The Commonwealth is sent this week to a large number of persons in Clallam County and elsewhere. In the hope that they will appreciate our motives and whether they agree with our views or not, will give us, by subscribing, a chance at least to make ourselves understood. To those who live in Clallam County, we would say, that your interests are our interests and that nothing so aids in building up a county as a live and aggressive newspaper and, to that end, in helping us you are helping yourselves.

A LABOR CRISIS.

Just as Mr. Harrison was being ushered into the Presidential chair amid all the pomp and glitter of an Oriental prince, the owners of coal mines in Pennsylvania were closing down to limit the supply and raise the price of fuel and throwing out of employment, for an indefinite time, about twenty thousand miners. Later dispatches depict the condition of these men as pitious in the extreme, thousands of families being brought by the lockout to the verge of starvation.

Of course the administration will deny any responsibility for such a disaster as the Democratic party has been in power for the four years last past. Thinking men however will find no difficulty in placing the responsibility upon the right shoulders as they know that the Democratic party has not been able, in opposition to a Republican House of Lords called a Senate, to change the fiscal policy of the country were it disposed to do so.

Therefore the protection policy has had uninterrupted sway and the out going administration is to a great degree responsible for the horriblle state of affairs in protected Pennsylvania.

The New York Tribune seeks to show that the blame lies with the "coal syndicates," but says nothing of the tariff law which makes the action of the syndicate possible. A little reflection ought to lead the Tribune to see that the present trouble arises from laws which permit the holding unused of large tracts of coal lands by the coal barons, thus shutting up those everlasting stores placed in the earth by the Creator for the use of all the people. Then by a tariff of 75 cts. per ton, the coal of other countries is shut out and these dogs in the manger are given the power practically to freeze or rob the the American consumer. The Tribune of course sees this but ignores it. The trust could not exist without the tariff and were Pennsylvania brought under the dominion of the Single Tax, labor would find abundant opportunity to employ itself at good wages and the coal barons would have to keep their mines open or lose their trade and would have to give steady employment to their men.

HOW ART THOU FALLEN?

The time was when the United States was the dread of foreign despots who looked upon our free institutions as a constant menace to their tyranical power. They rightly dreaded the effect of our example upon their down-trodden subjects and looked forward to a time when they too should arise in their might and establish free institutions on the ruins of unrighteous despotisms. Such fears on the part of foreign potentates have disappeared or are fast doing so. The fact that the poor of this country are almost as numerous and just as squallid as in England, Italy, or Turkey and that there is already developed here an aristocracy as arrogant and about as numerous as under any foreign despotism, gives comfort and cheer to the nabobs "across the pond."

This finds proof in the fact that the Sultan of Turkey is first on the list of foreign despots to send congratulations to President Harrison, seeming to say—"You are one of us." Would the Sultan have sent such a message to Washington, Jefferson or Jackson? Hardlly. The simple fact is that the drift of our government toward an aristocracy is recognized by the Sultan and his ilk and they no longer fear to contrast their countries with our own.

COLONY AFFAIRS.

We repint to-day from the columns of Credit Foncier, a letter written by Thos. Malony in Dec. last which shows the spirit in which the Board of Trustees is administering the affairs of this Colony. All colonists should read it thoughtfully. In our opinion the Board is doing its utmost to guard the interests of all stockholders alike, and is not influenced by any clique or cliques. Nearly every step taken the last six months has been by unanimous vote of the board and outside stockholders should not be misled by letters from irresponsible and disaffected members in regard to Colony matters. The interests of all colonists were never better cared for nor the finances ever in a more satisfactory condition than now.

We shall not be surprised to hear complaints about the lack of reading matter in this paper, as our space is so badly crowded with land notices. Our readers should take note, however, that the COMMONWEALTH is the only dollar a year paper published in the Territory. We have made arrangements, however, to increase it to a 7-column folio, and the new size will commence with the next issue. and there will be no increase in price.

Tyranny of the Dead.

The conduct of the living is largely ruled by the will of the dead; the interests of the living are too often sacrificed to the whims of the dead. Dead men are reaching bony arms out of the grave and holding institutions of learning back in an age of progress with all the power of money. In schools of thought, philosophy, science, and religion the most imperious professor is a dead man; a great man arose, great for his own time, in a few thoughts or things great for all time; he fought his way to prominence against the dead men who had preceded him, became master, teacher, leader. He died, and now that he is dead he is much more of a tyrant than he ever could have been while living; then he was a leader, but now he is standing in the highway of progress stubbornly hindering the onward march of mind. The progressive political economists of to-day, the men who are alive now and who are studying the present situation with the greatest patience, industry, and genius, are hooted and howled down in obedience to the mandate of the dead, who could not possibly know the needs of to-day as well as we know them ourselves.

The profession of law is largely but a study of the sayings and doings of the dead; laws are, for the most part, but the bony fingers of the dead stretched forth to grasp and squeeze the heart of the living. I have been in lawyers' offices which seemed to me like catacombs; whether they were books or skulls ranged upon the shelves I could hardly tell; the very atmosphere of the place had in it the cheerlessness and chill of a tomb. Precedents, precedents, precedents, always precedents! What says Blackstone? What says Coke? Never, what is right, but always, what is legal. What do the dead men say? When you find out that your case is settled. You must abide by the decision of the dead. The average American politician bows before the constitution with the blind devotion of a fetich worshipper. Propose any reform if you dare which involves something as new in government as the provisions of the constitution were when it was drawn, and immediately the question arises—not, is it right? is it for the best interests of the people? would it result in a nobler nation, a grander civilization? but: Is it constitutional? as if nothing ever could be done again in this country that is not constitutional. Was it constitutional to refuse to pay the tea tax? Was it constitutional to stand on Concord bridge and shoot at government troops? Was our present constitution constitutional when it was written? Was it constitutional for Abraham Lincoln, by a stroke of his pen, to liberate slaves legally held without compensation? None of these were constitutional, but they were done, and they are precisely the glorious things in our history.

Centuries ago William the Conqueror came to England, subdued the country, and distributed the land among his followers. He did not make the land; it was his by no right or just title whatever: but he divided it among his followers as if it were his, as if he were Almighty God. Hundreds of years later a king of England, a king of Spain, a Dutch government, a pope of Rome, parcelled out land in this country—land which they never saw; which they could by no possibility have owned; they gave away what was not theirs to give. Yet all the titles to land in England and America rest upon these morally absurd acts of rulers long since dead. There is not a shadow of moral validity in any extant title to land, however legally obtained; furthermore, we now know that men are dragged into degradation, women starve, children famish for mothers' milk; that crime is rampant, ignorance darkens the mind, nine-tenths of the race are enslaved; that the world is blasted, the church corrupted, and the kingdom of heaven delayed, because the surface of the earth is pre-empted by a few who permit the rest to live only upon their own hard terms. We know that land is a product of nature, a necessity of human life, and ought to be as free as air and sunshine; we know that the wheels of progress are stopped, that civilization is likely to lurch backward toward chaos because of our immoral, absurd system of landholding; we know all this, but we can do nothing to change it, because, forsooth, because the decrees of dead men must be obeyed. There is a man starving by the roadside, and there is vacant land upon which he might live and thrive. Why does he die in sight of unused land? Because the hollow voice of a dead man speaks who lies from the grave: "That land was mine; I willed it to my son, and now it is his." The starving man hears the dead man's lying voice and submits; society hears the same dead voice, and, without hesitation, declares that it is better that men should starve than that the dead should be disobeyed. —Rev. Hugh O. Pentecost, in the Twentieth Century.

MAKING MILLIONAIRES.

HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS TO CORPORATIONS; NOTHING TO WORKINGMEN.

Grants of Land and Money Equal to the Entire Civil and War Expenses Up to Date.

When Benjamin F. Butler was a member of Congress he made a speech in the House relating mainly to the power of Congress to aid settlers upon the public lands. Those familiar with colonial history will remember that the early progress of the colony of Pennsylvania was mainly owing to the adoption of a similar policy. The most interesting portion of the speech is where Gen. Butler shows that while our Government neglects to aid the working classes it never tires of granting subsidies to corporations whose members are millioniares. He proves by examples that the parcelling out of our public improvements is infinitely more outrageous than that of the Norman Conquerors, who sequestrated the estates of the Saxons and the lands then held in common in all parts of England. He says: "Hundreds of millions of the people's money has been given to souless corporations. Not a dollar to loan the workingman to occupy the land that God created for man." He then refers to the innumerable bills introduced for the appropriation of public moneys for private corporations, steamship companies, railroad grants, deepening harbors, improving the navigation of rivers, and succor to foreign nations in distress. Besides these, he enumerates some thirty more devices to obtain money from the public treasury, and among them the loyalists found in the South after the war was over, and who made claims for relief, and of whom Butler says "were numerous enough to have squelched the rebellion if they had only been there and sat down on it when it was going on."

Butler says: "All of these precedents for Government action are in favor of property in its several forms, but (he adds) where is the legislation in aid of labor?" Echo answers, where? but no answer, not even the ghost of a whisper.

But to this Gen. Butler also adds: "Some 162 millions of railroad bonds guarranteed by the Nation, and which were in fact a free grant, and besides these the railroad corporations realized from lands granted (and which in fact were the property of the people) more than 1500 millions of dollars. The gratuities granted to railroad corporations alone, said Gen. Butler, compares with the entire civil and war expenses of this nation with the following result: Total cost of this Government from its foundation until now (then) $14,222,000,000.

Is there any reason to wonder where all our millionaires come from or how they are made? Not alone by robbing the toilers of the produce and profit of their labor, but also of the wonderful bounties of nature which this nation has been so bountifully endowed; the mines of iron and coal, and of coal oil, and the mines of silver and gold, copper tin, zinc and lead, all of which are monopolized under the false pretense that capital is needed to develop this wealth, when in fact labor is all that is needed—as we will prove one of these days—to accomplish greater works than all the great wonders of the world in all past ages, and without entailing one dollar of debt or the payment of one cent of interest.—S. in Pacific Union.

PORT ANGELES, W. T. Dec. 25th, 1888.

MRS. MARIE HOWLAND.

Dear Friend: Yesterday's mail brought the issue of Dec. 1st of the Credit Foncier. My time is much occupied, but there is no sleep for me until I have read your editorials and comments, no matter how I feel. I only wish your paper would reach me oftener—its perusal is our most pleasant resting hour of many day's toil. We will hope that in the near future it will be issued daily instead of semi-monthly as now.

But today is Christmas, and as I sat recounting the happy moments passed at our Music Hall on last evening by the great number of people who have been attracted to this place through our colony, my thoughts naturally led off in the direction of yours, and I wonder if you too were, like us, feasting for the time being, upon the many good things of life. I can only hope that you are.

But the to-morrow—what of that, and how about the good things for it and the days following? Are we prepared to say that they should take care of themselves and we only make the most of the present? I am only too sorry to acknowledge that the great majority of working people care but little for the to-morrow. They can enjoy the present if no struggle is required to return them from three to four dollars for each day's service for some one who does all the planning while they do all the hard labor. In the education of the masses; the building up of manhood and womanhood; the modeling and building up of more perfect commonwealths; the protecting of the many rights which are gradually being taken from them by gigantic trusts and monopolies, the common people seem to have but little concern.

But how different is the to-morrow to men like Mr. Owen! It is their all, and to it their all, to the very last drop of life's blood, is pledged. They know that theory is one thing and "to be confronted with a condition," is another. While it would be happiness itself to see all things take the positions theory makes for them, it is any thing but happiness to be compelled to make terms with those who are masters of "the condition." But the struggle is on, and those brave men must expect many trials, possibly many defeats, before the final victory.

Our colony, notwithstanding the many hard blows it has received from presumed friends as well as acknowledged enemies, is slowly but surely approaching the position of a power capable of doing much good or much injury to the hundreds of working people who more or less rested their hopes upon it. I know you will smile at the idea expressed in the last sentence, but you will agree with me after you hear my explanation. In the first place, we as a colony are possessed of a good portion of this beautiful townsite, owning a strip about 300 feet wide and over a mile in length along the water front of this excellent harbor. We own a great many city lots, and 1250 acres of land all within five miles and some adjoining the townsite, besides the water front. The great stream of emigrants pouring into the Territory by the hundreds daily, constantly causes this valuable property to increase in value. If it is not segregated, alienated, subdivided, bartered, sold or "eaten up" by those who now control it, and it is forever held as the property of the Puget Sound Co-operative Colony, whose shares are proposed to be held in equal amounts by its different members, then it will be a power capable of much good for those who toil in its mills and shops. But if it be subdivided and sold to the highest bidder—this step being forced upon the managers through the unrest of the small share holders (it should be remembered that although it is named a co-operative colony, under the laws which gave it power and being, it is no more nor less than a joint stock company), and the desire of the many who are only capable of measuring wealth by its color and weight, to see it in this form every Saturday night instead of being in the shape of lands and water front, then you will readily admit that after it becomes divided, segregated, alienated, bartered, sold or "eaten up," it will be "a power capable of doing much injury to those who toil" in the mills and shops built upon these lots and lands.

We have taken one step in a direction which will result in saving this great property for all the share holders of the colony, if we can continue in it. We no longer pay ourselves immense salaries whether we earn them or not, as was done at the very beginning; what ever is earned is in proportion to the hours of service. It is an experiment, but as it will result in giving to the toiler not only "a just proportion of the product of his toil," but all of it, we have great hopes of its ultimate success.

Our people do not place the same stress upon "social" orders that they expected to before coming here. They now realize that before social success can obtain a good hold upon the outside world for them, that financial success must be first assured, and every nerve of every director is bent in the direction of paying off debts, saving a vast property and otherwise placing the colony upon a solid financial basis. In this way we are preparing and economising for "the tomorrow." Let us all hope that it will amply compensate us for our severe trials and extraordinary struggles.

That not only this Christmas is a happy one, but that all that may come to you will be, is the earnest wish of your friend.

THOS. MALONY, Secretary.

Paying the Piper.

Since November the Pennsylvania dupes of the protectionist orators have been finding out the difference between "enabling" the employer to pay high wages, and the paying of them. Wages have been reduced in many industries, and now from Reading comes the news that on March 1st, wages are to be cut down to a point not reached in many years.—Baltimore Sun.

One Clear Principle.

The man who wants to use an an ax wants to get it cheap, and the man who wants to use land wants it cheap. But don't confound the two things. The title to the ax is derived from the maker of the ax. But the title to land is not derived from the maker of the land, is it?—D. C. Davil in Choudiant, La., Farmers' Union.

"I hold that no man deserves to be crowned with honor whose life is a failure. He who only lives to eat and drink and accumulate money is a failure. The world is no better for his living in it. He never wiped a tear from a sad face, never kindled a fire on a frozen hearth. I repeat with emphasis that he is a failure. There is no flesh in his heart. He worships no God but gold."—Cicero, (a heathen philosopher) before the birth of the Savior.

The Single Tax Creed.

We ask that no man be deprived
Of what is rightfully his own.
We honor wealth when it hath grown
From deeds that have the world revived.

All labor's worthy of its hire,
Whether of toiling hand or brain;
When earth is measured back again
Something to feed her furnace fire;

Something to wake her roaring mills;
Something to freight her giant slaves
That scour the land and ocean waves;
Something to fill the little rills—

In which are born the mighty streams
That turn the wheels of industry,
And swell the [illegible]
Beyond the wildest idle dreams.

We hold the ancient tenet, still,
Of labor's honest claim to hold
From other touch its well-earned gold,
And leave it fruits to whom it will;

But recognize no honest right
In cunning brain to idly wait
In guard at any market gate
And there collect the workman's mite

Simply because its eyes foresaw
The course the march of trade would take,
And quick hands cross the pathway stake
The iron palings of the law.

Or, if this is its rightful part,
Then those who keep the market place,
And draw their tithes from labor's race,
Must by themselves maintain the mart.

Brooklyn, L. I. KATE HUDSON.

Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby is an eminent New York clergyman. In a recent letter to the New York Sun he says: "If we saw a man a mile high [illegible] over this way from the West, and discovered that he had already trampled eight or ten towns into nothingness, we should feel called upon to take measures to supress him before he could put his big foot on our city and blot out its light forever. He would be a danger which we should be justified in preparing against. Our great corporations are very much like this giant. They crush thousands where they tread. They hire journals, courts and Legislatures, and have every thing their own way. It is for the people of our land so to curb this power that it may only be useful and not harmful. If this be socialism, I am a socialist."

"Mamma, where is the act?"
"What act, my child?"
"Why, every paper I read tells of somebody who 'was caught in the act,' and I want to know where it is so I won't get caught."

Mrs. J. H. Young arrived from Seattle yesterday with a full line of Millinery and Ladies Furnishing Goods and will open her store in Morse block as soon as room can be made ready. This will be a welcome addition to our growing town.

Quite a number of buildings are in course of construction on the hill, and lumber is being hauled for others about to be started. As soon as the new mill men take charge so that all can be supplied with lumber as required, we will have quite a building boom in Port Angeles.

An unknown man who left Pysht for Quillayute Wednesday, a. m., was found dead on the trail three miles from Pysht. His death resulted from an ax wound in the back of his head, supposed to have been received from falling from a log on an ax he was carrying. We hope to receive later news before we go to press.

Phil Rollins of the Eureka hotel New Dungeness fired at a crow last week with a rifle. The ball wrecked a window and two show cases for Jones and Church. The crow is still alive and well, and though partially the cause of the accident did not offer to bear part of the expense.

Homesteaders and pre-emptors can now prove up at Port Angeles, Probate Judge Smith having his office here when his court is not in session. This is of great convenience to the settlers as most of the new settlers have filed on claims from here down to Quillayute. Anyone living nearer Dungeness can advertise for proof to be taken there.

To those preparing themselves as teachers, or who wish education in other branches, we would call attention to the advertisement on the third page, of the Port Townsend and Northwestern Normal School. With the establishment of this school, the educational advantages of Port Townsend are now unexcelled.

The drag saw and engine for the new Dry Creek shingle mill have been taken to the site of the mill. The boiler is to go during the week. A hand feed Perkins' mill has been ordered from the East and is expected here in about ten days. The capacity of the new mill will be forty thousand shingles per day.

The Division of the School District.

An election is called for, on Saturday week (April 6) as per notice posted upon front of Commonwealth building, to divide this School District. The division of the district at the present time would be suicidal to the interests of all interested in good schools, and the scheme should be sat down upon, severely. A tax of one per cent has been levied upon all property in the district. The money would have to be divided and the present school house could not be finished.

The district should be kept as it is. When the town grows a schoolhouse should be built at the East End and another at the West End, which, with Central school now being built, will give good educational facilities to those living outside of the townsite, as well as those within its confines. We hope the citizens in the district will think well on the subject and not do anything tending to curtail the school advantages of the town, but look to the end that Port Angeles will have as good educational institutions as can be found in the Sound country anywhere.

SECRETARY'S CORNER.

The Secretary's Corner will be a permanent institution hereafter. We will gladly reply to any inquiry sent us. Make them short and to the point. Remember there are from 500 to 1500 who have their eyes upon these pages each week and each one may want to be heard.

To Correspondents.

Write as often as you feel inclined, but be sure to have your inquires in short sentences. If you desire your letters published, write upon one side of the sheet only. We will reply to any inquiry whether connected with the Colony or not. If a personal letter is wanted, inclose stamps to cover postage.

We call upon our friends again for their present address. Only three have responded to our last call.

The recent heavy rains have materially interfered with logging the past two weeks. In consequence the mill has been idle nearly all the time.

Mr. Studivan inspected the timber up Ennis creek last week, and has concluded that there is sufficient to justify the building of a skid road up that valley. It will be done at once and the ox team given a long needed rest.

"Kind words will never die," is our responce to Mrs. Howland's notice of us in a late issue of the Credit Foncier. Modesty forbids us contrasting her opinions with those of certain citizens of this place whose suspicions have got the best of their good judgment.

Two strangers called at our office last week. They were invited in, shown a plat of the Colony Additions, and with th remark that they would like to assist [illegible] their power, and secure them[illegible] at the same time selected and paid for seven lots in the Second Addi[illegible] It required only about ten minutes [illegible]mplete the negotiations. Further [illegible]rsation developed the fact that [illegible] were working men and desired to [illegible] foot-hold in some growing town [illegible] the prices were beyond their [illegible]

[illegible] old friend, Wm. Bell, formerly in [illegible] of the Signal office at this place, now at Roseburg, Ore., has not for[illegible]en us. He has our thanks for a copy [illegible] Mining and Scientific Press, con[illegible]ning a description of a practical trac[illegible]on engine. "Something of the kind [illegible]ay be of service on the Colony's tram [illegible]d," we suppose were his thoughts. It [illegible]ainly will if the contractors do not [illegible]head with the railroad. We shall [illegible]nly know more about that traction [illegible] and Mr. Bell will be remembered [illegible] this mark of interest in our welfare.
