FARMERS INSTITUTE NOW IN SESSION

MEETINGS ARE WELL ATTENDED

Matters of Interest to Dairymen, Orchardists and Poultry Raisers Discussed by State's Specialists.

The Clallam County Farmers' Institute met in this city yesterday at 1:30 p. m., and will close its sessions here this afternoon and go to Seguin where sessions will be held on Saturday. The meetings here have been of especial interest, and well attended by citizens of Angeles and vicinity. The addresses given have been of rich information, and the discussions have demonstrated that the ranchers of this section are thoroly imbued with the high calling in which they are engaged and the information on the various topics discussed can not fail to be of lasting benefit to all interested in agriculture, dairying,fruit and poultry raising.

The Institute was called to order by Prof. E. E. Elliott, in charge of institute work in the state, on Thursday afternoon, the organization perfected and the first session opened.

Prof. Elliott explained that the Objects and Purpose of Farmers' Institute work in this state was to meet and discuss the varied interests of the farmer in the different sections of the state. Washington is a state of greatly diversified industries as as well as of various climatic conditions. What would be a proper discussion of the interests of the farmer in one section would be entirely out of place in another section.

The farmers' institute system is one of the leading schools of instruction in many of the Eastern states and is a well established principle of of education of farmers' work. Only until recently has this state extended aid for the work—this year the means are ample.

This is part of the Seattle circuit—the work being carried on in circuits that we may have a minimum of expense and more efficiency; local speakers, or those who are acquainted with local conditions, being secured where possible.

The farmer is a queer animal and it is often a difficult matter to get him out to these meetings. This is the great problem of the successful institute. Why should not the farmer attend since the primary object is to get them interested in its work that the discussions may help him with his farm and dairy work. An institute is interesting only as the farmer makes it interesting, by taking part in the discussions and asking and answering questions.

Prof. W. H. Lawrence followed. He gave a very interesting and instructive address on Fungi and Why they Should Interest the Farmer.The speaker was director of the experiment station at Puyallup, where his business is to work out the problems of fungi growth that cause disease to plant life, and find a remedy; he asked the farmer to write him whenever he wanted information in regard to the matter.

At the close of this address the question box was opened and many interesting questions were asked and answered.

H. L. Blanchard spoke on "Poultry Production for Profit," and why the farmer should connect the poultry business with dairy farming. One can take up poultry raising as a single line and not only make a good living but a competency, and where combined with farm work so much the better.

In the first place one must have a liking for the business and a knowledge of the work if he expects to meet with success from the start. There never was a success made at poultry raising that was not well earned. One of the things to be observed was the selection of proper breeds; don't experiment too much; select strong, well matured birds. He favored pure breeds, but one breed that had brought the most frequent success was a cross between the Plymouth Rock and Leghorn. The principal things to be observed in the poultry house was thorough ventilation and plenty of light, so that every ray of sunshine might penetrate the open front. Muslin windows were preferred to glass; they were cheaper and afforded better ventilation and more protection from cold. A mixed ration of grain in the evening in a litter where the flowl will have to scratch for it, and a portion of bran or "chops" mixed with milk in the morning, with plenty of pure water and green stuff, had proved the best egg producer. The secret of most of the failures of poultry raising was vermin. The best remedy was to paint the underside of the roosts with carbolineum.

The evening session was fairly well attended and much interest manifested. This session was devoted to discussions on the subjects of "What Science Has Done for the Farmer," by Prof. Lawrence, and "Some Advice to the New Settler in Washington," by Prof. Elliott. Both of these subjects were well and ably handled and the points brought out in the discussions interesting.

This morning, at ten o'clock, the subject of the dairying industry was taken up. The discussion was led by L. W. Hanson on "A Few of the Underlying Principles of the Dairy Business," and "Building Up the Dairy Herd," by H. L. Blanchard. These discussions were replete with interesting personal experiences, in which were given many valuable suggestions touching this most important branch of farm economy.

The afternoon session will close the work here. The meetings were a decided success, and we feel assured the visitors who conducted the work of the first Farmers' Institute held in Angeles will take away an abiding sense of pleasure over the hearty and generous treatment accorded them by the people of Clallam county.

THE BREWERY CHANGES

Increased Output and Special Steamboat Delivery. Rumor of Another Brewery for Tumwater Hill.

The announcement that heavy capitalists of Seattle have invested in the Port Angeles brewery and that the capacity of the plant will be increased two fold, has aroused public interest in the enterprise which is fast becoming Port Angeles' chief industry. For many months the management has been forced to "clip" orders, which means supply only a part of the quantity needed by customers. The increased capital will enable the brewery to meet present requirements; but the question of future supply will have to be immediately considered.

The Angeles brew is acknowledged to be the best on the Sound. It is ahead of the famed Olympia brew, so the government analyists report, and in point of purity beer produced at Seattle and elsewhere on the Sound is not in the same class with ours.

This success is attributable, in a measure, to the careful handling of the stock used in the manufacture; but the purity of Tumwater Hill water is what has made Port Angeles the favorite beverage on Puget Sound. The hill is a remarkable fountain-head of good water, which bubbles up in copious springs and flows down the hillside in never failing volume. To the taste the water as it comes from the hill is delightful and when converted into beer it becomes nectar fit for the gods.

The company, among other things, intend to put on a delivery steamboat to run between this port, up-sound ports and Victoria and so escape the excessive charges of the steamboat company, and will own their own delivery vans in Bellingham, Seattle and Everett. They also contemplate competing at Olympia and at Victoria with the beers brewed there.

The result of the analysis of Port Angeles beer has not escaped the attention of brewers elsewhere and it is reported that another brewery of vast dimensions will be erected at or near Tumwater Hill by a Seattle firm in the spring.

LARGE POTATOES.

"At the Pacific Market there is on exhibition several bushels of potatoes raised by George Cooper on his farm near Junction that average between three and four pounds each. When it takes only twenty potatoes to make a bushel, a person can realize the size of each potato. The largest potato raised in the state reported thus far was in Yakima. It weighed a little over six pounds and furnished a meal for eleven persons. The 32-acre field in which this potato was raised produced $17,880 worth." —Townsend Call.

These are large potatoes, but Clallam county can go them one better. The Ennis creek Chinaman market gardner, just east of the corporation limits, has this year raised a crop of potatoes that will give him a good bank account; his largest potato tipped the scales at exactly seven pounds! Three and four pound potatoes are a common thing at all the grocery stores in town.

E. E. Hopkins having purchased the T. S. Brophy grocery stock, that popular store will hereafter be known as the E. E. Hopkins Grocery Co. Mr. Hopkins is an affable gentleman; his acquaintanceship is wide, and he will without doubt make a success in the new line.

More than Any Other One Thing, Holds Back County in its Development and Prevents Increased Population.

At the Commercial Club's meeting Tuesday Horace White's resignation as secretary was tendered and accepted with a vote of thanks for his long and continued service. Mr. Corsan was elected secretary. The Club having no treasurer, Dr. Mead was elected to fill the position.

Mr. Kean, of the advertising and literary committee, reported having raised $450 for pamphlets to advertise the city. Committee was authorized to secure pictures of orchards and typical homes for the pamphlet, and to outline the character and scope of printed matter required, and report to the Club.

The discussion of the County Fair question brought forth a resolution by Mr. Higgins "That a committee of five be appointed to arrange for the holding of a county fair at Port Angeles next fall and that the citizens of other localities be communicated with for the purpose of forming branch clubs thruout the county to further the object of the fair," which was adopted. A committee consisting of Messrs. Peters, Mead, Ritchie, Fathers and Delabarre were appointed to take up the work for the fair.

The transportation committee reported no further progress but were assured that the car ferry business was progressing, which report bro't up the question of transportation for discussion. Mayor Ritchie spoke at length on the advisability of securing better service on freight rates, taking as his text a letter from W. F. Wettling, who was here this summer looking for a site for a ladder factory. Mr. Wettling writes: "Unfortunately, upon taking up matter of freights with the steamship company, we find they will only accept step ladders at cubic ft. measurement instead of weight, and as step ladders are very bulky we find freight by steamer is more than double that by rail, therefore unless the Canadian Pacific will run the contemplated ferry from Victoria, we could not market our product to points on the coast any cheaper than we could from our present factory by rail." Mr. Rouse believed the only solution to be an affiliation of our merchants with the Portland wholesalers, an idea which met with hearty approval. A committee consisting of Messrs. Ritchie, Rouse, Fields, and Lauridsen, ex-officio, was appointed to report the most feasible means of overcoming the difficulty.

The meeting was well attended and all were enthusiastic.

THE WESTERN PACIFIC

Story of Purchase by that Company of Milwaukee's Surveys and Timber on the Olympic Peninsula.

The Townsend Call states that Charles Olson who has just returned from an official visit in Western Jefferson, brings the story that the Western Pacific, a road controlled by the Goulds, has taken over the holding of the Milwaukee and the Continental Timber Co. in the Olympic Peninsula. One hundred men in the employ of the Western Pacific, Mr. Olson says, have arrived at Forks and established headquarters in the Woodmen's hall. They announced that five engineering corps would immediately be placed in the field and a number of timber cruisers sent out. Pack animals and draft horses were purchased and a large barn is being built at Forks. All work done by the Milwaukee will be carefully gone over. It is believed road building will be commenced without delay and pushed to a speedy completion.

CLIMATIC CONTRASTS.

Snow in New England and the Middle West—a quarter inch of ice in Kansas—in Port Angeles, yards filled with flowers, roses, clematis, sweet peas, carnations, and a host of others; trees loaded with apples and late pears; tomatoes, lettuce, radishes, celery, and all the root-vegetables growing in the gardens; the grass never more green and the sky never more blue; the first snow on the mountain peaks six miles back of town—it is still the beautiful spring-fall of Puget Sound.

LUMBER RATES.

The court has enjoined the railroad companies from raising lumber rates and the case will now be heard on its merits. The court must decide whether or not the proposed new rates are reasonable.

CIVIC CONFERENCE

COMPROMISE RESOLUTIONS INDORSED AT CHICAGO MEETING.

Labor Delegates Agree to Moderate Demands, Paving the Way to Harmonious Action. Railroad Rate Agreements Considered Desirable.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Resolutions framed as the concensus of opinion of the trust conference of the National Civic Federation for remedial legislation, were unanimously passed as the closing act of the conference, and are to be presented to President Roosevelt and congress by a special commission.

It was reported that there was a warm session of the resolution committee during the morning, and that the charges of the labor delegates which had threatened to disrupt the federation forced a compromise which allowed the resolutions being reported and passed unanimously.

Early in the day Talcott Williams, of Philadelphia, and Samuel Gompers issued statements that peace had been arranged and that the perpetuation of the federation was assured.

While the legislation recommended is not so drastic as the measures advocated by some of the delegates, and contains no radical features, there was but illtle discussion provoked when the resolutions were presented. Their adoption seems to indicate that they were generally regarded as a step forward in the direction towards limiting the powers for evil doing by the trusts of the country.

Resolutions Adopted

The resolutions presented by the committee are as follows

First—Immediate legislation permitting agreements between railroad corporations on reasonable freight and passenger rates, subject in all respects to the approval, supervision and action of the interstate commerce commission.

Second—Congress is urged to pass without delay legislation providing for a nonpartisan commission to consider the subject of business and industrial combinations and to report such proposals as to the formation, capitaliaztion, management and regulation—so far as may be subject to federal jurisdiction—as shall preserve individual initiative, competition and the free exercise of a free right of contract in all business and industrial relations. This commission to make a thorough inquiry into the advisability of inaugurating a system of federal license or incorporation as a condition for the entrance of certain classes of corporations upon interstate commerce and also into the relation of the public interest by the purchase of the franchises or corporate stock of another.

Third—To extend the examination, inspection and supervision of the great producing and manufacturing corporations by the department of commerce and labor, so that complete publicity in the capitaliaztion, accounts, operations, transportation charges paid and selling prices may be one kind.

Fourth—To leave to the United States supreme court the settlement of the conifict between state and federal authority raised in many states over railroad rates.

The resolutions were presented by Dr. Albert Shaw, who said that they represented the unanimous sentiment of the committee of fifty-five appointed to draw up a platform for the conference. made an appeal for a "spirit of compromise" in the consideration of the resolutions.

"I know that some of you are disappointed not to see your pet ideas incorporated," he said. "I know I am. But I feel that this statement represents our common ground. Few will dissent from this. Let us, therefore, put aside our pet predictions and agree upon this simple platform. With harmony we may get something done."

The resolutions were carried with a unanimous shout of approval when finally put before the conference.

UNION MINERS AGREE TO ACCEPT LESS PAY

Butte, Mont., Oct. 30—The Miners' Union and the Smeltermen's Union have received notices from the Amalgamated Copper and other mining companies that the old scale of wages, in force before the agreement on the sliding scale was made, will be renewed November 1.

A meeting of the Miners' Union was held last night and the matter referred to a committee. The union issued a statement some time ago to the effect that it will abide by the contract made with the mines. The reduction will be from $4 a day to $3.50, the scale before ther aise. The mines might have reduced the wages to the old scale a month ago, copper already then being below 18 cents, but the companies preferred to leave the wages untouched until it should be evident that copper would stay below 18 cents for awhile.

The reduction to the lower scale will apply to all workmen in the mines, save the Machinists' Union, whose members have been out for six months.

About 7,000 men are involved.

IMMIGRATION RULING

No Money May Be Used in Gaining Admission of Aliens.

Port Townsend, Oct. 28.—With the receipt here of a copy of a recent decision by Secretary Oscar Strauss, of the department of commerce and labor there is established a principle that forbids the bringing of aliens into the United States by any state in a manner where the circumstances conflict with the rules and laws regulating immigration.

The decision rejects the right of a Cuban to enter at New Orleans, where it was shown that he had come into America with money advanced by the state of Louisiana, and for the purpose of engaging in agricultural pursuits along a line of advancement proposed by that state in a recent effort to rejuvenate degraded lands.

Secretary Strauss rules that where the use of money by either an individual, corporation or state serves either in whole or in part as an inducement for the bringing of an alien into the country such must be construed as an evasion of contract labor restrictions.

MORE RECORDS BROKEN IN BALLOON CONTESTS

St. Louis, Oct. 25.—Proclaimed as the most remarkable balloon contest in the history of the world's aeronautics, with every racing record broken, the second international cup competition ended with the German accorded winning laurels. The finish of the racei was the closest and most exciting veer known.

The victorious German balloon is the Pommern, which landed at Asbury Park, N. J., Laving by slightly more than five miles the advantage of the French contestant, Isle de France, second in the race, which descended at Herbertsville, N. J., a few miles from the Atlantic coast and slightly northwest of Point Pleasant. Another German ballon, the Dusseldrvf, stands third in the race. American entries are fourth and fifth, a third German is sixth, a French team is seventh, an America eighth and the English ninth.

The unofficial estimated distance of the Pommern is 880 miles and that of the Isle de France is 875. The Dusseldorf, which landed near Dover, Del., is estimated to have covered 790 miles. The Pommern could have remained in the air many hours longer and undoubtedly would have added several hundred miles to her record but for the expanse of water ahead.

While losing the record and possession the cup the French team which sailed the Isle de France gained the honor of record for duration, their time iin the air being just 44 hours. The previous record was 41 hours and 5 minutes.

The result of the race, the first of its character ever held in this country, has qualified the United States, in the opinion of all ballooning experts gathered here as the most favorable aeronautic ground in the world.

Dirigible Balloon Record Also Broken

St. Louis, Oct. 25.—The world's record of aerial navigation is believed to have been broken in the dirigible balloon contests yesterday, when Lincoln Beachy, of Toledo, O., covered a distance of one and a quarter miles in four minutes and forty seconds, returning to within twenty feet of the starting point and demonstrating that air naviagtion is a possibility. The first prize of $2,500 offered by the local aero club will be awarded to Beachy.

PROFESSOR SPILLMAN TO ADDRESS FARMERS

Pullman, Wash., Oct. 28.—The Washington State Dairymen's Association will hold its fourteenth annual convention at Stanwood, December 19 to 21. The program for the conventiois being prepared and will be published in a short time.

A rare treat is promised all dairymen who attend, for it is seldom that the assocition as it will be this year. Prof. W. J. Spillman, of the United States department of Agriculture, has promised to be present at the convention and will take part in the program.

Mr E. J. Wing, one of the foremost institute lecturers of the United States, will also be present at the convetion and his addresses will be of much value to all who are able to hear him. Mr. Wing has recently returned from Europe and will undoubtedly be able to tell much of interest regarding the conditions existing in the sections wher he traveled.

FLEET SAILING FIXED FOR DECEMBER 16TH

Washington, Oct. 29.—Secretary Metcalf hass announced that it has been definitely settled that the Atlantic fleet will leave Hampton Roads on ecebmer 16 for its cruise to the Pacific coast. This announcement followed a conference at the White House at which the details of the cruise were discussed.

Mr. Metcalf stated that the question of allowing newspaper correspondents to accompany the fleet was discussed and the conclusion reached not to allow newspaper men aboard, but that officers of the fleet would be designated to send such news as might be thought desirable to made public.

TO SUE FOR LANDS

GOVERNMENT TO GO AFTER PROPERTY AS WELL AS PERSONS

Effort Will Be Made to Obtain Both Timber and Coal Lands Fraudulently Acquired---Borah Acquittal Will Not Deter Prosecution of Other Cases.

Washington, Oct. 28.—The government is about to go after the Western land grafters with greater vigor than in any previous attack. Instructions have been given to M. C. Burch, special assistant United States district attorney to proceed as soon as possible both civilly and criminally, in the and fraud cases in the mountain states, and on the most comprehensive scale.

In the suits instituted, in addition to putting the grafters behind the bars whenever the facts warrant, the government will seek to regain title to millions of acres of valuable timber and coal lands which it is alleged have gone into 'the hands of private owners through private entries. President Roosevelt has specicfially directed that the attorney general invoke the criminal penalty wherever it can be imposed.

Many Secret Service Men Out

Co-operating with Special Assistant District Attorney Burch, a well known Michigan lawyer, who has been given charge of the land prosecutions, is the largest staff of secret service men in the country, under the direction of L. C. Wheeler. This force, which is constantly being increased, now numbers 100 men. These men are carried on the government rolls as special agents of the department of justice.

The states in which the greatest frauds will probably be unearthed are Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and Utah.

The acquittal of Senator Borah of Idaho will not deter the government from prosecuting other indictments in that state which were returned at the same time that Senator Borah was indicted. The Barber Lumber Company, which is a part of the Weyerhaeuser syndicate, is one of the concerns aimed at. Through civil suits an attempt will be made to force an abandonment of the thousands of acres of timber lands which it is claimed this company has obtained through fraudulent entries.

Same System in All Rtates

The story of the timber frauds is pretty much the same in all the mountain states, and the frauds in coal lands are even more etxensive than in timber. In Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and Idaho the Harriman lines, the Hill lines and the Gould lines have contrived to secure control of the coal lands. What is known as the "dummy entry" system has been utilized in nearly all cases where direct proof has been obtained. This was the system first disclosed by the California prosecutions where straw men were utilized to make entries, or hoboes employed for a few dollars to take the necessery oaths at the land office.

Got Minearl Land by Fraud

Reno, Nev., Oct. 29.—The United States has bogun suit in the United States district court at Carson to set aside patents to 15,000 acres of land held by the Southern Pacific company in the White Horse mining district on the ground that the land was fraudulently represented by the railroad company to be agricultural, when it was known to be mineral.

Tacoma Eastern Asks Right of Way

Olympia, Oct. 30.—The Tacoma Eastern railway has applied to the state board for a right of way across section 16, township 7, range 2 east and section 36, township 19, range 3 east. This means an extension of that railway from its present main line to near Yelm, this county, at which point the Union Pacific some time ago asked a right of way across state land.

Bulb Experts Offered Sites

Bellingham, Oct. 28.—Morrison and Juenemann, the government bulb experts who have been in Bellingham looking over the field here pertaining to the establishment of a bulb farm near the city, have left for Tacoma, having completed their labors here. President White, of the Chamber of Commerce, said that two tracts had been offered to the bulb men.

Fruit Men May Sue Railroads

Toppenish, Wash., Oct. 28.—Toppenish fruit men may bring suit against the railroads unless they furnish cars immediately to ship the large quantities of fruit now awaiting transportation. Unless relief is obtained speedily shippers will sueffr damage amounting to upwards of $25,000, they say.

Would Reform Mining Laws

Baguio, P. I., Oct. 30.—Secretary Taft rode to the American mines east of Baguio Tuesday over a precipitous trail which drops 2,000 feet within a distance of four miles. Addressing the American miners, he said he hoped to secure needful reforms in the mining laws.

Hawaii Has Great Sugar Crop

Honolulu, Oct. 30.—Hawaii's sugar crop for 1907 is the largest in the history of the islands. It amounts to 420,000 tons. Next year's crop promises to reach 575,000 tons. This large increase is due to the extension of acreage and irrigation.

ILLINOIS CANAL OPENED

Waterway Is Seventy-five Miles Long and Cost $8,000,000.

Sterling, Ill., Oct. 29.—A distinct and important step in the movement to obtain a deep watreway from Lake Michigan to the Gulf of Mexico was taken with the opening to navigation of the Illinois and Mississippi canal, which has been completed after thirty years of work. The importance of the event was evidenced by the attendance of Gov. Deneen and many other notables at the opening ceremonies.

The work of constructing the canal, which was formerly known as the Hennepin canal, was commenced many years ago. In 1890 congress appropriated money to carry on the work, and altogether the appropriations have amounted to abpout $8,000,000. The main line of the canal extends from the Illinois river, near Hennepin, to the Mississippi river three miles below Rock Island. The naviagble feeder, about thirty miles long, extends from the Rock river at this point to the main line near Sheffield and is of the same general dimensions as the main line.

PRESIDENT PROCLAIMS DAY OF THANKSGIVING

Washington, Oct. 29.—The president's annual thanksgiving procalmation, selecting Thursday, November 28, for the people to assemble, to pray that they may be given strength so to order their lives as to deserve a continuance of the manifold blessings of the past year, triumphanntly declares that nowhere else in the world is there such an opportunity for a free people to develop to the fullest extent all powers of body, mind and character.

"During the past year we have been free from famine, from pestilence, from war," it declares. "Our natural resources are at least as great as those of any nation. Much has been given us from on high and much will rightly be expected of us in return. Into our care the ten talents have been entrusted, and we are to be pardoned neither if we squander and waste them, nor yet if we hide them in a napkin.

"We should earnestly pray that the spirit of righteousness may grow greater in the hearts of all and that our souls may be inclined even more toward the virtues that tell for gentleness, for loving kindness and forbearance one with another, for without these qualities neither nation nor individual can rise to a level of greatness."

GRUBSTARE DECISION BY JUDGE DE HAVEN

San Francisco, Oct. 29.—Judge DeHaven has handed down a decision whereby H. Cascaden is awarded a third interest in mining claims in Alaska aggregating in value about $100,000. This decision is of great interest to mining men, as it involves the transaction commonly known as "grub staking" Cascaden was authorized by George F. F. Dunbar, Charles Scott and J. Bennett to locate mining claims for them in Alaska. He located three valuable claims on Cleary creek, which he turned over to Dunbar, Scott and Bennett, with the understanding that they would record the claims. This they neglected to do until the original staking of the claims was declared void because of the lapse of time. Afterwards they recorded the claims in their own names.

Chelan Fruit Crop Big

Chelan, Oct. 26.—Fifty car loads of fruit have already been shipped from the Lake Chelan country, and it is estimated that there are at least thirty-five car loads yet to go. This is by far the greatest crop of fruit ever grown here. New orchards come into bearing each year. The transportation companies are kept busy moving the present crop, and it is said the moving of next year's crop will be a serious problem. Mr. Van Slyke of the Miners and Merchants bank, says that for the first time the fruit industry has brought more money in to the country than the mining industry.

Make Good Pictures of Mars

New York, Oct. 28.—Among the passengers aboard the steamship Colon from the canal zone were Prof. David Todd, his wife and daughter. Prof. Todd is returning from his investigations and observations of the planet Mars at Tapaca, sixty miles above Iquique, Chile. The largest telescope ever set up in the Southern hemisphere was used in the work, which was eminently successful. The sky was clear and good photographs were taken, showing the canals, and not only single canals, but double or parallel canals.

Invalidated by Title

Olymipa, Oct. 26.—Attorney-General Atkinson has received from the attorney-general of Illinois a copy of the recent decision of the supreme court of that state declaring the direct primary election law unconstitutional. An examination of the opinion of the court indicates that the decision was based on the defective title of the act.

Oklahoma Statehood November 16

Washington, Oct. 29.—President Roosevelt will proclaim Oklahoma a state on Saturday, Nov. 16. The president made this announcement to Gov. Frantz, who brought to Washington a certified copy of the new constitution.

SAYS STRIKE IS OFF

FORMER PRESIDENT SMALL ISSUES A STATEMENT.

Old Positions are Open to Operators Not Proven Guilty of Serious Offenses---Pay Increase in March Stands---Russell Acquiesces in Terms.

New York, Oct. 30.—S. J. Small, recently deposed as president of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, arrived in New York from the West yesterday and was refused permission to address the local branch of the union at a meeting in the afternoon, and last night sent out a statement to the public, "calling off" the telegraphers' strike.

After reviewing his efforts to bring about a settlement of the trouble advantageous to the strikers and the action of the union in declaring his office vacant and electing a successor, Small said:

"I feel it my duty as the legally elected president of the aforesaid organization to issue this statement, declaring a chaotic condition to exist within our official ranks, and further declaring the telegraphers' strike unquestionably the greatest and cleanest fought battle of recent years, at an end, dating from Wednesday, October 30, 1907, and on the following terms, towit:

"All strikers will be reinstated without discrimination, except those against whom serious charges can be substantiated, the accused to have the privilege of making defense in writing through me, when their cases will receive prompt and careful consideration. The ten per cent increase granted March 1, 1907, will be adhered to.

Other matters mentioned in the bill of grievances will be taken up and considered upon my return to New York within ten days, provided the strikers accept and act upon these instructions"

Small declares he is willing to "await vindication at the next regular convention, to be held in Milwaukee next June."

RUSSELL ACQUIESCES IN TERMINATION OF STRIKE

New York, Oct. 30.—Late last night Daniel L. Russell, chairman of the state committee, issued a statement to the effect that if the telegraph companies were prepared to agree to reinstate all strikers except those against whom serious charges could be proven, guarantee that the increase of last March would be given without discrimination, and promise to arbitrate all other matters contained in the bill of grievances, the signers of the statement were satisfied that they could pledge the committee to call off the strike within forty-eight hours. The statement was signed by Russell, Percy Thomas, Joseph F. Ahren and R. M. McLennon.

FINISH NORTH BANK LINE BY NEW YEAR

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 29.—Announcement is made in the annual report of the Northern Pacific that the road being built by the Portland and Seattle Company from Kennewick to Vancouver is rapidly approaching completion and track should be laid the entire distance, 220 miles, by January 1 next.

The large bridges over the Columbia and Willamette rivers are well under way and should be completed by June, 1908. The road between Pasco and Spokane, 145 miles, and the branch to Teaxs Ferry, 40 miles, should be copmleted int he summer of 1908

The report shows that the double track work under way for a couple of years in the neck of the system in the east end is making satisfactory progress. It stretches from Wadena junction to Valley City, and when completed will be a big factor in the handling of transcontinental traffic and will relieve much of the congestion that has marked traffic for a couple of years.

COURT RULING MAY ABOLISH DEATH PENALTY

Butte, Mont., Oct. 28.—If a ruling made by the court in the trial of Theodore Canteloni, charged with murder, is sustained by the supreme court of the state, the death penalty will be practically abolished in Montana. The court ruled that a juror who was opposed to the death penalty might sit on the jury, over the contention of the state that the law excluded him, and overruled the state's challenge to prevent his sitting.

The juror emhpatically stated that he would not vote for hanging for murder.

Many View Fruit Lands

Grand Forks, B. C., Oct. 28.—During the past week a great number of American and English farmers have visited Grand Forks with a view of purchasing fruit lands.

GREAT DECREASE IN JOINTS

Government Report Encouraging to to Kansas Prohibitionists.

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 30.—There has been a marked slump in the consumption of liquors in Kansas during the past year. A showing made by the state Temperance Union greatly encourages the state administration and those active in the enforcement of the prohibitory law. The list of liquor tax receipt stamps secured by the Union from James M. Simpson, internal revenue collector at Leavenworth, reveals the fact that the fight against the breweries, saloons and "joints" in Kansas has not been without substantial result.

The holders of receipt snumber 2,282 in the state, as aganist 3,000 a year ago. Twelve hundred of these holders of receipts are druggists. Last year there were a dozen wholesalers, but the aggressive fight made on them by Attorney General Jackson has completely routed this class.

Eight of the 105 counties—Atchison, Crawford, Leavenworth, Montgomery, Cherokee, Sedgwick, Shawnee and Reno—have 1,063 receipts, or nearly half the total. There are ten counties in Kansas in which there are no liquor tax receipts. These are in the extreme western part of the state.

The state Temperance Union says that certified copies of the records of book 10 in the office of the revenue collector, from which these receipt transcripts are secured, may be used as evidence in prosecutions and that the government will willingly give them to any prosecuting officer.

A list of liquor sellers by counties is being published and posted in every community in the state.

WALL STREET FLURRY APPEARS AT AN END

New York, Oct. 29—George W. Perkins last night summed up the financial situation as follows:

"Everything is lovely. We have passed through the day in fine shape. Gold is coming from Europe, the pool formed to aid the stock market has been dissolved, as it is no longer necessary, and the clearing house certificates are doing their work.

"The crisis has been passed and the outlook is extremely bright, despite the rain."

Mr. Perkins' summary of the conditions was indorsed by all the leading bankers and brokers. All the events of the day indicated that matters had returned to comparatively normal conditions.

Although a few depositors lined up in some of the smaller banks, no further suspensions were reported and the prospcets for the resumption of business by the majority of the banks which were closed temporarily last week were considered favorable.

Twenty Millions Gold Coming

The engagement of almost $20,000,000 in gold in Europe for immediate delivery here was followed later by the encouraigng announcement of sales of American copper abroad. These sales, it is expected, will swell the tide of foreign money coming to this country still further to more than $25,000,000.

This good news added to the rapid rise in the prices of securities on the stock exchange, which in some cases rose four and five points, and which, taken in connection with the action of the trust companies in paying demands on them in checks on the clearing house instead of currency, strengthened the feeling greatly among bankers and the public at large that the trouble was over.

STATE SELECTIONS FALL INSIDE FOREST RESERVE

North Yakima, Oct. 29.—Notice has been received here from the general land office that as a result of the recent resurvey of the Yakima reservation, upwards of 300,000 acres, supposed to have been selected by the state for school purposes, really are within the limits of the reservation, and consequently will be withdrawn from the state and be subject to entry when the reservation is thrown open.

The state is thus placed in the same position as the Northern Pacific railway, which had to relinquish a considerable tract on the same grounds. The state will be allowed to select land elsewhere in place of that thus annulled.

Carries an Ultimatium

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 30.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Dominion government envoy to Tokyo on the question of Japanese immiragtion to Canada, left on the Empress of China for Yokohama. It will be made perfectly plain by Mr. Lemieux at Tokyo that if the immigration is not limited as desired by Canada the government at Ottawa will promptly give the six months notice necessary to abrogate the present treaty.

Complain of Railroads

Washington, Oct. 30.—In a complaint filed before the interstate commerce commission, 223 railroads and transportation companies are made defendants by the wholesale drygoods dealers of Wichita. The complainants allege discrimination against Wichita in favor of Topeka and Kansas City in shipments from the Atlantic seaboard.

Torrens Law Invoked

South Bend, Oct. 28.—The first case under the new Torrens act passed by the last legislature has been brought by J. L. Myers to quiet title to lot 1, block 18, of the corrected plat, on which his new concrete store building stands.

STATE ELECTIONS

GOVERNORS TO BE CHOSEN IN SIX COMMONWEALTHS

In Six Others Elections for Minor Offices Are to Be Held---Many Tickets in the Field--Massachusetts Electors Have Nine to Choose From.

New York, Oct. 29.—There will be elections in twelve states one week from today. In Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Mississippi and Kentucky a governor and other state officers are to be chosen; in New Jersey a governor only; in New York, two associate justices of the court of appeals; in Pennsylvania a state treasurer, and in Nebraska a railroad commissioner and two regents of the state university. In Ohio, Utah and California, municipal officers are to be selected, while in New York county a number of judges and a sheriff are to be voted for.

The prohibitionists have a state ticket in all the states except Maryland and Mississippi and city tickets in Cleveland and Cincinnati, but not in San Francisco and Salt Lake.

The Socialists also have tickets in all states except Mississippi and Maryland and city tickets in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Salt Lake and San Francisco.

There is only one ticket—the Democratic—in Mississippi.

Nine Tickets to Choose From

In Massachusetts there are nine tickets, four being divided among the Democrats, who are engaged in a factional fight, with the state delegation to the national Democratic convention next year in prospective.

In Nebraska the Democrats and Populists fused on the officials to be voted for throughout the state.

In Maryland there will be a straight contest between the Democrats and the Republicans, only the two parties having made nominations for state officers. In addition to these a house of delegates and half the state senate are to be elected. The next legislature will choose two United States senators, one to fill the unexpired term of the late Arthur P. Gorman and the other to take the place of Senator Rayner. The Republicans adhere to the old plan of senatorial election, but the Democrats are to put into effect a new senatorial primary law, which requires every member of the legislature to vote for the candidate receiving the highest vote in his district. The senatorial primaries, so far at least as the Democrats are concerned, will hereafter be part of the regular elections in Maryland.

The local elections, particularly in New York county, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Salt Lake and San Francisco, are of particular interest this year.

New York County Contest

In New York county the Republicans and the Independence League (Hearst) forces have fused on the county ticket, which is made up of a nubmer of court justices and a sheriff. This gives unusual interest to the conntest, although the Republicans named the head of the ticket, N. Linn Bruce, for justice of the supreme court, the most important office, that of sheriff, went to the Independence League, whose nominee, Maximlilian F. Ihmsen, has been Hearst's campaign manager for several campaigns. Of the ten judges the Republicans named five and the Independence League the others. Opposed to Ihmsen on the Democratic ticket is Thomas F. Foley, Democratic leader of the Second assembly district and a well known figure in East Side politics, while James W. Gerard heads the Democratic ticket for justice of the supreme court. Soon after the nominations were made, Mayor McClellan, who has been opposed to the present Tammany machine, announced that he would support the Democratic ticket against the Republican-Hearst combine.

In Cleveland, Congressman Theodore E. Burton is contesting the mayoralty with Thomas L. Johnson, who is understood to be the representative of William J. Bryan in Ohio, and to indorse Bryan's views on the subject of public utilities.

There are four tickets in Salt Lake, the American, or anti-Mormon party, having made nominations for local offices, as have the Republicans, Democrats and Socialists.

In San Francisco the Democrats and Good Government forces have combined and have nominated the present mayor who is opposed by a Republican as well as Union Labor and Socialist candidates, and the fight is decidedly lively.

North Coast Contractors Move

North Yakima, Oct. 28.—With the completion of the Granger-Grandview section of the North Coast grading work, which will be in probably two weeks, the construction camp of Cato & Eschbach, the contractors, will of be moved to a point between Kiona and Prosser, and that section se the road will be graded.

Czar to Prohibit Wheat Exports

Portland, Or., Oct. 28.—The Oregonian says that private advices received in Portland from Liverpool stating that there is a well grounded rumor in circulation to the effect that the emperor of Russia will soon issue a ukase forbidding the exportation of wheat from Russia, as was done in 1892.

HIS FIRST FIRE.

"First fire I run to with the injine after I jined the company was to the Widow Pickett's," murmured old Hiram Pettigrew, settling himself more easily on the bench before the new engine house. He liked to recall the fact that he had been a fireman himself once, in the old volunteer days.

"A blind fire 'twas, all smoke and no flame," he went on, "and Mis' Pickett was away, and didn't get back till jest's we'd got it out.

"A hard fire twas to handle, but we made a good job of it, and I was standing triumphant in the middle o' the parlor—a puddly, trickly, streaky, smeary, smoky ruination of a place it looked—surveying the scene, when she come in.

"I s'pose maybe I did look a mite satisfied; anyways, she thought I did, and she was a terrible high-spereted woman, and wa'n't pleased with the idee.

"First thing I knew she flounced up to me in a tantrum, and wanted to know what I meant, wetting down her walls and sp'ling her furniture when the fire hadn't teched 'em, and it wa'n't anyways necessary.

"Her voice kept rising higher and higher, and at last says she, 'Did it to make trade for your pa's store, I'll warrant, you young booby! but if ever I buy rag nor stick of him again I'll be whipped! You go home and tell him so, and tell him he's got an idjit for a son—there!' And if she didn't box my ears 'fore I could wink, and start to box 'em again, but I run for it.

"Yes, sir! I run for it; and I run right to the chief and resigned out of the comp'ny, too, only he wouldn't let me, not though I told him I'd jined to fight fires and not to be fit by females.

"I'll own I've been a bit narvis about women ever since. I don't mind shooing 'em out or carrying 'em out, specially if they faint and can't fuss; but as to facing 'em when their things are sp'iled —I'd ruther leave that to somebody else.

"Destruction of household furniture is something the female mind ain't constructed to accept peaceable. It jest ain't.

"You always stand by, boys, and resky the women folks when there's danger; that's your duty—but when it's over don't you be ashamed to dodge 'em quick! That ain't duty, maybe, but it's sense."—Youth's Companion.

The Auto Habit.

Some delver has found in the Bible what he believes to be a hint of automobiles. It is contained in the story of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite, concerning the burden of Nineveh. In the account given by this seer of the military array of the Medes and Babylonians against Nineveh occurs this verse: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against the other in the broad way, they shall seem like torches, they shall run like the lightning." If that doesn't describe a street full of motor cars what does? Then again, a variant of the word "jostle," which the original Hebrew will, it is said, bear even better, is "pass swiftly, without particular purpose, to and fro." Isn't that the automobile habit?

ROSE BEDS OF ENGLAND.

Cult of the Garden High in the Favor of Nobility There.

English women, in a garden, know full well their value as a setting, says the Bystander. Indeed, the cult of the garden (with a large staff to do "all the dirty work") is a pose high in favor with the great ladies of England. In the rose time—a time when "every one" is in town—English gardens are, perhaps, at their best. It is roses, roses all the way. "Peu de choses, mais roses,' is the motto of Lady Warwick's dream-lovely rose garden at Easton lodge, and Lady Gerard at Eastwell Park, her sister, Lady Algernon Gordon-Lennex (a clever landscape gardener), at Broughton castle, Lady Downe at Dingley, and Lady Falmouth at Maidstone, all have celebrated and varyingly beautiful rose gardens.

Over in Ireland Lady Ashtown has just been taking numerous prizes at the Galway County show for her roses and begonias. Her beautiful home, Woodlawns, is famous for its lovely gardens, and Lady Ashtown, who resides there almost entirely, is a keen and practical gardener. Lord Ashtown, it will be remembered, is one of the protected landlords. He owns over 20,000 acres in Counties Waterford and Galway, and his house and person are always under police guard.

At Dromoland, Lady Inchiquin's much-loved home, violets flourish as they flourish nowhere but in the sister isle; and at Dereen, Lord Lansdowne's seat in County Kerry, flowers and shrubs bloom in tropical magnificence. Back in England, Lady Helen Vincent at Esher, and Lady Grosvenor at Saighton, have gardens which bespeak thought and affection in their making. At Esher place Lady Helen Vincent has a scented garden, where bloom only flowers of fragrance—roses, heliotrope, sweet peas, mignonette, verbena; a kitchen garden, with sundial and closed in with hedge of yew; and a cottage garden, full of old-world flowers and herbaceous borders. At Saighton Grange Lady Grosvenor has half a dozen gardens in one. There is a lavender garden, just now a bewildering maze of sweetness; a bulb garden, in the spring brilliant blaze of welcome color; a paved garden, in remembrance of the days when Saighton was a monastery, and a saints' garden, set round with box and planted with flowers—veronica, lily and the like—which blossom on the days apportioned to the different saints.

BURN PRINCESS' ESTATE.

Russian Social Leader Is the Victim of Brigands.

Brigands have burned all the buildings on the estate of Princess Dolgarouki, near Tchernigov, Russia, destroyed a stable of fine horses, and carried off all the valuables in the residence. A regiment of dragoons quartered near arrived too late to save the property, but went in pursuit of the bandits. The princess is a social leader in both Russia and England.

His Kick.

A traveler putting up at a small hotel out in California brought the porter up to his room with his angry storming.

"Want your room changed, sir? What is the matter?"

"The room's all right," fumed the guest, searchingly. "It's the flea I object to, that's all."

"Mrs. Hawkins!" shouted the porter, in an uninterested sort of a voice, "the gent in No. 7 is satisfied with his room, but he wants the fleas changed."—Harper's Weekly.

When the Mustache Was Tabooed.

In all the German papers of August, 1838, appeared an ordinance signed by the King of Bavaria forbidding civilians, on any pretext whatever, to wear mustaches and commanding the police authorities to arrest the offenders and shave them by force. Apparently this was not necessary, for, according to a French account of the time, "mustaches disappeared immediately, like leaves from the trees in autumn; everybody made haste to obey the royal order and not one person was arrested.'

New Definition of Memory.

When to Pick Fruit.

Many growers do not know the proper time to pick fruit—that is, the stage of maturity that puts it on the market in good condition. Very often one sees fine large pears and peaches that are rotting when the packages are opened because the fruit has been allowed to get too ripe on the tree before picking. Sometimes when the early market is slack there is a demand for immature fruit for cooking purposes. The first early summer apples may be profitably picked when they get big enough for cooking. This will be when the seeds are still white and before the fruit shows signs of coloring. The market is always looking forward to the earliest apples. Dessert and winter apples should not be picked until well colored. Those that stay on the tree late are better flavored than those picked early. Winter apples will usually keep better if allowed to ripen in the cool weather of the fall. The ease with which some fruit separates from the twig by a nip sidewise gives a good idea of maturity. Apples should not be separated from the twig by a straight pull, but by a twist upward or sidewise. Peaches are picked for market when they show the clear, bright colors. They should not be pinched to test maturity. The experienced picker has a way of rolling the flat of his hand over the ridge of a peach, and the feel means the same to him as grain in the sack does to the miller's hand.—W. N. Hutt.

Good Prices for Truck.

With close observation of your neighbors who are now engaged in the fruit and vegetable industry, you may easily see their checks received for fruit shipments are simply fabulous—like this: Net price peaches, $3.36 per bushel; early apples, $2.50 per bushel; blackberries, $1.50 net per 24-quart case; red raspberries, $3 per 24-pint case; green beans, $2 per bushel. Those prices have a Klondike sound for wealth. But they are true. Now why not you commence to provide yourself with a few acres of each if you have not already, and if you already have the varieties planted try and give them extra cultivation to produce extra quantity and quality.—Correspondence Harrisburg Chronicle.

Bookkeeping on the Farm.

Joseph R. Fulkerson, of Jerseyville, and his brother have a fine record in the practical management of the large Hazel Dell stock and grain farm, where many men are employed. Probably there is no other farm in Illinois where the cost of each field of grain and each bunch of cattle is figured out more exactly. When little or no profit appears in any operation, that line of work is either dropped or improved upon. The kind of work performed by each man is noted down for every day in the season and the exact kind and amount of work in any field is shown by the same account. The kind, amount and cost of food for each bunch of cattle is written down.—Winchester (Ill.) Times.

Plowing by Steam.

David McClary recently took his new steam plow down to the Brevoort farm, a short distance south of the city, and began plowing a patch of 500 acres of ground for Mr. Brevoort. Mr. McClary at first wanted to plow 200 acres of his own land in Illinois, but the manager of the machine refused to take the heavy thing across the bridge, the engine weighing thirteen tons. Mr. McClary, it is said, will get $2 an acre for plowing the Brevoort land, and it is said that the machine will plow twenty-five acres in twelve hours, or fifty acres every day and night. At the present time Mr. McClary has his hands full, as it is said he now has $1,800 worth of plowing ahead of him. —Vincennes (Ind.) Sun.

Where She Stands.

In passing the usefulness of the mule, a local Missouri paper declared that "Missouri sure stands by the mule." And it would be a very safe bet, predicating the chances on Missouri's well-known caution and perspicacity, that in standing by the mule she is careful to stand well up toward its head.—Browning's Magazine.

WOMEN BOOMING SPOKANE.

The city of Spokane in this state is a large place. It is a rich and enterprising county with 87,000 inhabitants and it is growing fast, but not fast enough to meet the wishes of its public spirited men and they have organized a woman's club of ten to boom the town — to travel through the Eastern states with maps and literature descriptive of the advantages Spokane has to offer immigrants. These women visit the small and large cities, call on the principal men and endeavor to impress them with the idea that Washington is just about the best state in the Union and that Spokane, by reason of its waterpower and its geographical position, is the Inland Capital of the West. These ladies are all good talkers and have been selected for the purpose because of their especial ability and their hypnotic fervor and persuasion. They are having wonderful success. In some of the Illinois towns there is but one Washington city known and its name is Spokane. The fall emigration from the states east of the Mississippi will be large, and much of it will be due to the exertions of the Spokane women's club.

The idea is an excellent one. We do not know with whom it originated, but it is good and worthy and the man or woman who is responsible for it is entitled to admiration. Is there not something in the idea that might be locally adopted with advantage to this notable townsite and its manifold resources? If Spokane with its 87,000 population does not deem it in fra dig to boom itself, why should Angeles think it beneath its dignity to follow the bright example and place a committee of its women on the road armed with all the necessary information for intending settlers. It is missionary work of a most beneficial character that these Spokane ladies are engaged in, and the success that is attending their efforts is most reassuring. Some will say, when speaking of Port Angeles, that "good wine needs no bush," that our natural advantages are so great they require no advertising. On the contrary, it is because they are great that the attention of the world needs to be drawn to them. We will venture to say there are thousands of people who have heard of Angeles who do not believe she possesses one-half the advantages that are claimed for her. The advantages are indeed so great as to almost stagger belief, and incredulity can only be removed by a personal visit and examination. To such people a missionary club like the Spokaneites have sent out is a necessity. The doubters are wedded to their idols and need irrefragable evidence to convince them that we have timber, fish, coal and coal oil, iron and copper in inexhaustible quantities; a waterpower that will do the work of 50,000 horses; a climate that Italy might envy, and a harbor where the mercantile fleets of the world may ride in perfect security in all weathers and under the most trying conditions. All that we need is population and capital. We will soon get both if an intelligent effort like that put forth by the people of Spokane is copied by the people of the Angelic city.

THE FRUIT INDUSTRY.

Deputy State Horticultural Commissioner Brown states the number of fruit trees to be set out in Yakima valley this fall will be 1,100,000. Mr. Brown states that he finds a growing tendency towards setting out large orchards instead of the five and ten acre orchards which have been the rule. With the small family orchards of Clallam county producing just as large, just as perfect shaped, just as red, and just as fine fruit in every way as the widely advertised and hence celebrated Yakima apples, these is no reason why extensive commercial orchards should not be planted here.

The absence of early frosts and the mild winters are particularly favorable to the growth of fruit trees of all kinds. Our nurserymen show interested visitors rows upon rows of budded roots that have risen from a height of four inches in the spring, to four or five feet by fall. Trees which they sell, planted in the fall, bear fruit the next year — and the year following the same trees are loaded till the limbs touch the ground. Given half way decent attention and a growth of three feet each will be made by shoots all over the tree in a single year.

Washington's cannery output increased from 40,000 cases in 1906 to 200,000 cases in 1907, another evidence of the rapid development of the fruit industry in this state. In value the output increased from $200,000 to $1,000,000. Apples, pears, prunes, plums, peaches, cherries, raspberries, blackberries, loganberries, rhubarb, string beans, corn on cob, pumkin and tomatoes are included in the estimate. All these can be and are successfully raised in Clallam county. In fact, the size and yield of small fruits cannot be equaled anywhere else. The price of all lines of canned goods is steadily increasing.

All the canneries of the Sound are doing a greater amount of business every year, and yet none of them can secure sufficient fruit to fill their orders. A gentleman here last week, who had learned, thru the Olympic-Leader, of the need of a cannery to save the annual fruit crop of this county, said his company had already refused orders for fifty tons of canned fruit. They were desirous of locating branches in two or three localities. We are not at liberty to give his name, for obvious reasons, but he is favorably considering the proposition. We are told of another gentleman who is expected to be here in a few days to look over the field and it is suggested that a little care given to the orchards now, instead of waiting till later in the season, will make them more presentable and create a better impression.

Whether or not the present effort will result in the establishment of a cannery here next season, it is an undisputed fact that an increase in the number of trees planted this year, showing an intention to develop the fruit industry, will accomplish the desired end. A steady increase in the output of orchards means a steady increase in the material wealth of the county, and will add by just so much, to the peace, plenty and prosperity of its people.

The Illuminating Oil Discovery.

A bottle of illuminating oil from the recently discovered wells in West Clallam has been brought to town. It is clear and in appearance is almost equal to the best refined. It can be burned in a lamp in its present condition and vaporizes only under a severe test. The discovery is important and valuable. The well—or wells, for there are four of them in a relatively small area—are of the class known as flowing. The owners are of opinion that by boring the wells will prove to be gushers. Capital is to be sought for development purposes.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients — Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical experts, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the very best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompained with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE

AN APPEAL FOR THE FARM.

By Gov. Hughes of New York.

GOV. HUGHES.

When you get out where a man has a little elbow room and a chance to develop, he has thoughts of his own. His thinking is not supplied to him every night and every morning, and he is less of a machine and more of a man, so that I do not think that the farmers need to be looked upon, or want to be looked upon, as dependents of the State. They do not come to the State government asking alms. They are self-reliant, they are intelligent.

What we want in connection with agriculture is what we want in connection with every other field of noble effort. We want training, we want intelligence, we want scientific method, we want direction, we want the way shown, and then the man can walk in it. There is no reason why the same care and intention and skill and scientific consideration should not be devoted to agriculture as to industry and the technical trades.

The men who are running away from the farm too frequently make a mistake, and some day—and the day is rapidly approaching—our young men, in larger numbers, will wake up to the fact that they have a pretty good chance on the farm, and that they may be to a greater degree independent and happy in life if they stay where their happy lots were cast in connection with their fathers' farm or another which they may be able to procure.

THE LIBERTY OF SOCIETY WOMEN.

By Dr. Emil Reich.

Are society women free? And, if so, is that liberty conducive to things evil or good? Most society women would, there is little doubt, say that they now infinitely are more free than their ancestors used to be. If that liberty is taken simply from the material side, it cannot be denied. Society women are allowed to go out when and where they like. They have clubs of their own; they invite men to their clubs on their own hook; they go out to lectures, dinners, receptions, or concerts alone; they carry on correspondences of their own; they not infrequently earn their own livelihood. Nearly all the externals of liberty are there. However, liberty is not an external or material thing; it is entirely spiritual.

The admiration and social looking up to that non-society women invariably devote to "gentlemen" is a cause of failure which does not exist in good society. The woman that is at once shocked by any slight remark of general politeness is the woman that—is easily shaken. In society, women born to it are neither easily shocked by animated words nor easily shaken. Fewer liberties and more liberty—is this not a goal worthy of the reformers of society? Fewer clubs and lesser club life. Society women in the present system of their liberty are much envied, even admired, but not sufficiently respected. Less outward liberty would lead to more solid support.

OVERCAPITALIZATION OF RAILROADS.

By Francis Stetson.

So far as relates to the rates of railroads in competition and under State regulation, there is no possibility of harm from overcapitalization. In every other particular indicated by the President any evil from overcapitalization would exist and operate in respect of stock corporations generally, whether organized as railroads or for industrial purposes.

So far as concerns the issue of bonds, promising to pay sums exceeding the original consideration of the bonds, it is to be observed that in the case of corporations, just as in the case of individuals, this is a matter of financial credit.

The corporation or the individual in good credit can borrow at a low rate and without discount; while to induce loans, those in poor credit must make concessions inversely large. Under such conditions excessive bonded indebtedness does not constitute overcapitalization; and if it be an evil, it is an evil expressly permitted by law.

That it is an evil when incurred for any purpose not strictly within the lawful purposes of the corporation, or for an amount impairing the ability of the corporation to carry on its legitimate business, I fully recognize. Reasonable safeguards should be provided against such evil, and should be accepted cheerfuly by corporate managers.

In this direction the provisions of the so-called public-utilities bill, requiring a commission's prior approval of all railroad bonds, as well as of issues of railroad stocks, are eminently proper.

IN OCTOBER.

I dreamed one day an army passed along
With many colored banners streaming free
And many rounds of wild and martial song;
In all it seemed most fair and gay to me.
And yet, I said, they do but go to death,
This bright array. They soon will scattered lie
O'er hills and meadow lands, the merry breath
Of life all fled—who marched so proudly by.

And then it seemed I was but dreaming half;
For low and clear
Beside my ear
Rang autumn's mocking laugh.

I looked, and lo! I knew it otherwise;
I saw the gay sabaoth of the trees
Flaunt reds and golds beneath the October skies,
And heard the stirring anthem of the breeze;
I saw the haze like clouds of azure dust
Afloat in air where many feet have trod;
I saw the iron-weed and mullein thrust
Tall spears mid lines of gleaming golden-rod.

There came a menace of drear winter then;
I felt a smart
Within my heart
And autumn mocked again.
—Bessie Hendricks in the Critic.

A PERSONAL AFFAIR

A small, brown, silky spaniel was running frantically in and out, pausing now and then to raise his sad little eyes to the faces of the unheeding shoppers. Suddenly he gave a wild jump and a yelp of recognition—it was not She coming up the block, but a familiar face—a friend. Scampering forward, the little dog jumped joyously up in front of the approaching man, now at his knee, now under his feet.

But the big man paid no attention until he found farther progress an impossibility, then he gave an impatient kick.

"Get out of here, you—" He glanced down at the small offender. "'Pon my soul, I believe you're Tags," he added, quickly, picking up the curly ball to avoid crushing it. The dog's delight knew no bounds; he licked the man's hands, he reached a dozen times to lick his face, and, foiled in the attempt, cuddled up against the big arm, and was content—rescued!

The big man looked keenly up and down the thoroughfare.

"Your mistress, Tags," he whispered—"where is she?"

Slowly he walked down the long block, looking eagerly from left to right, until he reached Stearns'; there he hesitated, and suddenly turning, hailed a hansom.

"By George!" he muttered, "I won't do it. I'll hold you for ransom, old chap, and a big one at that. We're lucky dogs!"

What a flood of memories, what a sea of visions, did that tiny creature recall, as they drove slowly up-town. But most persistent of all, she stood before him as he had last seen her—white, angry, and determined. The trouble had all come so unexpectedly, like a flash from an azure sky; and just as suddenly had she sailed for foreign shores, leaving him crushed, stunned—with no hope. Now she had returned; here was animated evidence, and a medium of reconciliation. Fate was holding wide an open door, but, how to enter—to pass—to conquer!

Ideas budded, blossomed, and died; and arriving at home and the conclusion that she would undoubtedly advertise her loss, he decided to await her move.

The next morning, as he expected,

YET THERE WAS NONE FOR HIM.

half way down the second column of the paper appeared the following notice:

LOST—Thursday afternoon, in vicinity of Sterns'; spaniel, answering to name of "Tags." Suitable reward, if returned to ———, Riverside Drive.

He smiled grimly, and seating himself at his desk, penned this reply:

FOUND—Thursday afternoon, in vicinity of Sterns'; a spaniel, answering to name of "Tags." Would you consider yourself "suitable?"—L. W. G.

Sunday seemed long in coming, but when it finally arrived, Lawrence Gordon was awake and calling for his morning paper long before his accustomed hour. He glanced eagerly, hurriedly, through the first column, the second—and even the third. Then he began all over again; slower and with closer scrutiny, but only to be disappointed. The messages were multifarious; gay, grave, indifferent ones; sent to as many varied hearts; yet there was none for him. He was perceptibly chagrined, but perhaps he had expected too early a reply.

Another day passed, and he grew impatient—as did Tags. Tuesday morning, and no reply. On Wednesday the following brief but apropos message appeared:

Tags cries pitifully. Must be homesick.—L. W. G.

Gordon felt that she must have seen not only his first but also his second appeal, for well he knew that until she had recovered her pet she would anxiously scan the column for tidings of him. Three times, for luck, he would try; and, if he failed! Bah! there was no such word as fail. With the courage born of despair he wrote his last entreaty:

Tags is lonely. So am I. Can't we come and get you?—L. W. G.

And the next morning the first column was headed:

Tags—come!

COTTON PICKING.

Southern Negro in This Particular Has No Equal.

By the middle of December the cotton picking season in the South is generally brought to a close, but this year, on account of the great scarcity of labor throughout the cotton States, Christmas will find a great quantity of the fibre still on the stalks. The planters are paying from 50 to 60 cents a hundred pounds, and as a good worker picks 400 pounds a day, the income is considerable.

By far the best pickers are negroes. Each picker is supplied with a basket and a bag. The basket is left at the head of the cotton rows, and the bag is suspended from the picker's neck by a strap, and is used to hold the cotton as it is taken from the boll. When the bag is filled it is emptied into the basket, and this routine is continued through the day. When a basket is filled it is dumped into a wagon, and when there is a load ready it is hauled to the gin house, almost every large planter having his own gin.

Almost from the time the pickers enter the field and adjust their sacks around their necks they begin to sing. Few negroes can pick cotton without singing. The negro as a rule works by music, and the picker who doesn't sing will prove himself a mighty poor hand. The singing is music the like of which you cannot hear at any other place, or under any other circumstances—a low, soft hum, delicately intoned, rhythmic, mellow and soothing. There is nearly always a "leader," and the others join in. While from other countries may come laborers to aid in our agricultural developments, none will ever be found who can take the place of the negro as a cotton picker. To him it comes natural, and at the close of a day's bending over the cotton rows, with nimble fingers drawing out the long, fleecy staple, he is as fresh as when he began his work in the early morning. His songs are continued at nightfall when he returns from the fields with well-filled baskets of cotton upon his head. There appears to be no such thing as making him tired, but with the coming darkness he is ready to take part in corn shuckings, dances and socials, and if he gets to bed by 1 o'clock he is in luck. No difficulty is experienced in getting the pickers up early and off to the cotton fields. The picker knows that an early start means much to him, from the fact that the heavy dew on the staple will make it weigh. The picker gains many pounds by getting into the fields by daylight and working like a trooper until the sun has dried off the dew.

When the crop is in, when the pickers have worked right up to Christmas eve, the planters pay them off in good coin of the realm, and then they are ready for the Christmas festivities, and the southern darky gets about as much genuine pleasure out of the holidays as the next person. In the South the Christmas festivities last a full week, and to get any work out of a negro during that period would be impossible.

OUTSIDE THE FENCE.

A Garden Makes Many Friends for the Gardener.

"The violet is a modest flower, ain't it?" The lady kneeling on the grass started and rose, and dividing the freshly gathered bunch of violets in her hand, offered half to the small girl, clinging like a limpet to the fence, whose longing eyes begged for them.

"And I hope teacher will be pleased," she said.

"Why-ee!" marveled the child. "How'd you know I wanted 'em for teacher?"

"Oh, I just guessed," said the lady, laughing.

"But it was easy," she told a friend afterward; "it often is. Teacher's influence on the infant mind and vocabulary is specially in evidence since the day of nature study and school gardens came in; and then, there always have been the poets, and 'speaking pieces' in school. Only the other day a little freckle-nosed boy was fascinated by my long row of crimson tulips. He hung on the gate a long while in fascinated silence, and then:

"'Gee! Them are flowers!' he broke out, adding pensively, 'Spring brings all things beautiful.'

"Spring certainly does, and the violet really is a modest flower; but the trail of teacher was not difficult to follow. Another little chap was interested in the same gay tulips from a different standpoint.

"'All them grew up out'n a teenty seed,' he informed me, importantly, over the fence.

"'Most flowers do,' I agreed, 'but not these. These came out of a bulb.'

"'Nope. They got ter come out'n a seed. Teacher said so,' he insisted. There was one stray tulip out of line, and with a scoop of my trowel I lifted it, bulb and all.

"'Take that to teacher, and she'll explain,' I told him.

"He did, and she did; for next day he sang out as he passed:

"'You was right, but teacher was, too! You kin raise tulips outer seeds, only you don't.'

"The children pass my garden in troops—there are two schools not far away. Keen eyes watch and praise my succession of bloom, and shy little visitors have learned that when they ask for flowers for nature study or the drawing class, I will not begrudge my best; and bunches of my simpler, more abundant blossoms go often, clutched in eager hands, carrying—I hope she knows—a double message of friendly greeting to 'teacher.' A garden is a great maker of friends—even outside the fence."—Youth's Companion.

THEN CAME THE SHARK.

Hard Luck of a Fisherman Who Had Caught Thirty-Three Weakfish.

Weakfish have been plentiful of late in the waters hereabouts and fishermen have had fine sport catching them, but hard luck came the other day to one angler in Gravesend Bay after he had caught thirty-three, says the New York Sun.

He was fishing from a small boat, and as fast as he drew the weakfish in he would string them through the gills on a line which he kept hanging over the side of the boat down in about six feet of water, where the water was cool and the fish would keep well. It was certainly good fishing, but just after he had let the thirty-third weakfish slide down to the bunch and made the line fast inboard and started fishing again he felt the boat settle on that side over which the bunch was hanging.

Something in the water was pulling on the bunch of weakfish down below. The fisherman grabbed the line and began hauling in promptly, but what with the weight of the fish and that strong added pull on the other end the line parted in his hands, and the next moment he got a glimpse of a five-foot shark making off with his bunch of weakfish.

The shark had seized upon one of the lower fishes in the bunch and now, as it began, with the line broken, to move away, weakfish began to appear on the surface in the shark's wake, fishes that worked loose as the shark swam, and slipped up and off the free end of the line. As, with the bunch decreasing and so much less weight in it to haul, the shark made faster progress, the fishes came up farther and farther apart, but still you could trace the shark's course out to sea, with one of the fisherman's weakfish in its teeth, by that irregular line of weakfish slipping off the cord and coming to the surface as it fled.

Playthings of Ancient Children.

The most primitive toy is the doll. It dates back to prehistoric times and is found in every part of the world. This one would naturally expect to find. A child, seeing its mother nursing other younger children, would imitate the example with an improvised doll. Toy weapons, again, are older than history. Many of the other toys at present in use date from the earliest times of which we have any record. In the tombs of the ancient Egyptians, along with painted dolls having movable limbs, have been found marbles, leather covered bells, elastic balls and marionettes moved by strings. Ancient Greek tombs furnish clay dolls, toy horses and wooden carts and ships. In the Louvre there are some Greco-Roman dolls of terra cotta with movable joints fastened by wires. Greek babies had rattles. Greek boys played with whipping tops. So did the boys in ancient Rome.

When people are in trouble about all their friends do for them is to say, "It's too bad!"

Old Favorites

"Rodney's Ride."

In that soft mid-land where the breezes bear
The North and the South on the genial air,
Through the County of Kent on affairs of State
Rode Caesar Rodney, the Delegate.

Burly and big and bold and bluff,
In his three-cornered hat and his coat of snuff,
A foe to King George and the English state
Was Caesar Rodney, the Delegate.

Into Dover Village he rode apace,
And his kinsfolk knew, from his anxious face,
It was matter grave that had brought him there,
To the counties three, upon the Delaware.

"Money and men we must have," he said,
"Or the Congress fails and our cause is dead;
Give us both, and the king shall not work his will—
We are Men since the blood of Bunker Hill!"

Comes a rider swift on a panting bay;
"Hollo, Rodney, ho! you must save the day,
For the Congress halts at a deed so great,
And your vote alone may decide its fate!"
Answered Rodney then: "I will ride with speed;
It is Liberty's stress, it is Freedom's need.
When stands it?" "To-night; not a moment spare,
But ride like the wind from the Delaware."

"Ho, saddle the black! I've but half a day,
And the Congress sits eighty miles away,
But I'll be in time, if God grants me grace,
To shake my fist in King George's face."

He is up; he is off! And the black horse flies
On the northward road ere the "God-speed!" dies.
It is a gallop and spur, as the leagues they clear,
And the clustering milestones move a-rear.

It is two of the clock; and the fleet hoofs fling
The Fieldsboro' dust with a clang and cling.
It is three; and he gallops with slack rein where
The road winds down to the Delaware.

Four; and he spurs into Newcastle town.
From his panting steed he gets him down—
"A fresh one, quick; not a moment wait!"
And off speeds Rodney, the Delegate.

It is five; and the beams of the western sun
Tinge the spires of Wilmington gold and dun;
Six; and the dust of the Chester street
Flies back in a cloud from his courser's feet.

It is seven; the horseboat, broad of beam,
At the Schuylkill ferry crawls over the stream—
And at seven-fifteen by the Rittenhouse clock
He flings his rein to the tavern Jock.

The Congress is met; the debate's begun,
And Liberty lags for the vote of one—
When into the hall, not a moment late,
Walks Caesar Rodney, the Delegate.

Not a moment late, and that half-day's ride
Forwards the world with a mighty stride;
For the Act was passed ere the midnight stroke
O'er the Quaker City its echoes woke.

At Tyranny's feet was the gauntlet flung;
"We are free!" all the bells through the colonies rung.
And the sons of the free may recall with pride
The day of Delegate Rodney's ride.
—Elbrige S. Brooks.

Curious Place Names.

Chicago is an Indian word, meaning wild onion or skunk weed. Chesapeake is also Indian and is variously interpreted as highly salted water, great waters or country on a great river. Chautauqua is also an Indian word and has had several interpretations, as a foggy place, a bag tied in the middle (referring to the shpe of the lake), a place where a child was washed away, where the fish are taken out, place of easy death or, finally, place where one was lost. Des Moines is usually supposed to refer only to the Trappist monks, and it is also connected with an Indian word meaning the road. Niagara is an Indian word, signifying across the strait or at the neck. Shenandoah is Indian and means the spruce stream or a river flowing alongside of high hills. Massachusetts means near the great hills or the hill shaped like an arrowhead or, again, the blue hills. Mississippi means great water or gathering in of all the waters or an almost endless river spread out.—Leslie's Weekly.

Tiger Cat Fireman's Mascot.

Although firemen's mascots and pets are not uncommon, the men at the central station in Manchester, N. H., have one that is unusual. It is a large tiger cat which has so overcome the usual feline aversions as to ride to the fires on the apparatus with apparent enjoyment.

The greatest pity in the world is when two friends who have been useful and agreeable to each other quarrel.

JOLLY JOKER

Dot (meeting Johnny)—I have found you out. Johnny—What am I? Dot—Nobody. Johnny—Goodness gracious, I am discovered!

Pa—Why did you go out in the rain today without an umbrella, John? Johnny—I ate salt mackerel this morning for breakfast, and that keeps me dry.

Johnny—Say, dad, if I ate a chop and you ordered one and ate it, what would your phone number be? Pa—Give it up, son. Johnny—It would be 8 1-2.

Little Edna—What is "leisure," mamma? Mamma—It's the spare time a woman has in which she can do some other kind of work, my dear.—Chicago Daily News.

He (sententiously)—I always speak my mind. She (tartly)—I suppose that is why you have the reputation of being a man of so few words.—Baltimore American.

Mother—Whatever are you doing to poor dolly, child? Child—I'm just going to put her to bed, mummy. I've taken off her hair, but I can't get her teeth out.—Sourire.

Old Lady (improving the occasion)—You know, boys, it's only the body which lies here. Now, what is it goes to Heaven? Small Boy (tentatively)—'Is 'ead, mum.—Pick-Me-Up.

Nell—Yes, she said her husband married her for her beauty. What do you think of that? Belle—Well, I think her husband must feel like a widower now.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Mistress—Bridget, have you cemented the handle on to the water-jug which you dropped yesterday? Bridget—I started to, Mum, but most unfortunately I dropped the cement bottle.—Punch.

"The body of the late Major Jinks was cremated." "What they goin' to do with it?" "His widow has him corked up in a fruit jar. Says it's the last of the family jars."—Atlanta Constitution.

The Wife, during a quarrel—I'm going right home to mother; so there! The Husband—That's right, dear, of two evils always choose the less. Please don't bring your mother here.—Yonkers Statesman.

Pa—You naughty boy, you've been fighting again! Johnny—No, pa, I was only trying to keep a bad boy from hurting a little boy. Pa—That was a noble act, my son; who was the little boy? Johnny—Me.

Department Store Manager—The clerk in the butter department says he's not going to lie about our butter any more. The Boss—What salary does he get? Manager—Eight dollars a week. The Boss—Give him nine.

Sweet Singer—De Hammer says he has a high place in the next show he goes out with. Comedian—Well, I should say it is high. He sits in the flies and tears up paper for the snow-storm scene.—Chicago News.

Dot—I heard your soldier brother wrote you a birthday letter. Was there any war news in it? Johnny—I don't know. You see it was printed on the envelope "Return in five days." So I kept it that long and then sent it back.

Waiter Girl (in restaurant)—We've got frogs' legs, chicken livers, calves' brains and—Johnny (turning to his pa)—I say, dad, they must be queer people who live in this place. Don't you think they ought to call in a doctor?

"Is Mrs. Wise at home?" inquired Mrs. Chatters, standing in the shadow of the doorway. "I don't know, ma'am," replied the servant. "I can't tell till I git a better look at ye. If ye've a wart on the side o' yer nose, ma'am, she ain't."—Philadelphia Press.

"Thar, my son, you see what larnin' done fer yer daddy, don't you?" "What, maw?" "Why, jest as soon as the gov'ernment knowed that he could do figgers in his head they p'inted him postmaster at $60 a year, an' purty soon he'll be sellin' stamps what goes on letters!"—Atlanta Constitution.

"But," asked the proprietor of the Bongtong apartments, "do you think this man is the best one you can get for janitor?" "The best ever!" replied the manager. "He has been at various times an iceman and a street-car conductor. He's as sassy and independent as he can be."—Philadelphia Press.

"What I would like," said the eager young actress, "is a part with a death scene in it. I never fail to make a big hit when I die." "I don't doubt it," replied the heartless manager, "and I may say that you would make the biggest hit of your life if you would go away somewhere and die right now."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Johnny (sitting up in his bed at 12:30 p. m.)—Dad, I'm so thirsty. Pa—Lie quietly and go to sleep. Johnny (after a pause)—But, dad, I must have a drink of water. I'm so thirsty. Pa—If you don't go to sleep this minute I'll have to thrash you. A long silence, then Johnny replied—All right, dad. If you're getting up to thrash me, you might bring me a glass of water at the same time.

A man isn't necessarily generous because he gives himself away.

New York has for years been one of the few large States in which persons could marry without first securing a license. The Legislature has lately passed a law, to go into effect on Jan. 1, making it a misdemeanor for any authorized person to solemnize a marriage unless the parties to it have first obtained a license from the proper officers. As the license makes a secret marriage difficult, if not impossible, it is in the interest of public order and decency, and is therefore commendable.

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way.

The children cannot possibly have good health unless the bowels are in proper condition. Correct any constipation by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pills. All vegetable, sugar-coated.

EFFECTS OF OPIUM.

The Drug Will Stupefy Some People and Excite Others.

Comparatively few persons know what opium really is. When they turn to a dictionary and glean therefrom that it is the "inspissated juice of the somniferous poppy" they are still likely to be in the dark.

The process of obtaining it is to score the pods at fixed intervals during a certain period. The milky liquid which comes out soon turn a darker hue and thickens and it then scraped off and molded into cakes, with poppy leaves for an outside covering.

It was ascertained from evidence afforded to the Indian opium commission of 1896 that in some states of India not a few of the natives took as much as forty to eighty grains of opium daily and that consumption of forty grains was common.

Contrary to the impression that death results from a sudden cessation of the habit, it has been proved that when confirmed opium eaters have been deprived temporarily of their favorite drug their health has not usually suffered.

The article has a varying effect on different races and constitutions, exciting some and stupefying others. It reduces the average Chinaman to a state of torpor if he takes it plentifully and not infrequently causes the Malay to run amuck. It has been recorded that the Japanese regularly took it before going to fight so as to work themselves up to a pitch of excitement.

Most of the drug that is imported into England is much stronger than what is ordinarily consumed in India and imported into China. The stipulation of the British pharmacopoeia is that all opium used medicinally shall yield at least 9½ per cent of anhydrous morphine.

The morphia percentage in much of the opium prepared in India for consumption there and exportation to China is less than half this specific strength. This is a detail which novelists who are addicted to poisoning their characters should note.

It is rather striking that opium does not seem to be largely resorted to in India as a means of suicide. The evidence of the largest insurance company was to the effect that after twenty years' experience there the company had decided that it was not necessary to impose any extra premium on the lives of moderate opium users.—Chambers' Journal.

CAT AND "CHEESE."

If ever, in connection with cheese, one's thoughts fly to a cat instead of a mouse, it must surely be to that famous, grinning cat from the county of cheeses, the Cheshire cat. But the cat associated with a cheese in the annals of a certain family, whose ancestors were pioneers, was no such amiable creature. Neither was it an ordinary cat, nor was the cheese an ordinary cheese.

Little Lucy, eight years old, was sent to a neighbor's two miles distant on an errand. The road, although scarcely more than a track, ran through cleared land, except for a few rods of wood, and was supposed to be safe. But in the woods the child became aware that something, skulking and rustling in the underbrush, was following her. She ran, and emerged safely into the open, but to her horror a wildcat, which must have been extraordinarily hungry, burst boldly out of the brush, and came bounding down the road in pursuit.

The farmhouse was in sight, and she screamed for help; but it was plain she must be overtaken before help could come.

Just as the creature was about to spring upon her, the little girl, with a desperate flash of courage, stopped, faced it, and with arms extended horizontally, began whirling wildly around and round. She kept whirling till she was breathless and dizzy, then dipped quickly to the ground, and with her distended skirts "made a cheese."

These amazing proceedings so disconcerted the wildcat that although it remained glaring and growling near by, it did not dare to pounce. By the time it gathered courage to crouch again for a spring, Lucy gained greath for another whirl; and again her dizzily mysterious gyrations averted the attack. Three times she whirled and "made a cheese;" then a lad from the house, who had heard her cry, ran up with his gun and shot the cat.

The skin he gave to Lucy, whom he afterward married, and the tippet made from it was duly handed down with the story to another Lucy. But furs are perishable, and Lucy's Lucy can only pass on the story to Lucy the fourth.—Youth's Companion.

Guests Asked to Identify Pictures of Friends Taken in Childhood.

London society has a new craze, called the "photo tea," which has caught on because it is productive of so much genuine amusement, says the New York American. Each guest who receives an invitation is requested to bring a photograph of himself or herself taken before the age of five. All the photographs are duly numbered, and a list of names is kept by the hostess. After being collected and shuffled they are distributed among the players.

The fun consists in endeavoring to trace the originals of portraits. So many minutes are permitted for observation, and then the number of the photograph and the guess at its identity are written on a sheet of note paper. The pictures are then passed on from one to another, and the same program is gone through with the new observer. The result of the second observation is also recorded.

This goes on until every photograph has passed through the hands of each guest. The lists are then inscribed with the players' names and are collected. The player who is successful in fixing the identity in most cases receives the first prize, and the second and third prizes go to the "nexts" in the number of accurate guesses.

The sight of a perplexed player staring fixedly at each guest until he can make up his mind who was the plump boy in the velvet knickerbockers or the chubby-cheeked girl in pinafores and plaits is funny. One need not be much of a prophet to prognosticate the speedy appearance of the game in the United States.

WIT OF THE YOUNGSTERS.

Teacher—Now, Harold, can you tell me what wisdom is? Small Harold—Yes, ma'am. It's information of the brain.

Mamma—Why did you eat the whole of that pie in the pantry, Willie? Little Willie—'Cause you told me once never to do things by halves.

Sunday School Teacher—Freddy, do you remember the precept about sparing the rod? Small Freddy—Yes, ma'am. Spare the rod and lose the fish.

"Willie," said his mother, "I wish you would run across the street and see how old Mrs. Brown is this morning." A few minutes later Willie returned and reported: "Mrs. Brown says it's none of your business how old she is."

Little Margie had been to the dentist's to have a tooth extracted and this is how she explained the proceedings: "The man grabbed hold with a pair of big tongs and pulled his best, and just before it killed me the tooth came out."

Elmer wanted to go in swimming. "But," protested the father, "I'm afraid it will not be good for you, Elmer. Only this morning you complained of a pain in your stomach." "That's all right, papa," the boy replied, "I know how to swim on my back."

"Now, Harry," said a lady to a small guest after dinner, "wouldn't you like to take some of the plum pudding home to your little sister?" "No, thank you," replied Harry, who had improved his opportunity, "I've got about all I can carry now."

"Mamma," said 5-year-old Elmer, who was tired of staying in the house, "come out in the back yard and play a game of football with me." "I can't play, dear," replied the mother. "Huh!" exclaimed the little fellow, scornfully. "That's what comes of having a woman for a mother."

Washington Monument.

The towering Washington monument, solid as it is, cannot resist the heat of the sun poured on its southern side on a midsummer's day without a slight bending of the gigantic shaft, which is rendered perceptible by means of a copper wire 174 feet long hanging in the center of the structure and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water.

A Universal Inclination.

"I see that they are starting out again to discover the north pole," said Mrs. Corntossel.

"Yes," answered the farmer.

"I wonder how it'll seem when the pole is actually reached."

"Oh, I s'pose it'll be the same as it is anywheres else. They'll put in about two-thirds of their time complaining about the climate."—Washington Star.

A Kind Word.

"So you don't share the general indignation toward the railways?"

"No," answered Farmer Corntossel; "I have always felt that a locomotive was entitled to a great deal of credit for sticking to the track instead of snorting up and down the country roads like an automobile."—Washington Star.

The Only Hope.

"Of course," said Popley, "she's not a pretty baby now. Our only hope is that as she gets older she'll grow handsomer."

"Yes. I guess there's nothing for you to do but believe in 'age before beauty.'"—Philadelphia Press.

The curse of too many laws is continually impressing itself on thinking men. Judge Parker, who ran for the presidency three years ago, says, after long experience on the bench, that the need of the country is not so much for new laws as for the enforcement of the old ones. Not long ago the speaker of the New York legislature, in a Chatauqua address, prophesied a reaction from the demand which cries for new laws whenever an old evil obtrudes itself upon notice.

BAD BLOOD

THE SOURCE OF ALL DISEASE

Every part of the body is dependent on the blood for nourishment and strength. When this life stream is flowing through the system in a state of purity and richness we are assured of perfect and uninterrupted health; because pure blood is nature's safe-guard against disease. When, however, the body is fed on weak, impure or polluted blood, the system is deprived of its strength, disease germs collect, and the trouble is manifested in various ways. Pustular eruptions, pimples, rashes and the different skin affections show that the blood is in a feverish and diseased condition as a result of too much acid or the presence of some irritating humor. Sores and Ulcers are the result of morbid, unhealthy matter in the blood, and Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood disorders that will continue to grow worse as long as the poison remains. These impurities and poisons find their way into the blood in various ways. Often a sluggish, inactive condition of the system, and torpid state of the avenues of bodily waste, leaves the refuse and waste matters to sour and form uric and other acids, which are taken up by the blood and distributed throughout the circulation. Coming in contact with contagious diseases is another cause for the poisoning of the blood; we also breathe the germs and microbes of Malaria into our lungs, and when these get into the blood in sufficient quantity it becomes a carrier of disease instead of health. Some are so unfortunate as to inherit bad blood, perhaps the dregs of some old constitutional disease of ancestors is handed down to them and they are constantly annoyed and troubled with it. Bad blood is the source of all disease, and until this vital fluid is cleansed and purified the body is sure to suffer in some way. For blood troubles of any character S. S. S. is the best remedy ever discovered. It goes down into the circulation and removes any and all poisons, supplies the healthful properties it needs, and completely and permanently cures blood diseases of every kind. The action of S. S. S. is so thorough that hereditary taints are removed and weak, diseased blood made strong and healthy so that disease cannot remain. It cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., and does not leave the slightest trace of the trouble for future outbreaks. The whole volume of blood is renewed and cleansed after a course of S. S. S. It is also nature's greatest tonic, made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, and is absolutely harmless to any part of the system. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores. Book on the blood and any medical advice free to all who write.

RESIGNATION NOT ACCEPTED

Hennessy Lost in the Intricacies of Municipal Government as Conducted by the Present Council.

Good avenin', Hennessy, it is a weighty problem thot wr-rinkles y'r brow this avenin'.

Yer right f'r wanst, Dooley, I was thryin' to datermin' by what manes City Marshal Hopkins cud be relaved fr'm his onpleasint pradicimint.

How's thot, Hennessy?

Ye didn't know Gene had purchased Brophy's grocery sthore? Well, he has, an' its wan iv th' best jints in th' town. It kapes four men busy wr-rapin'up goods an' deliverin thim. An' manewhile he's city marshal an has to walk th' streets o' nights.

Thin why don't he rasign?

He did, at wanst.

Thin wasn't his rasignation accepted?

I'm shurprised at th' depth af y'r ignr'ance, Dooley. If the council had accepted his rasignation, who wud have had autority to make arrests? If th' horde iv thaves an' gamblers thot infest th' city were lift unguarded whose life wud be safe at night? Instid of wan arrist f'r dhrunkenness in th' year, th' strates wud be a pandamonium iv disthurbance. Think iv thot, Dooley?

But Hennessy, why wasn't a new marshal appinted?

How cud th' mayor appint a new marshal when Gene was holdin' th' office? Th' business men, up wan side an' down th' other, had signed a patition f'r th' appintment of Ken Church, an' they tell me fure councilmen had agrade t' indorse th' appintment. But what cud the mayor do whin there was no vacancy? An' how cud there be a vacancy whin th' council rafused to accipt th' rasignation? An' how cud they accipt th' rasignation whin, just as Councilman Hallahan said, Mr. Hopkins must sarve until his successor is appinted and qualified, f'r otherwise no wan has autority to make arrists. It's too much f'r me, Dooley.

Thin why don't y' ask the city attorney?

He has throubles iv his own, thryin t' git a rise in salary, so he can afford to accipt t' office.

What did he announce his candidacy f'r, if th' pay is too low?

Betther have wan on me, an' take yerself off, Dooley. Wan problem at a time is enough f'r me.

100 TONS OF FRUIT

Bought on the Peninsula by Puyallup Cannery. Prices Higher than East of the Mountains.

The Weber-Bussell Canning Co., of Puyallup, one of the firms whose attention has been brought to the need of a cannery in this county by articles published in the Olympic-Leader, and who may establish a branch here, have been buying fruit all over the Sound this fall. A purchase of forty tons of apples and pears was made in Olympia recently; also sixty tons of apples at Shelton.

Mr. Bell, their buyer, says the Olympia News, states that the fruit growers of this locality are favored by conditions and receive from three to seven dollars a ton more for their fruit than those east of the mountains. The excessive freight rates make this possible so that altho we have a cannery at North Yakima, we are trying to get enough fruit to supply our local trade west of the mountains and are paying good prices.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease.

While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

What your Tailor?
TRADE MARK REGISTERED 1906

THE MAKING of clothes to measure involves many intricate operations, each of these operations must be performed by an expert, otherwise the suit is irretrievably ruined and not fit to wear.

Our Chicago Clothes Makers, Ed. V. Price & Co., select their operatives with care and every man in their employ represents the best in the professions represented. This means more money expended, for high grade tailors command the best wages, but it also means better made, better fitting clothes for you at less price than the small tailor can or will give you.

They have facilities for absolutely fitting each suit over the lines and curves of the body—suits that carry distinctiveness and style and are their own insurance on durability.
