FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1889.

The Commonwealth is sent this week to a large number of persons in Clallam County and elsewhere, in the hope that they will appreciate our motives and whether they agree with our views or not, will give us, by subscribing, a chance at least to make ourselves understood. To those who live in Clallam County, we would say, that your interests are our interests and that nothing so aids in building up a county as a live and aggressive newspaper and, to that end, in helping us you are helping yourselves.

RESTRICTING IMMIGRATION.

Last week we published a bill introduced in the Ohio Legislature "to protect American labor from foreign competition.

Should the bill become a law, any one one employing a male person over twenty-one years of age who has not declared his intention, or who does not become a citizen within five years after his declaration, shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars nor less than twenty-five dollars for each offense.

This would compel a foreigner, who was unfortunate enough to come within the borders of the State, to take out his first papers before he could get work. If he had not the necessary wherewith to pay for the same, he would be compelled to join the vast army of tramps, with the probability, at some future time, of becoming an inmate of a jail and a member of the chain gang in some of the progressive (?) cities of the state. Any one succoring him for the time being, would be liable to the penalties of the law.

Such a law is worse than useless, and would be evaded. Even were it enforced, the majority of immigrants would probably have the few dollars required to get out first papers, and after getting them, how would labor have been benefited? The fact is the bill amounts to nothing and is offered merely with the view of hoodwinking the laboring class into the belief that something is to be done toward bettering their condition.

The party, whose follower conceived the bill, will pose as a friend to labor and at another election will expect the labor vote in consequence.

The astute politicians know that the masses can see that something is radically wrong in the conditions of things to-day, and, that they may not see the true causes, lay it all to our large and constantly increasing immigration. In the legislatures and in the halls of Congress they offer bills looking to its restriction or prohibition. Their poor dupes fall in and believe that that is the real evil which afflicts us, and that with immigration stopped, labor would get that to which it is entitled. It might perhaps be of some benefit for a time, though were wages to raise, everything else would be raised in proportion. Our beautiful protective system would attend to that. The government would raise the duties on manufactured articles, thus allowing the manufacturer to charge more. The duty could be made prohibitory and the home consumer would have to pay whatever was asked. That would soon balance the good results obtained and the masses would again be on their road toward extreme poverty.

The truth is that immigration is not the cause of our troubles. It is not the root of the evils that exist to-day. We have a country containing sixty millions, which under proper conditions is capable of supporting three hundred millions of prosperous happy people.

At the present time the country is run for the benefit off the landlord, the usurer, the speculator, the protected monopolists, and the tax gatherer. The laws are made in their iinterest, and in consequence the rich are getting richer, the poor, poorer. Our country is rich in everything that is needed to make a people prosperous and contented. Yet we see discontent on every hand. We see those who work hardest, poor and miserable, and at times, begging for a chance to earn a livelihood. On the other hand we see a class, who produce nothing, living in comfort and affluence. Why is it? Because the few have under the law secured the bounties of nature and make the many tribute to them. The land is mostly held by the lanllord, speculator, the coal borons and the lumber kings. The laws are made in the interest of the rich and new laws are constantly being added to our statutes, for their futher protection.

What is needed is the abolition of all laws that abridge the natural rights of the people, and all laws favoring, or in the interest of classes. A government is needed, of, for and by, the people, and the Declaration of Independence should be carried out in its beauty and simplicity. There is no need of a large, powerful and expensive government; no need for a multiplicity of laws. A simple government economically administered, that will secure to all their natural right to life liberty and pursuit of happiness, each in his or her own way, without infringing on the natural right of others. With such a government and under such conditions peace and prosperity will come to the people. There will be no restriction laws needed. All who wish can come to our shores and be welcomed as men and brothers, and the selfishness, greed and avarice of to-day will be a thing of the past.

This is the doctrine of Anarchy, pure and simple, and when rightly carried out the millenium will have come, and Liberty Equality Fraternity will be the watchword.

Can Human Nature be Changed by Law?

Extracts from address of H. O. Pentacost:

Think what the Greeks were when Lycurgus, Demosthenes, Phidias and Æschylus lived, and then think what they are now. Then they were the proudest and most interesting race on earth. Now—who ever hears of Greece or Greeks? What has wrought the change? New laws thrust upon them from without, new religions, new habits of life cultivated in the process of adjustment to their new environment.

Compare, too, the modern Italian, either as sitting in the papal chair or college of cardinals, as moving about the streets in petticoats and with shaved crown, or as enjoying the painted semblance of nobility, or with pick, shovel and pipe as we see him in this country, or with hand-organ and monkey—with the Gracchi, the Cæsars, the Ciceros, the Livys, and the Plinys. What an unspeakable difference! How has the change been wrought? Partly by foolish laws that the old Romans made for themselves which degraded the people, and partly by the invasion of barbarians who introduced a new social system. Buckle says Rome fell because the rich contracted her currency in their own interests and thus impoverished the masses of the people, and by impoverishing them robbed them of those sturdy qualities which general riches and power produced. Henry George says the moral dry rot began by allowing the land to pass into the hands of the few, thus impoverishing the people. Probably there is truth in what both writers assert. We know by our own observation how the United States is suffering from both of these causes of decay, and may well believe that though some such causes, Rome only needed to be pushed by the Northern invader to tumble into ruins.

Why is the Jew in America so different from the Jew in ancient Palestine or Europe? Because here he grows rich; here he mingles more freely with other people; here he is not so subject to ostracism, though there is even here an insane and ill-grounded prejudice against him.

What better illustration of my subject could you wish than the difference which every one may observe between the immigrant Irishman and the American-born Irishman, especially if prosperity has come to the family? The Irish bog-trotter is a humble peasant who pulls his forelock to the landlord. The Irish-American policeman is a king who makes everybody pull his forelock to him. The uniform straightens him up; the badge and club give him a sense of power; and I, for one, would rather see him a little overbearing in his new environment because he feels himself a man among men, than to think of him as the poor, whipped creature he was in his native land.

But why need we go outside of our own recent history? Read the whole story in the career of the Southern states, Before the war, the Southern gentleman who owned a thousand slaves was a quasi Spanish grandee with courtly manners and an artificial code of honor, profoundly conscious of a superiority to the rest of mankind that he did not always possess. The peculiar character which distinguished the Southern gentleman of twenty-five years ago was the product of slavery. What people would not grow haughty, domineering, and self-conscious among whom so many were looked upon as masters who must be absolutely obeyed, and who were supported wholly and confessedly by the labor of others? But the Southern gentleman of to-day has a much higher opinion of his fellowmen and a more modest estimate of himself; he is becoming a business man; he is not so foolishly touchy over what used to be called honor; he is more like a wide-awake Yankee every year; he is beginning to see the force of a factory as well as of a plantation: in short, he is improving in every way, and all this great change may be attributed to the emancipation proclamation, which was a much better thing for the Southern land-owner than it was for the negro, who has changed, under freedom, as much in his way as his master has.

With individuals as well, the law holds good. There can never be another Socrates, another Buddha, or another Jesus, because the peculiar conditions which produced these men can never come again, so far as we can see. In a biography of Socrates I recently read that he was an enigma; that he could not be accounted for; that he was so far ahead of his own generation as to be a kind of anomaly. And the same thing is habitually said of Jesus. One argument for his extra-naturalness is based upon the idea that he was anomalous to his time and surroundings. But this is certainly a mistake. The saying of Scripture that he came "in the fullness of time" is true of him or of any other man, great or small. If we could know the whole story of the times we would find that Socrates and Jesus were the products of conditions. The Iliad, The Divine Comedy, Paradise Lost, Pilgrim's Progress, Uncle Tom's Cabin, Hamlet, In Memoriam—could only have been written when they were written and by whom they were written. Author and writing were both products of conditions. And this is true of every book or poem to a great extent. Read the Fairie Queen and then read Locksley Hall and you will see at once that neither could have been written in the time of the other. Matthew Arnold's Poems or Emerson's Essays could not have been written in the seventeenth century or in any other but the nineteenth.

And if you descend from high things to low, where, I may ask, is the old-fashioned, red-shirted, top-booted, swaggering fireman, who would set a house on fire for the sake of getting his engine into action first? He is gone. City ordinances and the paid fire department annihilated him. If any of the old volunteer firemen are still in service, they are different men from what they were. They have been changed by law.

Where is the old-fashioned "Bowery boy?" The modern east-side "tough" has supplanted him and is a much worse character. Different conditions in the same section of the city have given us even a new kind of loafer. The tramp is a wholly modern institution. He is the Rip Van Winkle, the Sam Lawson of to-day, but he is a hateful character, while the old-fashioned idler was not. The tramp is the product of immigration from countries cursed by land monopoly to a country cursed by land monopoly, which is the base of a pyramid of monopolies.

The political boss and the ward heeler are possible only under our present election laws. Introduce the Australian ballot system of voting and both will disappear. The millionaire is the product of special legislation. Abolish special legislation and that whole type of man will vanish. Such a man as Jay Gould could not be produced in a country where the law said that government should own and run the railroads and telegraphs, any more than the old-fashioned Southern prince can exist without slaves.

Observe some detailed effects of law upon character. The selling of liquor may not be a business in which either you or I would like to be engaged, but a rumseller is not necessarily a sneak or hypocrite. You pass a law, however, that he shall not sell after midnight or on Sunday, or at all, and you make him both. He will pull down his blinds and do what he dares not do openly. And every man who feels that he has a right to drink when and where he wishes to, becomes a sneak and hypocrite. I am not now discussing whether such laws are right or wrong. I merely say they make men hypocrites.

Your social system decrees that men and women shall work ten or sixteen hours for six days in the week and then you expect them to go to church on Sunday. The preachers lament that people do not go to church and are growing irreligious, and appoint committees and invent patent schemes to remedy the evil. I can tell you what the trouble is. Your social system has taken away all leisure from the people through the week and they will have a holiday on Sunday. The church has helped to build the social system and defends it, and now, like a veritable Frankenstein, it is destroying the church.

You violate nature with your customs laws, and every man and woman becomes a smuggler. The very preachers will hide silk dresses in their trunks for their wives when they come back from their summer tours across the water. You tax property that should not be taxed, and every man hides what he can and swears he has it not. Our tax laws have made us a nation of liars.

A correspondent wishes to know how I "account for the fact that although the opponents of democratic ideas had the law-making power in their hands, democracy was not strangled at birth?" I account for it by saying that although laws can change human nature, happily no laws can subdue the human mind and will. There is always a school of prophets who see the bad laws and demand their abolition. But the fact that they demand a change in the laws tends to prove what I say. They know that progress is impossible while certain laws are operative. The very struggle for democracy was upon the ground that democracy was necessary to human development.

He asks also: "Do you think that anarchy or socialism can be stamped out by legislative enactment to-day?" I hope not, I am sure, and I believe not. Anarchy and socialism are modern agitations which correspond to the demand for democracy. Democracy means political freedom. Anarchy and socialism mean industrial freedom. Democracy says: "The people can never be political freemen until the laws which support royalty and aristocracy are abolished." Anarchy and socialism say: "The people can never be industrial freemen until all special legislation—law which favors a few at the expense of many—is abolished."

He asks again: "Has not all progress been made in opposition to law?" Yes; because the thinkers see that under certain laws human nature cannot develop, and under certain laws or without certain laws it can. All progress is based upon the idea that you can change human nature if you get rid of bad laws.

You must actually abolish those laws which hinder production and inequitably distribute wealth in order to improve society. What society needs is a system under which more wealth can be produced and shall be generally and equitably distributed. The whole people, man by man and woman by woman, must be richer before it can be better.

When everybody works and nobody drudges; when everybody plays and nobody loafs; when children shall not become producers until their bones are hard and they have spent ten or twelve years in school; when no bread-winner knows what it is to want for any needful thing, then mind will develop, conscience will grow healthy, true religion will thrive; then drunkenness will cease, robbery will be unknown, and envy, hatred and murder will be things of the past. What I hope to show you is that the way which leads to that happy condition is already open, and you may walk in it if you will, reaching the end of the journey step by step through an ever-increasingly pleasant country; that no shot need be fired and no useful thing destroyed on the way. It is simply a question of removing, one after another, those laws which now deprive us of equal opportunities to labor and to live.—Twentieth Century.

Tide Lands.

It is assumed that the enabling act reserves the tide lands to the United States. In the enabling act of Alabama, California and Illinois, the States are admitted "on an equal footing with the original States in all respects whatever."

This clause has been uniformly construed by the Supreme Court of the United States to mean that the new States have the same rights and ownership of all lands below highwater mark as the original thirteen States.

In the enabling act for this Territory grants of non-mineral lands are made for certain specific purposes, and in lieu of the internal improvement grant of 500,000 acres, the swamp land grant under the act of 1850, and the saline land grants. These grants of public lands were grants to new States, which Congress gave or withheld at pleasure.

The tide lands, and all submerged lands below highwater mark, are held to belong to the State by virtue of its sovereignty. In case of a Territory, the United States held such lands as trustee, until the admission of the new State, when the trusteeship ended. The State by admission acquired title in full. This has been the uniform ruling of the Supreme Court of the United States.

The clause of the enabling act, "that the States provided for in this act shall not be entitled to any further or other grants of land for any purpose than as expressly provided in this act," does not refer to nor divest them of their sovereign to and ownership of all lands below highwater mark.

If it is held that if such is the case, the State can establish no harbor lines, control no improvements on the waterfront and all the rights in tide-waters under oyster and other laws lapse upon admission into the Union.

The clause entitling the State of Washington to the same rights as other States will entitle it, when it becomes a sovereign State to the ownership and control of all lands below high water mark. In St. Clair County vs. Lovingston, 60 U. S. R., 49, the Supreme Court of the United States held: "The shores of navigable waters and the soil under them were not granted by the Constitution of the United States, but were reserved to the State respectively. And new States have the same rights of sovereignty and jurisdiction over this subject as the original ones."

Any attempt, then, to gain title to tide lands under the general land laws of the United States must fail. Until admission, the United States holds the lands as a naked trustee. On admission, the State enters upon the full enjoyment of the tide lands as its own property, and the United States can make no sale or grant of them as public lands.—W. S. Bush in Seattle Press.

Postal Notes.

Talk about oppressive and useless taxation, what tax is more ridiculous and absurd than the fee for a postal note, which converts metallic into a paper currency without adding even the item of safety. The people have asked for fractional currency and the servants at Washington have denied their reasonable request. Why, nobody knows, for anybody with a grain of common sense ought to see that if people want fractional currency bad enough to pay a premium for it in the shape of a postal note, it ought to be supplied to them without the premium. The hired man on your farm is summarily bounced when he refuses to do what you ask him to do. Your Member of Congress is your hired man.—Western Plowman.

Exactly. You want to mail a dollar and a half for your year's subscription to the Weekly Star. If we had paper fractional currency, one dollar bill and one-half dollar bill in a letter would do it. But the government will not give us that. It makes us either pay five cents for a postal order besides the time and trouble of procuring it, or three cents for a postal note without security, besides the same time and trouble. That is: our clerks, the government, say to us, their employers, "We won't let you have a dollar or half a dollar convenient for mailing, but we will let you buy of us a piece of paper instead if you will pay for it! But we will not give you any security that the remittance is safe."

What sort of servants are they who order their masters about in that style? Ought they to either be kicked into obedience or kicked out of office?—S. F. Star.

The Rich and the Poor.

It is diametrically opposed to history and the evidence of fact that the poor are the classes whom there is any difficulty in restraining. It is not the poor, but the rich, that have a propensity to take the property of other people. There is no instance upon earth of the poor having combined to take away the property of the rich, and all the instances habitually brought forward in support of it are gross misrepresentations, founded upon the most necessary acts of self defense on the part of the most numerous classes. Such a misrepresentation is the common one of the agrarian law, which was nothing but an attempt on the part of the Roman people to get back some part of what had been taken from them by undisguised robbery. Such another is the stock example of the French revolution. It is utterly untrue that the French revolution took place because "the poor began to compare their cottages and salads with the hotels and banquets of the rich;" it took place because they were robbed of their cottages and salads to support the hotels and banquets of their oppressors. History is nothing but the relation of the sufferings of the poor from the rich. If the poor man injures the rich, off goes his head; the law is instantly at his heels; the injuries of the rich toward the poor are always inflicted by the law. And to enable the rich to do this to any extent that may be practicable or prudent there is clearly one postulate required, which is that the rich shall make the law.—Jeremy Bentham.

"In my judgement the Republic cannot live very long in the atmosphere which now surrounds the ballot box. Moneyed corporations, to secure favorable legislation for themselves, are taking an active part in elections by furnishing large sums of money to corrupt the voter and purchase special privileges from the government. If money can control the decision at the ballot box it will not be very long until it can control its existence."—Governor Gray of Indiana.

D. W. Morse is fitting up his building formerly occupied by Wm. Ritchie, for a hardware store.

The Evangel took a load of shingles from the Port Angeles Shingle Mnf. Co. to Townsend Saturday.

The Revenue Steamer Wolcott came in Tuesday afternoon and will remain a few days blowing down boilers and having a general cleaning up.

Judge Burke will open court in Port Townsend on Monday next and hold about half the term, during which the criminal cases will be tried. Judge Hanford will try the civil cases on the docket.

On Thursday and Saturday of last week the Evangel brought Mr. R. Eacrett's stock for his furniture store, besides a large amount of freight for D. W. Morse, Gray & Chitwood, R Shields, Gordon & Gordon and J. M. Martin.

C. H. Hanford of Seattle has been appointed chief Justice of Washington Terterritory Mr. Hanford is an old resident of Seattle and was chairman of the Republican central committee during last campaign.

The Evangel took from this place on Tuesdays up trip the following passengers; D. W. Morse, John Brown of Sequim, Wm. Crawford of Pysht, J. H. Wallace of Snohomish City, W. S. Bush of Seattle, and Messrs Bowne and Higgins of Victoria.

We would call attention of parties contemplating a trip to Gallayute to a letter from a correspondent in another column. Bacon in that country is quoted at from 10 to 12 cents per lb., potatoes 25 to 30 cents per bu. butter 25 to 30 cent per lb. meals 25 cents. The trail from Pysht is long and rough and one should take in as possible.

Eggs for setting, Light Bramha's, Plymouth Rock's and Pekin China Ducks at $1.50 per dozen.

From Logos the Messianic Journal we learn that Mr. and Mrs. Gordon of this place are organizing a Band of Messians to locate near Cook's prairie. The Band will be divided into groups of twelve each, and each group will own twelve acres of land. They will go into the manufacture of wheatall, shingles, pottery, furniture etc, besides the raising of agricultural products.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

To THE EDITOR—Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their express and post office address. Respectfully,

The Site of the Proposed Navy Yard.

From all appearances the commission will recommend Port Orchard as the site for the proposed Naval Station.

Port Orchard lies west of Port Blakely and has two entrances, one from the Sound just south of Blakeiv, the others through Agate pass near Port Madison.

The commission have visited Port Orchard several times and have had the settlers put a price, in writing, on the required land. They have also appointed appraisers to put valuations on the different tracts to see if the settlers have made fair offers. It is almost safe to consider the vexed question as to where the navy yard will be, as now a settled fact. Port Orchard is favorably located and is as good a site as can be found on the coast for such a purpose. There are many places on the Sound which would afford equally as good sites, except in the matter of having two entrances. In this Port Orchard excels all others.

The offered lands have been withdrawn from purchase, by a law enacted by Congress. Some claim that under the law, pre-emption and timber entries are done away with, although that was evidently not the intention of Congress as in the debate such entries were not spoken f. The commissioner has decided that the law does not apply to the townsite of Port Angeles where the government still owns some two thousand acres of land which will probably soon be cut up into lots and offered for sale.

SECRETARY'S CORNER.

The Secretary's Corner will be a permanent institution hereafter. We will gladly reply to any inquiry sent us. Make them short and to the point. Remember there are from 500 to 1500 who have their eyes upon these pages each week and each one may want to be heard.

To Correspondents.

Write as often as you feel inclined, but be sure to have your inquires in short sentences. If you desire your letters published, write upon side of the sheet only. We will reply to any inquiry whether connected with the Colony or not. If a personal letter is wanted, inclose stamps to cover postage.

A. K. Owen is now in London negotiating for rails for the Topolabampo railroad.

Grant and Stewart have made over 80,000 grafts and are now busily setting them in the nursery.

Geo. Whitehead who contemplated leaving us a week ago, has now concluded to remain in this vicinity if he can find a claim that will suit him.

Miss Ione Tomlinson is here on a vacation for a week or so. While here she is very busy improving her claim, south of town. She expects to go back to Seattle in a short time.

"There is nothing in which human virtue approaches nearer to the divinity of the gods than to found new States, or to preserve those already founded."—Cicero De RePublica.

H. D. Pellerin, W. Dean, and W. S. McLaughlin have located claims in the valley south of the first foot hill. They have a very fertile valley and not difficult to clear.

It is only a question of a short time when a number of mills and wood-working factories will be established in the edge of the famous cedar tract, southwest of town. The continued "talk" about it has at last attracted attention.

J. H. Wallace of Snohomish, who came down on last Monday's boat, purchased a lot in the Colony's First Addition and return home on Tuesday. He pronounces Port Angeles one of the finest townsites on the Sound.

This place has an abundance of raw materials, is in the very gateway to all the great markets of the world, can get laborers without number on short notice, but lacks the capital necessary to successfully provide the plants of machinery and carry quantities of the various stocks. Notwithstanding the opinions of some to the contrary, capital is a necessary element in all industrial undertakings.

NOTICE.

To whom it may concern:

You are hereby notified that the Puget Sound Co-operative Colony owns and has exercised a control over lot two in block one west, Smith and Voorhees' addition, and that the consent to occupy any portion of said lot must be received of this Company, otherwise the tresspasser will be liable under the laws as such.
