ADVERTISING UNDER NEW LAW

OPINION BY ATTORNEY GENERAL

Given in Response to Inquiries by Judge Cochran, County Attorney, in Regard to Conflicting Restrictions.

In reply to an inquiry regarding the apparently conflicting provisions of sections 28 and 29 of the direct primary law, which relate to advertising published in newspapers by candidates for county office, County Attorney J. E. Cochran received a lengthy opinion from the attorney general's office this week, from which we condense the following more important points:

The law provides that a candidate may publish, over his signature, an announcement of candidacy, accompanied by photograph if desired. While no penalty is provided in case the words "paid advertisement" do not appear over such announcement, and while such omission would not render a candidate incompetent to qualify for office, yet the "spirit of the law would be better subserved" by using those words. Editorial comment must not appear in connection with an announcement. A candidate may not pay a newspaper for editorial or news matter "advising or counselling" electors to vote for him or against his opponent; nor for editorial or news setting forth a candidate's fitness or qualifications; nor yet his biography and photograph as news.

A newspaper may not advocate the election or defeat of any candidate, for pay, no matter by whom it may be paid, unless the words "Paid Advertisement" be placed at the beginning of the article. Nor may a newspaper accept payment for advertising in its editorial or news columns, under the heading "Paid Advertisement," paid for by the candidate directly or by him through another person. Concluding, the opinion states that, "A fair construction of our direct primary law, so far as the same pertains to newspapers, leads to the conclusion that said law does not prohibit a newspaper from selling its advertising space, under certain restrictions, but does prohibit a newspaper from selling its influence, and thereby deceiving its readers as to its motives in advocating the election or defeat of a candidate for nomination at a direct primary election."

The attorney general's opinion, it appears to us, is indefinite on the principal point in question, viz: Just what a candidate can have published under the heading "paid advertisement?" If merely his announcement, then he would be powerless to refute any misrepresentations or correct any misunderstandings that might arise in the course of the campaign. Judge Cochran states it to be, so far as he is able to ascertain, the opinion of attorneys that a candidate has the privilege of using, over his signature, the advertising columns, but to omit the signature makes the matter editorial or news, even if labeled "paid." It was certainly the intent of the law to draw the line between editorial and news columns, and advertising matter, and not to prevent a candi-

INSTITUTE A SPLENDID SUCCESS

Opera House Crowded Every Day by Citizens Who Wish to Hear the Fine Lectures Given by Instructors.

The 19th Annual Session of the Clallam Co. Institute was opened in regular order Monday, with Miss Trumbull, the county superintendent, in the chair and a large enrollment of teachers present. The entire convention joined in singing America, which was followed by an invocation by the Rev. Edgar Rogers.

Owing to an accident, and to delayed boat service, Mr. A.N. Taylor and Prof. H. C. Sampson who were on the morning program, were unable to appear. This was arranged by reversing the order of exercises and placing Prof. I. L. Ullery, who was to talk on "The Teaching of the Drama Illlus. from Julius Caesar," in the afternoon, on in the morning. Mr. Ullery's talk was interesting and instructive and showed a wide knowledge of his subject and a rarely close acquaintance with the "Bard of Avon."

After roll call in the afternoon, Prof. Geisness, in a very happy and appropriate address, welcomed the teachers of Clallam county to Port Angeles. This was followed by practical work in "Phonics" by Mrs. A. Wilson, in which Mrs. Wilson demonstrated that she not only understood her subject, but understood children as well. The vocal solo by Miss Bernice Allen gave good scope to her charming voice and delighted the convention.

At 3:15 Prof. H. C. Sampson gave his first lecture before the Clallam county teachers. Prof. Sampson is a most interesting and fluent speaker, full of that magnetic charm that is inseparable from a deep earnestness, and enthusiastic love for his work. During the convention he has handled several subjects. Practical Pedagogy, Composition, Grammar, Reading and Literature, Present Tendencies in Education, etc., and in each he has held the close interest of the convention.

The instrumental solo by Miss Laura Polhamus was rendered in a spirited manner and well received.

In the "Dull Boy," Prof. Geisness proved himself not only a close student of boy-life, but evidenced the fact that he was a speaker of no mean order.

The Practical Work on Construction given by Miss Laura Babcock with her class of little ones, was not only very good, but exceedingly interesting. She told in a most charming manner the story of "Little Red Riding Hood" and the children proceeded to make the baskets.

Miss Elliott's violin solos have delighted the convention and added not a little to the pleasure of the sessions.

Mrs. E. E. Day favored the Institute on Tuesday with a vocal solo, which was rendered in her happiest manner and was heartily encored.

On Wednesday Dr. J. M. Foster of Vashon College addressed the Institute twice. His topic was "Education in China" and "The Orient," and he amply demonstrated his fitness for the task. Twelve years in China has given him so thorough a knowledge of Chinese character, habits and history and environment that he was able to paint pictures that were stamped with realism.

The instrumental trio by Misses Polhamus, Swanson and Mrs. Brown was received with applause and the lesson on Music given by Miss Ball was worthy of special notice. Miss Ball was assisted by a class of little ones who demonstrated the practical value of her method. The lesson in "Water Colors" given by Miss Edith Taylor was especially good. She recited a poem which her class of little ones painted as she talked.

The vocal solo sang by Mrs. Troy was exceptionally well received and heartily encored, and the instrumental duet rendered by Mrs. Brown and Helen Trumbull reflected credit upon both teacher and pupil.

On Monday night the ladies of the Parliamentary Club and the Civic Club gave a reception to the Institute. An interesting and charming program was rendered and everybody reported a most delightful evening, which was much appreciated by those in whose honor it was given. On Tuesday night the ladies of the Maccabees extended the courtesies to the teachers of Clallam county by inviting them to a ball given by their organization.

Prof. Sampson's lecture at the opera house Wednesday night was well attended, and should prove a boon to Port Angeles. The subject was "Traces of a Man," and was a plea for environment for the young. Children who are allowed to take care of themselves, to roam the streets early and late, are bound to pick up vicious habits. Parents should know where their children are, and should care for them and direct them when their minds are most susceptible to direction. No time is better spent than that given to the proper direction of the young mind, for therein lies the future of the child.

Altogether, so far, the Institute has been one of the most successful ones in the history of the county. The attendance has been unusually large, the public interest evidenced by the large number of citizens present each day has been greater than ever before, and in additon to the fine corps of instructors, the splendid practical work put before the convention by the local teachers may well make Port Angeles proud of the years' showing.

A CONVINCING ARGUMENT

Considerable Effort Would Re Required to Obtain the Facts, but They Would Be Most Valuable.

At the present time, when the people of Washington are urging newcomers to find their homes in the Evergreen State, advertising ideas are valuable and probably one of the most effective pieces of high-grade, common-sense advertising that has been issued is a collection by Mr. J. R. Shepard, under the title "One Thousand Facts of Production." It is a compilation made up from reports of farmers who live in the Willamette Valley of Oregon, giving in plain, blunt, common-sense way the statements of the individual growers of fruit, vegetables, poultry and eggs, grasses, cereals, hops, tobacco, nuts, live-stock, etc. This compilation should be in the hands of every commercial body throughout the state of Washington, as the circulation of similar facts about any part of Washington would be of great value.

SALOONS TO ENTER POLITICS

The saloon men of the county met in this city Sunday afternoon to decide upon a plan of action in face of the recent order to close Sundays. It is understood that they have decided to abide by the order and even to help in its strict enforcement, but woe to the fellow who made the order next election. It is also stated that the meeting discussed available candidates.

ASKING FOR RAILWAY FRANCHISE

ANGELES RAILWAY & TERMINAL

Agree to Expend $50,000 the First Year and Have Forty Miles Built in Two Years, with Connections.

Another railroad proposition is before the City Council and again the hopes of the citizens are bouyed up, and dreams of a realization of past dreams again makes life pleasant.

There are rumors of parties who are behind the latest deal, and these rumors are of a most pleasing nature, strictly in accord with beliefs entertained by our most sanguine citizens. Dr. A. I. Bouffleur of Chicago, said to be connected with the Milwaukee road, stands sponsor for the new company by the deposit of his personal check for the necessary $100.

The proposition came before the Council Tuesday night in the shape of a proposed ordinance granting to the Port Angeles Railway and Terminal Company the right to construct and operate for a term of fifty years, a system of steam or electric railway over the streets of the city, and the right to operate telephone and telegraph systems necessary in the operation of the railway.

The grant asks that the company have practically three distinct lines thru the city from east to west. One entering the city at its northeast limits and following Victoria street to Front and Chase, thence following the bluff line to the head of the bay; the second enters the city at the same point and follows railroad avenue to the head of the bay, jogging at Oak street; the third is in the nature of a street railway system, entering the city at Front street, proceeding west to Liberty, south to Second, west to Chambers, south to Fifth, west to Eunice, south to Sixth, west to Albert, south to Seventh, west to Vine, south to Eighth, west to B, south to Twelfth, south to M.

The company agrees to expend $50,000 in construction work within one year, and to construct forty miles and connect with transcontinental railroads and Seattle within two years. It asks two years additional time to utilize and occupy other streets asked for. If connection is not made with transcontinental lines within two years the penalty is the forfeiture of all grants.

The council formally referred the ordinance to the city attorney and franchise committee and adjourned as nothing further could be done with the ordinance on the night of its introduction.

THE CITY COUNCIL

The Clerk reported receiving a check of $52 from the Angeles Telephone & Telegraph Co., being one per cent of $5,200, the gross receipts for the year 1907. The company stated they would make report semi-annually hereafter in accordance with terms of franchise.

The Morse Wharf Co. called attention to the defective piling under Laurel street extension, between Front street and the north line of tide lands, asking the city to repair same. It appears the Morse Company claims that under the terms of their present franchise, granted them some few months ago, all that portion of their wharf lying south of the north line of tide lands has become city property, and its maintenance a city expense.

Crossings were ordered put in on Laurel street, wherever new sidewalks have been built.

GREAT NORTHERN OVERLAND TRAIN DESTROYED BY FIRE

Spokane, April 21.—Great Northern eastbound passenger train No. 2, the oriental limited, truck a soft spot in the track near Summit, Montana, at almost the highest point on the line in the Rocky mountains, and the engine left the rails, taking all the cars with it except the observation car and the standard sleeper. The mail car, baggage express, tourist car and diner rolled over, caught fire and were consumed. The train crew were powerless to do more than assist the passengers.

Many passengers were slightly injured. Engineer Bostwick sustained a scalp wound; Fireman Wood, a dislocated wrist; Anderson, mail clerk, rib broken; Camille des Jardines, express messenger, sprained knee. The baggage and mail were saved. Summit is about fifty miles east of Columbia Falls, Montana.

Washington Wins Debate.

Seattle, April 18.—Debaters of the University of Washington were again victorious last night, winning a unanimous decision of the judges over the debating team representing the Univerity of California in the first forensic contest that has been held between these two institutions. In platform ease and familiarity with forensic art the men from the southern institution were superior to the Washington debaters, but in rebuttal and keen grasp of detail Victor Zednick and Herman Allen, who opposed the establishment of the "closed shop," as advocated by Stuart O'Melveney and W. H. Pillsbury, of the University of California, were superior.

WARNING SOUNDED

ENEMIES OF DISTRICT PRIMARY LAW SAID TO HAVE A SCHEME.

President of League Tells of Movement to Defeat Purpose of Law by Evading Section 37, Relating to the Election of Seven United States Senators—Pledge Should Be Insisted Upon.

Seattle, April 18.—A warning of a movement throughout the state to defeat the aim of the primary law was issued yesterday by Christopher W. Horr, president of the Direct Primary League of the State of Washington, in this warning, which is in the form of an open letter to the citizens of Washington, Mr. Horr lays particular stress on the point that the enemies of the law will endeavor to evade section 37, relating to the election of United States senators. The open letter is as follow:

"To the citizens of Washington:

"All friend of the direct primary law are earnestly requested to take heed of the fact that there is a well organized movement on foot to have the direct primary law declared unconstitutional, at such a time that a special session of the legislature cannot be held in time to pass another law before the September primaries.

Injunction is Planned.

"Failing in that scheme, the next move will be by injunction proceedings to prevent the primaries being held. That rue failing, the next plan will be to get men nominated and elected to the state legislature without signing the pledge in section 37 of the law as follows:

"'I hereby declare to the people of the state of Washington, and particularly to my legislative district, that during my term of office I will always vote for the candidate for United States senator who has received the highest number of votes upon my party ticket for the position at the primary election next preceding the election of United States senator; and in such case there shall be printed on the official primary ballot opposite or just below said candidate's name the following: '"Pledge to vote for party choice for United State senator."'

Pledge Should Be Insisted Upon.

"Now it is very important that only good and true men be nominated as senators and representatives, and if they are good and true men they will gladly sign the pledge in section 37, and if they do not sign the pledge then see to it that these men are defeated. We have a good direct primary law, giving the people a right to rule, and we should not allow any clique of politician or boodlers to defeat the will of the people.

"Every holdover senator who is a Republican or Democrat on principle, and who is an honorable man, will respect the direct primary law which they assisted in passing, and be bound by its provisions. Let the people have the chance to give their voices full and free expression at the September direct primaries, and anyone who would try to take from the people the right to rule, or who is in politics for his own selfish interests, is not a good citizen or honorable man, and is unworthy of the confidence and respect of his fellow man.

"Insist on all candidates for the legislature signing the pledge in section 37 and thus carry out the spirit of the direct primary law."

A.-Y.-P. EXPOSITION BILL AGAIN BEFORE SENATE

Washington, April 22.—Senator Piles has introduced in the senate the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition bill as an amendment to sundry civil appropriation bill. This was done as a result of the decision of the Washington delegation that there was no other possible way of securing the appropriation on account of the Democratic filibuter in the house.

The bill introduced today is an exact duplicate of Piles' bill which passed the senate some time ago. All the amendments proposed by the house expositions committee in the bill they reported, including the Sunday closing clause, are left out, but will be offered separately when the bill comes before the senate again. Senator Piles feared to change his bill in any particular since it would probably provoke some member in the senate.

The additional $50,000 recommended by the house committee for Alaska and the Philippines will not be inserted in the senate, but an effort will be made to have it put in at conference.

DATES FOR LIFE DIPLOMA EXAMINATIONS ARE FIXED

Olympia, April 18.—State Superintendent H. B. Dewey has sent out notice that examinations of applicants for state teacher's certificates and life diplomas will be held at Walla Walla, Spokane, North Yakima, Seattle, Bellingham and Vancouver, beginning at 1 o'clock on May 11. The following program has been arranged:

May 11, afternoon—History of education, geometry.

May 12, forenoon—General history, civics; afternoon, bookkeeping, geology.

May 13, forenoon—Zoology, botany; afternoon, psychology, rhetoric.

All examinations will be conducted by county superintendents.

SAYS DISESTABLISHMENT OF CHURCH IN ITALY IS NEAR

Milwaukee, April 20.—The disestablishment of the Catholic church in Italy within a few years was predicted by Most Rev. Sebastian G. Messmer, archbishop of Milwaukee, in an interview here. Everything now, he said, points to that event. The government is distinctly unfriendly to the church, and the church, having no voice in national matters, is powerless to avert a condition in Italy that will be but a repetition of conditions now existing in France.

"I would not be at all surprised," said Archbishop Messmer, "to see a disestablishment of the church in Italy within a few years. Everything now points to it. The government is anything but friendly to the church and from late indications I believe that it is intent upon some such action as has already taken place in France. The government has for years been the enemy of the church. Catholics in Italy, by papal decree, are barred from voting on national questions and there is no one in the government favorable to the church.

"It is true," continued Archbishop Messmer, in commenting upon Mr. Wright's statements, "that a large portion of the people of Italy seem to be drifting away from the church, many of them into infidelity.

"This is due to two causes: First, to the fact that in the universities and other higher institutions freethinkers are appointed to the professorships and the works of the so-called German philosophers, which tend to infidelity, or at least to a denial of Christianity, are translated into Italian and taught in these institutions. Thus infidelity is being sown broadcast among the upper classes.

"The second reason for the religious indifference—and here I am speaking only of Southern Europe—is the neglect of the clergy to give the people proper relief in legislation. The people are ignorant of the principles of their religion. They don't understand it; they have gone to church from habit and not from principle, and consequently they have drifted away since the anti-religious sentiment has gone abroad in the land."

POSTAL DEFICIT FOR YEAR ESTIMATED AT $15,000,000

Washington, April 22.—Figuring on the basis furnished by the returns of the first two quarters, the deficiency in the postoffice department for the current fiscal year will exceed $15,000,000. In a report of postal receipts and expenditures issued today the net deficiency for the first six months of the current fiscal year is estimated at $7,616,545, against the deficiency for the corresponding period of the fiscal year of 1907 of $4,963,202. The giant share of this deficiency was in the first quarter, amounting to $7,369,130, whereas the deficiency of the quarter just expired was only $227,414. In the quarter of last year there was a surplus of $1,742,145.

The postal receipts for the last quarter were $52,252,832, while the expenditures were $52,380,247. The receipts increased over the first quarter by more than $2,000,000, but the expenditures increased by almot $5,000,000.

Postal officials attribute the deficit largely to the general increase in salaries allowed during the year in the department.

CANADIAN PACIFIC ROAD DECLARES FOR OPEN SHOP

Vancouver, B. C., April 22.—Four thousand workmen were today affected by an order posted in Vancouver and which went into effect calling for an open shop in all mechanical departments of the Canadian Pacific railway between Lake Superior and the Pacific coast. The declaration of the company for an open shop was not unexpected. In fact, this company as well as the Canadian Northern and their shopmen have started upon what appears to be a long fight.

East of Lake Superior the workmen on their side have given notice of the abrogation of an agreement they have with the company in order that they, too, may buckle into the fight.

Heretofore the various unions of blacksmiths and fitters and car repairers have treated independently with the company. Now there has been formed a central organization to represent all these unions and to carry on the war which the men believe the company is preparing to start. The new organization will include workmen on the entire system from Vancouver to Montreal. The chief plea of the organization is against possible reduction in wages and change in working hours.

Private Employment Agencies Opposed.

Tacoma, April 18.—Five thousand Tacomans have signed a petition which is to be presented to the city council next week demanding that an ordinance be passed prohibiting the operation of private employment agencies in the city and giving a monopoly on this line of business to the free agency maintained by the city.

Rate Law Enjoined.

Montgomery, Ala., April 22.—A formal order has been issued permanently restraining the operation of the railroad rate law of Alabama until the accuracy and justice of the rates can be inquired into by the federal court.

Favor Railroad Rate Increase.

New York, April 22.—That railroad freight rates should be increased was the consensus of opinion at a conference of the presidents of nearly all of the eastern trunk lines held at the office of the Trunk Line Association yesterday.

OREGON PRIMARIES

H. M. CAKE OF PORTLAND DEFEATS SENATOR FULTON BY 3,000 VOTES.

Ellis for Congress Defeats Both Geer and Shepherd in the Second District by About 2,500—Hawley Carried First District Without Oppoition.

Portland, Ore., April 20.—H. M. Cake has defeated Charles W. Fulton for the Republican nomination for United States senator by a majority of approximately 2,250 votes. Complete returns from eight and incomplete returns from 22 of the 33 counties of the state, covering a total of more than three-fourths of the entire vote, show that Cake has 23,705, against 20,990 for Fulton, or a lead of 2,715. Nothing has been heard from Curry, Lincoln, Harney or Wheeler counties, but returns from these counties and the count on the remaining vote in the state at large will not materially affect the result, though Mr. Cake's majority may go to 3,000. Mr. Cake has carried Baker, Clackamas, Columbia, Douglas, Jackson, Lake, Linn, Marion, Multnomah, Umatilla, Union, Wallowa, Wasco, Washington and Yamhill counties, a total of 15, while Mr. Fulton has been successful in Benton, Clatsop, Coos, Crook, Gilliam, Grant, Josephine, Klamath, Lane, Malheur, Morrow, Polk, Sherman and Tillamook counties, a total of 14. In several of these counties, however, the result is quite close and it may take the official count to show which candidate has prevailed. It is probable that Fulton will carry Curry and Harney and possibly Wheeler. Lincoln is generally conceded to Mr. Cake. The majority for Mr. Cake in Multnomah county is 2,017, a decrease from the promise of the first returns.

W. R. Ellis has been nominated by the Republicans for congress in the Second district by a plurality of about 2,500 over Mr. Shepherd and about the ame over his other competitor, Mr. Geer. The returns are nearly complete. Geer and Shepherd are running a neck and neck race for second place. On the fact of the present count Shepherd has a lead of about 170 over Geer. The likelihood is that complete returns will decrease, rather than increase, this lead.

C. B. Atchison has been nominated for railroad commissioner in the Second district by a narrow margin over W. H. Hurlburt, his nearest competitor. Hurlburt carried Multnomah county by 481 against Atchison, but in the other numerous counties of the district he fell uniformly behind. As the count now stands, Atchison has a lead of 700, which will probably be increased by several hundred, but it will not be greatly over 1,000 in the aggregate. The third man is Loucks, the fourth Hamilton, the fifth Gaston, while Whiting makes a bad sixth. In the First district there is an exceedingly close contest between Thomas K. Campbell and W. A. Carter for railroad commissioner. Campbell at midnight had a lead of less than 200 over Carter, with Jackson county, Carter's home, to hear from. It is extremely likely that Jackson will give Carter a handsome plurality. In that event the outcome of the contest will be extremely doubtful.

W. C. Hawley carried the First district for congress without opposition. R. S. Bean had no opposition for supreme judge. J. W. Bailey is victorious over Dr. Alexander Reid for food and dairy commissioner by about 15,000. Bailey is running about two to one throughout the state.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY BILL CONSIDERED VALID

Washington, April 22.—As a result of an opinion rendered to the president by Attorney General Charles J. Bonaparte, at the cabinet meeting today, it is believed the president will sign the employers' liability bill.

He has accepted the opinion of the attorney general that the bill is constitntional and has waived any suspicion that he might have had to the contrary. The president is confident that the bill will stand the test in the courts.

The bill was not received from the attorney general's office until after 6 o'clock last evening, and consequently will not be laid before the president until tomorrow.

SENATE COMMITTEE IN FAVOR OF POSTAL BANKS

Washington, April 18.—The senate committee on postoffices and postroads has voted to report favorably the potal savings bank bill drafted by a sub-committee, of which Senator Carter was chairman. An amendment was adopted changing the name of the proposed institutions to postal depositaries, which meets the objections raised against the bill by bankers.

The amendment does not alter the purposes of the bill, the objects of which are to furnish convenient depositaries for the small savings of people remote from adequate banking facilities.

Said Bacon Will Succeed Taft.

Boston, April 18.—The immediate personal friends of Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, formerly of Boston, have received information which leads them to believe that Mr. Bacon will become secretary of war about July 1 next, succeeding Secretary Taft, who is understood to be desirous of retiring from the cabinet at that time.

THREATENS THE PAPER TRUST.

Speaker Cannon May Demand Congressional Investigation.

Washington, April 20.—In the event the attorney general does not show that something substantial has been done to prosecute the paper trust as a combination in restraint of trade, providing the pending inquiry as to whether it is operating in violation of the law, congress may go into the trust fighting business on its own merits.

Speaker Cannon and Chairman Payne of the ways and means committee contend that the tariff has nothing to do with the high price of print paper; that if the scarcity of the raw product is not responsible for it, then the fault lies with the paper trust, which by combining factories and regulating the output, holds the price up to suit itself.

The speaker does not intend to rush into trust fighting, but he may offer a resolution providing for a searching inquiry by a congressional committee into the operations of the International Paper Company. This inquiry, if held, will touch upon the sources of supply, the method of manufacture and manner of distribution of products of wood pulp.

GARFIELD'S COAL LAND BILL IS SUBMITTED

Washington, April 22.—The secretary of the interior has at last submitted to the house public lands committee a draft of his bill providing for the disposal of federal coal lands.

While the bill is a general coal measure, it contains a clause specially applicable to Alaska. This clause provides that all present bona fide holders of coal land in Alaska can combine their properties with other contiguous properties in areas not to exceed 2,560 acres for the purpose of working or placing in the hands of corporations who will operate mines thereon.

The bill provides also that individuals or corporations can either lease or purchase 2,560 acres of coal lands to be operated within a certain time, the sale price not to be less than $10. All areas must be contiguous properties, and the total space must be in length twice its width.

Adaptation of Cale's Idea.

Seattle, April 22.—Former Commissioner of the General Land Office Judge R. A. Ballinger stated that the bill as submitted by the secretary of the interior apparently embodies a number of Thomas Cale's ideas as it relates to Alaska. "Except for the leading feature, the Alaska clause is an adaptation of the Cale bill," said Judge Ballinger. "The purpose of the clause is to aid the existing entryman in Alaska by allowing him to sell or lease the land. The Cale bill provided for the sale of the deposit alone and title to the land did not pass."

PRIVACY DOESN'T LEGALIZE GAMBLING, SAYS COURT

Olympia, April 21.—Any gambling game, whether conducted in a public or in a private place, when it is run for gain, is unlawful, according to a decision of the supreme court handed down yeterday, in the appeal of Charles Preston, who was arrested, found guilty and fined for conducting a gambling recort in Walla Walla.

Preston ran a roulette wheel in the basement of a building, and while the game was on kept the doors locked. He was charged with conducting and carrying on a gambing game. He made his appeal on the ground that while it constituted a felony to run an open gambling game, when the game was conducted behind closed doors it was only a misdemeanor.

The supreme court held that to run any kind of a game, whether in private or public, was in violation of the anti-gambling law, and was punished as such.

WOULD BE RPRESENTED.

British Columbia Wants Voice in Fisheries Commission.

Vancouver, B. C., April 20.—The commercial fiheries interests of Vancouver, Victoria and other coast cities are demanding that in the naming of the joint fisheries commission which has been arranged between Canada and the United States, British Columbia be given at least one representative. As announced in the press recently, this international body is to be appointed for the purpose of aiding in the conservation of all kinds of fisheries in waters contiguous to both countries. The salmon canners of Vancouver and Victoria declare that the sockeye fisheries of the Fraser river and Gulf of Georgia are in dire need of protection by both the Canadian and United States authorities and that a joint commission will find plenty of work to do on this coast.

General Reyes Leaves Begota.

Begota, Colombia, April 18.—General Rafael Reyes has temporarily resigned the post of president of the republic and has designated Secretary of Finance Angulo to fill the position during his absence.

Panama, April 18.—Advices received here today from Begota are to the effect that President Reyes has left that city for the Atlantic coast, ostensibly to endeavor to remedy the present economic crisis in that region. The national assembly has been convoked and will meet next June.

Will Irrigate Town Lot.

Toppenish, April 18.—Through the forming of a local water users' association water has been secured for irrigating town lots. Many people are taking advantage of the privilege and are setting out trees and planting lawns.

SAILORS OWN TOWN

WARM WELCOME IS GIVEN ATLANTIC FLEET BY LOS ANGELES CITIZENS.

Officers Benquetted While Sailors Enjoy Wild West Shows, Baseball Games, Barbecues and Boxing Contests—Program to Be Repeated Four Times.

Los Angeles, April 21.—A long day of merrymaking by the sailormen of the American battleship fleet, boxing matches, barbecues, baseball games and Wild West shows included in the entertainment provided by the city, was brought to a close last night with two big banquets—one to the petty officers, at the largest cafe in the city, and the other to the admirals and commanding officers of the fleet and members of their staffs. The latter function, the most elaborate and costly ever held in this city, was provided at the hotel Alexandria, the official fleet headquarters, and was made the occasion of the formal welcome to Los Angeles. Mayor A. C. Harper and Governor J. N. Gillett were among the speakers. Rear Admiral Charles M. Thomas, in command of the fleet, responded to the address of welcome. A vacant chair marked the place originally assigned to Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans. The latter, though absent because of illness, which keeps him at Paso Robles Hot Springs, shared in the tributes of the evening.

One Fourth Land.

One-fourth of the men included in the entire enlisted force of the fleet came ashore to take part in the festivities planned in their honor. There were 2,600 sailors and marines in the liberty parties landed from the four divisions scattered at the various ports a score of miles away. Once on the beach, they found free trains and trolley cars awaiting their commands, and arriving in the city they found all mnaner of comforts and conveniences freely placed at their disposal. Most of the sailors made at once for the pleasure grounds at Chutes park where an amateur boxing boxing carnival, managed and refereed by Champion Jame J. Jeffries himself, was the first attraction of the day. Boxing is a favorite sport among the sailors, and their enjoyment of the Jeffries carnival was unrestrained. The enthusiasm reached its height when the lightweight championship of the fleet was decided under navy regulations, Lulinski, of the New Jersey, winning from Meyers, of the Ohio, in eight rounds.

Sailors Own Streets.

The barbecue and Wild West show which followed the boxing tournament added immeasurably to the good times ashore, and last night the blue jackets of the sailors and the tidy, soldier-like uniform of the marines had full possession of the gaily illuminated streets.

The day"s program for the enter tainment off the enlisted men is to be repeated today, Wednesday and Thursday in order that all of the sailors may have equal share in the city's reception plans.

The banquet to Admirals Thomas, Sperry and Emory was replete with surprises, picturesque features and beautiful effects in floral decorations of lighting. It was attended by many of the most prominent officials and men of affairs in the city and state, and was as elaborate a feast as the ingenuity of the committee in charge and the culinary experts could make it. The menu was a secret affair, each course attended by a surprise.

The big gilded dining salon of the hotel Alexandria had been closed to guests for four days while the decorations for the banquet were in progress, and it was in reality a bower of roses and vines. The air was deeply laden with the perfume of the mingled blooms. The entry was an arbor of flowers—entwined latticework.

Room Resplendant.

Above the tables seating 260 guests a trellis work had been constructed, and in this way side walls and ceiling were all covered with roses, poppies,geraniums, lillies and the myriads of flowers that abound in southern California. Fountains playing in varicolored electric rays and two score of canaries singing amid the vines were among the features.

The snowy linen of the tables was banked with American Beauties. Three thousand incandescent bulbs of red, white and blue were scattered in artless profusion among the flowers, and the effects of the combined decorative features was one of rare beauty. Lieutenant-General Chaffee presided at the banquet, and Joseph Scott, president of the Los Angeles board of education, acted as toast master.
2—PATENT—21

Daughters of Revolution.

Washington, April 21.—The seventeenth continental congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution convened here yesterday in Memorial Continental hall, with an unusually large attendance. The selection of ten vice-presidents general and the discussion of proposed amendments to the constitution will afford considerable interest. On Thursday President Roosevelt will receive the daughters at the White House.

MINORITY LEADER PAYS COMPLIMENT TO CANNON

Washington, April 21.—With the exception of Messrs. Cooper and Nelson, of Wisconsin, Republicans, the house by a strict party vote yesterday declared the action of Speaker Cannon last Saturday in summarily adjourning the house was not "a breach of the provision of the house affecting its safety, dignity and the integrity of its proceedings."

The dictum was made when a resolution by Mr. Williams holding such a breach to have been committed, was tabled, 146 to 119. The vote was preceded by statements by Mr. Williams and the speaker. After disclaiming that as a result of the incident there would be a personal breach between him and the speaker, Mr. Williams maintained that the action was an unprecedented parliamentary act. On the other hand, Speaker Cannon called attention to the dilatory tactics of the minority leader for the past two weeks and said it was the speaker's privilege and his duty to sweep aside a dilatory demand and declare the house adjourned.

Speaking in the most impassioned manner and carefully weighing his words, Mr. Williams said:

"The truth is, Mr. Speaker, that you're one of the best men in the world, but a long and undisturbed power, whose lesser abuses have been good naturedly passed over, has made you somewhat despotic and intolerant of opposition."

Poition Defended.

Craving the indulgence of the house, Speaker Cannon declared in a reply that under normal conditions the rules of the house were observed.

The Republicans put through an amendment to the rules making any day "suspension day," and substituting a majority for a two-thirds vote to pass any measure.

Messrs. Williams and Dearmond bitterly oppoed the rule. Mr. Dalzell, its author, notified the Democrats that they could trust to their imaginations for any legislation they would get this session.

A definite step was taken today toward a solution of the wood pulp and newspaper cost question in the introduction by Speaker Cannon of a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of six members to investigate and obtain all possible information as to the reasons for the increased price of white paper, "to the end that needful legislation may be enacted."

At 5:13 p. m. the house took a recess until 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

LIST OF STATE APPOINTEES GIVEN OUT BY GOVERNOR

Olympia, April 18.—The following list of appointments is given out from the executive office: John Hanen, of Everett, a member of the board of managers of the Washington state reformatory, to succeed W. P. Bell, resigned; Dr. C. C. Mann, of Spokane, and Dr. A. W. Burns, of North Yakima, members of the state board of dental examiners, succeeding Dr. Frank R. Fisk and Dr. W. A. Fishburn, respectively; Charles W. Whistler, of Seattle, a member of the state board of barber examiners, to succeed himself, term expired, and Henry Schaler, of Tacoma, a member of the same board, to succeed himself, term expired.

The governor also issued commissions to the following gentlemen as members of the advisory commission for state road improvement, recently created: Hon. Howard Whitson, of Spokane; Hon. C. H. Hanford, of Seattle; Hon. J. M. Snow, state highway commissioner; Prof. Henry Landes, of the University of Washington; Samuel Hill, of Seattle; Hon. John W. Arrasmith, state grain inspector; Karl Bowers, of Prosser, and Samuel C. Lancaster, of the University of Washington.

$1,250,000 IS SET APART FOR FRASER IMPROVEMENT

New Westminster, April 18.—Mayor W. H. Keary has returned from Ottawa, where he has been for the past three weeks in consultation with members of the cabinet in connection with proposed Fraser river improvement scheme, which has now been approved by the government.

Further detals of the negotiations have been given out by Mr. Keary, who imparts to the press the information that the sum of $1,250,000 has been set apart in the estimates for the improvement of the river and that the plan suggested by Engineer J. Francis Le Baron will be followed out almost in its entirety.

Work on the construction of the long jetties and retaining walls will be commenced almost immediately.

To Survey Alaska Coal Lands.

Chicago, April 18.—Professor Wallace W. Atwood, of the geology department at the University of Chicago, has been appointed by the United States geological survey department to survey the coal fields of Alaska with a view to ascertaining their value and to determine the best place to establish a coaling station for the navy department. This will be Professor Atwood's second visit, as he recently has returned from a two years' trip, during which he studied the minerals of the country.

May Levy Special Tax.

Olympia, April 18.—In an opinion just issued, the attorney general rules that in a school district in which, at the last annual election, there was voted a special tax of five mills, the board of directors may vote an additional tax of ten mills on the dollar, but that such special tax of ten mills must be the only special tax levied by the district itself.

MUST BE GOOD NOW

PRESIDENT TO HAVE FREE HAND IN DEALING WITH CASTRO.

Said Congress Intends to Give Executive Blanket Authority to Deal With Venezuela as Circumstances May Require—Rod Is Now in Pickle.

Washington, April 20.—From a number of conferences which Chairman Cullom of the senate committee on foreign relations has had recently with President Roosevelt and Secretary Root, it is now probable that before the adjournment of the present session of congress blanket authority will be voted to the president to proceed against Venezuela in such a manner as future events may require to uphold the dignity of the United States and protect the interests of American citizens.

A resolution giving such authority to the president has been drafted by Senator Cullom and approved by the president and Secretary Root. It provides in general terms that the president shall have the power to deal with Venezuela in the matter of adjusting the controversy with that country concerning wrongs done to American citizens and corporations in Venezuela by reason of the ill treatment they have received at the hands of President Castro.

Must Arbitrate Claims.

Under such authority the administration could again demand the submission to arbitration of claims of American citizens and corporations against Venezuela. The treaties on the subject of general arbitration and the use of force in the recovery of debts, ratified by the senate in the last few weeks, obligate the United States to follow this line of procedure.

If a resolution giving general authority to President Roosevelt to proceed against Venezuela as he sees fit is adopted by this congress and in event Castro should continue in his present attitude there is no question that the American government would have the power to resort to force. Furthermore, the indications are that an aggressive program would be adopted.

Roosevelt Calls Bluff.

President Roosevelt believes that Castro is trying to "bluff" this government. Secretary Root believes that the dignity of the diplomatic branch of the government has been trampled upon and Senator Cullom and other members of the foreign relations committee of the senate believe, to use the chairman's words, "President Castro needs a spanking." Undoubtedly any plan of procedure agreed upon by the senate would be followed by the house.

The senate committee on foreign relations will consider the Venezuelan correspondence which was received in response to the Lodge resolution when it meets next Wednesday. It is not likely that the program suggested will be completed in time to report on that day, but everything points to an early agreement on a plan which will give the administration a free hand to act in such a manner as the situation may seem to demand.

MINNESOTA SENATOR GIVEN BIG INDIAN WAR BONNET

Washington, April 18.—Senator Clapp of Minnesota, chairman of the committee on Indian affairs, is now a "heap big" Indian chief of the Crow tribe. He was given a surprise today by Chief Plenty Coos and his fellow tribesmen who have been witnesses before the Indian committee for the past three weeks. The chief marched into the committee room at the head of the band and through an interpreter informed the senator that the treatment that had been accorded the Indians was highly appreciated and that an appropriate gift was due the white chief of the committee. Chief Plenty Coos then took from one of his followers a huge war bonnet which had been the chief's insignia of rank and worn by him whenever he went into battle. He said that he was now a man of peace and that the bonnet was of less value to him on the reservation than it would be to the senator in congress, and therefore he wanted the senator to take it.

Senator Clapp mas "completely flabbergasted," according to his own description of his emotions. He took the war bonnet and thanked the chief.

Plenty Coo and his band will start for their reservation home in Montana tomorrow.

Resumes Sale of Through Tickets.

Seattle, April 18.—Through tickets from Puget sound ports over the O. R. & N. and Southern Pacific railways by way of Portland, are again being sold at the local office. The difficulty between the Harriman lines and the interstate commerce commission has been adjusted. It is stated that the difficulty was more over the method of tariff publications than of the making of the rates.

Recall Invoked at Lewiston.

Spokane, April 18.—Charging that Mayor Henry Heitfeld, former United States senator, has conducted the city government of Lewiston, Idaho, on a too extravagant scale, a petition to recall his election is about to be filed with the Lewiston council. The city charter provides for the recall. Heitfeld courts the issue.

PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE

PUBLIC OPINION AND THE PRESS.

By Charles J. Bonaparte.

C. J. BONAPARTE.

The press makes each community acquainted with its neighbor. And, as we know other men better, we recognize the more thoroughly and readily their likeness to ourselves, and, as a consequence, the universal application of underlying moral laws amidst all diversities of national or local custom or prejudice. It is the exercise of this common moral standard which qualifies the press for its highest and most useful function. After all, the most effective instrument of coercion possessed by society against its dangerous members is the influence of public opinion.

The first duty of the press is to hold up before the people a faithful mirror; if it display distorted pictures it fatally betrays its trust. No worthy end was ever accomplished through deception, whether of ourselves or others. If we are threatened by overshadowing dangers, to escape them we must first see them, and see them as they are. Americans can say with confidence: "We will know the truth and the truth shall make us free."

SHOULD A WOMAN GENIUS FALL IN LOVE?

By Marguerite O. Bigelow.

Nowadays, when many of our brightest and best women are refusing to marry, evidently preferring artistic and professional work, there is a great hue and cry raised that education has made women less loving, that to be brilliant and widely useful to society is to be unwomanly, and that to love art makes it impossible to love a man.

No woman of real genius and power ever refused love for art, and no man ever did. The men of genius have been men of love, and will be always. It is equally true of women. Only the false lights guide us into barren and dark depths of lovelessness. The question of a choice between them should never have been raised either for men or for women, and never would have been save for the mandates of tradition, and these mandates were of course founded upon an economic necessity and social pressure that no longer exists. There will never be a woman of lofty genius who is not also a woman of lofty love, and when she comes who is able to speak the great and as yet unspoken woman word to all mankind, she will be the truest woman of us all. And when the woman spirit and the woman love are met with the man spirit and the man love, in the persons of one man and one woman, we shall have songs and pictures, poems and creations manifesting the huge genius of the universe, publishing it in all perfection for the good of all.

SHOULD WOMAN SUE FOR BREACH OF PROMISE?

By R. E. Noble.

What are the motives that usually inspire the girl jilted in love to seek consolation for her disappointed feelings in a breach of promise action? Briefly, they range themselves within the threefold division of pecuniary greed, revenge and vanity. The main object which the law has in view in permitting this class of case is no doubt to obtain pecuniary compensation for the personal affront offered by a promise which has not been redeemed.

In a breach of promise action the law is but vindicating its right of enforcing a contract; and a privilege afforded throughout the world of commerce in every other form of contract ought not to fail in the matter of love. This is to be prosaic on a matter of sentiment, but the law is adamantine and no respecter of persons or feelings.

Some shrewd observers have declared that the fact that plaintiffs almost always seem to belong to the middle class society is proof conclusive that there is a great loss of dignity in bringing such an action.

It is well for human nature that natural pride comes to the rescue in heartaches. On the whole, it is probable that with advance in general refinement and the spread of education these actions will become fewer in number.

TOO MANY COLLEGE PROFESSORS.

By Prof. Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard.

The American student has, to an extraordinary degree, all the elements of mental composition necessary to most scholarly achievements. He has the brightness, the steadiness, the keenness, the patience, the energy, which, taken together, would make the most magnificent contribution to the scholarship of the world. One of the greatest evils from which our American universities suffer is too great an abundance of men.

As soon as an institution gets some money the first thought is to add more men to the faculty to outdo some neighboring institution. Every one of our American universities would be nearer to the ideal if it would kill two-thirds of its instructors and professors.

KILLED BY A "BARE."

Orthography plays a larger part in the universe of literature than is perhaps admitted. A child's artless attempts at spelling are refreshing and enjoyable to the mature mind, jaded with monotonous accuracy. A little variation from the accepted mode is refreshing. Bad spelling which is studied and deliberate is, however, seldom amusing because it is so obviously the result of an effort; but such spelling as distinguishes the journal of Jacob Fowler, written in 1821, is so spontaneous and natural that it provokes a smile even when used to describe a tragedy.

While we ware Picking grapes a Gun Was fyered off and the Cry of a White Bare Was rased. We Ware all around in an Instant and Each man Run his own Cors to look for the desperet anemal.

The Bare lay Close until they Ware in a few feet of it When it Sprung up and Caught Lewis and Pulled Him down. In an Instant A large dog which belongs to the Party atacted the Bare with such fury that it left the mân. he got up and Run a few steps but Was overtaken by the Bare.

SPEAKS FORTY LANGUAGES.

Miss Colton Would Have Been "It" at Tower of Babel.

Miss Elizabeth S. Colton of Easthampton, Mass., has returned to this country after a year's absence in India. She has achieved the honor of being known as the champion linguist of the world.

Miss Colton's father, the late Rev. A. M. Colton, was pastor of the First Congregational church at Easthampton for more than twenty-five years. When a young woman Miss Colton went abroad to study vocal music and later was teacher of this branch at the Farmington (Conn.) seminary for girls. During this time she first became interested in oriental languages through contact with several pupils from the far East. This interest soon became a passion, and she has since devoted most of her time to the acquisition of the different tongues. She has been for many years a fluent user of the romance languages, such as Italian, Spanish and French.

Her elementary training in the eastern languages was obtained in Yale college and she was looked upon as a prodigy there. During her studies at Yale she became acquainted with Prof. Frank K. Sanders, dean of the theological seminary, who had spent three years in India, and while in Berlin studying Miss Colton was invited to join him in a trip to India to engage in the study of Sanscrit and other eastern languages. They have been in the mountains on the borderland of Afghanistan, where the first articulate speech is supposed to have originated.

Miss Colton speaks forty languages fluently, including the most difficult in the world to learn, such as Chinese, Pali, Avestan, Sanscrit, Hebrew, Syrian, Assyrian, Arabic and Persian. No other linguist has ever been known to speak more than thirty-three tongues.

Novel Uses of Ice.

A government expert has devised a novel method of keeping a car or compartment comparatively warm in zero weather; not by fire, but by the utilization of ice, says the National Provisioner. A well insulated car is fitted each end with four galvanized iron cylinders reaching from the floor to the top of the car. In summer these cylinders are filled with ice and salt to keep the car cool. In winter they are filled wth ice to keep the contents of the car from freezing.

Ice is nominally at a temperature of 32 degrees Fahrenheit and is a substance that changes temperature reluctantly, being a poor conductor of heat or cold. Consequently when zero weather prevails outside the cylinders of relatively warm ice prevent the escape of heat, in other words they maintain the temperature within the car.

Another method whereby ice is employed for protection against cold consists in throwing a plentiful stream of water on the car when the temperature is near zero point, which freezes at once and forms a complete coat over the car. The action of this ice is the same as in the case of the cylinders filled with ice. A similar plan is frequently adopted in the transportation of bananas, a fruit particularly susceptible to cold.

Large-Eyed Animals.

Horses, giraffes and ostriches have, in proportion to their size, larger eyes than any other living creature.

SEEING ROOMS BY GASLIGHT.

Fastidious Requirements of People Who Rent Expensive Apartments.

"There is no end to the troubles of the modern landlord," said the man with pronounced wrinkles, to a New York Press man. "What with the gas company and prospective tenants, his days and nights are filled with woe. I believe those two forces of evil—the gas company and the possible tenants—are leagued against me. Anyhow, the situation is peculiar. One day a woman came to look at one of my most expensive apartments.

"'The rooms seem very nice by daylight,' she said, 'but I couldn't think of taking the place until I find out how it looks at night. I'll come back this evening and see the decorations by gaslight.'

"'But the gas isn't turned on,' I explained. 'I'll bring in a few lamps. Won't that do just as well?'

"'Not at all,' said my possible tenant. 'There is no comparison between the two kinds of light. I entertain a great deal and I couldn't possibly sign a lease for a place that doesn't look well when illuminated. Couldn't you get the gas turned on before night?"

"I explained that it was an unheard of thing to keep the gas meter at work in an unoccupied flat, but rather than lose such a good tenant as that woman promised to be I moved heaven and earth and the gas company and got the illuminating power turned on. Since then I have learned that most people who rent expensive apartments insist upon seeing the rooms by night, as well as by day, before they will sign a lease; consequently I have to keep the gas going in all my vacant flats. Such fastidiousness on the part of my tenants plays right into the hands of the gas company. No wonder I suspect that they may be working a partnership game."

He Met Shorty.

Nicknames are sometimes deceptive things, and they are oftentimes extremely funnny. I was in a small town not many miles south of Boston, and, asking for a certain piece of information, I was informed by several that "Shorty" could give it to me, and he seemed to be the only man who could. Not knowing just who "Shorty" was, I made further inquiries, and was told that he could be found in the store just across the square.

"Just ask for 'Shorty,'" I was told. "Anyone will show him to you."

I went over to the store as directed and looked vainly about for some one who might answer the name. Only one man was present, and he was almost a seven-footer. After looking about a moment I started to leave.

"Lookin' for some one, stranger?" he observed.

"Yes, I'm looking for 'Shorty,'" I told him.

A broad grin overspread his face.

"Guess you've got him," he murmured. "I'm your man."—Boston Traveler.

Must.

"Do you think he loves me?"

"He must."

"Am I so beautiful?"

"No, but you haven't any money."—Houston Post.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION

date from using the rights of the ordinary citizen.

This proposed distinction between editorial and advertisement was welcomed by every paper in the state. True, it may be that occasionally a publisher has sold the influence of his paper, but such instances have been rare. The common policy of politicians has been the outright purchase of newspaper properties, when they wanted them worse than the publishers, instead of the purchase of "influence." But tho no publisher would support a candidate who was not his personal choice, it is also true that no candidate could ask a publisher to devote his time and space to the candidate's interests without reasonable payment therefor, any more than he could ask others to work for him without recompense of any kind. The present law, by placing such matter where it properly belongs, in the advertising columns, will effectually prevent unprincipled grafters, who judge others by their own low moral standard, from charging that a publisher is to be bought and sold, when he demands a few dollars for the actual expense incurred.

The editorial columns will be made even more effective, because freed from all possible suspicion, and candidates will find that the statement of Judge Howell that "My worst enemy can get justice in my court, but I'd have you understand, sir, that it won't hurt any man to have been my friend," will be particularly applicable to the new condition.

J. E. COCHRAN ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

I will be a candidate at the primary election on the republican ticket for representative to the legislature; and if elected to that office will support and urge the enactment of the following measures in which the people of the county are interested.

A local option liquor law like that defeated at the last session. In principle it is right and no valid objection can be urged against it.

A law making one thousand dollars the minimum license fee for saloons in city or county and prohibiting the use of screens, shades, blinds or stained glass in saloon buildings. That the number may be lessened, the grade bettered, and the officers and public see what is doing within.

A law empowering County Commissioners to transfer county moneys awaiting payment of uncalled war rants (many of which will never be called) to other use whereby the tax payers may have the use of such funds, rather than that they be kept in county and bank vaults.

A law whereby small estates may be probated with much less expense and delay.

A law increasing bounties for the killing of wild animals that destroy the young of domestic animals, and that especially feed upon the young of the elk and deer that will soon be nearly or quite exterminated unless better protection by law is afforded.

A liberal appropriation for fish hatcheries in the waters of our lakes and tributary streams; such a measure as was vetoed 3 years ago by Governor McBride.

A law making road supervisors elective offices; and their election and also the election of county commissioners by the electors of their respective districts only. The electors of each district are better qualified to select capable men than it is possible for those of other districts to do for them.

A law protecting bank depositors from loss of funds. This should be done not only that the funds of the depositor may at all times be protected thereby; but it would inspire confidence in and protect banks from withdrawal of funds at times of public fright.

I will actively support all other such measures as the people of the county deem best for the public good.

For U. S. Senator I will support and vote for the candidate receiving the highest number of votes cast upon the republican ticket at the primary election for that office. A neglect or refusal to do this would not only be a refusal to obey the plain spirit of the primary election law, but would be in open defiance to the expressed will of the people.

Before the primary election I will in the exercise of my right of citizenship, support for that office Hon. Wesley L. Jones, who has by his industry, able and extended service of ten years in Congress endeared the people of Washington State to him, and on his merit and true worth alone attained position of influence and honor in that honored body.

My campaign will be conducted strictly within the primary election law, which means fight in the open through the press and from the stump; the law whereby it is sought to "unhorse" the political "bosses" and abolish the equally obnoxious "hide and go seek" policy of candidates.

Under its provisions people ought not permit candidates to go before them "gagged" or "muzzled" on questions affecting their common interests or public welfare.

The measures to which I stand committed I will publicly advocate before the primary election. I will appreciate the cooperation and support of such republican electors as desire that measures of that character be enacted into statute law of this state.

J. E. COCHRAN.

INSURANCE OF BANKS.

Port Angeles, April 2nd.

Ed. Olympic-Leader:—

Don't you think there should be some agitation on the insurance of banks by the state in order to secure the depositors. I think such a law passed by our Legislature would not only be a great advantage in securing depositors, but would be best for the banks as they could do business on a safe business and would undoubtedly get thousands of dollars to handle where they now get hundreds. There is undoubtedly a vast amount of money held by private individuals that should be in circulation, so as to build up our industries. I know of men who have hundreds of dollars that they won't deposit for fear they could not get their money when they wished to use it. I think there should be a great agitation on this matter, as I am satisfied it will be of great advantage.
Respectfully,
A. Citizen.

LAVENDER LEAVES.

The waving corn was green and gold,
The damask roses blown,
The bees and busy spinning-wheel
Kept up a drowsy drone,
When Mistress Standish, folding down
Her linen, white as snow,
Between it laid the lavender,
One summer long ago.

The slender spikes of grayish green,
Still moist with morning dew,
Recalled a garden sweet with box
Beyond the ocean blue—
An English garden, quaint and old,
She nevermore might know;
And so she dropped a homesick tear
That summer long ago.

The yellow sheets grew worn and thin,
And fell in many a shred;
Some went to bind a soldier's wounds
And some went to shroud the dead.
And Mistress Standish rests her soul
Where graves their shadows throw
And violets blossom, planted there
In summers long ago.

But still between the royal roses
And lady-lily tall
Springs up the modest lavender
Beside the cottage wall.
The spider spreads her gossamer
Across it to and fro—
The ghost of linen laid to bleach
One summer long ago.

Uncle Robert and The Predicament

"Chatter, chatter, chatter!" grumbled Uncle Robert, stumping into the sitting-room on a well leg, a rheumatic leg and a heavy cane. "Where's Anne?"

"In a predicament," answered Hilda. Uncle Robert sank with a groan into one chair, lifted his rheumatic leg to another, and laid his cane across the sewing table beside him.

"Predicament, hey?" he rumbled. "Well, now, let me tell you that no one free from rheumatism knows what a predicament is!"

"Perhaps not," returned Hilda, with decision, "but if you had to wear Aunt Margaret's Christmas presents, you'd think differently." Mrs. Greenleaf was a warm friend and near neighbor of the Tuppers. To Hilda and Anne she was "Aunt" Margaret. "Mother," continued Hilda, turning to Mrs. Tupper, "I do think you ought to interfere. The very idea of Anne's going up there with an evening dress that's old enough for you to wear, to say nothing of being shoddy—and among strangers, too! It's preposterous!"

Uncle Robert made a wry face and moved his rheumatic leg, looking about for a cushion to place under the knee; but Hilda did not notice. Neither did Mrs. Tupper, whose face wore an expression in which perplexity and satisfaction were mingled.

"No, Hilda," she returned, "Anne must act for herself in this matter."

Uncle Robert twisted his face into a knot, emitted a sigh, to which no attention was paid, and asked, testily, "What's all this fuss about, anyway?"

"Anne has an invitation to a house party——" began Mrs. Tupper.

"And Aunt Margaret's last Christmas present is going to spoil it all," Hilda interrupted just as Anne herself appeared on the scene, bearing over her arm a dress, voluminous in quantity, cheap in quality, and in color a deep lavender.

Uncle Robert frowned forbiddingly. "If you had rheumatism, such trifles as dress wouldn't trouble you. What's that?"

"It's the predicament!" announced Hilda, succinctly.

Anne laid the dress gently over a chair-back. "It was lovely of Aunt Margaret to give it," she said, simply.

"Huh!" ejaculated Hilda. "It's the worst present she could have given you, and I should be awfully ashamed to have you wear it at that house party!"

"If I didn't, Aunt Margaret would be——"

"Now, Anne," interrupted Hilda, impatiently, "you've said the same thing for two days. Of course she would be hurt, but she'd be brought, nevertheless, to her senses. If I hadn't hurt her two years ago, I'd be going round now in a fire-red cheap silk trimmed with black braid!"

Anne looked down silently at the obnoxious lavender. Only she knew how hurt Aunt Margaret had been. Her lips tightened. Mrs. Tupper rocked speechlessly and looked at her younger daughter with a smile, while Uncle Robert groaned, readjusted his rheumatic leg, and began drumming on the arms of his chair, a process which set Hilda's nerves on edge.

Anne glanced up quickly, then brought a cushion, and placed it under the rheumatic knee, asking:

"Is your rheumatism worse to-day, uncle?"

The knots in Uncle Robert's face instantly untied themselves. His eyes lighted up, and he straightened himself quickly, despite his lameness.

"Worse!" he vociferated. "Worse! Well, I guess it is! Thought I'd never get through last night. I went to bed at ten, and lay awake until two. Then I dozed off for an hour—not a deep sleep, you understand, only a fitful nap—and after that I never shut my eyes until six." Uncle Robert looked actually cheerful. "At six I must have dropped off again, because——"

"Anne," interrupted Hilda, "if I'm going to alter this dress, I want to be about it."

Anne pushed the cushion a trifle farther under Uncle Robert's knee. "I think, Hilda, I'll not have it touched. Any alteration would hurt——"

"Anne Tupper!" cried Hilda, sitting up with a jerk. "Do you mean that you are going up there with this awful yoke just as it is?"

Anne nodded. "I can't bear to wear it, Hilda, but I don't want to hurt——"

Uncle Robert leaned forward and fixed Anne with a pair of shrewd but not unkind eyes. "If you don't want to hurt Mrs. Greenleaf, why don't you take that rigging with you, but wear something else?"

Anne hesitated and shook her head. "I couldn't do that way," she began, and would have gone further had not Hilda spoken more rapidly.

"Aunt Margaret will ask her just when and where she wore it. Now I could manage all right to evade her—I have done it a score of times—but Anne won't."

"Anne can't," corrected the mother, gently.

Anne's evasions were weak and transparent. "Anybody," Anne often sighed, "can see right through them. If only I were as quick and apt as Hilda!"

"The pain"—Uncle Robert struck in with disconcerting abruptness, as if the subject had never traveled away from rheumatism—"took me just above the knee this morning, and followed this muscle"—he pointed—"down to my ankle. Now that is a new spot, and I'm going up to the city to-morrow morning to see Dr. Welch. There isn't a doctor in this town that knows a thing about rheumatism." He picked up his cane and pounded on the floor for emphasis. "Not one! They're all alike and wofully ignorant."

Hilda, ralizing that he was fully launched on his favorite theme, left the room. Mrs. Tupper picked up a white waist she was making for Anne, and busied herself, but Anne basted seams and listened.

"I believe," Uncle Robert went on, loudly, "that nowadays the subject of rheumatism is left out of the medical curriculum. The more I'm treated the worse I get."

"I'm sorry," responded Anne, sympathetically.

"Now to-morrow I'll try Welch, and if he doesn't do me any good, I shall give up and stay at home and suffer in silence. I shall know that doctoing is no good."

Uncle Robert reached out absentmindedly with the crook of his cane and drew to his side the chair on which lay the lavender. Putting the dress on the seat of the chair, he rested his elbow on the back, all the time talking.

"Doctoring is no good, anyway. Look at Mrs. Greenleaf. She's always doctoring and always ailing. I don't see how she can stop taking patent medicines long enough to make dresses," scornfully poking the lavender gown. "She thinks she's worse off than any one else, but she isn't, and won't be until she gets the rheumatism."

"It must be very painful," murmured Anne.

Hilda returned with a white skirt and sat down at the sewing machine.

"What must be painful?" she asked in a bored tone.

"The rheumatism!" groaned Uncle Robert. "Wait until you have all the kinds at once—articular, muscular and a touch of inflammatory, and you'll think so, too. Dr. Brown," he added, looking about with an inquiring eye, "advises me to drink water—drink it by the quart and gallon. Now I——"

Anne rose with alacrity and left the room. Hilda ran the machine at the top of its speed and wished that Uncle Robert would find something else to talk about. Mrs. Tupper turned tucks placidly and ran them neatly.

Presently Anne reappeared with a pitcher and glass. Uncle Robert relieved her of both, and poured a glassful of water, setting the pitcher on the edge of the sewing table. Then he sipped water and detailed his symptoms to Anne, going again over his sleeplessness of the night before and the reasons which induced him to consult a city physician.

Anne listened patiently as she basted the sleeves of her waist, endeavoring conscientiously to confine her thoughts to rheumatism and keep them away from the lavender dress.

Presently Uncle Robert began to take his leave. It was a tedious process. He groaned and lifted his rheumatic leg down from the chair. Anne at once hastened to hold his cane while he lifted himself up slowly with a hand on each chair-arm. Once on his feet, he groaned again, and reached for the cane.

Then something unexpected happened—that is, it was unexpected to the Tuppers. No one ever was told whether or not it was unexpected to Uncle Robert. But somehow, as he turned, his cane became mixed up with the pitcher, which instantly discharged its contents over the lavender dress.

"Now see what I've done!" cried Uncle Robert, in a tone intended to be rueful.

Promptly dropping his cane, with movements surprisingly quick for one afflicted with three varieties of rheumatism, he seized the lavender and bundled it together, muttering something about "water on the carpet."

Hilda flew away from the sewing machine, and seizing the limp bundle from Uncle Robert's arms, shook it out, crying in a tone ringing with triumph, "Anne, you can never put it on again! It's ruined!"

"Oh!" cried Anne. "Oh!" Involuntarily her face lighted with joy.

Uncle Robert picked up the pitcher. "It's broken," he grumbled, "and I wager it's your best one!"

Hilda made no reply. She was gloating over the ruined dress; but Anne took the china fragments from Uncle Robert's hand, saying earnestly, "Never mind, uncle—accidents will happen."

Over Anne's head Uncle Robert's eyes met Mrs. Tupper's in a sly twinkle, but he only cleared his throat gruffly and thumped the floor with his cane.

"I hope," Anne began, a shade of anxiety creeping into her voice, "that Aunt Margaret won't be hurt——"

"You leave Aunt Margaret to me!" rumbled Uncle Robert. "I'll go over now and explain what I've done. Hope she won't expect me to listen to an account of her neuraligia, though. Once get her started on that subject and she never knows when to stop. I'll look out for that and head her off!"

Still speaking and frowning deeply, Uncle Robert opened the front door. But as he slammed the door behind him he chuckled.

A few moments later Hilda and Anne, watching him from the window, saw him emerge from Aunt Margaret's side door, followed by Aunt Margaret's voice, "Yes, I knew water would spoil it. Poor child! How disappointed she will be; but perhaps I can manage——"

Uncle Robert struck the porch floor with his cane, and interrupted briskly, "No, you will mange nothing of the kind! As long as I spoiled the dress I'll make it good. In fact, I'm going to take Anne up to the city to-morrow and let her pick out one to take its place."

"O, Hilda, did you hear that?" gasped Anne, in delight.—Youth's Companion.

IN EAST AFRICA.

Where Natives Cover Themselves With Hair Oil and Grease.

Frank Carpenter writes most interestingly of life in Nairobi, the metropolis of British East Africa, which the English believe will be in time one of the greatest cities in Africa.

I have given the total population of Nairobi as 15,000. I doubt whether it has 1,000 whites. Of the remainder, about one-third are East Indians, and the others are the queerest Africans you can imagine. I speak of them first because they are everywhere. You stumble over them on the street; they wait you in the hotels; they carry burdens for you, and they clog your footsteps when you go outside town. Many of the natives wear dirty, greasy cloths, not more than a yard wide and two yards long. They hang them about their shoulders and let them fall down on each side, so that they flap this way and that in the breeze. In the early morning, when the air is still sharp, many of these people are clad in red flannel blankets and they go stalking along with their legs bare to the thigh. Some have the holes in the lobes of their ears so stretched that I can put my fist through them. The loops are so long that when a man takes out his ear plugs he hangs the loop of skin over the top of his ear to prevent it catching onto something and tearing. The loop looks just like a leather strap about as wide as one's little finger nail. I have handled many of them, twisting them this way and that to be sure they were genuine.

"I see a squib in the Globe Trotter, a newspaper of Nairobi, which fits the native costume here. It is: 'A London tailor says that any gentleman can be clad for £25 ($125). The native gentleman of Nairobi can be fully clad for 2 annas (about 25 cents), including the smell.'

"This African smell is everywhere. It loads the market places, and I verily think it might be chopped up into blocks and sold as a new kind of phosphates. The natives cover themselves with hair oil and grease, and the combination of this when it turns rancid and of the natural effluvia which exhales from their persons is indescribable. Others of the natives smear their faces with a mixture of grease and red clay. They cover their hair with the same material, so that they look more like copper Indians than Africans."

Moody on the Cards.

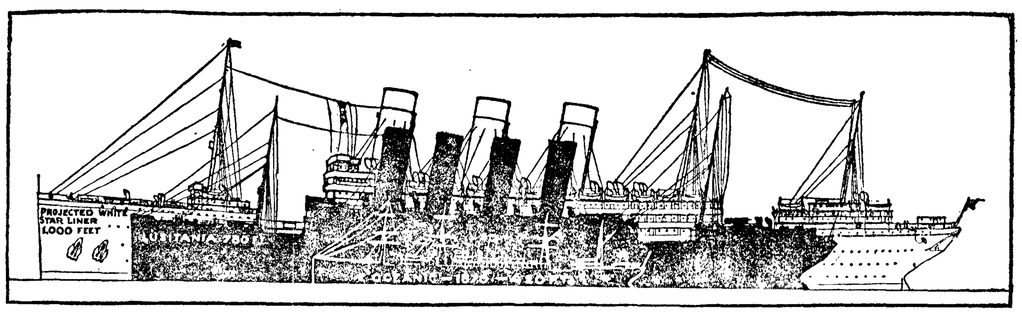
One evening in San Francisco Evangelist Moody sat in his room at the hotel playing a game of cards with Mrs. Moody and two friends when a messenger came in with a dispatch. As the boy stood waiting for a reply, Mr. Moody suddenly asked, "Won't you sit down, my lad, and have a game of authors with us?"

The boy declined and soon left the room. Hardly had the door closed when Mrs. Moody said, "Why, Dwight, what made you think of inviting that boy to sit down and play with us?"

"My dear," replied Moody, "don't you see, if I had not called the boy's attention to the fact that we were playing authors all the morning papers would certainly have announced under big headlines that D. L. Moody had been discovered in a San Francisco hotel engaged in a game of cards?"

It is a pitiful thing to hear a good baby cry.

TO BUILD VESSELS ONE-FIFTH OF A MILE LONG.



It is a rapid age in which we live. So new are the new Cunarders that one has not had time to lose wonder over these gigantic liners, to cease to marvel at their immensity of length and tremendous power. It looked as though these 790-feet steamships were to be the last word in marine construction, and that their 68,000 horse power marked the limit of motive strength. But now, while one is yet marveling at these new marvels, it is announced that the White Star Steamship Company has contracted for the construction of two steamships that are to have the amazing length of 1,000 feet each, a length 210 feet greater than that of the Lusitania and 320 feet more than was the length of Brunel's great failure—the Great Eastern. These two steamships are intended to be far ahead of anything yet designed. Extraordinary speed will not be sought for in these larger vessels. About twenty knots an hour will be their gait

Playing with Fire

He lunched at his club, and drove to Cavendish square in the afternoon. A footman informed him that Mrs. Mowbray was at home, and he was shown into the drawing room and left to his own reflections. After an interval of about five minutes she came in.

The three years which had passed since he had seen her had scarcely changed her at all. He noted the small head perfectly poised, with its crown of fair hair, the slightly tilted chin, and the gray eyes that had lingered in his memory ever since she had dismissed him. Now he saw them light up with pleasure at the sight of him. She smiled radiantly.

"Geoff!" she said, "is it possible?"

"It's more than possible, it's an actual fact," he replied. "I got back to England a week ago."

She looked at him with her head on one side.

"You're not changed," she pronounced, after a pause of inspection.

"You are," he answered.

"Am I? In what way?"

"In a very important one. When I left you you were a girl; now you're a married woman."

"A change for the better," she laughed lightly.

"Of course! Especially when your husband is so celebrated a man."

"Oh, celebrity has its penalties," she answered, smiling. "You see, my husband is so immersed in his work and has so many scientific meetings to attend that I see very little of him. At times I am tempted to wish that he was not quite so distinguished."

"An ill-natured friend," he said, cheerfully, "informed me this morning that you crept under the lens of his microscope in order to attract his attention."

"Horrid! Who was it? Well, in a way I suppose I did. At least, I took a lively interest in all his doings. I had made up my mind to marry him, and found the infusoria the best way of accomplishing my purpose. You see I am frank."

"Very frank. And now that you have accomplished it, I suppose you are quite happy."

"Not quite. One can't be quite happy in this world, can one? You see, a scientific man can't be always looking down the microscope at one object. So after a time he took me off the slide and began looking at the other—infusoria."

"Kitty! You don't mean——!"

She broke into a ripple of laughter.

"You absurd boy!" she cried. "How could you think——! But you don't know the professor. He is older than I am, of course. And I don't suppose he had ever looked at a woman before—well, before I put myself under the lens. And now that he has actually married one of us—has gone through the ceremony, so to speak—I am sure he considers that he has done his duty by the sex for the rest of his days. No. He has gone back to the other kind of infusoria—horrid little things with waggly tails. He finds them more attractive. You see how frank I am."

"Then be franker still," he replied, "and tell me why you married him?"

"Well, it was a kind of experiment," she admitted. "I wanted to know how it felt to be the wife of a celebrated man; and besides I fell in love with him."

"And was there nothing?" he asked, in a slightly lowered tone, "no thought no memory of——?"

"Of?"

"Well, of me?" he said, bending down a little toward her and looking keenly into her eyes.

She blushed a little.

"None at all," she answered, hurriedly. "Don't be foolish, Geoff. All that boy and girl nonsense was over ever so long ago."

He straightened himself.

"Oh, well," he said, morosely. "I'm afraid I must be going. So glad to have seen you, Mrs. Mowbray. Pray give my kind regards to your husband and tell him how greatly I regret——"

"Now you are more foolish than ever, Geoff," she laughed. "I'm not going to let you go so soon. You must come often, and we must see a great deal of one another. I get so bored at times. Sit down and have some tea, and tell me all about South Africa."

At tea their tete-a-tete was interrupted by the appearance of the professor and his sister. The professor was an elderly man, stooping slightly under the weight of his years, a trifle short-sighted, and with little puckerings about his right eye due to years of research at the microscope. His sister, almost his own age, rigidly erect in black satin, had obvously no touch of his absent-mindedness. She was even unpleasantly alert; and Geoffrey, as he caught her eye fixed upon him with suspicious inquiry, felt absolutely uncomfortable, and was glad when the time came when he could take his departure gracefully.

"Good-bye, Geoff," said Kitty, as she shook hands. "Remember now—we expect to see a good deal of you as long as you are in town."

"Delighted," murmured the professor. "I'm a busy man myself. But my wife will always be glad to entertain you."

Geoffrey lost no time in availing himself of the invitation so frankly extended. At theaters, at concerts and in the park, he was constantly to be seen in Kitty's society. Her manner tantalized him. She was always friendly, always glad to see him; and there were times when he thought that their intimacy was becoming more than mere friendliness. But Kitty was elusive. She knew how to skate daintily over thin ice, to turn a difficult situation with a laugh. It was slow work. But in proportion to its difficulty, his desire increased until it became a passion, wasting his days and giving him sleepless nights. He hated the professor now, and mingled with his hatred was a touch of contempt for the man who, possessing such a treasure, did not know how to value it.

He was sitting at tea with her. His manner was moody and abstracted. After a pause he looked up.

"I'm going away," he announced, abruptly.

"Going away!" she cried, involuntarily. "When?"

"To-night."

"To-night! Why?"

"Why not? I'm doing no good here. I've been a fool for staying so long."

She strove to laugh, but the effort was a failure. She was conscious of a momentary sense of restraint. Then she was actually frightened as he rose and came over to her.

"You know why I am going," he said, tensely. "What right had you to play with me all this time—to hold out a promise?"

"I gave no promise," she interrupted, quickly.

"No, you didn't; not in so many words. You hadn't the pluck for that. You didn't mean anything really. You were content to play."

She was fascinated by his earnestness.

"But, Geoff," she whispered. "If I were not playing?"

He knelt beside her, and his fingers tightened upon her arm.

"If you were not! Kitty! Do you mean what you are saying? Come with me then—come to-night. I've made all arrangements to leave for Paris. We can catch the 11 o'clock from Victoria. Will you come?"

"Oh, how can I? Yes. No. I don't know!"

The sound of the opening door startled them. He stood up swiftly, just in time, Miss Mowbray, the professor's sister, entered the room. When she saw them her eyelids narrowed. Half an hour later Miss Mowbray confronted her brother in his study.

* * * * *

Geoffrey had intended to send in the note by the servant. But seeing the professor, a flash of mischievous humor made him hand it to him.

"For Mrs. Mowbray?" he said. "Do you mind? Thanks, so good of you. It contains a few arrangements for our expedition this evening. We are going to the theater."

The professor took it in silence, and watched him as he turned away. Then he went into the house and entered the drawing room. His wife was leaning against the mantelpiece.

"From Mr. Arnott," he said, handing it to her gravely.

She opened it with assumed carelessness. It contained a desperate appeal. For a moment she felt an intense indignation that he should have dared to make her husband the bearer of such a message. Then the fire died down, and she thought of what life might possibly come to mean with a man who loved her and who did not merely accept her as a fact in the routine of a somewhat colorless life. She raised her eyes to meet those of her husband.

"Thomas," she said, curiously, "are you busy this evening?"

"I have a meeting," he answered dubiously.

"Is it very important?" she asked, with a slightly mocking stress upon the word.

"It has a certain importance."

"Then you wouldn't give it up if I asked you?" she said slowly.

Some instinct told him that the question meant much to him.

"I would," he answered, quietly.

"Oh, Thomas!" she cried, surprised. "But your meeting! Why?"

"Because, my dear," he answered, courteously, "I consider it more important to please you. Do you really wish me to give it up?"

"Mr. Arnott and I am going to a theater," she said. "I do wish you would come with us."

"I will," he answered.

She let the letter fall into the fire, and watched its edges curl and blacken in the flames.

"He is to call for us at 7," she said.

The theater party was not a success. Constraint reigned in the box. Arnott strove hard for a word with Kitty, but she gave him no chance. She kept her husband constantly at her side. When it was over, Arnott shook hands, a defeated man.

"Good-bye, Mrs. Mowbray," he said. "I shall not see you again. I leave for Paris to-morrow."

"A pleasant journey," she answered.

When he had gone, the professor, conscious of the evening's restraint, looked at her anxiously.

"I'm afraid you have not had a pleasant evening, my dear," he said.

"No matter," she replied. "I'm so happy, Thomas. Take me home."—Black and White.

Not a Soloist.

The late Theodore Thomas was rehearsing the Chicago Orchestra on the stage of the Auditorium Theater. He was disturbed by the whistling of Albert Burridge, the well-known scene painter, who was at work in the loft above the stage. A few minutes later Mr. Thomas' librarian appeared on the "bridge" where Mr. Burridge, merrily whistling, was at work.

"Mr. Thomas' compliments," said the librarian, "and he requests me to state that if Mr. Burridge wishes to whistle he will be glad to discontinue his rehearsal."

To which Mr. Burridge replied, suavely: "Mr. Burridge's compliments to Mr. Thomas; and please inform Mr. Thomas that, if Mr. Burridge cannot whistle with the orchestra, he won't whistle at all."—Success Magazine.

TWO MILES A MINUTE.

Hundred Miles an Hour Already Attained by German Electric Car.

A seventy-foot car on the Berlin-Zossen High-Speed Electric Railway, a military road between the German cities of Berlin and Zossen, made the remarkable speed of ninety-nine and a half miles an hour in a test on Nov. 16. The car which established this new record for railway speed, steam or electric, was built in Germany last year, and has attracted world-wide attention because of its unique constructive features of having three trolleys, and the expectations of its builders that it would run 124 miles an hour, or more than two miles in a minute.

In running at the rate of ninety-nine and a half miles an hour the three-phase, or three-trolley, electric car employed 10,000 volts of electricity, 2,000 volts less than the capacity. The current was furnished by the Oberspree central station of the Berliner Elektrictaetswerke, the distance from the central station to the nearest point on the line conductor being 9.3 miles. The transformers are carried by the car itself, a low voltage (435) being used for the motors. In a paper before the International engineering congress at Glasgow, Scotland, A. Lasche, one of the builders of the Berlin-Zossen road and its equipment, says it is still questionable whether to mount the heavy transformers on the cars, or whether it is not better to reduce the high pressure—50,000 volts—by transformers alongside the track to a medium pressure of about 3,000 volts, and to wind the motors for this latter voltage.

The car which has come within a half mile of 100 an hour was built at Cologne-Deutz to accommodate fifty passengers. Its length over all is 69 feet, and the distance between its buffer plates is 72½ feet. The full width of 8 feet 6 inches. The windows of the car are closed, ventilation taking place through the side window of the lofty skylight. The apparatus is in the center dividing the car into two apartments, though passengers may pass through the apparatus room while the car is at full speed. The trucks, carrying the body of the car, are 43 feet and 7 inches apart. The diameter of each truck wheel is 49.2 inches. Each truck has three axles, the two outer axles carrying the motors. The distance between the wheels measures 12 feet and 6 inches. The load for each axle is a little more than fourteen tons. Each of the eight motors is adapted for a normal output of 250 horse power, and for a maximum output of 750 horse power. The speed of the motor is about 950 revolutions per minute, which corresponds to a car speed of 140 miles an hour. The tension of 12,000 volts, at which the current is supplied from the overhead wire, is reduced in the transformers to 435 volts.—The Hesperian.

Honesty and Horses.

Bishop Potter tells a good story. One concerned a vestryman who spoke in the most laudatory terms of the honesty of a certain individual. "I am glad to hear it," the bishop remarked, "for I have just bought a pair of horses from him." The vestryman looked a little uneasy. "Well, you see that's different!" he said.

A similar story was current in Calcutta forty years ago, says a correspondent of a contemporary, which gives it as follows: "Bishop Wilson of Calcutta, preaching one Sunday morning on 'Honesty,' at St. John's, the old cathedral, said, 'You hardly know what some people will do. Now there is my dear friend, the archdeacon, a holy man, so you think. He sold me a pair of horses for 1,000 rupees that were not worth 10 annas.' In the evening the archdeacon preached, and commenced his sermon by saying that he must allude to some personal remarks of the bishop. 'It was quite true,' he said, 'that he sold Bishop Wilson a pair of horses for 1,000 rupees, but unfortunately it was also true that the bishop had never paid him even the 10 annas which, according to him, they were worth.'"

The Truth Revealed.

Here are the results of some actual investigations made by Woman's Home Companion in its campaign for clean grocery stores:

"I asked the grocer whose customers could not afford to buy package goods how he sold the best grade of rice in his stock. He weighed out a pound of large, plump-grained rice at sixteen cents. I duplicated that pound at another store in a dust-and-germ-proof package at fifteen cents.

"He did have both the bulk and package oatmeal. I bought a pound of bulk at five cents, and a two-pound package of a recognized brand at ten cents. On reaching home I weighed both. The bulk, poured into the scales, weighed an ounce less than a pound. The package weighed exactly two pounds out of the carton. The honest grocer handles package goods that weigh as much as advertised without the carton, understand."

Wise Insects.

In his experiments to determine whether it is the color or the odor of flowers that attracts bees and other insects M. Plateau, the Belgian zoologist, bethought him of trying a mirror. He selected a flower of striking color and strong odor and placed it before an excellent glass in which the reflection was perfect. All the insects went straight to the real flower, and not a single one approached the reflection in the mirror.—Youth's Companion.

Doughnuts.

Half a teacup thin sour cream or rich buttermilk, one teaspoon soda dissolved in a scant teacup of sweet milk, one teaspoon salt, one and one-half teacups sugar, made into a dough with flour a little stiffer than when eggs are used. Flavor with nutmeg.

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents per bottle

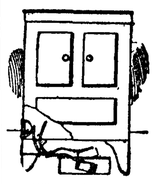
Refrigerator Alarm.

Occasionaly the busy housewife neglects to keep tab on the waste water from the ice in the refrigerator, with the result that the pan placed beneath the waste pipe to catch the drip water overflows. The drip pan being out of sight, she has no way of telling when it is almost full and needs emptying.



THE ALARM.

This overflowing of the waste water is neatly prevented by the contrivance shown in the accompanying illustration, which the inventor calls a "refrigerator alarm." Extending from a bracket attached to the refrigerator is a pivoted "float" which rests in the waste water basin. As the water in the basin increases the float gradually rises also. When the water reaches a predetermined height a small projecting arm comes in contact with a spring bell, causing the latter to ring until the basin is withdrawn. With this warning the housewife knows instantly when the refrigerator needs attention

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

No old sore exists merely because the flesh is diseased at that particular spot; if this were true simple cleanliness and local applications would heal them. Whenever a sore or ulcer refuses to heal readily, the blood is at fault; this vital fluid is filled with impurities and poisons which are being constantly discharged into the place, feeding it with noxious matter and irritating and inflaming the nerves and tissues so the sore cannot heal. These impurities in the blood may be the remains of some constitutional trouble, the effect of a debilitating spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system, or the absorption by the blood of the fermented refuse matter which the bodily channels of waste have failed to remove. Again the cause may be hereditary, the diseased blood of ancestry being handed down to posterity; but whatever the cause, the fact that the sore will not heal shows the necessity for the very best constitutional treatment. There is nothing that causes more worry and anxiety than an old sore which resists treatment. Every symptom suggests pollution and disease—the discharge, the red, angry looking flesh, the pain and inflammation, and the discoloration of surrounding parts, all show that deep down in the blood there are morbid and dangerous forces at work, constantly creating poisons which may in the end lead to Cancer. Local applications are valuable only for their cleansing and antiseptic effects; they do not reach the blood, where the real cause is located, and can therefore have no real curative worth. S. S. S. heals old sores by going down to the fountain-head of the trouble and driving out the poison-producing germs and morbid matters which are keeping the ulcer open. It removes every particle of impurity from the circulation and makes this life-stream pure, fresh and health-sustaining. Then as new, rich blood is carried to the place the healing begins, all discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, new tissue and healthy flesh are formed, and soon the sore or ulcer is well. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers and finest of tonics, just what is needed in the treatment, and in addition to curing the sore will build up and strengthen every part of the system. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

I want to recommend S. S. S. to any who are in need of a blood purifier, and especially as a remedy for sores and obstinate ulcers. In 1877 I had my leg badly cut on the sharp edge of a barrel, and having on a blue woolen stocking the place was badly poisoned from the dye. A great sore formed and for years no one knows what I suffered with the place. I tried, it seemed to me, everything I had ever heard of, but I got no relief and I thought I would have to go through life with an angry, discharging sore on my leg. At last I began the use of S. S. S., and it was but a short time until I saw that the place was improving. I continued it until it removed all the poison from my blood and made a complete and permanent cure of the sore. JNO. ELLIS.

Seven years ago Miller went to Bellingham from Port Angeles and has since then accumulated about $30,000 in money and property. He was 49 years old. — Sedro Woolley Courier.

Momentum of a Sparrow Hawk.—This winter while chasing a sparrow, a little sparrow hawk was led to try his "brain pan" on a pane of window glass, which he went thru with the force of a stone from a boy's "flipper." He struck the window about five feet above the floor and landed on the floor about eighteen feet beyond the window, carrying small pieces of glass with him. The shock stunned him for a moment, but broke no bones. M. B.

SUMMONS.

In the Superior Court of the State of Washington for Clallam county.
Charles Tillman, plaintiff vs. Lemuel Pope, defendant.

The State of Washington to the said Lemuel Pope, defendant:

You are hereby summoned to appear within sixty days after the first publication of this summons, to-wit: within sixty days after the 3rd day of April, 1908, and defend the above entitled action in the Superior Court of the State of Washington for Clallam county, which the plaintiff designates as the place of trial, answer the complaint of the plaintiff in said action, and serve a copy of your answer upon the undersigned attorney for plaintiff at his office and post office address below stated, and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you according to the demand of the complaint which has been filed with the clerk of the court:

The nature and object of said action is to recover judgment against the defendant, Lemuel Pope, in the sum of $200, together with interest thereon at the rate of eleven per cent. per annum from the 11th day of October, 1906, until paid, upon a certain promissory note; together with taxes, attorney's fees and costs; and to foreclose a certain mortgage made by said defendant to the plaintiff to secure the payment of said note, which mortgage is recorded in book 14 of mortgages, at page 43, records of Clallam county, and which said mortgage conveys to the plaintiff the lands described as follows, to-wit:

Lots numbered 10 and 11 in block 60 of Lewis and Mastick's subdivision of Suburban Block 22 of the Townsite of Port Angeles, all in the city of Port Angeles, Clallam county, Washington.

And the further object of said action is to obtain a decree for the foreclosure of said mortgage and sale of said premises, to satisfy said judgment.

JAMES STEWART,
Attorney for plaintiff. Office and post office address, No. 5½ Front street, Port Angeles, Washington.

Dated this 3rd day of April, 1908. the day of the first publication hereof.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the dear friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in life's greatest trial, and those who so deftly wove together the beautiful flowers, we tender our sincerest thanks.
