AND CLALLAM COUNTY LEADS KING IN BOTH

Timber and Coal of King Worth More than Gross Assessment of Such Property in Entire State.

Assessor Parish, of King county, in an address before the Seattle Commercial Club Tuesday evening, said that from the reports now in they are "convinced the timber and coal lands are still grossly under-assessed. I will go further and say that if these interests were assessed at a fair valuation, the total amount would be considerably more than the gross assessment on such property for the entire state."

Mr. Parish submitted plats and figures showing that the assessed value of timber for 1907, after a partial cruise, was $7,064,680, and on coal $3,447,900, an increase in assessed valuations on timber alone of $3,000,000. The total valuation on both coal and timber in 1906 was $3,451,890. On an expense of $38,403 for the partial timber cruise, the timber assessment brings in increased tax collections of $90,000, or more than double, in one year, the cost of the cruise.

Taking up individual increases ranging into the thousands, Mr. Parish said that "there was at first a hue and cry about over-assessment, but finally the large tax-payers were satisfied that the valuation was not unjust."

J. G. BANKS ANSWERS LAST ROLL CALL

Funeral Services Held Wednesday at the Methodist Church, Rev. Fulmer Officiating.

Another man who went forth at the call of his country in the time of her need has answered the last roll call, and is now a member of the Grand Army that has passed to the other shore, J. G. Banks is his name, and he died Tuesday, January 21, in the hospital at the Soldier's Home at Marshalltown, Iowa.

Comrade Banks left Port Angeles for Iowa early last summer, going to Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, to make his temporary home with a daughter. He remained there for some time. His health continuing to fail he went to the home at Marshalltown where he passed into dreamless sleep.

J. G. Banks was born in Pennsylvania, June 22, 1833; was married to Miss Elizabeth Smith, March 22, 1852, at Richmond, Ohio, who preceded him to the other world about a year ago; moved to Iowa in 1855, and to Port Angeles in 1889. At the breaking out of the war of the rebellion he enlisted in Co. B, 25th Iowa Inf. in 1862, and was discharged at St. Louis, Mo., by reason of sickness.

Ten children were born to this union, eight of whom are now living, viz.: J. B. Banks, Orleans, Neb.; Mrs. E. H. Rapalyla, Mt. Pleasant, Ia.; Mrs. G. E. Winters, and Mrs. T. A. Pinyerd, Port Angeles; T. E. Banks, Cumberland, B.C.; Mrs. J. A. Cox, Belleplaine, Kas.; Dr. J. E. Banks, North Yakima, Wash.; Mrs. B. R. Raymond, Seattle.

The body was brought to Angeles for burial. Funeral services were held at the M.E. church Wednesday, conducted by Rev. Fulmer, and the mortal part was laid at rest in Ocean View beside that of the wife and mother.

Thus, in the mellow sunset of an honored life he passed into the valley of the shadow and fell asleep at the sound of the taps of Death. He was a member of Pacific Post and his comrades took charge of the services at the grave.

After a most remarkable season of mild winter weather even for this favored section, with tender plants still in bloom in the open, Old Winter put in an appearance last Tuesday night and mother earth was covered with a slight mantle of snow. Since then the mercury has stood at the freezing point or a trifle below and overcoats are in demand.

Pleasant and Most Effective

T. J. Chambers, Ed. Vindicator, Liberty, Texas, writes Dec. 25, 1902: "With pleasure and unsolicited by you, I bear testimony to the curative power of Ballard's Horehound Syrup. I have used it in my family and can cheerfully affirm it is the most effective and best remedy for coughs and colds I have ever used."

HOW THE SMALL FRUIT CANNERY PAYS

$15,000—and the Profits—Added to Income of People of Mount Vernon in One Year and Industry is Only Started.

That there is money in the business of canning fruits and vegetables, money for the grower and money for the canner, was fully demonstrated in Skagit county the past season. That there would be money in the business here in Clallam is equally certain, and the day is not far distant when our surplus fruit crop will find a ready market.

The Mount Vernon Argus announces the closing of the first season for the local fruit cannery in that city. It states that the plant was completed and machinery set in motion the first of July, says the P.-I. Since then it has furnished employment for about thirty people. The pack for the season amounts to 10,270 cases. To get that output required the buying of 330 tons of fruit and vegetables. The farmers received $7,361.65 for the raw materials, the workmen had a pay roll amounting to $6,600, the manufacturers of cans and other vessels were paid $6,875, and the home lumber company received checks for $1,500 in payment for boxes and cases.

The plant is worth $15,000. The orchardists found a ready market for seven varieties of fruits, and the gardeners sold their beans and rhubarb. Prices to the growers ranged from $12 a ton for prunes to $80 a ton for cherries and raspberries. Green beans were sold at $40 a ton, and the supply was not equal to the demand. The cannery has assisted in creating more confidence in the country, increasing the value of lands and making Skagit valley more desirable for homes.

Two cars of cherries were shipped to Chicago, three cars of apples to Denver, two cars of fruits to Butte, and other smaller shipments went to Kansas City, Omaha and the cities of Puget sound.

The only difficulty was the inability to care for all orders. At home the capacity of the cannery was limited, and many tons of fruits could not be handled. On the markets the number of cases was not great enough to supply those who placed orders.

Here is another field of opportunities.

ADVERTISING DOES IT.

An eastern merchant recently hit on a plan to head off his mail order competitors in Chicago. He sent a printed poster to every person in the community, asking the recipient of every mail order book to paste the slip on the first page of the catalogue. The slip reads: "Any article in this catalogue same price at our store. You see the goods before you buy and don't have to send money away and wait." The plan is said to have worked well in this case and every country merchant can do likewise. Mail order houses are great advertisers. They manage to reach every buyer with catalogues or newspaper advertisements. They cannot be blamed for getting trade when the local merchant makes no effort to let the public know that he can successfully compete with the mail order houses in price which he certainly can when quality is taken into consideration.

If local merchants want business and to retain what they now have they must advertise.

COUNTY MUST PAY FRUIT INSPECTOR.

A plan to continue horticultural inspection work in this state was devised at a recent conference of State Horticultural Commissioner F. A. Huntly and Assistant Attorney General A. J. Falknor. At the conference it was decided the commissioner will appoint a state deputy in every fruit county who may be paid directly by the county.

By mistake the legislative appropriation for deputy commissioners was for but one year instead of two, and there is now no money to pay them. A plan was suggested some days ago to have the counties pay the money into the state treasury, but the attorney-general says this cannot be done, as the money cannot be paid out of the state treasury without an appropriation.—Townsend Leader.

SALOONS MUST OBEY SUNDAY CLOSING LAW

County Attorney Notifies Council that a Change Must Be Made in Regulation of City's Saloons.

County Attorney J. E. Cochran appeared before the council Tuesday evening, addressing the members on the subject of saloon regulation. He directed attention to the questionable practices in vogue, stating that unless the city enforced Sunday closing he would have to act in the matter. Question referred to committee of the whole.

The street committee, to whom had been referred the matter of improvement of Tumwater street, recommended that the bid of A. H. Thompson and B. G. Wilcox for piling and capping, in the sum of $700, be accepted as the lowest bid received; and that all bids for the planking of said trestle be rejected for the reason that it is considered this work can be more satisfactorily done by the city. Ordered that contract be drawn and that street committee be given full power in the matter of planking and completing trestle.

PIONEER COUPLE CALLED TO LAST REST

On the evening of the 19th of January, Wm. Ward, an aged and honored resident of Dungeness, ceased this mortal life and abruptly closed an eventful career. The immediate cause of death was attributed to heart failure. Five days later, on the 23d of January, his life companion, was also called. Mrs. Ward had not been in the best of health for some time, and it is no doubt true that the sudden death of her honored husband had much to do towards hastening her dissolution.

Mr. Ward came to Clallam county in 1858, settling on the homestead where he died, in 1865 Mrs. Ward, then Miss Rollins, came to the county in 1863. They were married in 1878. Thus, one by one, the early pioneers are passing away.

HAYS SAYS "ADVERTISING DOES THE BUSINESS

The closing out sale at the Times Clothing Mart has attracted large crowds of anxious purchasers each day since last Wednesday morning when the sale commenced. With a large extra force of experienced salesmen, it has been utterly impossible at times to wait on the people. We understand that the sales were nearly $400 for the first three hours after the doors were thrown open to the people on Wednesday morning. And yet people will tell you that it does not pay to advertise. The judicious advertiser is more often the successful merchant than he who is too short-sighted to advertise his wares. Mr. Fred Hayes, who has charge of the closing out sale, understands his business, and says that the sale will continue until everything is closed out. Mr. Muskett says that he wants his friends to all come in and take advantage of this sale; his loss will be their gain.

"SMILEY" DROWNED IN ELWHA.

Old "Smiley," one of the pioneer Indian characters of this section, was drowned while crossing the Elwha in a canoe Monday. Smiley, in company with his son's wife, Mrs. Elwha Jimmie, and his grandson, were crossing the river at Jimmie's place when the canoe got tangled in some brush and was capsized. Smiley was thrown out one side and Mrs. Jimmie grabbed her son and jumped the other way, and succeeded in reaching shore. She called for help, but before assistance came Smiley was compelled to let go his hold on some brush, and was washed out into the straits. Searching parties that have been out have been unable to find any trace of the body.

LUMBER BUSINESS

WASHINGTON STATE LAST YEAR SHIPPED MORE THAN A BILLION FEET.

Business Decreased Slightly From Unprecedented High Level of 1906, But Exceeded All Other Years—California Sends Out 774,000,000 Feet and Oregon 350,000,000 Feet.

Seattle, Jan. 25.—The cargo lumber business of Washington, Oregon and British Columbia for 1907, as shown by figures just compiled by the Pacific Lumber Trade Journal, was, with the exception of that of 1906, the greatest and most satisfactory in the history of the lumber industry in the Northwest. While the actual figures show a decrease of 57,453,444 feet in the shipments from 1906, the total for the year of 1,510,290,122 feet represents an increase of more than 400,000,000 feet for the normal year immediately preceding the San Francisco disaster, which created an abnormal demand and swelled the totals for 1906. The mill reports show that the increase of 1907 over 1905 is made up largely by mills that catered to the rail trade prior to the time Eastern markets were handicapped by car shortages and rate troubles, and that 4 per cent of the rail mills located on tidewater undertook to enter the cargo business.

The heaviest losses for the year were in the California trade, while on the other hand there were considerable gains in the foreign trade. The Australian trade increased 5,212,975 feet. There was a gain in Chile, Peru and Mexico of more than 45,000,000 feet. Shipments to England also increased 10,000,000 feet. These gains, however, were partially offset by losses in China, Japan, South Africa, Europe and in some sections of South America. The total gain for the foreign trade was 17,509,800 feet.

Washington Fares Best.

It is shown that the mills of Washington suffered the least by the falling off of trade as compared with the previous year, notwithstanding the fact that they suffered a domestic trade loss of 49,120,934 feet. The foreign business of the Washington mills, however, shows a gain of 41,368,820 feet, which leaves the net loss for all business but 7,752,114 feet. Oregon mills show a net domestic loss of 25,044,442 feet, and a foreign loss of 11,875,366 feet, making a total decrease of 36,919,808 feet from the 1906 figures. British Columbia shipped 67,193,208 feet, as compared with 79,974,730 feet in 1906, a decrease of 12,781,444 feet.

While lumber shows a decrease, both lath and shingles show an increase of very satisfactory proportions, especially as regards shingles, in which there was a water movement equivalent to 1,524 carloads. The increase in lath amounted to but 5,105,491 pieces, while the increase in shingles amounted to 183,532,882 pieces, the increase for 1907 alone being 62,191,032 in excess of the total shingle shipments by water for the year of 1906.

Oregon manufactured less than 100,000,000 shingles. No shipments by water are reported.

Washington shipments make up 1,092,849,022 feet of the 1,510,290,122 feet comprising the combined shipments for the year. California shipments amounted to 774,141,145 feet, a decrease of 37,077,235 feet. The miscellaneous domestic trade amounted to 55,987,341 feet, as compared with 68,031,040 feet, a decrease of 12,043,699 feet, but the foreign business increased from 221,351,716 feet to 262,720,536 feet, a gain of 41,368,820 feet.

NEW TELEPHONE LINE SEATTLE TO PORTLAND

Portland, Ore., Jan. 25.—S. V. Davidor, H. J. Meagher, D. J. Eaton and B. C. Clements have filed articles of incorporation of the Washington Home Telephone & Telegraph Company, giving as its plan the building of telephone and telegraph lines in Oregon "and other states."

The capital stock is fixed at $500,000, Mr. Davidor stated that the intention is to rush a line from Portland to Seattle and have it in operation within six months. The exchange at Vancouver, Wash., will be in operation February 1. From Vancouver the line will reach to Centralia, Chehalis, Tacoma and Seattle.

Experts of the Home Telegraph Company have been employed to work on the line and will rapidly place it in shape for operation.

Asks for Fair Wage Clause.

New Westminster, B. C., Jan. 29.—Following a report circulated to the effect that non-union carpenters were being employed by the city on the building of sheds at less than scale wages, the secretary of the local carpenters' union has made representations to the civic officials with a view to having a fair wage clause inserted in all city contracts.

Mitchell Not a Candidate.

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—President Mitchell announced to the convention of the United Mine Workers of America yesterday that he did not desire to hold any office in the organization after his retirement as president on April 1. Mr. Mitchell, in an address, declared himself to be opposed to sympathetic strikes.

NEVADA LEGISLATURE PASSES POLICE MEASURE

Carson, Nev., Jan. 28.—The Nevada legislature police bill giving the state a measure that provides for a system of policing in time of riots which it is believed will quell all trouble in the Goldfield section at the present time and place the state in position to handle any future contingency that may arise was passed in the house yesterday.

Several members who were devout union men have made a fight in opposition to the bill, while the conservative members have made a forcible issue and won the law. Speaker Skaggs, who has been taking most active part for the union men, left his chair and voted. Skaggs denounced the measure as pernicious, unconstitutional and czar-like, and predicted that the men who voted for it were digging their political graves. All amendments were lost, and the bill went through as it came from the senate. Assemblyman Williams stated from the floor that he was a member of the Western Federation of Miners, but that he favored the bill as a measure that does not injure any man.

The bill was then put to a vote, with thirty-one in the affirmative and seven in the negative. A resolution will be sent to the president, asking him to keep the troops in Goldfield until such time as the state can organize her forces under the bill.

Another bill will be introduced, endeavoring to unseat several officials of the Goldfield district who are said to have violated their trust. It is believed with the present showing that this can be done.

An arbitration bill is framed and will be presented probably today. While several measures regarding state improvement are to go to the law makers, it is believed that the session will close its work Saturday night.

NEW ORDER MAKES TACOMA RESERVE CITY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—The comptroller of the currency has designated Tacoma as a reserve city in accordance with a request of bankers of that city.

The comptroller stated that hereafter the national banks of Tacoma can hold reserve of other national banks, particularly those of the state of Washington. Heretofore Tacoma banks were required to keep a reserve of only 15 per cent of their deposits. They will hereafter be required to keep 25 per cent in reserve. They will be permitted hereafter to keep 12 1-2 per cent in central reserve cities—New York, Chicago or St. Louis.

Tacoma's national banks will be expected to hereafter show larger bank balances on their returns.

FREMONT AND SHAWMUT OFFERED TO GOVERNMENT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—The Boston Steamship Company has offered to sell the steamships Fremont and Shawmut, of its Pacific line, for the isthmian transport service, but no action will be taken at present.

The Shawmut and the Tremont are among the largest passenger and freight steamers plying the Pacific. For several years they have been running regularly between Puget sound, Japan, China and Manila, carrying general freight and passengers. Numerous rumors have been afloat in reference to their sale during the past year, but they are still operating to the Orient.

Tawney Talks of Deficit.

Washington, Jan. 27.—During the discussion of the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, which occupied the attention of the house to the exclusion of all other business, a surprise was sprung when Chairman Tawney of the appropriations committee warned the members that the country was confronted with the certainty of a $100,000,000 deficit unless the estimates for the next fiscal year should be cut down materially.

Fulton Argues for Washington Bill.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—Senator Fulton of Oregon submitted an argument before the senate committee on interstate commerce on the bill advocated by the Washington lumbermen to give the interstate commerce commission power to suspend the operation of rates complained of in advance of their being put into effect. The committee took no action.

Erdman Act Invalid.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Organized labor yesterday lost a hard-fought battle when the United States supreme court decided that that portion of the Erdman act prohibiting railroads engaged in interstate commerce from discriminating against employes who belong to labor organizations is unconstitutional.

Washington Banks Become National.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The treasury department has approved the application of the German-American State Bank of Quincy to become the First National Bank of Quincy, capital $25,000; also the application of the Bank Washtucna into the First National Bank of that place, capital $50,000.

Pass Law Unconstitutional.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 28.—The Missouri supreme court yesterday decided the law requiring that free return transportation be given to shippers with each carload of live stock by the railroads of this state is unconstitutional.

$700,000 FOR A-Y-P.

SENATE COMMITTEE UNANIMOUSLY RECOMMENDS A GOOD SIZED APPROPRIATION.

Alaska, Government, Fisheries, Hawaiian, Philippines, Irrigation and Biological Exhibits and Buildings Are Included—Indorsement Covers All Asked For in New Bill.

Washington, Jan. 25.—By a unanimous vote the senate committee on industrial expositions decided to recommend to the senate an appropriation of $700,000 to encourage the holding of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition.

The vote was secured without the least opposition, and the question of Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, as to whether or not the amount agreed upon was sufficient and satisfactory to those interested seemed to be about the only thing the committee wanted to know.

Senator Piles, Senator Ankeny, former Governor McGraw and Henry E. Reed, who appeared before the committee, brought with them an amended copy of the bill, and the $700,000 appropriation recommended was all the new bill asked for.

The appropriation is divided as follows:

Government exhibits, including fisheries, $250,000; Alaska exhibit, $100,000; Hawaiian and Philippine exhibits, $25,000 each; for government buildings, including an irrigation and biological building, fisheries building, Alaska, Hawaiia and Philippines building, $300,000.

The bill does not designate the amount to be spent on each building. That was left to the treasury department. The new bill also provides that the government shall coin all medals on a coining press at the exposition, instead of at the government offices.

The clause at first inserted providing for issuance of $25,000 worth of souvenir gold dollars was struck out, on the belief that the exposition company would not spare the amount of money necessary to secure the issue.

The bill provides for adequate quarters for a biographic display, which will be a novelty to exposition visitors.

The report to be made to the senate will be substantially as submitted last session, the only difference being that all statistics regarding Alaska and island possessions will be brought up to date.

The house bill will have its first earing on Monday, when the following will apepar in its behalf: Secretary of War Taft, Governor Hoggatt, former Governor McGraw, Henry E. Reed, Delegate Kalanianaole of Hawaii, Delegate Cale of Alaska, Land Commissioner Ballinger, and the Washington delegation.

MANY STATE CORPORATIONS HAVE NEGLECTED LICENSES

Olympia, Jan. 27.—The names of several thousand corporations in this state will be stricken from the records of the secretary of state within a few weeks unless payment of the annual license tax for the last two years is forthcoming.

There are about 27,000 corporations on the books of the secretary of state, including church, fraternal and similar associations, which pay no annual tax, as well as those having amended articles.

The exempt corporations may number several thousand, but as only 7,100 corporations have paid for the current year, the number of delinquent ones will run into the thousands.

The last legislature gave the secretary of state the right to strike from his rolls the names of corporations that are delinquent for two years. Clerks in the office are now checking up, and about March 1 a new index containing nly the names of live corporations will be in use.

Once stricken from the books of the secretary of state, a corporation has no longer a legal right to its name and has no standing in court. In fact, a corporation cannot now sue unless its state license for the current year is paid.

A new corporation may take the name of any corporation stricken from the secretary of state's books.

Liquor Dealers Delinquent.

Olympia, Jan. 25.—Following a check-up made by the state tax commission with the figures of the internal revenue department, State Treasurer Mills found a list of about 1,000 selling liquor who have not complied with the state law and secured state licenses.

Generally speaking, wherever a federal license is required a state license must also be secured. The treasurer's office is sending notices to the delinquents and where immediate replies are not forthwith coming the names will be turned over to the prosecuting attorneys and prosecutions will follow.

Enlarging Prison Stockade.

Walla Walla, Jan. 29.—Twenty convicts started to work at the penitentiary have been making improvements that when completed will represent an expenditure of $100,000, and before the end of the week more than 100 men will be working under direction of Warden C. S. Reid. The stockade walls will be enlarged to twice their present size, and a new jute mill, twice the capacity of the one now in use, will be constructed. When the work is completed all the buildings at the prison will be within the walls.

FISHING OPINION GIVEN.

Attorney General Furnishes Commissioner Information on Mooted Question.

Olympia, Jan. 29.—The attorney general in a long opinion to State Fish Commissioner John L. Riseland holds as follows:

That the state of Washington has the right to grant an exclusive private right of fishery with a pound net in the Columbia river, that an individual who has such right may hold the same against all claimants; that it is a property right, subject to execution for debt; that no fedal officer of the war department has the right to destroy and pound net without invoking the aid of the courts; that federal authorities have no control over the fisheries of the state except tne paramount right of navigation in federal waters; that drift net fishermen on the Columbia are not engaged in interstate commerce, and therefore removal of pound nets cannot be ordered as being an interference with interstate commerce, and, finally, that the rights of a pound net fisherman who has complied with the laws of Washington relative to licenses and location has the exclusive right to fish upon his location as against the holder of a license issued by the proper authorities of the state of Oregon.

RAILROAD COMMISSION WORK IS COMMENDED

Olympia, Jan. 29.—As proof that the railroad commission cannot become a live issue in state politics in Eastern Washington in the coming campaign, the present railway commissioners point with pride to a resolution adopted by the Washington Wheat Growers' convention in Spokane a few days ago and just received by the commission.

The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, we realize that the railroad commission has done much effective, honest, painstaking work, a great amount of which will redound to the benefit of the farmers of the State of Washington, and recognizing in said commission through its acts, that it is doing a great work for the State of Washington at large, and for the farmers in particular.

"Be it resolved, that we in convention assembled, do hereby heartily commend said commission for its work done, and express our confidence in the result of its future efforts."

OIL TRUST IN DANGER OF ANOTHER BIG FINE

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Judge Bethea, in the United States circuit court, set the trial of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, on the charge of accepting concessions from the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad on shipments of oil from Whiting, Ind., to Evansville, Ind., for April 6. The case was originally set for trial before Judge K. M. Landis, who declined to hear it, and it was transferred to the calendar of Judge Bethea. It is a larger case than that involving the Chicago & Alton Railroad, which was tried before Judge Landis, and in which a fine of more than $29,000,000 was imposed.

The Eastern Illinois case includes 2,214 counts, and under them a fine of $42,480,000 is possible.

SAID PRIMARY LAW MAY AFFECT WOMEN CANDIDATES

Olympia, Jan. 29.—The attorney-general has been asked to pass on the question as to whether the primary election law bars a woman from running for the office of county superintendent. Under previous election laws a woman had that right, but it has been claimed that a section of the primary law deprives her of it.

This section is the one relating to declaration of candidacy, which requires the candidate to take oath that he is a qualified voter. It has been argued that as a woman is not a qualified voter she could not sign a legal declaration of candidacy.

The attorney-general has not yet passed upon the question. The request for an opinion comes from W. E. Crowe, principal of the Kalama schools.

Bossburg Wants Agent.

Olympia, Jan. 29.—The town of Bossburg has complained to the railway commission because the Spokane Falls & Northern Railway Company does not employ a ticket agent at that point. Bossburg, which is about sixty miles northwest of Spokane, has not had an agent since the operator-agent walked out during a telegraphers' strike several years ago.

Railway Appeals Rebate Cases.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The supreme court of the United States has granted a petition of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the Chicago & Alton Railway Companies for writs of certiorari in the government cases against them on charges of granting rebates. The action of the court will bring the cases to this court for review.

Violated Sunday Law.

Tacoma, Jan. 29.—After being out all evening, the jury in the case of the state against the manager of the Tacoma, Savoy, Star and Grand theaters, tried here for a violation of the Sunday law, brought in a verdict of guilty and they were fined $30 each. The case will be appealed.

Reward for John Mitchell.

Indianapolis, Jan. 29.—The convention of the United Mine Workers of America unanimously voted President Mitchell six months' pay, with all expenses, including medical attendance.

STREET REMORSEFUL

PURGED BY FIRE FROM WITHOUT AND WITHIN, SAYS WALTER WELLMAN.

Promises to Be Good, at Least for a Time—Catalogue of Wrongdoings Which Made Nation Scourge New York With Fury—Money Drained to Gambling Den.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Wiring from New York to the Record-Herald, Walter Wellman says in part:

Purification by fire, shrinkage by elimination of dross, regeneration in remorse—this is a fair characterization of the new, the revolutionized, the minimized Wall street.

The fire has come partly from without, in the form of public opinion, in the moral uplift which the whole country has felt under the leadership of President Roosevelt. It has come from within, in the form of discovery of cancers and tumors, which must be cut out if the patient is to live. How much of the credit for the new and better order of things is due to one influence, how much to the other, I am unable to say.

Adversity Brings Repentance.

Probably Wall street would never have realized how bad it was and how much in need of a surgeon if the country had not first made the discovery. Probably also, Wall street would have paid little heed to the country's condemnatory warning, but for the discovery that New York was losing ground, losing confidence, losing influence, losing power, losing money, through its own wrong doing. Vice is never repentant in prosperity.

Certain it is that last autumn's crisis precipitated and effected the revolution. When New York began to look into itself, it was appalled at what it found. As soon as introspection began, remorse and penitence and good resolutions sprang into life.

Morgan Masters the Storm.

It was a lucky thing for New York, for the whole country, that there was a John Pierpont Morgan here the day the storm came. What he did and how he did it all the world knows in part. The full story has never been written. In short, to use the language of one who was an actor in the drama, Mr. Morgan showed himself to be one of the few really great men this country has produced. There was not another man in the country who could have men the crisis as he met it. He took a crowd of panic-stricken, selfish, moral-coward financiers by the throat, shook them as a terrier shakes a rat, banged their heads together and made them be decent by the sheer force of his will and his commanding personality.

When a man like Morgan, with his insight, his knowledge, his habit of facing the truth, looks over the recent history of New York financiering, it is not surprising he feels a great disgust at it.

Long Catalogue of Crime.

The era of promotion, wind and water stocks, victimizing of an innocent investing public.

The insurance scandals, which have driven some men to death, others into exile, still more into oblivion.

The traction scandals, which have pulled down from his pedestal and declassed the once powerful Thomas F. Ryan.

The trust company scandals, trust companies doing all the dirty work of the town, managed by incompetents or sharks.

The railroad scandals, like Alton, which have put even the great Harriman in a class by himself, and that unenviable.

The banking scandals, plungers and gamblers using other people's money, known to all the leaders, but suffered to go on till the storm came, when they should have been eliminated long before.

Scandals which have led a public prosecuting official to declare within a fortnight that there are a score of bank directors in this town he could put in jail if he wished.

The cotton scandal, which has disgusted the South, with its unjust speculative classifications.

Even Rockefeller Repents.

The railway and Standard Oil rebate scandal, upon which President Roosevelt and Judge Landis have put a quietus and brought even John D. Rockefeller to the stool of repentance.

The greatest scandal of all, the drain-bag of money from all over the United States to carry on the great gambling game known as the Stock Exchange.

The scourged, purged, shrunken Wall street is not only whipped by public opinion and by adversity, but it shows signs of being a better Wall street, at least for a time.

Riseland Gets Golden Eagle.

North Yakima, Jan. 25.—A live golden eagle, recently captured near here, has been given as a present to State Fish Commissioner John L. Riseland, who will exhibit it at the state capitol.

American Breeders Meet.

Washington, Jan. 29.—A large number of delegates assembled here yesterday in attendance upon the fourth annual convention of the American Breeders' Association.

RAILROAD RATES DECREASED; PROFITS SHOW BIG INCREASE

Olympia, Jan. 25.—That freight and passenger rates have been reduced in the last decade, while business and profits have been increased enormously on the three transcontinental lines having main lines and branches in this state, is shown by tabulated statistics prepared by the railroad commission from data furnished by the interstate commerce commission.

From a deficit of $2,117,078 in 1896 the operation of the Northern Pacific has gone to the other side of the ledger until in 1906 the profits aggregated $19,936,979.

In the same period the gross earnings of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company increased to three times the gross earnings in 1896, while the percentage of operating expenses to gross earnings tumbled in the case of the O. R. & N. 22 per cent; Northern Pacific, 10 per cent, and Great Northern, 2 per cent.

In the same decade the average passenger rate per mile was reduced from 3.004 to 2.166 cents on the O. R. & N.; from 2.592 cents on the Great Northern to 2.33 cents, and from 2,721 to 2.093 cents on the Northern Pacific.

Freight rates per ton per mile were reduced from 1.68 cents to 1.13 cents on the O. R. & N.; from 1.019 cents to .778 of a cent on the Great Northern, and from 1.135 cents to .828 of a cent on the Northern Pacific.

Passenger earnings constitute from 23 to 30 per cent of the gross earnings of the three railroads; freight from 68 to 75 per cent, and other earnings from 1.2 per cent to 2 per cent.

Mail earnings run from 1.5 per cent of the gross earnings to 2.12 per cent and express earnings from 1.2 per cent to 1.94 per cent.

PLAN TRADE SCHOOLS FOR YOUTH OF LAND

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Before an audience of 500 representatives of manufacturing, commercial and educational interests of the middle west, four men last night presented the first comprehensive program of a new industrial education for the youngster who works with his hands.

The occasion was the opening session of the first convention of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, held at a dinner at the Auditorium hotel. The four men were Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, by letter; Charles W. Eliot, president of Harvard University; James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Manufacturers' Association, and Henry L. Pritchett, president of the Carnegie Foundation.

"My interest in this movement," wrote President Roosevelt, "arises more than all else out of the desire to see the American boy have his best opportunity for development."

Direct, practical suggestions for the establishment of a system of trade schools as a part of the educational equipment was the underlying note of the addresses.

Briefly summarized, the program outlined by the various speakers appeared as follows:

Introduction of trade school training in elementary schools throughout the country.

Establishment of a combination of school and shop instruction to occupy the time between the ages of 4 and 17.

Advancing the compulsory education age to 17 or 18 years.

Establishment of a system by which the elementary school teachers shall "sort children accordin~ to their inclinations."

Abolishment of the idea of "absolute democracy" in the public schools.

Formation of a special educational commission to organize a trade school system.

Creation of a national commissioner of industrial education.

MAMMOTH FRUIT RANCH IS PLANNED AT WAPATO

North Yakima, Jan. 25.—One of the largest fruit ranches in the state, if not the largest, will be that of the Weber-Bussell Cannery Company, near Wapato. The company there owns 720 acres, which will be planted to fruit as soon as the work can be carried through. Sixty acres will be planted to berries and 20,000 fruit trees will be set out. An additional ten acres will be devoted to apricot and peach nursery stock. Eighty acres adjoining the town of Wapato will be planted by the company to pumpkins and squashes.

Preparing to Take Census.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Director North, of the census bureau, has asked the house committee on census for an appropriation of 14,000,000 to defray the cost of taking the census of the United States for 1910. He said that 3,300 additional clerks were needed in the census department, some of them to serve for one year, and that 60,000 enumerators will be required.

Coast Hardware Dealers to Unite.

Portland, Ore., Jan. 25.—The hardware dealers of the Pacific coast, who have been in session in this city for several days, decided today not to affiliate with the national organization but to form a Pacific coast association, including the hardware men of Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho, Montana and Utah.

South Dakota in Commission.

Mare Island Navy Yard, Jan. 28.—The cruiser South Dakota, built at the Union Iron Works, went into commission yesterday.

TO BREAK MONOPOLY

ATTORNEY GENERAL BONAPARTE TO START SUIT UNDER THE SHERMAN LAW.

Stock Control Held to Be Illegal—Creates Monopoly of Transcontinental Traffic West of Missouri—Clark Was Forced to Sell—Harriman, Schiff and Others to Be Defendants.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Attorney General Bonaparte has directed that a bill in equity be filed to set aside the control by the Union Pacific Railway Company and its subsidiary corporations of the Southern Pacific and the San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake Railroads; also to have declared illegal the ownership by the Union Pacific or the Oregon Short Line of stock in the Santa Fe, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, all of said lines being competitors of the Union Pacific.

The attorney general issued an official statement to this effect, which, atfer referring to the extended investigations by the interstate commerce commission into the relations existing among the various lines of road engaged in transcontinental traffic, says:

"From the evidence so adduced and from independent investigation the department has arrived at the conclusion that the stockholding of the Union Pacific and its subsidiary companies in the corporations mentioned above is in direct violation of the Sherman act.

Violates Sherman Act.

"The department regards the suit as of first importance, as it is sought by means thereof to break up a substantial monopoly of the transportation business of the country between the Missouri river on the east and the entire Pacific coast south of Portland on the west."

Aside from the railway companies above named, the other defendants in the suit are the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company of New York, which is the depository of all the stock of the San Pedro road under a contract by which it is required to give proxies to such persons as may be named by Mr. Harriman and Mr. Clark for a period of years. There are also individual defendants who are alleged to have conceived and carried out the conspiracy complained of, towit: E. H. Harriman, Jacob H. Schiff, Otto H. Kahn, James Stillman, Henry C. Frick, Henry H. Rogers and William A. Clark.

While naming the individual defendants the statement makes no mention of any intention personally in any criminal proceedings. The statement continues:

Aimed at Monopoly in West.

"It apepars by the testimony in the possession of the department that a combination was formed about the beginning of the year 1901 by E. H. Harriman of New York, the president of the Union Pacific, and certain of his associates, for the purpose of obtaining a monopoly of all transcontinental transportation business. The first move was the acquisition of sufficient stock of the Southern Pacific Company to insure its control. That company owned a line of railroad extending from New Orleans and points in Texas on tidewater through California to Portland, Ore.; also a line from Ogden, Utah, to San Francisc·. The Southern Pacific had been for years one of the principal competitors of the Union Pacific. As the result of such control by the stock owners, the management of the two companies had been amalgamated and since 1902 a majority of the board of directors of the Southern Pacific have been members of the board of directors of the Union Pacific. Competition between the two companies had been substantially eliminated.

Clark's Road Absorbed.

"The San Pedro, Los Angeles & Salt Lake road was projected as an independent line by W. A. Clark and his associates, to run from San Pedro, on tidewater in California, through Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, having connection at that point with the Union Pacific and with the Gould system. After the work of construction was in progress the parties in control of the Union Pacific, by means of harassing litigation designed to prevent mpany's quisition of necessary right of success- by threats of paralleling the ick and consolidated, so as to render t n Grays unprofitable, and by other me , and a duced Clark and his associates planted don the scheme of an independ nd to join with the Oregon Sh taking over certain track owne id. trolled by that company in S The su- Utah and Eastern Nevada an ecisions the Oregon Short Line an equ Frank- interest in the San Pedro, Los he two & Salt Lake road with that idity of Clark and his associates. Heyburn "As to the Santa Fe, which the re- peting line with both the U no boun- cific and Southern Pacific, it e. An- that Mr. Harriman and his associates acquired sufficient interest in the Santa Fe so that two members of the Union Pacific board, towit, Messrs. Frick and Rogers, became and still are directors of the Santa Fe, and the Union Pacific as a corporation purchased and still holds a large block of Santa Fe stock. As the result of the close union between these two lines, competition has to a large extent been killed.

"The Short Line is a holder of large amounts of stock of the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway Companies. In pursuance of the plans of Mr. Harriman and his associates for acquiring control of transcontinental traffic, the Union Pacific in 1901 secured a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, which was later turned over to the Northern Securities Company. When it was held by the supreme court of the United States that it was illegal for the latter corporation to hold the stock of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, a distribution was made among its shareholders, as a result of which the Oregon Short Line received from the Northern Securities Company stocks of both the Great Northern and Northern Pacific. The latter companies are joint owners of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company, which is an active competitor of the Union Pacific through a large territory, and the Northern Pacific and Great Northern are likewise competitors of the Union Pacific."

The attorney general has engaged as special assistants for the purpose of this litigation Frank B. Kellogg and Cordenio A. Severance of St. Paul, who acted as counsel for the interstate commerce commission in the case above referred to.

PRESIDENT LISTENS TO RAILROAD COMPLAINTS

Washington, Jan. 28.—The operating vice presidents of many of the large railroads of the country were received by President Roosevelt yesterday and presented a request that in executing what is known as the committee amendment of the railroad rate law one case be brought against the roads by the government, this case to be finally disposed of by the supreme court of the United States. This, if agreed to by the government, would mean that the railroads owning coal producing properties would not sell them by May 1 next, as required by the law, but could operate them as heretofore until the disposal of the test case. The law in question is regarded by the roads as unconstitutional in that it requires the disposal of property at what would be necessarily a sacrifice. The law is also questioned on other grounds.

The president referred the railroad men to the interstate commerce commission, where the question would be finally discussed and a report made to the president as to the legal possibility of carrying out the suggestion made.

Those who participated in the conference besides the president were: C. R. Gray, of the St. Louis & San Francisco, who acted as chairman of the conference on the part of the railroads; I. Grawn, Illinois Central; E. G. Buckland, New York, New Haven & Hartford; H. U. Mudge, Rock Island; D. Willards, of the Burlington; W. A. Garrett, Seaboard Air Line; C. E. Schaff, New York Central; W. A. Gardner, Chicago & Northwestern; C. H. Potter, Baltimore & Ohio.

They also presented to the president another request that an amendment be recommended to congress to the act "to promote the safety of employes and travelers upon railroads by limiting the hours of service of employes thereon." The act referred to will become effective March 4 next. It limits the hours of duty of telegraph operators and such other railway employes as may be engaged in transmitting train orders. Extension of the time when the law should go into effect was asked.

SUNDAY BRYAN'S DAY FOR NOT DISCUSSING POLITICS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—William J. Bryan did not, according to his announcement, discuss the subject of politics with Democratic party leaders yesterday. Mr. Bryan saw a number of prominent Democrats during the day, but he said that they were social callers, and that he did not talk presidential politics with anybody. Mr. Bryan declined also to discuss politics with newspaper men, replying to all inquiries for his views that it is his invariable rule to eschew politics on Sunday.

BIG OYSTER SEED ORDER.

Hoquiam, Jan. 28.—C. T. Hall and other prominent men of this city have ordered two carloads of Eastern oyster seed to be delivered this spring other of Senator Heyburn's bills, granting leave of absence to irrigation land holders where completion of irrigation projects have been delayed until completion of same, also passed the senate.

Turn Loose Pheasants.

Waterville, Jan. 27.—Fifty-one Chinese or Mongolian pheasants have been received here, which will be turned loose in the spring.

No sooner has some previously unused metal been found applicable in some branch of industry than many other unexpected uses are discovered for it. This is just now strikingly true of tantalum, originally called into requisition to furnish an improved form of filament for electric lamps. One of the most interesting scientific discoveries connected with the Simplon Tunnel is the existence in the rocks through which the tunnel was bored of a surprisingly large amount of radium. The greatest percentage was found more than two and a half miles from the Italian entrance, where every gram of rock containing about one-four-thousand-millionth of a gram of radium. The presence of such a quantity of radium is thought by some persons to furnish an explanation of the extraordinary degree of heat encountered in the tunnel.

The astronomer, P. Stroobant, explained to the French Academy of Sciences recently the utility of long-pose astronomical photographs in furnishing data for calculating the orbits of comets. Such photographs record the traces of faint comets when they are too far from the sun to be seen with telescopes. Thus they greatly extend the distance over which the path of the comet can be marked out, and this is of extreme importance in calculating with accuracy the elements of its orbit. When a new comet has once become visible, the method pursued by Stroobant is to search for its earlier traces on the photographic negatives of the observatories.

WHERE THE TOYS COME FROM.

An Industry Which Germany Regards as One of Her Greatest.

Any one looking at the store windows would know when Christmas and the holiday season were approaching. That which attracts the most attention probably in all the displays is the wonderful assortment of gifts in the shape of toys.

A retired dealer observes that America is getting to be more and more a toy market each year, and that the industry is gaining very rapidly. This is undoubtedly true. Indeed, public approval of the manufacture of toys was foreseen over 200 years ago when the first patented toy was invented abroad.

It is known that in New England, and especially in Massachusetts, the manufacture of educational and mechanical toys has increased considerably of late years, but the bulk of the toys that amuse the children so much come from Germany and Switzerland.

Germany still counts the manufacture of toys as one of her greatest industries. She sends at least three-fourths of the toys she manufactures to other lands, the United States purchasing the most, and Great Britain ranking second. Out of a toy product valued at over $22,000,000 the United States purchases nearly $6,000,000 worth.

In the Saxon Ore mountains wooden, in the Thuringian mountains leather, and in Nuremberg metal toys are produced, while from several other sections there is a contribution of other types.

Germany has forged to the front as a producer of toys because thousands of families are engaged in the making of them at home. The little town of Sonneberg produces 45 per cent of all the toys that come to America. A population of 15,000 in this town and nearby hamlets devotes most of the year to the making of toys, principally by hand labor, although there are some factories which have achieved a high reputation for their products.

The wages paid all workers in Germany are extremely low. A whole family constructing toy dolls may not receive over $3 a week for their labor. In fact, the percentage of women workers in all callings there has rapidly increased of late years, owing to the enormous number of men required in the army. It is estimated there are more than 7,500,000 German women who earn their own living, and this is an increase of more than 1,000,000 in the last dozen years. The toymakers get a mere pittance for their work, and all the working women in the empire labor for very small pay. Wages in the factories are slightly higher than in the home industries.

During the first half of the last century Young America's toy supply came from across the water. Germany even then supplied the larger part and Japan also a share. About 1850, however, several toy shops started in a small way in the United States, and Yankee ingenuity has since added this country to the toymakers of the world. America then being a forest country began the production of wooden toys of grades which could be turned out by machinery. In the manufacture of these wooden toys the United States had an advantage, as Europe had but little wood and worked mostly by hand, while America had an abundance of wood and her inventors were always perfecting machines to do the work.

The principal advantage of the American wooden toy manufacturers was in the wonderful woodworking machinery, certain patented forms of which even the Germans have found necessary to buy in order to keep abreast of American rivals. Mechanical toys have also flourished in the United States. The field, however, is wide, and should be covered better by Americans.—Boston Globe.

HE WAS SO IMPERTINENT.

How a Long-Absent Brother Annoyed His Sisted by Flirting.

"He winked at me and annoyed me."

Mrs. Samuel Billings, wife of the owner of the Sexton Hotel, showed her irritation plainly when she imparted this information to her husband a day or two ago, says the Kansas City Star. The offender to whom she referred had registered at the hotel as "M. I. Wilson, Billings, Mont."

It was during breakfast that his attentions began. He sat at table opposite Mrs. Billings and his actions left no doubt of his desire to flirt.

But when Mrs. Billings told her husband of the incident Mr. Billings was inclined to doubt whether Wilson had intended to be rude. Besides, Wilson was a guest.

An hour later Mrs. Billings met Wilson in a hallway. This time he was more obtrusive. Not only did he look at her cunningly, but he actually smiled, a broad, undaunted, offensive smile. Mrs. Billings' room was near. She entered it quickly and slammed the door hard, believing this might indicate to Wilson how unwelcome were his advances.

But Wilson was persistent, also insistent. The following day he telephoned Mrs. Billings' room and told her "a friend" wished to see her in the office immediately.

"Umph!" exclaimed Mrs. Billings when she answered the call and confronted Wilson.

But Wilson only smiled.

"Say," he said, "just a moment, ma'am. Aren't you the sister of M. J. Draper of Billings, Mont.?"

Mrs. Billings hesitated. The name was that of a brother she hadn't seen in nineteen years. Wilson saw his advantage.

"Well, he told me to look you up when I got here," he hastened to say.

Mrs. Billings' resentment began to cool. "Oh," she said.

Then Wilson apologized for having been impertinent, adding: "But I guess I had a right to smile at you if I wanted to."

The ire of Mrs. Billings began to rise again. "Why?" she asked.

"Because," replied Wilson, "because I'm Draper—I'm your brother, dear."

MAKING A BALLOON.

The Way It Is Patched, Varnished and Powdered.

A balloon consists of patches of cloth about a yard square sewed securely together. This is not because of any difficulty in making the fabric of a globular shape, for that could easily be done if the pieces were shaped like the skin on the section of an apple.

The reason is that no absolutely reliable fabric has yet been invented, and there is always the possibility of the balloon bursting. Should this happen to one of these patches, the escape of gas will not be dangerously rapid, as it would be if larger sections were used.

When the balloon is made it is carefully varnished, three coats being given, and each being allowed to dry thoroughly before the next is applied. If one coat is left moist the fabric will be attacked by a species of dry rot, which will make it as fragile as the paper this is printed on. In the early days of ballooning many fatal accidents were due to this defect, but now the utmost care is exercised.

When a balloon is packed up for a journey, powdered chalk is sprinkled between the folds, as otherwise they would stick together and tear.—Pearson's Weekly.

Clever.

Mrs. Petter—Did you see that? Dixon seized that rocking chair and was into it before his wife had a chance to reach it. And on his wedding trip, too.

Mr. Petter—That's just it. There's where Dixon is smart. Nobody will suspect that he is on his wedding tour, don't you see? And besides, he gets the chair.—Boston Transcript.

The Head of the Family.

Mrs. Hoyle—Mr. Boyle is looking for a horse that a woman can drive.

Mrs. Doyle—That's a fad of hers, getting things she can drive. Her husband is that kind of a man.—New York Press.

When you give a man a "dig," remember that he will probably "get even." Men harbor grudges.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN CLALLAM COUNTY.

Subscription Price $1 per year.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 31, 1908

ADDED $90,000 TO REVENUES WHILE CLALLAM SLEPT.

The senseless rot in last week's Tribune-Times is hardly worth an answer. The Olympic-Leader used Mr. Parish's name to illustrate a point simply because that gentleman's name was just then in the lime-light of publicity.

Mr. Smith knew, or if he did not know, any schoolboy could have told him, that Assessor Parish could make a partial cruise of the timber of King county only under instructions of the Board of Commissioners of that county; therefore the credit of the cruise should belong to the commissioners instead of to the official who acted under instructions. If that official failed or refused to comply with instructions, this same s. b. should know that the matter rested with the Board to see that their mandate was complied with and secure cruisers who would follow their instructions.

The commissioners of King county decided early in the year 1907, at a regular session of the Board, that their timber should be cruised and instructed Assessor Parish and his deputies to that effect. The matter was given wide publicity in the Seattle dailies, and neither Mr. Smith nor Mr. Lauridsen failed to note the fact at the time. The only question as to the advisability of the cruise was, "Will it pay?" "Will a cruise cost more than the benefits to be derived therefrom?" These points were fully settled. The result is upwards of $90,000 increase in the revenues from timber alone. In Clallam county the Board quibbled over the matter, failed to have a cruise, and the taxpayers of the county have forever lost the benefits that surely would have resulted had the Board acted in the premises as at least two of its members had promised when they were asking for the votes of the dear people to place them in office. When "the matter of a re-assessment in 1907" was before the county Board of Equalization of this county, there is no evidence that either Mr. Lauridsen or Mr. Erickson raised their voices in favor of a raise.

This year the assessor of Clallam county "will do his sworn duty, and return all assessments at the fixed rate of sixty per cent. of the actual value of all county property," provided the Board has made a fair and just cruise that the assessor may have knowledge "of the actual value" of the timber of the county for that purpose. Otherwise not. The matter rests alone with the Board of County Commissioners, consisting of three members only.

The members of the primary Sunday school class of St. Andrews church were happily entertained by their teacher, Mrs. McGillivray, at her pleasant home Saturday afternoon. Mrs. McGillivray had spared no effort in making this one of those happy occasions of childhood so long to be remembered. After playing all kinds of games, blowing soap bubbles, and having a jolly frolic with Rev. Rogers, the little ones were all seated at the dining table. It was a thing of beauty to the children with its large cakes beautifully decorated with lighted candles, and little cakes with tiny dolls peeping up out of the center, and last but not least, ice cream and bon bons. Mrs. McGillivray is doing a good work in the Sunday school, and is a most excellent teacher. The little tots of her class are in love with her and count the days until Sunday comes again.

This is a good month to prune up your orchards and get them in shape for spraying next month. If you don't take care of your trees you cannot expect to raise salable fruit. I can do the pruning for you as cheap as you could do it yourself if your time is worth anything and it will be done dead right when done as I fully understand the care of trees in every detail. If you want to do the work yourself and dont know just how to go at it, I will gladly show or tell you all I know about it free of charge.

If you have any work of that kind you wish done, leave your orders with the Port Angeles Grocery, or at my residence cor. 10th and Lincoln.

BUT IT WAS SCARY FOR AWHILE.

MINERS ENTOMBED FOR WEEKS.

Three Men Buried a Thousand Feet Underground in Nevada.

One morning early in December a sudden crash of timbers, a muffled clatter of rock and cloud of dust told the engineer of the Alpha mine, near Ely, Nev., that the five men he had just sent down in the cage were buried. He gave the alarm and a thousand men, eager to be of service, gathered about the shaft. Supt. Gallagher carefully picked the men he wanted, notified others that he might call upon them later and at once began efforts to communicate with the entombed men, hoping some might have escaped death.

Before nightfall he learned that two Greeks were caught in the cave-in and buried alive, but that the three Americans, Bradley, Brown and McDonald, were in no immediate danger. A six-inch pipe runs from the mouth of the shaft to the bottom and by removing the cap from its base the imprisoned men managed to talk with Gallagher. They told him they had a little food and water enough for two or three days.

With rubber devices Gallagher passed food and liquids down the pipe and was soon able to supply the men. He started a drift toward them and at first it seemed probable that he would reach them in a week. Before that time the unforeseen happened and the rescuers were compelled to make new plans. It was then announced that ten days would be sufficient to get to the miners, but fresh accidents beyond the pale of prevention delayed the workers. Now Gallagher declines to make predictions and simply says that he will continue his effort as long as he has strength to direct it. The men can be saved, he declares, and he will save them.

The entombed miners spend their long days far more cheerfully than might be expected in such circumstances. To safeguard them in case the rescue party is delayed Supt. Gallagher has supplied them with enough provisions to last three weeks. They receive cooked food, eggs, milk, and tobacco by means of a six-inch pipe running down the shaft. They have connected the mine telephone with an electric cable, and are able to talk daily with their families and friends. They are well supplied with news, and have shown much interest in the Goldfield crisis. They have plenty of light and room to move about, so that if they can endure the long delay they can wait for rescue with confidence and comparative comfort.

The rescue party itself has dangers to face. A cave-in below the temporary platform of timbers upon which it is working might precipitate it hundreds of feet. Each man works with a rope about his waist, so that if all suddenly find themselves without any footing they can be hauled to safety.

Neglect Making of Alcohol.

The report of the commissioner of internal revenue shows that since the passage of the free denatured alcohol bill only ten mills have been set up for turning out this product, notwithstanding the fact that the Treasury Department has sent out pamphlets instructing the farmers how to manufacture the spirits. While the distilleries are permitted to use any material whatever in producing this spirit, the product so far has been mainly from corn. It is said that in Germany there are about 70,000 farm distilleries producing industrial alcohol, which is sold to consumers for about 27 cents a gallon, while in this country the average price in barrel lots is 36 cents a gallon.

TO LIMIT IMMIGRATION.

Japanese and American Officials Outline Plan at Tokio.

There is reason to believe that the entire question of emigration of the Japanese to America has been satisfactorily settled, at least for the present, after a series of conferences between United States Ambassador O'Brien and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hayashi in Tokio.

It is understood that at their last meeting, the representatives of the Japanese government outlined a plan by which it is agreed to limit emigration to students and commercial men having means of support, and entirely to prevent Japanese laborers from going to America. This arrangement will entail the closest supervision on the part of the Japanese authorities. As the agreement is verbal, Ambassador O'Brien accepted it provisionally, but maintained that any violation of its terms would seriously embarrass a friendly government. It is said that Foreign Minister Hayashi will exercise absolute control.

Surgery for Insanity.

Dr. N. M. Owensby of Baltimore has created something of a stir in medical circles by asserting that dementia precox, or precocious insanity, had been cured in recent cases by the use of the knife to relieve the thyroid gland of an excess of certain chemicals in the blood or the secretions. Out of five cases so treated, all but one are said to have recovered, whereas the disease has generally been regarded as incurable. Dr. Spitzka of the Jefferson Medical College, however, says that the theory on which Owensby operated has not been proved.

WOMEN AND FASHION

Woman's Enemy.

"It is not the work that tires you at all; it is the way you do it," said a wise counselor to a discouraged and broken-down school teacher.

The word fits the case of many a woman who is not a school teacher. The farmer's wife who does the whole week's work in her imagination after she goes to bed Sunday night; the bookkeeper who in her dreams adds columns of figures to bring out an obstinate balance; the school girl who grows hot and cold in anticipation of an examination; the dressmaker who never forgets her apprehension lest her customer shall not be pleased—all these and a score of other kinds of women need to learn the lesson of the value of the mind at ease.

A conscientious, worrying wife of a Maine farmer hurried to the hen house one icy day with a pan of food. She slipped and fell—and a broken hip stopped the quick footstep and dulled the keen vision for "things which must be done." For three months the patient lay in bed, alone many hours of each day, thinking over her life and habits and responsibilities—her successes and her failure. When she could hobble to a wheeled chair, she was a different creature from the anxious, nervous woman who had been forced to submit to imprisonment.

A perspective of the months and years of life, a new conviction that peace of mind is more important than pies and cakes, a sense of proportion which included herself and the claims of her own nature as well as the appetites of her hungry family and the profits of the farm, had revealed themselves to her in the long days of enforced inactivity.

"My broken hip saved my life and my soul, too, I guess," the grateful woman used to say, with the smile of one who had found that the worst enemy of good work is worry.—Youth's Companion.

A Modern Meditation.

Idle not; for idleness is the mother of all sins.

Neither dawdle nor dilly-dally; for the dawdler groweth weary and accomplisheth naught.

Delay not, nor postpone; for more crimes are due to postponement than to deliberate intention.

Hesitate not an hour in performing thy tasks; for the only way to get a thing done is to do it now.

Glower not, nor grouch; for it is a fearful crime to make other people unhappy.

Never indulge thyself in despair; for there is no surer way to miss all the good things that are coming to you.

Neither indulge in vain retrospection; for what is done is done forever, and the only wise thing is to forget it.

Blame not thyself nor any other person too much; for there are laws stronger than any of us that govern the universe.

Make hope and industry thy habits; for by these two practices shall a man reach the highest place—even contentment.

Dressed in Their Best

The little coat on the standing figure is made of bright red cloth, trimmed with black braid and straps of the cloth, finished with gilt buttons. It is cut with a very full flare in the skirt. The dress is navy blue cashmere, trimmed with parallel crimson silk folds, with stitches between them done in blue saddler's silk. The guimpe is white challie, trimmed with navy blue soutache.

The Girl in Gold.

One of the colors which the girl in her first season has taken up more enthusiastically than any other this year is yellow. Buttercup, daffodil, old-gold and the soft tones of crocus yellow are all included in her colony card, and these, when softened with veilings of cream ninon or lace, are taking the place even of the all-white gown when the import ceremony of the debut itself is over.

About the Eyebrows.

Many children possess beautiful heads of hair, which is often allowed to hang loosely over their faces, without being confined in any way. This may certainly show the hair off to the best advantage, but quite hides the best points of the child's face and often is the cause of scanty eyebrows—a disfigurement which will be more noticeable when the child is grown up. The growth of scanty elebrows can, however, be encouraged by brushing lightly with a soft brush, and this also tends to make them arched, but on no account should they be clipped to insure their thickness. Clipping the eyelashes to promote their growth is also a practice that should be abolished, as if the child should move while they are being clipped it may result in injury to the eyesight.

FIVE SIMPLE GOWNS.

DAME FASHION'S DECREES

The Greek coiffure is much in evidence with opera costumes.

Fancy color effects in shoes for day wear are gaining in popularity.

Banana brown and cinnamon form a favored combination of coloring in many costumes.

Some of the winter muffs are made of tippet pieces, laid on flatly and hanging like a flap.

Patent leather shoes are being worn this season, decorated with little folded bows of leather.

A trig little red English morocco bag is fitted with folding opera glasses, powder puff, and mirror.

An applied cloak tuck, three inches wide, furnishes a tunic effect on many of the long-cloth skirts.

For handsome gowns matrons are wearing black or dark, rich colored silks, brocaded in velvet.

Lovely are the evening bags of white Irish crochet, lined with white silk and mounted in gold frames.

A new fad is the evening cloak of the same color of the gown, especially to wear at little theater and restaurant functions.

One of the most striking gowns seen at a recent wedding was of bottle green satin trimmed with green lace and yellow panne.

A chic departure in theater waists is the separate waist in chiffon, generally black, and worn over a pale colored or white foundation.

When the Frenchwoman wants her decollete gown for restaurant or theater wear she adds a transparent guimpe of white tulle and a tiny cravat of fur.

The return of the tight skirt is perhaps the harbinger of tight sleeves and waists that have been banished so long, to say nothing of the waistline and its natural position.

The new sleeve, called the "step ladder," is an outgrowth of the kimono sleeve, and consists of a succession of deep folds, one over the other, narrowing in as they reach below the elbow.

Married Women as Breadwinners.

Twenty-seven thousand women in New York support their husbands, according to Mrs. Frederick Nathan, a leader in the movement for women's suffrage in New York. Mrs. Nathan does not either approve or disapprove of a woman making a living for her spouse, but makes her statement as one of fact. Women who support their husbands, she says, are not in any one class, but are found in all classes, from that of the woman who scrubs floors to that of the woman who marries a title. That a woman can be a wage earner and at the same time care for her home is possible, Mrs. Nathan says, and there are many cases in which it is eminently satisfactory to have a man and his wife both wage earners. Mrs. Nathan gives the following two as the principal reasons why married women are wage earners: "Men waste so much money in smoking, gambling and drinking that they have none left for family expenses. Many women have minds superior to their husbands and can earn more. In that case it is the woman's plain duty—and should be her pleasure—to earn whatever her talents will bring."

Husband Breaker.

The ingenuity of the modern woman has discovered a new method of earning a competence.

She breaks husbands.

There have been women who made their living at breaking horses, but not until very lately did some emancipated feminine genius go in for husband breaking.

Ingenious woman!

For a moderate fee she is prepared to make a lengthened stay, and gradually mold the newly-married husband according to the pattern that his wife requires. Since Adam was driven from Paradise it is doubtful if man has ever felt the effects of the fall so severely as he does at this moment!

SNAP-SHOTS AT WOMEN.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett is an enthusiastic gardener and her country home in Kent, England, is noted for its rose garden, where in summer she does much of her brilliant writing.

Dr. Mary Merritt Crawford has been appointed house physician in the Williamsburg hospital, Brooklyn, having won in a competitive examination over thirty-four men. She is but 23 years old.

A widow living in the Brightlingsea almshouses, England, recently celebrated her ninetieth birthday by inviting two old sweethearts to tea. One of them was 90 and the other 93 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Lawrence, of Hucknall Torkard, Notts, claim to be the oldest married couple in England. On May day they will have been married seventy-two years. Mr. Lawrence is 92 and his wife 91.

An aged beggar woman, known among her neighbors as "Old Mother Snuff," was lately found dead in her house in Paris. The place was searched and the search revealed $15,800 in bank notes and $4,000 in gold hidden in a mattress.

Queen Victoria had twenty-one granddaughters, and of this number only four remain single. They are Princess Victoria of England, Princess Beatrice of Saxe-Coburg, Princess Patricia of Connaught, and Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein.

SPIDERS AND THEIR HOMES.

Webs Are Scientifically Made by the Little Insects.

At the 469th corporate meeting of the Boston Scientific society recently James H. Emerson spoke on the subject of "Spiders and Their Webs." Not only did he outline the habits of the spiders and show pictures of them and their webs, but he gave an object lesson in webs by making the essential parts of a geometrical web in the same manner and in the same order as the spider would herself, says the Boston Transcript. Many interesting facts were related. The spinnerets are of the same nature as the little cones with which confectioners produce the sugar designs on frosted cakes; there are many of them, each one connected with a gland in the body of the spider. Sometimes half the body of the creature is used for these glands. The spider can keep the threads apart or can run them together into one and it can produce different kinds of thread. This is a silk and is used for different purposes, for webs, to make nests, to inclose cocoons, etc. The ordinary white thread is for the nests, while that of the cocoons is oftentimes colored. Then the thread may be dry or sticky; it may be fine and regular or coarse and rough, according to the use that the spider wishes to make of it.

Next Mr. Emerson gave consideration to the webs. About half the spiders do not make webs, but catch their prey, which consists of insects, by springing upon them. The webs that are made are of different kinds and for different purposes. The most common and familiar one is that which is seen in the grass on dewy mornings. This is merely a level floor on which the spider may run out and catch his food. The web is not of sticky thread. It may last an entire season, but is repaired and strengthened from time to time. These nests are furnished with a tube of web, in which the spider hides.

The distribution of spiders is a curious feature, to which the speaker alluded in passing. There are some, for example, that live in the house. They are never seen out of doors, yet they have been carried to all parts of the earth just as rats and mice have been.

Another kind of web is in large meshes, but of no definite shape. These usually have a thinner portion which is the spider's nest. Insects flying about get into the meshes and are entagled, but are not held by any glutinous nature of the thread. In all the cobwebs except the flat kind, which have already been noted, the spider lives down on the under side of the web. Then there are dome webs, in which the spider lives within the dome and runs about within it to catch the insect that is entangled. These webs are kept always clean, even bits of leaves are taken out by the spider. Then there is a kind of web in which great, crinkly, rough threads are placed upon a framework of finer ones. These by their roughness entangle the flies which the spider catches and eats. Then there are the geometrical webs. This was the kind that Mr. Emerson made with a large tatting shuttle and string. The spider first establishes the radial lines, then, beginning at the center, weaves outward a coarse spiral. These constructions, which are really the scaffolding of the web, are of ordinary thread. Then beginning at the outer edge of the web the spider weaves in the finer meshes of sticky thread, biting out the original coarse spiral as it goes along. This sticky mesh never goes to the center. These webs catch the flies through their mucilaginous quality. Most of the work is done at night, and a single night is sufficient for the construction of a new web. The measurements are by the sense of feeling. Many details and interesting facts about the habits of these industrious creatures enlivened the making of the thread model, which was two or three feet in diameter.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle.

Short Suggestions.

Wilted vegetables should be soaked in cold water for an hour or two before they are cooked.

When you have a few tablespoonfuls of jam or jelly left over it makes a delicious addition to baked apples, dropping a teaspoonful into the core of each apple before they go into the oven.

Old newspapers may be used to pad the ironing board just as well as an old blanket, which cannot always be spared, or the lining felt which comes for such purposes, and is rather expensive.

If your pies run over either the plates are not deep enough to hold the juice or else there is not sufficient space for the steam to escape. Use a deep agate plate and make a good opening in the upper crust.

To clean a rope line, place it in a large pan of cold water, add a little washing soda, a little soap, and bring slowly to the boil; boil thirty minutes, rinse it thoroughly in clean, cold water, stretch between hooks to dry.

Icing for cake may be prevented from cracking by adding one teaspoonful of cream to each unbeaten egg. Stir all together, then add sugar until as stiff as desired.

To avoid washing the molding board lay over it a sheet of heavy glazed wrapping paper. If well floured, doughs are less apt to stick to it than to the board.

As soon as a salt ham or tongue is cooked remove it from the boiling water to a pan of cold water for a few seconds. This will loosen the skin, which may be easily peeled off.

DIZZY ALPINE RAILWAYS.

They Threaten the Disfigurement of the Swiss Mountains.

Over in Europe there is a heated controversy just now as to whether the natural scenery of the Swiss Alps shall remain as nature made it or shall be disfigured with a system of electric railways for the convenience of the public. All the strong arguments are not on one side. There is much to be said against the project, and there is something to be said in favor of it. It is admitted this modern method of transportation may mar the beauty of the place, rob the Alps of their mystery and fascination. Once the climbing of the peaks is made possible for all, hundreds of tourists who have found interest in braving the dangers will no longer visit the region of grand and sublime scenery. Mountaineers and old guides are horrified over the proposition, and people of leisure who annually spend much time in this enchanted region of ice and snow say the cars would hopelessly vulgarize it.

A GLIMPSE OF THE LINE.

But if an electric road in the Swiss Alps drives away the mountain climbers, it will attract thousands of others who are not. Those who could not undertake to climb the perilous heights by foot would not hesitate to undertake the journey by railway. There is no doubt such a railroad would prove a very profitable investment, and in this commercial age the scheme that promises profit has a big advantage over sentiment. For that reason alone there is every probability that the road will be built.

The idea is to construct a narrow gauge electric railway up to the edge of the great Aletsch glacier, Zenbachen, at an altitude of 7,700 feet. From

TRAIN IN THE ESELWALL.

Zenbachen the line is to be constructed up to the Jungfraujoch, there to connect with the Jungfrau railway, which starts from the opposite face of the mountains. That part of the railway crossing the glacier from Zenbachen to Jungfraujoch is planned to be most novel. It is to be a sledge railway, and will touch all the important points made famous by the tales of mountain climbers.

However, the road, if built, will do nothing more than carry out a policy already well established. The accompanying pictures show railroads now doing business in the Alps. The Righi road, the first Alps railway, was constructed in 1871, and appears in the picture as it is near the summit of Righi peak. The Gornergrat, constructed nine years ago, penetrates the upper regions of the Alps. It is the single track road, entering a tunnel, the other road to a tunnel, showing trestle work, being that which climbs Mount Pilatus, and it is by far the steepest road n the Alps.

The Use of Salt.

Salt is a very useful, though humble, friend of the housekeeper, if she would but realize the fact. Damp salt will rub off the discolorations left in cups by the sediment of tea and coffee. Salt will set the dyes of black and colored articles, if a little be added to the water in which they are washed. Salt, mixed with lemon juice, removes the stains of ink, tar or paint from the hands. Salt and water, applied to basket and straw work, and rubbed in with a soft nail brush, is a most effective cleansing agent. Brass ornaments may be kept bright by rubbing them occasionally with salt and vinegar. Salt thrown upon the grate will soon put out a fire in the chimney. Salt, when added in proportion to whitewash, induces the latter to adhere firmly to any surface to which it may be applied.

RHEUMATISM CAN NOT BE RUBBED AWAY

It is perfectly natural to rub the spot that hurts, and when the muscles, nerves, joints and bones are throbbing and twitching with the pains of Rheumatism the sufferer is apt to turn to the liniment bottle, or some other external application, in an effort to get relief from the disease, by producing counter-irritation on the flesh. Such treatment will quiet the pain temporarily, but can have no direct curative effect on the real disease because it does not reach the blood, where the cause is located. Rheumatism is more than skin deep—it is rooted and grounded in the blood and can only be reached by constitutional treatment—IT CANNOT BE RUBBED AWAY. Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought about by the accumulation in the system of refuse matter which the natural avenues of bodily waste, the Bowels and Kidneys, have failed to carry off. This refuse matter, coming in contact with the different acids of the body, forms uric acid which is absorbed into the blood and distributed to all parts of the body, and Rheumatism gets possession of the system. The aches and pains are only symptoms, and though they may be scattered or relieved for a time by surface treatment, they will reappear at the first exposure to cold or dampness, or after an attack of indigestion or other irregularity. Rheumatism can never be permanently cured while the circulation remains saturated with irritating, pain-producing uric acid poison. The disease will shift from muscle to muscle or joint to joint, settling on the nerves, causing inflammation and swelling and such terrible pains that the nervous system is often shattered, the health undermined, and perhaps the patient becomes deformed and crippled for life. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses the blood and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and expelling all foreign matter from the system. It warms and invigorates the blood so that instead of a weak, sour stream, constantly depositing acrid and corrosive matter in the muscles, nerves, joints and bones, the body is fed and nourished by rich, health-sustaining blood which completely and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. is composed of both purifying and tonic properties—just what is needed in every case of Rheumatism. It contains no potash, alkali or other mineral ingredient, but is made entirely of purifying, healing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks. If you are suffering from Rheumatism do not waste valuable time trying to rub a blood disease away, but begin the use of S. S. S. and write us about your case and our physicians will give you any information or advice desired free of charge and will send our special treatise on Rheumatism.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody, Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great, blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.
