PORT ANGELES TO SHIP COAL

It is so Rumored and Confidently Believed to Be a Fact.

The Port Angles Coal & Coke Company, whose operations have been noted in these columns for some months past, has suspended drilling for the present, and the report has gained credence that the company has struck a forty foot vein of good quality coal and will take steps to begin shipping same by next spring.

The Iowa people who have been backing the project have been expected in the city for a week but at present writing have not yet arrived. It is reported that upon their arrival they will ask the city for franchises for right-of way into the city and for wharf and bunker privileges.

It has been known for some time that these people have had very encouraging results from their labors and have had reports and opinions from experts which have been found to be correct. The conditions and indications are identical with the Nanaimo district and all who have had anything to do with coal mining and who have examined into this proposition are of the opinion that coal is there and in big quantities.

Drilling that has been going on for many months past has been very expensive and some difficulties have been experienced, but the men have stood by their work satisfied and confident. Allthough they have never stated that they have discovered coal in any quantity it is understood that such is the case; they are now, however, in such shape that they can talk if they so desired, but they are not yet making public any of their business.

Practically the entire locality is under contract so that when work is begun there will be no hitch from this source. A considerable number of these contracts have been secured recently practically giving them all the land necessary for successful operations.

Summing up, it is understood that they are down 1,300 feet; that a 40 foot vein of good coal suitable for steam purposes has been located; that the Nanaimo experts presentations have been verified; that they are contemplating putting down two more holes in triangular position from the present one, to ascertain best location for a shaft; that when the Iowa people get here they will apply for a franchise.

If all these statements are facts Port Angeles will not be long in getting railroad connection or in advancing to the position which is rightfully hers.

The Best Doctor.

Rev. B. C. Horton, Sulphur Springs, Texas, writes, July 19th, 1899: "I have used in my family Ballard's Snow Liniment and Horehound Syrup, and they have proved certainly satisfactory The liniment is the best we have ever used for headache and pains. The cough syrup has been our doctor for the last eight years." 25c. 50c, $1.00. C. E, Nailor & Co.

PERRY S. HEATH AND THE POSTAL SCANDALS.

Perry S. Heath, editor of the Salt Lake City Tribune, declares that he courts the fullest investigation of his conduct of affairs while first assistant postmaster general during a portion of McKinley's first administration. It is reported that President Roosevelt has directed that all evidence against Mr. Heath in connection with the irregularities in the postoffice department be presented to the proper authorities.

Creamery for Port Angeles.

As announced in THE DEMOCRAT-LEADER some months ago the Glendale Creamery Co., of Chimacum and Dungness, will start a creamery in this city with up-to-date machinery. They have rented the Morse building on the dock and will get to work next month or early the following month. This is an industry which will be welcomed by every citizen.

Elwha Bridge In Danger.

The new Elwha bridge erected recently at great cost to the city is said to be in eminent danger from high water. Recent investigations revealed the fact that the washout under the East pier is in such shape that a pole can be pushed under to the extent of eight feet. The matter has repeatedly been called to the attention of the county board but the commissioner of the district refused even to investigate and has now hied away to California. Life as well as property is in danger here should this bridge go out. The terrible experience of the last fording spell should be a vivid reminder.

Doings of the City Council.

A petition from M. Geraghty for a liquor license was granted.

A petition was read from the residents of Third and Fourth wards, asking that city construct at as early a date as possible a bridge for general traffic on Eighth street between Eunice and Francis sts. Referred.

The question of raising the salaries of the street commissioner, marshal and clerk was discussed and laid over without action.

PORTLAND TO PORT ANGELES

Local Merchant Gives a Valuable and Practical Tip.

The Portland Journal of a recent date contained the following communication from a prominent local merchant to a Portland wholesale house:

"The goods for invoice of the 28th have not reached us as yet; we do not understand why it should take so long. We hope you will wake up the railroad company or organize a competing line by your business men of Portland and build it. We believe it would pay your merchants of Portland to build a line lower down the sound in order to compete with Seattle for the Alaska and Oriental trade. We believe a direct line from Portland to Olympia, thence to Port Angeles would be a paying road. Further, it would give Portland merchants the advantage of 85 miles nearer the ocean than Seattle, and all large steamers loading and unloading would save extra insurance, pilotage and 10 hours of time each way. This is something for your merchants to think about. Your branch warehouses for Oriental trade, Alaska and Yukon, could be established right here, which would give you the advantage of Seattle. Besides, a competing line would be a great help to Portland in every way."

SIGNS OF GOOD TIME.

More and more the country is settling down to the easy belief that the recent flurry was a "Wall street panic" and nothing more. The substantial signs in the business would indicate continued prosperity.

The favorable conditions, coupled with good crops and fair prices, indicate that the coming year will be one of prosperity throughout the country in general. Probably New York will be ill and convalescent for some months to come, but the country has learned that it does not have to call a physician every time that financial center has an acute attack of indigestion.

"WHAT'S the use of trying to do right?" said a local official to the editor last week. "Ones good deeds never help him from the source they should; while in doing his duty he makes lifelong enemies." It's the same old story, and no interest unless you touch a fellow's pocketbook.

Mr. James Stewart has been appointed receiver of the Port Angeles Pacific railroad.

BRYAN'S "conscience" campaign will hardly be a success in this age. Consciences now-a-days are too elastic. It is no crime to steal or graft unless you get caught, and then it is no crime unless you are sent to jail."

Aching Joints

In the fingers, toes, arms, and other parts of the body, are joints that are inflamed and swollen by rheumatism—that acid condition of the blood which affects the muscles also.

Sufferers dread to move, especially after sitting or lying long, and their condition is commonly worse in wet weather.

"It has been a long time since we have been without Hood's Sarsaparilla. My father thinks he could not do without it. He has been troubled with rheumatism since he was a boy, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine he can take that will enable him to take his place in the field." MISS ADA DOTY, Sidney, Iowa.

DEWEY

in command of the Asiatic squadron, consisting of the Olympia (flagship), first-class cruiser; Baltimore, Raleigh, Boston, second-class cruisers; Concord, third-class cruiser; Petrel, fourth-class cruiser; McCulloch, revenue cutter, used as a dispatch boat; Nanshan, collier; and Zafiro, supply vessel; with a total personnel of 1,694 officers and men.

On the breaking out of the war with Spain, April 22, 1898, Commodore Dewey was at Hong Kong with his squadron; and he received prompt instructions from Washington to find and destroy the Spanish fleet stationed somewhere in the Philippines. Accordingly, on Wednesday, April 27, he sailed with his squadron from Hong Kong in search of the enemy. The result may be given in his own first brief dispatch: "Manila, May 1.—Squadron arrived at Manila at daybreak this morning. Immediately engaged the enemy, and destroyed the following Spanish vessels: Reina Cristina, Castilla, Don Antonio de Ulloa, Isla de Luzon, Isla de Cuba, General Lezo, Marques del Duero, Cano, Velasco, Isla de Mindanao, a transport and water battery at Cavité. The squadron is uninjured, and only a few men are slightly wounded." Owing to the feeble defense of the Spaniards, Commodore Dewey's victory was an unexpectedly easy one; but that circumstance does not in the slightest degree detract from its workmanlike completeness, which, when contrasted with the trifling cost to the victor, made it one of the most remarkable victories in naval annals. Commodore Dewey's dispatch was received by President McKinley on May 7, and he at once telegraphed his thanks to Commodore Dewey, and notified him that, in recognition of his "splendid achievement," he had been appointed acting rear-admiral. Two days later the President sent a message to Congress recommending that the thanks of that body be given to "Acting Rear-Admiral George Dewey for highly distinguished conduct in conflict with the enemy, and to the officers and men under his command." On the same day (May 9) Congress passed a joint resolution of thanks, to the effect indicated, and voted to Admiral Dewey a sword of honor, and to his comrades medals commemorative of the victory. It also passed a bill increasing the number of rear-admirals from six to seven, to provide for Dewey's promotion. After the destruction of the Spanish fleet, Dewey subjected Manila to a strict blockade, and with his squadron took part in the capture of the city by General Merritt on Aug. 13, 1898. On March 2, 1899, he was created full admiral. (See also MANILA, in these Supplements.)

Admiral Dewey is a strict disciplinarian, and his action with the Spanish squadron showed that he is an admirable tactician, and a cool, clear-headed, skilful, and brave commander. He is an all-round athlete, a daring horseman and huntsman, and socially a good club man and a general favorite. At Portsmouth, N. H., in 1867, he married Miss Susy Goodwin, a daughter of Ichabod Goodwin, the "fighting governor" of New Hampshire. She died in 1872, leaving a son, George Goodwin Dewey, who, after graduating at Princeton, went into business in New York city.

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Some other symptoms of nerve trouble are: Dizziness, Headache, Backache, Worry, Fretfulness, Irritability, Melancholy, Lack of Ambition.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

The Home Market of Today

"George is going to call on you tomorrow, papa."

"Who is George?"

"He—why, don't you know who George is?"

"No, but if he is some protege of yours that you want a job for there is no use of his coming round. I have more clerks now than I can use."

"He—he isn't looking for that kind of job, papa."

"Eh? Then what does he want?"

"He—he wants a better place."

"The dickens he does! Like to be a partner, maybe?"

"Yes, papa."

"Good, very good! I like his modesty. Who's backing him—Morgan or Rockefeller or one of the Vanderbilts?"

"I—I am backing him, papa."

"You!"

"Yes, papa. You see, I'm the one th-that wants him."

"You—you want him?" She nods and a brief silence ensues. The old man scowls horribly. "Well, what's his price?"

"He will tell you, papa. I think you will find him quite cheap if you make it a cash transaction. But, please, don't beat him down, papa. He—he's a bargain at any price."

"Very well. Send him around and I'll look him over. At the same time"—

"Yes, I know, papa, but you must buy him just the same."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

New Type And Machinery.

THE DEMOCRAT LEADER is now better than ever prepared to do fine job printing; in fact it is the only office in the city that has a large press for large work and small presses for small jobs.

We recently purchased the handsome Courier press—the best in the city—and have received direct from the manufacturers in the East some handsome new type of mammoth size together with borders, rules, etc., and a handsome new furniture rack. We now have everything to do first-class work, and if we cannot now do satisfactory job work of any description it cannot be done in town, or this side of Seattle. Our prices are right, too, as you will find them.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

Saved His Life.

J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 14, 1902: "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a lump in my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two moths longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. CAUCA need not think that because Panama was so quickly recognized that she will be if she throws off the yoke of Colombia. She has no canal pull.

THE millmen of Grays harbor met last week and decided to close unless employes would agree to accept twenty per cent reduction in wages until lumber market is better.

THE San Domingo provisional government, too, asks for recognition, but is turned down, It's a shame to build up the hopes of these adventurers only to blast them."

THE Colombian province of Antioquia also seeks independence, encouraged, no doubt, by the success of Panama. But what an awakening is in store for her should she depend on U. S. recognition.

FROM Cleveland's letter to the Brooklyn Eagle reciting his determination not to accept the nomination for the presidency, it is evident the old gentleman considered the subject more seriously than anyone else.

THE Brooklyn Eagle, which has so persistently advocated the nomination of Grover Cleveland by the Democrats, now declares it will support Judge Parker with the same zeal. Parker now may as well give up.

A PROTEST comes from a Canterbury girl that she cannot now dress on $500. a year, whereas five years ago she could get along nicely on a little over half that amount. She is no more extravagant, she says; the difference lies in the increased price.

THE effect of the supreme court's Ruling this week is to bring the Chinese exclusion act into court for scrutiny as to its scope, which, in view of the clause which re-enacts the old laws only "so far as the same are not inconsistent with treaty obligations" may be curtailed so as to render the act valueless.

Ben-Hur to be Staged in Seattle.

After four years of patient waiting the State of Washington at last is to have a "Ben Hur" season. The announcement is made that Klaw & Erlanger's original massive and magnificent production of Gen. Lew Wallaces "Ben Hur" will be staged at the Grand Opera House, for the entire week of Dec. 7 to 12 with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. This spectacle has scored the biggest kind of a triumph both in this country and Europe It has completely eclipsed the record of all stage offerings, and is acknowledged to be the grandest, most impressive, instructive and stupendous indoor entertainment ever offered the public.

Seattle and Spokane are the only cities in the state that "Ben Hur" will be presented in. The company numbers over 350 persons. Ten 60 feet baggage cars are required to transport the scenic effects while two stock cars are pressed into service to care for the horses and camels used in the production. In the great chariot race scene alone eight horses, harnessed to two chariots, are shown in their struggle for supremacy.

The entire stage of the Grand Opera House is to be reconstructed for the handling of this collossal production. A force of carpenters are now busy putting in a new stage with a sub stage for the mechanical effects of the charit race scene and the moving panorama showing the excited spectators in the Roman hippodrome.

During the run of Ben-Hur in Seattle all the railroad and steamboat lines entering the city will make special excursion rates for all persons desiring to take in this great dramatic spectacle.

THE UNITY OF LIFE.

There's unity of life through the spirit unseen
From old ocean's fathoms to the distant sunbeam,
There's an invisible power keeps them in place,
And makes them minister to the good of our race.
There's a purpose of love shines through every one,
From the tiniest speck to the great central sun,—
A purpose so divine in its thought of mankind,
That it stirs every soul with a pure, sane mind.

And seers and prophets in the dim ages of yore,
Have puzzled their brains on this mystery to pore;
Their eyes have peered through the infinity of space,
Where angels of light reveal the story of grace.
But in the busy scenes of every day life,
There was such a confusion and "strenuous" strife,
That the prophets were slain in the strife of their time,—
But this, my good friends, is not the end of my rhyme.

For their message refused to be hung on the cross,
Or be laid in the tomb and be covered with moss;
And it goes marching on through the spirit of life,
And will never cease till there's an end of all strife.
The world is now waking from its slumber in sin,
And the truth for our time is sought with a vim;
For the spirit of the seers and saints of the past,
Has come to the fore to be heard at last—AT LAST.

Oh, ye puzzled statesmen, and leaders of mankind!
THE UNITY OF LIFE is the secret to find;
In the brotherhood of man, in this truth divine,
Is the goal of desire and the Truth for all time.
The social life is ripe for this spirit and change.
And it is folly for you as opposers to range;
For the spirit of progress is moving the world,
And all who oppose shall from their places be hurled.

"I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health."

"Three years of delicate health trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines" without benefit might well sap the courage of any woman. And yet Mrs. Bryant proved that the question of the cure of womanly disease is only a question of using the right remedy. A few doses of 'Favorite Prescription' restored her courage and revived her hope, because she could see "a decided change from the first." Three months' use of the medicine restored her to perfect health.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Sarah Bryant, President of Memphis Social Science Club, residing at 271 Atkinson Ave., Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I suffered with delicate health for three years, trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines until I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health; but a few doses of your 'Favorite Prescription' made me change my mind. Could see a decided change from the first, so I kept on taking it for three months faithfully and am now in perfect health."

Through the Orchard Gate

By HARRIET WHITNEY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

"Kree-e-ee," went the frogs down in the marshy corner of Miss Bennett's meadow where the cattails grew.

The high buttoned crown of Miss Bennett's white sunbonnet had but now been pink with the bloom of sunset. It was pushed back off the young lady's head and hung around her neck by two ruffled strings.

"I hate the country after sunset," complained Miss Bennett's visiting sister, standing forlornly on the back porch. Violet twilights shot with gold and faint pink afterglows were dust and ashes and the far twilight voices from marsh and thicket were desolation to Mrs. Belinda Bonsel. "These old frogs drive me frantic."

Marjorie seated herself upon the shallow lower step, untying her bonnet and gathering it up closely in her supple hands. There were two indistinct horizontal lines in her forehead.

"I always love the frogs," she said, turning her face toward the meadow "only—they remind me of the evening I nailed up the orchard gate—years ago."

"And I wish you'd unnail it." Belinda's nimble mind frisked into another grievance. "Ed 'll be up from the city tomorrow evening again, and he always cuts through the orchard. Last time he tore an acre of lining out of his coat climbing over the fence, and I had it to darn. Whatever did you nail it up for?"

"Kree-e-ee," echoed faintly. The silver gray had almost overcome the rose lights. A slim little curve of moon lay against the dim gold of the west. Marjorie was fluting the cape of her bonnet over her fingers.

"I nailed it up so that Ben Harper couldn't come through it any more."

"You always were a queer little trick," commented Belinda, "and never knew beans so far as men were concerned. But I forgot you and Ben fell out. What was it—jealousy, misunderstandings or meddling friends?"

"Clotheslines," said Marjorie.

Belinda's laugh broke into the tremolo of the frog chorus.

"Whatever! You can do a good many curious things, Marge, but how did you manage to get your romance tied up with a clothesline?"

"Becky Bean always would fasten the line to the plum trees this side of the orchard and forget to take it down. Ben invariably came through the orchard gate at twilight and the line never failed to knock his hat off. Men are singular about their hats. He and I were combative, anyway, in those days. One particular evening, like this, and the frogs piping just that way, we were unusually predisposed to battle. We had been to a picnic. Both our noses were peeling with sunburn and our shoes were tight. The sunburn was a just retribution to him, for he had sat for an hour on a tumble down stile in a snarl of blackberry bushes with Sadie Plummer beside him, and then flung thunderbolts of wrath about because I gave Joe Lawton most of the jelly cake out of the lunch basket. But he came over as usual in the evening, and as usual Becky had left the clothesline in the trees, and it happened to sag a little and caught Ben right across his poor sunburned nose where it was tenderest. The war broke out then. Among other things he said if I wanted him to come I would at least see that he could get in without maiming himself. I said he could come the front way as a well regulated person would or not come at all. He said it would be not at all, then—and after the fray I nailed up the gate."

"And so nailed out the only man you ever knew that was worth a yard of calico," was Mrs. Belinda's consolation. "You might as well unnail it now and let it be of some use, as long as the whole business is ancient history and Ben vanished away into airy nothing. He won't bother you any more. While you are mooning among dismal memories and frogs, intrenched behind your nailed up gate, he is living comfortably somewhere with a fat little wife and probably seven children. No doubt one of them, a little freckled one who meddles, is named Marjorie."

It was dark now and Marjorie's cheeks could burn unseen.

"Kree-e-ee," croaked the frogs derisively.

Before the mists were out of the hollow lands the next morning Marjorie Bennett, with a claw hammer, was drawing the bent and rusted nails from the old orchard gate.

"Belinda told the truth," she admitted in the inner circle of her heart. "I nailed my own happiness out when I drove in these nails. However, the crooked little nails of miserable pride and temper (I called the mixture 'independence' then) I drove every day would inevitably have had the same effect in time. And not a nail here is an atom more rusted than my hopes of his ever coming back. But the old gate may as well be of some use to others. Belinda knows a few things, and I dare say it's true, all she said."

The hammer fell into a big bunch of spiderwort on the outside of the gate, and Marjorie rested her elbows on the top rail of the fence. The clover lay in deep billows, crested with the silver of the dew. The ruffle on her pink gingham gown was limp and wet. The early sun looked at her through a soft, long vista of orchard, out of amethystine vapors. Robin songs bubbled and splashed all about.

The gate swung wide open on a loose hinge that creaked a note of relief.

"I must have Hiram Bean fix it," Marjorie decided practically, coming out of her retrospect and passing through the gate in quest of the hammer.

A man had come trampling along the orchard, leaving a wake of crushed wet clover behind him.

"You've broken the latch," he said, with a laugh that swept Marjorie into old paths and byways, while he spread a broad, brown palm for her hand, "just the way you broke the latch off my poor heart long ago, so I could never keep you out of it any more."

"I could nail it together again," she said sedately, with eyes that sparkled under their lashes.

"No; you couldn't drive the nails straight. Look at those wretched little twisted things. Mayn't I come through the old gate now, Margie? Only if I do you can't bar me out any more."

"I will never try," she answered, with dimples of happy laughter that were swiftly washed out by a recollection.

"Wait, Ben; I'm afraid—at least, Belinda said"—

"What did Belinda say?"

"That you must have married some one long ago."

"Oh, Belinda! It was Belinda's dear delight when we were all less than ten to create strife by getting me suspected by you of a deeply rooted resolve to marry Peggy Dodson when we grew up. She has come just about as near the mark now. No, Margie, Mrs. Ben's name is to be Marjorie or nothing. Providence has let me come back at just the right time. Let's take hold of hands and race through that gate the way we did when we were little—come." He caught Marjorie's hand. "Now—one for the money and two for the show, three to make ready and four—to—go."

Like two heedless children they sped, laughing, with linked hands through the old orchard gate, straight into an enchanted country.

A Just Judge.

Theophilus Harrington, a Vermont judge in the early part of the last century, was a man who loved the right and cared little for mere legal quibbling. "If justice controls your verdict," he would often say to the jury, "you will not miss the general principles of the law."

At one trial when the possession of a farm was in question the defendant offered a deed of the premises, to which the plaintiff's lawyer, Daniel Chipman, objected because it had no seal.

"But your client sold the land, was paid for it and signed the deed, did he not?" asked the judge.

"That makes no difference," said Chipman. "The deed has no seal and cannot be admitted in evidence."

"Is anything else the matter with the deed?" asked the judge.

"I don't know that there is."

"Mr. Clerk," said the judge, "give me a wafer and a three cornered piece of paper."

The clerk obeyed, and the judge deliberately made and affixed the seal.

"There, Brother Chipman," said he, "the deed is all right now. It may be put in evidence. A man is not going to be cheated out of his farm in this court when there is a whole box of wafers on the clerk's desk."

"The court will give me an exception?" pleaded the counsel.

"The court will do no such thing," answered the judge, and he kept his word.

Can Stand It.

"Commercially, we are taking money from you right along," asserted the American.

"Well, as long as you use it to buy titles we don't mind," returned the Englishman.—Chicago Post.

Her Little Joke Stunned the Duke

They were in the studio. Artists' trappery and bohemian paraphernalia were placed about the room with studied carelessness.

Heavy tapestries and portieres choked the walls. Costly statuary, mediæval firearms, poniards, yataghans and priceless and historic armor were ranged idly about the room.

Seated on a heavily upholstered divan, eying the American heiress at work on an intricate landscape, was the duke.

"Bah Jove!" he ejaculated suddenly. "Do you know, Miss Millyins, I'm wrapped up in you and"—

"Huh!" interrupted the wealthy maiden with Yankee sarcasm. "I don't see why you should be wrapped up. I haven't bought you yet."

The duke sat dumfounded, wondering what there was in her remark to cause a smile to break out over her sweet visage.—New York Times.

Glimpse of the Future.

Now, in the course of time the multimillionaire fell seriously ill.

He sent for his doctors.

"Gentlemen," he observed, "you may have heard that I once said I considered it a disgrace to die rich."

"We have heard of it," they replied.

"Well," he rejoined, "I still think so, for a rich man can afford the best medical advice there is in the world. Therefore, gentlemen, if I die it will be terribly disgraceful—to you. Furthermore, if you don't restore me to health I will fix matters so you will not get a cent out of my estate in payment of your bills."

Hearing this, the physicians exerted themselves and saved him, and for many years thereafter he continued to amuse himself accumulating money and giving it away.—Chicago Tribune.

Whole Thing.

Entitled to Tears.

A little girl of angelic disposition had fallen on a brick wall and barked her knees and bumped her chin. Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

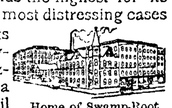
If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.



Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A Tailor Made.

A tailor made a tailor made
And for it very well was paid.
'Twas padded, curved and overlaid,
Yet gave no sign of all his aid.
The dame who in it was arrayed
With perfect figure swung and swayed.
Although but eighty pounds she weighed,
Yet with his cotton, cloth and braid
He hid each jutting shoulder blade,
And wondrous plumpness she displayed.
Thus with his splendid tailor made
The tailor made a tailor maid.
