SHERIFF WILL COLLECT UNPAID PERSONAL TAXES

House bill No. 320, relating to assessment and taxation, declaring certain property to be personal property, fixing its status for taxation, providing for interest on unpaid personal property taxes and methods of distraint, etc., went into effect February 20th. Section 2, among other things, provides: On the first Monday in February succeeding the levy of taxes, the county treasurer shall proceed to collect all personal property taxes, by giving notice by mail of such taxes due, and if such taxes are not paid on or before the 15th day of March of such year, he shall notify the sheriff of such county, who shall distrain sufficient goods and chattels belonging to the person charged with such taxes to pay the same with interest at 15 per cent, together with all accruing costs, and shall immediately proceed to advertise the same by posting written notices. The sale shall not be less than ten days after the taking of such property and shall be at public auction.

Thus it will be seen that the treasurer has no alternative. He must collect all personal taxes when due, and cannot carry the same on his books and collect the 15 per cent penalty, as heretofore, at the convenience of persons charged with these taxes.

PAY UP OR PULL STUMPS

James Gallagher says that prisoners or those who are serving jail sentances for violation of the game laws or minor offenses should be made to work and assist in paying their expenses while the county is boarding them instead of serving out their fines in the county jail. And most of us are of the same opinion. Put them to work sawing wood or other laborious exercise on the county farm with an allowance of time for good work or a curtailment of his daily bread and other privileges if he refuses to work. Mr. Gallagher has taken the matter up with commissioner Hansen and we may look for results.

The Port Angeles Firemen's Ball will be held at the opera house, Saturday evening, March 11th.

COFFERDAM WILL BE READY BY APRIL FIRST

Hope to Be Furnishing Juice by Close of Year. Ninety-seven Men Now on the Payroll.

Work at the Aldwell canyon is now progressing rapidly, two tiers of the big logs used as a basis for the cofferdam being in place and braced into a solid structure. The force has been increased until nearly a hundred men are employed, and it is now expected that the river will be flowing thru the flume by the first of the month, when work will be commenced on the stone and concrete structure.

Clearing right of way for the poles was started yesterday and within the month, it is now believed, the foundation for the power house will be under way. From April on to the close of the year, when the plant will be put in operation, work will be rushed and the canyon will be the busiest place in the county.

SEQUIM WILL HAVE NEWSPAPER

Geo. W. O'Brien, the veteran editor of the defunct Clallam Bay Record, has shipped his presses and outfit to Sequim and will shortly begin the publication of a paper at that place; he has sold his property at Clallam Bay and will build an office and house on recently acquired property at Sequim. Mrs. O'Brien and son will remain at Clallam till the close of school in June; Walter Belt will assist George in getting the new venture under way. The people of Sequim are to be congratulated; the East End has reached the point where a newspaper becomes a convenience, if not an actual necessity, and Mr. O'Brien's abilities as an editor would easily enable him to hold a desk in one of the larger cities.

JUST OOZES WITH GOOD HUMOR

Besides printing a very good picture of our well known townsman, Mr E. E. Fisher, the Seattle P.-I. of last Sunday gave this complimentary notice of him:

Although E. E. Fisher is a member of the house of representatives from Clallam county, postmaster of the city of Port Angeles, former mayor of that city, head of the herd of Elks which thrives there, and the most prominent citizen of his community, his fame comes from the fact, as chief barbecuer for the big Elks' barbecue last September, he conceived the plan of a roast ox stuffed with chickens and the chickens stuffed with oysters. Mr. Fisher just oozes good humor, and his approach to a crowd invariably means a laugh. If he ever had a worry, no one ever knew it.

ENTERTAINED FOR MRS. WILCOX

One of the most pleasant social functions of the week was the surprise party given in honor of Mrs. Wilcox by her daughter, Mrs. E E. Day, and Mrs. G. V. Smith at the home of latter. The company consisted mostly of elderly ladies, who brot their needle work and spent a most delightful afternoon visiting and chatting of pleasant days gone by. After several pleasing solos by Mrs Day and Mrs. Farmer, all the ladies joined in singing some of the good old fashioned songs and hymns of bygone days.

Supper was served in the dining room which was prettily decorated for the occasion in stars and stripes in honor of the birthday of the father of our country. Covers were laid for twenty-two, the place cards were small hatchets cut from card board and daintily tied with red and white blue ribbons; the favors at each plate were small flags. Before retiring from the dining room Mrs. Wilcox was presented with an exquisite bouquet of carnations which had adorned the center of the table, she responded with a gracious little speech of acceptance.

GAVE FIVE HUNDRED PARTY

Mrs. Walter Meredith entertained last Saturday evening complimentary to the ladies who assisted at her wedding. The house was beautifully decorated, the color scheme throughout being red and white with everything possible designed in hearts and diamonds.

Most of the evening was spent in playing five hundred, the first prize being carried off by Mrs. Willis Mathewson, second by Mrs. Fitz-Henry and the consolation was awarded to Mrs. E. E. Fisher. It was a most happy occasion, long to be remembered by all present.

WESTENDERS HERE IN DEFENSE OF SUPERVISOR

Board Found No Cause for Removing Mr. Marshall; Believe He Has Not Harmed County.

Henry Marshall, road supervisor of Dist. No. 4, accompanied by Theodore Klahn and Jos. Marsh of Quillayute and J R. Smith, Jno. B. Iverson and Geo. Jeter of Forks, appeared before the Board of Commissioners this week in response to the charges of irregularities made at the February session. The Commissioners heard the explanations and evidence offered and concluded they could find no cause for removing Mr. Marshall from his position, as while he had handled the business end in an irregular way, it was not shown he had done anything harmful to the county. The Board demanded that hereafter all money collected be turned into the county treasury and all bills for supplies be presented to the Board to be acted upon as required by law.

JUSTICE OBSTRUCTED BY COURT PROCEDURE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Modern American lawyers have made a fetish of procedure and have created a mass of artificial rules which in some states present as great an obstacle to reaching the judgment seat as did the common law rules of pleading before the English judicature reform acts.

Attorney General Wickersham made this startling statement to an audience attendant upon the dedication of the new law department building of Georgetown University here.

In discussing the trusts the attorney general said the states had vied with one another in offering facilities for corporate organization, but the power of regulating interstate and foreign commerce having been confererd upon the federal government, "no state under the guise of creating a corporation could charter a libertine against the paramount control of Congress over interstate and foreign commerce."

CANNED ALFALFA ROOTS PALATABLE AND NUTRITIOUS

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 25.—Alfalfa roots, white and tender, will take the place of early asparagus if Louise F. Weinland, an irrigation rancher in the Spokane valley, is successful with her plans for marketing the newest table vegetable in the western country. Miss Weinland, who came from Pennsylvania last spring, has broached the enterprise to members of the Spokane chamber of commerce, and several have promised to assist in establishing a small cannery. The discovery that alfalfa root is as nourishing to man as it is to live stock was made by Miss Weinland several month sago, but the proper method of preparing it was not ascertained until a few days ago, when the young woman, after poring for hours in a huge tome on cookery, decided to try recipes for cooking asparagus. The first dish was sampled by a neighbor's hired man, who, ignorant of what he was eating, called for a second dish. Other neighbors ate of the root and pronounced it satisfying to the palate as well as highly nourishing. They say the flavor is similar to asparagus.

HOUSE KILLS COUNTY UNIT BILL

NO WORD OF DEBATE EITHER FOR OR AGAINST THE MEASURE.

Bill Was Reported Out of Committee Without Recommendation and Previous Question at Once Moved—Action in Sharp Contrast With the Long Discussion at Previous Session.

Olympia, Feb. 25.—Without a speech upon the subject, and acting under a call of the House which held all the members not properly excused in their seats, the House of Representatives killed the county unit local option bill.

Two years ago fifty days were spent in discussion of a temperance bill; the spirit of members became intolerant; friendships were destroyed and animosities created. The debates were long-drawn-out and bitter, and legislation in general was handled not upon the merits of the measures submitted, but upon a basis of barter for votes pro and con upon the temperance question. The interests of the state were at a standstill during the fifty days of acrimony; no matter of moment could be or was given thought, for to present to the House a measure meant but to make it the subject of traffic for the men who were contending for and against the temperance bill.

Reaction From Last Session.

This year the members of the House who had served two years ago felt that they would, if they could do so, prevent a recurrence of the scenes, and so the docility of the action, when men voted their sentiments without passion and without resort to the dramatic, may very properly be said to be a reaction from the violence of the last session.

There were but few who expected the House to consider the bill. It was messaged over from the Senate late Thursday, and the general opinion was that, while it would be reported out at an early date, it would hardly reach the calendar before the early days of next week.

The Anti-Saloon League leaders had been begging for an early report, and seemed to fear that the rules committee, to which the measure had been referred by the speaker, might attempt to bottle it up. Therefore the action of this committee in so promptly reporting out the bill without prejudice and without recommendation came somewhat in the nature of a surprise, notwithstanding the current rumor that such action was contemplated.

Calendar Was Clear.

The House had acted upon several bills in the morning, and had pretty well cleared the calendar when noontime came. The rules committee therefore was convened during the noon hour, and the county unit bill was reported.

As quickly as the measure was read, Dr. Beech of Mason moved that the measure be indefinitely postponed, and the motion was quickly seconded by Davis, chairman of the appropriations committee.

While the words putting this question were still upon the lips of the speaker, Wright of King arose and was recognized. He was a supporter of the bill, and those in the gallery who had come expecting oratorical fireworks settled back in their seats for the scene. Quietly and with no oratorical effort, the King county man said:

Shuts Off Speeches.

"I take it that the members of this House know how they intend to vote on this bill. Not a man can be moved by any speech which might be made here, and the pleasant personal relations of the members might, and probably would be, disturbed by such speeches. I therefore, in the interests of all of us, move the previous question."

There was a general affirvative nod; not a token of dissent. And the House so ordered.

A call of the House brought in the few members who had, not expecting the measure to come up, strayed out into the state house on matters of business. When they had been brought to the bar of the House there were but four absentees, and they were absent with leave and all with valid excuses. The roll call was orderly and the answers of members were distinct. The result, the indefinite postponement of the measure by the vote of 50 to 42.

Even had every one of the members been present, and had all of them voted for the measure, the result would have been unchanged.

A motion to reconsider, which motion was tabled, closed the act and renders it impossible for the House to again give the matter consideration during the present session.

Two more superior judgeships were handed out by bills, in districts in which the growth of the state has warranted, according to the view of the lawmakers, such additions. The first went to the district composed of Cowlitz, Klickitat, Clarke and Skamania. This district was divided, making Clarke a district by itself and giving a judge to the other three counties. The other judge was added in Yakima county.

WANT MORE MONEY FOR WEST SIDE EXPERIMENTS

Everett, Feb. 25.—After choosing Bellingham as next year's convention point, the delegates to the first annual convention of the Western Washington Horticultural Association passed the following resolution asking for a larger share of state funds to advance experimentation in the Puget sound region:

"Be it resolved, that it is the sense of the members of this association that the experiment station of the state college at Pullman is necessarily conducted under conditions of climate and soil esesntially different from those prevailing on the west side of the Cascade mountains, and for that reason is of very little direct value to agriculturalists operating in Western Washington.

Pays Bills, Gets Little Help.

"The property owners residing in the western part of the state pay the larger part of the cost of maintaining the Pullman institution, and yet derive comparatively little benefit from it in the field of original investigation and experimentation.

"The west side of the state offers a field of far wider diversity in agriculture than is possible on the east side, and the profitable cultivation of logged-off lands is a subject of the most pressing economical importance to the future prosperity and growth of the entire state.

"For these reasons it is the sense of this convention that the legislature will best serve the interests of the entire state by providing a far larger share than is now given for agricultural investigation and experimentation in the Puget sound region."

This afternoon the convention voted down a resolution pledging the association to support the county unit law on the ground that the organization intended remaining out of politics.

HOUSE RESOLUTION TO INVESTIGATE COFFEE TRUST

Washington, Feb. 27.—Two resolutions, asserting the existence of monopolistic control of the coffee market by a Brazilian producing interest, and Americans and Europeans interested with them, and calling respectively upon the president and the attorney general of the United States to report whether any investigation of the matter has been instituted by the government, were dropped in the "hopper" of the House by Representative Norris of Nebraska.

It was done without remark, and the resolutions went automatically to committee.

It is hardly likely that either committee will report the resolutions at this late day in the session.

Mr. Norris said he had the names of those who, he said, had entered into the arrangement with Brazil for the coffee control.

J. P. Morgan & Co., and the City National bank and First National bank, of New York city, he said, constituted the American end of the "great scheme that has financed the deal."

This interest, Mr. Norris said, involved $75,000,000 of capital, of which $25,000,000 each was subscribed in London and France, $10,000,000 each in America and Germany, and $5,000,000 in Holland.

DAYS OF COAL BIN SAID TO BE NUMBERED

New York, Feb. 27.—At an electrical dinner at the Montauk Club, Brooklyn, Saturday, Charles W. Price, editor of the Electrical Review, one of the speakers, said:

"I make the prediction, based on knowledge of important experiments, that the day is not far distant when the coal pile in the cellar will be replaced by the electrical reservoir of box-like shape and moderat esize, to furnish heat throughout the entire building and for cooking.

"And this will be done economically, compared with coal, as this accumulated electricity will be stored at low cost and be on tap when needed. I am hopeful that this will be realized before me we meet again, one year from now.

"Then will the coal wagon in front of the house disappear, the furnace caretaker lose his vocation, and the ashman become a reminiscence."

Russia Is Satisfied.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 25.—The foreign office announces that China's answer to four out of the six points in the Russian note relative to the treaty of 1881 is wholly satisfactory, and that the remaining two can be adjusted easily. Further pressure on China, it is said, is not contemplated, and the idea of a military demonstration has been abandoned.

Hull Advocates Larger Army.

Washington, Feb. 25.—In his farewell speech to the House after a service of twenty years in that body, Representative Hull of Iowa, chairman of the comimttee on military affairs, today urged upon Congress the necessity of supplementing the regular army of this country with an effective reserve force of 250,000 trained men.

North Coast Construction.

Spokane, Feb. 25.—Officials of the North Coast line have authorized a statement that construction work on 40 miles of the new line of the North Coast, between Spokane and Ayer Junction, where it will connect with the O. W. R. & N., will be begun immediately. The contracts call for an expenditure of $4,000,000.

JAPANESE TREATY IS RATIFIED

SENATE ACTS SPEEDILY ON NEW AGREEMENT WITH MIKADO.

Western Senators, After Full Discussion, Decide Not to Stand in Way of Ratification—Believed Action Will Do Much to Clear Political Atmosphere.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The new Japanese treaty of trade and navigation was ratified last night after a two hours' executive session of the Senate. While the apprehension of Western Senators that the treaty might let down the bars to coolie labor was not entirely removed, these Senators contented themselves with expressing their solicitude. They interposed no objection to ratification.

Proves Cordiality.

The action in promptly confirming the new agreement is expected to do more to prove the feeling of cordiality that this country has for Japan than anything done for many years. It is regarded as a manifestation of highest confidence in the advanced civilization of that nation. The effect will be to permit Japan to enter at once upon a reorganization of its financial system and the making of new tariffs with all nations.

Treaties Expire.

Japan's treaties with other powers are to expire July 17. That with the United States, by reason of its later ratification, would have continued until the same date a year later had not this government consented to its expiration at the same time as the others.

Failure to have ratified the new treaty would have delayed the operation of the Japanese program for a year beyond the time when it was planned to put it into effect. It would have meant much loss of revenue to Japan and continuance of the existing treaty with the United States would not have benefited this government, according to the representations of the State Department on the subject.

Wrangles Begin.

When the new treaty was received from the President, on Tuesday, it immediately became the subject of wrangles. Pacific coast Senators feared it might have an effect on the labor situation on the western coast, by reason of the omission of the clause in the treaty of 1894, which it supersedes, recognizing the right of this government to pass an exclusion law. Friends of the treaty explained that the diplomatic notes accompanying it definitely pledged the Japanese government to prevent an influx of undesirable coolies through the rigid scrutiny of passports.

An alien without a passport would of course be liable to deportation. The California Senators, it is said, became satisfied early that the change would not menace the labor situation in their state.

Several other Western Senators became alarmed, however, at what seemed to them unseemly haste in pressing the Senate to act. They desired sentiment to crystallize in their states and therefore prevented action for three days.

Supporters of the treaty endeavored to show that the presence of the clause on the subject of immigration in the treaty of 1894 was obnoxious to the dignity and pride of the Japanese empire, especially as neither it, nor any similar clause, is in any treaty with any other country. It was argued further that the existing treaty would have expired in another year and this country could not hope to induce Japan to sign a new treaty containing such a clause.

After a full discussion the Western Senators said they would not stand in the way of ratification, which was accomplished without a roll call.

CALIFORNIANS PLEASED AT EARLY RATIFICATION

Sacramento, Feb. 25.—Leaders in both houses of the Legislature, which is strongly Republican, issued statements tonight concerning the ratification of the treaty.

Senator Leroy Wright of San Diego, chairman of the Senate committee on federal relations, said:

"I believe all classes of people of the Pacific coast are pleased that the treaty has been ratified.

"The opposition which developed in the California Legislature was largely the result of a misnuderstanding of its provisions.

"California is extremely desirous that the spirit of amity and good will between Japan and the United States should continue uninterruptedly.

"If the Legislature could speak it would congratulate the President and the Senate in having consummated so happy an adjustment of the difficulties."

Assemblyman George Freeman of Riverside, chairman of the Assembly committee on federal relations, said: "I believe the interests of the coast are protected."

This was the general sentiment, but the wily Governor evaded giving an opinion on the subject.

Tokio Is Delighted.

Tokio, Feb. 25.—The ratification by the United States of the new treaty of trade and navigation with Japan was received with universal satisfaction here this morning by both Japanese and Americans. A leading member of the cabinet, who received the first information concerning the ratification through the Associated Press, said:

"America will never regret this fresh evidence of confidence in the good faith of Japan. The United States has done a great thing for this country."

FACTORY GIRLS TO BE TAUGHT ART OF FARMING

New York, Feb. 27.—After an investigation of industrial conditions in and about New York City lasting a year, Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont has reached the conclusion that there is an oversupply of woman factory workers and that the best relief is to persuade the girls to take up farming as an occupation.

With this end in view she has set aside about 200 acres of her land at Hempstead, Long Island, for a school of agriculture for women. An experienced woman farmer has been engaged to instruct the pupils in practical farming. There will not be a man about chores for the first few weeks.

Mrs. Belmont explained that there would be a matron on her new farm who would chaperone girls and who would also teach them cooking, housekeeping and home-making. Girls are to be paid while learning and their wages will increase proportionately to skill.

PEACE OVERTURES FROM MEXICO ALLEGED

Washington, Feb. 27.—Dr. Vasquez Gomez, head of the confidential agency here of the Mexican revolutionists, announces that he indirectly has received overtures for peace from the federal government.

Dr. Gomez said the confidential agency here had been advised by its junta in El Paso, Tex., of the desire of Gov. Ahumada, of Chihuahua, to confer in Chihuahua with Francisco J. Madero, leader of the revolution, and also had been informed through its junta in San Antonio, Tex., that three delegates of the Diaz government wished to meet Dr. Gomez on the border and arrange for the termination of hostilities.

States Position.

Dr. Gomez, who was the family physician of President Diaz, and who was in the last election candidate for the vice presidency of Mexico on the same ticket as Francisco I. Madero, the candidate for president, said the provisional government would not "undertake any negotiations of peace, except under the condition that the delegates shall be legally and fully authorized with written powers."

He added it was further desired by the revolutionists that the arrangement for peace negotiations "should be published and recognized by the federal government officially."

Some Repudiation.

"The steps," he explained, "were necessary because of the repudiation by the federal government of connection with the peace conference arranged by Gov. Sanchez last November."

Dr. Gomez asserted the revolutionists would insist upon the abdication of the presidency by Diaz and that he had telegraphed to the junta at San Antonio for information as to the source of the overtures for peace and the names of the three peace envoys sent there by Diaz.

UNCLE SAM TO ENTER THE TIMBER BUSINESS

Portland Ore., Feb. 25.—To save the immense forests of Alaska for the use of the people, the United States government will go into the timber business, according to W. A. Langille, supervisor of the Alaska national forests, who is in Portland on government business.

"Alaska contains approximately 65,000,000,000 feet of timber," said Mr. Langille, "and it belongs to the government. None of it is privately owned. Most of the forests are in the southeastern part of the territory. It is now the government's policy to go into the timber business, supplying timber at reasonable rates for the development of the country. Much timber is being sold this year, principally to be used in connection with the salmon packing plants."

Government May Buy Schwab Plant.

San Francisco, Feb. 25.—Whether the United States government will purchase the plant of the Union Iron Works in San Francisco, owned by Charles M. Schwab, rests with Congress. Secretary of the Navy Meyer said the government needed the property for a shipbuilding and completing station. News that $4,000,000 had been offered for the plant has been received from Schwab.

Another Landslide on Canal.

Colon, Panama, Feb. 25.—Plans for the Panama canal may have to be altered to a great extent as the result of a big slide of earth and rock which today is being attacked at Culebra. Without warning 500,000 cubic yards of rock and earth slipped into the cut.

MUST KEEP FREIGHT RATES DOWN

INTERSTATE COMMISSION FORBIDS ADVANCES PROPOSED BY RAILROADS.

Advances Held Not to Be Justified Either in East or West—Roads Have Doubled Their Surplus in the Past Ten Years—Public Should Not Pay for Financial Mistakes of Companies.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The interstate commerce commission has decided against the railroads in both the "Eastern" and the "Western" cases.

Proposed advances in class freight rates in official classification territory, aggregating among all the railways in the territory approximately $27,000,000 a year, were disapproved by the commission.

In the case involving the increases by the railroads in Western trunk line territory, the commission also declined to approve the proposed advances in commodity rates.

The carriers, in both cases, are required to cancel on or before March 10, their advanced tariffs and restore their former rates, which are the rates now in effect. If this requirement be not complied with, the commission will issue a formal order suspending the proposed advances and putting into effect the existing rates for at least two years.

Santa Fe Wins Case.

In the case of the railroad commission of Texas against the Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad and other carriers, known popularly as the Southwestern rate case, the commission declined to disturb the commodity rates or the first-class rates complained of.

The defendants are ordered, however, to reduce the second-class rates, which were increased from $1.21 to $1.29, to $1.25. In the remaining classes the defendants are required to restore the rates in effect before the increased rates were published.

In brief, this is the disposition made by the interstate commerce commission of the most important cases ever brought to its attention. The decision surprised railroad officials and other experts who had followed closely the proceedings, the majority of whom believed the commission would grant some increase to the western lines, if not to the eastern.

Difficulty in East.

The commission conceded that in the case of some of the roads an increased revenue is needed. In what is known as the Eastern case, the commission was embarrassed by the admitted fact that several of the lines in the territory were paying good dividends upon existing rates, while other carriers in the same territory were hardly able to make both ends meet—a few of them scarcely that. In the Western case, the carriers entered a powerful plea for increased revenue in order that they might have additional money to put into improvements and betterments, which would enable them to handle with greater facility the constantly increasing traffic of the country.

The same argument was advanced in support of the proposed advances in official classification territory, but Commissioner Prouty, who wrote the opinion in the Western case, says:

Public Not Responsible.

"This argument does not appeal to us. We doubt the practical difficulty suggested (that of obtaining by loan sufficient money to finance the roads); and were it true, it is not apparent that the general public should stand responsible for the mistakes which have been made in financing these railroad systems."

Both the Eastern and Western cases were brought to public attention in the spring of 1910. Just prior to the enactment of the existing interstate commerce law, which, in part, became effective June 18, 1910, the railways of the official classification territory—forty-one in all—and those of Western trunk lines' association territory filed with the interstate commerce tariffs making genearl increases in their freight rates.

Scope of the Increases.

The tariffs filed by the Eastern lines increased the first-class rate between New York and Chicago points 15 cents a hundred pounds, from 75 to 90 cents, and made proportionate advances on the other five classes. Some advances also were made on commodity rates, but the great bulk of the commodity tonnage of freight was not disturbed. The proposed advances affected approximately 15 per cent of the total freight tonnage. Approximately the same amount of tonnage was affected by the Western lines, but the class rates were not affected in any way. Commodities alone were increased, the average advance on about 104 different articles being substantially 16 per cent, the increase varying about 4 per cent in some cases to 50 per cent in others.

The opinion holds that "the carriers have not by showing that the increases in wages more than equal the increases in rates, made out a reasonableness of the proposed advanced rates," because "it appears that during the year ending June 30, 1910, the net earnings of these railroads aggregated $51,000,000 more than during the year 1909.55

Roads Prosperous, Says Lane.

In his preparation of the opinion in the Western cases, Commissioner Franklin K. Lane made an optimistic review of the situation of American railroads. In beginning he shows that through the regulatory law and its enforcement "the railroads have been protected against each other, and as a result the revenues of the carriers ahve increased under regulation and their dividends and surplus have increased as in no other period of our history.

"In the last ten years the railroads of the United States have borrowed more than $4,500,000,000, or twice the amount of the national debt at the close of the civil war. This is an evidence of the faith the public has in these properties. The rate of dividends and the total amount of dividends have increased more rapidly than the additional mileage built."

Surplus Doubled in Decade.

Commissioner Lane said Western roads have increased their surplus more than 100 per cent in ten years. The opinion holds that the "carriers do not need larger revenues for purposes of maintaining their credit or insuring them against temporary adversity."

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE MEASURE PASSES IN HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 28.—The house has passed the Mann bill, extending the scope of the public health and marine hospital service and changing its name to the public health service. This bill has been confused to some extent with the bill creating a department of health, and to which strenuous objections were raised by those opposed to the so-called regular schools of medicine.

Mr. Mann said the objections made to the health department bill could not apply in any way to the measure under consideration.

There is nothing in the bill which relates to the practice of medicine or to the art of healing.

The Mann bill also empowers the public health service to investigate the pollution of navigable lakes and streams. Mr. Mann's statement that if the pollution of streams should continue in this country the people would be forced to drink wine instead of water, brought out the loudest applause heard in the house this session.

COUNTY TAXES IN STATE FOOT UP $27,029,321.32

Olympia, Feb. 28.—Statistics compiled by the state tax commissioner show that the total tax raised by all counties of the state for all purposes amounted in 1910 to $27,029,321.32, as compared with $24,993,876.22 in 1909. This is an increase of $2,035,444.99 over 1909.

In no instance was the tax raised in 1910 the same as in 1909 in any county. Fourteen of the 37 counties showed a decrease and the remainder showed an increase.

King county showed an increase of $577,000; Spokane county, $415,000 and Pierce county, $167,000. In 1910 the increase in Whatcom county, which has since gone dry, was $124,908 over 1909, while the increase in Snohomish county was $184,279.

The total taxes paid by King county in 1910 was $7,794,974, which is 28 plus per cent of the taxes paid in the entire state.

GREAT LOS ANGELES TUNNEL BORE FINISHED

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 28.—With world's records broken for rapid and low cost of construction, the boring of the great five-mile Elizabeth tunnel, the most important feature of the new $26,000,000 municipal water project of Los Angeles was completed at noon yesterday.

It is the second longest water tunnel in the United States. It pierces the crest of the Sierra Madre range at a point sixty-seven miles northwest of this city and has been drilled through 26,780 feet of solid granite.

Work began at both ends of the big bore on October 5, 1907.

The total cost after the big bore is faced with eight-inch concrete will be $1,611,600. It has a total capacity of 650,000,000 gallons a day.

New Assistant Secretary.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Robert O. Bailey, who has been private secretary to Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh since Mr. MacVeagh has been a member of the cabinet, has been nominated by President Taft to be assistant secretary of the treasury. Mr. Bailey will succeed Charles D. Hilles, who is to be secretary to President Taft, to succeed Charles N. Norton. Mr. Bailey was formerly a newspaper man.

New National Bank Examiner.

Washington, Feb. 27.—The secretary of the treasury has named Martin McLean of Davenport to be national bank examiner for the Washington district. Mr. McLean is connected with the Davenport National Bank, is 44 years old and has had twenty-one years' banking experience. He will succeed E. T. Wilson, resigned.

Agree on River and Harbor Bill.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Conferees on the river and harbor bill reached an agreement, practically all Senate amendments providing for new projects being accepted by the House members of the conference committee. The bill carries a total of $36,956,987.

FAVORS FORTIFYING PANAMA CANAL

HOUSE OVERWHELMINGLY VOTES APPROPRIATION FOR THAT PURPOSE.

Action Practically Settles the Matter, as Senate Is Also Strongly in Favor of This Action—Extra Session Probably Will Convene April 4th.

Washington, Feb. 27—After nearly five hours of debate, the house voted overwhelmingly in favor of fortifying the Panama canal and appropriated $3,000,000 to begin the work, the total cost of which is estimated at $12,000,000.

The action of the house practically settles the question of fortifications, for the sentiment in the senate is said to be more than 2 to 1 in favor of protecting the Isthmian waterway.

The real test came on an amendment proposed by Tawney, chairman of the committee on appropriations. The amendment provided that no part of the money set aside for fortifications should be used until the president had atttempted to negotiate treaties with all the leading maritime nations guaranteeing the neutrality and international protection of the canal.

Peace Party Twice Beaten.

Shirley of Kentucky attacked this amendment and warned members that it had been introduced for the sole purpose of defeating the appropriation.

The Tawney amendment then was voted down by 130 to 63.

A motion by Keifer of Ohio to strike out all provisions for the fortification of the canal was lost by a vote of 135 to 51.

APRIL 4 DATE FIXED FOR EXTRA SESSION

Washington, Feb. 27.—So probable is it that an extra session of congress will be necessary to get action on the Canadian reciprocity agreement that President Taft has fixed April 4 as the date on which such a session may be called.

The date was selected after consultation with Champ Clark, who will be the speaker of the next house, and Representative Underwood of Alabama, who will be chairman of the ways and means committee that will have charge of and report the reciprocity bill in the house.

The president had intended to convene the extra session at an earlier date, but Clark and Underwood told him they desired a month's time after the present congress adjourns in which to map out Democratic plans for the next congress.

There was no change in the situation in the senate regarding the Canadian reciprocity agreement, and the leaders see no hope of bringing the McCall bill to a vote at this session. Many rumors were circulated of moves to remedy the situation, but apparently they were without foundation.

COAST FISHERIES OUTPUT NEARLY FORTY MILLIONS

Seattle, Feb. 25.—The output of fish of all kinds on the Pacific coast for the year 1910 was valued at $39,706,490, of which the State of Washington contributed $10,171,929 and Alaska $14,830,217. These figures appear in the annual number of Pacific Fisherman, which came off the press last night. The summary of the year's fishing operations is the most complete ever made on the coast, and embraces all branches of the industry, including canned salmon, halibut fresh, mild cured, salted and dried salmon, codfish, oysters and other shellfish and fur seals.

A feature of the Pacific Fisherman's summary is the tabulations showing the receipts of halibut on Puget sound and in British Columbia during 1910. A total of 30,506,376 pounds of halibut reached Puget sound and 22,500,000 reached British Columbia, or a grand total of 53,006,376 pounds. At 5 cents per pound the halibut industry last year was worth $2,650,318.

The final figures on the season's canned salmon pack shows that the output aggregated 4,310,082 cases, which was a record-breaking pack for a "lean" year. Alaska's canned salmon pack was, with two exceptions, the largest ever known.

California Senate Votes for Recall.

Sacramento, Feb. 25.—The Senate has passed the Gates constitutional amendment for the recall of all elective officers. The vote was 36 to 4. An amendment offered by Senator Wright, eliminating the judiciary, was lost, 29 to 11.

For State of Hawaii.

Honolulu, Feb. 25.—The territorial legislature has adopted a resolution asking Congress that the Hawaiian Islands (Territory of Hawaii) be granted statehood. A resolution also was adopted asking the navy department to name the next battleship "Hawaii."

To Open Bids for Lake Kachess Dam.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Bids for the construction of the Lake Kachess dam, part of the Yakima reclamation project, Washington, will be opened at North Yakima, Wash., on April 15. The cost of the work is estimated to be in excess of $625,000.

TEST THESE RECIPES

FOUR METHODS OF COOKING THE FAMILIAR FOWL.

Canterbury, Creole, Victoria and Imperial Vol au Vent Are All Recommended as Tasty and Satisfying Dishes.

The ways of preparing chicken for the table are endless. Here are a few choice recipes:

Canterbury Chicken—Cook three and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter with one teaspoonful of finely chopped onion until yellow, stirring almost constantly to prevent burning. Add one tablespoonful of corn starch and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one and one-half cupfuls of chicken stock (the liquor in which a fowl has been cooked). Bring to the boiling point and add one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice, three-fourths of a teaspoonful, of salt, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of paprika, one-half cupful of celery cut in small pieces, and one and one-half cupfuls of chopped chicken. Serve hot and garnish with toast points and parsley.

Creole Chicken—Cook four teaspoonfuls of butter with one-half shallot, finely chopped, five minutes, stirring constantly. Onion may be used if shallot is not at hand. Add five tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well browned; then pour gradually, while stirring constantly, three-fourths of a cupful each of chicken stock and stewed and strained tomatoes. Bring to the boiling point, season with one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of paprika. Add one and one-half cupfuls of cooked chicken or fowl cut in small cubes and let stand ten or fifteen minutes in the top of the double boiler that the meat may absorb some of the sauce.

Victoria Chicken—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and add the yolks of three hard-boiled eggs rubbed to a paste. Soak one-fourth of a cupful of cracker crumbs in one-fourth of a cupful of cold milk 15 minutes, then add to the egg mixture. Pour on gradually one cupful of hot chicken stock, and when the boiling point is reached add one cupful of cooked chicken or fowl cut in small pieces. Season with salt, pepper, and celery salt, and serve on finger shaped pieces of buttered toast.

Imperial Chicken Vol au Vent—Remove the crusts from a 5-cent baker's loaf and cut out the center in such a way as to leave a box-shaped case, having the walls one-half inch in thickness. Beat three eggs slightly, add six tablespoonfuls of milk, and season with salt. Dip the bread case in the mixture and turn frequently that all parts may be equally soaked. Drain thoroughly, fry in deep fat until delicately browned, remove to a hot serving dish, and fill with the following mixture:

Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended; then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one and three-fourths cupfuls of milk. Bring to the boiling point, season with one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper, and add two cupfuls of cold boiled fowl cut in dice and one pint of oysters, cleaned and drained. Cook until the oysters are plump.

Mother's Pumpkin Pie.

Cook pumpkin in enough water to keep from burning. When tender drain off the water and cook for eight minutes longer. Press through a sieve and measure one and a half pints. Beat four eggs with one cupful of sugar till light, add one pint of milk, the pumpkin, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, half a teaspoonful each of ginger, allspice and grated nutmeg, one tablespoonful of brandy and mix well together.

Line a deep pie plate with crust, fill with mixture and bake in a hot oven. A delicious flavor is given by cooking half of the sugar for the custard to a caramel.

Johnny Cake.

One teacupful of cornmeal, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one egg, two thirds cupful of sugar, one cupful of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, one teaspoonful of baking powder and some salt.

Sift the flour into a basin, add the meal, sugar, salt and baking powder. Beat up the egg, add it with the milk and the butter heated slightly. Beat well, then pour it into a greased pan and bake for half an hour in a good oven. Eat warm with good, sweet, butter.

Cookies.

One cupful butter, two of sugar, creamed together, three well beaten eggs, one cupful of sour cream, one teaspoonful soda, two of cream of tartar, nutmeg to flavor, flour enough to make a soft dough. Roll out thin on a cloth to prevent sticking, sift, sugar over the top, and lightly roll it in. Bake in a quick oven.

Salt Pork.

This is really a delicious way to serve salt pork. Slice fat pork and soak the slices an hour in sweet milk; drain and fry until the pork begins to turn brown, then dip in a batter made of one egg which is beaten and stirred into two tablespoonfuls of flour; then fry on both sides.

Winter Months on the Farm

How to Improve Them

Poultry Management

Care of Fowls for Profitable Returns With Hints on Buildings and Appliances

By PROF. J. G. HALPIN
Wisconsin College of Agriculture

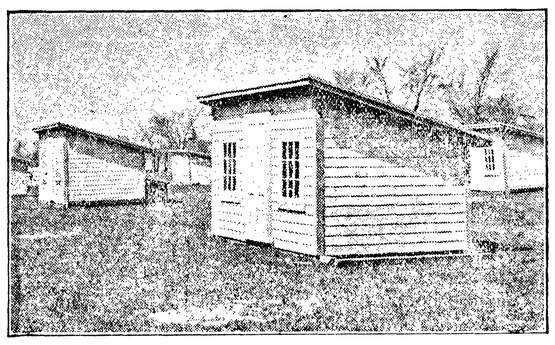
Copyright, 1910, by Western Newspaper Union

Poultry can be made to pay a much larger return on most farms with good winter management, since the fowls consume much feed that would otherwise be wasted. During the summer farm poultry keeping is comparatively easy, and the fowls earn a good living and give profitable returns in growth and eggs, but during the winter periods the farm flock is often poorly cared for and returns are far less than they should be under slightly improved methods. A small flock, lightly managed, will lay more eggs than several hundred hens allowed to roam free, hunting for their living with the exception of an occasional feed of whole corn or table scraps. When laying hens crowd into draughty stables or under the corn crib for shelter, the egg crop is bound to be short.

Colony House System.

The best poultry house for the average farmer is a small movable colony house, which will accommodate 25 to 30 hens as a laying flock. The advantages of the movable house are that it is more sanitary, particularly in summer, when it can be dragged about fields and cleaning is made unnecessary. Fowls are given an increased range over new territory each time the house is moved. Less poultry feed is needed to keep the fowls in active condition and the benefits of the birds as insect destroyers may be secured by bringing the movable house into the orchard. During winter the movable house is less advantageous, but by locating it on a warm south slope and providing ample space, it serves this purpose fully as well as a fixed house.

A good colony house, shown in the illustration, is used at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture poultry department for summer chick raising, and with slight modifications may be made to serve for winter use. This house is 8x12 feet on the floor, which is of matched hard pine laid upon two 4x4 inch runners. It is sided on studs with plain mill lumber and where used only for summer colonies no lining is required. Where such a house is used in the winter, it should be well lined, so that it is perfectly air tight on all sides, except the front, where the 2 open windows are placed. The house is 7½ feet high on front and slopes down to 4½ feet on the back. A roosting closet, in front of which is hung a muslin curtain, must be provided in one end for winter use. This curtain should be hung upon a rod supported by cleats so that it may be removed in summer when the curtain is not needed.



A good type of colony house set in a young orchard. This may be built of plain milled lumber at moderate cost. The fowls enter through small openings in the rear.

A fixed or permanent laying house for farm flock may be constructed about as follows: The building should be 14 feet wide and as long as is necessary to provide 12 feet compartments which will hold 40 to 50 hens each. The partitions between these compartments may be made of netting. This building should have a long and short slope roof about 7 feet high on the front and 4½ feet on the rear. In the front a window, covered with one-inch netting, open the year around, will furnish ample ventilation and light. Perches should be put in at the rear over a dropping board, in front of which is hung the muslin curtain to be dropped in severely cold weather to confine the heat from the bodies of the fowls into a small space. Sufficient ventilation will be secured in the roosting compartment through the muslin.

Mixed gravel furnishes the best material for the floor of a house for laying hens, and if changed each year is quite sanitary. This gravel should be at least six inches deep upon a firm foundation. If rats are troublesome the foundation under the walls of the house should be made of concrete and a tight bottom of concrete over which four inches of gravel may be spread. This gravel is covered with six inches of litter, which must be changed as rapidly as it becomes damp or dirty.

Clover Good Litter.

While straw is quite universally used as a scratching litter in poultry houses, clover hay will prove more efficient and but little more expensive on most farms. A forkful added each day will give the hens some fresh feed to pick over since they will eat a large number of the green clover leaves. A good method is to place some straw in the poultry house and add a little clover hay regularly. Clover chaff and second grade hay may be used to good advantage.

It is unnecessary to chop straw or other litter for hens, if it is in moderate lengths, since they will soon break it up if the building is kept dry. Bedding down hens with clover or alfalfa hay avoids the necessity of soaking chaff for feeding, and fits into the system of the average farm much better. It is important to provide sufficient litter at least 8 to 12 inches deep, in order to make the hens work to get their grains. A small amount of litter will soon be scratched over and the hens will need more exercise.

Pure Water Essential.

Plenty of clean water above the freezing temperature in winter is quite important. A large part of the composition of the egg is water and the hens need a regular and ample supply to do their best work. If water is placed in the poultry house while slightly warm, the necessity of making arrangements to prevent freezing will be avoided. The prime essential is to keep drinking vessels clean. Scald them frequently and rinse out every day. The drinking vessels should be placed on a platform 12 to 18 inches above the general level of the floor, so that litter will not be scratched into the vessel. An ordinary No. 12 galvanized iron pail is most practical for the ordinary poultry house. It is easy to handle and clean and can be carried without difficulty better than a shallow pan or one of the patented drinking fountains.

Best Form of Feed Troughs.

For feeding a wet mash a flat trough 4 feet 5 inches wide, with sides 4 inches high 8 feet long, is ample for a flock of 40 hens. This flat trough is better than the V-shaped, so commonly used, as it is much easier to clean and is not upset so readily. For feeding a dry mash, the main hopper is about the best arrangement ever devised. It consists of a square flat box 4 inches wide slatted on the side with perpendicular slats 2 inches apart and has a sloping top, which will not permit the fowls to roost upon it. When used in a house this hopper has openings only on one side, and is hung against the wall. The narrow openings permit the hens to eat the dry mash, but not to scratch it out into the litter.

Dark Nests Preferable.

The darkened nest has several advantages in that hens are less liable to break and eat their eggs or to disturb each other. The nest should be at least 12x14 inches in size and enough nests should be provided so that there is at least one nest for each six hens. Make the top and sides separate from the bottom, so that it may be removed and easily cleansed. Such nests should be taken out at least once a month and thoroughly cleaned. The sloping top is necessary to prevent the hens roosting upon the nest.

In providing perches many farmers make the common mistake of not placing them on the same level. Hens naturally like the highest roost, and will crowd each other off often, with serious injury. Six inches of roosting space for a hen is ample. Under the perches a tight, removable dropping board should be provided, which may be regularly cleaned in winter and may be removed entirely in summer, while the fowls are not using the house so constantly. The prime essential in handling poultry for success is to keep them clean.

Most farm poultry houses are not tight enough to keep the fowls sufficiently warm; are stuffy and poorly ventilated, and soon become filled with fumes from the droppings until they are decidedly unhealthy. Two extremes are commonly observed, either a large number of fowls are crowded into a small, poorly constructed henhouse or they are left to seek their roosting places as best they can on either a piece of farm machinery or a stable partition.

THE CONSERVATIVE VIEW.

Mr. Morrow, accompanied by two or three other gentlemen from Seattle, were Angeles visitors this week, going out to inspect the Olympic power plant Wednesday. Mr. Morrow did not have as hopeful a view of the railroad situation as when here a short two weeks ago applying for a franchise. In conversation with a representative of this paper in the presence of Mayor Mead, Mr. Morrow said that he hoped the weekly papers of Port Angeles would take a conservative view of the situation and not attempt to mislead their readers by unnecessarily booming his railroad project just at present. That the finances of the country were in such condition that many of the railroads had inaugurated a system of retrenchment and were discharging hundreds of employees, and there would probably not be much railroad extension just at present. That many of the shrewd financiers of the country were quietly disposing of their railroad bonds for the purpose of investing their surplus millions in more stable securities, before any of the railroads of the country were in the hands of receivers. Mr. Morrow said, however, that if his road could be financed, it could be built at the present time, under existing conditions, much cheaper than when workmen were more generally employed.

Wednesday's P.-I., from which Mr. Morrow claimed to have drawn this idea of the doleful financial situation in the railroad affairs of the country, in its commercial and financial department says the gross earnings of the railroads for the calendar year 1910 were $230,000,000 more than was earned in 1907, the previous high record, and that today the market is stronger than at any time since the rate decisions were announced last week.

THE FAMILY MAKES THE MAN.

Out of the American family comes government, education, and the magnificent apparatus for spreading and bettering it. The indispensable product of a country that would be great is neither gold nor iron, copper, cotton, nor corn, but effectual men and women who know what is worth trying for and are fit to attain it. And this indispensable product is a family product. Only as families exist and are worthy can it be forthcoming. We see and are impressed by enormous mills, astonishing city structures, tremendous examples of the power of the minds and hands of men, but these things are no more than the passing fruit of the trees whose roots are in the family. These things do not make men. The families make men; and given men of the right quality in the right place and time, all these other things will be added unto them.

The senate county unit local option bill was killed in the house on last Friday so far as the present session of the state legislature is concerned, when that body, by a vote of 50 to 42, indefinitely postponed the measure.

MADEMOISELLE CARTIER

By ANTOINETTE PATTERSON

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

For the last two or three years, Graham Hartley had been taking life none too seriously. An uncle—Graham's parents were both dead—was largely responsible for this. He had taken the boy immediately after his graduation from college, where he had done really well, home to his magnificent bachelor apartments; he had helped to develop his inborn taste for luxury and beauty of all kinds. Incidentally he had encouraged laziness.

Uncle and nephew had lived amicably together until one day, while they were traveling abroad, the latter fell madly in love with the pretty prima donna of the opera which was creating a furore in Paris.

On that first night for a full half-hour, Graham Hartley had gazed stubbornly through his opera-glasses at Mlle. Cartier, not only because she was pretty and charming, but because he seemed to remember having once seen her before. Suddenly it came to him; she was the little French girl who had been educated with a young cousin of his own in a convent near Paris, and whom, during the summer vacation three years ago, he had met visiting with this same cousin at a villa near Dinard. She had charmed them all then with her fresh young voice, and had added much to his regret when the time came for his return to the United States.

Graham Hartley lost no time in slipping behind the scenes and sending in his card to Mlle. Cartier. She remembered him perfectly, and seemed glad to see him.

Hartley wanted to bring Uncle John, but Uncle John was obdurate. He had little enthusiasm for the theater at best, and a rooted objection to actresses. Had Graham known at the time of the one romantic episode of his uncle's life and how it had been irrevocably bound up with a woman of this profession, he would have understood things better.

As it was, he gave little thought to the matter, and soon, indeed, he gave very little thought even to Uncle John. Uncle John had behaved much in the same way years ago, though, of course, he had forgotten that fact. Every opportunity that offered found Graham Hartley in the company of Marie Cartier.

When Graham finally confessed the true state of his feelings, Uncle John, for a supposedly sane man, became very violent.

It was the mere fact she was an actress that Uncle John objected to. He didn't mind at all a woman's being before the public. Mlle. Cartier might have been a doctor, or a lawyer, or an author, or have led suffrage meetings all over the country for all he would have cared! Indeed, if she were only distinguished in any other way than on the stage, he would have raised no objection.

Graham went to no end of trouble to explain to Uncle John that Mlle. Cartier had adopted the stage merely as the best way of making a living for her grandmother and herself.

Had he chosen to do so, Uncle John could have found out for himself that Marie Cartier's own lovely nature had kept her unspoiled as when the convent doors had closed upon her. But Uncle John preferred to arrive at his own conclusions unhampered by stubborn facts; and to everything that his nephew urged by way of special pleading, he simply exclaimed: "Bosh!"

One morning, after a stormy scene, the two separated, the uncle uttering dramatically the regulation formula that never again was his nephew to darken his doors!

Graham Hartley threw a few things into his bag, walked out of the hotel and straight to a newspaper office where, as luck would have it, he succeeded in getting a job which promised five dollars a week on account of his knowledge of both French and English. This held out little hope of an early marriage, but it would at least keep him alive in a world which was such a pleasant place to live in so long as Marie occupied a portion of it. The great objection was that he must begin at once with night work, which would make it necessary for him to miss the evening performance at the theater. But there would be afternoon calls to console him, and matinees, until he suddenly remembered he would not be able to afford tickets to anything.

Hartley wrote an explanatory note to Mlle. Cartier, and, receiving one so kind and altogether satisfactory in immediate reply, he started lightheartedly to work that very night.

The same night Marie Cartier had returned as usual to her room in the inexpensive hotel where she lived. It was the room they generally let her have on account of the little balcony she had fancied just outside of one of the windows. A timid person might have been afraid of that little balcony because of the inducement offered to burglars. But M rie never thought about disagreeable possibilities. Her mind was full of happy thoughts involving a certain young man and all that he had come to mean to her. She sent her maid to the next room and stepped out on the balcony to be alone with the stars.

When Marie entered the room again a loose screw holding the window bolt slipped out and fell to the floor. She could not see it anywhere around. Perhaps it had rolled under the bed, which was in a dark embrasure of the room. Lighting a candle she went toward the bed, and then blew out the flame with the casual air of one who has suddenly changed her mind. She had seen, distinctly, something that looked very like the part of a man's foot under the bed!

Because she was a woman, her impulse was to scream; but, also because she was a woman and grasped immediately the whole situation, she did nothing of the kind. Instead, she called quickly to her maid.

"Susanne, please unfasten this pin for me. I mean the one at the back." Marie Cartier had inherited from her mother some very handsome jewels which, through years of poverty, she had cherished.

"Susanne, I'm going to take this pin early tomorrow morning to the jeweler to have the clasp fixed and I want my pearl necklace examined at the same time. I wish you'd go downstairs and get the clerk to give it to you from the safe so I can put it with the pin tonight and run no risk of forgetting to take them both. But stop a minute"—as Susanne went to the door—"I have to write you an order."

Mlle. Cartier deliberately opened her desk and to the order for the necklace added:

"There is a burglar hiding in my room. Do not frighten my maid, but send two men up immediately to arrest him."

Then, for now that she was alone, Marie was growing frightened, she tried to distract her own attention in every possible way. She slipped the ornaments and pins from her hair, and, that she might not appear to be trembling, she took some steps of the little dance which night after night won such applause, humming its accompanying waltz tune. Would help never come? She fancied she heard the man under the bed stir. There was every possibility that he might suspect things at any moment rush out, seize her dear mother's most cherished pin, and make his escape by the balcony. To keep up her spirits, she began to sing more boldly.

Soon she heard footsteps; they were not passing her door; they were coming in. And again Marie Cartier walked out to the balcony to look up at the stars.

"Distinguished for her pluck and coolness. Brave little actress, in outwitting a burglar, aids in the capture of a notorious thief. Paris her debtor!"

So ran the headlines, carefully underscored, in a journal, left at Uncle John's hotel, addressed in a well-known hand.

Uncle John read through the lines and the article twice. Then he laid down the paper. Distinguished for pluck and coolness; yes, he had undoubtedly once—was it only yesterday?—said he would have no objection to Mlle. Cartier had she been noted in any way but as an actress. It was clearly his duty as a man of his word to live up to that assertion. Besides, he had missed his nephew. But that, of course, had nothing to do with it. Simply there was no way of getting out of what he had said.

Uncle John rang for his man. "Barton, call Mr. Hartley up on the phone for me, please, and say I would like to see him once more."

Cabby's Badinage.

Lord Decies, the fiance of Miss Vivian Gould, talked to a reporter, during the recent horse show, about the inexcusable dearness of New York's cab service.

"And these dear turnouts," said Lord Decies, "are none too luxurious. I said to a cabby the other day:

"'How much to take me to the Hotel Gotham?'

"'Four dollars,' the man answered.

"'Oh,' I said, 'I didn't ask the price of the rig. I don't want to buy it.'

"Well, I should think not,' said the cabby. 'The horse alone cost four dollars and a half.'"

Truly Tragic.

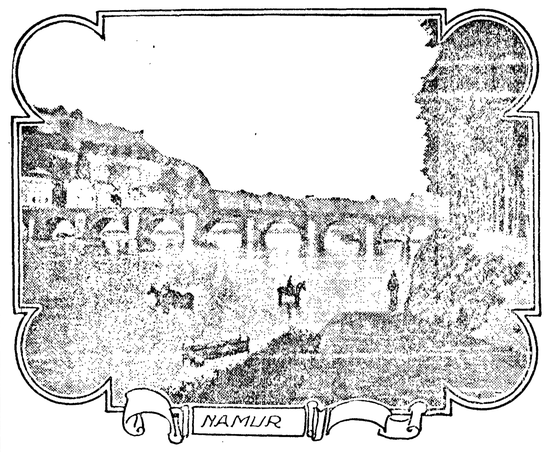
A WEEK IN BELGIUM



A LONG stretch of great white buildings looming at you through the haze is your first introduction to Ostend. As the steamer approaches nearer and near to the landing stage, the outlines of column and gable, tower and minaret, balcony and arch, and the sound of distant music come to you; and then, as the buttresses of the pier absorb your view, you are greeted with a babel of French and Flemish, and all the bustle of a foreign port. You begin to realize the delights of having arrived at the most beautiful summer city in the world—Ostend.

For the moment you may be bewildered with all that you see. Your dinner is being served to you in a vast chamber filled with exquisitely gowned women and men, mostly in evening dress. Through the open French windows a great crowd is passing along the Digue, the magnificent roadway which stretches along the sea to the right and left of Ostend, to France on one side, to Holland on the other. You hear every language, and you soon notice every type of nationality, but always the best of that nationality. Ostend is the congress ground of the aristocrat from everywhere. Everybody, laughing and happy, everybody living for the moment, forgetful of the before, and careless of the afterwards. Only Ostend, Reine des Plages, can produce such a scene; nowhere in all the world is it equalled. Then, off to the station, for you are going to see as much of Belgium as you can in your week's holiday.

In half an hour you are in Bruges, the old, old City of Flanders, "The Venice of the North," as she once proudly called herself, when she could boast of 200,000 inhabitants, of a sovereign's brilliant court, and of massive walls and a powerful army able to defy an emperor's wrath. Now Bruges has nothing but her thrilling romantic past and the inestimable treasures of art which even her conquerors refrained from taking.

In Ghent you must see the cathedral with its world-famous altar-piece "The Adoration of the Lamb," by the brothers Van Eyck, and the tombs of former bishops, wonders in carved marble. Nor must you fail to pause a few minutes before the town hall, where you will view the stone pulpit from which Jacques Van Artevelde, "dear gossip and ally" of Edward III, addressed his turbulent fellow-burghers.

After dinner you had better catch your train for Brussels, for you will arrive at the capital long before midnight, and you will have ample time to see something of night life in "Little Paris" before you go to bed.

Brussels is more or less familiar ground to everybody who has been on the continent, even if the rest of Belgium is not so well known. Having breakfasted, you will start early on your sight-seeing, and if you have not been to the Belgian capital before, you will begin with the town hall. This remarkable Gothic building dates from the fourteenth century, and witnessed the execution of Counts Egmont and De Horne by Alva. You must do the cathedral and picture galleries.

Antwerp is only half an hour's train from Brussels, and you should give it a full day, at any rate; so arrive as early as you can from Brussels, and begin with the cathedral, if only to see the Rubens masterpieces. There are one or two more churches almost of equal interest, one of which contains the family mausoleum of Rubens. Then there is the Plantin Museum of Printing, with the residence of the great Antwerp citizen just as he used to inhabit it, and several picture galleries crammed with treasures. But Antwerp is the city of pictures, and you must watch your time. You should walk along the splendid docks—there are raised stone terraces for promenading—and in the midst of the bustle of mighty commerce there is the old Steen Castle to be explored, the former fortress of the port and palace of the Marquesses of Antwerp. Here is a collection of all manner of mediaeval marvels, musical instruments, beds, torture-machines, and a variety of horrible dungeons in the depths below the basement.

From Antwerp go to Liege, about an hour and a half's journey, but the views from the train will repay you. The old city of the prince-bishops and the birthplace of Charlemagne is singularly free from smoke and noxious vapors and other outward signs of its commercial activity, thanks to its situation. It is built in a sort of basin between the hills around it; on the slopes of the hills are the factories, and all the unpleasantness blows over the city.

The Palace of the Bishops, the university and the citadel can be done by you, with lunch between, and in the later afternoon you can catch a train for Spa and arrive at the celebrated city of springs in time to make yourself presentable for dinner.

At Spa you are again in the midst of the best continental society, with the usual sprinkling of American millionaires and English "milords;" and it is Wednesday evening in your week's holiday. You will find Spa full of amusement, for it is the sports center of Belgium. You can now take the railway to Coo, where there is a waterfall of wondrous beauty, and you find yourself amid the wild scenery of the Ambleve river, and on the borders of Belgium's miniature Switzerland, the mountainous paradise of the Ardennes. From Coo you can take a drive to Remouchamps, a little township facing the Ambleve rapids and lying in the midst of scenery of extraordinary beauty.

However, your week is coming to a close, and so you had best take a train from Remouchamps to Jemelle, on the main line again of the state railways, and manage to reach Namur, traveling the while through one of the most picturesque districts, not only in Guild Houses, Antwerp.

Belgium, but in all Europe. Namur is the ancient fortress which has figured in the wars of history for more than six centuries.

Namur, indeed, is encompassed with the fairest charms that nature can reveal. The lovely valleys and hills of the Meuse, the Lesse and the Ourthe rivers, the grottoes of Han and Rochefort, and many other romantic attractions in the way of feudal ruins, picturesque cascades, fairy glens, and noble forests can be made a menu of daily sight-seeing, to be prolonged or curtailed as your holiday permits. The fortress of Namur, with the ramparts and earthworks, which were so formidable in the days when William of Orange besieged it, are now portion of the public pleasure ground.

During your week of rapid sight-seeing you will have discovered that Belgium is not only the country that seems to have been the center place of the world's history ever since history began, but that every inch of its territory is romantic and instructive. Its natural beauties and perfect accessibility from end to end make it the most enjoyable tourist and holiday land in all Europe

Two Bodices

AT the left is an over-bodice of material such as fine serge, cashmere or face cloth. It has two tucks turning from the center each side front, on the inner ones small buttons are sewn. One wide tuck is carried quite over the shoulder each side, and over the stitching passementerie is laid; the neck and edge of over-sleeves are bound with satin; the yoke and under-sleeves are bound with satin; the yoke and under-sleeves are mounted on a tight lining; they are of lace, a puff of the material being placed at top of lace.

Materials required: One yard 46 inches wide, 1¼ yard lace; one-fourth yard satin on the cross, two yards passementerie, one yard lining, 1½ dozen buttons.

The other is in rather coarse ribbed serge; the deep "V" opening is filled in with a yoke of finely tucked spotted silk; turning from this is a trimming of satin with lace laid over it. The box-plait in center front is trimmed with buttons and cord loops. The over-sleeves are trimmed to match the bodice; the under-sleeves of tucked silk are finished at the wrist with lace insertion.

Materials required: One and one-half yard 46 inches wide, three-eights yard satin 22 inches wide, 1½ yard lace, 1¾ yard lining.

GOOD IDEA FOR A COTILLON

Empire Effect Lends Itself Charmingly to the Decorations and Favors—Some Pretty Conceits.

The hostess who wants to entertain well and does not have to count pennies should give an empire cotillon. The idea would lend itself charmingly to the decorations and favors.

Empire wreaths and garlands of pink and white roses should decorate the walls. Tall dull gold empire gaskets with long handles filled with the same flower should be placed about the rooms. And empire screens could shade the electric lights to give the soft glow of innumerable wax candles.

For favors she would have many charming conceits to choose from. Among the prettiest would be pincushions in the shape of these small empire baskets. Their centers are stuffed for the cushion, and they are made of dull tarnished gold, in wicker, with the edges and handles twined with wreaths of small satin flowers.

And empire work bags made of dull brocade with tarnished gold trimmings, and the picture of some beauty of the French courts framed on the side make stunning favors.

Empire scarfs in shaded pink and white, gold and white, and the green and white of that period are infinitely attractive used as favors.

Small gilt mirrors in empire design, tarnished gold jewel boxes so typical of that charming day, and tiny fans make lovely favors.

Then if all the girls wore empire frocks, and empire wreaths of pink and white roses were given them to carry over their arms, a fascinating effect would be attained.

The empire idea should also be carried out in the supper room, the table decorations of gilded empire baskets, filled with pink and white roses. This idea should show itself in the ices, and everywhere possible in the table accessories.

Novel Ornament.

A very pretty gown seen recently was of gray chiffon over soft silk, simply cut, and practically its only ornament, besides a gold colored silk yoke with Chinese chrysanthemum embroidery, was an enormous ribbon chrysanthemum at the belt. Each petal of the flower was a strip of narrow ribbon, with a triangular fold in the middle of it, that turned it over and gave a little heavier portion to weigh it down. These folds were troned heavily into the ribbon, and then the innumerable petals were sewed in chrysanthemum shape at the waist line with gold thread (the ribbon itself was gold color). Nearly all the petals were allowed to droop and fall in the natural way, only enough being tacked back to give the fluffy flower effect.

Pretty Crib Cover.

A pretty crib cover may be made from a yard each of a white and pale blue or pink flannel. On the colored flannel embroider a flower and bow-knot design; on the white a conventional border and a large central monogram. Bind the two together by means of a wide satin ribbon and put a bow or rosette in one corner, with the colored side considered as the

NOVEL IDEA IN TEA GIVING

Passepartout Idea Work Used to Give Enjoyment to the Invited Guests.

When one of the members of a debutante group sent out cards for an informal afternoon tea she wrote on them Passepartout. Tea without explaining what form the merrymaking would take other than tea drinking, and what part passepartouting would play in it.

The girls found the parlor table set forth with a quantity of pretty prints selected from art magazines, art photographs, etc., with shears, library paste, mounts, glass, and passepartout tape in different colors.

All drew around the table, and guests were asked to choose the pictures they liked and to passepartout them according to fancy. An hour passed delightfully in this agreeable craft, after which the three or four pictures prepared by each fair maid were exhibited and all voted for the exhibit which was considered happiest.

After the awarding of the prizes a dainty tea followed, the idea of the occasion being introduced in many clever little ways. For instance, the napkin rings were bound into cylinders with strips of passepartouting tape, and for place cards tiny glasses from unused photograph negatives (of a very small-sized camera) had been washed and employed to passepartout dainty pictures clipped from magazines. Each picture had the name of some girl and a jingle relating to her written upon it, the pictures chosen appropriately.

TAUPE CLOTH SUIT.

The above model shows an attractive light-weight cloth suit in a pretty shade of taupe. The velvet which is used for girdle, rosettes and bands down sides is a few shades darker than the cloth. The buttons are cloth-covered and the stock and yoke are allover white lace

A Few Words on Loafing.

Don't loaf. Idleness is the root of much evil, and uncheerfulness is one of the shoots from the root. There is no such thing as idleness in nature. The worlds that glitter in the arch of the heavens are ever moving. The moon never stays in one place. The restless sea moans in and out over the harbor bar. The rivers gurgle and splash as they journey to the sea. The trees change their costumes twice a year, and grow a little throughout most of the year. The birds never roost at noonday, and man is the only animal who oversleeps himself.

Incident That Caused Conan Doyle to Decide That Physician's Work Was Too Hard.

An American lady asked Conan Doyle one day why he had given up the practice of medicine. He said the work was too hard, and to prove it he went on to tell of his first case:

"My first case came to me in the middle of the night. It was January, and a cold rain was falling. The jingle of the doorbell awoke me from a sound sleep, and, shivering and yawning, I put my head out of the window and said, "Who's there?"

"'Doctor,' said a voice, 'can you come to Peter Smith's house at once?'

"'What's the trouble?' I asked.

"'Smith's youngest girl has took a dose of laudanum in mistake for paragoric, and we're afraid she'll die.'

"'All right, I'll come,' said I.

"I tramped three miles through the cold and rain to Smith's. Twice on the way I fell on the icy pavement, and once my hat blew off and in the darkness I was nearly half an hour finding it.

"Finally, though, I reached Smith's. But the house was dark—shutters up—all closed—not a light. I rang the bell. No answer.

"But at last a head stuck itself gingerly out of a third-story window.

"'Be you Dr. Doyle?' it said.

"'Yes,' said I. 'Let me in.'

"'Oh, no need to come in, doctor,' said the head. 'The child's all right now. Sleeping very quiet.'

"'But how much laudnum did you give it?' said I.

"'Only two drops, doctor—not enough to hurt a cat. I guess I'd better take my head in now. The night air is cold. Good-night. Sorry to have troubled you.'

"I buttoned my coat and turned homeward trying as best I could to stifle my mortification and anger. But suddenly the window was raised again, and the same voice cried:

"'Doctor, I say, doctor!'

"I hurried back. I thought the child had suddenly taken a turn for the worse.

"'Well, what do you want?' I said.

"The voice made answer:

"'Ye won't charge nothin' for this visit, will ye?'"—Human Life.

England's First Christmas Trees

The return of Christmas brought to life the journalistic legend that Prince Albert "introduced Christmas trees into England" and that the first of them was set up at Windsor castle in 1841. As a matter of fact, Christmas trees were introduced half a century before Prince Albert was born by Queen Charlotte, and they were set up every year for the royal children at Kew or at Windsor.—From London Truth.

Got Useful Information.

"There's no place like a pawnshop for picking up useful hints," said the improvident man. "Every time I happen into one I glean some item of general information that almost reconciles me to the necessity for being there. On my last visit I saw another man redeeming ostrich feathers. Our uncle brought them out tightly sealed in a glass jar.

"'What did you can them for?' the man asked.

"'So they wouldn't spoil,' said the pawnbroker. 'A glass jar is the safest thing on earth to keep feathers in. Moths and dust cannot get at them, besides you can keep an eye on them easily and any trouble that might have been breeding when the feathers were brought in can be discovered and nipped in the bud.'

"That hint I consider worth going to a pawnshop for. The way things look now nobody belonging to me will ever have any ostrich plumes to take care of, but if we ever do have any I shall know what to do with them."

SPEAKING VOICE IMPORTANT

When Its Correct Use Has Been Learned the Development of the Singer Is Easier.

Few singers, students, or even teachers of singing, pay enough attention to the speaking voice. The teacher and his pupil are together so little—a brief half-hour or two each week—and there are so many things demanding attention that there seems almost no time for consideration of the speaking voice. Yet consistency demands that a bad habit of voice use in speech shall be corrected so that the use of the voice in conversation shall not retard the perfection of the singing voice.

I am often asked if the process of tone production is the same in speaking and singing. I answer that it should be the same. When the voice is correctly used in speech it will require not different, but merely amplified treatment for singing. Unquestionably the young person who has a correct use of voice in speech will find it less difficult to develop a good singing voice, than one who has an incorrect habit.

Deep breath control, pliable organs of articulation, and full, or complete, vowel pronunciation, are the fundamental requisites of correct speech and correct singing alike. When the speaking voice of a singer is not so produced, its use in conversation is sure to retard the perfection of the singing tone.

PARTY LOST IN ARCTIC; RELIEF EXPEDITION TO START

Dawson, Feb. 28.—A special Royal Northwest Mounted Police expedition is ready to leave tomorrow in search for a police expedition already forty days overdue from Fort MacPherson and Herschel island with police advices and mail from whalers, trappers and traders.

Indians arriving here report that the party left Fort MacPherson a week before Christmas, seventy-two days ago. The trip usually takes about thirty days.

Lost Trail on Peel.

The party first got off the trail along the lower Peel, where they were met by a family of Indians. Esau, one of the number, guided them for five days to Mountain valley, the entrance to the Wind river country, where he was released. The party was then only fourteen days from Dawson.

Esau later went hunting and then came to Dawson, via the Hart river. He reports that there are no Indians wintering on the Wind river, where the police intended to go. He left the police on New Year's day. Since then the coldest weather of the winter prevailed, for almost a month ranging from 40 to 60 below. This should furnish no difficulty for experienced mushers, but the Indians report that the police dogs were thin and in poor condition for travel. The same dogs had been used from Herschel to Fort MacPherson.

Four in the Party.

The party includes Sergeant Fitzgerald and Constables Carter, Turner and Kinney. Two of them were over the route two years ago. Some hopes are entertained that the dogs played out and the men made camp, or that some member was injured, compelling the party to return to Fort MacPherson, or that the party merely got lost for a while on coming out of some detour.

However, there are grave fears that the party is lost. The Indians report there is one whaler at Herschel.

BOURNE FLAYS PRESIDENT IN SENATE SPEECH

Washington, Feb. 28.—President Taft, by inference, was charged tonight with using his appointive powers to intimidate members of congress. The inferred charge was made in a speech in the senate by Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon, president of the New Progressive Republican League, and until recent trouble over an Oregon appointment, the intimate friend and golfing companion of the chief executive.

The surprising thing was that although all of the senators construed his remarks as an attack on the president, not a word was uttered in reply.

The Beverly letter, in which Secretary Norton said the president had withheld federal patronage from certain senators and congressmen, but would discontinue that practice, was brought into the limelight. On previous occasions, insurgent senators threatened to read this letter, but until tonight no public reference had been made to it.

The Test.

"He had a fine time, but very expensive."

"How is that?"

The Human Heart

The heart is a wonderful double pump, through the action of which the blood stream is kept sweeping round and round through the body at the rate of seven miles an hour. "Remember this, that our bodies will not stand the strain of over-work without good, pure blood any more than the engine can run smoothly without oil." After many years of study in the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that when the stomach was out of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general breakdown, a tonic made of the glyceric extract of certain roots was the best corrective. WHAT WOMAN LIKES IN MAN

Pleasing Manners, Deference, Courtesy and a Vigorous, Healthy and Well-Groomed Appearance.

A woman likes pleasing manners in a man. She likes deference and courtesy and attentiveness in small things. Manners often make more of an appeal to her than sterling worth. That's the reason foreigners make such headway with American women. They never forget to be deferential and courteous, to say the little things and to do the little things that warm the cockles of the feminine heart. This may be all wrong. Perhaps she ought to appreciate the character more than the veneer. But she doesn't. The average woman isn't practical. She's romantic. She likes roses and bonbons. Many men give her cabbage and beefsteak. Cabbage and beefsteak are all right, but as a steady diet they are tiresome. She'll take less cabbage and beefsteak if thereby she may have some roses and bonbons.

A woman likes a man to look healthy and to be well groomed. She likes a vigorous body, a healthy skin and a look that betokens a daily acquaintance with the bath tub, not merely because she likes beauty, though she does, but because these things betoken good habits.

A woman, if she is a wife or a sweetheart, likes expressions of love. She gets tired of taking a man's love for granted. It grows faint and faraway, and life is cold and commonplace, when he does not tell her in actual words he loves her, and show her by actual caresses, how much. To some men, this seems all foolishness. They think that paying bills is the best proof of their love. But again, most women are not practical, and bills are uninteresting things, not half so enjoyable or warm and vital as a kiss or a caress.

Horseshoes as English Toll.

The town of Oakham, in Yorkshire, should if there is anything in the idea that horseshoes bring luck, be a highly favored place of residence, for it possesses an historic collection of horseshoes which adorns the walls of the assize court in the castle.

The array has been formed practically as the result of a custom practiced by the lord of the manor of exacting toll in the shape of a horseshoe from every peer of the realm who visits the town. One of the first to be given was presented by Queen Elizabeth, and others include the gifts of Queen Victoria and King Edward.—London Letter to the Philadelphia North American.

WOMEN WORKERS' 8-HOUR BILL PASSES IN HOUSE

Olympia, Feb. 28.—The house yesterday afternoon passed the woman's eight-hour bill by a vote of 64 to 27, after another session of speechmaking had been indulged in.

The bill as passed, however, carries the amendment written into it a week ago, exempting from its operations women working at harvesting, packing and canning fruit and the canning and packing of fish and shell fish.

Validity Once Questioned.

When the bill was up for consideration a week ago its sponsors declared that they had the assurance of attorneys that any exemption would invalidate it. They advanced this argument as against the amendments which were finally written in.

The bill as passed was hurried to the senate at once, under suspension of the rules.

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION

Information of Importance to Everyone

A great deal of pain and suffering might be avoided if we had some knowledge of physiology and the care of the body, particularly those parts that do the most work and should always be kept strong and healthy.

In an interview with a prominent physician he states that people should pay more attention to their kidneys as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

During the winter months especially, when we live an indoor life, the kidneys should receive some assistance when needed, as we take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than Nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, inability to hold urine, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, may be weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

An herbal medicine containing no minerals or opiates has the most healing influence. An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper.

"What made her a widow?"

"She lost her husband, of course."

"Pshaw! I know that, but how did it happen?"

"Oh, it was the result of a falling out, I believe."

"Then she must be a Reno widow?"

"No; her late husband was a balloonatic."

TIMES CLOTHING MART

Welcome News to the Ladies of Port Angeles.

Owing to the failure of the newspaper to publish only part of our add, we have decided to run our Linen and Cotton Sale for another week. Below you will see a list of our 25c specials for this week.

Cotton High Priced.

Higher Priced Than at Any Other Time Since the Civil War.

Cotton is going up and probably people will have to pay more for those commodities made of cotton than they pay at present. The price per pound to the manufacturer of cotton goods is fifteen cents, the highest it has been since the war. Among the causes for this high price are given, the increased foreign demand, the more diversified use in which cotton is put, such as making near-silk and near-woolen cloth. Then too. experts say the crop last year was 2,000,000 bales short and that the growers are in a strong combination to curtail the growth in order to stiffen the price.

Within the past eighteen months cotton prices have risen from six and one-half cents a pound to fifteen cents.

USED VENISON FOR BAIT

Guide Sisson of Elwha river, Clallam county, has just been fined $100 by Justice of Peace C W. Fields for having a small portion of a deer in his possession which he was using for trap bait for catching cougar, wolf, bay lynx, and cats. Sisson has been trapping more or less for 30 years on Puget Sound—for the past 15 years in the Olympics, when not occupied by guiding and packing. Without doubt Sisson has done more to protect deer, elk, and game birds by catching these above mentioned animals which live entirely on game, than all the hunters in the country. At the time of the arrest Sisson had 3 cougar skins, 3 timber wolf and 17 lynx and cats, all of which had been caught in the past few months, several within ten days. Sisson says that his past experience has taught him that these animals are particularly fond of the flesh of wild game, being what they are accustomed to eating, and to make a success of trapping them must use such bait as is most attractive.

Sisson says his heart is not broken yet but thinks it pretty tough to be arrested and fined $100 for doing so much good for which so few have so much ability. * *
