New Bicycle Safety League Will Enforce Safety Rules, PTA Hears

A new Bicycle Safety League is now being organized with older members of the school patrol in charge of bicycle inspections and enforcement of regulations, City Patrolman Orval Roberts told the PTA City Council Wednesday afternoon.

The patrol boys and girls will inspect all bicycles before city licenses are issued. "Most bicycle accidents are caused by faulty bicycles. Therefore brakes, handlebars, spokes and other parts must be checked OK before licenses are granted," Roberts said.

The school patrol, numbering about 120 boys and 20 girls, will be responsible for meting out punishment for bicycle traffic violations, such as double riding, reckless riding, riding at night without lights, disobeying traffic signals, etc., he said.

They will hold court at 4 p.m. every Thursday in the commissioners room at the police station, commencing in about two weeks. This will give time for issuance of new city bicycle licenses, which is to commence Saturday, February 10, the patrolman explained.

The following punishments for violations are scheduled: First offense, lose use of bike for three days. Second offense, two weeks. Third offense, three months. Fourth offense, lose use of bike until following January 1. Bicycles will be held at the police station during the punishment period.

Eleven school patrol boys or girls will comprise the jury at each court session. One of their number will be judge, but all will participate in the decision. The patrolman in charge of the patrol will be present, also during school term a school teacher.

Roberts also told the PTA council about the organization of the school patrol, of which he is the patrolman in charge, into "incoming" and "outgoing" patrols. The incoming groups act when students are on their way to school, and the outgoing groups when students are leaving school at noon or afternoon.

TALKS ON OPA

Chairman Graham W. Ralston and Vice Chairman Wm. C. Adams of the local OPA price and ration board told the PTA City council about the operation of the wartime price and ration system.

Under general chairman Ralston are two vice chairmen: Wm. C. Adams in charge of all rationing, and Andrew Severyns in charge of all price control.

The local board functions through a series of panels—prices, fuel, food, tires and gas—each composed of a small group of persons selected to study and interpret locally the government's written regulations.

Ration panel chairmen now are: Car mileage, Wm. C. Adams; fuel, Earl Gillespie; food, E. C. Steele.

E. H. Wagner is chairman of the price control committee under Vice Chairman Severyns. Subdivision of price control into additional panels is expected soon due to increasing OPA emphasis on national price control, Ralston said.

None of the board and panel members are paid, and much of the detail work in the OPA office is also done by volunteers.

FAIR DISTRIBUTION

Ralston explained how rationing equalizes the supply of goods so that each person will get a fair share during wartime shortages.

"OPA never determines what or how much is to be rationed," he said. "It has authority only to distribute that portion of gasoline, tires, food, cars, stoves or fuel that has been allocated to civilians by other governmental agencies which determine the allocation between the armed forces and home front."

SUPPORT ESSENTIAL

Adams also addressed the council, emphasizing that the whole structure of rationing is dependent upon the understanding and whole hearted cooperation of the community.

"As increasing supplies are sent to the Pacific battlefronts, we will no doubt become aware of additional shortages here. We should all conserve and share wherever possible, using only what we need," Adams said.

Ralston pointed out that "rationing is sometimes unpopular but if you analyze the method and results, I am sure you will find them to be impartial." He compared wartime price changes here with those in France and China to emphasize the value of our control program.

Yesterday's meeting of the PTA City Council, which consists of all officers of the city's four Parent-Teachers associations, was held in the public library. Announcement was made that a technicolor film, Mr. Beets Goes to Town, will be shown in the schools here March 6.

Storm Over, All Peninsula Roads Are Open Again

All Olympic peninsula roads and highways are open for traffic and flood conditions of streams in the area are over but loggers from the many camps, laid off earlier in the week, will not resume work until next Monday morning, reports from various sources disclose.

The Barnes creek bridge, on the Olympic Highway at Lake Crescent, was open to light traffic around six o'clock last night and at seven the heavy trucks were rolling over. The structure, a temporary detour, pending the construction of a new one, was washed out twice within 24 hours Tuesday. Workmen of the Sound Construction Company, repaired the structure each time.

Loggers of the west end camps were taken from the woods during the period of high wind and floods of Wednesday.

No material damage has been reported from high waters or the wind that blew very hard west of Port Angeles Wednesday. All trees have been cleared from the roads, culverts are carrying the water again and small bridges have been repaired, the state highway department reports.

Custodian of Capitol Cuspidors Cleans, Coddles Gleaming, Glistening Gaboons Graciously

By Dave Adams

OLYMPIA—(AP)—Every man is entitled to his own philosophy about cuspidors, particularly when he stays up every night to make sure they are kept gleaming.

Bald, wizened but bright-eyed little George Gibb, custodian of the senate chamber in Washington's $7,500,000 capitol, believes the cuspidor has a decorative value which should not be overlooked. There is a shiny one parked alongside every senator's desk—even that of Lady Willie Forbus of Seattle.

Gibb is a former Aberdeen restaurateur who says his business fell flatter than a bride's first angel food cake in 1935.

J. J. Burfiend, head janitor in the house of prepresentatives, regards the cuspidors as a utility. Twenty-five pounders that can take an occasion kick without spilling, grace the corridors. Those lawmakers who chew are furnished cuspidors. Those who smoke have ash trays. Pots of flowers, believes Burfiend, are adequate for the lady legislators.

Burfiend and Gibb head crews of seven and eight men and women who each night vacuum the carpets, dust the desks, polish the cuspidors.

In advance of the session they used 1½ gallons of leather dressing in the course of readying upholstered furniture in committee rooms for biennial service.

After the legislators return to their homes the janitors will spray the carpets to discourage moths and wash the marbled walls in clear, cold water. Warm or treated water has a tendency to dull the luster of the capitol's famous marble walls.

The senate chamber has walls of Belgian and German marble, set off by maroon drapes. The Begian marble is dark, the German light.

"It couldn't be any more beautiful if it were hand painted," said Gibb of the German panel work.

The house has walls of pink-hued French marble. Hallways and steps are of Alaskan marble and the state reception room is of Italian marble, a beautiful pattern of white with black streams.

Gibb described as the largest one-piece rug in America the 58 by 30 rug which graces the state reception room.

Another attention compeller is the 102-foot chain by which the great central chandelier is suspended. The chain weighs a ton and a half and dome of the capitol, weights five and a half tons.

During the session of legislature the capitol is something of a bustling community into itself. It has its own telephone exchanges, western union office, post-offices, news stand and public cafeteria.

Helen Carroll of Seattle is postmistress of the senate station; H. A. Knickerbocker, Colville, is house postmaster. In charge of the senate telephone exchange is attractive Burna Jean Holbrook, wife of Lt. (j.g.) Art Holbrook, former University of Washington tennis player now a navy staff officer based at Pearl Harbor. Her aides are Lela Johnson and Mabel Blanchette. All three girls are Olympia residents.

House chamber telephone operators are Mrs. Merton Frances and Mrs. Alice Thompson, both of Olympia.

Two Western Union girls double as teleprinter operators and messenger girl. They are Beverly Dewey and Jean Kincaid, both 18 and both of Lewiston, Idaho. They had been working in the Wenatchee WU office before coming here.

The cafeteria has been operated the past 10 years by Mrs. Annie Ronanovski and her son, Charles. Ordinarily they serve approximately 400 a day, including the coffe customers. Now they serve approximately a thousand meals a day. They ran out of ration points the first week, but the Thurston county OPA office came to their rescue.

The capitol is the seat of brotherly love and culture as well as government.

Two legislative service clubs—Lions and Kiwanis—meet regularly during the session.

Phil Raboin, Klickitat organist, gives daily recitals on an electrical organ in the reception room. He plays request numbers almost exclusively. The leaders on his hit parade are, in this order: Schubert's Ave Maria, Stardust, by Hoagy Carmichael; Londonderry Air, and Tea For Two.

Busiest, noisest and most cluttered up departments on the whole premises by all odds are the press rooms, in which newsmen and newswomen sweat out legislative recesses and to which they rush from Gov. Wallgren's press conferences and house and senate meetings to prepare news accounts for distribution through the news service or to

Emergency Signals At CG Air Base Here Are Explained

In order to relieve some of the confusion which may be in the minds of the people of Port Angeles with regard to the new siren recently installed at the CGAS on Eidz hook, the air station has this date released a list of emergency signals in use at the base:

One long blast; two long blasts; three long blasts; four long blasts; a series of short blasts or undulating signals will be used. Frequent drills are held, therefore the sounding of the emergency signal does not necessarily indicate an emergency. All townspeople hearing the CGAS alarm are requested to refrain from calling the air station inasmuch as the telephone operator on watch cannot under any circumstances release information as to whether the reason for the alarm is for drill purposes or an actual emergency. In case of any emergency which would in any way affect the people of Port Angeles, such information will be transmitted to the local authorities and to radio station KONP immediately upon receipt, the announcement declares.

If for any reason, either for drill or actual emergency it becomes necessary to recall personnel attached to the CGAS and the CG operating base, the signal will be a five-minute sounding of the emergency siren. Anyone hearing this five-minute blast is requested to inform all CG personnel they may see that the general recall has been sounded and that they are to return to the station immediately, the order relates.

One short blast will in all cases indicate secure from either drill or emergency.

House Passes Old Age Pension Bill By Unanimous Vote

OLYMPIA—(AP)— Governor Wallgren's old age pension bill, liberalizing grants to senior citizens, was passed by the house to the senate today on a vote of 98 to 0 with one member absent.

This is the first of the governor's measures to reach this far towards enactment. The bill, revised from an earlier executive submission, reached the house floor only Wednesday and was given second reading yesterday.

It sets a pension floor of $50 monthly for all senior citizens and allows recipients to retain their right to casual and non-recurring earnings. It also retains for pensioners their right, on the basis of need as determined by the social security department, to supplement their grant from regular earnings.

Rep. H. C. Armstrong (D-King), chairman of the special legislative committee investigating the state liquor board's 1943 Kentucky whisky purchases, today told the Associated press his committee will make no further efforts to probe the deal during this session.

"We're going at it later in a bigger way," Armstrong said. "I'm now having drafted a bill calling for an interim committee with a $50,000 appropriation to investigate thoroughly not only that Waterfill and Frazier purchase but a lot of other things that have happened under liquor control in this state in the past four years."

Armstrong said he had gathered in the past few weeks from surveys of reports in offices of the state liquor board, state auditor and state attorney general leads to "many things that may send some people to jail."

Armstrong, who also heads the house liquor control committee, said he has conferred with Governor Wallgren and has his endorsement of a full-fledged interim committee check into liquor.

MOTION TABLED

A motion yesterday by Rep. Arthur Bassett (D-Pierce) that it be amended to exclude aliens was tabled after bitter opposition by Reps. George Hurley (D-King) and Edward L. Pettus (D-Pierce), pension leaders.

Elsewhere on the legislative front, Rep. Julia Butler Hansen (D-Cowlitz, Wahkiakum), chairman of the house education committee, sounded a warning to warring school factions that legislators "are becoming mighty sore about this scrapping."

She made her comment following a lengthy hearing on house bills 162, offered by the state federation of teachers, and 176, backed by the state department of public instruction. The former would set up a state budget board for the schools while the latter asks the continuation of the present system of budget allocations.

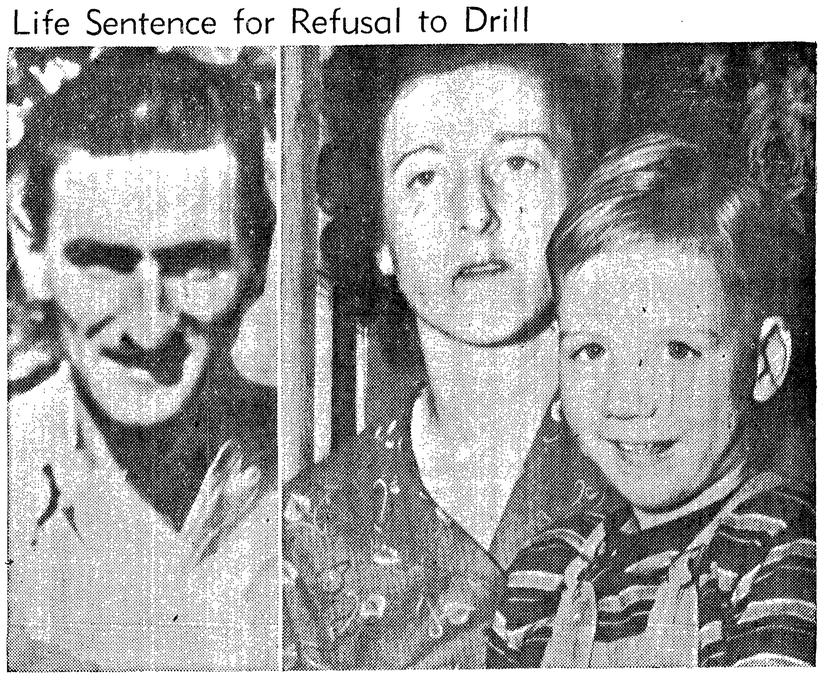
LIQUOR BILL CHANGES

Gov. Mon C. Wallgren confirmed reports that the house liquor control committee plans to scalp his liberalization bill of its local option features on grounds it would lead to annual elections and "constant turmoil."

The committee asserted it planned to bring out a measure giving the state board full power to issue licenses at its discretion, drawing from the governor an expression of confidence in the board's consideration of local community desires by liquor-by-the-drink licenses.

Members of the house roads, bridges and airports committee in hearing on HB 18 which would set up a state aeronautics commission, heard aviation officials describe the federal program which would bring 124 airports to Washington state at the end of 10 years. There now are

Life Sentence for Refusal to Drill



Pvt. Henry Weber (left), 27, former Vancouver, Wash., shipyard foreman and logger, sentenced to death at Camp Roberts, Calif., court martial for refusal to obey order of his commanding officer to drill. The sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment. His wife and four-year-old son, Jaynes, are pictured in their Vancouver home as Mrs. Weber told reporters she had received no official notification of her husband's sentence, that Weber has held to his belief that killing in war can not be justified as long as she had known him. Governor Dewey's Speech Cause of Much Discussion

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Governor Thomas E. Dewey's declaration of cooperation with the administration's international objectives today provoked both praise and dissent among republican congressmen.

In an address last night the 1944 presidential nominee said President Roosevelt has the support of both parties and prayers of the American people in his current meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

But he added "rare" meetings of the big three are not enough, and he criticized what he termed "false liberalism" in postwar domestic plans.

In effect, Dewey told a select crowd of banqueting party members here last night that the GOP quarrel with the administration is one of individualities and methods, not objectives—so far as international relations are concerned.

But on the home front, the 1944 republican presidential nominee found plenty of grounds for political battling. Specifically he mentioned what he called the administration's tendency to believe "that to cure every ill you pass a law and appropriate a billion dollars."

The New York governor's demand for immediate American participation in the international decisions which are revamping the map of Europe found almost universal approval among members of congress.

But his further conclusion that the American people are united in the "wholehearted support to decisions to be made" at the "big three" conference between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill of England and Premier Stalin of Russia unearthed some party doubters.

New England Has Bad Blizzard That Paralyzes Traffic

(By The Associated Press)

The worst New England blizzard in years caused at least 10 deaths, deposited as much as 17 inches of snow atop existing accumulations and paralyzed highway, rail and air transportation.

A shrieking gale and the weight of snow bore down power and communications lines and poles, and trees, crushed a Springfield, Mass., warehouse and damaged much other property. An already acute fuel shortage was made worse.

Boston police estimated 3,000 persons were stranded overnight in hotel lobbies, street cars, bus terminals, police and fire stations.

Meantime a great thaw that began in the Rocky mountain region yesterday spread over the plains states and was moving through the midwest today. Chicago forecasters said it would progress eastward through the Ohio valley and to the east today, tonight and tomorrow.

Whether the thaw when it reaches the east, would be rapid enough to cause floods remained problematical. Minimum temperatures today continued below freezing in northern Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York.

Highway departments finally surrendered and gave up attempting to clear secondary roads. Main highways were jammed with abandoned cars, while many communities lacked electric power. Telephone lines sagged groundward under weight of the wet snow.

In New York City 7,502 men worked last night to remove the fall, while the city health department received 2,468 complaints on lack of heat. There was no indication, however, that drifts anywhere in the state had hampered freight movements.

Army Officer Charged With Murdering Woman

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— Major Stanley W. Duncan was charged with murder last night in a complaint signed by Inspectors Harry Husted and Al Corasso of the police homicide squad.

He is accused of stabbing to death Mrs. Dorothy Turner Vivell, 35, a stenographer in his office at the technical service command headquarters.

The 46-year-old army officer was found unconscious Monday in his apartment, sprawled near a divan upon which slumped his red-haired stenographer, dead of a knife wounds in her breast.

At San Francisco hospital yesterday he was rapidly recovering from what police said was a drug-induced coma.

Storm Danger in NW Declared Over

(By The Associated Press)

Storm dangers throughout the Pacific northwest subsided today with a welcome failure of forecasted rain to appear and cooling temperatures calling a temporary halt to the melting of mountain snows.

Flooded basements, damaged roadbeds and watered farms were reported all over the northwest from Portland, where 80-mile gale winds were reported subsided, to British Columbia. In the latter area, near Burnaby in the Deer Lake region, 15 homes surrounded by water four to five inches deep was the most extensive damage.

In central Washington, bureau of reclamation geologists found a silver lining surrounding their storm clouds. The heavy flow of runoff water gave them their best opportunity to date to determine the directional flow of water seepage from Trail Lake coulee basin.

The tests are expected to reveal whether the coulee could be used in its natural state as part of a main canal to carry water to irrigate more than a million acres of land.

Camera Cruise

With his camera in readiness, Stanley Troutman, NEA Service-Acme newspictures war picture pool photographer, is shown above as he crossed the Calmay River near Dagupan, where he is covering the Yank advance on Luzon. He "chartered" the native-made canoe and Filipino for the journey.

Daily Newspaper Circulation in U. S. Reaches New High

NEW YORK—(AP)—Circulation of 1,744 English language daily newspapers in the United States reached a new high of 45,954,838 during 1944, Editor & Publisher's 1945 yearbook reports.

The publication, out this week, lists the gain over 1943 circulation as 3.4 per cent.

Sunday newspapers also reached a new high, the yearbook says, with 37,945,622 circulation, a 653,790 gain.

The number of morning newspapers increased by five to 388 while the number of evening papers decreased by 15 to 1,406, the publication reports. Several evening papers changed to the morning field in 1944.

Committee Rejects 13 College Regents

OLYMPIA—(AP)—The senate education committee will end a majority report to the senate today rejecting 15 out of 18 college regents appointed by ex-governor Langlie at the close of his term, Chairman Gerald Dixon (D-Pierce) said this morning.

Dixon said the committee will recommend the confirmation of all regents named by Governor Wallgren, among whom were three also appointed by Langlie.

The Langlie appointment were rejected by a vote of 10 to 5 in committee, it was learned, and of the three Langlie appointees approved in committee none was on the University of Washington or Washington State College board, Dixon said. He did not disclose the names of these three.

Sen. Ernest Thor Olson (D-Pierce), chairman of the senate aeronautics committee, said a group of 15 senators will be guests of the Boeing Aircraft Company in Seattle and Renton Saturday. The group will inspect the Boeing plants.

Governor Wallgren's morning press conference was cancelled because of his heavy schedule of appointments with committees placing before him their education bill troubles.

Filipino President's Family Reach Safety

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Mrs. Sergio Osmena, wife of the Philippines president, and three of their children have reached safety of American lines in their native islands after a 30-mile hike over mountainous trails.

Their trek was disclosed today by release of a U. S. army signal corps radiophoto showing the group at an undisclosed—but safe—place in the Philippines.

The commonwealth office here declined to discuss the adventures of the president's wife and children. A spokesman said details were withheld at the request of the war department.

Mrs. Osmena and ten of the president's 11 children remained in the Philippines when the Japanese captured the islands and presumably hid in the hills until American troops drove down to Manila. The eleventh child is in this country. The whereabouts of the seven others who remained with their mother has not been disclosed.

Mother Of Eleven Works To Support Her Children

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Mrs. Lucille DeWolf, 34-year-old mother of 11 children whose monthly military allotment totals $260, says she's working "to make ends meet."

Wife of Fireman 1/c Charles DeWolf of the navy, Mrs. DeWolf said her allotment check will go to $280 when the government "gets around to completing records on the birth four months ago of my youngest, Lucille."

Soldiers Cross Pasig River to Clean Up Manila

(By The Associated Press)

American divisions today are squeezing the last Japanese out of Manila and putting the finishing touches to their campaign on the central Luzon plain.

The 37th division ferried across the Pasig river in the center of the smoldering Philippines capital near the Malacanan palace, which Tokyo reported was in flames. Gen. Douglas MacArthur said they "are assisting the 11th airborne division in clearing south Manila" where Tokyo admitted only suicide squads remained.

Seventy-five miles to the north, the 6th and 25th divisions captured Munoz, Rizal and Lupao in heavy fighting, virtually completing conquest of the central Luzon plains. Remnants of the disorganized Japanese 2nd armored corps, which MacArthur said had lost more than two-thirds of its tanks, were driven into the Nueva Ecija hills, long a favorite hunting ground of Filipino guerrillas.

Solitary B-29s carrying the war to Japan disturbed the sleep of Kobe residents at 2 a.m. in the sixth consecutive day of raids, while a Snooperfort" reconnoitered the Tokyo-Yokohama area for more than an hour.

Secretary of War Stimson said Japanese war industries have not been "fundamentally weakened" despite raids by Superforts flying out of India, the Marianas islands and western China. Primary target has been the aircraft plants, with an estimated capacity of 1,500 a month. The Japanese lost approximately this many planes in January.

MORE JAP SHIPS LOST

Four more small Japanese ships were reported sunk yesterday and two damaged. PT boats bagged two troop laden coastal vessels and a barge in the central Philippines. Two small freighters were sunk and two damaged off the Ryukyu islands by Philippines based bombers.

Iwo island in the Volcano group was bombed for the 63rd consecutive day Wednesday, and three big fires started in Okimura town on Haha island in the Bonins; keeping things hot on the southern approaches to Japan where Tokyo reported the coldest winter in 25 years.

In central Burma three British and Indian columns beat off Japanese counterattacks while amassing men and armament along 100 miles of the Irrawaddy river for an all-out assault on Mondalay.

Heaviest recent Japanese losses in the Philippines have been on the central Luzon plain where MacArthur reported 1,242 dead Nipponese were mounted alone. The U. S. Sixth division also destroyed 42 enemy tanks, 22 guns and 62 miscellaneous military vehicles in taking the town. These belonged to Japan's second armored division, which has lost 200 tanks on the plain.

Japanese artillery fire dwindled in Manila as Americans advanced on the dock area, wanted as a base for further advances.

The city was suffering from an acute food shortage, which won't be relieved until after the Japanese have been mopped up. Hungry crowds looted damaged buildings and mobbed Filipinos who tried to carry sacks of rice down the street. A continued water supply was assured by the Yanks who reported Japanese had prepared to dynamite the main reservoir but had never touched off the explosives.

Rains dampened scattered fires yesterday as demolition squads continued their destructive work south of the Pasig.

The U. S. 14th air force announced its fighter planes destroyed 25 Japanese locomotives and damaged five in central China sweeps around Changsha on the Hankow-Canton railway. Several bridges were blown up on the Japanese rail supply line.

The Tokyo-controlled Saigon radio admitted "important material damage" was caused by Wednesday's Superfortress raid on the Saigon area. It said 170 people were killed and 490 wounded.

British 14th army patrols making the deepest penetration yet reported in central Burma were operating against light enemy resistance at Chauk, 110 miles southwest of Mandalay, where they threatened the Japanese Irrawaddy communication line to Rangoon.

Rumored Col. DeLong Will Be Replaced As Adjutant General

SPOKANE —(AP)— The Chronicle, quoting democrats in the house and senate military committees who conferred with Governor Wallgren this week, said today that Col. Walter J. DeLong would be "removed from the office of state adjutant general when circumstances permit Governor Wallgren to name a democrat to replace him."

"Delong may continue to serve as adjutant general for several weeks," a spokesman at Olympia was quoted.

Delong is also state director of selective service.

The principal "circumstance" standing in the way of a change, the Olympia dispatch said, "is a requirement of state law that his successor must have been an officer of the state guard for 10 years before accepting the appointment. Few can qualify because of war conditions.

The dispatch added that "Governor Wallgren is seeking enactment of a bill making it possible for him to name almost any officer with state guard experience as adjutant general."

CANADIANS ARE DRIVING INSIDE GERMAN LINES

(By The Associated Press)

Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's first Canadian army drove its powerful new offensive to within four miles of burning Kleve, northern terminus of the Siegfried line, biting deeply into fortifications up to four or five miles inside Germany and seizing six more towns.

The assault on the Reichswald defenses, which have been weakened by terrific air and artillery hammering, posed an imminent threat to Kleve. The Dutch village of Leuth was overrun, three miles from the Rhine, where it bends to form the Waal and Neder Rhine in Holland. Frasselt, inside Germany, was the closest point of approach to Kleve.

Some 1,300 U.S. heavy bombers, escorted by more than 850 fighters, smashed at German oil supplies northeast of Leipzig, and struck war-vital factories in central Germany in a continuation of the mighty 24-hour air assault.

The entire northern hinge of the western front flamed with offensive action as Gen. Eisenhower's armies coiled for the spring upon the Rhineland.

While the Canadians and British forged a northern claw for an Allied pincers on the Ruhr, the U. S. first army 85 miles to the south drove within a mile on the great Schwammenauel dam controlling Roer river flood waters and barring the way to the Cologne plain. The U. S. third army advanced within a mile of Pruem, key Siegfried supply base, and reached the Pruem river, eight miles inside Germany.

In the south the French first army shattered last German resistance south of Strasbourg and drew up to the Rhine on a 90-mile front.

One London report said Allied parachute troops had landed in the Reich forest ahead of the Canadian drive.

NEW RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE

On the eastern front Marshal Ivan S. Konev opened a fresh offensive which toppled Parchwitz, 30 miles west-northwest of Breslau and carried almost to Liegnitz, rail center, about eight miles southeast of Parchwitz, the German high command said. Russian forces were within 40 miles of closing the escape gap from Breslau, besieged capital of Silesia.

The drive on Liegnitz menaced a network of German industries in Saxony and the Sudetenland, and Berlin said the fighting in the area "has risen to the pitch of a truly gigantic battle."

At the same time Russian troops smashed northward in German Pomerania toward Stettin on the Baltic, aided by a crushing long-range RAF blow against a synthetic oil refinery at Politz, ten miles north of Stettin. Simultaneously RAF mosquitos rained new destruction on refugee-crammed Berlin. The air offensive continued today, with Allied planes roaring toward western Germany.

Montgomery's Canadian first army, bolstered by British troops, threatened to turn Field Marshal Von Rundstedt's flank and swing down the west bank of the Rhine behind his Roer river concentrations.

ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENT

The army jumped off yesterday after a paralyzing artillery bombardment and a battering of Kleve and Goch at the lower edge of the Reich forest by 700 RAF heavy bombers. It came at a time when powerful American forces were hammering through three new breaks in the Siegfriend line in the center of the western front.

The attack may herald the beginning of the big Allied push all along the front toward the Rhine and the industrial Ruhr. The Germans said the offensive already had extended as far south as the German town of Trier, 20 miles southeast of where the U. S. third army is on the attack opposite the Luxembourg frontier.

The American first and third armies attacked on a 70-mile front, the former on the verge of springing into the Rhineland plain below the Roer dam network which still poses the threat of a drowning flood over Allied forces in the Aachen area.

Also ready for a possible offensive were the U.S. seventh and French first armies in the south, mopping up doomed German pockets. North of Strasbourg the Germans have abandoned Herrlisheim and Offendorg.

Kleve, in the path of the northern offensive, is 35 miles northwest of Duisberg, gate to the industrial Ruhr, Germany's great arsenal. The British were driving on the point where the Rhine curves into Holland.

AIR FORCES BUSY

A massive sky armada of the U.S. 9th air force guarded and supported the attack in the north, while on its right flank the American first army threatened to detour around the Roer line and thrust to the Rhine in the vicinity of Bonn, already in sight of doughboys holding hill positions near captured Schmidt.

The Russian sweep toward Stettin, unofficially reported 19 miles away, menaced 20 nazi divisions in Pomerania and threatened to set up a solid 125-mile front on the Oder for the assault on Berlin. The Russians said their troops were 25 miles from the Baltic port this morning.

The flanking drive into Pomerania seemed aimed at severing Pomerania and the Polish corridor from the Reich, isolating Stettin, Berlin's port, and clearing the lower Oder for the enveloping thrust against the German capital.

THE ROCKET STORY

Professor Who Cracked A Safe Years Ago Partially Responsible for Rockets

By Frank Carey
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON — An obscure Columbia university professor cracked open a safe 45 years ago—all in the interest of science, of course — and wrote an important chapter in the story of American war rockets.

Prof. Charles E. Munroe was experimenting with explosives. He found that if he arranged several sticks of dynamite around the outside of a tin can he attained ten times the destructive power of a solid charge of explosive. It worked swell in breaking open a safe in his laboratory.

Munroe didn't know it, but he had developed the principle that makes the modern 2.36 inch "bazooka" rocket projectile so effective against armor.

Next in the rocket story comes Prof. R. H. Goddard of Clark University, Worcester, Mass. In 1909 he began rocket experiments which led him, nine years later, to publish data supporting the practicability of a rocket flight to the moon!

Goddard didn't try the moon stunt, but by 1936 he had developed a 21-foot rocket, propelled by liquid oxygen and gasoline, that could be shot more than a mile high. It reportedly attained a speed of more than 700 miles an hour.

The projectile had jet-driven centrifugal pumps and an automatic stabilizer — features which so closely parallel those of Germany's V-2 that many physicists think the Germans may have snitched Goddard's patented ideas.

Goddard discontinued his long-range rocket experiments in 1941, when military authorities asked him to concentrate on jet-propelled airplanes.

The Germans did quite a bit of research on rockets — "luft torpedoes" — prior to 1910. There is some evidence that their Zeppelins launched a few rockets against fighter planes in the first world war. It is known for sure that French planes made a few passes at the Zeps with rockets attached to their wing struts.

In 1928 a daredevil German chemist named Tilling designed a rocket-powered racing car which could hit 60 miles an hour within eight seconds. It is believed the nazis applied many of Tilling's findings to war rockets.

Our rocket researches in this war were spurred by successes the Russians and Britishers had achieved.

Since 1941, our studies and developments have been a joint undertaking of the war and navy departments, working with the office of scientific research and development (OSRD). But years before Pearl Harbor an American army officer, Col. L. A. Skinner, had been dreaming of a rocket that could be launched with a shoulder weapon—a one-man rocket gun.

The colonel's wife wouldn't let him fool around with explosives in the house, so Skinner kept his materials buried in fruit jars out in the back yard.

Skinner developed a shoulder launcher — without the rocket charge—in 1941, but since we were not at war then, we couldn't stir up much interest.

Later, when we were at war, a young Swiss engineer named Henry H. Mohaupt offered our ordnance men a design for a light-weight armor-piercing projectile. Ordnance men found the projectile would be hot stuff against tanks—if the right kind of launcher were only available.

Up stepped Skinner again with his shoulder launcher—and thus was born the "bazooka."

Not long afterward, we had a "flying bazooka" for airplanes.

The first one was fired by Col. Harry C. Donicht at the Aberdeen, Md. proving ground. The first rocket launcher was installed on an army aircraft at the air forces technical command research center at Wright Field, Dayton, O.

Double Attack Made On Court Sentence

NEW YORK. —(AP)— A double-barreled attack on the court martial sentence of life imprisonment given Pvt. Henry Weber of Vancouver, Wash., was underway today by the American Civil Liberties Union.

The union said ith ad wired Ernest Besig, its northern aClifornia director, to appeal the sentence in cooperation with the socialist labor party of which Weber was a member.

Its Washington, D. C., office will urge the army's judge advocate general's office to annul the court martial and reclassify Weber as a conscientious objector.

Weber originally received a death sentence for refusal to drill at Camp Roberts, Calif., but the sentence was subsequently changed to life at hard labor and the dishonorable discharge.

THE WAR TODAY

Germans May Be Asked to Desert Nazis

By DeWitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press War Analyst)

The growing intensity of the Allied assault which is boring into the reich from both west and east has strengthened the belief among observers that the big three, now in momentous conference in the Black Sea area, are likely soon to call on the German people to desert Hitlerdom.

Much must depend, as I see it, on the speed with which the Allied armies are able to pile up the threat against Berlin. The broadening of the attack on the western front by the launching of the Canadian-British offensive is a most hopeful development.

Should it be the design of Messrs. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin to issue such a summons, it's logical to assume that it would come at the psychological moment when the Germans have been squeezed just hard enough—a matter calling for very delicate timing. That moment might be the fall of Berlin, or when the capital is invested and its capture is clearly imminent. One of the greatest blows that could be inflicted on the morale of the German people would be the loss of their first city.

The moral effect of such a summons would be greatly strengthened if the call came while the big three were in session. Certainly no ultimatum could be more effective than one coming from this dramatic Black Sea parley of the world's greatest leaders, who have been widely advertised as meeting to settle the fate of Germany.

Desertion of Hitler by part of his people probably wouldn't end the war. But it would put an awful crimp in the nazi effort to carry on. Of course a good many folk in the United Nations almost hope that the Germans will keep on fighting until the Allied armies have had a chance to trample the length and breadth of the reich with hobnailed boots.

While we are on this subject of surrender, did you read that terrible story from Temple, Texas, about the experience of Pvt. William N. Edwards in the fighting on the western front in Europe? Edwards, who has a wife and six children on Hayti, Mo., is in hospital in Temple and from his sick bed comes this shocking account:

He was on night patrol in Huertgen forest when he had a foot blown off by a German mine. Three German soldiers found him lying helpless. He begged for water but they refused it, and proceeded to wire explosives to his body—turning him into a human booby trap, as he described it to the press. There they left him, and there he lay for seventy hours before comrades could get through the heavy shell fire and rescue him. He was conscious and able to tell them how to cut the wires.

I received a note from a reader who cited this barbaric incident and remarked: "I still hope we won't let them surrender." Well, of course, no matter how bitter we may feel we still shall accept their capitulation and give them humane treatment. Also, the sooner we get this war over, the fewer the Allied boys who'll get their feet blown off—or worse.

MARQUIS CHILDS IN EUROPE

"Old Man" Rides Herd on Squadron

By Marquis Childs

EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBER BASE, Somewhere in England—Call it morale or spirit or whatever you want to, but this 446th bomber group has got it.

It isn't that they're cocky in any juvenile way. It's just that you have a sense of men working together seriously on a task on which they are concentrating all possible effort.

A lot of it must come from the commanding officer, who is Colonel Troy W. Crawford. A flyer for 15 years, he is called "the old man," and that is the legend painted in big red letters on the side of his P-47.

"The old man" uses his P-47 to ride herd on squadrons when they are forming up after the take-off. He does it with the same sure expertness with which, back in his home in Texas, a good cowhand would ride herd on cattle.

Since he became commanding officer of the base, six months ago, this bomber group has taken the lead over all the others in the division. From December 24 to January 1, the 446th had the greatest number of hits that any group in the division ever had. Through photographs taken by automatic cameras at the time of bombing, a careful record is kept, and scores of groups are checked for accuracy.

After he took the base, Colonel Crawford started the process of shifting squadron leaders and crew leaders in an effort to find the best men for particular jobs. That is how he explains the record established by his group—getting the right men in the right places.

One of his crew leaders of whom he speaks most proudly is Captain Alfred Knopf Jr. of New York, son of the publisher of the same name. Knopf has flown about half of the 30 missions which constitute a tour of duty.

The executive officer of the base is Major J. L. Spooner, who comes from John Nance Garner's home town, Uvalde, Texas. Spooner is responsible for all the housekeeping for several thousand men on the base. He is responsible for bombs and fuel, as well as the smallest details of living.

It's just about a 24-hour job. On one of the nights I was at the base, he was awakened at 2 in the morning by a crisis caused by frozen waterpipes, and he didn't get into bed again until 11 that night. Spooner does a lot of cussing over British "inefficiency," or perhaps it's merely their different way of doing things.

Like most Texans, he's just as much a Texan in gray, rainy England as he is in Uvalde. He reacts against a certain kind of British snobbism and class distinction. Once at tea at a local aristocrat's castle, some Britishers were reciting their distinguished prewar occupations, and when Spooner's turn came he said he was a goat herder—which is literally true, since he has a goat ranch outside Uvalde.

The senior intelligence officer at the base is Major Milton R. Stahl of St. Louis, former chairman of the Missouri public service commission. He arranges and supervises the briefings. Although over 50, he has gone on 12 bombing missions and has a bronze star, equivalent to the distinguished flying cross, and an air medal with oak leaf cluster. Stahl says it is important for an intelligence officer to go on missions because he gets an idea of how the men see things, and they feel he is one of them. In 15 months at the base, he has had only six leaves.

In London and in Washington you hear a great deal about publicity for the air forces. I don't think these men are interested in publicity as such. But they do want the people back home to have some understanding of the magnitude and importance of the job they are doing. They do not want it taken for granted.

The overall picture—how much air power has contributed to the winning of the war—is not their concern. In any event, that appraisal can come only after final victory, when a thorough and impartial study will be in order.

Certainly the success of D-day and the sweep across France that followed would not have been possible without the preliminary work of the air forces. Certainly the intensive bombing of Germany has contributed to the successes of the Russian armies.

The men of the 446th bomber group talk very little about such things. They're concerned with the number of hits on yesterday's target; with getting their planes into the air and getting them back again.

Prior to the child's birth the name was expected to be Barbara Lee or Mary.

Union Welders Are Staging Walkout

SEATTLE —(AP)— Nine hundred and fifty members of the United Brotherhood of Weldors, Cutters and Helpers refused to report for work at the plants of the Todd-Pacific Shipyard and the Todd Drydock Company on Harbor island this morning in response to a call by Henry A. Doty, president of the independent union, the union's office said.

J. E. Barr, an organizer at the office, said 700 men were out at the shipyard with only about 20 remaining on the job. The entire 250 members were out at the drydock plant. No picket lines were set up at either plant.

The walkout arose over a jurisdictional dispute between the brotherhood and the AFL-boilermakers union, who hold a bargaining contract with the Todd companies. The walkout was voted, Doty said, after the discharge of four brotherhood welders for what he called union activities.

NEW INSURANCE BILL INTRODUCED

OLYMPIA —(AP)— Domestic insurance companies must pay an additional state tax of 1 per cent on premiums under a bill introduced in the legislature today by the house committee on insurance.

The state insurance commissioner's office explained that under a 1944 supreme court decision, holding that insurance is commerce, an equalization of taxes on domestic and out-of-state insurance companies became necessary. The bill would impose a flat two per cent tax on both foreign and domestic firms.

At present, domestic companies pay 1 per cent, foreign companies, 2¼ per cent.

COAST GUARD PLANES WILL GIVE NEW SIGNALS

SEATTLE—(AP)— A new procedure to be used by coast guard planes in enlisting the aid of surface vessels on rescue missions was described by Capt. W. F. Towle, district coast guard officer, today.

"The plane, after establishing identification, will circle the vessel at least once, fly across the bow at low altitude opening and closing the throttle," Capt. Towle said. "The plane will head in the direction of the distress scene, rocking the wings."

The procedure will be repeated until the ship changes direction toward the scene.

Husky and Cougar Teams Play Tonight

PULLMAN—(AP)—Washington and Washington State, each with its back to the wall in an uphill fight for conference cage honors, tangle for the first time this season tonight in the opening of a vital two-game series.

Deadlocked in the standings with five wins and as many losses, tonight's victor will slide into a second place tie with Oregon State. The Beavers are idle tonight, but play a single contest with leading Oregon Saturday.

As well as fighting for its title hopes, the Cougar squad will be out to avenge the quartet of lickings handed out by the Washington Huskies last year. The Seattle five, predominantly first year talent, is seeking to break the jinx that has kept it from winning any of its four road games thus far this year.

Starting lineups are expected to be Bob Rennick, Mort Joslin, Vince Hansen, George Hamilton and Vince Hamilton for Washington State, and Bob Jorgensen, Whitey King, Dick Brooks, Norm Carnovale and Joe Creveling for Washington.

Jefferson School Wins Hoop League Championship

With both teams playing their best game of the season, the Jefferson basketball team defeated Washington last Tuesday 29 to 20 at the Washington gym to cinch the city grade school championship.

Jefferson led 9 to 4 at the quarter but Washington came back to lead 11 to 10 for a time. Jefferson fought back to lead 11 to 10 for a time. Jefferson fought back to lead 15 to 12 at the half and they were not headed for the rest of the game.

Hotter than the proverbial firecracker, Jacobson, speedy Jefferson guard dropped in five quick field goals in the second half to put the game on ice. Jacobson was the high point player of the day with 17 points. Fee looked very good for Washington with all the boys for both teams turning in the excellent games. Third quarter score was 20 to 14.

In the closest game of the year Queen of Angels eked out a 14 to 13 win over Lincoln in the last 10 seconds of a thriller at the Lincoln gym yesterday. With Lincoln leading 13 to 12, Nigro, little Q. of A. guard dropped in his first goal of the year, on a one handed shot from the side to win for the blue and white. Clelland, Lincoln center with nine points was outstanding for his team.

Lineups for the two teams are as follows:

Jefferson (29)	Pos.	Wash. (20)
Cederberg (5)	F	(8) Fee
Janzen	F	(6) McFadden
Lannoye (7)	C	(4) Irwin
Jacobson (17)	G	(2) Moe

Substitutes: Lincoln, Hilt, Dammond, Kidd; Queen of Angels, Williams, Livingston.

Referee: Dorun.

Sports in Brief

NEW YORK — (AP) — Ford Frick's omission from the four-man committee chosen yesterday to hunt up a new commissioner is interpreted in some quarters as indicating that his campaign for the commissionership is still alive.

However, his chances were not brightened by the appointment of Presidents Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals, Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, Donald Barnes of the St. Louis Browns and Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians. Of the four, only Breadon was known to have favored Frick, while Wrigley and Bradley preferred men outside of baseball and Barnes was quoted as having an open mind.

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Triple-header basketball will make its appearance at Convention Hall tomorrow night with Penn meeting Princeton, Temple opposing Duke and St. Joseph's facing La Salle.

READING, Pa. — (AP) — Dominic d'Allessandro, Chicago Cubs outfielder, said last night he has been accepted for the armed services.

D'Allessandro, twice classified 4-F, underwent a two-day checkup at Philadelphia but said officials did not tell him to what branch of the service he would be assigned.

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP)—If servicemen have their way, baseball will continue strong in 1945, says Truett (Rip) Sewell, pitching ace of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"Guess you'd call it a plug for my own business," he declared, "but I haven't found a serviceman yet who wants to abolish baseball or cut down on the sports program one bit. They all think sports have a place in the war picture."

Sewell, who will be 36 in May, says he's "just getting started" as a big league hurler.

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Connie Mack thinks the greatest baseball team of all time was the New York Yankees of 1936 through 1939.

And next in line, says the patriarch, come the Chicago Cubs of 1906-10, his own Philadelphia Athletics of 1910-15, and the Baltimore Orioles of 1893.

"But," added Connie in his speech last night at a meeting of the National Association of Pro Baseball Players, "the Orioles would have been the best if they had had the pitching of any of the other three."

DALLAS, Tex. —(AP)— Bob Finley, a catcher whom the Philadelphia Phils peddled to Seattle of the Pacific Coast League this winter, has returned his Seattle contract unsigned.

He admits it may be just a gesture.

He's been reclassified. Yep, 1-A.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. —(AP)— Maj. Ernie Nevers, All-America fullback with Stanford in 1925, is the new athletic officer at the San Diego marine corps base.

Nevers had been stationed on Treasure island in San Francisco.

PULLMAN — (AP) — Potentially strong in running events but weak in the field, 35 candidates turned out yesterday for the Washington State College track team. It is the first squad at the eastern Washington school in three years.

NEWBERG, Ore. —(AP)— Northwest Nazarene College plastered a 59-27 defeat on Pacific college basketball players last night. Hills paced the victors with 17 points.

SEATTLE —(AP)— Seattle Ironmen moved into undisputed possession of first place in the northern division of the Pacific Coast Hockey League race last night by dimming the Vancouver, Wash., Vanguard's playoff hopes with a 13-3 drubbing.

The winners poured in six goals in the second period while holding Vancouver scoreless.

Frank Dotten, Seattle manager, scored a goal and two assists to move out in front of Portland's Eddie Shamlock for the scoring lead.

The two teams meet again in Portland tonight.

PORTLAND —(AP)— Recently discharged from the marines, George Emigh, former Portland high school coach, was signed yesterday by the Portland baseball club as a trainer, General Manager Bill Klepper announced.

It will be Emigh's first experience as a trainer.

SPOKANE —(AP)— Geiger Field vs. Ephrata army air base and Tonopah, Nev., army airfield vs. Fourth Headquarters, San Francisco, were paired off today for the opening night's doubleheader to decide the fourth air force divisional basketball champion.

Winners of tonight's clashes will meet Saturday for the right to challenge March Field, southern division titlist, for the fourth air force crown.

Paul Brown Will Coach at Cleveland

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Lt. Paul Brown, who came up from the high school coaching ranks to gain national fame at Ohio State and Great Lakes, has moved into the professional field at a salary his employer terms larger than any football coach in the country.

The 36-year-old Brown, on leave of absence from Ohio State, yesterday signed a five-year contract as head coach and general manager of the Cleveland team in the budding All-America Conference.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed by Arthur McBride, Cleveland taxicab magnate who owns the Ohio city franchise, but he said it was the best deal ever given a football coach. One unofficial source reported Brown's annual salary would be in excess of $15,000.

Brown expressed regret at leaving Ohio State but said he "simply couldn't turn down the deal in fairness to my family.

"The time arrived for me to decide whether I was to continue as a professor or a business man," he explained. "In addition to a generous salary I have been offered a share in the profits of the Cleveland club."

No players have been signed for the Cleveland team and McBride said the club would not start operations until Brown leaves the navy.

Brown's overall coaching record at Severn Prep, Md., Massillon high, Ohio State and Great Lakes is 122 victories, 18 losses and four ties.

District Tournament Billed for Mt. Si High

The west central district tournament of basketball teams of the state high school athletic association will be held at the Mt. Si high school of Snoqualmie valley, E. R. Opstad, president of the west central district athletic association, announces today.

Tournament dates will be March 6-10, inclusive for the district that includes King, Pierce, Kitsap, Clallam and Jefferson counties. The winners of the first and second places will represent the district at the state basketball tournament in Seattle.

Sports Roundup

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The weight of expert opinion seems to be agin' the Howard Hobson-Julian Rice version of basketball . . . But the fans seemed to like it and, for that reason, so did this non-expert observer . . . There's a bigger kick in seeing a long shot swish through the basket than in any amount of fancy floor work under the basket—especially when so many big boys are trying to get under the basket that you can't see who's who . . . And you should have heard the customers shouting "three" when a kid was poised to shoot from just inside the 21-foot arc . . . As for the scoring, it's no more confusing than the difference between a base hit and a two-bagger . . . And we never heard of a football coach, for instance, objecting to long passes or wide end runs because he preferred the more intricate teamwork of an off-guard play.

HOME SWEET HOME

Jersey Jones, the reformed publicitor, tells this one about how Manager Tommy Thomas of the Baltimore Orioles visited the stadium three days after the baseball season ended to pick up his mail . . . The Orioles had won the International League pennant, the playoffs and the little world series and had broken all Baltimore attendance records . . . But when he got to the bowl, the navy had taken over for a football game and all Tommy's explanations and credentials couldn't get him into his own office.

SHORTS AND SHELLS

Before Dick Wakefield rejoined the club last summer, the Tigers had lost nine one-run decisions. Afterward they won 15 and dropped only six . . . More than 100 years of experience are represented at the timers' table at Penn State boxing and wrestling meets. F. M. Torrance, dean of the four-man crew, has been clicking a stopwatch 30 years and S. F. Crabtree, the rookie, for 16 years . . . An ice skating troupe that has been rehearsing in Brooklyn from midnight to 4 a.m. daily, plans to put on shows in western Canada next spring.

Less Soap to Be Made for Civilians

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Faced with shorter supplies of raw materials, the war food administration has ordered manufacturers to reduce the production of soap for civilian use.

Even with the reduction, however, officials said today there would be sufficient soap for "normal requirements" of all users if buyers bought only as they needed supplies.

Under the order, the manufacturers of packaged and bar soap—that is, toilet and laundry bar soap and laundry soap packed in units less than 25 pounds—must be reduced from 90 to 85 per cent of the average quantity manufactured in 1940 and 1941.

The production of bulk unit packages containing 25 pounds or more—must be reduced from 110 to 90 per cent of the 1940-41 average.

The order, which was made effective January 31, was issued February 1. No announcement of the action was made at the time for fear it might cause a run on retail stores.

Production of soap for military use and for relief distribution abroad will, on the other hand, be increased, officials said.

EVERETT GIRLS ARE PREXY CANDIDATES

PULLMAN —(AP)— Ramy Newland and Lotus Trub, both of Everett, are candidates for president of the Associated Women Students of Washington College.

Candidates for other presidencies which also will be elected Feb. 20, include:

Marjorie Carr, Tacoma, and Jane McMicken, Chehalis, Young Women's Christian Association, and Colleen Cook, Sedro-Woolley, and Ruth Ott, Irby, Women's Recreation Association.

Navy Nurse Recalls Pleasant Memories of Visits in New Zealand

Visits to Christ Church with its quaint English traditions, and Dunedin, that bit of old Scotland transplanted in New Zealand, are pleasant memories of overseas duty for a brown-eyed navy nurse from Sequim, who doesn't object a bit to being called a "mossback"—she's that proud of her native Washington.

She is Lt. (jg) Patricia J. Schumacher, USNR, daughter of Roy W. Schumacher of Sequim. She is presently on duty in the Treasure Island naval hospital, San Francisco, Calif., following 18 months in New Zealand and New Caledonia.

Lieut. Schumacher spent a week in Christ Church and Dunedin, and "it was one of the loveliest vacations of my life," she claims.

She also gets nostalgic when she recalls her visits to Wellington, N. Z., "which most closely resembles our cities here."

Enlists in Navy

Lieut. Schumacher, who graduated from the University of Washington school of nursing in 1942, joined the navy nurse corps in February, 1943, and went overseas the following June. She spent a month in Auckland, nine months in Wellington, and nine months in Noumea, New Caledonia.

"We treated casualties from Tarawa, Guadalcanal and Bougainville as well as a lot of other places," she recounted.

But her most vivid memory, she claims, was the day she went aboard a flying boat for the trip home.

"Some day soon, I hope everyone makes that trip," says Lieut. Schumacher. A photograph of Lt. Schumacher is in the News office window.

Coast Guard Transport Soldier Dodges Bombs; Lives to Laugh About It

Trying to find the safe side of a cement wall while a German plane is bombing the area sounds pretty gruesome to civilians safe here at home, but frontline soldiers find it funny, as Pfc. Hayes D. Isenberg, who is fighting with the seventh army in Germany, writes home to his mother, Mrs. H. F. Alexander, route one, Port Angeles.

"This time I'll tell you of an experience I hade and you can laugh at it too.

"Some time ago I was on guard duty from four until six in the morning and no sooner had I gotten on the job than a Jerry started to shell our position. He threw mortar shells and all kinds of others and they were coming in fast, too.

"I was standing in the gate of a cement fence—do you get the picture? Well, get this one: A shell lands on one side of the fence, I jump through the gate to the other side of the fence. Before my feet hit the ground, another shell falls on that side of the fence. Do I turn in mid-air? How do I know? Anyway I'm back on the other side! The weather was cold, but by the time my two hours were up, I was plenty warm.

"I saw my relief coming and he was within 40 of 50 feet of me when a shell fell too close and he dived under a little cherry tree to hide. He looked so funny trying to hide under that little bush, I had to laugh at him.

"Before my two hours were up, I got so I didn't even jump when a shell hit, but just to see me jumping back and forth through that gate would really get a laugh on the screen."

Description of Marianas Sent Home by Navy Man

Mr. and Mrs. Keith C. Brown of this city have received word from their cousin Marvin Wilkie, MM 3/c, of Montesano, Wash., that he is now stationed in the Marianas. Wilkie is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilkie. He wrote the following description of the island to the Brown's.

"It doesn't seem that I have been away from home three years, being one of Uncle Sam's seabees.

"So far I haven't been allowed to tell which one of the Mariana islands I am on, but there are some interesting things to see on this island. Of course, there are plenty of coconuts, bananas, papayas, peppers, lemons and other things I don't know the name of that grow wild on the island.

"When it rains, and that's quite often, it is just like pouring it out of a bucket. When we first came here we would sometimes take a shower bath by standing in the rain. The hottest weather is just after a shower.

"It's a queer sight to see the water buffalo the natives have hitched to their two wheeled carts.

"The most beautiful bird here is a white bird that looks like a crane but is smaller and more graceful. A native told me that in their language it is known as a Bird of Peace. There are some birds that look like little parrots. They must be parakeets or something similar.

The fish are also very beautiful. They have all colors and designs. Some have black and white stripes and other markings. There is a fish that goes out on the beach and flips along on dry land! No fooling. Flying fish can go at least 100 yards in the air. Whole schools of little fish jump together when a big fish such as a tuna is after them.

"We still have Japs on this island, but they stay hidden in the caves and prowl around at night looking for food.

"I had better bring this letter to a close. I'm sitting here writing this letter on my knees. 'Bye for this time, and let me hear from you soon."

Local Coast Guard Air Station Gets Award for Exposition Display

Highlights of the air sea rescue exhibit were displays of a life raft with all equipment and accessories, a Gibson girl transmitter, a handy-talkie, shipwreck kit, aircraft rescue pyrotechnic, a Mae West life jacket, signalling mirrors, and aircraft emergency rations.

Other coast guard activities in the exposition included an exhibition by the coast guard temporary reserve on fire fighting and port security efficiency and coast guard movies depicting a task force and the invasion of Normandy.

The purpose of the exposition was to promote post-war interest in the Pacific Northwest and to encourage the further development of its natural resources.

Gardiner Man in Black Gang of Luzon Invasion

ABOARD A COAST GUARD ATTACK TRANSPORT AT LUZON —(Special—Coast Guardsman Roy E. Godson, electrician's mate 3/c, from Gardiner, Washington won't have much trouble recalling his most anxious moments during the invasion of Luzon.

Godson, who works below decks with fellow members of the "black gang," got that funny feeling in the midriff when the grim announcement came over the lookout telephones that a Jap torpedo boat had sneaked into embattled Lingayen gulf under cover of darkness.

He couldn't see the searchlight stab through the darkness as it caught the fleet Nip craft, nor could he see sheets of tracer fire convert it into a flaming torch.

"All of us down below breathed easier when they got that Jap boat," the coast guardsmen said.

Aerial Bombs

Members of the black gang don't limit their spine-tinglers to the torpedo boat episode by any means. Since this vessel has been in the gulf, aerial bombs have been dropping with various degrees of nearness virtually from morning until night.

"We thought at first they were our guns," they recalled. "Imagine our surprise when they told us differently!"

The Japs got their first licking when they convoy reached the approaches of the gulf on D-day minus one. Telephone talkers on lookout stations relayed to the black gang accounts of how Jap planes were shot out of the air both by flak and by Yank fighter planes. It continued that way into D-plus-one.

SPAR Stationed Here After Three Requests To Return to Home Town

After three requests, Doris K. Atwood, radioman 3/c, of the United States coast guard women's reserve, has finally been granted her wish. She has been stationed in the home town of her childhood, Port Angeles.

Doris Atwood, popularly known here as "Porky," lived in Port Angeles from 1934 to 1939 at 408 East Fifth. Her father, Edward W. Atwood, was then stationed here as an electrician's mate first class with the coast guard telephone line.

She attended both the Roosevelt junior and senior high school. Among her various school activities, she was a member of the Honor Society, the Girls' Club and the Girls' A Club. During her freshman year at high school she participated in the all school play.

Miss Atwood joined her father's branch of the service, the coast guard, as soon as she became twenty years old and eligible for membership. After her enlistment in March, 1944, she was sent for her six weeks boot training to Palm Beach, Fla.; from there she served two months at the coast guard bast in Fort Pierce, Fla., as a radio telephone operator.

Sent to Radio School

August 2, 1944, she was sent to radio school in Atlantic City, New Jersey, from which she graduated December 20 and received her rating.

She plans to go home on leave Saturday, February 10, to New Smyrna Beach, Fla., where her father, now a chief warrant electrician, is stationed.

Miss Atwood expressed her enjoyment at being stationed here and once more seeing her friends. When questioned about her insistence for assignment in Port Angeles, she proudly admitted, "I just like it here."

Local Men in Railroad Battalion in France

SIXTH ARMY GROUP, France—"Stringing out" isn't the official army phrase, but that's precisely what the 713th railway operating battalion has been doing ever since it arrived overseas two years ago. Port Angeles members of this battalion are Pfc. Ivan R. Burr, Star Route one, and Capt. Ashbel Keller, 113 E. Sixth.

The battalion arrived at Casablanca, French Morocco, in February, 1943, and three months later it was strung out along 1400 miles of rail line, from Casablanca to Mateur. The battalion went to Naples, Italy, in October, 1943. Following the breakthrough last June, the battalion was operating from the southern part of Italy to Rome and beyond.

The 713th, commanded by Lt. Col. Ernest E. Foulks of Los Angeles, was the first unit of the military railway service to arrive on the Riviera beachhead in the southern France invasion. And now, once again, the men are following their old routine. They are scattered in detachments along hundreds of miles of French railroad lines, operating trains, repairing bridges, laying track.

Their job is to make sure that the thousands of tons of supplies entering the great ports reach the troops of the U. S. 7th and French first armies, now hammering at the nazis' strong Siegfried defenses. One company specializes in construction, repair and maintenance of the rail line, another in the maintenance of equipment. A third company operates the trains, while the headquarters and signal company takes care of administration and communications.

Along with other units of the first military railway service, the 713th railway operating battalion was commended recently by Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of the sixth army group.

727th Battalion

Also in France, is Pfc. Edward S. Mareval of Clallam Bay, who is with the 727th railway operating battalion.

In Sicily the 727th was cited by Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr. There, with demolition damage tremendous, hundreds of enemy mines planted along the way, and smashed trains blocking the tracks, the Yanks had steam up within four hours of landing, and just as fast as the track was wrested from the Germans it was put to use.

In Italy it was the same story. Railroad parties on the Salerno beach found no Italian engines fit to operate. Undaunted, they placed flanged wheels on GI trucks, put them on the rails and shunted supplies from the docks to the dumps.

Home on leave after more than two years active duty is E. A. WHITE, Jr., S 1/c, USN. White has been aboard a destroyer in the south Pacific. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Former Local Teacher Promoted to Lieutenant

Henry L. Boni, former Port Angeles teacher, whose wife resides at 536 Clay street, Port Townsend, was promoted recently from the rank of ensign to lieutenant (jg).

Boni enlisted in the navy as an apprentice seaman in April, 1942, and had attained the rate of aerographer's mate, second class, at the time he was commissioned as an ensign in August, 1943. He had attended aerographer's school at the U. S. navy air station, Lakehurst, New Jersey, and after receiving his commission he attended the naval indoctrination school at Tucson, Arizona, and the U.S. navy communications school at Los Angeles, California. For the past several months he has served as one of the communication officers aboard a seaplane tender operating in the western Pacific.

Teaches Here

Lt. (jg) Boni attended the University of Washington, graduating in 1939 with a BA degree in history and Spanish. While at college he rowed on the rowing crews for four years. Prior to joining the navy he taught at Port Angeles high school. Boni married Agnes Marion Delaney shortly after joining the navy. They have one son, Henry L., Jr., who was born December 13, 1944.

During the time Boni has been in the navy he has spent a total of 14 months on sea duty; first as an aerographers mate and later as a communications officer. The ship with which he has served most recently is one of the navy's newest seaplane tenders. She was built to act as a moving base for the seaplanes that search for the enemy and help guard our ships and bases against enemy surprise attacks.

Red Cross Need For Nurses Will Be Featured

In a series of four programs to be presented over the Blue Network starting tonight, theatre, radio and moving picture stars will feature the army nurse in a Red Cross recruitment program for nurses and, at the same time, its training of nurse's aides to supplement the nursing service to civilians.

The program will be heard from 8 to 8:30 this evening and for the next three Friday evenings, according to announcement by the Red Cross.

Mrs. Vernon Basom and Mrs. Ann Kent, chairmen of the committee now enrolling for the nurses aide class to be taught by Mrs. John Trumbull, suggest that everyone interested in the class listen to the program tonight. They also remind that Saturday is the closing date for applicants for the class. Applications should be made at headquarters in the Warren Morse building or by telephoning 803.

FORMER STATE OFFICIAL DIES AT SEATTLE

SEATTLE —(AP)— John Joseph O'Donovan, 70, former employe of the state department of labor and industries, and who organized Seattle's first Roosevelt-For-President club here in 1931-32, died at his home yesterday. He was a constable the past two years until county commissioners appointed his wife as his successor upon his serious illness. A sister, widow of Chaucey Olcott, the famous tenor, also survives.

The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. You can't see generosity, and sacrifice, yet those two forces alone are very much at work here this week. Children now suffering from illness will be made well through these forces. Men who are your neighbors have resolved that no child in Clallam County from the age of two years to fourteen years shall go without medical attention. No matter what a child's color, race, or creed, these men lend a helping hand. I don't know how many children they have helped since they banded together here a quarter century ago. But I do know that in one year alone, a few years ago, they saw to it that 63 children needing operations received the required medical attention.

We all accept, without thought, so many blessings that have come to us through others. A thousand doctors, living and dead, have through tireless research and sacrifice, handed scientific knowledge down to us that is priceless. Others have paid with their lives, that the poorest child in America may enjoy through our free public schools the same advantages that the very rich can enjoy. Yes, we do owe a lot to others, more than we can ever hope to repay.

When you buy one or more tickets from a member of the Olympic Peninsula Shrine Club for their annual Charity Ball to be held Saturday night, you repay in part a service others have rendered to you. You send some little guy on the road to health, that he may know play and laughter again.

When this dance is past, your dollars will start their work of restoring many Clallam County children to good health, and in some instances to saving their lives. And when the Shriners appear in those odd-looking little tassel caps, I hope the little gremlins that ride along on top will lean over and whisper in Shriner ears, "Well done, gang."

Bootlegging Checked By New Liquor Ruling

OLYMPIA—(AP)—The state liquor control board's recent order permitting servicemen and women to obtain liquor permits immediately on application has slashed bootlegging 75 to 90 percent, Rear Admiral Luther E. Gregory, board chairman, estimated today.

Illicit operators have almost gone out of the bootleg business," he said.

"It was almost impossible for servicemen to obtain legal whisky when they had to wait weeks for a permit. A few days after our order became effective, some liquor stores reported their sales had almost doubled. It means that servicemen are buying through legal channels and are not paying a triple price."

Gregory said bootlegging would be virtually wiped out when a proposal to leave certain designated liquor stores open longer hours becomes effective.

Cross Breeding Attempt Is Painful Experiment

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. —(AP)— Pfc. Louis B. Roer, of White Plains, N. Y., who tried to cross timber wolves with sled dogs, has lost all enthusiasm for such experiments.

Rorer, an army air forces veterinarian here for redistribution, took care of 200 sled dogs at Fairbanks, Alaska. Some wolves being available, he tried cross-breeding.

But one wolf, a determined individualist, bit him and the wound became so infected that he had to return to the United States.

Rorer's conclusion on cross-breeding: "One-eighth wolf is good. More than that is dangerous."

Chief Lists Order For Bicycles to Be Inspected Saturday

Inspection of every operating bicycle in Port Angeles will start Saturday morning, February 10, at nine o'clock, Police Chief R. O. Ide said today.

In order to insure that the inspection will be orderly, bicycle owners who already have licenses are asked to report first for new licenses. Chief Ide asked that the bicycles be brought to the police station Saturday in the following order: those with license numbers one to 100 report at 9:00 a.m.; license number 100 to 200 at 10:00 a.m.; 200 to 300 at 11 a.m.; 300 to 400 at noon and another hundred each hour through the day for the more than eight hundred licensed bicycles in Port Angeles.

Bicycles will be inspected by members of school patrols for defective brakes, handle bars, wheels, pedals and light equipment. The general mechanical condition of the bicycle must be good before a license will be issued, officials declare.
