INDISCRIMINATE MASSACRES OCCUR ON PETROGRAD STREETS

ALLIES CLOSE IN ST. QUENTIN ON TWO SIDES

PROGRESS IS MADE TOWARDS THE HINDENBURG LINE FROM POINT FURTHEST AWAY — ALLIES ENCIRCLING ST. QUENTIN FROM NORTH AND SOUTH.

The British were again moving forward today toward the Hindenburg line on the one sector where they are still some distance from it near the center of the allied battlefront. Some progress was made in the Vermand region where the British are closing in upon St. Quentin from the north, while the French are pushing up from the south.

New Foothold.

Further north the British have gained a foothold in the twin towns of Reiziere and Epehy, two and one-half miles from the Hindenburg line opposite Le Catelet. The Germans are resisting desperately here as this section of the line forms part of the defense of Cambrai.

French Drive On La Fere.

The French drive on La Fere is reported to have made notable progress with the capture of Travecy on the Hindenburg line two miles directly south of La Fere. The holding of this ground would result in the outflanking of La Fere on the northrely side.

Huns Attack Fruitlessly.

The Germans also have been attacking desperately on the French front where the line runs north from the Aisne towards the St. Gobain Massif. They are attempting to drive the American-French forces there off Mont Rouge plateau, the allied occupation of which is threatening the flanking of the line far to the east. All their efforts, however, have been fruitless.

Lys Sector.

In the Lys sector, Armentiers is almost within the grasp of the British who are advancing from the north and west. Armentieres is used by the Germans as a supply center and next to Douai, it is the most important point in the enemy system of military roads of communication. The British are slowly driving a wedge in the direction of Douai which is reported burning.

GOOD AUDIENCE HEARS GROSSMITH RECITAL

English Musician Received With Warmth and Musical Technique Greatly Appreciated

There was a good house at the Lincoln last night to hear Mr. Leslie Grossmith, the nephew of the original Grossmith, who was one of the, if not the originator of the drawing room entertainer. Mr. Grossmith does not claim to be a comedian—his work would run on other lines if he did—he is a humorist musician, a very different thing. But the first number he gave, a galop composed by his Polish teacher, was well worth the price paid for admission, if that had been the only thing heard. His own composition, which closed the recital, displayed brilliant technique and vivacity portrayed the marching feet daily crossing the French roads to the battlefront. No one could help thinking of the fighting units in whom the whole interest of the world is concentrated.

The character sketches were excellent and thoroughly appreciated by those in the audience who had seen and heard the originals. But Mr. Grossmith's task was about as difficult as characterizing a lumberjack to an audience who had barely heard of and never met him. Port Angeles is to be congratulated in that it had the opportunity to see and hear an entertainer who is widely known in many lands.

She's Taming Them All
This Pretty Girl Sergeant

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11.—The police station at River Forest, one of the most exclusive residential sections of suburban Chicago, would not have been different from any other station in a small village until—

A pretty blond of 19 summers and a "million dollar" smile was made a full-fledged police sergeant.

Sergeant Viola Lorenzen had been telephone operator at the station, but she wanted to do more in the way of doing her bit "over here" while the boys were "over there," and her appointment followed.

Chief of Police R. C. Goss says she is a wonderful officer and has tamed many a rough character in the station and the absence of profane language is getting quite noticeable.

But—

Who could get rough when he was before a desk sergeant such as Miss, or rather, Sergeant Lorenzen? Why, you'd forget what you were brought in for.

The offices of state senator, county attorney, county clerk, county school superintendent, commissioner third district, county engineer, justice of the peace and constable were left to the central committee to fill within the next twenty days.

The declaration of principles of the party was thoroughly considered; two additional planks were added and some slight changes made in the wording.

GERMANS HAVE NEW ANTI-TANK RIFLE

PARIS, Sept. 11.—In the recent offensives, in which the tanks have played so splendid a part, the Germans have been using a new type of anti-tank rifle to no avail. It contains a cartridge about four inches long which has a pointed bullet. The weapon weighs about thirty-six pounds and is more than five feet long, sights up to 500 yards and fires single shots.

EXPLOSION KILLS ONE AND INJURES SEVERAL OTHERS

ONE DEATH AND MANY INJURED ACCORDING TO REPORTS RECEIVED FROM THE EDDYSTONE MUNITION PLANT IN PHILADELPHIA — FIRST REPORTS GREATLY EXAGGERATED.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 11.—One man is known to have been killed and twenty-five girls, most of them colored, were injured in an explosion late this afternoon at the Eddystone Munition Plant. Early reports placed the number of dead at eight or more and the injured as high as one hundred. There was an explosion at this plant in April, 1917, in which one hundred thirty-nine were killed and hundreds injured. The cause of the explosion has not been determined as yet.

NEW QUARTERS FOR Y. M. C. A.

The new quarters of the Y. M. C. A. are growing apace. Some delightful appearing ivory paper was being used to decorate the walls today. It is planned to have the floor painted an ivory color to correspond, while a dado of tan will probably be used. Mr. Collins reported today, however, that he was afraid everything would not be finished in time for the week end business.

TROOPSHIP IS ATTACKED AND DESTROYED

TROOPSHIP WITH TWENTY-EIGHT HUNDRED AMERICANS IS DESTROYED. — EVERYONE TRANSFERRED TO WAITING DESTROYERS WITHOUT LOSS OF A SINGLE LIFE.

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 10.—A troopship with twenty-eight hundred American soldiers on board has been torpedoed. All hands were saved. The troopship was beached.

New Way.

In order to save time, instead of launching the boats the men clambored down ropes to destroyers which swarmed around the stricken vessel and came close alongside. This operation was greatly facilitated by the fact that the sea was not rough.

Part of Convoy.

The troopship was a member of a large convoy approaching the English coast. The vessel was torpedoed two hundred miles from shore at three o'clock on Friday afternoon.

Successful Transfer.

The transfer of the American soldiers from the stricken vessel to American and British torpedo boat destroyers was made quickly without losing anyone. They all escaped injury when the torpedo exploded and hey were soon on the way to a British port.

Soldiers' Story.

Several soldiers told the Associated Press that they saw the German submarine lifted clear out of the water after one of the depth bombs exploded and then entirely disappear.

Third Troopship.

The troopship destroyed last Friday is the third carrying troops to be attacked with any degree of success. The Tuscania was sunk off the Irish Coast in February. Of the 1912 officers and men on board, 204 perished. The Moldavia was sunk May 23, when fifty-five American lives were lost.

LATER—

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The steamship torpedoed off the English coast Sept. 6, as reported in a London dispatch today, was the steamship "Persic" of the White Star line, of 12,042 tons, according to reliable information received in marine circles today.

HUN REGIMENT REFUSES TO OBEY ORDERS

MUTINY OF 25TH REGIMENT AT COLOGNE LEADS TO BLOODY FIGHT AT THE STATION WHEN 11 YOUNG SOLDIERS WERE KILLED AND MANY OTHERS INJURED.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 11.—A German regiment, the 25th, mutinied at Cologne, August 31, according to the Telegraph. An eye witness of the incident said that the soldiers on being ordered to the Western front, refused to board a train. Another regiment was then ordered to force them to enter the cars, but they refused to fire on their comrades. A detachment of the Home Defense Guards, composed of youths, was then ordered to undertake the task and a fight followed in which eleven boys of the Defense Guards were killed and many others injured.

King George has a good voice. Of all the speakers at the recent opening of Australia House in London the king was most distinctly heard.

Hero of Cinder Track Finds Laurels on the Battlefields

By Paul Purman.

With the increasing length of the casualty lists from the west front, more and more frequently we find names which in former years met our eyes on the sport page, names of men famous in some lines of athletic endeavor.

More and more of these names may be expected in the future, because the American army abroad includes a liberal sprinkling of famous athletes.

The first of the really great American athletes to meet his death "over there" since Johnny Poe was killed in French service was Johnny Overton, perhaps the greatest of all Yale track athletes, who died going "over the top" in July.

Overton became famous on account of his distance running. In 1915 and 1916 he was the leading track athlete in American colleges. In 1917, before entering government service he was captain of the Yale track squad.

During the years he actively engaged in distance running Overton ran more middle distance races than any American college athlete in this history of track sport.

His two greatest achievements in track were the setting of the world 1000-yard record indoors, which he negotiated in 2:14 and the lowering of the mile indoor mark at 4:16.

A few days ago announcement came of the death in action of Fred Norton, in the aviation corps. Norton was a halfback on the western conference championship Ohio State team in 1916. He was the first of the conference champions' names to appear in the casualty lists.

The names of three other football stars of recent years have appeared as having been killed in action: Captain Howard McCall, formerly captain of the Pennsylvania University team; Captain Philip Mills, a Harvard gridiron star at Harvard, and Shull of Stagg's Chicago team.

SENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Sept. 11.—The Boston Red Sox are the non essential world series champions of 1918. They defeated the Chicago Cubs by a score of two to one today in a tight game which was featured with fine fielding. Final score:

Batteries—Chicago: Tyler, Hendrix, Killifer and O'Farrell; Boston: Mays and Schang.

JUNKER CABAL MAY BE FATAL TO THE KAISER

WILHELM SAID TO FEAR SECRET BODY OF WEALTHY LANDOWNERS AND MERCHANTS WHO CONTROL EMPIRE'S DESTINIES —RADICAL GROUP DEMANDS DOWNFALL OF PAN-GERMANISM

BERNE, Sept. 11.—The vague reports as to the powers responsible for the recent German offensives, for the continuance of the submarine warfare, for the illusionary Brest-Litovsk peace and for all the crimes that can be laid at Germany's door, have brought to light the work of one of the most autocratic and despotic organizations in the world.

The kaiser fears and obeys it, as the Hohenzollern dynasty depends on it for its continuance. The Reichstag fights vainly against its decrees, while the people themselves are lulled into dreams of conquest and peace by its promises.

This secret and powerful body is known as the "Independent Commission for a German Peace," and true to its name it seeks to force a German-made peace down the throats of the allied nations, regardless of the cost to the people of the central empires.

Rich Men In It.

Its members include practically all the big Prussian landowners, rich manufacturers and high military officers. The control of the German press with but a few exceptions lies in its hands, and its voice carries the final say in all military matters.

Hndenburg, Ludendorff, Count Hertling and Foreign Minister Hintze are but the mouthpieces of these superjunkers, and the work of these men is but an example of the work of the others in Germany proper.

It was the secret power of this organization that has forced from public office all those with any taint of offering the allies a fair deal. Bethmann-Hollweg, Michaelis and recently Kuehlmann were forced out through the activities of these men.

The organization of the Fatherland party under the leadership of Admiral von Tirpitz, of submarine fame, has been one of its steps in deluding the people as to its real aims.

Radicals Fight Cabal.

The Fatherland Party has been calling upon all good Germans to rally to its banners, to help defend their country against the invaders, to annex all territories conquered and to force Germany's enemies to pay for the war. However, of late this party has been falling into disrepute, its true character having been brought to light.

With the recent defeats inflicted upon the German armies by the allies, a small but powerful group of radica aided by the shipbuilding and ind trial magnates of Hamburg and Rhine cities, has set forth to wr the control of German policies out the hands of these junkers.

This group wants peace at any pr to stage off an economic war after war which will mean ruin to them a to Germany.

Editorial

EDITORIAL INDEPENDENCE AND LICENSE.

Some time ago the Herald commented on the suggestion of a friend that editors ought to be licensed, like doctors or lawyers, to insure their readers of at least ordinary intelligence and moral standards being represented in the editorial columns. The subject of editorial independence lately has been under review widely in the United States as the result of disclosures regarding the sale of the New York Evening Post to the Huns and latterly to Wall Street interests. The fact is that editorial independence in the United States is somewhat rare. For every man who is able to write his honest convictions into the editorial columns there are probably six who are writing some other man's views and laughing at them in the seclusion of their studies. It is clear that, no matter what honest effort may be made by J. P. Morgan, or any other plutocrat who owns newspapers, as a side-issue, to give his editors a free rein, there will always be a limit to the freedom, wherever and whenever the special interests of big finance are involved. And these interests are fairly broad. Octopus-like, their tentacles reach far and wide over the nation through the medium of the banks, and the latter's control of big and little business.

The game of fooling the public, which is what the average editorial effort of the average newspaper periodically amounts to, is not satisfying either to the writer or the reader. The latter is becoming increasingly wise, and he reads the editorials generally with some doubt. By degrees the hired editor, with Wall Street or Amalgamated Copper or Standard Oil peeping over his shoulder, becomes somewhat befuddled. His originally clear mind becomes clouded. The ordinary liar, after years of indulgence in his pastime, is incapable himself of knowing the truth or whether he is telling it. And the man who continually prostitutes his reasoning powers to dress up falsities as verities, gradually becomes incapable of distinguishing between them.

On the other hand editors are human. Some have brains and no heart and some have hearts which run away with their heads. The oldtime political writer with his rubbishly "scorching" of his opponent, and indulgence in furious exaggerations and intentional misrepresentations, has lost out, and is being replaced in the Kept Press by more wilely prevaricators. But the whole business of presenting problems in economics, which the practical side of politics represents, colored to suit any special interest or privilege, is rotten. And no man capable of accepting a salary for doing this sort of thing would be able to pass the moral standard required for the editorial license.

And who would own the newspapers presided over by these emancipated and licensed editors? The special interests and the professional politicians would have no use for them and the whole system of publishing newspapers in the United States would have to be revolutionized. So far, with the exception of the late James Gordon Bennett, William Randolph Hearst, the Scripps-McCrae syndicate and a few other publishers, the business of owning newspapers has been for the purpose of acquiring an advantage over an opponent in the game of business or politics. Control of a newspaper has meant a "pull," which is what all people devoid of sportsmanship seek. And the misinformation of the public has been the method by which the "pull" was acquired.

Times are changing. The public is demanding a free press, in the real meaning of the phrase. It does not want newspapers controlled by erratic editors or slanderers or crooks, any more than it wants newspapers controlled by Wall Street magnates or trusts. Here and there over the land newspapers honestly devoted to the general welfare are coming into existence, usually in a small way, and are attracting public support. It is probable that the public having perceived that an honest press can only exist when the people and not some private or special interest meets the payrolls will gradually extend the necessary support, and the old Kept Press will be replaced with newspapers controlled by public opinion and conducted by honest editors.

THE CRISIS NEAR ON THE WEST FRONT.

The progress of the struggle along the West Front has reached the critical stage when the ability of the Germans to hold along the Hindenburg line will be tested. The British have penetrated some of the defenses constituting the line and the French are seriously threatening the southern flank. The salients of the Lys, on the Somme and of Noyon as well as that in the Aisne-Marne sector created by the spring drives of the Huns have been wiped out at surprisingly small cost to the Allies and at heavy cost to the enemy and the theory that unless the Germans could reach their objectives they would have to retreat has been proved accurate. Now the British are well along the roads to Douai, Cambrai and St. Quentin while the French and Americans are menacing the string of fortifications of Laon and La Fere. If General Foch can maintain his strategy of local thrusts followed by pinching movements for the next few days the Hindenburg line may be made untenable and the retreat of the Germans from France and Belgium may be forced.

At an early stage of developments the Germans may be expected to attempt a counter attack on a large scale. They probably have 300,000 reserves available for this purpose but Gen. Foch may be counted upon not to be caught napping. He holds the trump card, in any event, in the army of General Pershing, which far outnumbers the German reserves. It is estimated that the proportion of the opposing forces on the present battle front is about seven to six in favor of the Allies, there being approximately six German armies facing seven Allied armies. This is not a large margin for the purpose of ousting the enemy from strong positions, but time plays in the Allies' favor and Foch's reserves are growing as steadily as Hindenburg's are declining. The tone of recent messages to the German people indicates that Ludendorff and Hindenburg intend to attempt a counter blow to arrest the Allied advance at the earliest possible moment when such a move can be made under promising conditions.

CONFESSIONS OF A WAR BRIDE

CHAPTER ELEVEN

I Go Out Riding With Tony Curt—and Lucy Searle Sees Me!

"Perhaps you'll let me take you for a spin," said Dr. Certeis as the train load of recruits pulled away.

Tony always did take command of me when he had an opportunity, not ever obtrusively but as if his way were undeniably the one which would give me most comfort and pleasure. Just now his suggestion would do both for I was flushed and trembling with excitement.

"I've a patient at the end of the boulevard," he explained as he helped me into his car.

"Most of those boys are going to come back in better shape than they are now. Think of Jim," he said as he turned into the cool and quiet lake drive. "And don't be so solemn about them, Jeanne," he said earnestly.

It was the first time he had ventured to use his old name for me since my marriage. I glanced up quickly and met his splendid blue eyes looking squarely into mine. And immediately I became most uncomfortable.

I had never felt this way when he had flashed that penetrating glance at me in my girlhood days. This was the first time I had gone anywhere with a man other than my husband since I had worn my wedding ring. And I began to feel as if I hadn't any right to be riding with Tony Curt now. My reason did not disapprove, but my feeling did, decidedly.

What made the difference, I wondered. Perhaps we were, both of us, too sophisticated. Glances which were only uninformed coquetry two years ago, seemed to have acquired a deeper meaning, a primitive and elemental significance, now that I am a wife.

Either I have made a discovery, I thought, or else reading a lot of modern literature has made me too self-conscious for a real lady.

Dr. Certeis must have the intuition of the born physician. He seemed actually to read my thought, and to relieve my embarrassment. He succeeded, too, for as I sat in the car by the edge of the lake while he made his professional visit, I meditated on what is happening "over there," as I always do whenever I am aone.

As we were held up in the traffic jam where Main crosses High street, we nodded to Lucy Searle, standing on the cross walk. She smiled significantly. It was just the sort of a smile she will have when she says, "Girls, guess whom I saw joy-riding! Jane Lorimer, that little saint, and Hamilton Certeis!"

And of course I was late to luncheon. Jimmie, whistled "Over there! Over there!" in my ear, most impertinently, as he pushed my chair up to the table. I've slapped Jim for less, when we were children. But I knew perfectly well that he did not mean to reprove me. He was only teasing.

Nevertheless, I couldn't help thinging that a great many wives of soldiers are going to be awfully lonesome before their men come back, and some are going to risk being unwisely gay, I fear.

So fast I'm learning what life means, now I am a ware bride! I think I'll set down for my own future warning some "little rules of conduct for wives" as experience hands them to me.

To begin with, I've learned today: "DON'T YET ANY MAN CHEAPEN YOUR HUSBAND BY LOOKING AT YOU AS IF HE WOULD LIKE TO BE YOUR HUSBAND."

Mothers Thank Us

Keep your growing girls free from colds and weakening coughs and you are helping them to healthy vigorous womanhood.

Thousands of mothers have written letters of thanks, telling what has done for their daughters in ridding them of coughs that "hung on" and weakened them just at the age when the young girls required all the physical strength they could command.

Foley's Honey and Tar is noted for its quick effect on coughs, colds and croup. Mrs. Ada Sanders, Cottentown, Tenn., writes:—"We use Foley's Honey and Tar as our best and only cough remedy. It never fails to cure our two girls when they have colds."

LABOR FIRMLY BACKS UP WAR

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 11.—Arthur Henderson, leader of the labor party in the house of commons, declared in a speech here today that labor's international policy was not one of compromise with the militarist rulers of Germany or of surrender to the predatory aims of the German imperialists. It was not a policy of weakness and disunion such as led the Russian people to the debacle to win the war for democracy and freedom.

Mr. Henderson said he was bitterly disappointed with the attitude of the German socialist majority and declared there could not be an international conference until the parties in the central empires accepted the inter-allied labor memorandum as the basis of discussion.

ACTION APLENTY IN THIS COMEDY

One of the finest comedies turned out by Paramount-Mack Sennett in many months is "She Loved Him Plenty," featuring Ben Turpin, Polly Moran and Charles Lynn, which will be presented at the Lincoln theater on Thursday and Friday. The action is rapid and every situation is mirth-provoking.

The story deals with a woman pawn broker and her two clerks, one of whom she loves. A beautiful rival is thrust into her Eden by a rascally gypsy and trouble follows. The action transpires largely on the sea shore and here Ben Turpin and Polly Moran are in their element. There are some incidental scenes in the pawnshop which, it is said, are unusually comical. The comedy bristles with life and action and the direction and photography are notably fne.

CALIFORNIA MAN GAINS 18 POUNDS

Smith Feels Like New Man Since Taking Tanlac — Suffered Thirty Years.

One of the strongest and most convincing evidences of the popularity of Tanlac throughout America is the large number of letters that are being received daily from well known men and women, telling of the remarkable results they have derived from its use.

Among the many received in the past few days is one from John Smith, 313 Eighth Street, Richmond, California, which is especially interesting. Mr. Smith states that he had suffered for twenty years, with his stomach, liver and kidneys, and had reached the point where he wished each breath would be the last. He also says that when he began taking Tanlac he weighed only one hundred and forty-eight pounds, but that he now weighs one hundred and sixty-six—making a gain of eighteen pounds—and that he feels like a new man. Following is his letter in full:

"To whom it may concern: "I, the undersigned, can truthfully say that the wonderful medicine known as Tanlac has done more for me in thirty days time, than any other medicine I have ever taken before in all my life. I have been a sufferer from stomach, liver and kidney troubles for twenty years. I have taken six bottles of Tanlac, and today I feel like a new man.

"Before I started using Tanlac it didn't make any difference what I would eat or drink, it distressed me so much that I wished the next breath would be my last. Also when I started taking this wonderful medicine, I only weighed one hundred and forty-eight pounds. Today I weigh one hundred and sixty-six pounds—have gained eighteen pounds already—and am still gaining. Also before taking Tanlac I couldn't sleep either night or day, but now I average about nine hours steady sleep and I have an appetite like a horse. I am now fifty years of age and I can't praise Tanlac too much for what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Port Angeles by Owl Drug Store, in Dungeness by Wm. A. Monson, in Sequim by F. D. Babcock, in Blyn by W. B. Main and in Mora by W. F. Taylor.

MUSIC LOVERS RESCUE PIANO UNDER FIRE

Carrying Off a Red-hot Stove Has Little On Moving a Piano Under Machine Gun and Shell Fire.

Trying to carry off a piano on which the Huns were playing with a machine gun at the time was the unusual night's experience of two Y. M. C. A. secretaries and three Anzac orderlies on the Australian sector, as reported in Paris. Music had such charms for this quintette that, after finding the ponderous piano too heavy to carry through the ruins of the "Y" hut, the five adventurers tried to remove a smaller upright, only to have it stick in the doorway. Without waiting for the exit to be widened by the shells which were coming over, the soldiers and Red Triangle men fled with a moving picture machine, just as the Boche began putting down explosives in all seriousness.

A. J. Gould, a "Y" secretary with the Anzacs, who tells the story says that when the Hun advance forced a retirement, the hut was burned. The Germans quickly were pushed back to the outskirts of town. Believing the pianos and another moving picture machine intact, Gould, with another secretary and an orderly, cycled by a back road into town under cover of night to investigate. The Germans put over a shell on speculation which burst above a house in which they took shelter. On reaching the ruined "Y" hut, they found the pianos and movie apparatus in usable condition.

The two secretaries with three orderlies who volunteered got a motor lorry and started for the hut the following night.

Don't Go Ahead!

Two miles from town a sentry advised them against proceeding, saying that Fritz had been shelling the place twenty minutes before, but the adventurers went forward cautiously, stopping to listen for shelling, dodging craters. The lorry's engine back-fired noisily, challenging an artillery repy, and because the side lane was blocked by debris the truck was driven up the main street to the hut door, under direct observation by the Boche. One man was left to back the lorry up to the door while the others went into the roofless hut.

The piano proved too heavy for four men to carry over 200 yards of wreckage, so they turned to the motion picture machine and kicked off its supports. A machine gun was chattering but the men worked on, one carrying the switchboard, another a box of tools and the other three the machine. They passed over the interior debris and had gone 100 yards when the whole neighborhood was lighted up by a German flare. Each stood dead still until the betraying glare had died out.

With the cinema safely in the lorry, the men started back for a second piano known to be stored in a nearby house, when they ran into a blinding beam of light playing down the main street—an enemy trench searchlight. The machine gun began rattling briskly again. Its deadly tune caused the volunteer piano-movers to speed up their work, but they could not push the piano through the narrow door. To make the dramatic interest more intense the lorry driver shouted that he was going to leave because the Germans had sent up red rocket signals for the artillery to search the town for the music lovers and three shells had been dropped.

So, with the shells curving overhead they violated the speed regulation going away from there, carry the picture machine and leaving the enemy artillery to practice on two pianos.

WORN NERVES

Nervous troubles, with backache, dizzy spells, queer pains and irregular kidneys, give reason to suspect kidney weakness and to try the remedy that has helped your neighbors.

Mrs. A. A. Cook, 2212 S. Rockerfeller St., Everett, Wash., says: "My back ached in a dull way most all the time. Night and day my back ached and throbbed and I could hardly turn in bed. At times awful pains in my sides nearly put me down and my kidneys were congested, too. I was so nervous, I could fly and my arms and hands were so numb at times I had no feeling in them. I tried different medicines for kidney trouble, but didn't seem to get along as I should until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. After I had taken about six or eight boxes, I was practically cured. Since then, when I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, a box or two of Doan's Kidney Pills has soon helped me."

DRY GOODS

IN SPITE OF WAR AND HIGH WATER

If you wanted to sell a second-hand automobile, or rent a house, you would put an advertisement in the paper and run it a few times or until you sold the machine or rented the house, and then you would quit.

If you were manufacturing goods or running a store, you would maintain your advertising continuously, because you would not be aiming to make one sale, but many—as many as you could. All right. Now comes along a war and upsets your supply of raw material, or made-up goods, or maybe the government takes over your output or curtails it, thereby either completely or partially eliminating your civilian trade. Would it be worth while to continue your advertising? That is the question that many of our big industries are facing. What are they doing? With hardly an exception they are continuing. Not with a view of influencing immediate sales. Not at all. But, realizing that present conditions are going to melt back into history at no very distant date they are keeping alive their names and reputations. If they discontinued, think of the millions of dollars of good will value back of all those trade marks and names that would be lost, or greatly reduced. Preservation is nature's first law. Preservation of prestige is likewise the first law of business.

Among the larger industries to maintain, and in fact increase, their advertising this fall, the Wm. Wrigley Jr. Company is noted, as evidenced by the "copy" now running on a frequent schedule i nthe Herald. Welcome, Mr. Wrigley, and we hope our local merchants will be heartened by your energy.

Also, Mr. Wrigley, may we commend your attitude of injecting a strong patriotic note in your advertising, instead of the usual sales talk about "Wrigley's" being great for appetite and digestion? We understand the soldiers and sailors are taking most of your output and that we at home will have to chew our Wrigley's a little longer. All right. "The flavor lasts" anyway, and we won't have to go completely without, judging from the stocks of your goods our merchants are apparently able to maintain in spite of war and high water.

We agree with Gen. Sherman in his definition of war, and we also agree with Mr. Wrigley in his statement that we must win this war and that until we do nothing else really matters.

In this connection, may we be permitted to remark that newspaper space is receiving earnest attention in these days of momentous news, and that the columns of the Herald are just as valuable as they ever were, if not more so, in stimulating good will and in maintaining the prestige of the goods, the trade marks and the names set forth therein.
