BESIDES 36 KNOWN TO BE DEAD 167 MINERS ARE MISSING IN GAS AND SMOKE-CHOKED LEVELS OF SPECTATOR MINE

BUTTE, Mont., June 9.—Thirty-six are known to be dead and 167 are missing, as the result of a fire last night in the spectator mine at North Butte.

The fire started at 11:45 o'clock in the lower levels of the mine as the result of a broken power cable. Smoke and gas immediately filled the levels. Four hundred and fifteen men were working at the time. Of these 213 escaped through the levels to other mines.

The gas entered the Diamond mine and killed more men. It is believed some escaped to the High Ore mine. Helmet men are entering the levels this afternoon.

Militiamen, workmen, doctors and nurses are working. Two rescue cars were rushed from Red Lodge to Colorado Springs.

OLYMPIA CORRESPONDENT SEES MILWAUKEE EXTENSION

Application For Grade Crossings Basis of Story of Acquisition of P. A. & G. H. Line

"Indications that the Milwaukee intends to complete its projected line around the north end of the Olympic peninsula, says an Olympic dispatch to the Seattle Times, "and install standard train service, are given in an application of the company to the state public service commission for the establishment of 140 grade crossings on the Seattle, Port Angeles & Western."

The dispatch goes on to record that the Milwaukee is already in Hoquiam and that the Port Angeles & Gray's Harbor company has a line already graded and steel laid for a considerable distance between Elwha and Moclips.

The Port Angeles & Gray's Harbor has surveyed a road but has not graded it; neither has it laid any steel. The Milwaukee has not made any move, it is believed here, towards acquiring any rights of the Port Angeles & Gray's Harbor company.

The celebration of the "Glorious Fourth" by Port Angeles on an elaborate scale is assured, the committees in charge report, owing to the hearty response made to the call for contributions to the fund by citizens who have been approached.

The big program of water sports, including perhaps a race for sailing boats and certainly one for motor boats, a handicap event, and the contests for the lumberjacks and the baseball game, is assured. The organization work is going ahead now with a rush and all concerned are satisfied that the day will be one of the biggest in the history of the city.

ABDUCTED BABY IS FOUND DEAD IN FARM WELL

SEVEN PRISONERS HELD IN CONNECTION WITH CRIME ARE REMOVED FROM SPRINGFIELD, MOB VIOLENCE BEING FEARED

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9.—The body of Lloyd Keet, the 14-months-old son of J. Holland Keets, a wealthy banker, was found today in a well on the Crenshaw farm, near here.

The child was kidnapped more than a week ago.

The body, wrapped in a woman's underwaist, was partly decomposed and apparently had been in the well for two or three days.

Fearing possible mob violence, the seven prisoners, held in connection with the abduction, were taken hurriedly from the city, their destination not announced.

The baby was stolen on the evening of May 30, while his parents attended a dance, leaving the child with its nurse.

It is believed that three men grabbed the child from its crib and escaped in an automobile.

The kidnappers demanded $6,000 ransom and threatened in letters sent the father to murder the child if the police pursuit was maintained. Apparently they carried out the threat.

A coil of wire was found around the baby's body, but death was due to drowning.

Therefore, as our right, we call upon the nation to protect our sons from the moral and physical contamination which we fear more than bullets."

GREEN AND ORANGE FLAGS GO SIDE BY SIDE TO VICTORY

Ulstermen and South of Ireland Troops Carry Center of German Positions on Ridge

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 9. (By Associated Press Staff Correspondent)—On all sides is heard great praise of the Irish troops which participated in the victorious sweep over the very center of the Messines ridges, and to the farthest objective line beyond. Men from the south of Ireland fought alongside organizations from Ulster. There was considerable rivalry among the Irish forces as to which would make the better showing. When the fighting came, however, there was nothing to choose between them.

Th Irishmen swept forward irresistibly and everywhere the German lines fell away, broken by their assaults.

They fought gallantly and impetuously and the only difficulty experienced was in holding them back to the fixed schedule. On the position map, at one of the British headquarters offices, the South Irishmen are represented by green flags and the Ulstermen by orange. They fly side by side.

MORE THAN ONE THOUSAND YOUNG MEN OF MILITARY AGE SIGN UP FOR SELECTIVE DRAFT ARMY IN TOWNS, VILLAGES AND CAMPS

One thousand and eighty-one men of military age in Clallam county have signed up for service under the selective draft act and not one arrest for "slacking" or evasion of the law has so far been reported.

Clallam county exceeded the army estimate of its proportion of men of military age by more than 100, and was thus one of only two counties which achieved this result in the entire state of Washington. In addition to the men who have signed up more than 100 had previously enlisted in either the army or the navy. The complete list follows by precincts:

NEW ENEMY PROPAGANDA IN AMERICA

A peculiarly sinister campaign has been launched by the pro-Germans, the Pacifists and other enemies of America in place of the open partizanship with the Teuton cause which of necessity was dropped when the United States entered the war. The popular belief that the people who have been paid millions by the German government in the past few years to spread pro-German propaganda in America, and their less active sympathizers, threw up their hands and made up their minds to be good, is a fallacy. The same people who sought to confuse the issues of the war in the American mind in 1914, 1915 and 1916 are at work in 1917; they have merely changed their methods a trifle. One reason why the Herald was among the few newspapers to raise its voice in approval of some reasonable measure of newspaper censorship was based upon a rather intimate study of the German propagandists and knowledge that their activities would not be less dangerous because perhaps more carefully covered up than before the declaration of war. The Herald believes that such organs as the German Press of Seattle and some 50 similar publications in various cities of the nation, the Charleston, S. C., American, suspiciously launched a year ago, and others of the same origin, should be suppressed forthwith and their owners and editors interned.

The Literary Digest, this week, under the heading "Treason's Twilight Zone," calls attention to the subtle form of treason that is being used to weaken the nation and confuse Americans.

The Chicago Herald says: "It is about time for the hamstringers that are lurking in the tall grass and the sabotagists who are trying to throw monkey wrenches into the war machinery to shut off or look for unpleasant consequences. These hidden-landers do not come out into the open. They work in an insidious way. Under the guise of American citizenship they rise up every now and then to demand why the United States is in the war and what its intentions are . . We are in it to do our best to put Prussian autocracy in a straight-jacket or in the grave. We are in it to win."

The New York Globe says in this connection: "The Prussian idea that in war anything can be done, that alleged military necessity is an excuse for any act, has been imported into this country by young men who have fallen under German influence. To suppress this heresy both in this country and in the world is one of the objects of this war. The man who does not understand this has something fundamentally wrong with his Americanism. He should do something toward recovering his morality and should not be surprised if his fellow citizens assess him as he deserves to be assessed—namely, as alien in heart and out of sympathy with his country's cause and the world's cause."

❖ ❖ ❖

One of the most curious phases of the agitation is the propaganda against the allies of the United States. Many German sympathizers are going up and down saying that they are willing to fight for the United States but they hate to think that they must help Britain, or France. This is all part of the same game, the effort, in one way or another, to sow discord and weaken the arms striking at Teuton autocracy. The Allies are fighting for one cause which is of overwhelming importance to the future of civilization. To succeed there must be unanimity of thought and consolidation of effort.

SIDESHOWS AT PUBLIC CELEBRATIONS

In the interest of the public purse as well as of local amusement enterprises the Herald is of the opinion that the committee at work upon the Fourth of July celebration should not engage many of the so-called sideshows for the holiday. These are not as a rule very interesting or improving in their character and they merely take money out of town that otherwise would pass through local amusement concerns, with a better grade of entertainment. The management of one of the local theaters remarked to the Herald today that they usually were among the largest subscribers to celebration funds and never did business as large as if the additional amusement enterprises, to the cost of bringing which they contribute, were not in town.

Concrete Paving Contracts

K. Sauset, Bellingham contractor, was awarded the contract to build seven miles of concrete road running due north from Ferndale and known as the "River road." The bid was $108,316.40. Bids on seven miles of pavement on the Blaine-Ferndale road reached $123,566.29, the lowest, submitted by Ledington & Cooper, of Vancouver, B. C. The highest bid on this road was $135,452, by the Ferguson Construction company, of Seattle. This bid and one for $54,000 for two and one-half miles of pavement on the Geneva road were taken under consideration by the board of county commissioners.

Lieut. Heron, U. S. N., a Suicide

Lieut. Kenneth Heron, U. S. N., 34 years old, inspector of government work at the plant of the Seattle Construction & Dry Dock company, Seattle, was found dead in his room at the Kitsap Inn, Bremerton, last night with a revolver wound in his head. Under orders from Capt. Robert E. Coontz, U. S. N., commandant of the naval station, Puget Sound, an investigation was conducted to determine whether the wound was self inflicted. The findings of the investigating board will be reported to Captain Coontz, who will forward them to Washington, D. C., at once. The lieutenant was unmarried. As far as could be determined his only surviving relative is his mother, who lives at San Francisco. For a time Lieutenant Heron was superintendent of new work at the naval station. It is said that the lieutenant was expected to assume command of one of the submarines under construction in Seattle.

SCENE FROM "A WOMAN ALONE" AT THE DREAM THEATRE TONIGHT

The cry of all the motion picture concerns at the present day seem to be for better stories. It is easily conceivable that if good heart-interest tales are not filmed, the acting, no matter how good, is very apt to appear slow and draggy.

World pictures were the first to recognize this necessity, and the splendid stories which have symbolized all their features have proved the contention that "the story is half the battle."

Novel themes have been a very big item in these features, and the play offered at the Dream tonight is founded on a very unusual and yet beautiful situation.

The piece has been aptly called "A Woman Alone" and is one which required very careful handling both in the direction and in the cast selected to present the different characters.

In selecting Alice Brady to portray the leading role, the most perfect selection imaginable has been made. The rise of this young girl to a front rank in stardom has been meteoric, and the best part of it all is that she is still ascending, by having each successive release in which she appears, better than the previous one.

FRENCH COMEDIAN AT DREAM SUNDAY

One of the new series of brilliant comedies centering around Max Linder, recently returned to filmdom from the trenches, is "Max Seeks a Divorce." It will be shown at the Dream Sunday.

FATTY ARBUCKLE AT LINCOLN SUNDAY

To be one of the highest salaried film comedians in the world is an achievement but when you add ability to cook the combination is to say the least unusual. Such, however, is the distinction of Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle whose second comedy two-reeler "A Reckless Romeo" is to be shown at the Lincoln tomorrow.

Mr. Arbuckle is not a professional chef. Oh, no. Like Topsy, he "just growed up" to be a chef. Nobody suspected his skill in the culinary art until recently during the making of the studio scenes for "A Reckless Romeo." Part of the stage settings included a gas stove and "Fatty" remarked that it was a shame not to put it to practical use. "You get the raw materials and I'll cook a meal for the troupe," he suggested.

Then he surprised them by pulling off his coat, rolling up his sleeves and starting the gas stove going. He announced that he would cook an Italian meal with spaghetti, salad and lemon pie. Moreover, he did it in fine shape.

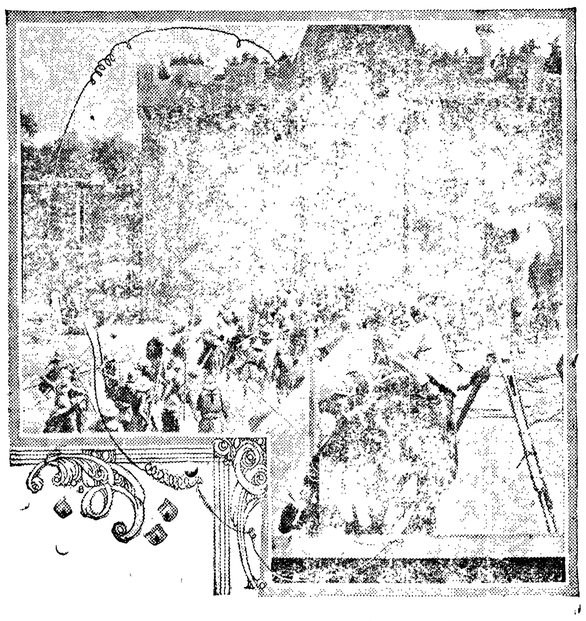
Telephones Direct Motion Picture Army



For the first time in the history of motion picture making an army of two thousand photoplay actors on horseback and afoot was directed, in scenes representing the great French battle of Patay, by a system of telephones installed by Cecil B. De Mille, producer of the picture based on the story of Joan of Arc.

The star of the production is Geraldine Farrar, famous Metropolitan prima donna, who participated in the midst of the stirring battle scenes. Usually it is a matter of more than a week to obtain artistic battle scenes for the motion picture camera. Mr. De Mille, forever facing the problem of making valuable use of the precious time of Miss Farrar, took less than half that space of time for the Joan of Arc production by installing on the two mile battlefield a system of telephone communication between himself and assistants.

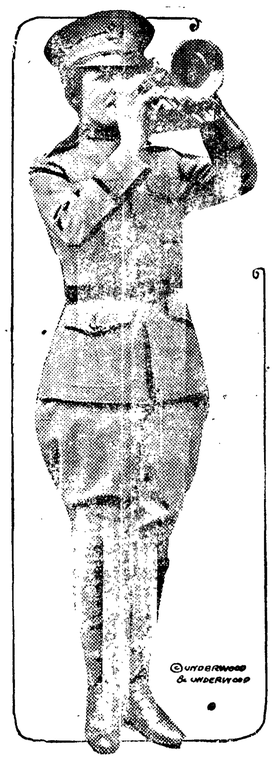
Remember the Lusitania and buy a Liberty Loan Bond.

BUY A LIBERTY BOND



Every citizen should own a Liberty Bond. Indications so far in the county have shown that the vital importance of this issue has not been realized. Without arms and ammunitions and food our soldiers would be sacrificed! They seek to protect YOUR liberty What is it worth to you? It is not a donation that is asked as your patriotic duty, merely a loan to a fund to protect you, and with the liberal terms of one dollar payment and one dollar per week every man and woman over 20 years of age should possess one or more of these bonds. You receive interest twice a year and the money so invested is free from taxation. No one can take your place and your action today endorses it for your neighbor. A list of all subscribers will be published on a subscribers board at Front and Laurel streets, and each night the totals of subscriptions registered. Clallam county's share is $80,300. At the close of subscription date, June 15, all names of subscribers will be published in the local papers. The country needs your help Phone No. 3 for a Boy Scout messenger, he will explain it and furnish you a blank. *
