends. The physical constitution of a man fits him for certain other duties, one of which is that of external defenes. And there are certain other duties which men and women must undertake jointly and in cooperation with one another, and from which the total withdrawal of one sex or the other is fraught with danger and mischief. Those who are in favor of woman's suffrage maintain that the duty of loving one's country, of understanding her interests, of indeavoring to influence public affairs by the choice of men of high character and true patriotism to serve in Parliament, is one which is incumbent on women as well as on men. There is nothing in the nature of a women which fits her to be a policeman or a soldier; and there is nothing in the nature of a woman which unfits her to love her country and to serve her by helping to send good men to promote sound legislation in Parliament.

People sometimes talk as if fighting for one's country were the only way of serving her. Surely that is taking a very one-sided view of a nation's interests. All work well done, all service in lifting up the lives of others to a higher level, "all we have wished or hoped or dreamed of good," forms the real treasury of national greatness. I have no wish to disparage the usefulness, the necessity, of the army and the police force; but civilization owes quite as much to that great host of silent, busy workers, of whom at least half are women, through whose labors alone there is anything worth preserving, as to the army and police force for preserving it.

The Cause of the Increase of Divorces.

Eminent among jurists who have given especial attention to the matter of divorces is Judge Murray F. Tuley. "I find," he said to the Sun correspondent, "that the chief and underlying motive of the bulk of divorces is resolved into the practical issue of bread and butter. The wife of the man whose income is $1.50 or $2 a day, is harassed, overworked, consequently peevish. She is bothered to make the small sum she can have stretch out over the wide space of daily food and daily clothes. She is often driven to desperation by the needs of her children. She must pinch and contrive to keep shoes on their naked, cold little feet in winter time. The food of the family is necessarily of the poorest quality. It is insufficient for the physical needs of the man and woman too. He responds to the demands of his system for sustenance by stopping on his way to and from work for a glass or two of beer, perhaps he takes more, and his improperly nourished system makes the beverage more stimulating than it would be to a well fed man. His brain is slightly inflamed by it; he goes home irritable and careless in his speech. The worried and tired wife frets at him, at the children; they cry, and are in his way. Dissatisfaction springs up, and quarrels ensue between the man and woman. The man is discouraged, desperate. He runs away and leaves the poor burdened creature who married him to shift for herself and their offsprings. He is made a coward and a villain because of incapacity to earn money enough to comfortably meet the responsibilities he assumed.

"That is the commonplace, vulgar cause of divorce in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred among the lower walks of life, whence come the most prayers for the annulment of marriage relations. Drunkenness figures next to desertion as a cause. The most frequent instances of this complaint are among laborers, although it is not confined to them. Cruelty is more often charged against the rough laborer than against the cultivated man of society of course, but the latter has been known to do violent deeds.

The crime of adultery is seldom alleged against the hard working poor man. It is usually the well to do or rich husband and wives who apply for divorce on this ground. Applicants are about equally divided between the men and women. Divorces for adultery are on the increase among the rich; divorces for desertion among the poor.

EXPIRED FROM RAGE.

A Newspaper Man Truthfully Describes His Experience on the Prairie.

Snake stories are in season, and we propose to tell one literally true, says the Atlanta Journal. We were riding over the unsettled prairies of Kansas with a companion, when we came suddenly upon a large prairie rattlesnake. The growth of grass all over the prairie was rank and thick, and fully six or eight inches high, except in the little flat or depressed spots where the water had stood until late in the spring; on these it was short and scant. It was one of these partially bare places, perhaps thirty feet square, that we came upon the snake. We took out our revolver, and were about to shoot at it, but our companion said: "Don't shoot." We had wasted most of our loads shooting at prairie-chickens, etc., and might need what we had left for other game.

There was not a stick large enough for a riding switch within a mile, but there were limestone rocks here and there on the prairie, and he said if we would keep the snake in the bare place he would ride a short distance back and get a rock where he had seen several. We undertook the task, but the snake was vicious, and bent on getting out into the high grass. Finding that he would get out if he had to pass under our horse, we drew back a few steps and fired at him. The ball struck and cut up the ground a few inches beyond him; but the discharge seemed to change his entire disposition and action. He wriggled to a small "resin weed" growing in the bare spot, and coiled himself tightly around it. By this time our companion had returned with a rock, and, dismounting, we threw it at the snake. It struck the ground a few inches beyond him, and he never moved.

Approaching cautiously we drew away the stone with the crooked handle of an umbrella and again threw it at the snake. This time it did not quite reach him, but struck the ground near him and rolled over so as to touch him lightly. Still he never moved or rattled.

With some fear of danger we quietly touched him with the end of the umbrella, and as he still remained motionless and quiet we cautiously unwound him from his coil around the weed. He was limp as a rag, but entirely dead—dead all over; not even his tail gave any signs of vitality. There was not a bruise about him, and certainly we had not hurt him with either ball or rock. We could only conclude that in his rage or fright when fired at he had bitten and thus killed himself.

CAUGHT NAPPING.

A Good Story Told at the Expense of Kentucky's Junior Senator.

"Joe" Blackburn, as he well known, is not a great stickler for ceremony or official etiquette. The other day, says the New York Tribune's Washington correspondent, he lay stretched on a lounge in one of the rooms at the capitol, reviewing some committee report about to be submitted to the Senate. The air was sultry, there was scarcely any breeze stirring, and "Joe" felt as if he would never succeed in settling himself comfortably on that lounge. There was one consolation, however, in the thought that no office-seeker would be likely to disturb his rest on such a day. He was just taking another stretch on the lounge, and was about to take up again the committee report which he had temporarily laid aside to bury his nose in a bunch of mint, when one of the pages unceremoniously entered and gave him a card. Without rising "Joe" read the note on the card peevishly, with:

"Oh, the deuce! She here again? I told her last week I couldn't do any thing for her."

The visitor was a woman who had been twice dismissed from the Department of the Interior, and reinstated after the first dismissal on the recommendation of Senator Blackburn. He was unwilling, however, to interfere again, as he was confident that she did not deserve it.

"I can not see her," he said, impatiently. "Get rid of her any way. Tell her I'm asleep, or any thing you like."

Quickly returning to the woman in the entry, the page said:

"Senator Blackburn told me to tell you that he was asleep."

"Ah, he says he's asleep, eh?" she exclaimed. "Well, will you be kind enough to return and ask him when he intends to wake up?"

It is the first time, I think, that "Joe" was ever caught napping.

Senator Stanford gave a dinner to sixteen friends the other night at which strawberries were served that cost $30 a dozen.

THE COMMONWEALTH

PORT ANGELES, - - W. T.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Jno. Spears is building a residence on the hill.

Mr. Schaeffer moved from the East End back to his farm on Monday last.

H. Fisher is erecting a hall on water front opposite the Signal Office.

The Revenue Cutter Wolcott was in Sunday and lay at the wharf over night.

A large Shingle and band-saw mill will soon be established at Dry Creek. The mill will saw cedar lumber only.

The Evangel took a load of shingles up Sound Saturday from the Port Angeles Shingle Manuf. Co.

A light sprinkle of snow fell Friday night last, but by Monday all trace of it had disappeared.

Three men are here making negotiations for cedar lands. It is their intention to put up large mills on Ennis creek if they are able to secure sufficient timber.

There is quite a demand for bricks. Some enterprising man with a small capital, looking for a chance for rememerative employment should start a brick yard here at once.

Lewis and Mastick have erected a Real Estate office on their lot, corner of Front and Laurel streets. They have also purchased a lot in the vicinity which they will grade, using the dirt to fill the lot on Front street.

Mr. Geraghty is having his machine hauled to his farm, about two miles south of town. He intends to stump about 14 acres, previously slashed and cleared, after which he will bring it back to fill contracts for clearing lots on the hill.

Two fractions adjoining the townsite on the east containing 38 acres have been platted by Victoria parties and called the Syndicate addition to Port Angeles. It has been put on the market in that city and we understand has met with ready sale.

Mr. Martin J. Nord, who has large property interests here, paid Port Angeles a visit this week. While here, he sold several lots to parties from Tacoma whose names we did not learn, for a mill site. The lots are located on the water front at the mouth of Frazers creek. We understand that work will soon be commenced thereon and another important industry will be added to our growing town.

The immense sale of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been produced to a great extent, by people, who have been cured by it telling their friends and neighbors of its good qualities and urging them to try it. The most severe cold will soon yield to its soothing effects. For Sale by E. E. Fisher.

Many persons contract severe colds during the early winter months and permit them to hang on persistently all winter; weakening the lungs and paving the way for catarrh, chronic bronchites, or consumption. No one can afford to neglect a cold. A single bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure the most severe cold, and costs but 50 c's. For Sale by E. E. Fisher.

Another water front squabble occured Saturday, over land used by H. G. C. Gordon. As the matter is liable to get into the Court we refrain from touching on what we consider the merits in the case. We hope the parties will come to an amplicable settlement, and meantime would call their attention to the fact that under the Springer Omnibus bill, in Congress, under which our Territory is apt to be admitted, the tide lands will not go to the State. They will belong to the United States, and in time our water front will probably be platted into town lots and sold to the highest bidder.

Someday Port Angeles will have a fire at the West End. In the general greed for water fronts, even Lincoln and Chase streets have been covered by small buildings and an almost unbroken line of wooden buildings of all styles, sizes and descriptions extend from the wharf easterly, over 1050 feet, and westerly, about 500 feet. A fire once started will be apt to sweep the whole thing. The streets should have been left open to prevent the spreading of fire, but then we must learn by experience as other towns have before us. Experience is a good, though dear, teacher.

An entertainment will be given at the East End Opera house, Tuesday evening March 5th, under the auspicies of the ladies of the Congregational Church. The entertainment will be given by home talent, and as usual will be worthy of the culture and ability of the people of Port Angeles. A free lunch will be given at the close. The admission fee to the entertainment will be 25cts. for adults, and 10cts. for children. The proceeds will go to plaster the new church. No effort will be left unexerted to make the entertainment successful. Tickets will be sold and we trust the ladies will meet with a cordial reception. The program will be inserted in the COMMONWEALTH next week.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.

It is a curious fact that while the festive clam flourishes everywhere in the shallow waters of the Sound his fellow of the thicker shell is seldom found unless artificially cultirvated.

In order to encourge the planting of Oyster beds in the waters of the Sound an act was passed by the Legislative Assembly and approved Nov. 6th 1877, entittled "An act to encourage the cultivation of oysters." A large number of beds have already been located in the upper sound country and planted with eastern oysters and in some cases give promise of the most satisfactory results. While oysters are a salt water mollusk, they nevertheless require an abundant supply of fresh water for their healthy developement. This fact led Dr. Lewis and others to believe that the Bay of Port Angeles offered special advantages for the developement of the oyster industry. To this end all that portion of the bay adapted to this purpose has been located and arrangements made to plant the same with eastern oysters at an early day. The law governing the locations gives exclusive control to the owner and makes trespass thereon a criminal offence.

Notice.

A meeting will be held at the Opera House, East End, on Wednesday evening Feb. 27th, to take the necessary steps to incorporate Port Angeles. A full attendance is desired.

San Francisco, Feb. 12.—A. L. Maxwell general passenger and ticket agent of the O. R. & N. Company, is in the city. He says that the immigration to Washington Territory this season is enormous. The equipment is strained to the utmost to accommodate purchasers of tickets. Columbia River steamers are carrying 500 passengers daily. The entire tide of immigration which last year was attracted to California seems to have turned northward this year to assist in peopleing Tacoma, Seattle and the northwest.

SECRETARY'S CORNER.

The Secretary's Corner will be a permanent institution hereafter. We will gladly reply to any inquiry sent us. Make them short and to the point. Remember there are from 500 to 1500 who have their eyes upon these pages each week and each one may want to be heard.

To Correspondents.

Write as often as you feel inclined, but be sure to have your inquires in short sentences. If you desire your letters published, write upon on side of the sheet only. We will reply to any inquiry whether connected with the Colony or not. If a personal letter is wanted, inclose stamps to cover postage.

A. K. Owen has not been idle. He has been laboring with capitalists while his followers at Topolabampo have been growing rich in experience. He understands the necessity of being on good terms with capitalists much better than any other man connected with his Colony and now his railroad scheme, the only thing that could build a city at the site selected on Topolapampo bay, is meeting with considerable encouragement and in all probability will soon be built. Mr. Owen solicited a bid for 93000 railroad ties from this Colony.

Our friends in the East should no longer hesitate to invest in Port Angeles real estate, if they contemplate making this their home. One hundred and fifty dollars will purchase property today that will be in demand at double these prices within three years. We do not put this out as a "boom pointer." We are in earnest and prefer to see the property in the hands of those who propose to do something in Port Angeles, rather than see it fall into the hands of those who will simply sit down and permit other people to do the necessary improving. About one year ago we predicted that property would constantly advance in value and suggested the propriety of our friends in the various cities forming "pools" or, if you please, "syndicates," and purchasing the property the colony was about to put on the market. If this had been done, those friends could today enjoy a dividend of from 33⅓ to 100 per cent. on their investments. It is not too late to do this yet. There are some debts yet to settle, and real estate sufficient to pay it all off, has been set aside for that purpose.

A correspondent who has given the subject of co-operation considerable study, desires to know some of the mistakes of the Colony. Of course he does this in all seriousness, and expects a reply. He should know by this time that what one person would consider a mistake another would be philosophic enough to consider a "blessing in disguise." If he had asked for our opinion, we could easily have given it, but after all it would have been only an opinion. The real mistakes might not be mentioned. But in the opinion of some men, the mistakes of this colony have been numerous enough to make a good sized book.

We have been criticised from several quarters for saying that the Colony Company is "A Commercial Company." If anyone interested will take the charter of the company,—our constitution—and give it the slightest consideration, he will coincide with our views on the subject. Of necessity, the company was organized under the laws of this Territory, and the law governing joint-stock companies governs ours. It was incorporated to transact certain lines of commercial business. The only thing in the law which permits it to be a company for the dollars and cents of its capital is that clause which provides for the individual vote, limiting the number of votes to one, regardless of the number of shares held by the stockholder. This permits its share-holders to have an equal voice in its management, so far as selecting its Board of Trustees are concerned, no matter whether one share or several thousand are held by the individual. In every other respect it is patterned after the old-line joint-stock companies of the country, and has their powers and no more. If anything out of the usual course persued by these companies, is taken up and practiced by this company, it is permitted only by the mutual consent of all the shareholders. Any respectable number of them might call a halt and require that it return to the old ruts, wherever it departs from them. It is to be hoped, however, that no necessity for anything of this kind will ever arise. We want to be co-operative in our general plan, in our details and in our every practice as well as in our thought and progress, and it is possible for us to be so to the very letter, if we build our hopes upon success rather than has been the case to too great a degree in the past, upon the failure of our undertaking.

The Equalization of Capital.

That the capital of this company should be equally distributed among its members, is admitted by everyone the least concerned. But "How shall this equalization be effected?" is the serious question. There are as many plans as there are days in the year, and all the suggestions that may be made will avail nothing without action. The plan of each working member subscribing for sufficient of the stock to make his holding equal one hundred shares, in our mind is the most feasible, as well as practical. Until something of the kind is done there will be a continual clashing of interests and the sooner it is put in practice the better it will be for all concerned.

Let this company have a capital of one thousand dollars to the member, and it will not be long in becoming one of the most successful enterprises of the country. The movement to effect this should not be discouraged by anyone who has the welfare of this Colony at heart, and we believe, will not be.
