NOT A DULL MOMENT

The Port Townsend Leader, reviewing the foot ball game in Port Angeles last Saturday, has this to say of the Angeles boys:

For the second time this season the local high school team went down to defeat at the hands of the Port Angeles institution in one of the best played games ever pulled off between the rival schools. When the final whistle blew, Angeles was on the long end of a 13 to 6 score. The down Sound institution annexed two touch-downs, one goal from touchdown and one safety; while the locals were only able to get a touch-down and goal kick. Angeles clearly showed their superiority and repeatedly made first down on the first play by fine interference which could not be broken consistently by the local boys.

Lotzgesell and MacKechnie of Angeles were easily the stars of the game; the former could always be depended upon for a good gain and at quarter showed remarkable judgment in running his team. MacKechnie is a fierce line plunger and very hard to knock over and his work receiving the forward pass was one of the features of the game. These two players class with the best high school men in the state.

Too much cannot be said of the treatment accorded the boys by the Angeles aggregation. From the time of the local team's arrival not a dull moment was experienced, and everyone appreciated the cordiality shown. After the game a fine chicken dinner was put up gratis by the Angeles boys and this was done full justice to. In the evening they were all invited to a dance, and those not too badly beaten up attended, reporting an excellent time. The rooting at the game was good natured at all times, and fairness was shown by the crowd, cheering for good plays by the Townsend as well as the Angeles team.

NEW STEAMER FOR ANGELES RUN

The Solduck, a $250,000 Boat, Will Leave Seattle at 8:00, Making Round Trip in Daytime.

"The Inland Navigation company has awarded a contract to the Moran Company, of Seattle, for a modern, steel, sixteen-knot steamer, to cost approximately $250,000," says the Port Townsend Leader. "The vessel will be christened the Solduck, after the Solduck Hot Springs, for which point it is expected to develop heavy summer travel.

It is announced that the new steamer, beginning on June 1, 1912, will be operated on the Seattle, Port Townsend, Port Angeles, Port Crescent route, now covered by the steamer Whatcom.

The Solduck will be 205 feet long, 34 feet beam, with a depth of nine feet, will be modern in every way with suites or rooms with bath attached. There will be observation rooms on both passenger and hurricane decks, and reading lights and jewel receptacles in every berth. The vessel will be an oil burner with the latest type of boilers and engines.

According to excellent authority, the new boat will operate on a schedule between Seattle and Port Crescent which will enable persons desiring to make the trip to the Solduck Hot Springs, to reach their destination in the mountains eight hours after leaving Seattle. The Solduck will leave Seattle at 8 o'clock in the morning, and if the passengers are transferred from Port Angeles, as is considered probable, they will arrive at hot springs at 4 in the afternoon. Mr. Earles, who owns the fine new hotel at the springs, is heavily interested in Port Crescent, and it is possible he may desire to have his passengers landed at that point, in which event the trip will consume considerably more time. A vast amount of money has been spent by Mr. Earles and his associates, and it is believed that the Solduck springs will next summer become one of the most popular resorts on the coast. The fact that the Navigation company is building a new boat at a cost of $250,000 shows that the transportation people appreciate the possibilities of this travel."

PLENTY OF ROOM FOR BOTH

At an extended session of the Commercial Club Wednesday evening, after arrangements had been made to present the needs of the city and county to Congressman Warburton upon his visit today, and several minor matters disposed of, the two railroad projects were taken up and discussed in all their various phases and a number of actions were proposed, without approval.

It seems to be the sentiment that work on the electric line should be pushed at least until the other becomes certain. There is very little doubt but that the electric line can be built within two years. Mr. Aldwell went on record with the statement that he is five times as sure of the electric road as he ever was of the power plant, and the power plant is nearing completion. Peabody, Houghtaling & Co. already have a million and a quarter interest on the Peninsula and are one of the big companies of the country. They can and will put in much more, and have stated to Mr. Aldwell in the presence of Mr. Merrill and Mr. Glines that they will finance the electric road which guarantees it. The survey and preliminary money is already assured and four men have already signified their intention of taking $25,000 to $50,000 of the $200,000 necessary to make the start. Mr. Aldwell stated that the people have this matter in their own hands and it would be foolish to let go except upon positive assurance. At the same time he does not care what kind of a railroad we get, so long as we get it without delay.

While no action was taken, yet as a result of several meetings held in the city the past week, the other proposition has been gaining in public confidence. The Olympic-Leader has been requested by the promoter not to mention any of the details of his proposition at the present time, but business men who have been among the most skeptical are really becoming enthusiastic.

P. F. Harley has taken advantage of the fine weather and rushed the work to completion on the concrete foundation to the 30 x 44 ft. bungalow, with 7 foot corner porch, he will build on his lot on Fifth St.

ALL SAINTS DAY A JOLLY OCCASION

Card Parties, Dances, Club Meetings, and General Good Times Held Thruout City.

This week was marked with many pleasant social functions, both for old and young, in honor of All Saints Day, while the little tots had a jolly time scaring their neighbors with fierce looking jack o'lanterns.

Complimentary to her sister, Mrs. Cook of Seattle, Mrs. Frank Fisher very delightfully entertained with a 500 party Wednesday afternoon. In honor of All Saints Day the rooms were prettily decorated, yellow and black being the predominant colors. Pumpkins were used as vases to hold the beautiful bouquets of dahlias and nasturtiums, and the crepe paper table cloths and napkins were gaily bedecked with witches, jack o'lanterns, etc., while little Hallowe'en favors filled with candy, were at each plate. A very delicious luncheon was served, Mrs. Fisher being assisted by Mrs. Maurice Fisher, Mrs. C. P. Brown and Mrs. R. D. Willson. Mrs. Alfred Jenson was awarded a beautiful brass vase for having the highest score. Mrs. Gorman received the consolation and Mrs. Cook the guest's prize.

The Epworth League of the M. E. Church entertained their friends very pleasantly Tuesday evening with a Hallowe'en party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lotzgesell. Unique invitations were sent out asking the guests to come dressed as ghosts and considerable amusement was derived from guessing who the different ghosts were. The house was prettily decorated, suggestive of the occasion, and fortune telling, and various other Hallowe'en games offered pleasant entertainment. Dainty refreshments were served and everyone declared the Epworth League members to be royal entertainers.

One of the pleasantest dances ever given in Port Angeles is what they say of the Maccabee Ball given in the opera house Tuesday evening. The hall never presented a more artistic appearance, in its gay decorations in honor of All Saints Day. The footlights on the stage were all enclosed in pumpkin shades.

The music provided by Parks and Miles was excellent and put everyone in the mood for dancing. Dainty refreshments were served upon the stage and the whole affair, both socially and financially, was a great success.

A very unique and pleasant affair was the party given by Miss Bernice Campbell, at which we hear real live ghosts and witches were present, and all sorts of Halloween jokes and pranks were enjoyed.

Miss Florence Gherke entertained a party of young people Tuesday evening and all had a jolly time, notwithstanding that ghosts and goblins were stalking about ready to pounce upon all revelers.

Mrs. A. J. Cosser entertained the Book Club Monday afternoon. A pretty feature was the Halloween decorations.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH PLEASING PLACE OF WORSHIP

The interior improvements and decorations to the Congregational church, now nearly completed, are quite striking, adding materially to the appearance of the auditorium of the church. The seating plan has been changed, there are three aisles instead of one, as formerly, at each side and through the center of the rows of seats. The new Queen Ann windows with opalescent sash, put in place last week by J. Lloyd Aldwell, are also a great improvement, and add much to the church.

The lower walls are a dark green, the ceiling and upper portion of the walls a soft cream, divided by a band of gilt; the wood work, walnut, all blending nicely and quite restful to the eyes. Rev. Smith announced last Sunday that funds were available for a new carpet.

The Ladies Aid Society of the church, as well as Rev. and Mrs. Smith, upon whom much of the burden of the work has fallen, are to be congratulated for their splendid achievement in giving the communicants of this church, as well as their friends, such a comfortable and pleasing room in which to worship.

CONGRESSMAN HERE TODAY

Will Meet with Commercial Club at 11:00 a. m. to Learn Needs of His Constituents.

Congressman Warburton has notified Secretary J. L. Aldwell of the Republican Central Committee that he will be here for a few hours between boats today to confer with the citizens regarding the needs of this section. A meeting will be held in the Commercial Club room, where several questions will be taken up.

Chief among these will be the necessity of changing the National Monument to a National Park, with mining and road building rights, to the end that the mineral deposits may be utilized. The securing of a Federal building for Angeles will be taken up and it will be shown that the government has made the cost of a creditable building out of its speculation in Angeles real estate, on which it has so far made no returns.

Government ownership of the reserve blocks, in the center of the city, will, with the probable immediate development, prove a stumbling block in the city's progress. Mr. Warburton has more than made good as a representative of this section and there is no doubt he will be able to secure the passage of the act now pending to place these lots on sale.

It is also the intention to make a quick trip to the canyon, where the advantageous location for a fish hatchery will be pointed out.

Everyone is expected to come out and meet the Congressman and assist in giving him a hearty welcome.

MADE PROGRESS A POSSIBILITY

City's Receipts Increased by Nearly Ten Thousand Dollars in Four Years Time.

Once each year, for a few days prior to city election, we hear a great deal about progressiveness, and are told if we elect such and such men as councilmen, we will see the dawn of a new era.

It usually takes about a month for a new mayor and councilmen to come to a realization of the fact that progressiveness costs money and that there is no money with which to be progressive.

A large portion of the money raised by taxation for municipal purposes must go to pay the interest on the heavy indebtedness accumulated in the past. An indebtedness so great as to have prevented the city's putting in its own water works system, and which acts as an effectual bar to any progress involving the sale of municipal bonds. An indebtedness fastened upon the city by men of no business ability, who had made a failure of their own lives, and who had no property and hence would not even have to bear their share of the burdens they forced upon those so unwise as to elect them to office.

The current expense fund, which has to be reckoned with before improvements of any nature can be undertaken, must cover a long list of essential fixed expenses, and after these are provided for there remains so little for improvements that it at once becomes a question of how few dollars can be spent here and there,

GREAT BATTLE BETWEEN TURKS, ARABS AND ITALIANS

Tripoli, Oct. 28.—A report from an Italian source, recounting the battle of yesterday, places the Turkish and Arab losses at more than 1,000 killed and a large number wounded, and the Italian loss at 100 dead and wounded.

Italians Surprised.

The attack was made before daybreak and took the Italians by surprise. The Arabian and Turkisn cavalry threw themselves against the entire Italian line, which was formed in a semi-circle behind the city, the ends extending to the seashore.

The Turks put their whole strength against the Italian center which they succeeded in smashing, but the Italians rallied and drove back the enemy, inflicting heavy losses.

The Turkish horsemen and foot soldiers displayed remarkable bravery.

Tripoli in Panic.

Malta, Oct. 28.—Uncensored information from Tripoli is to the effect that something in the nature of a panic has seized the city since it became known that a Musselman force of 60,000 Turks and Arabs is threatening Tripoli. The force is well armed and provisioned.

But for a premature attack by a party of Mussulmans on last Monday the Italians would have been ambushed, completely surrounded and few would have survived.

Campaign Taxing Italy Heavily

London, Oct. 28.—From uncensored dispatches from Tripoli, reaching England by way of Malta, which in part are confirmed by censored dispatches reaching Rome, it is apparent that Italy's campaign in Tropoli already has cost more lives than the government anticipated, while the financial outlay will greatly exceed the estimates.

The Turks, with their Arab allies, who, at best, it was believed, would only carry on a desultory campaign, offering a sort of holiday for the invaders, have upset the calculations of the Italians by a series of concerted attacks in which, according to accounts sent by correspondents without submission to the censor, the Italians have come off second best.

Turks Claim Victory.

The Turkish embassy issued a statement today claiming that in Monday's fighting the allies gained a victory, the Italians losing 300 men killed and 700 wounded. This is confirmed in part by an independent report that the Italians brought 700 wounded men into Tripoli, and further by an announcement from Rome that the government had decided to send for 10,000 reinforcements.

Since then telegrams from various points, some rather conflicting, tell of a series of attacks, the latest on Thursday. Thus far only censored accounts have been received of this engagement, but apparently it was extensive.

Pasco Defeats Water Bonds.

Pasco, Oct. 28—The purchase of the water works system and plant of the Pacific Power & Light Company, under condemnation proceedings, the city to issue $60,000 bonds and pay not to exceed $46,000 for the system, was submitted to the voters of Pasco and was lost by six votes, 265 against and 259 for the proposition. The plant was recently appraised at $25,000 by an engineer employed by the city.

INLAND EMPIRE TEACHERS PLAN LIVE CONVENTION

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 30—Dr. Stanley Hall, of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., and other speakers of national repute will discuss topics of live interest at the next annual convention of the Inland Empire Teachers' Association in Spokane, April 3 to 6, 1912. One of the subjects will be: "Should the practice of requiring grammar school pupils to do home work be continued?" Many think the school day is sufficient for study and recitation, saying that the evening should be devoted to recreation, music and rest.

Wayne P. Smith, superintendent of city schools at Wallace, Idaho, chairman of the executive committee of the association, announced at an executive session here that 1,500 teachers in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana will attend the convention next spring, also that prominent educators from other parts of the country will be present during the week. Professor Philip Soulen of the University of Idaho, and Miss Ida Pattee of Spokane, represented Idaho and Washington at the session, at which R. J. Maclean, secretary, pledged the support and co-operation of the Spokane chamber of commerce to the committee having charge of the convention.

GOV. HAY IS NOT LIKELY TO CALL SPECIAL SESSION

OLYMPIA, Oct. 28.—While Gov. Hay is in Okanogan county and will not return to the capital before the first of the month, and his personal views are not known here, it is regarded as practically certain that he will not acquiesce in the demand for a special session of the legisature because of the expense involved. To hold a special session would mean, at this time, to plunge the state back into debt.

Since 1910 the state has paid off $1,200,000 of bonds and can get along out of debt until spring, when the new taxes will be gin to come in.

There is little money on hand at present for the industrial insurance commission and the growth of many departments has made a heavy drain on funds, but, with no special expense, the machinery of government can move on.

If Gov. Hay could pledge three-fourth of the members to limit the special session to a consideration of nothing but the presidential preference primary he might issue the call for the special session, or if a petition signed by a majority of the voters of the state were presented to him.

REVOLUTIONISTS ROUTED IN BATTLE LOSE HANKOW

Shanghai, Oct. 28.—Wireless advices from Hankow, received by the German warships here, say that the imperial forces were completely victorious in a battle which lasted all day. The revolutionists were entirely routed and compelled to abandon their positions in Hankow and fall back across the Han Yan river into Hangang.

Turkey to Continue War.

Berlin, Oct. 28—Advices from Constantinople state that the reports of recent battles with Italian losses at Tripoli have ended for the present any chance for mediation. The Turkish government has swung over to the idea of continuing the war. A dispatch from Tripoli says 300 men were killed in the battle at Tripoli on Monday.

Italy Sees No Armistice.

Rome, Oct. 28—All reports concerning the possibility of an armistice between Italy and Turkey were discredited in official circles, which affirm that Italy is determined not to cease her military operations until Tripoli is wholly conquered.

GOVERNMENT PLANS FOR ALASKA

MATANUSKA FIELDS TO BE DEVELOPED THROUGH SEWARD.

Secretary Fisher Officially Announces Government Ownership and Operation of Transportation in Territory On Limited Scale—To Reserve Coal For Use of Navy.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Quoting the United States supreme court to support his contention that in undertaking railroad construction the government is in effect "summply resuming one of its own proper functions," and not invading the legitimate doman of private enterprise, Secretary Walter L. Fisher, in an address before the American Mining Congress, today suggested government ownership and operation of mines and transportation facilities in Alaska, on a limited scale.

Not to Exclude Private Mining.

He declared, however, that direct government operation, including the mining and sending of coal, involved such deep and far-reaching changes, both of polick and of administration, that there was no likelihood at the present time of its adoption to the exclusion of private operation, and that while much can be said in favor of the government entering experimentally into these fields, he did not believe in the policy of having the government alone own and mine Alaskan coal.

The secretary expressed opposition to the policy of selling coal lands outright, saying he believed that the leasing system avoids controversy and of both extremes of public and private ownership. Therefore he suggested government ownership and operation of a limted number of properties as an example to private owners and to regulate the latter by competition, and the leasing of other fields under fair government regulation.

Speaks for President.

Secretaary Fisher, in opening his address, said he spoke officially, with the consent of the president, and that while he had no opportunity to submit what he had prepared, the general Alaskan policy outlined in the address had been discussed with the president, met his approval and would receive his support.

He said no one was more in earnest than President Taft to see a policy of prompt and wise development inaugurated in Alaska.

Telling of his recent trip to Alaska, Mr. Fisher said he made a careful examination of all the harbor and townsites which had attracted any considerable public attention, assisted by Geologist Alfred H. Brooks, and that Director Holmes, of the bureau of mines, had examined the mines.

He expressed his high opinion of the people who have become permanent residents of Alaska, saying there is a substantial percentage of vigorous, law abiding, law respecting men and women of the highest type of American citizenship.

These people, the secretary said, are entitled to a territorial government, "better adapted to their peculiar location, condition and needs."

Mr. Fisher dealt at length upon the much discussed controversy over Controller bay. He said that to develop the site secured by R. S. Ryan and his associates it would be necessary to construct piers or roadways for a distance of two or three miles over shallow flats to a channel.

Entire Shore Open to Entry.

He thought the operation of Ryan and his associates should not be interfered with because all the rest of the shore along Controller bay remains free from entry, thus disposing of the claim that a railroad monopoly has acquired the bay's frontage, and whatever may be the merits or demerits of the harbor, it has not passed out of control of the government.

Moreover, he said, if the Ryan railroad should be built and the government desired its acquisition, the opportunity for the government to build a competitive road should be effective in preventing an exorbitant price.

Bright Future for Matanuska.

"My visit to Alaska," said the secretary, "has led me to take a far greater interest in the future of the Matanuska coal field, which is larger in extent, having an area of seventy-four square miles, better in coal, better in physical condition and freer from competition of private claims than is true at Bering river, the Controller bay field.

"The Matanuska coal should be brought to Seward for the use of our naval coaling station and a mine for that purpose can be well operated by the government on the Matanuska, where it can be made to serve as an example for private mines, to furnish information and to serve as a check upon the profits of the lessee.

Mine Coal for Navy.

"The secretary of the navy authorizes me to state that he believes there should be reserved sufficient high grade Alaska coal for the use of the navy to be mined hereafter for this express purpose under the bureau of mines."

ITALIANS ROUTED IN FIERCE MOSLEM COFLICT

The Italians followed and found themselves suddenly attacked on all sides.

Three companies of Bersagliers (light infantry) were annihilated. Several officers were made prisoners, mutilated and hanged.

The return of the rest of the Italian force carrying many wounded, said to be 700, caused excitement among the Arabs of Tripoli. They attempted to revolt, firing many shots and wounding many Italians. The attempt was soon quelled and hundreds of Musselmans were shot.

London, Oct. 28—Four hundred Italians were killed or wounded in the fighting around Tripoli on Monday and Tuesday, says a news agency dispatch received here from Tripoli, which escaped Italian censorship. The situation at Tripoli, the dispatch adds, is serious. European residents fear a massacre, as a holy war has been proclaimed by the natives.

FEDERAL COURT INQUIRING INTO DYNAMITING CASES

Indianapolis, Oct. 28—That the federal department of justice has entered upon an investigation of the so-called McNamara dynamite cases became known today.

A subpoena has been served on Frank P. Baker, prosecutor for this county, to appear before the federal grand jury for this district on November 7.

Ordered to Bring Evidence.

He is ordered to bring with him all evidence in the form of books, documents, dynamite and exploding apparatus seized in a raid on the offices here of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers at the time of the arrest of John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the association.

Other subjoenas, it is known, have been issued for the appearance of persons having knowledge of the circumstances of the raid and the finding of dynamite in the basement of the building in which are the offices of the iron workers and at the home of an iron worker on the outskirts of the city.

Besides Prosecutor Baker those upon whom subpoenas for the investigation were served during the week are Superintendent of Police Martin Hyland, Captain of Detectives William Holtz and C. E. Freeman and J. C. Talbot, expert accountants, who have been examining the account books of the association of iron workers under the direction of the prosecutor.

Petition Was Denied.

This action on the part of the government follows the ruling of Judge Joseph Markey in the criminal court, denying a petition of District Attorney Fredericks, of Los Angeles, for the removal to Los Angeles of evidence collected here for use in the trial of James B. McNamara, now proceeding.

Judge Markey decided that no method was apparent by which such evidence should be brought back to this county is needed in a trial of John J. McNamara on an indictment returned against him here for alleged conspiracy to dynamite.

Attorneys and others interested in the McNamara cases speculated as to whether, when the federal grand jury took charge of the evidence, a petition for its possession by the Los Angeles authorities would lie in the federal court.

It was said that the federal grand jury inquiry would be to ascertain if a statute against conspiracy to transport from one state to another dynamite for unlawful purposes had been violated.

Might Change Whole Aspect.

Los Angeles, Oct. 28—Reports from Indianapolis that a federal grand jury would investigate the so-called McNamara dynamiting cases supplied a theme for consideration by counsel for the defense of John J. and James B. McNamara and attracted attention in the offices of District Attorney John D. Fredericks as well.

Clarence S. Darrow, chief of counsel for the defense, telegraphed to Indianapolis for more information.

It was conceded that the whole general aspect of the case might be altered by prospective action of the federal authorities, and that James B. McNamara and John J. McNamara, under nineteen indictments for murder in connection with the destruction of the Los Angeles Times Building, might enter on an entirely changed legal status.

Wheat Grown in Sand.

Redondo Beach, Cal., Oct. 26—Sixty-four four-inch heads of wheat were produced from one root as the result of experiments conducted by J. G. Buxton, of this city. Buxton desired to prove that good wheat could be grown in beach sand. The sand he used was treated in the usual way and the wheat planted in it was grown without water, fertilizer or cultivation.

GOVERNMENT FILES STEEL SUITS

FEDERAL COURT AT TRENTON. N. J., ASKED TO DISSOLVE COMBINE.

Net Earnings in Ten Years Alleged to Have Been $980,045,838—Morgan, Carnegie, Rockefeller, Gary, Schwab and Other Prominent Men Named as Defendants.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 28—The government's long planned suit to break up the so-called "steel trust" has begun here in the United States circuit court. It is the most sweeping anti-trust action ever brought by the department of justice.

The government asks not only the dissolution of the United States Steel Corporation, but for the dissolution of all constituent or subsidiary companies which are alleged to have combined in violation of the Sherman law to maintain or attempt to maintain a monopoly of the steel business.

Are Named Individually.

Thirty-six subsidiary corporations are named as defendants.

J. Pierpont Morgan, John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, Charles M. Schwab, George W. Perkins, E. H. Gary, John D. Rockefeller, jr., Henry C. Frick, Charles Steele, James Gayley, William H. Moore, J. H. Moore, Edmund C. Converse, Percival Roberts, jr., Daniel J. Reid, Norman B. Ream, P. A. B. Widener and William B. Palmer are named individually as defendants.

The steel corporation's lease of the Great Northern railway's ore properties, which the directors of the steel company formally decided this week to cancel, is alleged to be illegal.

The action of the directors was but a few hours before the filing of the bill. The government says that it was advised of the steel corporation's intention in this respect, but states that under the terms of the lease no cancellation would be effective until January 1, 1915, and there is no limit upon the amount of ore that can be taken out in the meantime.

Sensational allegations fairly topple over each other in the government's petition, which is an equity proceeding praying for injunctions to estop continuance of the alleged monopoly and such other relief as the court may grant.

Scathingly Criticised.

TRANS-CONTINENTAL ROADS FAIL TO GET INJUNCTION

Washington, Oct. 28—At the conclusion of the arguments in the Pacific coast cases the commerce court declined to grant a temporary injunction in the Salt Lake case at the request of the transcontinental carriers.

The interstate commerce commission issued an order requiring the transcontinental railways to adjust their rates to Utah and Nevada points in a way to avoid discrimination in favor of Pacific coast terminals, to become effective November 15.

Those decisions by the commission involving the construction of the long-and-short haul provision of the interstate commerce act were reserved for decision, but the Salt Lake case, in which the railways had asked for an injunction restraining the commission from putting into effect its order, was decided by the court adversely to the railways.

STATE CLAIMS BEST OF ROSEBUD RESERVE

Gregory, S. D., Oct. 28.—Something of a sensation in connection with the Rosebud land lottery developed here yesterday when it was disclosed that forty-one sections of the Rosebud tract have been claimed by the state for Indian school lands. The sections, including the best in the tract, will be selected by the state before the settlers have a chance to file. As only about thirty sections are classified by the appraisers as agricultural land it appears that none of the real choice claims will pass into the hands of settlers at this time.

Canada to Help G. N.

Winnipeg, Oct. 28—Premier Roblin has announced that a direct line from Winnipeg to Hudson Bay, running along the east shore of Lake Winnipeg, soon would be constructed. The Canadian Northern will be the builders and owners, and the government of Manitoba will give the necessary support to insure construction.

No showing being made by the "drys," Judge Mitchell, of the Thurston county superior court, has made permanent the order restraining the holding of the proposed local option election at Tenino, in Thurston county.

ALFALFA WILL GROW ON WEST SIDE LAND.

Pullman, Oct. 30.—Experiments conducted by the state experiment station during the past two seasons indicate that alfalfa can be successfully grown in many parts of Western Washington. Many former trials by farmers have been unsuccessful. A few have succeeded and the conditions under which a good permanent stand has been obtained are the same as those which have been worked out in the station's experiments. They are as follows:

The land must be well drained. Alfalfa will not grow on sour, waterlogged soil, or on land which is overflowed for any considerable period of time.

The soil must be free from hardpan to a depth of at least five feet. Alfalfa is a deep-rooting plant.

The seed must be planted early in the spring on well prepared soil (preferably fall plowed), and must be seeded alone. Seeding with a nurse crop invariably results in too dry soil during the latter summer months.

The soil must be inoculated with the alfalfa bacteria, preferably by scattering over the land, at seeding time, 300 to 400 pounds of soil from a field in which alfalfa has been growing successfully for at least three years. The land should be harrowed immediately after scattering the inoculating material, in order to bury the bacteria where the sun will not destroy them.

The alfalfa must be pastured for the first season. It may be clipped once or twice in order to prevent weeds from going to seed, but should be cut as high as possible.

Bulletin No. 80 of the state experiment station gives full details as to methods of seeding alfalfa. Copies of this bulletin may be obtained free by writing to the experiment station, Pullman, Wash.

Fashions Change Little.

From the fresco paintings of women in the Cretan palaces of the period about 2,000 B. C. it is learned that the women of that time pinched in their waists, had flounced or accordion plaited skirts, wore an elaborate coiffure on their heads, shoes with high heels and hats which might have come from a Parisian hat shop, while one woman might be described as wearing a jupe culotte.

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Professional Spongers of New York

NEW YORK.—There are in New York city, of course, many men who, down and out and having no idea what the next 24 hours may bring to them in the way of misfortune, simply refuse to work. But of this class the most conspicuous and interesting, for the simple reason that almost without exception the bluest blood flows in their veins and the most charming graces of manner characterize their every waking moment, are the remittance men from England.

Good looking, of the class which will go hungry rather than wear soiled linen or unpressed clothing, these men have all been sent over here by titled relatives who, in some way or other, they have disgraced. So long as the ocean rolls between them these same relatives are glad to pay a little something toward their board and keep and some of the remittance men live on as low as $5 a week, for as has been said, they politely but firmly refuse to lift their hands in labor of any sort, kind or condition.

There are from 200 to 300 remittance men in New York city today and while they are not what may be termed scamps, when it comes to money matters many of them are utterly unscrupulous. None of them has ever worked a day in his life, but every one is under the delusion that he could be a great business man on a large scale.

They dream up the most extraordinary propositions you ever heard. One or two have actually made money in this way. They have fallen in with some get-rich-quick geniuses, have made their personality useful, and have been shrewd enough to carry off a fair share of the profits.

The remittance man of New York generally hires a room and tries to eat off his acquaintances and friends. Some of the big hotels have dollar-a-day rooms on their top floors and these are useful to the remittance man. They give him an address that helps him along.

One of these men has picked up some money by giving Americans going abroad letters of introduction to titled people. The letters are all genuine and he really knew all the people he writes to, so there is no fraud. In each case he adroitly secures a loan from the man he has obliged.

A number of remittance men receive their stipend from home quarterly, but this custom is being done away with, for these exiles are, as a class, improvident, and if several hundred dollars is placed in their hands at once it is almost certain to go like water. Nearly invariably the remittance man is a persistent devotee of the tables of chance.

Horse Thief Made Cave a Rendezvous

PHILADELPHIA.—Frank Brown, the self-confessed horse thief, according to Captain of Detectives Souder, has stolen at least 100 horses. It was declared by the detectives that the young woman who was arrested with Brown and whom he calls his wife knows of many of the thefts. Captain Souder said that Brown would steal the horses and then sell them, sometimes getting in exchange another horse, which he would also dispose of. In this way scores of horses have got so mixed up that it will take Captain Couder some time to recover all the horses and have them returned to their rightful owners.

Captain Souder admitted that Brown had made a long confession and that a number of the horses had been recovered, but that he was not yet prepared to give out a list of the owners of the animals. Souder asked all those in Pennsylvania and New Jersey who had lost horses to communicate with him or call at the detective bureau at once, as they may have a chance to recover their property.

It was learned for the first time that Brown and the woman who poses as his wife lived for a considerable time in a cave in the northeast section of the city and that their whereabouts was only discovered by the illness of the woman. Detectives worked on the case for some time before they made this discovery. They said that several times they were almost on his heels, but that he would disappear as fast as a rabbit to its burrow. The detectives had no idea at this time that the fellow had a cave and that it was practically surrounded with shrubbery. So thick, in fact, was the shrubbery that when he passed into his cave it closed in around him in a way that rendered him for the time being safe from arrest.

Brown had plenty of money and refuses to eat or allow the young woman arrested with him to partake of the meals supplied at the expense of the city. He orders their meals, which are of the best, and are always accompanied with many delicacies.

Youth Ends 30,000-Mile World Jaunt

MARION, IND.—The "around-the-world" jaunt of Robert Matter, son of Philip Matter, Marion's wealthiest resident, taken because he was dissatisfied with his monthly allowance, is at an end. The boy has returned to his parents' home after circling the globe and traveling 30,000 miles. During the greater portion of the time he traveled in the true style of the American "hobo," working his way from place to place and stopping only long enough to secure funds to carry him to the next point.

Young Matter started his globe-trotting under the name of Robert Morton. Not until he met his brother in the east a week before he arrived home did he reveal his true identity. He always posed as a poor American boy compelled to work for a livelihood, and never once did he mention the wealth or prominence of his family, his college days or of his life before he started on the eventful trip.

The young man first signed as a feeder on a London bound cattle boat from New York. He was sick almost the entire trip, but he did not give up the idea of circling the globe. He spent some time in London, then moved to Belgium and later to Australia. He visited points in Egypt, Gibraltar and other places in the Old World. He worked in the Fiji and Hawaiian islands and finally landed at Vancouver, B. C. There he found a serious strike in progress. It was then Matter became an American tramp in the truest sense of the word. Wearing shabby clothes and badly in need of a shave, the young man started to "hobo" his way out of the country.

He finally reached Swift Current, Canada, where his brother, John Matter, is located, and a happy reunion followed. John Matter was the first person Robert Matter had seen since leaving New York that he knew. Matter secured a position on a farm and worked until he saved enough money to ride to Marion "on the cushions."

Baggage Porter's Tips Make Fortune

KANSAS CITY, MO.—One of the men who have done well in this city during the last ten years is Gus Miller, head porter of the Baltimore hotel, who has gathered a fortune of $60,000 during that time, most of it in tips of a quarter from the traveling men who want their baggage handled quickly.

Out in the Roanoke district he has a $12,000 home. He also owns a lodging house from which he received $150 a month and other realty that produces a comfortable revenue.

Meanwhile his daily costume during the business hours is the usual blue flannel blouse jumpers and his business is transacted from the same little desk in the baggage room of the hotel surrounded by big trunks, little trunks, suit cases and grips.

There are a dozen men working under Miller and while all the tips are supposed to belong to the boss there are a few of them that get away in transit from the free hand of the traveling public to the desk of the head porter. The tips average $500 a month and Miller has accumulated $50 in a single busy day.

Every year Miller takes a vacation and spends three or four weeks traveling to the big cities and resort hotels. On these trips he distributes quarters like a farmer sowing oats.

"Sometimes the service is very bad that I get while I am traveling," says Miller, "but I dig up a quarter anyway, figuring that I am only putting it back where I get it."

The Doings of Our Neighbors

ELWHA

All the young ladies of this neighborhood came in Sunday evening with rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes, a most efficient beauty tonic resulting from their exhilarating horse back ride. We did not see the young gentlemen but suppose the exercise was as beneficial to them.

A party from Blue Mountain came here Saturday to have our blacksmith do his horse shoeing. Needless to say a larger sized hat is now required by the blacksmith.

Mrs. Campbell entertained the E. S. Club Saturday with whist and dancing. Miss Gilbert, Mr. Elliot, and Mr. Herrick being prize winners.

Lewis Isbell, who has been with the Humes Bros. during the tourist season, is home again and will rent a farm "on his own hook." Here's wishing him success.

Mrs. Lawrence and Alice were Elwha visitors last week and met with some novel entertainment. Hope they will try it again

Mr. and Mrs. Bates of Seattle have moved onto the Waller ranch and will add to Elwah neighborhood.

FAIR-VIEW

Mrs. Teachman, a former resident of Port Angeles, put now of Bow, Wash., was a guest of the Winters family last week.

The fifteen ladies of Fairview gave Miss Pearl Harbaugh, the bride elect, a regular kitchen shower at two o'clock last Friday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in music and singing (and eating fruit and nuts.) It was a complete surprise on Miss Harbaugh and she received many useful gifts.

Quite a number went up to the dance at DeFuca last Saturday evening.

Mr. Luke lost one of his best milch cows the first of the week.

It is hoped that the evening will be fine and that every one can come and enjoy the dance to be given by Mr. Kilmer and Arthur Glass. Mr. Kilmer says there will be five good prizes given. One for poorest dressed lady and for poorest dressed gent; for best lady waltzer and one for best gent waltzer, and one for the funniest dressed couple. The gentlemen wish to state that the bills read wrong about the free supper; will the ladies bring the usual lunch?

Received too late for last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Adams left Saturday for Seattle, where they spent a few days with his daughter; from there they go to Vancouver and visit some friends before taking the steamer for Honolulu. They expect to be absent three months.

Fredie Spaulding who was in the hospital in Seattle came home Sunday, his mother going after him. The doctor says he must be kept quiet for three or four weeks.

John Derringher says he has twenty-seven girls and boys to carry to school every day.

Wm. Long was a visitor here from Wenatchee. He attended the wedding of his son, Fred Long, and Miss Pearl McDonald, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Ware, Port Townsend. Mr. Long says his son Guy will be married soon.

P. S. Goven has moved his house out near the street, and others are talking of following his example.

Mrs. Joseph Sands, who has been visiting her brother-in-law George Sands, says she would like to have a home on Sequim.

Hugh Priest moved his family to the Kase shingle mill, where he expects to work all winter.

There are six new families looking for homes on Sequim.

FROM JULIUS CÆSAR TO GEORGIUS V

THE MODERN ENGINEER AS GRAVEDIGGER

A RELIC, marvelously old, and strangely moving to the imagination of men who remember history, was taken through London a few days ago, and now lies in a back yard of the palace of Kensington. It was the wreck of an old boat, with timbers blackened and rotted in the deep mud where so many secrets of the past lie buried beneath this modern London of ours. Other relics of the past have been found there, including a skull and some bones, and in the illustration the modern civil engineer is thus shown as grave digger.

Digging down for the foundations of the new county hall at Westminster, workmen had struck their spades against the ribs of that old boat skeleton, and then had revealed its shape and size. It was a Roman galley, built of oak that grew in Gaul when Pan was worshiped in the woods, two thousand years ago. The timbers were hoisted on to a trolley, and working men who had escaped, or recovered, from the strike fever drove their load through the streets of London, and then through Kensington Gardens. "What have you got there, mates?" was shouted by a soldier encamped in the gardens after strike duty, and the answer came back, "A Roman barge, Bill. Friends, Romans, countrymen—what's that we used to learn?"

A Roman boat! A queer kind of craft to be dragged through London—so queer that if we may believe the reporters, a soldier of the Army Service corps had a strange thrill down his spine as though the ghost of some old general were passing. Perhaps he had read something about the Roman legions. He pulled himself up and saluted the old timbers as they were drawn past.

That is a good story. I should like to have seen that British soldier saluting the wreck of the Roman galley. It was a salute across the ages, from imperial London to imperial Rome; from a soldier of King George to Caesar's legions. It would not have been ridiculous if the last voyage of that boat had been made into a pageant, with soldiers guarding the line of route, presenting arms, and playing solemn march music, as the relic went by, for here in those blackened timbers is the cradle of English history, and each plank of them is a bridge across which we may pass from London of this twentieth century to Londinium which was built upon the Thames bank by the men who came in this old craft, not only with swords to kill, but with the wisdom and the virtues of an imperial race, and with the law which they gave to their conquered peoples.

Who shall sing the song of that boat? Who shall tell her tale? Our imagination only may go voyaging in her upon the sea of adventure since that day when strong brown hands ran her down upon the beach below a cliff of Gaul, and Roman soldiers, leaping in, rowed her across the dancing waves or through the thick gray mist to this island, "almost all the world away," as Virgil wrote. Who shall say that these very timbers did not form part of that fleet of eighty galleys in which Julius Caesar came to Britain forty-five years before the birth of Christ? Perhaps Caesar himself sat in the stern of his boat, staring in his grim, silent way, with hawk's eyes, at the unknown land whose white cliffs rose up before him as the long oars swept the water. Upon the shore that day the British chieftains stood with their warriors and priests, ready to defend their land against these strange invaders, who raised their flashing swords. The Roman soldiers rested on their oars, afraid to land in the face of such a strong foe. In one of the boats—was this the boat?—a standard bearer raised the Eagle of his legion, and then jumped into the water.

"Follow me, my comrades," he cried, "if you would not see your Eagle taken by the enemy. If I die I shall have done my duty to Rome, and to my general." So the old story goes, familiar to every schoolboy, and remembered, perhaps, by that soldier who stood at the salute in Kensington Gardens.

But whatever stories we may weave about the boat that has been dug up from the London mud after nineteen hundred years or so, at least it has come to us as a reminder of the civilization which was enthroned upon the Thames at London, which carved great roads through the forest lands, which built temples and palaces, baths and terraced gardens, fortified camps and strong walls, north and south, east and west, in this island of ours, before "England" had a name in history. They did their work well, those Romans, and though fifteen hundred years have passed since the last of them went away into the ghost world, leaving Britain a prey to savage hordes, leaving their temples and their terraces to be the hiding places of wolves until the stones fell among the tangled weeds, England has still many memorials of their rule. Our motor cars speed upon the highways down which the Roman legions marched. Straight from London to Chester goes Watling street, and the Fosse way from Bath to Lincoln. Ermine street is still a high road from London to York, and the "Via Maritima" (the seaside road) still winds its way along the sea coast of Wales to Pembrokeshire.

Hardly a year passes but a plow turns up a pot full of coins which bear the image and the superscription of Claudius or Constantine, or some great emperor whose edicts carried as far as this misty isle. The peasant's spade unearths a tesselated pavement which formed the floor of a Roman gentleman's villa, or a stone rudely carved by a Roman soldier who inscribed his homage to Mars or Diana and the old gods in whose worship he found courage and beauty. Britain was no mere outpost of empire held precariously by a little garrison among hostile tribes. It was a Roman province, where for nearly four hundred years the Roman law ruled, and a civilization noble and strong and beautiful in its well-ordered system was raised among a conquered people, who yielded, after the first struggle, gladly to their conquerors. It is not difficult to reconstruct that Roman civilization in Britain, to conjure up the picture of that civil life in such cities as Bath, and York, St. Albans and Lincoln, where stones of Roman buildings are found in the walls of Norman churches and English battlements. The officers of Vespasian and Severus, Titus and Constantine, were gentlemen of Roman dignity and valor, and their life in Britain reflected the splendor, the, luxury and the beauty that they had known in the imperial city.

Most of us have forgotten those things. Yet they have a moral for a race which has founded an empire greater than that of Rome, and, like the Romans, has given its law to many far colonies. The Roman empire has perished, for after strength came weakness, and the seeds of vice and luxury were reaped in a harvest of destruction. How is it with us in imperial London? There are some who hear the distant rumbling of new world forces beating against the fabric of our imperial system. The world changes, and no man may foretell the things that are to come. But always we may look back and learn the moral of the past, and listen to the voices that speak from old graves.

PHILIP GIBBS.

POWER FROM RAINFALL

WATER OF MONSOON SEASONS WILL BE UTILIZED.

Indian Company Plans to Construct Three Immense Reservoirs and to Develop 40,000 Horsepower of Electric Energy.

Owing to the irregularity of the amount of water in the rivers of India uninterrupted power from them for industrial purposes cannot be depended upon. During the monsoon season, from the middle of June to the middle of September, for instance, the average rainfall at Lanouli, on the west coast, is 175 inches, although sometimes greatly exceeding that amount. During the other nine months there is scarcely any rain.

Soon after the opening of the present century the plan of storing water and using it for industrial purposes was conceived, and after a thorough investigation by engineers, native capital to the amount of $6,486,666 was raised, and on November 7, 1910, the Tata Hydroelectic Power and Supply company was incorporated.

It is planned to erect three lakes or reservoirs. The Lanouli reservoir, which will store water to be used during the long breaks of rainfall in the monsoon season, will approximate 100 acres, formed by a dam 3,800 feet long and 26 feet high, with a capacity of 380,000 000 cubic feet.

The Walwhan lake, situated about one and one-half miles from Lanouli, will be formed between two spurs of hills by a dam 4,500 feet long and 68 feet high. The area of the lake will two and one-half square miles, with a capacity of 2,600,000 feet of water. The dam will be of solid masonry, fitted with sluices.

Later on a third reservoir will be constructed beyond Walwhan lake, with which it will be connected by a tunnel nearly a mile long running through the dividing ridges of steep hills, which will form a watershed 1,200 feet above the level of the valley. This reservoir will have an area of 3,174 acres, or nearly five square miles, with a capacity of 7,000,000 cubic feet of water, which, after traversing a distance of four miles, will be led through masonry ducts from the lakes to a fore bay, 2,040 feet above the sea level. There it will enter pipes six feet in diameter and run down steep slopes and precipices to Khopoli, where the generating station will be located 200 feet above sea level. The head will be 1,730 feet, and the static pressure 680 pounds per square inch. This generating station is 90 miles from Bombay, where the electric energy, estimated at 40,000 horse power, will be used for manufacturing purposes.

Phrases and Their Use.

How is it that the phrase "well alight" is used in all descriptions of disastrous fires; in the news items, in the underlines of illustrations, in the very report of the firemen to headquarters? Whence this suggestion of satisfaction? Does it come from some sympathy with the energy of fire, such as St. Francis of Assisi confessed when he would not deprive the "jocund fire" of its prey—his shirt? "Chasfte water," "jocund fire"—what a poet was that saint, by the way. But "well alight" seems rather to have more obscure reference to some unsaintly pleasure in tyranny, expressed also by the common phrase "a good whipping," "a good ducking." The latter savage journalese is applied to ill-fed and ill-clad little boys when they go through the ice. Well-fed skaters "sustain immersion."—London Chronicle.

No Hope For Him.

"Do you object to me because I am prematurely bald?" he asked after she had refused for the third time to promise to be his wife.

"No, it isn't that," she replied. "You could of course hide your baldness by wearing a wig."

"Then what is it? There is some reason why you will not be mine. Tell me what it is. If it is anything I can possibly change or overcome I will do it."

"I'm sorry, but it is something you cannot possibly overcome without losing my love."

"You make the thing more mysterious. Please tell me what it is? I must know."

"Well, if I must I'll tell you. Your ears stick out so that they get on my nerves; but if you were to have them amputated I shouldn't care for you at all."

Conan Doyle on Divorce.

If I were given supreme power, a power as great as both houses of parliament, for a single day, writes Conan Doyle in the Strand, I would exercise it in the direction of the reform of the divorce laws. The divorce laws in England are so arranged at present that divorce is practically impossible for a poor man, that people are tied without hope of release to lunatics, drunkards and criminals, and great numbers (more than 200,000 individuals) are separated by law, and yet are not free to marry again—a fact which cannot be conducive to public morality.

So They Say Who Have Tried It.

A Michigan paper, referring to the bereavement of one of its subscribers, said: "She was left a widow through the death of her husband."

MUCH DAMAGE WROUGHT BY TROUBLESOME CODLING-MOTH

Government Estimates That Fruit Growers of United States Lose About $12,000,000 Every Year From Ravages of This Single Insect—How It Spends Winter as a Tiny Worm.

Doubtless you have observed that the apples on some of your trees were dropping off, and at the flowering end there were little patches of brown dust.

The dropping of the apples was caused by the codling-moth, and the patches of brown dust were the voidings of the worm as it bored its way into the fruit.

The codling-moth spends the winter as a tiny worm, securely wrapped up in an overcoat of silk, in barrels, boxes and under the bark of trees, and in the warm days of spring they come out transformed as moths. These moths mate quickly and the females at once begin to lay their eggs on the smooth surface of the apple trees.

They never make a mistake as to the location of their eggs, but always lay them upon those leaves nearest to the fruit. The eggs are about as big as a pinhead; look like little specks of milk. Sometimes they are so tiny that they can hardly be discovered. After three or four days they turn reddish, and at the end of a week the tiny black head of a worm appears.

The eggs hatch in about seven days—generally when the apples are about one-half inch in diameter.

As soon as the worm comes from the egg it launches lightly off the leaves and then enters the apple. The worms first hatched generally enter the fruit at the calyx or flowering end.

The worms bore their way into the apples until they reach the seed, and sometimes they destroy almost the entire core.

In about two weeks, after having effectually damaged the apple, they crawl out, wrap themselves in new overcoats, where they are transformed as papae. Two weeks later the little moths emerge and lay their eggs, which in turn hatch out another set of worms and thus the second generation is born.

The government estimates that the fruit growers of this country lose about twelve million dollars every year from the ravages of this single insect. That would seem sufficient reason for more strenuous efforts towards its destruction.

The codling moth can be destroyed by spraying with Bordeaux mixture—that is, by universal spraying—not in patches.

A man may spray his own orchard thoroughly year after year, but unless his neighbor also sprays, the insects will find their way into the next orchard and cause more or less damage.

Various experiment splace the cost of spraying an orchard three times per season at about $11 per acre. This includes the use of a team, three men, the cost of spraying materials, and gasoline and oil to operate the power outfit. This expense is insignificant when compared to the saving of fruit effected.

In some cases the net cash profit secured by spraying has been $65 per acre. In a 20-acre orchard spraying would add on an average $1,000 clear gain in a single season.

The first spraying with Bordeaux mixture should take place just between the time the calyx cup opens and the dropping of the petals and its closing.

This is only about a week, and therefore the trees must be closely watched and the spraying done at exactly the right time. Pears, which also suffer from this moth, keep their calyxes open much longer, and some varieties do not close at all.

Two weeks later the trees must be sprayed again; this time with arsenate of lead. This mixture will also discourage the curculio which does a tremendous amount of damage. It should be applied under high pressure to form a fine mist.

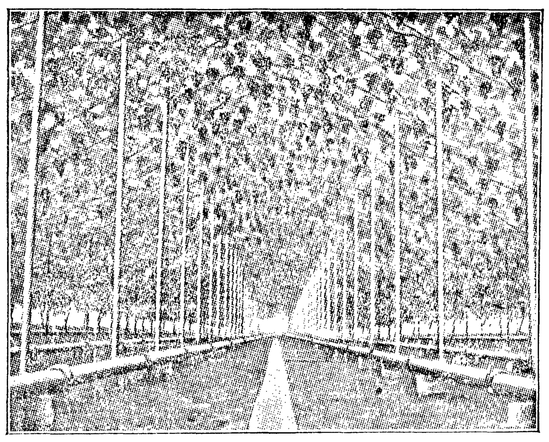
About three or four weeks after the petals drop, a third spraying with arsenate of lead should be given the trees. A guide for the third spraying may be found in the appearance of the eggs of the codling-moth upon the leaves.

This application should be in the form of a fine spray to thoroughly coat the surface of the apple because many of the first generation of worms do not enter the apple at the calyx but at the side, and these will be caught

Ducks and Chicks.

A duckling does not know how to get out of danger. Instead, it will become panic-stricken and remain easy prey for the enemy. On the contrary, a chicken is always on the alert, scampering off to some hiding place the moment it hears some strange noise.

RAISING GRAPES IN ENGLAND



The hothouses in which the forced-grape industry of England is carried on, are chiefly built on the span-roof system, and vary in length from 100 to 800 feet, and in width from 20 to 40 feet. From four to six or eight rows of four-inch piping are run through the center and along the sides of the houses, and the heating is done by horizontal tubular boilers.

The vines are usually planted three feet apart at the sides of the house, one or two leaders being trained up beneath the glass to the ridge pole. For the first three or four years no returns are expected from the vines, which are first established and grown to a good size before they are allowed to bear. An excellent idea of the extent of a crop in such a forcing-house, after the vines have fully grown, may be gained from the illustration.

STRAIGHT ROWS OF MUCH VALUE

Many Hills of Corn, Potatoes and Other Cultivated Crops Are Ruined by Being Out of Line.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

A ride through almost any farming section during early summer will convince any man that there is much truth in the old saying "that more corn is raised in crooked rows than in straight rows."

It was very unfortunate for the farmers who plant their crops in crooked rows that the modern two row cultivators, corn harvesters and potato diggers cannot conform to all of the serpentine curves made by some drivers.

The farmer who can make nothing but crooked rows is certainly a slouchy farmer.

When hitching to a corn planter, a drill or a land marker it is essential that we have a neck yoke that is rigid and fastened so that when one horse moves the other will hold the pole in place and prevent a crook in the row.

If properly hitched both horses will have to go out of line to make a crook in the rows. While it is very difficult to estimate the value of straight rows in dollars and cents, yet it is very apparent that many hills of corn, potatoes and other cultivated crops are ruined by the cultivators when they are out of line.

Then again there is something about long straight rows that indicates the character of the farmer. When we see straight rows we naturally look for a good farmer who takes pride in the appearance of his fields.

EIGHT GIRLS DIE IN POWDER FIRE

Chehalis Mill Scene of Disaster and Death.

Penned Behind Counter in Packing Room Employes Have no Chance to Escape Burst of Flame.

Chehalis, Wash.—Perishing as they stood at their workbench which penned them in behind a long counter with not a chance for escape, seven young women were burned to death Wednesday, and an eighth, still breathing when she was removed by rescurers, died a few hours later in agony, as the result of a sudden flash of uncovered powder in the mixing rooms of the Imperial Powder company.

As the death shrieks of the girls rang through the building, 12 men who had been working in other parts of the plant escaped with hardly a scorch. Several of them were blown through the exits to safety.

The dead: Miss Vera Milford, Miss Sadie Westfall, only daughter of Samuel Westfall; Miss Eva Gilmore, Miss Bertha Hagle, whose mother, Mrs. Mary White, is a widow; Miss Ethel Tharp, Miss Tillie Rasback, Mrs. Henry Ethel, Miss Bertha Crown, who was so terribly burned that she died in the hospital.

Only one of the bodies, that of Miss Ethel Tharp, has been identified. Her father, B. F. Tharp, identified it by means of a ring discolored and half melted by the terrible heat, which she wore on her finger.

Of the others, none will probably ever be identified for certain.

The disaster befell with appalling suddenness. An early report, which has since been denied, was to the effect that a careless workman in the mixing-room let a pot of paraffine boil over, and that part of ran into some powder material near by, igniting it. There is no evidence to support this theory, and the real origin of the fire may never be known.

Whatever the cause, there was a sudden flash, and in an instant the whole interior of the factory was in a blaze.

Besides causing the terrible loss of life, the fire destroyed four of the buildings, owned by the company, and equipment, powder that was ready for shipment, and other property valued at fully $20,000. Two of the buildings were saved.

WILL HAVE BIGGER FLEET.

Naval Review Off Los Angeles Calls Attention to Pacific.

Los Angeles Harbor, Cal. — In perfect fight trim, the Pacific fleet underwent, off this port, the first naval review in Southern California waters and passed it to the satisfaction of Rear-Admiral Thomas, who was in command, and to the pleasure of National lawmakers, who intimated that mobilization might result in increasing the number of American men-of-war on the Pacific Ocean.

After arriving here the vessels immediately assumed the formation charted out for them—a solid rectangle with four columns and six rows, making 24 vessels, while the other two in the fleet served as reveiwing ship and tender, respectively.

United States Senator Smith, of Michigan, a member of the senate committee on naval affairs, described the naval review as a "happy thought."

"Such an event," said Senator Smith, "is of special interest to the Pacific Coast, which is favored with visits from naval ships altogether too seldom. It should prove a valuable lesson to the Navy department. I hope the time is not remote when the government will conclude it is to its advantage to maintain a formidable fleet on this coast."

Clothing "Graft" to Stop.

San Francisco—The effort of the government to end the illegal traffic in army supplies by second-hand dealers at the gates of the Presidio military reservation has resulted in the arrest of August Heymann, on a secret grand jury indictment, charging the purchase of army clothing from the soldiers. The army officers say the practice of buying supplies and equipment from soldiers who are either drunk or hard pressed for money results in the annual loss of a fortune to the government.

Wolves Prowl in City.

Anaconda, Mont.—Driven from the hills by deep snows and desperate with hunger, bands of timber wolves are prowling on the outskirts of the city. A band of five wolves pursued a deer into the heart of the city Thursday morning, but were put to flight by a night watchman. The deer escaped. The wolves apparently have taken shelter in the abandoned stables of the racetrack on the outskirts of the town.

24 Are Drowned at Sea.

Las Palmas, Canary Islands—Twenty-four persons were drowned when the French steamer Diolibah sank at sea. The Diolibah was towing the French steamer Liberia, for Marseilles, when the Liberia fouled her. The Liberia was picked up by the German steamer Elmshorn and towed in here in a damaged condition.

TOWN FALLS INTO MINE.

Light Plant Goes First, Darkness Adding to Terror.

Quartz, Cal.—This place is threatened with destruction and the inhabitants are deeply concerned by the cave-in of the famous App mine, which began last Thursday, reaching a climax at 9:30 o'clock at night, when a hole 200 by 300 feet and 150 feet deep appeared. It bids fair to swallow several buildings.

The floor fell out of the sixth level of the mine, dropping down to the eight, but the most serious disaster did not occur until all the north workings, which had been extensively stopped without filling, went down from the surface to the tenth or eleventh level. So far as surface indications are concerned, it is the most extensive cave-in in the history of California.

That 42 men who returned to the mine to work after the cave-in had started were not buried beneath 100,000 tons of debris is regarded by mining men as pure luck.

Quartz was aroused by rumbling resembling the premonitory signs of an earthquake, and men and women ran into the streets, only to find themselves in darkness, without the power to discover the nature of the catastrophe. The transmission line of the Sierra & San Francisco Power company, which supplies Tuolumne and Calaveras counties with light and power, had been swallowed up, and no light was to be had. What little light the stars might have shed was obscured by clouds of dust. Yawning crevices appeared everywhere, and the people were afraid to move.

FLEET HEADS FOR CHINA.

American Battleships to Scene of Revolution in Far East.

Los Angeles—Their stay in Los Angeles harbor cut to three scant days, the floating fortresses of the Pacific fleet will be rushed from this port to Honolulu or Guam, where Admiral Chauncey Thomas will await orders for a dash to Chinese waters to protect American interests or to join the foreign fleets in a movement of intervention. The plan originally announced by the secretary of the navy was that the entire Pacific fleet would lie outside the breakwater at San Pedro for a period of two weeks.

It is not considered probable that the full strength of the squadron assembled on the California coast will be sent across the Pacific, as the torpedo boats and destroyers would not be required in the clash or service the fleet will be called upon to face in Chinese waters. The light draught gunboats and unprotected cruisers, however, probably will be included among those to sail to the new rendezvous, as these are most suitable for duty in the rivers and the small harbors of China, where missions are to be protected and reconnoitering expeditions landed.

PRICE FIXING CHARGED.

Chicago Butter and Egg Boards Under Federal Inquiry.

Chicago—Government agents have nearly completed the gathering of data to be submitted to the United States grand jury in an investigation of the Elgin board of trade and the Chicago Butter and Egg board, to ascertain whether those organizations have controlled the prices of butter and eggs in violation of the Sherman act. It is said that documents have been submitted to the investigators by a Chicago commission firm, tending to prove the contention that the law is violated. Price sheets, copies of secret by-laws and other papers are said to have been obtained.

A senate committee investigated these organizations two years ago, but nothing resulted. Subsequent to that the government brought suit to end the Chicago Butter and Egg board from maintaining its butter and egg quotation committees, in violation of the Sherman act.

Call Convention Soon.

Washington, D. C.—The call of the Republican national convention, to be issued by the national committee December 21, will provide for 1,064 delegates, to be increased to 1,072 if Ariozna and New Mexico become states before the convention is held.

The increase from 980 delegates, which comprised the Chicago convention in 1908, is the result of reapportionment by congress, which increases the size of the house of representatives from 391 to 413 members, or 415 with the two new states.

Coffin Is Man's Pulpit.

Centralia, Wash.—James Axtell, of the Centralia Salvation Army, is not squeamish as to how he attracts a crowd, but the method he adopted here was an unusual one. Axtell was placed in a coffin at the hall and carried down Tower avenue to the principal corner of Centralia. There he was "resurrected" for the regular street meeting, after which he was again placed in the coffin and carried back to the hall, where, from his coffin, he preached on "A Voice From Hell, and What God Thinks of Centralia."

Couple Wed on Warship.

San Diego, Cal.—On the after deck of the cruiser West Virginia Miss Pearl B. Lee Sturtevant, of this city, and Axel E. Tangren, shipfitter on the vessel, were married in the presence of 500 officers and men of the warship and two or three score civilian visitors. The ceremony was performed under a canopy of flags, Rev. L. N. Taylor, chaplain of the Pacific fleet, officiating. The West Virginia's band furnished music.

PANICKY MANCHUS FLEEING PEKIN

Fear Race Feeling May Precipitate Massacre.

Women Adopt Disguises—Americans Hold Section of Wall—6,000 Troops Mutiny.

Amoy, China—Placards have been posted on the city gates announcing that the revolutionists intend to take the city this week.

The people of Amoy are further apprised that if they surrender peacefully order will be preserved, if not no guarantee of order would be given.

Pekin—The situation in Pekin is becoming worse. A veritable panic prevails among the Manchus, and the Manchu women are adopting Chinese dress. Some of them are attempting to make their feet appear smaller by peculiarly constructed shoes.

Alost all departing trains are drawn by two engines. So heavily are they loaded that the people are sitting on top of their household belongings. Officials are seeking asylum for their wives and children among the foreigners. Prior to the revolution the newspapers frequently cried out agaisnt the presence of foreign soldiers, but the natives are now fleeing to them for shelter.

The presence of 15,000 Manchu troops insures the safety of the capital for the present. The only danger seems to be from a sudden attack against the throne and officials, which might precipitate the threatened massacre by the Manchus. Race feeling is becoming intensified.

The price of provisions is still rising and a large number of foreigners are entering the legation quarter. The legation guards are preparing for emergencies. The Americans had sandbags piled on the corner wall, which is now under a strong guard. Picturesque movements of the Manchu troops through the city gates occur silently after nightfall to prevent excitement among the population.

Rumors are current that the emperor has been spirited away and that Prince Ching, who is too old for flight, has committed suicide. There are many such stories. They may or may not be true. The American legation has issued orders that the women and children living along the Pekin-Hankow railway and also in the country to the west of the line shall proceed as soon as possible to the coast.

ARABS IN CHAINS RIDDLED.

Tripolitans Break Through Lines of Enemy and Escape to Desert.

Berlin—That the Italians are taking hundreds of natives into the city of Tripoli in chains and shooting them in groups is announced in the Lokal Anzeiger. The dispatch from the scene of the war further says that discipline in the Italian ranks is demoralized.

The Turks have organized a regular caravan service for provisioning their forces from the Southern provinces. The Arabs are streaming more numerously than ever to the aid of the Turks, even from the most remote provinces.

The soldiers have lost their heads and are almost out of control of their officers. The general staff is more than uneasy.

According to the correspondent, in Thursday's battle the losses on both sides were enormous. Hundreds of Tripolitans broke through the Italian sides and disappeared in the desert. For the first time the Turks were repulsed, instead of withdrawing voluntarily. Nevertheless they repeated several times their vain attacks.

Tripoli—The Turkish forces attacked the town of Homs, not far from Tripoli, but were repulsed with heavy losses.

Niagara Rapids Braved.

Niagara Falls—Captain Klaus Larson, of Detroit, made his second Niagara river trip in a motorboat from the cataract to Lewiston. He completed the six-mile trip through the turbulent water in 25 minutes, coming through without a scratch. Larson says he is through with Niagara adventures, but next year will make a trip across the Atlantic in his boat, the "Niagara." As the Niagara entered the whirlpool Larson was caught in a cross-current and almost drawn into the vortex.

Ancient Fortune Divided.

San Jose, Cal.—The family of Dr. Thomas A. Perrin, a physician of this city, say advices just received from Brantford, Ont., has established claim to $4,500,000 in the Bank of England, which has been lying idle there more than 200 years.

The fortune will be divided among nine heirs. A sister, Mrs. A. Craig, of North Dakota, gets a ninth share and two nephews and three cousins, if found, willl get a half million each.

Pulitzer is Dead.

Charleston, S. C.—Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, died here aboard his yacht, the Liberty, in Charleston harbor. The immediate cause of Mr. Pulitzer's death was heart failure. He had been in ill health for several days, but until a few hours before the end came none of those around him suspected the gravity of his condition.

MANY USES OF THE MAGUEY

In Mexico there is a plant that feeds a greater number of persons in more different ways than is known perhaps in any other country of the world.

The maguey is a species of cactus which thrives in profusion on the great mesa of the republic of Mexico. It is perhaps the most remarkable plant, as regards its utilization, of all the more common tropical plants on earth.

In this country a plant of the same family is known as the century plant, but of course the variety in Mexico is different, and here apparently the plant is used for ornamental purposes.

This plant throws out tiny sprouts with from five to eight branches edged with small espinas, or needles, which identify it as of the cactus family. It does not attain to its full growth until its fifth year, but it may be made useful two years earlier. In its third year one or all of its branches are tapped, making cavities in the sides of the branch in which the sap or juice of the plant collects.

This latter liquid is what is known in Mexico as aqua miel, an efficacious medicine in many disorders of the human system, but it must be used as such the first day after it is picked. If allowed to stand fermentation takes place and the aqua miel changes into what is known as the most common of the intoxicating drinks of Mexico—pulque.

When distilled, pulque is the great national drink of Mexico and is known as mescal. The mescal distilled in the state of San Luis Potosi is regarded as the best quality and is called tequila.

It is not only in its medicinal and drinking qualities that the maguey plant is useful. It is one of the most important fiber plants in Mexico, and is utilized in the weaving of baskets and clothing. It is a tough fiber, but as flexible as a linen thread.—Washington Post.

Well Supplied.

A young woman of Baltimore, who recently entered upon the happy state, knows so little about housekeeping that she shudders lest the butcher and the baker and the rest of the tradesmen discover her ignorance. She orders only articles with which she has some acquaintance, and ends her business interviews as quickly as possible.

On one occasion this young wife was feeling rather puffed up by reason of some newly acquired knowledge of things domestic, when the ashman came through the street, uttering his usual cry:

"Ash-ees! Ash-ees!"

As the man neared her window she grew more and more perplexed. "What on earth is he saying?" she asked herself. At last he appeared at the back door, and there she confronted him.

"Ash-ees?" came in a husky gutteral.

For a moment she looked at him hesitatingly. Then, drawing herself up with great dignity, she replied:

"No, I do not care for any today."—Lippincott's.

Want No More Funiculars.

In a memorial presented recently to the Swiss government the ligue for the preservation of scenery in that country asks that no more concessions should be granted for the construction of Alpine railways.

It is probable that concessions in the future may not be obtained so easily as in the past, as there is a certain amount of feeling in the country that these railways, though they certainly appeal to a large number of visitors, do not improve the beauty of the Alps.

Many of the mountaineering visitors dislike these railways, but they very seldom care to climb on foot a height which can be scaled in a comfortable carriage. Such a mountain loses all charm, it appears, for the pedestrian and he generally goes off to districts where the mountain railway has not been introduced.—The Queen.

Manila on the Map.

The decision of the North German-Lloyd Steamship company to make Manila a port of call for its steamers plying between Bremen and Yokohama puts Manila on the map of the world in the view of the globe trotters who have up to now passed no nearer than Hongkong.

The Cablenews-American observes that it is the business future of the Philippines that causes the North German-Lloyd line to send its steamers to Manila. At any rate, the business outlook should be helped by an improvement in transportation facilities that will bring many more travelers to Manila and give it a good deal of free advertisement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Solving the Problem.

Bishop Goodman was one day addressing a Sunday school, when he said in a most expressive way: "And now, children, let me tell you a very sad fact In Africa there are ten million square miles of territory without a single Sunday school where little boys and girls can spend their Sundays. Now, what should we all try and save up our money and do?"

And the class, as one voice, replied in ecstatic unison, "Go to Africa."

The Drawback.

"Here's a scientist proposes to kill off all the idiots in their infancy."

"But what will the wise men then do for their material?"

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Summer Resorts Offered Uncle Sam

WASHINGTON.—If Uncle Sam wanted to go into the summer resort business, now would be his golden opportunity. He has scores of chances to acquire for a song hotel and resort property of great scenic beauty, though possibly of little commercial value, according to the agents booming them. Whether Uncle Sam will "bite" will depend upon the national forestry commission.

The efforts to sell are being made under the Weeks' Forestry law, otherwise known as the Appalachian Forest Reserve act. Last spring, when advertisements were issued for land to be purchased with the $11,000,000 appropriated by that law, the rush began. It has continued since then until nearly every owner of a "busted," down-at-the-heel summer resort in the mountain sections of the southeastern states and New England has tried to unload upon the government.

Already over 2,000,000 acres have been offered for sale to the government. All of this is not summer resort property, but a considerable proportion of it is. The resort property is not offered for the buildings on it, but for the beautiful "parks" about them, which are always heavily timbered and suitable for forestry purposes, according to the promoters. If all the land offered were to be bought it would probably cost Uncle Sam $100,000,000 instead of $11,000,000.

One of the leading summer resort "forest reservations" which the government has been asked to buy is the Natural Bridge in Virginia, for which something like a quarter of a million is wanted. Accompanying the offer was a beautiful painting of the bridge, which was great for scenic beauty, but did not seem to be much for timber. No charge was made for the picture, it was explained. The promoter of this property did not admit it, but it is well known that the Natural Bridge died a natural death in recent years.

A large number of other resort and hotel properties in the White Mountains and the much advertised "Land of the Sky," or "Sapphire Country," of Carolina are being offered to the government at ridiculous prices—whether ridiculously high or ridiculously low will be for the forestry commission to say.

Certain big White Mountain hotels want the government to buy whole mountains so that the trees thereon will be preserved for the benefit of their guests. Lands are being pressed upon the government for $50 to $100 an acre, but few if any of these will be bought.

To Auction Off Decrepit Warships

THE contemplated sale by the United States government of 43 warships classed as obsolete in the latest navy report will open an extensive field to the battleship broker. The lot will include battleships, armored and protected cruisers, monitors and gunboats. Rapid development in the building of dreadnoughts has caused battleships and other war craft which ten years ago were considered formidable, to fall behind present requirements. Consequently the government plans to get rid of them, either by breaking them up and selling them as junk, or disposing of them to South American republics.

Among the battleships classed as obsolete are the Kearsarge, Kentucky, Alabama, Maine, Massachusetts, Indiana, Ohio, Oregon, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. It cost to build them $64,405,225. When the Kearsarge and the Kentucky were put in commission several years ago they were among the finest battleships afloat. Their batteries of seven-inch guns were impressive, but now, compared with ships like the Delaware, the Michigan, the Florida, they seem insignificant.

The cruisers doomed to the scrap heap are the Brooklyn, New York, St. Louis, Charleston and Milwaukee. The Brooklyn was Admiral Schley's flagship at the battle of Santiago. The total cost of these is $20,350,275. The unarmored cruisers that were serviceable in the Spanish war, but in a modern sea battle couldn't approach the enemy within ten miles or more, are the Olympia, Dewey's flagship at the battle of Manila bay; the Raleigh, Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, Boston, Marblehead, Atlanta, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Montgomery, Minneapolis, and Columbia. Total cost, $25,965,782.

Warship brokers in this country naturally will look to South America as the most likely field for business.

This Country Full of Foreign Spies

SPIES, according to reports in Washington, are still at work finding out for the nations which they represent the secrets of this country's defense. Not satisfied with their "military attaches"—sometimes called the title of a spy not in disguise—these nations, directly or indirectly, have been working all the time throughout the world collecting information. This information is of every sort; economic, geographical, commercial, but especially military. It is the first duty of these men to report all details they can gather of the fortifications in the country to which they are assigned. All this information is eventually filed in the vaults of the general staff, and on it, to a large degree, depends the preparedness of the country for war.

In New York itself there are doubtless many spies besides the consuls. Some years ago a young lieutenant in a foreign army spent his vacation on this side of the Atlantic, admittedly reporting to his government the various activities of the United States, especially in some of their island protectorates. He returned to his home country, and nothing more was heard of him for several years.

One day toward the end of 1910 a man who had met this officer on his first visit was much surprised to meet him again on a ferryboat at New York city. The officer was dressed in civilian clothes and either did not recognize his former acquaintance or pretended not to recognize him. When addressed, however, he readily acknowledged his identity. He said he was in this country permanently and was working in a factory on Staten Island. This factory was within half an hour's walk of some of the most important fortifications on the Atlantic seaboard.

Some time later the acquaintance called up the factory to see if the man was still there. He was not, but had left shortly after the interview on the ferryboat.

Draughtsmen Separated From Pay-Roll

EIGHTY draughtsmen, whose annual salaries aggregate a quarter of a million dollars, were dispensed with at the end of last month. This force has been busy for years making individual plans for the government's public buildings throughout the land.

The treasury officials, in taking stock of cash on hand, found that they had only money enough to pay these draughtsmen. Therefore they asked congress for $200,000 to keep them on the payroll for the next nine months, completing the fiscal year.

But there was nothing extra coming from congress to meet such a situation and it was suggested that as the government has over six hundred drawn plans for all kinds of public buildings the draughtsmen could be dispensed with and new buildings authorized built upon plans already made use of.

Of course without the necessary money the treasury officials had to let the draughtsmen go. The old practice of carrying clerks when there was no money to pay them with and having congress make up the deficit when convenient does not appeal to the officials in the departments any longer. Several years ago a law was passed making it an offense for an official to create a deficit or to use money appropriated for one specific purpose for another purpose for which the regular appropriation had become exhausted.

Not only will there be a saving of $250,000 for the present fiscal year, but there will also go on indefinitely a saving of a quarter of a million dollars each year, for the treasury officials have let the draughtsmen go for good.

There are now in the United States, erected and in use, 662 public buildings, costing from $25,000 to $8,000,000 each, the last named figure being the cost of the New York custom house.

This is the best year the canned salmon industry has ever known. The pack is three-quarters of a million larger than the best previous record. Prices are at their highest, more capital is invested in the industry and more men employed than ever before. There has been a sufficient demand from all parts of the world to absorb this record pack. The industry is of steadily growing importance to Washington.

Gov. Hay can find no general demand for an extra session of the legislature at this time for the purpose of enacting a presidential primary law, and wisely concludes that since the levy for state purposes has all been spoken for it would be folly to force a bond issue to meet the expenditure of an extra session just after getting the general fund of the state out of debt for the first time. In this state we can afford to save the expense and wait.

CALIFORNIA'S CHOICE

Along with the initiative and referendum, California has adopted the recall for elective officers, including judges. This is what Mr. Taft described as "so destructive of free government." Another critic inquired: "Was anything more utterly absurd, dangerous, wicked and lawless ever proposed in our history?"

No doubt California saw the question from a different angle. The theory of the opposition is that judges will cherish a prejudice in favor of the power upon which they are dependent for tenure of office; and it may be admitted that, generally speaking, a certain tenderness toward the breadwagon does inspire the human breast, even when figuratively clad in ermine.

For many years—also generally speaking—the power upon which California judges were dependent for tenure of office was the Southern Pacific machine. A judge who signally offended that power must have been quite lucky to secure renomination.

California knows very well that making judicial tenure more or less dependent upon the Southern Pacific did not destroy free government. By paying toll, the average citizen still went his way unmolested—grew his oranges, watered his posies and whistled his Yankee Doodle right under the Southern Pacific's nose. If anybody doubts that free institutions survived let him consult returns of the last two elections of the state. In view of that experience, California evidently is not afraid that making judicial tenure more or less dependent upon the favor of a majority of voters in a district, or in the state, will destroy free government.— Saturday Evening Post.

It is more than probable that the explosion and fire at the Imperial Powder company's plant at Chehalis, wherein eight girls lost their lives, will cause a test of Washington's new industrial insurance law. As near as the commission can estimate, the heirs of the unfortunates will receive a minimum of $10,660 and it may go as high as $32,000, should the courts hold that a minor's death be worth $4,000, the maximum provided by law. To meet this outlay the state accident fund in the class covering powder mills has but $270.

BIBLICAL HISTORY FAMILIAR TO FEW STUDENTS

A great deal is being said and written these days about the ignorance in which our young people are growing up as regards any knowledge of the Bible.

A college professor of one of the best colleges in the U. S., has recently written a magazine article in which he tells of the surprisingly few students who now enter the universities and colleges who are at all familiar with biblical history. Is it not a sad and deplorable situation that we must face, when this book of books, which has always stood as a masterpiece in literature, and as the very foundation of all moral and civic life, a guide and inspiration to thousands upon thousands, should be so slighted in the education of our children today.

Rev. Carson of Brooklyn, who is the leading officer of the Presbyterian church in the United States, and one of the strongest agitators in this country for the reading of the Bible in schools, is making a tour of the West lecturing on this subject.

Countries where the Bible is read in schools:

Glasgow and Edinburgh. The Bible is read daily.

Austria.—Two hours per week are devoted to religious instruction.

Belgium.—Two hours are given to moral instruction per week.

Prussia.—Four hours per week.

Berlin.—Ditto.

Hamburg.—Two hours per week.

Germany.—Banished the Bible from her schools, but has now restored it.

France.—Moral instruction is given for three hours per week.

Cape Colony.—The Bible is read daily.

Orange River.—Bible history is taught.

Egypt.—The Koran is read daily, and scholars are taught the necessity of religion to man.

Japan.—Morals and industry are taught.

Canada.—At Ontario the Bible is read daily, the Ten Commandments to be repeated once a week. At Saskatchewan the board may permit religious instruction in schools. In New Brunswick the Bible is read in schools.

New South Wales.—The Irish National Board Scripture Lesson books are used.

Tasmania.—Instruction in sacred history is imparted.

West Australia.—Scripture lessons are given orally to impress the value of the Scriptures as a basis of moral instruction.

South Australia.—Religious instruction is optional.

England.—The Bible is read.

Ireland.—Either Douay or Authorised Verson read, and each school furnished with a "Ten Commandments Tablet" to be hung on the wall.

SHERIFF M'INNES OF JEFFERSON DROWNED

The Port Townsend Leader of Tuesday reports that Jack McInnes, sheriff of Jefferson county, in all probability lost his life when out fishing in a small row boat last Sunday. Mr. McInnes left home about 8 o'clock in the morning. A few hours later a heavy squall struck the Sound. When last seen the frail craft was being carried by the wind almost directly toward Flagler, on a line drawn from Point Hudson to the end of Marrowstone point. A heavy sea was running at the time. Later, the fishing boat Junior picked up the boat in which Mr. McInnes left home, which had been found bottom up two miles inside Marrowstone point. The unfortunate man was a brother of Donald McInnes of Dungeness, who has taken charge of arrangements looking to location of his missing brother, or the recovery of his body.

Sheriff McInnes was 54 years of age, a native of England, coming to the Sound thirty-two years ago. He leaves a wife and four sons, the eldest seventeen. He was one of the most popular officials the county of Jefferson ever had. He had a host of warm personal friends, scattered over Jefferson and Clallam counties.

EARLY CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

It is all very well to talk about early Christmas Shopping, but nine out of ten of us have not the early Christmas shopping wherewithall. What with shoes for Johnnie, and a coat for Susan, and gentle reminders from the coalman and other trusting ones, most of us come bump up against the week before Christmas before we can spare a cent for Christmas doings. Then the question is, what? The stores are jammed, there are heaps of foolish notions to catch the belated shopper.

And yet how easy it is to get just the right thing at a modest cost, namely, a year's subscription to the Youth's Companion!

It costs $1.75, and how can you invest $1.75 to better advantage if you wish to make a gift that will benefit as well as gratify the friend or family to whom you send it? And if you can subscribe early, you get just so much more for the money—all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1911 free.

Then, too, your present will be as fresh and pleasing a year from now as on Christmas morning, and of how many presents can that be said?

The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free The Companion's calendar for 1912, lithographed in ten colors and gold, and you, too, as giver of the supscription, will receive a copy of the Calendar.

Only $1.75 now for the 52 weekly issues, but on January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00.

Rev. S. Campbell of the Washington Children's Home Society was here Monday, to meet the county commissioners, then in session, in regard to eight children taken by the Home from the east end of this county. The mother had died, leaving the care of the eight children to a 15-year old sister, who had become a nervous wreck.
