ROYAL TRAIN IS BOMBED BY AEROPLANIST

ENGINEER OF WILHELM'S SPECIAL IS KILLED—RUMANIANS AND RUSSIANS LOSE GROUND AT POINT OF CONTACT

Dispatches from Petrograd and Berlin today announce a success that may have far-reaching effect in the Teuton campaign against Rumania in the Dorna Watra region, where the Rumanian, Buckowina and Transylvania frontiers join. Petrograd says that after violent attacks the Russians and Rumanians were compelled to withdraw their advance posts from two heights on the Bystritsa river. Berlin, by wireless, says that "several heights" were captured and some 500 prisoners taken. This action may hamper communications between Rumania and Russia. Berlin also reports that von Mackenzen's German, Bulgarian and Turkish forces are continuing to gain ground in Dobrudja, while von Falkenhayn has won ground in the Kronstadt sector in Translyvania.

The French, on the western front, have scored another success before Verdun, capturing a quarry held by the Germans northeast of Douaumont, in which region a brisk artillery duel is in progress.

On the Somme front Paris and London report that only an intermittent artillery battle is in progress, while Berlin, as usual reports the repulse of Anglo-French infantry attacks.

WITCHES GIGGLE, SPIDERS WRIGGLE AT GUILD DANCE

HALLOWE'EN HALL AT OPERA HOUSE PROVES ARTISTIC AND ENJOYABLE AFFAIR — DECORATIONS ARE CLEVER

One of the most delightful events of the fall season was the Witches Ball, given last evening by the St. Margaret's Guild at the Opera House. The guests, on arriving were led through a long dark passage into the hall by two ghostly figures who were stationed at the doors. The hall was made attractive with autumn leaves and black and yellow crepe paper draped from the center of the ceiling, and a further touch of the Hallowe'en spirit was added by little black spiders and witches suspended from the autumn leaves and huge pumpkins and squashes arranged on the stage. In one artistically decorated corner punch was served throughout the evening.

About 50 couples attended and every one enjoyed a most delightful evening. Interesting features of the evening were three favor dances. The first was led by Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Johnson and the ladies were given litle yellow caps which they presented to their partners.

The second favor dance was led by Dr. and Mrs. Gillivray. Before this dance the dancers marched around the room and drew peanuts from a huge iron skillet. The peanuts were tied with yellow ribbon and inside the shells were the "fortunes" of the drawers, and numbers by which they found their partners for the dance.

The third favor dance was led by Miss Geraldine Gilbert, who had charge of the party, and her escort. During this dance the men presented their partners with little monkeys and sipders.

The hosts and hostesses for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Day, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Plummer, Dr. and Mrs. William Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Severyns, Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Miles and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Marshall.

A very jolly Hallowe'en party was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. E. E. Hopkins. The house was darkened and decorated in true Hallowe'en fashion, and the score cards and refreshments carried out the same idea. Four tables of whist were in play, and the prize winners were Mrs. J. C. Hansen and Mrs. A. J. Cosser.

RICH MAN'S BRIDE HELD AS BIGAMIST WHILE CABARET DANCER FILES $25,000 BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT AGAINST HIM

"The eternal polygon" has taken the place of "the eternal triangle" in a s'teen act real life movie just enacted in Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

Helene Wohlford, Chicago cabaret dancer, married James B. Cowan. Later she met Arnold Zumstein, millionaire, and told "hubby" she preferred "Zummy." "Hubby" started divorce proceedings. In the meantime Ruth McLean, Michigan university student and social favorite, married Joseph Fee. Her father, Dr. Angus McLean, chased his son-in-law and started annulment proceedings.

While this was going on Helene and Zumstein disagreed. Then "Zummy" met Miss McLean in Detroit and Helene met "Zummy" in Chicago and told him she was divorced. The next thriller took place at Terre Haute, where Miss McLean, visiting a school-days friend, married "Zummy." The Terre Haute police arrested the former Miss McLean and held her on a bigamy charge, alleging her previous marriage was never annulled. Helene, reading of the arrest, sued "Zummy" for $25,000 for breach of promise.

COSSER AND ROSE WORK FRAUD ON W. C. T. U. OF PORT ANGELES

LEADERS OF TEMPERANCE ORGANIZATION KEPT IN IGNORANCE OF SCHEME WORKED BY THE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES

Efforts to steal an "endorsement" by the W. C. T. U. by A. J. Cosser and S. C. Rose, by unscrupulous manipulation, when the rules of the Union clearly state that candidates are not to be "endorsed" by the organization, gradually are coming to light. Of course, on the temperance or any other question neither Mr. Rose nor Mr. Cosser are any more entitled to an "endorsement" by a temperance organization than are Mr. Plummer and Mr. Lindsay, both of the latter having been for years identified with the anti-saloon movement. But in desperate cases desperate measures are sometimes adopted by unscrupulous job-hunters.

It is feared that these manipulations may greatly damage the power of usefulness of the organization.

The facts are as follows:

Facts of the Intrigue

On Thursday, October 26, about 40 ladies of the W. C. T. U. of Port Angeles held a public meeting at which Messrs. Cosser, Lindsay, Rose and Cochran made ten minute talks. Mrs. Ainworth, president of the society, told the candidates that the society could not, owing to rules of the state Union, endorse any candidates; that each lady must judge for herself for whom she would vote.

The morning after this meeting several W. C. T. U. women received a letter through the mails, presumably sent after the meeting above referred to, announcing that the W. C. T. U. of Port Angeles had on July 27 urged Mr. Cosser to become a candidate for the legislature and that he was endorsed by the organization for that office.

Dominated by Politicians

It is well known that a small branch of the W. C. T. U. of Port Angeles is under the domination of Mr. Rose and Mr. Cosser, and as Mr. Lindsay had filed for this office July 25, Mr. Rose and Mr. Cosser got busy and engineered this pretended endorsement. There was not a handful of women at the regular meeting, July 27, and a much less number at the so-called "Special Meeting," named in the circular. The circular has all the earmarks of being arranged by a politican and is printed so as to deceive the readers and lead to the belief that it has the approval of Mrs. Ainsworth and Mrs. Burkholder and other ladies. These ladies knew nothing of it and, as stated above, publicly told Mr. Cosser that no candidates would be endorsed. Yet, Mr. Cosser is willing that that circular should be mailed to the different ladies of the W. C. T. U. after he had been publicly told that no endorsement would be given, and mailed after the W. C. T. U. held their last meeting before election and would have no opportunity to take any action on such circular.

Afraid to Hear Lindsay

Some of the ladies of the East Port Angeles Union asked Mr. Lindsay if he would come before them and give them a short address. To this Mr. Lindsay consented. A few days later Mr. Lindsay received a message from Mrs. Anderson, president of the Union, over the telephone, that some of the ladies objected to inviting him but that if he asked to be heard, the favor might be granted. Mr. Lindsay promptly requested that he be given a hearing and Mrs. Anderson said she would take it up with some of the ladies and give an answer in a day or two. A few days later Mrs. Anderson telephoned Mr. Lindsay that a few of the ladies of the East W. C. T. U. objected to giving him an opportunity to talk to them and he would not be permitted to be heard. Evidently this was the unseen handiwork of partisan friends of Messrs. Cosser and Rose, who feared to have Mr. Lindsay heard, because they knew their misrepresentations would be uncovered.

The Herald today asked Mrs. McKechnie, secretary of the W. C. T. U., for permission to copy the minutes of the meetings at which this "endorsement" was engineered, but the request was refused. However, the Herald has been able to ascertain the important facts which are as above.

Resistance by the opium planters is considered probable.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 28.—Both the department of justice and the department of labor are watching closely the migration of southern negroes to northern industrial centers. OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The special train of Charles E. Hughes narrowly missed running him down as he returned in an automobile to the railroad station here after making a campaign speech. The automobile backed away just in time to avert an accident.

CANDIDATES TELL UNIONS THEY ARE STRONG FOR LABOR

ROSE AND COSSER ARE STAR "PROMISERS" OF EVERYTHING NICE IN RETURN FOR VOTES OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Representatives of local unions last night gathered in the old Chamber of Commerce room, Front street, to hear what candidates for various offices had to say to them regarding measures of especial interest to the workers.

The candidates present were Frank Dustman, A. J. Cosser, George Venable Smith, Andrew Severyns, S. C. Rose, and F. A. Jensen. Some of those invited were out of town, the invitation having been received at very short notice. J. W. Lindsay, who had a previous speaking engagement, sent in a letter defining his position on matters especially affecting labor.

Harry Wisbey presided, assisted as cross-examiner by Ed. Shields, and everyone was given a fair hearing, with personalities objected to by the chairman. However, Mr. Cosser managed to get off one before he could be checked, referring to Mr. Lindsay as "double-faced" because he had made no public announcement of his policies. Neither, for that matter, has Mr. Cosser. But both presumably stand on the platforms of their parties.

All the candidates questioned at the meeting expressed themselves as favorably inclined towards measures which the labor organizations desire—that, of course, was the reason they were there.

Jensen Overlooks Referendums

Mr. Cosser took a shot at the Herald, expressing doubt whether the Herald would "fairly report him" and Mr. Jensen, quoting from the Herald, announced that he was the "biggest fraud in the city" and a 'reformed brewer" and expected to go on being the same. As for the referendum measures he said he was willing to vote against them although "he had not looked into them." Mr. Jensen evidently had no idea what these measures are. He said that the city attorney was supposed to attend to such matters as the enforcement of the eight hour law in city contracts.

It was an interesting meeting. Mr. Rose said that the working men knew how he felt towards them. They had experience of that during the shingle strike, he said, when Tom Aldwell had abused him for not enforcing the law. He would vote against all the referendum measures, he said, and regarding the eight hour law he had conducted one case at least, against Day and Abbott for working a cook more than eight hours, but the principal witness had been unwilling and the case had failed. He gave it as his opinion that in a community such as Port Angeles this law was practically a dead letter, but he always would prosecute any alleged infraction if it were brought to his attention.

Rose Suspects Plummer

At a recent W. C. T. U. meeting Mr. Rose declared that his opponent on the Republican ticket, Mr. Plummer, was a "wet." At the labor meeting he declared that Mr. Plummer is "a man of capitalistic mind."

Mr. Dustman said that the office he sought did not enter especially in political questions affecting the laboring class, but he had been a working man all his life. If elected he intended to be fair to all classes—big property owners or small ones, and to work for a reduction of taxation, which had become too heavy as burden, a every owner of a home knew. In that matter the assessor was the official who had the first chance to get to work.

George Venable Smith spoke of his efforts in behalf of measures of value to the working classes. He spoke against the referendum measures and pointed out that he had been an active pioneer in the securing of the direct legislation measures.

Severyns Kills a Rumor

Andrew Severyns denied a rumor which he said had been started to injure his campaign to the effect that he was in the race as Tom Trumbull's representative or tool. Mr. Trumbull, he said, had had nothing to do with his candidacy. He explained that he had been practicing law for six years and had made a special study of municipal law and had successfully practived it in Seattle and in this city.

Mr. Cosser attacked Mr. Lindsay. He expressed the opinion that if the laborer got all he earned the hours of labor would be reduced to two or three for each day. As things were a few got all the profits and the workers had to work long hours. He said everyone who had been long in the city knew that his attitude towards labor was right; he had made sacrifices in that cause in the past.

Lindsay Against Extremists

Mr. Lindsay's letter was read by Mr. Shields. In it Mr. Lindsay said he believed in labor organizations, farmers' organizations and political organizations because in union there was strength. But he did not believe in extremes or extremists. The happy medium, he wrote, would achieve better results. He pointed out that in the shingle strike here, as a representative of the Commercial club, he had refused to interfere in the strike and only insisted upon absence of violence in the streets. He said he would oppose all the referendum measures except No. 9, called the budget measure, fixing the amount of expenditures in each department of government. He wrote in support of his policy of loaning state school funds to farmers and settlers to aid in settlement and improvement of idle lands.

BRITISH NOTE ON BLACKLIST IS RECEIVED

POSITION TAKEN IS THAT MIDWAY BETWEEN PRACTICE OF EUROPEAN COUNTRIES AND AMERICAN CONTENTION

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 28.—Great Britain's note in reply to the American representations against the commercial blacklist were received today by the statepartment. It is understood to reiterate the contention for the right to blacklist, but offers methods of relief to Amcricans in certain circumstances.

The British note is understood to take the line of argument that it unprecedented for a neutral to claim that a belligerent should, in effect, compel its subjects to trade with the enemy, and that it violates no law for the British government to prevent its subjects from doing so.

While the British government admits the rights of all persons in neutral countries to engage in legitimate commercial transactions, it is argued that such right does not limit the right of other governments to restrict the activities of their own nationals.

The point at issue in the controversy is whether the nationality or domicile of the owner of goods gives him the character of a neutral or a belligerent.

The position taken in Europe always has been that nationality was decisive. In previous negotiations over the blacklist, Great Britain took a position between that theory and the American contention that domicile settles the point.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1916

Editorial

REFERENDUM MEASURES NOT WORTHY OF SUPPORT

Nnder the impression that the people generally had read the state phamphlets describing the referendum and initiative measures and the proposed constitutional amendment, which are to be submitted to the voters November 7, the Herald has not made any great effort to elucidate any of them for the benefit of its readers. In one case, that of the proposed amendment to the Port Commission law, which at present only directly concerns King county, the Herald did have occasion to advise against its passage, because the Herald thought it would not have general interest and was in danger of "slipping through" on that account.

At a meeting of representatives of organized labor last night, addressed by a number of candidates for office, it appeared that some of these candidates did not know much, if anything, about these measures. If candidates have not studied them, it seems possible that very many plain citizens also have passed up the job, and the Herald will therefore briefly review the referendum measures and the constitutional amendment. As for the initiative measures—the brewery and hotel license bills—the Herald declines to enter into a controversy which leads nowhere. It disapproves of the hotel measure because it is clearly an effort to substitute hotel bar rooms for saloons and the people have declared against the saloons, a declaration with which the Herald is in entire sympathy. The brewery initiative is well understood and nothing the Herald would say would be likely to affect the opinions already formed on the subject by probably every voter in the constitutency, because the question involved is exclusively a matter of opinion, and the issue so simple that he who runs may read it.

In considering these referendum measures it would be well to bear in mind that they represent the irresponsible side of the legislature. The last legislature was in many respects the rankest in the history of the state. It was under the control of a Republican machine, striving for plunger of individuals and special interests, and the few honest and able men in the house and senate were powerless unless they gave support in one direction in order to secure it in another. It was a legislature of trades and trickery, and most of the referendum measures represent deliberate attempts to curtail the rights and liberties won by the people after years of effort. These attempts are more or less cleverly concealed by misleading titles and confusing phraseology, but the Herald believes that the voters will lose nothing and win much by defeating every one of them.

❖ ❖ ❖

The most plausible of the measures are Nos. 6 and 9, the anti-picketing measure and the so-called budget measure. The first may appeal to some people not directly aligned either with the employing or the laboring classes, people who have read of cases of hardship where strong union organizations have tried to put small business houses out of commission. But the cure would be worse than the evil because it goes too far. It would not tend to prevent acts of violence during strikes but would be more apt to increase and encourage such acts, by reason of the fact that the union people would feel that the law was unjust. But apart from that there are provisions in the measure which might have the effect of interfering with liberty of speech and of the press—two vital principles which cannot be surrendered in any cause whatever. No. 9, the budget bill, has some good points but tends more and more in the direction of bureaucratic-control of municipal government by state boards which, the Herald thinks, has gone too far already. No. 7 would take from municipalities the right to enter the field of supplying public utilities in competition with corporations except with the permission of the public service commission, and is another bureaucratic measure of a much more dangerous type. Nos. 3, 4 and 5, euphemistically described as bills to "facilitate" the operation of the state's direct government measures, and to "prevent fraud" in the same, are clearly designed to put direct legislation out of business.

❖ ❖ ❖

The proposed constitutional amendment has its supporters among people of all classes. It proposes to disfranchise voters not owning property in elections involving the voting of money which is to be a charge upon such property. In principle it will appeal to a lot of property owners, but it is a step backward, none the less. Many people who do not own property pay the taxes on it in the form of rents and other charges, and their disfranchisement would not be just. The Herald advises against this measure also.

COSSER'S INEFFECTUAL CAMPAIGN

A. J. Cosser is campaigning largely on the strength of his long residence in the city and attacks upon what he calls "the opposition." However, Mr. Cosser, if elected, would not have any opportunity to achieve any of his undefined and mysterious measures of reform. He would be one of a small and entirely ineffective "opposition" in the house and he has none of the qualities that sometimes earn a hearing for a man in the enemy's camp. He might rant, but the house would be empty. As for his complaint that Mr. Lindsay, the Republican nominee, has announced mainly one policy, that for the facilitating of land settlement and the utilization of logged off lands, Mr. Cosser should remember that Mr. Lindsay stands, necessarily, upon the Republican platform. But apart from that, one definite and constructive policy with a man back of it who has the ability to get a hearing, is worth a great deal more to the community than a man filled with vague theories of impractical legislation and abuse of his opponent. Mr. Cosser's policy is to agree with everyone and get another job.

County Assessor E. A. Prickett announces that he is in favor of a reduction of taxation but in two years administration he has never disclosed that policy and has awaited the coming into the field of a rival for the office before announcing his faith. It is a deathbed repentance. He also announces that he is in favor of uniform valuations. The assessment rolls in this county provide glaring evidence of the opposite condition. The first step in the direction of reduction of taxation unquestionably lies with the assessor.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS

Convicted of Murder

D. C. Brichoux convicted by a jury in the circuit court at Vale, Ore., yesterday of murder in the second degree in having slain R. C. Goodwin, an Idaho sheepman whose dead body was found in the Snake river a month ago, with a bullet hole in the head. Brichoux had admitted the killing, but contended it was done by accident. At the trial his attorneys attempted to show that Brichoux was insane. The prosecution contended that the murder was deliberate and that robbery was the motive. The jury was out one hour.

Pioneer Buried on Farm

Nathaniel E. Porter was buried on his farm at Austin, near Coupeville, Wednesday in accordance with his wish to have his body mingle with the dust where he had spent the "most happy and peaceful years" of his life. He was 69 and had lived since 1859 on a 320-acre ranch on Mutiny bay. His early years were spent at sea. He was born in Nova Scotia of old New England stock. At the age of 10 he went to sea as a waiter on a small schooner, and later served before the mast in voyages to the West Indies, to Europe and to the Orient. In 1857 he resolved to try his luck in the California gold fields, but enlisted instead in the Bridger volunteers. Five months later he joined the quarter's department and hauled provisions for the army to Salt Lake City and helped build a fort in the Utah valley. Upon leaving the government service he went to California, and in 1859 came to Puget sound. He had three wives, his third being a native of Whidby island, who bore him eleven children.

Oregon Trail Makers Placed

Under the auspices and direction of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Daughters of the American Revolution ten monuments marking the old Oregon trail have been placed and unveiled in the state of Washington at a cost of $1,500. The ceremony in connection with the last four links in the chain was performed four times this week, first, at Jackson's Prairie on Wednesday; second, at Kelso, and third, at Woodland, near Vancouver, Wash., and fourth, at Klama on Thursday. At each place the people turned out in large numbers to participate in the unveiling, and a half holiday was declared, to enable the school children to participate. Gov. Lister, Orlson J. C. Dutton, state president of the S. A. R.; Mrs. Edmund Bowden, state regent of the D. A. R.; Mrs. Henry McCleary, of the national trails committee of the D. A. R.; Gen. Hazard Stevens, son of the famous war governor; Isaac Ingalls Stevens and other distinguished men and women, pioneers, old settlers and a newer generation paid tribute to the men and women who traveled the old Oregon trail and by their energies, patriotism, industry, resourcefulness and thrift planted civilization in the wilderness and gave to the Union another star.
