BERLIN EXPECTS TROUBLE WITH U. S. OVER SUBMARINES

VILLA FORCES SHELLED BY GEN. TREVINO

ATTACK ON THE MEXICAN STATE CAPITAL BEGAN AT 11 O'CLOCK —DEFENSES ARE REPORTED STRONG AND MUNITIONS ARE PLENTIFUL

EL PASO, Nov. 23.—Villa began an attack on Chihuahua City at 11 o'clock this morning, it is reported. He is attacking from the south. General Murgia, the Carranzista leader, who was reported to have reached Mapula, 12 miles south of Chihuahua, is expected to attack Villa from the rear soon.

General Trevino has 5,000 men and plenty of artillery. Strong fortifications have been built to defend Chihuahua.

General Jacinto B. Trevino answered the attack of Villa's bandit forces upon Chihuahua City with an artillery bombardment from Santa Rosa hill and other fortifications to the south and southwest of the state capital.

The noise of bursting shells and the discharge of the field pieces is described as deafening.

GREECE REFUSES DEMAND FOR ARMS AND MUNITIANS

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Greece has refused to comply with the demand of the Entente allies for the surrender of part of its supplies of arms and ammunitions. The Allies alleged that Greece previously supplied war material to the Bulgarians and Germans.

LITTLE WHISKY AND MUCH WATER IN LOCAL BLIND PIG

Sheriff Bishop and Chief of Police Sullivan uncovered a bootlegging outfit at the foot of Francis street the other day and gathered in three men, two strangers and one local man, who are in jail pending a hearing. The plant consisted of several five and ten-gallon kegs, filled with water but with small cans of alleged whisky fastened inside and next to the bungholes. Only about a quart of the liquor was found. The men spread word that they had received a large consignment of whisky and the officers believe that they planned to manufacture some "snake juice" for the customers thus obtained. The names of the prisoners are withheld from publication at present.

EMPEROR CHARLES WILL KEEP UP THE FIGHT

LONDON, Nov. 23.—It is reported that the new Austrian monarch will assume the title of Emperor and King Charles I. In a proclamation today he declared his inflexible decision to maintain the war "until a peace assuring the existence and development of the monarchy is possible." This was printed in a special edition of the Weiner Zeitung, with an autographed letter to Premier Koerber.

RICHARDS SENTENCED

In the superior court today Judge Ralston sentenced Frank J. Richards to the penitentiary for from one to five years for attempted blackmail. Richards' case is on appeal and he is out on a $2,500 bond. The Dechman case in which the jury disagreed and the Mills case probably will be dismissed.

POPULAR AUTHOR OF THE "SEA WOLF" DIES SUDDENLY

JACK LONDON SUCCUMBS TO ACUTE UREMIA AT HIS CALIFORNIA HOME IN HIS FORTY-FIRST YEAR

SANTA ROSA, Cal., Nov. 23.—Jack London, one of America's most noted authors, died at his Glen Ellen ranch, near here, last night, a victim of uremic poisoning. London was taken ill last night and was found unconscious early yesterday by a servant who went to his room to awaken him.

From the time London was found he did not regain consciousness. About midday he seemed to rally but later suffered a relapse and sank rapidly until the end came.

London married Bessie Maddern, of Oakland, Cal., April 7, 1900, and November 19, 1905, married Charmian Kittredge, of Berkeley, Cal.

London came into literary prominence in 1903 when he published "The Call of the Wild." This was followed the next year by "The Sea Wolf." He was the author of at least 40 books, several plays and innumerable short stories.

Only immediate friends and relatives were permitted to view the body of the author. News of London's death was broken to his first wife in Oakland, and it staggered her, because, she said, he had so much before him.

London's body will be cremated at Oakland tomorrow. Mrs. Flora London, his mother, is ill in Oakland and has not been told of her son's death.

London's fine properties are almost free of debt. During the past year he paid off over $20,000 in mortgages.

MRS. JESSIE MILLER TAKES THE BIRD; ANOTHER READY

First Turkey Contest Participated in by Crowd of Herald Readers—More Games Planned

"Gee! I hope I get one of your turkeys," was the note appended by a ten-year-old boy to his response to the call for corrections of misspelled words in the Herald contest of yesterday. The Herald hopes he will, although he was not the lucky one in the first round of this evidently popular game. He had the words right at that, but he was not the first one of the bag.

The winner was Mrs. Jessie Miller, who did not give her residence address. Her letter was the first opened in which all the misspelled words were noted, together with the advertisements in which they appeared.

However, there will be another turkey contest, more or less like the last, in tomorrow's Herald, so those who did not win this time can try again.

The replies came in by stacks! Now that the long winter evenings have begun, Herald readers enjoy a game like this turkey contest, and more contests of one kind or another will be provided, probably at least one every week. Subscribers are invited to drop a line to the editor of the Herald containing any suggestion for contests which they believe would be popular.

In the first contest old and young participated and the Herald is agreeably surprised at the knowledge of spelling shown by some of the young people which reflects credit on the local schools.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 23.—Governor L. B. Hanna announced that he will go to Germany when his term of office expired in January, purely for recreation.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME!

In New York The High Cost Of Living Is Being Attacked With Much Energy

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS ARE HOT ON TRAIL OF "GENTLEMEN'S" AGREEMENTS—MINNESOTA MAN PLANS NATIONAL MARKET AND LADY OF FLORIDA ADVOCATES USE OF SQUIRREL FOOD

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Definite steps were taken here today by federal, state and municipal authorities to ameliorate, if possible, the admittedly serious condition resulting from the steadily mounting cost of living.

Agents of the department of justice virtually completed a thorough investigation of the rise in the price of coal and a report is now in preparation for submission to Attorney General Gregory. It was predicted that the report, which will include the result of investigations in the mining regions, would result in vigorous action by the attorney general's office. District Attorney Swann announced that several indictments under the state anti-trust law may be returned soon against middlemen believed to have entered into "gentlemen's agreements." His announcement followed the appearance before the grand jury of members of an alleged "poultry trust," and the serving of subpoenas on several coal dealers who are to appear before the grand jury tomorrow.

Blames Dealers' Cupidity

"The high cost of living is not due to the war but to the cupidity of food speculators," said the district attorney. "But conspiracy in these cases is very hard to prove."

Mayor Mitchel announces that he will appeal to the legislature for relief. He will have introduced, he said, a bill "providing for the establishment of central markets in order to secure for the producer a direct means for having food products offered at public auction." The bill would aim at the elimination of the middlemen.

Plans Central Market

John J. Dillon, state commissioner of foods and markets, who is also conducting an investigation, likewise announced his intention of appealing to the legislation for relief. His plan provides for the erection of a great terminal market to cost $3,000,000.

"Such a market," he said, "would pay for itself in perhaps one month."

Has National Market Plan

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 23.—F. A. Bennett, of Great Falls, Mont., prominent in the affairs of the American Society of Equity, has worked out a plan which is expected to be ratified by the national convention when it meets, providing for a national central agency for marketing and buying in St. Paul with subsidiary agencies in all the principal market centers of the country, it was announced here today.

Squirrel Food Advocated

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 23.—Food prepared from nut products as a means of lessening the cost of living was advocated by Miss Agnes Allen Harris, director of the Florida state department of home economics at the opening session today of the annual convention of the National Nut Growers' association. She demonstrated her arguments with nut food products prepared by her department.

BANK OF CLALLAM COUNTY HAS BIG GAIN IN DEPOSITS

An increase of $130,000 in deposits in one year is the record made by the Bank of Clallam county during the past twelve months and disclosed by the institution in its statement of its condition November 17, 1916, in response to the call of the state bank examiner. The total deposits in the bank November 10, 1915, were $327,042, and on November 17, 1916, the total had increased to $457,252.

The statement also shows that the bank has $277,192 out working that being the amount of the current loans and showing the prosperous and active condition of the bank.

DONATIONS FOR THOSE IN NEED SOUGHT BY CLUB

INFORMATION REGARDING HOMES NEEDING ASSISTANCE SHOULD BE GIVEN TO MRS. WARE OR MRS. E. J. WALTON

With the arrival of the winter season and the coming of Christmas, the Women's Auxiliary of the Commercial club are asking for donations of money, clothes, toys and other articles suitable for distribution in the homes of the city's less fortunate residents. This is in accordance with the custom of the past and the auxiliary has organized for the winter's work with the appointment of a committee to have charge of donations and to obtain information regarding the homes which need assistance and just what assistance each most needs.

Mrs. E. J. Walton announced this morning that information regarding people in need of help will be received either by Mrs. Ware or herself, and that such information will be used confidentially in the planning of distribution of donations. Two boxes have been placed in the Commercial club as receptables for donations, which from now on will be received with thanks.

LINEMAN'S FALL CAUSED LASTING INJURY, THEY SAY

TESTIMONY OF PHYSICIANS READ INTO RECORD IN TRIAL OF DAMAGE SUIT OF A. A. LANDRY AGAINST LOCAL RAILROAD

While the jury in the superior court was attempting, without success, to come to a decision in the Dechman case yesterday afternoon, another jury was selected for the personal injury suit of Ambrose A. Landry, of Sequim, vs. the Seattle, Port Angeles & Western railway. The jurors trying the case are: L. T. Guy, Rex McInnis, Guy Eckley, Mrs. Mary Bayton, Mrs. Cora Neil, Mrs. R. Gould, Mrs. Cleora Finch, Mrs. Anna Mahaffy, J. A. Martin, Albert Kale, Mrs. Etta Cooley and Peter Epsom.

While in the employ of the company Landry was seriously injured when a telegraph pole, which he had climbed, fell, carrying him into a gulch.

Judge A. E. Griffin, of Seattle represents the plaintiff and C. S. Shank the railroad.

Mr. Morgan, who was foreman of the linemen at the time of the accident, but was discharged immediately afterward, testified that he had been with Landry at the time of the accident, and had told him to climb the pole to put on the insulators and fasten the guy wires to secure it. There was nothing to indicate that the pole was not perfectly safe to climb as the ground about it was apparently hard. "Later," he said, "I measured the pole and found that it had been only 19 inches in the ground, but neither of us knew that at the time."

Before the noon recess today the testimony of three Seattle physicians, taken by commission was read, and an X-ray photograph of the chest of the plaintiff after the accident was identified. The testimony of all three physicians was that Landry would probably never be able to do manual labor again.

ANGELES TO HAVE $12,500 CARNEGIE LIBRARY HOME

Association Notifies Mayor Walton of Appropriation—Will Be Handled Next Year

Mayor E. J. Walton, who has been conducting negotiations with the Carnegie Library association for an appropriation for a public library building in Port Angeles, today received word from the association that an appropriation of $12,500 had been made for this city and would be available immediately upon the conclusion of the necessary preliminaries and the agreement of the city to provide the required ten per cent income for the maintenance of the building. Mr. Walton asked for $15,000 but he is well satisfied with the amount promised, which will provide all the building facilities likely to be needed here for some time to come.

In addition to the undertaking of the city to provide $1,250 annually for the upkeep of the library, title to the site has to be cleared and other preliminary matters arranged. It is not planned to rush the program to the city council, which recently turned down the proposed appropriation for the library, as in any event the appropriation cannot now be made until the 1917 budget is being made up. The matter therefore will come before next year's council.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1916

Editorial

SUBMARINE WARFARE A TAX ON THE WORLD

Quite apart from questions of legality and the theoretical rights of neutrals, the submarine warfare conducted by Germany for the indiscriminate sinking of merchant vessels of belligerent and neutral nations, is in effect a war against the entire world, outside of the blockaded Central powers. It is interesting to note the commencement of official inquiries into the increasing cost of living in the United States, but if those inquiries are pushed to their logical conclusion, the primary cause of the higher prices will be found in the war; the retirement of millions of men from productive enterprises, and their employment in warfare, and the destruction by German submarines of a large portion of the products of the industrial and agricultural countries. The war, at present, cannot be "stopped," but it is a serious question whether a sufficiently strong alliance of neutrals could not be formed to coerce the Central Powers into a cessation of this destructive system. Such policy might not be "neutral," but that is a secondary consideration. The first consideration with neutral nations should be their own protection, and the continued destruction of their products means reduction in the available supplies of the world to a point which, in the end, will mean widespread want and hardship. The neutral world has nothing whatever to hope for or to gain by the Central Powers "winning the war," even if that outcome were possible, which the majority of neutral nations do not believe. On the other hand, the neutrals stand to lose much by the German policy of destroying the world's products as a retaliatory measure because Germany cannot get a share of them.

There is no virtue in "neutrality." It is a negative policy which leads nowhere. Its effect can neither be good nor bad. It cannot save Germany; neither can it destroy Germany. It cannot save the Entente nations, neither can it destroy them. But it is a mistake, and an enormous mistake, to suppose that the destruction of hundreds of ships and their cargoes injures only the belligerent nations owning them or their cargoes. The civilized world today, from the standpoint of trade and commerce, is closely linked together. No nation, as a matter of fact, can stand alone. Actual isolation would mean ruin. Where, therefore, is the virtue of an ineffective policy of neutrality? When this war ends—and it must end sooner or later—the producers and workers of the world will have to labor hard and bear aditional burdens to recuperate the war's losses. And this condition will bear upon the neutral nations as surely as upon the belligerents. The longer the war lasts the greater will be the burden, and the greater the destruction, the greater will be the load also. When American destroyers recently stood by, and watched a German submarine sink three neutral merchantmen and one British ship, laden with American merchandise, they actually occupied the position of a man who stands idly by watching his house burn down. This is the cold logic of the situation. It is worthy of consideration by every man and woman, on which ever side their sympathies may be enlisted.

JACK LONDON IS DEAD

All lovers of good fiction will regret the early death of Jack London, perhaps the most popular of living American novelists. London wrote of the real, hardworking life of America, with which he had made close acquaintance before success in his chosen profession came to him. His life was short, but it was a very complete one, and into his forty years he had crowded more experience, work and pleasure than many men who exceed the alloted span of three score years and ten. A naturally strenuous, hard-living man, London's life probably was cut short in years by his tremendous expenditure of vital energy in both work and play and in the hardships of his early career. Apart from the entertainment which his stories afford, there is much in his books worthy of study by sociologists, the result of personal experiences and a wonderful power of observation and correct analysis. His life also affords a valuable example of success won by sheer courage, determination and hard work.

Partizan criticism to the contrary notwithstanding, the Herald is glad of Governor Lister's reelection because it means that there is no prospect of a change in some of the state offices operated by the governor's appointees. An instance in point is the state fish commissioner's office. Under L. H. Darwin, this important department has been handled excellently, and a change in that office would have been a serious loss to the state. Under Mr. Darwin's direction the fisheries department has become highly efficient and productive, and the administration of the game laws also has left little to be desired.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS

Douglas County Treasurer Criticised

Irregularities in the handling of Douglas county's finances during the past year have caused total discrepancies of $3,615.79, a portion of which has been paid back, according to the report of the state bureau of inspection of Olympia. The county treasurer comes in for the greater part of the blame, the report saying that although he was warned before, he insists on carrying memoranda as cash on his books. He has loaned out county funds at various times taking memoranda as cash, says the report. In one instance, according to the bureau, he loaned money to the county superintendent for traveling expenses and he also let out county money in this manner to the county engineer for expenses of field deputies.

Bremerton Made Fleet Headquarters

Formal announcement of the selection of the Puget Sound navy yard as headquarters for all ships in the Pacific reserve fleet was made yesterday in an order received by Capt. Robert E. Coontz, commandant of the yard, from the navy department. The order transferring the headquarters from Mare island directs that all ships of the reserve fleet report to the Puget Sound yard; also all ships now being repaired at their home yards are directed to report to the Puget Sound yard as soon as their repairs are completed and await orders. Capt. Coontz said the order further directed that all repairs to ships of the reserve fleet be made at the Bremerton yard, which, he said, virtually meant the removal of more than 2,000 enlisted men and their families to Bremerton. The Pacific reserve fleet comprises sixteen ships, of which the Colorado is the flagship, and is in command of Rear Admiral W. F. Fullam, who will shortly make his headquarters at the Puget Sound yard.

"Lifestaff" is Held Legal

Nonalcoholic substitutes for beer are not barred from manufacture and sale in the state of Washington by the state-wide dry law, according to the ruling of the supreme court, reversing the King county superior court, in the case of the state against Alvin Hemrich, appellant. Hemrich is president of the Seattle Brewing & Malting company, and after the state went dry he began the manufacture of "lifestaff," a malt beverage. After quoting a number of standard dictionaries and other authorities on the meaning of the term "malt liquor," the supreme court comes to the conclusion that "malt liquor" means a malt beverage containing alcohol, and therefore lifestaff is not a malt liquor and does not come within the meaning of the prohibition law.

Shipyard on Lake Washington

Options on twelve acres of land adjoining the Anderson Steamboat company's yards near Kirkland have been taken by Capt. J. L. Anderson, head of the steamboat company and holder of the contracts for the construction of two steel 8,800-ton steamships for Hannevig Brothers, of Norway. The additional land secured gives a total site area of twenty acres with 1,200 feet of water front on Lake Washington. With the announcement of the definite location of the new plant comes the further information that the Anderson company will not only build steel ships, but will also install a marine railway of 1,500 tons capacity and hande repairs for all ships entering the lake. A specialty will be made of wooden vessels because of the advantage of the fresh water, which will kill all marine growth, as well as the teredo, bane of wooden ships.

BILLIE BURKE WHO PLAYS IN "GLORIA'S ROMANCE"

Miss Billie Burke

The second episode of "Gloria's Romance," the charming serial photoplay in which Billie Burke is starred, will be shown at the Dream theater tomorrow evening.

An Open Letter to You

Port Angeles, Wash.
Nov. 21, 1916.

Mr. Out-of-Town Buyer, City,

Dear Friend: Perhaps you have met me and perhaps you haven't. It's your fault as well as my own and I take my share of the blame. Just the same, now that the holiday season is coming on I want to call your attention to a little remark which means a whole lot to you, especially and everybody in particular. What I started out to say was:

PUT YOUR DOLLARS TO WORK IN YOUR OWN HOME TOWN.

Every dollar sent out of our city, decreases the city's income just that much. It means just that much less working capital for all the merchants, professional men, etc, yourself included, and in the end decreases your own income.

When you give a merchant a dollar in exchange for the goods you need, he uses it to pay his help, buy more goods—just the class you insist upon—and purchase necessities for his own family. When you think of it—it is an endless chain—that old iron man just works overtime for the community—that is—if you let him.

If you hear the slogan "Buy at Home," don't pass it carelessly for when you consider a moment you will realize that eventually it will hit you right where you live.

The old saying "Chickens come home to roost" bears up most truthfully when we consider men like you who make it a point to pass up the locally distributed article for the one you can buy outside.

After a most exhaustive investigation the government tells us that each new settler in a community and every old one is worth approximately $3,500 annually to his community. Every time you, who make your living here in this city, send away a dollar you decrease the community income just that much. You also increase the cost of every article purchased at home by your loyal home folks and make every necessity just that much more expensive for them.

Then when you, Mr. Out-of-Town Purchaser, are multiplied by the number of postal and express money orders which leave the city every year, do attempt to buy at home something you have to have in a hurry you are surprised, and very likely object to the prices. You forget to add your expense for money orders, express or freight which you always have to pay. Do you know or have you ever stopped to consider that the total expense for your out of town buying, if taken together and handed to the merchants in proportion to their various lines, would make it possible for them to reduce their present prices considerably?

You may laugh when you see that "BUY AT HOME" slogan, Old Fellow, but take it from me, just as sure as "chickens do come home to roost," if you don't put your dollars to work here where you live, sometime in the near future you will be sorry for it.

Perhaps you hate advice and straight talks, but every time I get the chance I'm going to write to you and put it up to you as I see it. While I have the chance I am going to say to you confidentially, that if I see the merchants are not treating you or me right, I'll tell them a thing or two, for I am

AT YOUR SERVICE,
"CO-OPERATION."

THE "NO-GOOD GUY" IS ENTERTAINING COMEDY

"The No-Good Guy," the new Triangle-Ince release starring William Collier, to be shown at the Lincoln tonight and Friday, follows out the usual Trangle policy of incorporating in one story something for all ages. Therefore, in this film there is ample provision made for the children.

Collier(in character as Jimmy Coghlan, arrives home after a wild evening and prepares for bed. His valet, the hardest-working man in the world next to the proverbial one-armed paper-hanger with the hives, tries to put him to bed.

He insists on smoking a cigarette. The valet tries to persuade him not to for fear he will set the house afire, and, finding his peladings of no avail, undertakes to take the cigarette away from him. But Jimmy holds it in his teeth, and the valet has a bad five minutes.

At last Jimmy gets rid of his troublesome valet and has his room to himself. He goes for a drink; but just as his fingers are about to close on the decanter, the decanter skips away from him to another place on the table. The glass does the same thing, so at last Jimmy gives it up as a problem too difficult for human solution, and prepares for bed.

As he is about to put his foot into bed, the bed slips away from him. He goes after it. It plays a game of hide-and-seek with him about a room already crowded with furniture. In short, before Jimmy has succeeded in retiring, he has made a lasting contribution to the gaiety of nations—and to the children of nations in particular.

COMPULSORY LABOR BILL PASSED BY THE BUNDESRATH

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—"The home army bill" providing for a general labor service for the men who do not go to the front, has passed the Bundesrath.

To Voters of the City of Port Angeles

This is to announce that I have accepted the nomination for City Treasurer on the People's ticket. Although the convention was held without my knowledge, I appreciate the interest taken in me, and after due consideration and upon the advice of prominent business men and many friends I have decided to enter the race again.

The result of the primary election seems to indicate that the public desires a change of administration and for that reason, I feel that I must give the people a fair chance to express their choice which they did not have in the three cornered contest before the primaries.

I wish to thank those who cast their ballots for me in the primaries and will appreciate their generous support again.

I shall cheerfully abide by the voice of the people, be it for or against.

"PASQUALE" FINE VEHICLE FOR GEORGE BEBAN'S GENIUS

"An now da store ess all beelong to me."

This was the remark of Pasquale as played by George Beban in his latest Italian characterization, "Pasquale," produced by the Oliver Morosco Photoplaw company, and featured at the Lincoln Saturday.

Pasquale is the gentle, likeable Italian whose smile is so contagious. Working always towards the goal of his ambitions, to pay off the indebtedness against the grocery store and then to ask Margarita to be his wife.

To one whom he thinks is his friend he proudly boasts of his achievement. He has just cleared off the last of his pledges held against his store. Now he will be able to resolutely ask for his reward. But the long arm of the Italian government reaches into his humble home, as well as into the home of the wealthy banker and holds him to his allegiance.

SPEEDING UP

the production of GOLDEN EGGS

May Be Possible---But Not by the Goose-Killing Method.

The legendary owner of the "Golden Goose," who was not satisfied with the normal production of golden eggs, followed an economic theory which has never been entirely eliminated.

For it has sometimes happened that only half-successful merchants, impatient for profits, have had little difficulty in identifying advertising as their golden goose. And, instead of developing advertising, speeding up in their advertising campaigns, assured of unfailingly steady results, they decide that if they could only "save" all the money they spend for advertising they would really have a handsome annual profit.

So they adopt the economic method of the owner of the golden goose, and stop advertising. Of course, with the same result.

Others, with less decision, do not entirely STOP ADVERTISING. They DO LESS OF IT. They just cut off a leg or a wing from the golden goose. Of course, a golden goose cannot stand too much rough treatment—if she is expected to keep her production of golden eggs regular.

Baker is chairman, that three loads of lumber had been delivered at the lodge, being sufficient for the building of an annex to serve as sleeping quarters for the men, the rebuilding of the porch, and for other improvements. The trail to the spring had been rebuilt and work of improving the big fireplace was well under way. Mr. Baker also reported the putting in of a telephone, through the courtesy of A. L. Phillips, of the Angeles Telephone Co., a member of the club, the ring being Beacon 101. Two "helping hand" days have already been held this month, and a third is scheduled for the coming Saturday. It was also announced that the club now has 69 members, with some $70 in the treasury. While this membership list may seem small in comparison with the thousand members of the Seattle club and branches, it is considered very good for a place of 5,000 and a club hardly two years old.

KLAHHANE CLUB HAS ATTRACTIVE LECTURE COURSE

BEST AUTHORITIES ON MOUNTAINS AND THE JOY OF THEM WILL GIVE ILLUSTRATED TALKS HERE DURING WINTER

To stimulate interest in mountaineering the Klahhane club of Port Angeles is planning a series of lectures, illustrated by stereopticon views of the Olympics and Cascades, the first of which will be given about December 15 by Prof. J. B. Flett, of Longmire Springs on Mount Rainier, chief ranger of the Rainier National Park. Mr. Flett has been a resident of Tacoma for 20 years, beginning as instructor in geology and botany in the early days of the Tacoma high school and continuing at the head of the botanical department. During this time he has explored every nook and cranny of the volcanic peaks of the state, as well as making a study of the flora of the neighboring states and Alaska. As a guest of members of the Klahhane club he has made several trips to this section and several species of Olympic mountain plants bear his name as discoverer.

Seattle Mountaineer on List

Prof. J. N. Bowman, of the department of history, U. of W., one of the leading spirits of the Seattle Mountaineers, and recognized as one of the best lecturers in the state, has very kindly volunteered to assist with his lecture on "The Rise of the Love of the Mountains." Later in January, Miss Lulie Nettleton, state chairman of the conservative department of the Women's Federated clubs, will give an illustrated talk on the evolution of the playground from the school and park cities' playgrounds to the city park, state park and highway park system upon which the club women and commercial and good roads clubs of the state are working.

Prof. Cox's Lecture

Prof. C. E. Cox, department of celtic, U. of W., will lecture in February on "Mountains in English Literature," as the fourth number of the course. This same talk is scheduled for the December meeting of the Seattle Mountaineers when a thousand or more people will turn out to hear him. Asahel Curtis, publicity expert of the Seattle chamber of commerce and originator of the Seattle Moutaineer club, will talk on the Olympic peninsula and on the mountains in general, showing a large number of his beautiful colored slides.

Two special illustrated talks will be included in the course, one on the annual outings of the Seattle Mountaineers, when it is expected that Dr. Hinman, the leading spirit of the Everett branch, or Prof. L. F. Curtis, present chairman of the outing committee, will take charge, and the other on "Mt. Angeles, the Home of the Klahhanes," when 300 views of "our" mountain, and of Klahhane outings to the headwaters of the big rivers, will be shown.

Season tickets for the course will shortly be placed on sale at one dollar each. The course will be in charge of the entertainment committee, Prof. C. E. York, Miss Wiggins and Miss Pazandak, assisted by E. B. Webster, outing committee.

Judge Corwin S. Shank is expected to make a brief talk at the Baptist prayer meeting this evening.
