MAYOR DECIDES LICENSE A PERMIT

HELD VOTE OF FIVE MEMBERS NOT NECESSARY

Morse Wharf Franchise Passed. Council Places Rental of Street at Ten Dollars per Month.

At the session of City Council a week ago last Tuesday night, the vote on the liquor license applied for by Kempton & Hulburt, by roll call showed Brophy, Hallahan and Harding in favor, and Ritchie and Kelly against. The Mayor withheld his decision without comment, and at last meeting of Council reported that the license was ordered issued. Councilman Ritchie objected to this ruling, First, that the record of each meeting was complete in itself; Second, that the report should be under the head of unfinished business, and that he was to go on record to the effect that if "this license is granted he would commence action against the parties for selling liquor without a license, but did not want to be compelled."

The D. W. Morse Wharf franchise was taken up and placed on its final passage. The clause in regard to monthly rental of $20 per month during time mail was taken over dock and the sum of $10 per month when not used as a mail dock was stricken out some three meetings ago. The clause to pay the sum of $10 per month during life of franchise was inserted, and grantee was allowed thirty days in which to accept the franchise, before the franchise was adopted.

The following bills were allowed.

The Angeles Water Co. $4.00; C. Wise and men, $6.50; Brown & Lewis,$23.75; C. Wise and men, $14.50; The Angeles Water Co., $25.00.

The question of the legality in granting to Kempton & Hulburt a saloon license depends upon whether such license is a privilege, in which event five votes must have been cast in its favor, or merely a permit, requiring a majority vote. Mayor Appleton evidently considers a license to be in the nature of a permit, as he decided the motion carried. Councilman Ritchie cites Bouvier, accepted as authority by the legal fraternity everywhere, in support of his opinion that a saloon license is not only a privilege, but a valuable privilege, for which a considerable payment is required. Acting on this belief, he asserts he will bring action against the parties if they open up for business.

The definition given by Bouvier is as follows:

LICENSE.—In Governmental Regulation.—Authority to do some act or carry on some trade or business, in its nature lawful but prohibited by statute, except with the permission of the civil authority or which would otherwise be unlawful.

A license to carry on a business or trade is an official permit to carry on the same or perform other acts forbidden by law except to persons obtaining such permit. A license of this sort is a personal privilege.

When the power is exercised by a Municipal Corporation, a license is the requirement by the Municipality of the payment of a certain sum by a person for the privilege of pursuing his profession or calling, whether harmful or innocent, for the general purpose of producing a reliable source of revenue.—Bouvier Law Dictionary, page 224.

A license to sell liquors is a privilege and not property, and the forfeiture of a license does not deprive the licensee of property without due process of law.—Bouvier Law Dictionary, page 264.

Regarding the required majority for granting of a privilege, Sec. 936, I Bal. Code,provides: "That no ordinance,franchise or valuable privilege shall be granted unless by the votes of at least five members of the Council."

Recent developments in the Council seem to indicate that that august body is not wholly dead, but has merely been suffering from an attack of innocuous desuetude. After the first two or three sessions of the new body, matters quieted down and all has been serene on the surface. Meanwhile the Bushes of Contention have become deeply rooted and a beautiful crop of hot house flowers is about ready for the plucking. Just whose funeral obsequies they are to grace, is not, however, as yet apparent. Street grade warrants, saloon license, nonpayment of wharfage taxes, electric light management, and the proposed water and power system, may all seem to have become choked up by the weeds of neglect and allowed to wither away, but it is believed a little agitation will reveal a sturdy growth — and the agitation is DUE.

MOUNTAINEERS EXTEND TIME TO FIRST OF JULY

Those Who Love Nature and Would Enjoy an Outing with Congenial People Should Join Club.

The Mountaineers Club has issued a final call for the Mt. Olympus trip, announcing an extension in time for application to join the party to July 1st. Enough have already signed up to guarantee its complete success, but it is hoped that others, who have thus far been unable to decide definitely, can arrange to accompany the party. Dr. Cora Smith Eaton, the Secretary, asks that all congenial people be requested to join. Copies of the first issue of The Mountaineer, giving details, may be obtained at this office; also application cards. The expense will be about $40, less cost of round trip Seattle to Port Angeles. But $20 must be paid before July 1st.

In the "call," Mr. Curtis, chairman of the outing committee, says:

"The mountains are there, the finest group in the Olympics and among the most rugged in the United States; Port Angeles has built a trail to enable us to reach them, and your committee has proven by a preliminary trip that they can be reached easily and safely.

"The region is practically unknown, the peaks are unnamed and unclimbed. Surely there is fitting work for our new club in exploring this new region, and we, each one of us, should do all we can to justify the faith that others have placed in us and make this the best outing that any mountain club has ever held in the state.

"To enable everyone to see the nature of the country that the club proposes to visit, the committee has decided to show pictures made in the preliminary trip. Seventy-five stereopticon views will be shown at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Friday evening, June 14th."

A magnificent view of Mt. Olympus, a vast expanse of snow, ice, and peaks rugged beyond belief, may be seen in C. E. Nailor & Co.'s window. Study it a few minutes and you will conclude there is ample justification for the slogan, "See Clallam County First."

HAD NO JURISDICTION

The case of the State of Washington against John D. Hickok as superintendent of the water company, was dismissed by Judge Still Wednesday for the reason that the Court Commissioner had not jurisdiction of the subject matter set forth in the complaint. The Judge being fully advised in the premises, also ordered the restraining order quashed and action dismissed, without prejudice to rights of plaintiff to relief in the future under any matter set forth in the complaint.

NEW COUNTY DIRECTORY

R. L. Polk and Co., the largest publishers of directories in the west, are preparing a complete directory of Clallam and Jefferson counties, giving the name, business and address of every resident in the towns, and, so far as possible to secure the same from postmasters, of the ranchers thruout the county. The book will also include the amount of assessment on personal property of every tax payer.

The County Commissioners of Jefferson County have fallen into line with the demands of the times, and ordered a cruise of the timber lands. They propose to appoint deputy assessors to do the work, estimating the cost at $30,000.

Theo. F. Rixon stopped off yesterday on his return from Seattle.

PRIMARY ELECTION LAW

The Primary Election Law, passed at the last session of the State Legislature, is published, for the first time in this county, in this issue of the Olympic-Leader. Every voter should be thoroly acquainted with its provisions prior to the next election, as a copy may not then be at hand.

TO MANUFACTURE FERTILIZER

The product of the Fish Product Co. is to be used, locally, in the manufacture of commercial fertilizer, F. B. Carlisle & Co. being the firm name of the new enterprise. Mr.Carlisle is fitting up the warehouse at end of Lincoln street wharf and will install grinders and mixers for the fish scrap and other ingredients, expecting to get the business under way in a short time. The new product will be called "Wilgrow" and put up in large cartons with attractive label will retail at 25c each. It is intended for plants, flowers and domestic gardens, one package being sufficient for a plot 40 feet square. Mr. Carlisle says he has received every encouragement from Seattle dealers, who believe there will be an extensive sale for a highly concentrated fertilizer of an odorless nature.

STONE QUARRY TO BE SOLD

The Angeles stone quarry, including certain tide lands held in connection therewith, is to be sold on July 13th in satisfaction of mortgages aggregating nearly $20,000.00.

It appears that W. H. Glass, who controls the capital stock of the company, advanced the money for development work when they were contending with the rotten brown stone above the mill, These mortgages have been extended until he has concluded he might as well take over the plant and operate it as a private enterprise, which, we understand, it is his intention to do as soon as the legal matters are closed up.

NATIONALS VS. PT. ANGELES

The Nationals of Seattle, a crack ball team, will cross bats with the locals Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. As the excursion rate of $2 will be in effect on the Whatcom it is expected a large force of their admirers will be down.

The base ball boys are expecting to add new blood to the team this week, J. L. McKechnie, who has been attending the State University, being engaged, and a catcher and third baseman coming down from Seattle.

WILL CLOSE OUT COUNTY HOLDINGS

FINAL CLEAN-UP OF ACREAGE AND TOWN PROPERTY

Bids on Corner Lots in Famous Additons Expected to Be Spirited; Last Chance to Obtain Cheap Home.

County Treasurer Pringle has compiled another of his famous bargain lists of real estate, which he will offer to the public on the 15th day of July. The list comprises some twenty-odd pieces of acreage, twelve extra choice pieces of townsite property, and lots and blocks in almost every addition to Port Angeles, including those famous resorts known as Ocean View, Beacon Hill,Crescent, Electric, Union Pacific and Nob Hill additions. This sale will dispose of all the property now owned by the county and will be the last chance to secure a choice place for a home. The list will be published next week.

ARE BUYING RIGHT-OF-WAY

One of Rixon's surveying crews in charge of J. A. McPherson is now camped at Beaver. They are running preliminary survey lines along the Solduck river towards Lake Crescent. Another of Rixon's crews is out near Ozette lake. These and several other survey parties scattered along the coast between here and Grays Harbor are working for the Grays Harbor and Puget Sound railroad company and it is pretty well known now that it is a branch of the Union Pacific. They are buying right-of-way in the Quillayute country and have some of their line located.—Record.

EXCEPTIONALLY FINE LECTURE

We are sorry for those who did not avail themselves of the excellent opportunity on Wednesday evening to hear the exceptionally fine lecture by Rev. Van-Horn, of Plymouth church, Seattle. His subject was The Merchant of Venice and from the characters of this beautiful drama he drew forth many lessons illustrative, applicable, and helpful, and proving how little human nature has changed in all the years that have elapsed since the myriad-minded Shakspeare conceived those really wonderful life-like characters.

The Merrill Grocery Co. have shown the proper spirit of improvement by adding a large oak counter and display case to their already excellent equipment.

HELPING COTTON PLANTERS.

How the Government Is Coming to the Rescue of a Great Industry.

"At one time it was thought the whole important Sea Island cotton industry would be swept away by a disease," says Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. "The department's experts entered the field, developing a disease-resistance cotton by breeding and selection, and re-established the industry. In all the South where the boll weevil is now working the department is striving to secure varieties that will be so early as to produce crops despite the weevil. We are succeeding in this and are distributing new types of cotton superior to those already in existence, and which will mature ahead of the weevil.

"One of the greatest lines of propaganda work the department is carrying on is in the South, in connection with the cotton weevil. When the weevil invaded the country the cotton growers were discouraged, and it was necessary to rally them. This was done by extensive systems of demonstration work. The farmer is shown how to grow cotton despite the weevil, how to rotate his crops, how to improve his land, and how to surround his home with better conditions generally. Last year the department was working along this line with more than 100,000 farmers in the States of Texas and Louisiana alone, and this year the number will be increased.

"These farmers are being taught how to maintain the fertility of the land by the use of legumes, to grow corn, to keep animals, and at the same time produce cotton. We are endeavoring to show them that they can produce just as much cotton on half the land now in use, devoting the other half to crops which will bring them ready money, and which will not deplete the soil."

Train with New Field Gun.

Dispatches from Berlin state that the German government has ordered 244,000 men of the army reserve and territorial army to join the colors for a fortnight's service, to receive training with the new field gun and modified rifle, with improved ammunition. The number of men summoned for duty is 85,000 more than were called out for training in 1906. The military authorities are displaying unusual activity in other directions. Military maneuvers on the largest scale, involving fortresses as well as troops, are being prepared.

BLIND MEN BUILD A HOUSE.

Able to Work in Egyptian Darkness as Well as Noonday.

Two totally blind men have built a house for themselves at Berkeley, Cal., doing all the carpenter work themselves without any assistance whatever.

It is a coincidence that both these men are named Joseph—Joseph Brown and Joseph Martinez. The house is of the popular bungalow type, one and a half stories high and constructed entirely of wood. It is eighteen feet wide by twenty-five feet long.

As the builders are sightless, the work necessarily progressed slowly. From early morning until frequently long after sunset the two men toiled patiently at their task. The shades of night did not hinder the work, for noonday and midnight are equally dark to them and out of the blackness came the song of the saw and the blows of the hammer to passersby, who heard but saw no workmen.

From day to day the work was curiously watched by crowds, including many carpenters. The general work is pronounced as good as that performed by many builders who are blessed with perfect eyesight.

Brown and Martinez were not blind from their birth, but were deprived of their sight many years ago. They were door to door peddlers for many years and managed in the course of time to accumulate snug sums of money that were wisely deposited in banks. At the time of the great fire in San Francisco these men lost everything save their little bank accounts.

Recently they pooled their holdings, purchased a small lot in Berkeley and some lumber. They then set to work resolutely and built themselves a house.

Banana Salad.

Have the bananas very cold. Cut them into small pieces and mix with a dressing made of two teaspoonfuls of salad oil, one teaspoonful of vinegar, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and a quarter of a teaspoonful each of salt and white pepper. Fill the banana skins and set over lettuce leaves. Sprinkle a few halves of English walnuts and a little chopped parsley over the top of the salad and serve immediately.

Cream of Corn Soup.

Simmer one can of corn in three cupfuls of water for an hour. Then press through a sieve. Thicken three cupfuls of scalded milk with one tablespoonful each of butter and flour, add it to the corn pulp and season to taste, with salt and pepper. Let it get very hot, stir in half a cupful of cream, remove from the fire and add a beaten egg just before serving. If the cream is whipped it is more delicate.

Tapioca and Banana Sponge.

Sprinkle half a cup of tapioca and two-thirds of a cup of sugar into one pint of boiling water, add half a teaspoonful of salt, and cook in a double boiler, stirring occasionally. When the tapioca is transparent add the juice of two lemons and the whites of two eggs, beaten until stiff. Spread over sliced bananas and serve with cream and sugar, or with a cold-boiled custard previously made. This dish may be made with canned peaches or quinces, using the juice of the fruit instead of water.

Huxley was once talking to Sir William Gull about the healing power of Nature. "Stuff!" said Gull, "nine times out of ten Nature does not want to cure the man. She wants to put him in his coffin."

De Wolf Hopper had a slight cold one night, and in a curtain speech referred to it in this fashion: "I went to my doctor," he declared, "and the doctor said I had been eating too much nitrogenous food, and must stop it and eat farinaceous food. Since then I haven't been able to eat at all, for I don't know what either word means."

When Mr. Taft first arrived in the Philippines he went to its summer capital, Benguest. He had been seriously ill, and Secretary Root cabled him asking how he stood the voyage. Mr. Taft answered: "Stood it fine. Rode horse yesterday to altitude of 5,000 feet. Air like Adirondacks. Taft." The next day he received this cablegram: "How's the horse? Root."

A judge in Kentucky, by reason of his bad temper, found considerable difficulty in controlling individuals in the courtroom. On one occasion there was unusual disorder. At last the judge could stand it no longer. "It is impossible to allow this persistent contempt of court," exclaimed his honor, "and I shall be forced to go to the extreme length of taking the one step that will stop it!" There followed a long silence in the court. Finally one of the leading counsel arose and, without the suspicion of a smile, asked: "If it please your honor, on what date will your resignation take effect?"

An Ohio author, now in Chicago, recently had a visit from a friend who still lives in the town where the two were boys together. He gives this account of one memory of that call: "'Nesbit,' said he, with the pleasantest kind of a look on his face, 'you remember that little old house on Main street where you were born?' When he said that, it brought up a vision of that house as clear as the reality. I saw the queer little windows, the nice, friendly door, the yard, the lilacs—everything. 'Yes, Bill,' I said with emotion. 'I remember very well.' 'Well,' he said, 'the folks have gone and put a tablet on that old house.' At first I couldn't speak. I had all I could do to keep the tears from coming. The folks hadn't lost sight of me, then! They knew what I had been doing. A tablet was, I admitted to myself, somewhat beyond my deserts, but—but there it was. When I could speak I said: 'And what does the tablet say, Bill, old man?' Bill looked away out of the window. 'Main Street,' said he, softly."

CAT'S EIGHTY-FOOT LEAP.

Admiral Togo Lands Safely and Whips His Feline Rojestvensky.

Admiral Togo, an Angora cat, jumped seven stories the other day, vaulted a six-foot fence and whipped his rival to a standstill, says the New York World. This is the tale told by his fond possessors and vouched for as gospel truth by many who rushed to Togo's aid, expecting to attend his funeral. Togo makes his home with the family of Charles Littlefield in the Wellington apartments in New York. Miss Helen Littlefield is his special caretaker. Her uncle brought Togo over from Japan three years ago.

By way of getting a reputation he swallowed paris green and lived to fight again.

Miss Helen was playing with the admiral on the roof of the apartment house when Togo peeped around an island, so to speak, and spied his Rojestvensky, who was seated on a six-foot fence eighty feet below. Togo sailed through the air much like a flying squirrel, alighted in the soft midst of a flower bed and then mounted the fence and put his enemy to flight.

Togo permitted himself to be carried upstairs and petted. Later Veterinarian Mulvery thumped Togo from head to foot and found nary a scratch.

Atmospheric Pressure on Water.

Theoretically thirty-four feet is the limit to which the pressure of the atmosphere can push water up a tube with a vacuum above the water. No pump can exhaust the air above the water perfectly, hence no pump can get water thirty-four feet above the level of the water below. The pump lifts the air off the water in the pipe; the air outside the pipe pushes on the water in the well and pushes it up into the partial vacuum in the pipe below the valve of the pump.

CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

NO LIMIT TO ITS POWERS FOR EVIL

Contagious Blood Poison has brought more suffering, misery and humiliation into the world than all other diseases combined; there is hardly any limit to its powers for evil. It is the blackest and vilest of all disorders, wrecking the lives of those unfortunate enough to contract it and often being transmitted to innocent offspring, a blighting legacy of suffering and shame. So highly contagious is the trouble that innocent persons may contract it by using the same table ware, toilet articles or clothing of one in whose blood the treacherous virus has taken root. Not only is it a powerful poison but a very deceptive one. Only those who have learned by bitter experience know by the little sore or ulcer, which usually makes its appearance first, of the suffering which is to follow. It comes in the form of ulcerated mouth and throat, unsightly copper colored spots, swollen glands in the groin, falling hair, offensive sores and ulcers on the body, and in severe cases the finger nails drop off, the bones become diseased, the nervous system is shattered and the sufferer becomes an object of pity to his fellow man. Especially is the treacherous nature of Contagious Blood Poison, shown when the infected person endeavors to combat the poison with mercury and potash. These minerals will drive away all outward symptoms of the troubles for a while, and the victim is deceived into the belief that he is cured. When, however, the treatment is left off he finds that the poison has only been driven deeper into the blood and the disease reappears, and usually in worse form because these strong minerals have not only failed to remove the virus from the blood but have weakened the entire system because of their destructive action. S. S. S. is she only real and certain cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is made of a combination of healing blood-purifying roots, herbs and barks, the best in Nature's great laboratory of forest and field. We offer a reward of $1.000 for proof that S. S. S. contains a particle of mineral in any form. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and by cleansing the blood of every particle of the virus and adding rich, healthful qualities to this vital fluid, forever cures this powerful disorder. So thoroughly does S. S. S. cleanse the circulation that no signs of the disease are ever seen again, and offspring is protected.

You're sure it's fast color? How wide, did you tell me?
A full yard? Oh, yes. You are sure you can't sell me
Ten yards any cheaper than five? Just a minute—
You're certain it hasn't a thread of green in it?
I couldn't wear green, and the light here's a little Confusing. The threads in it seem rather brittle—
These dyes rot stuff so. Dear me, seems that one twenty
Is high. Are you sure that six yards will be plenty?
Now what do you think—does this silk sample match it?
It has just a pale tinge of blue—do you catch it?
Now, what I was thinking was—well, now, I wonder!
That's not the right sample at all! Such a blunder!
I picked it up just as I left, in a hurry,
And must have picked up the wrong one! Such a worry
It is to do shopping! Now, isn't it fretting;
And just as I thought I was so near to getting Some skirt goods to match it! Is this piece as high as
The other? How would this look, cut on the bias?
You say you have none in dark blue? Such a pity,
A dark blue in that would be awfully pretty!
What's that piece up there? No, the one just above it—
Volle? Get it down, please. Oh, admire it? I love it!
Now, isn't that sweet? But so light. I was thinking.
It might not be easy to clean without shrinking,
Have you some blue silk near at hand? There! Just lay it
Beneath. With that lining of blue I should say it
Would make up just splendidly. You haven't got it
In red? Why is that? Oh, the red dyes would rot it.
Too bad! Red is just what I wanted. How queerly
It happens that you always see something nearly
But not quite the color. Well, if it is blue, it
Is blue and not red, and that's all there is to it.
I guess we'll go back to that first piece. You say it
Is warranted goods? Oh, yes—this is the way it Should go. And you think that six yards would be ample?
You're sure of that? Well—you can give me a sample.

One of those little occurrences that go so far towards making life worth the living was the presentation to Miss L. E. Babcock, at the close of the school year last Thursday, of a beautiful gold pin—a wreath enclosing a shield, upon which was engraved "Presented by the citizens of the 6th Ward," being suspended from a bar bearing the recipient's name. As the inscription signifies, it was intended as some little token of appreciation of the excellent work Miss Babcock has done in the Lincoln Heights school. With the badge, Committeeman D. This makes us think somewhat of the Alaska mail service.

A handful of chaff and dust is removed from every two pounds of

Barrington Hall The Steel Cut Coffee

As shown by chemical analysis, this chaff contains none of the valuable properties of coffee and when steeped alone makes an undrinkable and unhealthful decoction. Its removal by the Steel-Cut Process leaves a pure, healthful coffee from which 15 to 20 cups more can be made from a pound than from the same amount of coffee ground in a mill. Can be used by the most delicate without inconvenience. Packed by machinery in sealed tins.

BUILDING FOR TO-MORROW.

TO the European eye American towns and villages have the appearance of temporary structures. Even in New England, rich in stone, most buildings, except in the crowded parts of large cities, are of wood. Old and much traveled highways cross streams over wooden bridges, which last but a few years. During the first three months of this year the fire losses in the United States and Canada amounted to sixty-four million dollars, ten millions more than for the corresponding three months of last year. Ever year cities on the inland rivers sustain enormous losses from floods, losses greater in the aggregate than the cost of preventing by proper embankments and other means the disastrous effects of the floods. Everywhere is evidence of a disposition on the part of Americans to build for to-day rather than for to-morrow.

The reason for this is that America has not wholly outgrown the spirit of pioneer days, when shelter had to be thrown together for the night. People needed houses faster than they could build them. There was not time to use brick and stone. The habit of hasty, impermanent building is fastened upon us; wooden houses of the filmsiest kind rise and decay like mushrooms.

Permanence and stability come with age. The American is taking more time to think of the future, he is beginning to build more solidly. One sign of this is the attempt to introduce into many American cities architectural plans for streets and water fronts which shall give order and direction to growth for a thousand years. The American imagination is gaining in scope and steadiness.—Youth's Companion.

THE HEAD OF THE FAMILY.

BRITISH philosophers are discussing the question of who should be the head of the family and appear to have agreed that the husband should be that official. The reasoning is to the effect that every family should have one supreme will, and that the husband, being the stronger and abler, is best fitted to exercise it. The wife should obey like a soldier under orders, never questioning the wisdom of the command, but executing it blindly, and if the household goes to smash the responsibility is not her's.

This is a patriarchal method of disposing of the matter, quite like the British mode of reasoning on all subjects. It may work well in England, but it would never do in the United States, at any rate as a rule of conduct. In this country wives are not so constituted as to be submissive slaves to their husbands. Here they will obey their husbands if their own judgment approves his decision, but if it does not they never hesitate to act otherwise than he has directed.

Perhaps this habit of American wives may have something to do with the great and increasing number of divorces that take place in the United States. If women were accustomed to being treated like slaves all the time it is possible that they would seldom get up courage enough to seek relief from their marital bondage. Thus, if divorce is really the disgraceful thing it is accounted in some quarters, it may be argued that the British custom is better than our own.

But if the happiness and peace of mind of women are worth anything, the American way is more likely to serve the whole people. Why should a woman married to a man of bad judgment consent to sink with his ship when she sees the danger and, after having done everything in her power to avert it, she has the power to escape.

The American wife is willing to let her husband be the head of the family so long as he shows himself competent to fill that position, for that is woman's nature. But when he shows that he is incompetent she insists upon the right to direct her own career.—Chicago Journal.

THE HORSE VS. THE AUTO.

WHEN San Francisco was burning the automobile had its day of fame. It hurried hundreds of men and women and millions of valuables out of the path of the flames. But an automobile cannot climb a 45 per cent grade out of a cellar with a load of debris. The days of San Francisco's rebuilding are the days of the horse—his days of glory closing in the night of death.

Before the ashes were cold the railways were ready to run tracks on which to haul away the rubbish. Contrivances were invented for lifting and dropping it into cars. But there still remained millions of loads of crumbled walls which, if what had been sixty years bringing in was to be taken out in three, must be drawn up and out by horses. And so San Francisco's cry to-day is not for money or sympathy, but for horses and still more horses.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

COMMON SENSE IN DIET.

AS man was created for a varied and mixed diet, he has abundant opportunities for selecting his food and supplying his individual needs. In most cases appetite is the surest guide to healthy digestion and proper nourishment. This certainly is the common sense view that must appeal to all rational feeders: "Eat with regularity and in accordance with the demands of hunger such dishes as have always been regarded as innocuous and remember that, as a rule, it is neither meats nor bouillon nor wine nor spices nor coffee which poison us, but their abuse."—New York Herald.

A BABY IN SPAIN.

He Happens Along at an Especially Favorable Period.

The very youthful heir to the Spanish throne seems to be in a fair way to escape some of the family traditions. In the present condition of Spain there are no indications that his mother will have to hurry over the border with the child in her arms because of differences of opinion among troublesome statesmen over matters of politics and personal preferment. There is no fusillade around the palace that indicates any unpleasant temper on the part of the populace. There is no fear of a sinister pretender all prepared to add spice to life by leading a bold peasantry to revolt. There is no prospect of a long exile during which the country might be kept in a state of fierce dissension and civil war.

In fact the little infant is as free from threats and menaces as any of those other babies, and in this respect he is exceptionally fortunate among Spanish princes. He may be considered more fortunate, too, than a czarewitz, who must grow up while uncertain dumas are meeting and keep debating with himself whether he is an autocrat or not.

Probably, also, it is fortunate for Spain that the succession is so early established, though no horoscope can tell just how much of a prize the baby will prove to be. At any rate, steadiness in the government is desirable, and in this era of good feeling the country seems to have fairer prospects than she has enjoyed for years. It would appear that she is much better off without the lost colonies than with them, that long relief from civil and foreign wars is her greatest need. Given repose, she should make substantial progress, industrial and political. A people who accordingly, to an eminent Mexican have furnished his country with its most thrifty, capable and successful of tradesmen and merchants should be able to forge ahead if given half a chance.

Whatever the future may have in store for Spain, or its royal family, however, there is no disguising the fact that the whole nation is happy over the birth of an heir to the throne. The rejoicing of the people is enthusiastic and sincere and the young Queen mother, Victoria Eugenie, is at present the most popular woman in the kingdom. Inauspicious indeed was her entry into the royal family of Spain, for her marriage was attended by the attempt of a deluded wretch to kill her and her husband; and now that she has given an heir to the nation, the people rejoice with her in her motherhood as they did when as a bride she escaped the anarchist's bomb. The fair young Queen granddaughter of Victoria of England promises to be one of the most popular of Europe's royal rulers,

KING AND QUEEN OF SPAIN.

Desert and Swamp Lands.

According to official figures, since the reclamation law was enacted by Congress in 1902 eight towns have been built and 10,000 people have settled on what were desert lands. To prepare the way for these settlers 100 miles of branch railways have been built, 1,267 miles of canals have been dug, many of which carry whole rivers, and forty-seven tunnels have been excavated.

It is estimated that the territory embraced in what is known as the arid regions of the United States covers 600,000,000 acres, of which about 60,000,000 acres are subject to irrigation, which, when properly supplied with water, can be converted into farms, fully as productive as lands in the most favored sections.

A bill was introduced in Congress at the last session for the purpose of reclaiming overflowed and swamp lands in Wisconsin, Arkansas, Indiana, Minnesota, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina and other States, and those back of it say that it will be "pushed" at the next session.

The member who offered this measure roughly estimates the amount of overflowed and swamp lands to be reclaimed at 50,000,000 acres, the reclamation of which would increase the land value more than $5,000,000, the annual crop value $1,500,000,000 and, if subdivided into forty-acre farms, would supply 2,500,000 families with homes and put 12,000,000 people on lands now practically worthless.

Is it proper to condole with a man when he fails in business?

The wise and daring investors who transplanted ostrich farming from Africa to the United States are congratulating themselves now. They are reaping a harvest now, such as perhaps they never dreamed of, for the plumes of the gawky bird are at the top wave of popularity that has lasted ever since the days when Gainsborough painted his world-famous beauties with huge hats covered with ostrich feathers.

Since that day, if not before it, in fact, the ostrich plume has lain very close to the feminine heart, but its vogue this year surpasses all records.

The fair votary of Dame Fashion may array herself in all that is beautiful and costly, her dress may be purest silk, her fingers blaze with diamonds, her coat be precious fur, but she is not happy unless the whole be surmounted by a picture hat, with two, three, or perhaps four superb ostrich plumes. It is almost impossible for milliners to meet the demand for high-grade feathers, and if they were dependent solely on the stock imported from Africa, it would be quite out of the question, but the American ostrich farms at Pasadena, Jacksonville and Phoenix have flourished, and the big bird has proved himself such a flourishing American that a large part of the supply is now a home product.

The modern society woman spends more money on her hats than ever before, for the reason that with shopping, calling, driving and lunching, she has her hat on most of the day, and naturally must make it the crowning glory of her costume. Fifty dollars is no uncommon cost for a hat trimmed with only modest feathers, and the particular customer, who seeks, for example, a plume, say twenty-four inches long, must not be surprised if called upon to pay $80 for the feathers alone, without taking into account the cost of the other materials and the making.

But it is not alone the member of the four hundred who dons the feather of the ostrich. Women in more moderate circumstances can get a very luxurious effect from a feather that costs less than $10. In fact a milliner will say that there is no form of headwear in which such good results can be obtained as from ostrich feathers.

The world's total supply of ostriches is now said to be about 380,000 birds. All but 20,000 of these are in Africa, the native country of the biggest birds. The stock is not decreasing, for it is one of the good fortunes of the ostrich that to take his feathers does not cause his death. The feathers would drop off themselves if not removed, and there is nothing painful about the latter operation, though the vanity of the bird that is being robbed of its chief ornament makes him resent the process. The ostrich is too valuable a bird to be ill used, for on the average they are worth $800 per pair, and each one will produce some sixty dollars' worth of feathers every year. Hence it will be seen that the owner has the strongest motives of self-interest to take care of the birds. The feathers are never plucked till they are ripe.

It is only a little more than two decades ago since the first ostriches were brought into the United States with the serious purpose of attempting their culture here. Before that time the only ones seen in Uncle Sam's realm had been adjuncts to circuses. When the experiment was first attempted there were many misgivings as to what success would attend the venture. It had been the accepted opinion that the birds would not thrive anywhere save in the Dark Continent. This doubt has passed away, for not a single one of the farms is a loser, and some are yielding a considerable profit.

Outside of the first cost of the birds, ostrich farming is not a costly venture. The food bill is not a big one, and a farm of a couple of hundred acres is big enough to take care of as many birds as any farmer would want to handle. The herds have to be kept in inclosures, for while many of them become tame, others never lose their wildness and tendency to pugnacity.

The ostrich in this country is feeling so much at home that it is more than a dream of the future that nine-tenths of the plumes nodding over the American woman's hat will some day be the product of her own country.

ORIGIN OF THE KISS.

Its Earliest Form—The Caress of the Ancient Indians.

At a recent session of the American Oriental Society Prof. Hopkins of Yale read a paper on "The Sniff Kiss in Ancient India." Reduced to its foundation, the paper was a history of the kiss as we know it. The learned Orientalist traced it from its birth and proved that the earliest peoples and earliest times knew it not. That there might be no mistake he labelled the kiss of to-day "the genuine kiss" and "the perfect kiss."

Oddly enough, he finds that the genuine kiss was invented by a woman. The description is given in the epic of ancient India which treats of the science of love.

"She laid her mouth on my mouth," recites the poet, "and made a noise which gave me pleasure."

"The early peoples," declared Prof. Hopkins, "knew nothing of the kiss in any form. Had they known of it they would have told something of it in the mass of records that has come down to us, for surely an act which conveys such pleasure could not have been forgotten.

"Even to this day there are races that do not kiss. The Mongolians and certain of the tribes in central Asia do not osculate, and the Esquimaux, we are told, employ the kiss only as a prophylactic.

"The earliest form of the kiss is that which we know as the sniff kiss. This is a smelling, usually of the head. The father of a new-born son sniffed his head that his days might be long and that honors might come to him. Returning from a journey, he sniffed the heads of his children in the same manner.

"Gradually with this sniff kiss there came also a caress, a touching usually of the head. Gradually, also, the endearment came to be applied to others than children. The rubbing of noses, which has persisted in some tribes, was probably an intermediate process in the evolution.

"With the development of the genuine kiss the sniff kiss disappeared, never to reappear. It had served its purpose and soon was forgotten."

Thus the sniff kiss proves the mother and father of all kisses. Blessed be the sniff kiss.—Philadelphia North American.

MAN'S ACTIVITIES.

Agriculture Holds the Leading Place Among Them.

At the annual banquet of the Americus Club of Pittsburg, in honor of the birth of U. S. Grant, Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, Congressman Grant Mouser of Ohio and Washington Gardner of Michigan were the chief speakers. Wilson spoke on "Agriculture in Our Industries." He said in part:

"Agriculture is a creative force among our industries. The result of the farmers' work of 1906 was $6,794,000,000, an increase of 44 per cent over the last census year. We exported in 1906 $1,718,000,000 worth of goods of all kinds, and of this 72 per cent was grown from farms and forests. Animals and their products yielded $323,000,000, or 19 per cent, for export after supplying the home demand. Cotton and cotton products exported were $481,000,000, or 28 per cent; grain and products sold abroad were $197,000,000, or 11.5 per cent; and $113,000,000, or 6.5 per cent, was miscellaneous farm products.

"Forest products are 7.5 per cent of our exports. We use tobacco extensively and pay around $8,000,000 for importations from Cuba and Sumatra, Porto Rico, Mediterranean countries and Brazilian ports. We raised Sumatra wrappers last year to the extent of $7,000,000 worth. The department, after discovering principles, conducts object lessons on the farms of the people to help them toward better things.

"We found in the Connecticut valley and in Florida the same soil that grows the wrapper tobacco in Sumatra, after visiting that country and studying their methods and soils. We found in Alabama and Texas the same soil that produces the filler tobacco in Cuba, after learning what soil is suitable, and last year raised 400 acres of it in those States. We hope in time to grow all the tobacco now imported from Cuba and Sumatra into the United States."

NO LONGER GOOD FORM.

People in High Society Say Appendicitis Is Vulgar Disease.

The fashionable valetudinarian is threatened with a distinct bereavement. Appendicitis has been declared to be bad form, and those who wish to preserve a true social eminence must on no account suffer from it. There was a time when only the educated suffered from appendicitis, because only the educated knew the anatomical position of the appendix, but in these days of vulgar equality even the washerwoman knows where to put her finger when she is asked where the pain is.

As a result the supergilded must find a new disease into whose domain the great unwashed have not yet found their way.

An eastern scribe has made inquiries from prominent physicians and the worst rumors are confirmed. One great authority admits that but few operations are now necessary, and that "we are glad to send our patients from the surgical to the medical ward, where hot fomentations and a milk diet are prescribed."

A well-known nursing sister said frankly that appendicitis has become unfashionable, and she added unkindly that fashions in the medical world vary as much as in the showrooms of a stylish dressmaker. A well-known surgeon admitted that "appendicitis has followed the example of all fashionable crazes and is dying a natural death, and for no other reason than that the laundry lady has dared to imitate the duchess.

"Needless to say, I am not alluding to genuine cases of the disease, but because the fashionable illness has been pronounced unfashionable the large contingent of hysterical patients have turned their attention to the creation of some new complaint."

Perhaps it would help a little in getting rid of the pest if every one included in his spring medicine a litti dandelion tea.

CONVICTS TAKING DAILY EXERCISE IN AN ENGLISH PRISON.

This interesting photograph shows the scene in the prison yard at Wormwood Scrubs, England, when the convicts are taking their daily exercise. The men are taken out in squads. It will be noted that the walks in the yard are so laid out in serpentine manner that they never cross. Every convict has to start in at one end and follow the windings of the walk until he reaches the other end. These fellows get coffee and bread for breakfast and supper and the same for dinner, with potatoes and a bit of meat added. It does not seem likely that the men can hanker for much exercise on such fare, but it is compulsory. Wormwood Scrubs is called the greatest penal institution in England.

HAGUE CONFERENCE

GREAT PEACE CONGRESS OPENS AT THE HAGUE.

Disappeintment at Attitude of Russia, as Outlined in Speech of Mr. Nelidoff, the Presiding Officer---Remarkable Contrast in Prevailing Sentiment.

The Hague, June 15—The second international peace conference opened this afternoon The session lasted scarcely twenty minutes and was devoid of any incident outside of the prearranged program. It consisted simply of a short speech of welcome by Dr. Van Tets van Goudrian, the Netherlands foreign minister, the adoption of a resolution to send greetings to Emperor Nicholas and Queen Wilhelmina and the eagerly awaited speech of M. Nelidoff, head of the Russian delegation, who was unanimously chosen president. The keynote sounded by M. Nelidoff in behalf of Russia was a crushing blow to the pacificists. There was no mincing of words and ultimate disarmament and the inauguration of universal peace was relegated to the land of dreams.

In the Land of Dreams.

M. Nelidoff declared this to be a "star floating above this sphere, to be always striven for but never attained."

"Nations, like individuals," he said," are human, and not even the most perfect judicial system ever invented could put an end to strife and violence. When honor and vital interests are at stake, regardless of consequences, neither the former nor the latter will recognize any authority except personal judgment and personal feelings."

Stripped of its fine phrases the speech is considered a deliberate warning to the conference tc keep down to earth, to continue the work of the conference toward alleviating the horrors of war and narrowing the chances of conflict by opening wider the door of arbitration and aim toward "conciliation and justice."

The pious view that the powers should study the question of lightening the military establishments with which the first conference concluded its work, was not even mentioned. The speech, however, clears the atmosphere and shows thta Russia is determined to try to keep the conference within her program, and that so far as the discussion of armaments is concerned, she lines up with Germany and Austria.

REMARKABLE CONTRAST IN PREVAILING SENTIMENT

The Hague, June 18.—With the representatives of forty-six countries gathered here at the opening of the second peace conference, there is a remsarkable contrast between the sentiments prevailing on the eve of the original conference of 1899 and this one, which has become a subject of general comment. In 1899, although less than half of the present number of governments were represented, the hope of the world was high, and there was a vision of disarmament and the banishment of the curse of war from among civilized peoples. Men who were here eight years ago recall how the delegates of the powers met in response to the general appeal of the emperor of Russia and entered upon their work with the zeal and energy of those upon a holy mission. Yet three months later this dream faded, and nothing beyond the adoption of a pious vow remained of the avowed object of the conference.

Today, with the conference a world parliament in the fullest acceptance of the term, the delegates meet in a more practical and more sober spirit. Two wars have been fought since 1899 and the military budgets of the powers are heavier, but disarmament has not been broached even, and the prospects of making a step in the direction of limitation of armaments are very slim. At the same time these delegates admit that the recent agitation in favor of disarmament is stronger than in 1899.

European Situation Delicate

The trouble they say lies in the European situation, which is so delicate that no single power apparently is ready to propose a formula, lest it jeopardize the extremely useful work of ameliorating the horrors of war, defining the rights of neutrals, perhaps extending the principle of arbitration, etc., which may be accomplished.

The powers favoring a discussion of a proposal to reduce armaments fear that unless it is brought up the whole idea may fall into universal ridicule. At the outset it is seen that the important thing to avoid is discord, and with the purpose of permitting a further exchange of views and in order that the delegates may get better acquainted it was decided to postpone the second session of the conference from Saturday to Tuesday.

Some optimists incline to the opinion that the fact that the difficulties are fully appreciated in advance is only likely to make the ultimate result richer. Upon the single question of publicity, the jealousy of the powers has contributed directly to bringing about a view totally different from that which prevailed in 1899. Then not a single power supported the motion for publicity. Today Germany believes that publicity will prevent her being placed in a false position.

Germans Suspicious

It is idle to deny that the antagonism of Great Britain and Germany overshadows the conference. The Germans come to The Hague extremely suspicious that the group of powers of which Great Britain is the backbone intend to try to maneuver her into a position where failure to do anything in the direction of the limitation of armaments will be laid to her door. In the event of a clash, the immense strength of the United States, free as it is from European suspicion and backed by Latin America, is universaly recognized. For this reason the American delegates to the conference will act with circumspection. The Americans maintain great reserve, but it can be stated positively that they have no sensational move in the matter of limitation for the present.

TO REDUCE INDEMNITY FOR BOXER OUTRAGES

Boston, June 19.—Sir Chen Liang Cheng, retiring Chinese ambassador to the United States, who is in this city on a visit, yesterday made the following statement:

"I shall make public today the contents of an official note which I received from Secretary Root last Saturday night, which shows better than anything else can the remarkably high sense of justice which the United States has used in all her dealings with China. You remember that after the Boxer troubles China agreed to pay an indemnity of $24,440,778.81 on account of the losses entailed by the United States government, as well as for personal property lost by her citizens during the Boxer campaign.

"Four years ago your government was good enough to promise me that when the time arrived, as a token of sincere friendship for China, the original figures of the indemnity would be revised.

"True to the promise of the executive officers, I received a note from Secretary Root last Saturday night saying that the president directed him to say that in his next message to congress he would be pleased to recommend that China be relieved of all obliagtion in excess of the final revised amount of the indemnity, which has been set at $11,655,492.69. That, as you can see, will save China over $12,000,000 and also an interest of 4 per cent.

"You cannot emphasize too strongly my great admiration for the fair spirit which has always characterized the dealings of the United States with my country. This final action is another monument to America's high sense of justice."

TELEGRAPHERS TO OPEN BIG STRIKE AT CHICAGO

New York, June 15.—The members of the executive committee of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, at the Astor House last night, decided to open up the forthcoming strike at Chicago. All hope of settlement of their differences has been abandoned. Secretary-Treasurer Wesley Russell has left for Chicago to call a meeting of the Chicago telegraphers.

"The telegraphers are all organized and have asked the national officers to act immediately," siad Russell.

"A strike at Chicago would cripple tne companies, since so many lines center there. Strikes will be bordered in all parts of the country where they will be most effective."

Clerks are also being organized in this and other cities in anticipation of a sympathetic action. The telegraphers in brokers' offices, it is said, will also strike.

Harriman Gets Another Road

San Francisco, June 17.—Documents closing the deal by which E. H. Harriman, on behalf of theSouthern Pacific company, has bought the Corvallis & Eastern rairload in Oregon have been signed. The consideration is said to have been $4,000,000. The road is 142 miles long and extends from Yaquina bay by way of Albany and Detroit to a place called Idanhan. It crosses the Southern Pacific's Mount Shasta route at Albany. The road commands the finest mountain pass to the coast of Central Oregon, which is said to be the reason for the purchase The Wisconsin senate, by a vote of 21 to 6, has killed the two cent railway fare bill which the house recently passed.

Another Big Timber Purchase

Seattle, June 15.—Fifty thousand acres of timber land in the Clan Arch country, on Vancouver island, estimated to contain at the present time three billion feet of timber, has been sold to W H. White & Co, of Boyne Ctty, Mich for $1,200,000. The timber includes some of the finest on the island and consists principally of fir, yellow and red cedar and white pine. The purchasers already own many acres of Western timber lands and plan to develop their holdings in the near future, running their investment up to $2,000,000.

SCHMITZ CONVICTED

JURY FINDS SAN FRANCISCO MAYOR GUILTY OF EXTORTION.

Verdict Was Reached on First Journal Ballot and After But Brief Deliberation---Sentence to Be Passed on Wednesday, June 26.

San Francisco, June 15.—A jury of twelve of his peers has declared Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz guilty of the crime of extortion, as charged against him by the grand jury. The jury was out an hour and thirty-five minutes. They elected Charles E. Capp foreman and proceeded tto an informal ballot.

This was cast verbally and stood eleven for conviction, one for acquittal. John Burns, a shoemaker, cast the dissenting vote. The twelve men began a discussion of the evidence which lasted for nearly an hour. At the end of that time the first formal ballot was cast. It was a written ballot and was unanimous for conviction. The jurymen issued this statement to the Associated Press immediately after their dismissal by the court:

Statement of Jury

"In justice to Juror Burns it should be explained that he did not vote for acquittal because he was dissatisfied with the evidence or believed there was any doubt of the defendant's guilt. Two forms of verdict were given to the jury and the consecutive reading of these momentarily confused Mr. Burns. As soon as he understood the matter he cast his vote with the other eleven and the verdict was accomplished."

Mr. Burns approved this statement as correct.

After the polling of the jury, Judge Dunne announced that sentence would be passed on June 26, pending which time the mayor was given into the custody of the sheriff.

Mayor Schmitz Makes Statement

San Francisco, June 15.—Mayor Schmitz dictated the following to the Associated Press:

"No matter what the decision of the jury, gotten under most adverse circumstances regarding myself, I still maintain and affirm that I am absolutely innocent of the crime charged against me and will fight the case to the last resort. As I said before my trial, I did not epxect, nor did I receive fair or even decent treatment at the hands of Judge Dunne, and realizing his prejudice I made every effort to have the case transferred to any other judge in the state. I do not take this as a defeat and the decision makes me all the more determined to seek and secure justice in another court."

Counting Uncle Sam's Money

In discussing the efforts of Chief Wilkie of the secret service, Joe Mitchell Chapple, in his "Affairs in Washington," in the National Magazine for May, speaks of what he says "typifies a more effective precautionary system than could be afforded by many hundreds of six-shooters." The article continues as follows:

All the money in the treasudry is counted every time a change is made in its higher officials. The last time this occurred was when Treasurer Charles H. Treat took office several years ago. It was then that a remarkable theft was discovered which had been accomplished by a day laborer, who handled the bags of gold and found means to substitute pieces of lead in place of the precious metal, as he passed it out to be weighed. He thought out his plan so well that the weight of the bogus gold was exactly the same as that of the specie removed from the bags, so that when these left his hands for the scales the theft was not detected. Since that time every bag has been opened and every piece of money counted, dollar for dollar. This, however, is not so heavy a task as might be supposed, for, strange as it may seem, a very small proportion of the gold and silver currency is actually located in the hands of Uncle Sam in Washington, but is distributed through the country in the reserve centers.

It has often been asked how much influence the wife of a public man bears on his political career. This is hard to estimate, but this much is certain: The man who comes to Washington either as a member of Congress or of some other branch of the government where his position is one of prominence is very unfortunate if his wife is not one whom he can trust to making her way socially. Not necessarily being a great social success, but capable of mingling with the average woman at the national capital. For in spite of the fact that a small percentage of society looks leniently upon the married couple who are seldom seen in public together, the average sound American believes in the comradeship of man and wife.

The telegraph does not reach everywhere. News arrived in London early in April that there had been a fight last December between British soldiers and natives on the west coast of Lake Tchad, in Central Africa, during which eleven men were killed and forty-two wounded. It took more than three months for the particulars of the struggle to reach civilization and a telegraph line.

WOMEN AND FASHION

The Plain Girl.

Plain girls, knowing ones say, make the best wives. This is one of those broad generalizations which are a little more than half-truths, but are not whole truths. A better way to phrase the rule would be to say that a plain girl is more likely than a pretty girl to make a very satisfactory wife for a man of intelligence.

Good looks are more often a girl's misfortune than her fortune. A pretty girl soon finds out that she can attract men; and usually she takes a delight in manifesting her powers. The vice grows upon her and occupies much of her thoughts. Her mind, under the influence, is disposed to clothes and frivolity. She spends her hours before the mirror instead of before her books. Men pour silly flatteries into her eager ears. She is not aware that men make compliments for sport and think nothing of such pretty perjuries. Admirers make light of her faults or transmute them into merits. Schooled in adulation, it is small wonder that the pretty girl in so many cases becomes conceited, silly, vain, and, in a general way, lightheaded.

On the other hand, the plain girl is driven to make herself attractive for more enduring qualities. She must make accomplishments, intelligence, knowledge, take the place of beauty. She develops in her character moral strength. She makes the most of her mental gifts. She learns to know things and to do things. When a man marries a girl merely for her pretty face and figure he is sure to tire of her unless she has mental and moral charms to support her physical charms. When a man has been married five years he hardly knows whether his wife is pretty or plain. He knows only whether she is dear to him or not. And the qualities that endure and endear are the interior qualities: fidelity, intelligence, true companionableness, moral rectitude, good sense.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Adjusting the Veil.

The adjustment of the veil is quite other than formerly. Now that the weight of the hat is all toward the back and downward drooping, it gives a contrary line if we continue to draw the tulle tightly under the chin and up over the back of the head to knot at the crown. Instead, the veil must be drawn across the front of the hat and downward, knotting at the base of the brain. The lower edge of the veil in front comes just to the base of the chin and hangs straight from the hat and quite away from the profile, not shooting out, but not touching the face. This lifts easily and tucks over the hat brim when tea hour comes around.

White Mull Frock.

The idea of inserting a little sheer material in some delicate color into an all-white gown is among the season's novelties, the model illustrated showing an excellent design for one of these lingerie frocks. Inch-wide Valenciennes insertion was used, with edging to match, the yoke being of thin all over Valenciennes. The inset bands on the bodice, sleeves and skirt were of very sheer mull, in a delicate, pale pink color. The bodice and skirt were joined together in princesse effect by rows of the Valenciennes insertion.

A Woman's Walk.

Walking badly is a defect commonly seen. Let any one who doubts it look from a window that commands a view of a public thoroughfare, and note how few of the women who pass by hold themselves well or move gracefully. Imagine the scene is a stage, and regard people critically, as if they were actors or actresses. At once their method of wobbling, or slouching, or striding, or hobbling, or dragging will show up in a way that would be ridiculous on the stage, where a good walk is the first thing cultivated. Many women walk like wornout cart horses, making a labor of every step, without ease, grace or lightness. The general fault of bad walkers is that they rest on the heel longer than on any other part of the foot. That this is a very common defect can be seen by looking at the snapshot photographs reproduced in the papers, most of which depict some one resting firmly on his heel and showing the whole sole of his foot to the observer. The toe should strike the ground first. The wearing of high heels accounts in a measure for the fact that women so often put down the heel first.

A GROUP OF MUSHROOM HATS.

A Question of Marriage Proposal.

Replying to the question, "Should women propose marriage?" a certain great man says:

"Why, you are centuries too late in asking that question. Women have always proposed and always will propose.

"The most splendid thing on earth is a good woman, and when, with all her attractiveness, she makes up her mind that it would be well for her to be the wife of some good man, and that it would be equally well for him, she captures him as easily as a regiment captures one corporal. It does not make any difference whether her tongue proposes or not. Her eyes propose, her smile proposes, her whole beaming nature proposes.

"Until a man gets from a woman a proposition of that kind he had better not make a proposition of his own, unless he wants to be made to feel ridiculous all his lifetime."

Things to Learn.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.

Learn to attend strictly to your own business—a very important point.

Learn to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick-room.

Learn the art of saying kind and encouraging things, especially to the young.

Learn to avoid all ill-natured remarks and everything calculated to create friction.

Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.

Learn to stop grumbling. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself.

Says Marriage Is Serious.

Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch has been granted a license as a justice of the peace by Gov. Deneen, of Illinois, and is now ready for work. She says that any couple who comes before her to be married will find it is no joking matter. She expects to treat the subject very seriously, and if she finds the girl has not given sufficient thought to the matter or has not confided in her mother, she will try to persuade her to defer the marriage until she is more certain of her own feeling in the matter. "I want no marrying in haste, and repent at leisure begun in my court," she said.

The Fashionable Apron.

Every woman who wishes to do quite the up-to-date thing must be very particular nowadays to put on her apron when she sits down to sew or helps with the church fair or has a chafing-dish supper. The apron is very fashionable again.

A very attractive apron for sewing, made of fine white lawn, had a pocket all along the bottom of the front, with a central piece extending up the front to the belt. The central piece kept the pocket from sagging, which it would have done when work was put inside of it, if it were not for this support. Another most attractive apron noticed at a French shop was in princess effect, the apron being tucked down the front from below the bust line to the hips. The apron was, of course, in one piece. It was made quite long, and had suspenders over the shoulders. It was most becoming to the figure.

Policewomen for Belgium.

The idea of creating a police force of women is taking shape in Belgium, especially in the city of Ghent. The police chief is to begin with the appointment of twelve women between the ages of 40 and 50. They must be unmarried or childless widows, and will be attached to the administrative or preventive sections of the department. It is believed that women have special gifts for this work.

When Trying On a Hat.

In buying a hat it should always be tried on before a mirror that shows the whole figure, so that the general effect may be seen.

This rule would spoil many a sale at the milliner's and save the feeling of bitter disappointment so often experienced when the creation that seemed so fascinating in the shop is tried on at home.

Blue in Favor.

The women—and there are many of them—who feel that nothing quite takes the place of a blue silk, either plain or figured, will be glad to know that blues of every description, from indigo to electric, with a wide range of blue with a leaning toward gray, delft tones, Japanese blue and a rich, bright navy, called matelot, will be among the choicest shades of the year.

Value of Cheerfulness.

If you wish to possess bright eyes be animated and cheerful. An excellent health rule for bright eyes and a clear skin is to take the juice of a lemon in a glass of water with a dash of salt added every morning before breakfast. This acts on the liver, which has more to do with good looks than people imagine.

Hints for Wives.

There are two ways of looking at a husband, says Health. One is to make up your mind that he has no faults and to consider him a piece of perfection. The other is to recognize his faults and to make up your mind to love him in spite of them.

Moth Preventive.

For a moth preventive and exterminator steep in about eight ounces of strong alcohol for about four days one ounce of gum camphor and one shell of red pepper; strain and sprinkle the clothes or furs and roll in sheets.

Fruit Stains.

Fruit stains may be removed by pouring boiling water over the article, then washing.

Ink Stains.

Soak ink stains in soul milk, and should a stain remain rinse in a weak solution of chloride of lime.
