EASTER SUNDAY AT THE CHURCHES

Day Was Appropriately Observed With Special Sermons and Musical Programs.

Easter Sunday was appropriately observed in Angeles. At nearly all places of worship special programs were given and the floral decorations at some of the churches were beautiful and artistic. The fragrance of flowers was wafted upon the breath of song service.

At the Congregational Church a rare musical program was prepared by the large choir. Mr. Bonnett, the accomplished leader, deserves credit for his work and the excellent singing Sunday was an evidence of the good service he has rendered. The solo by Mrs. Farmer was appropriate to the hour and rendered with the rare quality of expressive voice for which she is well known and admired. The parts were all exceptionally well taken. Special mention should be made of Mrs. Dumont. Her voice has a very interesting individuality and a charm of distinct enunciation which is pleasing and satisfactory. It is a contralto voice of rare quality. The tones are pure, clear, birdlike and sweet; it is a spiritual voice, noble in expression. Her singing was delightful on this occasion. The beautiful solo by Miss Ethel Welch at the evening service was a delight and a charm to the large audience present.

Easter day services were appropriately observed at the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The music was good; the orchestra music at this church, under the leadership of Rev. Fulmer, is always fine. Although the special singers announced for this occasion failed to appear, the large audiences present at both the morning and evening services joined with the choir, and some good singing was the result. The evening theme was full of interest and one which the pastor, Rev. Hixson, has mastered to perfectness.

The morning service at St. Andrews was inspiring. The floral decorations were especially fine. Ascension lilies, beautiful daffodils and potted plants were tastily arranged about the chancel and on the platform. The choir rendered numerous beautiful selections. Mrs. Troy and Mrs. Day sang delightful solos appropriate to the occasion. Communion was observed. The evening services were very interesting and well attended, the large audience paying the closest attention to the splendid sermon by Rev. Rogers.

At the Lutheran Church, Easter services were observed, there being communion services in both English and German at the morning hour and in the evening an especially interesting program of song service and recitations by the children of the Sunday school was given. Mr. Gasser, superintendent of the Sunday school, takes great pride in instructing the young folk, and the exercises of this school are always pleasing and instructive.

The children of the Sunday school were the attraction at the Lincoln Heights M. E. Church Sunday morning for the Easter service. Rev. Avery, the pastor, read a short Easter selection, followed by an excellent program by the children. Mrs. Avery sang a beautiful solo, which was exquisitely rendered. The church was tastily decorated with fragrant spring flowers and ferns.

The day was perfect and Easter Sunday could not have been celebrated under better weather conditions.

Dr. W. F. Taylor purchased, this week, Dr. Hartt's interest in the Angeles Hospital, and will hereafter be associated with Dr. McGillivray in the management of that institution. Dr. Taylor has made many friends since his arrival in Angeles some months ago and all are pleased to know he has decided to remain permanently. Thos. T. Aldwell & Co. made the sale for Dr. Hartt.

The C., M. & P. S. Ry. Co. has begun action in condemnation for lands at the mouth of the Quillayute, wanted for right-of-way against A. W. Smith and heirs and against Harry Johnson, et al.

BEST STEAMSHIP CO. TO ENTER FIELD

Charles Coker Said to Be a Leader in the New Enterprise. Will Have Fast Steamers.

People interested in the transportation business in up-Sound cities are greatly interested in announcements made concerning the intentions of the Best Steamship Co. to operate vessels in the passenger service between Bellingham, Seattle and Tacoma, says the Port Townsend Call. It is the general impression that the operations of the new company will be more extensive than is intimated by the announcement and it is not too much to believe that the Puget Sound Navigation company will in the near future find a very powerful rival bidding for favor on all routes where sufficient traffic exists to justify a steamboat service.

Port Townsend and Port Angeles, the two most important points in the present steamer service on the Olympic peninsula are not to be left out, according to late plans, and it is rumored that within a month's time the new company will be handling business out of both cities.

The announcement coming from Bellingham with the evident backing of Charles G. Coker seems to have made a greater impression among local marine men than it would have with other indorsement or leading. Mr. Coker was formerly of the Inland Navigation company and was, it is said, a great element in its success. He is said to be a practical steamship man in every sense of the word and success is predicted for the company which has him for the leader.

If the tourist traffic this summer is as heavy as expected, there will be business for other steamers on the Belllingham-Seattle-Tacoma route and the new company will begin business at an opportune time. The Victorian is a 20-knot steamer and is being altered and fitted up especially for the passenger service.

The announcement also states that another steamer will be brought from the Atlantic for the service. The Port Angeles people have expressed dissatisfaction with their steamer service and it is understood that the new company has been consulted regarding a line to British Columbia and from Bellingham.

The superior court yesterday sustained and granted a motion of the defendant to quash the information in quo warranto of the City of Port Angeles vs. D. W. Morse to oust said Morse and declare the franchise to the Laurel street dock forfeited. The action was brought by the city on the ground that Morse had failed to pay the city $10 per month rental as provided in the franchise. Morse, on the other hand, contends that no other place in the state makes this demand, that he has paid it heretofore without protest, but had failed to pay recently for the reason that he was continually under great expense in the maintenance of the approach to said dock. The case will probably be appealed or a new action commenced.

CLEARED ABOUT ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

The One Tragedy that Always Draws a Crowded House and Pleases Every Participant.

The production of the Remodelscope—an ancient farce under a new name, with fresh faces in the guise of ancient characters — drew out a well filled house Tuesday night. There were scarce a dozen empty seats.

Director S. E. Stakemiller opened his exhibition of antiques with an apology for the participants, and thereby made the hit of his life — with the audience. He stated that there was a piano at the High School to be paid for; the children had given two entertainments and had wearied in well-doing; besides, the teachers were driving them too hard at the close of the year and they really hadn't the time. The teachers had risen to the emergency.

Then the parade rounded the corner and the band struck up "49." It was awful. The costumes were bad enough, but the make-ups— they were frights. However nothing succeeds like success, and a home entertainment that clears a hundred dollars or thereabouts is unquestionably a success. It was more — it was a howling success. The audience howled until they had tears in their eyes, and they're howling yet.

But, seriously, the play was well acted; every part was well taken. Where all did so well it is hard to particularize. Besides, we didn't know them, not a soul. There was the spare, mannish maid, a clever actress, or perhaps actor, and the willowy, clinging girl, and the one who was not. There was the stump speaker, and the soloist who 'twere better had not, and the pianist who played Annie Laurie, or something worse like that, and the timid Professor who handled the sausage machine—and there were others.

It is said another piano fund entertainment is to be given during Institute. The teachers will be busy then.

The school orchestra under the direction of Miss Marsh played opening and closing selections, and Mr. Parks favored the house with two violin selections.

CLUB GIVES SPRING PROGRAM

The Musical Club entertained their friends with a "Spring Musicale" at the Parish hall on Monday afternoon. Quantities of beautiful spring flowers were used for decorating and their perfume made the air sweet and fragrant. Souvenirs of this very pleasant afternoon were programs daintily painted in water colors by Mrs. Troy and given to each guest.

TARIFF BILL PASSED

HOUSE COMPLETES WORK AND HANDS IT TO SENATE.

Free Lumber Defeated, and It Is Considered Possible Senate Will Restore Dingley Duty—Some of the Other Changes Made by House.

Washington, April 10.—After three weeks of consideration the Payne tariff bill was passed by the house of representatives last night amid great ecxitement, by a vote of 217 to 161. One Republican, Austin, of Tennessee, voted against the measure, and four Democrats, all from Louisiana—Broussard, Estopinal, Pujo and Wickliffe—voted for it.

The day was filled with excitement from the moment the session began at noon until adjournment. The final vote demonstrated the capacity of the Republican organization to get together.

The situation with regard to lumber was greatly relieved to the Republican leaders when it became manifest that the advocates of the proposition placing it on the free list were in the minority. Because of that fact, Mr. Fitzgerald, of New York, charged that a midnight deal had been made the previous night whereby free lumber was to be voted down and the rates on barley and malt increased, and this notwithstanding the denials of Messrs. Mann, of Illinois, and Cushman, of Washington, who offered the barley amendments.

The bill was introduced March 17, reported to the house by the ways and means committee on the following day and was under general debate for sixteen days. Last Monday the rules committee reported a special order, which closed the general discussion and provided for the consideration of the bill under the five minute rule.

One of the principal changes in the bill was the placing of petroleum on the free list.

Among the other important amendments made since the bill came from the committee were those striking out the provison for a duty on tea and the countervailing duty provision on coffee

The drawback section was added to the bill so that it could not be taken advantage of for speculating in grain, and the Philippine free trade provision was amended so that rice will not be admitted free from the islands.

Countervailing Clause Stricken

The countervailing duty clause on lumber was stricken out, but a strong effort to place lumber on the free list did not succeed.

The duties on barley, malt, pineapples in crates and cotton collars and cuffs, as originally in the bill, were increased. A proviso was included in the tobacco schedule increasing the duty on filler tobacco from any country which prohibits the importation of American tobacco.

There were several technical changes in the steel schedule, principally downward. Hides, hosiery and gloves were left as reported by the committee, hides remaining free and an increased duty being presented for gloves and stockings. The contest over free petroleum was stubborn, but the vote in its favor was overwhelming.

PAYNE BILL REPORTED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

Washington, April 13.—The amended tariff bill is now on the senate calendar and consideration of the measure will begin Thursday. It was yesterday laid before the finance committee, with the Democratic members present, and after thirty minutes parley a vote was taken on the question of making a report to the senate immediately, all the Republicans voting in the affirmative and the Democrats in the negative.

Soon after the senate met Senator Aldrich presented the amended bill. Senator Daniel, on behalf of the minority, protested that the Demcrats had not been given an opportunity to examine the measure, and Mr. Aldrich replied that they could make their examination by Thursday. He said also that as the majority was responsible for the bill, its course in hastening the report was warranted.

As reported, the bill does not contain all the changes in rates which the finance committee purposes to make. The revenue producing possibilities of the measure are little changed.

Senator Aldrich, chairman of the finance committee, furnished a summary of the changes proposed.

In the main, the rates in the tariff bill as proposed in the senate bill are lower than those in the bill as it passed the house, the actual number of reductions being about three times the number of increases. Such increases as have been made have been largely rendered necessary to preserve the symmetry of the schedules.

Revision Downward

A considerable number of articles in common use have been taken from the dutiable list of the house bill and restored to the free list. The great mass of the rates reported are below those of the existing law.

In the chemical schedule the principal changes are in the nature of reductions below the house bill. One important change is in putting distilled and expressed oils on the free list.

The senate committee restored iron ore to the dutiable list at 25 cents per ton—a reduction of 15 cents per ton in this schedule throughout. The house rate on lead ore of 1½ cents per pound is retained, but the rates on lead products throughout the bill are raised to correspond with this duty on lead ore.

The house rate of $1 a thousand on rough lumber is retained, and the house rates on manufactures of wood, nearly all showing reductions from the Dingley rates, are also left in the senate bill. The only important change in the lumber schedule was the restoration of imported hardwoods to the free list.

The tobacco schedule remains unchanged.

RIGID LAWS TO GOVERN AERONAUTS

A. Leo Stevens, Instructor of U. S. Army Balloon Corps, Advocates Government License and Examinations.

EVERY DAY I am firmly convinced there should be government regulation of ballooning. I have held this theory for some time, but the experience of a certain California aeronaut a few days ago in the Sierra Nevada mountains has brought the need home to me more strongly than ever. The government regulation should consist of licenses for balloon pilots, and laws within which the pilots should have to confine themselves.

While I do not wish to reflect on this aeronaut, I do wish to pouint out that he is only a case in point. Some people can never become successful balloon men any more than all men can become successes as artists or deep sea divers. It's a part of a man's makeup. There are some men who can make twenty balloon ascensions and still be no better equipped as pilots than if they were going up for the second time. A person who is not skilled in aeronautics, knowing that this man has made, say nine ascensions, says, "Oh, I'll willingly go." If we had government regulation, where men skilled in aircraft should make the examinations as to whether or not the applicant was fitted to be a pilot, this obvious danger would be dispensed with.

The popular idea is that all one has to do to make an ascension is to jump into the balloon car, cut loose and when one is ready to ascend throw over the sand ballast. As a matter of fact that much is not even the alphabet of air riding.

When I heard that this experimenter was to make the trip with that number of passengers and with so small an amount of ballast in my old "America," I predicted failure. He should be thankful that the escape was so successful. There are some requirements and some theories controlling the ascent and descent of balloons just as fixed as those that govern temperature or that of gravitation. A certain sized air ship, with so many cubic feet of gas naturally can carry only so many persons exclusive of its ballast.

There is a nicety in determining just how many it can carry successfully. To be specific, a balloon with 80,000 cubic feet of gas should start out with 35 bags of ballast and five passengers. Equipped in that manner the pilot need fear no storm and have no worry. He is just as safe as if he were sitting at his own fireside. When a storm comes, by throwing overboard some ballast he can go up above it. When the storm is over, by letting out a little gas through the escape valve he can descend safely to the earth. When a balloon of this size, that is 80,000 cubic feet, has thrown over all its ballast for one reason or another, except five bags, it should drop to earth at once. To do otherwise is to run a dangerousr risk. A law making this necessary woudl be a great boon to the art and practice of ballooning. A bag carrying between 35,000 and 40,000 feet of gas and two persons besides the pilot should drop to earth when the pilot has expended all the ballast save three bags. If he does not do so he is risking lives that he should not be allowed to jeopardize.

I am in favor of government regulation. At the present time licenses can be granted to pilots in this country by the Aero Club of America. There are now twenty-four men holding these licenses. An applicant must make ten successful ascensions before he is granted a license, under the direction of other licensed pilots, or after the pilot applicant has made four or five, so that he can manage a balloon, he must keep data of his trips. This information must be exact and be filed away. For instance, when the applicant drops back to earth, say on a man's farm, he has to give the man's name and where he lives, and who hauled him back to town. This is so that at any future time the authorities may satisfy themselves that the trip was really made and that it was a successful one in every way.

France has a very creditable method of licensing its balloon men. The licenses are not governmental, though. Each pilot who is going to make an ascent, carries in his pocket a little book with his number and his photograph in it. If anyone questions his identity or his ability as navigtor, he simply shows the book with his photo behind the isinglass.

I am in favor of government licensing and governnment regulation, rather than that of state jurisdiction. In this way the laws would be uniform, and all the air sailers of something near equal ability. An applicant would not have to go to Washington to make an ascent by any means. He may make the trip at anv place under the guidance of an acredited pilot.

Ballooning is becoming more and more popular. It is now more than a craze. Its possibilities are attracting a great many reckless people to have the experience of seeing the earth slip out from under them. Here is where the trouble comes. I will not say that it is not right for a man to go up in a balloon by himself. I think it is more a matter of ethics. A person may walk on a railroad where there is a third rail. He does it knowing that he is taking his life in his hands, but when he persuades other people to go along with him, he risks their lives without enough experience to get them out of danger should anything happen.

When five people go up in a balloon in addition to the pilot, the unskilled pilot is risking five lives in addition to his own.

Throwing overboard ballast is science. Ballast is to a balloon what steam is to an engine. And just as steam once gone can never be recovered, just so ballast thrown overboard is lost. One man can get along, make a whole trip without losing more than five bags of ballast while another spends twenty. The latter spends all his time in traveling up and down making saw teeth, while the other sails along in a comparatively straight line.

The pilot who is out with the beginner makes careful notes, and gives a full report to the members of the Aero club. He takes into consideration just how much fluctuating the learner does. He assists the new ma ı, but he watches him carefully to find out how much grip he has on the science.

The dilettante in search of new sensations is as dangerous as an automobilist with the speed mania. I hesitate to make a trip with a beginner who says the danger is nothing, with the man who says, "Oh, I'm not afraid I've got the nerve." As a matter of fact when good sense is used, there is no more danger than there is in an automobile trip. But there is much potential danger. I am willing to make the trip with a beginner who says, "No, I'm new at this, I want you to tke the rudder. I don't know it all."

Another thing, balloons and all air craft will soon be equipped with wireless telephone.

An air craft in distress can send C. Q. D. messge to earth just like a vessel at sea. It should be compulsory that equipment for communicating with the earth or airships be installed. A balloon in trouble would simply telephone its location or general direction and rescue balloons or automobiles could be sent to the rescen.

The U. S. Army Corps with which I have been connected has successfully experimented with a DeForest instrument, weighing less than 100 pounds.

However, there is a new sparkless and wireless telephone of the radio variety which weighs only ten pounds and which any balloonist can safely carry. The radio sparkless attachment does away with the danger of setting the gas bag on fire. The weight of the telephone is so small that when the balloon lands out in the country the operator can put it under his arm and take it with him. An old fashioned wireless telegraph is impractical for the reason that it makes a spark that may ignite the gas bag.

Ballooning has advanced so far now that it is no longer experimental but is a science. The throwing out of ballast is a science. It takes a long time to learn to handle a balloon properly. Why, in the fitness of things should a beginner, one who has nothing to urge him on except curiosity and daredevilry, be allowed to risk other human lives?

I think license to beginners should be made reasonably hard to obtain. And further, the laws regulating ballooning should be severe. Ballooning is a matter of public concern, and when licenses are first issued I hope that they will not be given so promiscuously as licenses were given at first to auto drivers.

Letting an outsider take up a balloon is exactly like running a railroad engine. A railroad train is half way between stations when its engineer dies. The train is stopped. Somebody asks, "Can anybody here run an engine?" A young man steps up and says, "Yes, I can." He takes the engine and may draw the train ten miles without an accident, and he may get it safely to the next station. But is he a worthy engineer? No. On the following day this same young man might wreck the train before he got out of the switch yards.

SIXTY NEW JOBS

GOV. HAY HAS MANY POSITIONS TO FILL BY APPOINTMENT.

Sixty New Ones Were Created by Last Legislature—Some Carry Salaries and Others Only Expenses—Some of the Positions Enumerated.

Olympia, April 10.—Sixty jobs to be filled by appointment bv the governor were created by the last legislature, of which but ten have so far been disposed of. In addition, terms of about a score of other appointive officers have expired or will expire this spring.

Some of the positions carry good salaries. In others only expenses are allowed. With all more or less honor is an element, and most of them control expenditures of moneys, and for this minor patronage. When Gov. Hay gets back from Spokane next week he will probably take up the distribution of the offices. Some of the best appointments in the state are on the list. For instance, Eugene Lorton, Gov. Cosgrove's appointee as chairman of the state board of control, is said to be preparing to resign. He is a candidate for appointment as federal collector of internal revenue, the position held for years by D B. Crocker, of Tacoma, whose position has expired. His position on the board pays only $2,000 a year a year and expenses, while the other two members get $3,000 each, but as the board controls about 300 appointments, there will be many willing to accept the place.

Of the big old positions where terms soon expire are those now held by Jesse S. Jones, of Tacoma, member of the railroad commission, and Tax Commissioners T. D. Rockwell, of Spokane, J. E. Frost, of Ellensbrug, and A. E Cagwin, of Kelso, whose commissions carry only until next June.

Other appointments which expire in June are J. A. Veness, of Winlock, and Joseph Irving, of Snoqualmie, members of the state forestry commission; Coal Mine Inspector D. C. Boting, of Black Diamnd; Rev. J. A. Le Cornu, chaplain of the state penitentiary; Alfred Lister, Tacoma, member of the state board of accountancy, and O. Hartnagil, of of Seattle, of the veterinary examining board.

Those whose terms have already expired and who are simply holding over until they are recommissioned or others are named include Labor Commissioner Charles F. Hubbard, of Tacoma; State Geologist Henry Landis, of Seattle; H. D. Brand, of Tacoma, and A. W. Burns, of North Yakima, who are members of the board of dental examiners; John P. Hartman, of Seattle, university regent; Dr. J. S. Anderson, of Asotin, regent of the state college, and Mrs. Kate Turner Holmes, of Seattle; C. W. Smith, of Seattle; J. A. Gabel, of Centralia, and L. W. Pratt, of Tacoma, who are the advisory board of the state library commission.

The terms of the members of the old state board of education have expired, but new appointments will be made under the new code.

Of the sixty places provided by the new legislature, there have been appointed the two extra supreme court judges, a superior judge each for the counties of King, Pierce and Spokane, three members of the capitol building commission, adjutant general and a state horictultural commissioner.

In the order in which the bills appear in the 1909 session laws, the places yet to be filled follow:

A state inspector of hotels, with a salary of $1,800, who has three deputies.

A nurses' examining board to consist of five graduate nurses.

A superior court judge for Chehalis county.

Three instructors as members of the state board of education, in addition to those named there by law.

A grain inspector, who is to be appointed by the railroad commission "with the approval of the governor."

A Washington insurance code commission of five to draft a new insurance code. A new board of medical examiesr of five members.

An embalmers' examining board, of which the governor names two members. Three electors to serve with other officers in selecting and buying the site in Skagit county for the branch farm for the Western Washington hospital for the insane.

The Columbia river improvement commission of five to handle the appropriation of $50,000 in improving that stream between Bridgeport and Kettle Falls.

A board of examiners in optometry of three members.

A Southwest Washington fair commission of twelve.

A commission of three to look after the spending of $50,000 for improvements of Puyallup and Stuck rivers.

In addition the legislators created a state historical building commission to spend $25,000 at Tacoma, but named the commission in the act.

Gov. Hay has already a desk full of applications and recommendations for appointments and every mail adds to the list.

Final Decree Ousts Oil Company

Washington, April 13.—The Waters-Pierce Oil Company was finally ousted from Texas yesterday by a decision of the United States supreme court. The court denied a rehearing of the three cases of the Waters-Pierce company against the state of Texas.

SEES GREAT FUTURE FOR WASHINGTON APPLE INDUSTRY

Seattle, April 12.—According to an estimate made by W. N. Granger, government irrigation expert, 750,000 acres of Washington lands will be under irrigation systems before the close of the next decade. Mr. Granger is the builder of the Sunnyside canal in the Yakima basin, and at present is in the government service as irrigation manager of the Sunnyside system, now government property.

"I believe that the Yakima basin will continue to lead the state in the number of acres under ditch," said Mr. Granger while in Seattle. "At least 500,000 acres in the valley will be under water within ten years. Wenatchee and the Okanogan districts will be the next largest irrigation districts. It is my belief that the increase in irrigation of arid Washington lands will not cease until from two to three millions of acres are put under water.

"The Washington apple is going to be the staple product of the state and within a short time the value of the state's apple crop will amount to three times the wheat crop and considerably more than the yearly gold output from Alaska.

"I began my work in building irrigation systems in 1889. At that time and ever since, the question has been raised as to whether apples would not depreciate in value on account of the vast acreage devoted to the trees. My answer is that markets are steadily increasing and prices are advancing. There is not enough land in Washington to grow apples to make the price fall. The Washington apple is the best grown, and in spite of the demand for it, dealers are only beginning to realize its worth. There is money in raising apples and money will continue to be made at the bsineuss for the next two hundred years at the lowest estimate."

PARDONS AND PAROLES NOT TO BE MADE PUBLIC

Walla Walla, April 13.—The state prison board ended its work yesterday, but refused to give out the names of the men whose applications were granted. The board heard applications of sixty-eight men for paroles and granted forty-four; granted seventeen applications for final discharge from parole out of twenty-two applications, and granted twenty-six out of hirty-seven final discharges from the prison. Out of the twenty-six discharged twenty-three had three months or less to serve, two are to be deported and two were granted because of physical condition.

Fifty-four prisoners had personal interviews with he board of pardons and seventeen applications were granted. A total of eighty-nine favorable recommendations had been made. Ten aplications for parole were heard and granted, but the record is not complete, as they still have a "first friend" to find, when they will be released. This is done to insure thier employment on release from prison.

WINTER WHEAT CROP AND TEN YEAR AVERAGE

Washington, April 12.—A winter wheat acreage of 82.2 per cent of normal, against 91.3 a year ago, and rye average of 87 2 against 89.1 a year ago, are announced in the report of the department of agriculture, just issued.

The comparison for the important winter wheat and rye states, giving conditions April 1, 1909, and the ten year average for April 1, respectively, is given.

Rye—Kansas, 88 and 92; Oklahoma, 89 and 87; California, 87 and 93; Texas 50 and 80; Washington, 97 and 94, and Oregon, 98 and 97.

GREAT NORTHERN ROAD STARTS WAR ON USURERS

Spokane, April 13.—The Great Northern Railway Company has begun a fight on salary loan sharks by refusing to pay an assignment of wages made by one of their employes to a loan company here. The railroad, in answer to a suit filed by the loan company, declares that the claim is based on usury and demands a ruling from the superior court. The railroad company takes the position that the very nature of these loans is criminal, and that it is its duty to protect its employes even at its own expense in court.

SHAWMUT ARRIVES FIVE DAYS BEHIND TREMONT

New York, April 12.—Five days behind the Tremont, her sister ship, the steamer Shawmut arrived at New York in sixty-two days actual steaming time from San Francisco. The Tremont made the considerably longer voyage from Seattle to New York in the same number of days. The two vessels were purchased by the isthmian canal commission for use in the service between New York and Colon.

The Shawmut's belated arrival is explained by her stop of five days at Montedideo for coal.

Valdez Court Clerk Quits

Valdez, April 13.—John H. Burton, clerk of the court at Valdez, has resigned, to take effect May 1. The reason given is his intention to engage in other business. With the exception of Commissioner Beeks, Burton is the last office holder appointed by Judge Reid now in office in this district.

WITHOUT A COUNTRY

CIPRIANO CASTRO EXPELLED FROM MARTINIQUE BY FORCE.

Placed on Board Steamer Bound For France—Former Venezuelan President Protests Vainly Against Action—Expulsion by International Agreement.

Fort De Fracne, April 10.—Cipriano Castro, former president of Venezuela, was epxelled tonight from the Island of Martinique by the French government. He protested to the last against his epxulsion, but his protests were in vain. He is now on board the French line steamer Versailles, bound for St. Nazaire.

Official notice was served on Castro this morning of the decision of the French government that he must leave the island within nine hours from the receipt of such notice, and that the commissary of police at Fort de Franec had been charged with the execution of the order.

The ex-president was furious, and strove throughout the day to find some excuse that would be satisfactory to the colonial government, whereby he would not be compelled to obey the order.

After some delay a consultation of physicians was held, and it was decided at its close that the life of the ex-president was not jeopardized by the removal to the steamer and the return voyage across the ocean

At 8:30 o'clock a force of gendarmes went to Castro's room and he was placed on a mattress, he refusing to put on his clothes, and was carried on a stretcher to the steamer, a distance of more than a mile.

The Versailles left here at 9 o'clock and measures have been taken to keep a careful watch on Castro during the voyage. The colonial government intends to put down any sympathetic demonstration that may be made on shore.

CAST ADRIFT AMONG NATIONS

Castro Driven Out by Agreement of Interested Governments

The governments of the United States, Great Britain and France recently united to take concerted action against ex-President Castro, who had declared his intention of returning to Venezuela with designs on the presidency.

Castro left Venezuela last November. He appointed Juan Vincente Gomez, the first vice president, to take his place as president. Within a month after the departure of Castro the Venezuelan government was overturned, Gomez becoming the new president. Charges were made against Castro and he was indicted. He announced that he would return to Venezuela, but the Venezuelan government denied him the right to land. Eventually, however, it withdrew this prohibition, according him permission to land, but at his own peril.

Castro left Bordeaux March 26 on the steamer Guadeloupe. His intention was to take up a temporary residence at Trinidad, but the British government refused to permit him to land at Port of Spain, and he was forced to leave the ship at Fort de France. It is understood the United States government communicated with the French authorities relative to the deportation of the ex-president and France in response issued an order to the colonial authorities that Castro be put aboard the first steamer returning to France.

The position of Castro is greatly complicated by his expulsion from Martinique. Had he been permitted to remain there, he might have made his way to some other region not far from Venezuela, where he could have put his plans for a movement against the present government into execution. He could have reached any of the Central American republics or the Danish West Indies, Hayti or Santo Domingo, but his deportation to France will put him in the predicament of a "cast-adrift" among the European countries.

NORTHERN PACIFIC LOSES 1,100 ACRES OF COAL LAND

Helena, Mont., April 12.—In the case of the United States against the Northern Pacific railway, the Rock Fork Coal Company and the Northwestern Improvement Companny, in which are involved 1,110.54 acres of coal lands in Carbon county. Judge Hunt, of the United States circuit court, rendered a deisiaon that the patent to the lands in question is null and void. The decree recites that since the patent was issued in August, 1903, it has been null and void at all times. The defendant is ordered to surrender the patent to the clerk of the court for cancellation. The defendant is further commanded to refrain from asserting any claim or right to the land. The complainant is authorized to recover the costs.

Mexico to Build $3,000,000 Theatre

Mexico City, April 12.—The annual budget of the national congress carries more than $3,000,000 for a new national theater; $4,900,000 for educational purposes; $11,500,000 for improving irrigation facilities and the water systems of the federal district, and $1,000,000 for a monument to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Mexican independence next year.

German explorers are making interesting discoveries on the supposed site of ancient Jericho, near the Dead Sea, having recently uncovered the city wall, a structure built in three parts—a rock foundation, a body of rubble, and a top of clay bricks. When the road was opened in September this sort of thing was freely prophesied.

The distinguished members of the Peace Society are always consistently at work decrying the need of increase of military and naval armament, or even, for the United States, of its maintenance at its present strength. One of the orators at a recent meeting said that "Moral preparedness for war makes war inevitable; moral preparedness for peace makes war impossible. If we would prevent war we must disarm not only our hands, but our hearts. American strength lies not in Lyddite guns, but in Lincoln men." All this is unquestionably true as an abstract proposition. If war or peace were to depend entirely upon the decision of this nation we might safely disarm our hands as soon as we disarm our hearts, and a propagandism for the disarmament of both hearts and hands would be in order. But how about the other fellow's heart? If we, the people of the United States, should get ourselves into the condition in which we are morally prepared for peace, and the people of some other nation should get themselves into a condition in which they were morally prepared for war with us, our hearts would be but a poor defense against their arms. Lincoln men would be a strong defense; but in the crisis of 1861-65 what would Abraham Lincoln himself have done without armies and guns and munitions of war? To preach peace is meritorious; but the peace advocate needs some of the spirit of prudence of the fatalist in the old colonial days. His neighbor saw him going to church with his gun over his shoulder. "Why," asked the neighbor, "do you need to take a gun for protection when you believe that you can't die until your time comes?" "That is all right," replied the fatalist, "but suppose I should meet an Indian and his time had come?"

Golf would deserve well of the people of America if it had nothing more to its credit than the influence it has exercised toward the establishing of country clubs. No doubt it has much more to its credit, but this is one of its greatest recommendations. The increase in the number of country clubs is a wholesome and pleasing sign of a saner enjoyment of life. There have been plenty of town and village and city clubs before now, many of them serving as centers for an agreeable social life. The objection to them has been that for the most part they were either men's or women's clubs, conducted primarily for the benefit and pleasure of one or the other sex. Moreover, the recreation which they offered was comprised in reading, pool and billiards, cards and bowling, and occasional dances—all indoors. The country club, on the other hand, offers all these diversions to those who wish them, and offers, in addition, the more wholesome sports of golf, tennis, snowshoeing, and sometimes curling, hockey and skating. Moreover, the sexes stand more on an equality here, and neither need regard itself as the occasional guest of the other. The family life, instead of being interrupted, is broadened and enriched. The part that golf has played in this development is due to the large space which the game requires. Few individuals can secure the necessary land, hence a community of interests which leads eventually to the establishment of a club. Although many country clubs are expensive, there is no need that an association of this kind should be beyond the reach of the family in ordinary circumstances. The scale rests with those who are most concerned. Not least in the merits of the country club is its happy solution of the way in which persons of only moderate means can enjoy the pleasures of a large estate with beautiful grounds.

ON A MODERN WARSHIP.

The Feelings of a Commander as Described by Himself.

How the commander of a modern big American battleship can feel is disclosed in the following, taken from a letter written by such an officer:

"There are more than 900 men on this ship, and on the theory that an official of the government is a servant of the people I am the servant of these 900 men and am bound to see that they are kept in food and clothing and base ball bats and abundantly supplied with occupation. Perhaps I should feel more independent if I didn't have to listen respectfully to the orderly every time he comes in and makes one of his infinitely numerous reports and put men in jail when I don't want to.

"Some of these 900 men look more dignified and independent than I feel. I wonder whether I look dignified and independent. I suppose I ought to do so, for to swing a steel mass 504 feet long successfully around like a monster and to make 15,000 tons writhe around the corners of narrow channels is something of an art, after all, and one not possessed by many of the inhabitants of the globe.

"With all that swinging of steel monsters around there go the responsibility and the knowledge that if the ship runs aground the whole civilized world will be acquainted with it inside of twenty-four hours."

In the Heat of Battle.

There had been a hotly contested football game between the Steam Rollers of the Benjamin Franklin school and the Avalanches of the George Washington school. It was won by the Avalanches. After the game was over and the contestants had returned to their various homes one of the heroes of the winning team complained of a feeling of soreness in the lower part of his neck.

"I didn't feel it until just now," he said, "but it hurts like sixty."

His father examined it. It began to swell and was very sore to the touch.

"I believe your collar bone is broken, my boy," said his father.

A surgeon was hastily summoned and made an examination.

"Yes," he said, "the bone is fractured. How did it happen Walter? Do you remember anything about it?"

"Why, yes," answered the boy. "I remember that when I tackled Skinny Morgan I fell on top of him, and I heard something crack, but I thought it was his collar bone."

MANICURED HOTEL WAITERS.

Latest Innovation in the Service of a Leading Caravansary.

Manicured hotel servants will be presented to-day to the guests of the Wolcott and it will be the initial presentation of a finger-nail condition that no other hotel in New York—or in the United States for that matter—ever has considered, the New York World says. The management has been impressed for three or four months with the general untidiness of waiters, bellboys and other employes exclusive of the clerical staff and yesterday the following pronunciamento was issued:

"Beginning on this date every employe of the Wolcott who comes in contact with the guests of the hotel will report daily to Miss Cora M. Parker, the official manicure, to have his or her finger nails clipped, cleaned, polished and filed.

"This order is mandatory and no excuse will be accepted for disobedience except illness or other excuse which the management shall deem to be reasonable.

"A room has been provided for the manicure near the waiters' dressing room, and she will be on duty from 8:30 a. m. until 5 p. m.

"No charge will be made for the service, which tends to promote cleanliness and which will appeal to the guests of the hotel. There is no reason why the finger nails should not receive the same attention as the hands."

The promulgation of the edict was followed by two waiters making immediate application for treatment—Serath Carros and Antipolus Choganos. Carros has a large hand with spatulated fingers caused by close attention to the strings of a violin and to balancing salvers on his finger tips. Chaganos has a long, slender hand, with oval nails. Each candidate was polished off in ten minutes.

"Fine," said Carros. "I like him. The younga lade, she very nice. Don't hurt, just a little tickle."

Small Clifford had frequently accompanied Walter to the home of the latter's grandma, where cookies were always forthcoming. One day while there the cookies did not materialize at the usual time, so Clifford said: 'Mamma says I must never ask for anything to eat, but I'm awfully hungry, just the same."

RAILROAD SAFETY DEVICE.

The "Death Button" Adds to the Subway Traveler's Security.

Safety in railroad travel is a vitally interesting topic, and an article in the Circle, entitled, "Making Railroad Travel Safer," gives some remarkable illustrations of the many inventions and automatic appliances which tend to guard the public from danger. One of these is called the "death button," making provision as it does in case of the sudden death or inactivity of the one in charge at the moment on lines where electric current has been installed as a propelling power.

The well-known "death button," now in use in the Manhattan subway trains, is a safety device in line with this future development.

In the top of the electric controller handle, which is moved in a circle over a row of contact buttons by the motorman when he regulates the speed, is a little plunger which is the real factor in throwing the electric current off and on. It sticks through the handle and is held up by a spring.

Before he can get any current at all this button must be pushed down by the palm of the motorman's hand, after which he can move the handle about and adjust the strength of the current at will.

But should he drop dead at his post, or for any reason remove his hand from the lever, the little button would spring up from contact, the current would leave the motors and the car stop.

The lumber congressman defeated the tree lumber advocates in the big fight over the lumber tariff sections of the Payne bill, and the bill passed the house of representatives with a $1 rate on lumber. There is some possibility that the senate will raise this to the old $2 rate. In the house the Washington delegation stood firm against free lumber, and with the aid of the majority of Republicans and some thirty Democrats, won the day. The lumbermen will get nothing worse than a one dollar rate, and still have a chance to have the present tariff maintained.

The Tacoma News notes that the state will put up $2,000 and the exposition managers a like sum for the publication of a "booster book" setting forth the advantages, attractions, and resources of Washington, the book to be distributed to visitors at the exposition. By the way, how is the Angeles and Clallam county book progressing? Unless the work is hurried along there will not be time to print an extra edition, for use among people in the East who may not visit the exposition.

The Department of Agriculture is preparing to spend $5,000 in this state, an amount equal to what the legislature appropriated, for experimenting on the best methods of clearing logged-off lands, and the best means of cultivating them. The deforested lands in Washington are of high fertility, and the clearing has always been the only hindrance to their development. The experiments of the government experts should be of high practical value to this state.

Angelites who are complaining of the slight spring drouth are reminded of the two and one-half inches of snow that fell in Denver on last Monday, the 12th, bringing the total snow fall of the winter in that city up to nine feet, seven and one-half inches. People who are accustomed to spring weather all winter should not complain when it gets a little dry and dusty.

A freak of nature that proved very interesting came to light here today when the pedigreed water spaniel belonging to Al. Critchfield, the barber, gave birth to a litter of puppies. There were seven in all of as perfectly formed, sized and shaped as one could ask for, but one was noticed to be inanimate, and the discovery was made that this pup had neither eyes, mouth or nose. It has ears of natural size, and seemingly where the mouth should be there is a small indenture the size of a pea into which seems to be crowded mouth, nose and a tiny tongue. The body is perfect otherwise. Mr. Critchfield has preserved the freak in alcohol and formaldehyde.

It appearing to the Board that the west half nw qr and nw qr sw qr of sec 4, 29, 7, and the sw qr sw qr of sec 33, 30, 7 should not be assessed for the year 1904, therefore the county treasurer is hereby ordered to cancel said taxes.

It appearing to the Board that the tide lands in front of lots 1, 2, 3, 4, in sec 21, 32, 12, containing 3696 lineal feet were assessed by the county for the years 1901 to 1908 inclusive, that on Oct. 24th, 1908, said county sold said lands to J. F. Rudisile and that the total amount paid by said purchaser is the sum of $130.57; the Board further finds that June 14th, 1902, the United States condemned, as shown in Case No. 2224 in U. S. District Court, the north 1240 lineal feet of the above tide lands and hereby orders the county auditor to draw a warrant on the Current Expense fund for the sum of $43.50 for the amount paid by said J. The Board examined and approved the bond of Harry Coventon, given to secure the county for contract to construct the second section of Indian Creek and Lake Sutherland road.

The Board instructed the county auditor to issue a warrant of $10.00 on the Current Expense fund to each of the following named persons: Henry Daniels, Garfield Davis, George Porter, George Bird, L. McGillivray to reimburse them for the fee paid the county auditor for filing their declaration candidacy at the primary and general election in 1908, for the offices of county game warden and county health officer, said offices being appointive offices and should not have been placed on the ticket.

The Board granted the petition of J. A. Fairchild et als for a county road commencing at the middle of Sec. 19, Tp. 30, N R 3 west, running thence west 7-8 of a mile and ending at an intersection with the East Side River road.

The matter of completing the cruise of the timber land in the county for assessing purposes was turned over to the assessor.

It appearing to the Board that the nw qr of Sec. 34, Tp. 32, R 13, had been assessed for the years 1906, 1907, 1908, and that the taxes had been paid on said land for the years 1906 and 1907, and
