SERB PRISONERS SOLD AS SLAVES TO TURKEY BY ENEMY

AMERICAN ACE OF ACES SACRIFICES HIS LIFE ON BATTLELINE

GERMANS HURLED BACK FROM FORWARD LINE OF HINDENBURG POSITION

AMERICAN TROOPS ARE CONSOLIDATING THEIR NEW LINE—IMPROBABLE THAT A NEW ASSAULT WILL BE MADE AT ONCE IN ST. MIHIEL SALIENT — GERMANS HAVE BEEN HURLED BACK ACROSS THE HINDENBURG LINE IN THE ST. MIHIEL SECTOR IN SPITE OF THEIR VICIOUS COUNTER ATTACKS.

(By Associated Press)

British troops in desperate fighting are plunging further into the Hindenburg line north of St. Quentin, while west of Cambrai they have withstood vicious counter attacks. The enemy is making every effort to retain his position on the thirty mile front and to check the new allied move which threatens both St. Quentin and Cambrai.

Menace To Line.

How serious was the menace to the security of the Hindenburg line by the German thrust north of St. Quentin is shown by the strong counter attack the Germans have thrown against the British line from Gouzeaucourt to the Arras-Cambrai road, thus extending the battleline nearly twelve miles northward.

German Counterattacks.

From Lempire to Pontrust, which the British now hold, the Germans have been hurled from the forward line of the Hindenburg position. German counter attacks at Treocault and Moeuvres southwest and west of Cambrai were hurled back with severe losses to the enemy.

American Front.

American troops are consolidating their new line across the bases of the St. Mihiel salient. It seems improbable that a new American assault will be made at once in this region.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Sept. 19. (By Associated Press).—Field Marshal Haig's forces up to midnight last night had captured a total of more than eight thousand Germans and forty guns as a result of their drive of yesterday on the Cambrai front.

BULGARIANS FLEE NORTHWARD BEFORE FRENCH AND SERBS

THE BULGARIANS ARE REPORTED TO BE IN FULL FLIGHT BEFORE THE VICTORIOUS SERBIANS AND FRENCH TROOPS—THE ENEMY HAS NOW BEEN FORCED BACK TWELVE MILES.

(By Associated Press)

In Macedonia the Bulgarians are in flight northward before the Serbians and French. Hurled from important heights the enemy has now been forced back twelve miles and the pursuit continues.

Sunday afternoon at three o'clock there will be a "sing song" for the men in uniform at the "Y" headquarters. All the old familiar songs will be sung.

F. W. Collins and M. F. Boise are proposing to take some talent to Fairholm next Wednesday evening for a rousing entertainment for the camps there.

The Y. M. C. A. would be glad of a loan or would rent a piano player. There is great need of one and such an instrument would be greatly appreciated.

FRENCH TROOPS PENETRATE THE HUN POSITIONS

IN THE REGION OF ST. QUENTIN THE FRENCH CONTINUE THEIR POSITION — A HUN ATTACK NORTHEAST OF COURLANDES WAS BROKEN UP BY ALLIES.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—French troops last night continued their progress in the region of St. Quentin and penetrated the German position at Contescourt, three miles southwest of St. Quentin.

Along the Vesle where American and French troops are stationed, a German attack northeast of Courlandes was broken up by the French artillery fire.

BOLSHEVIK FORCES RETREAT ON BOTH SIDES OF FRONT

THE BOLSHEVIK FORCES ARE SAID TO BE RETREATING ON BOTH SIDES OF THE FRONT, WHILE CZECHO-SLOVAK UNITS ARE REPORTED TO HAVE TAKEN THE CITY OF PERM.

(By Associated Press)

Reports from Moscow are that the Bolshevik forces are retreating on both the northern and southern fronts. On the north they are being pushed back by the Entente units while Czecho-Slovak units have taken the city of Perm.

SINK BRITISH BOARDING STEAMER

LONDON, Sept. 19, 5:40 p. m.—A British armed boarding steamer was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine on September 12, the British admiralty announced today. Fifty-eight members of the crew are missing.

Harry Winton, a logger, was picked up by the sheriff at the home of Henry Maguire last evening. He was given a hearing before the insanity board but was not committed. Winton was found by young Maguire wandering along an old wood road south of twn in a famished condition.

The high school girls' club and their chaperones will entertain the men in uniform next Saturday evening at 7:30. Good old-fashioned games will be played and a good time is expected by all those who do not dance.

Siems, Carey received their first logging locomotive a few days ago, a Shay engine type. It is understood that there will be eighteen of these locomotives sent here from Lima, O. A representative from the works is here now to set the engine and turn it over. Its first duty will be some switching at the new mill.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT SICK

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, is at the home of his mother here suffering from an attack of pneumonia which developed from Spanish influenza contracted while on his way home from his recent visit to France and England. The illness is not serious it is said.

METZ, SAARBURG AND STRASSBURG ARE CHIEF DEFENSES OF HUNLAND

American Troops Entering Germany

By J. W. T. Mason.
(American Military Authority)

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—When America's millions begin their invasion of German territory, in the final offensive of the war, they will be able to cross the Rhine at many points if the necessities of the campaign require it.

The German army cannot retire behind the Rhine, take up defensive positions and defy the world to do its worst. The Rhine is vulnerable.

Furthermore, every important city on the Rhine is situated on the west bank. America's armies will not have to cross the river to capture Strassburg, Mayence, Coblence or Cologne. They are ready now for seizure on the near side.

But before reaching the Rhine, the Americans must first break Germany's great defensive line, which runs from Metz southward to Chateau Salins, thence southeast through Saarburg to Strassburg.

This front, across the border from French Lorraine, is Germany's first stronghold against invasion. It is probably the most heavily fortified line in the world, and the most scientifically constructed. Back of it is a remarkable web of military railways, constructed years ago for the purpose of preventing a French army getting into Germany. The key to the line is Saarburg, where immense strategic railway yards have been constructed.

The defenses have been planned with unusual care, not only because they guard the Rhine. Immediately to the north of the line are the great coal and iron fields of the Saar district. These fields are one of the three main mining groups in Germany. If they are captured by the Americans, as they will be, Germany's munitions output will be seriously curtailed. One reason for believing that General Pershing's plan of campaign calls for an invasion of Germany northward through Lorraine is because of the location of the Saar mines so near to the American front in France.

Rhine Extensively Fortified.

Having moved back to the Metz Chateau Salins-Saarburg line, and having got possession of the Lorraine mineral area, the Americans may be expected to reach out further east for the Rhine and widen their front.

The Rhine is lavishly supplied with fortress protection. From the Swiss border northward, the principal fortresses are Neu Breisach, Strassburg, Germersheim, Mayence (or Mainz), Coblence (with Ehrenbreitstein), Cologne and Wesel. Of these, the only fortresses on the east bank are Wesel, which is a defense against invasion from Holland, and Ehrenbreitstein.

Regardless of their situation the value of these fortresses for defensive purposes has been greatly reduced by tactical developments during the past four years. Before the present war began, many believed in the impregnability of the Rhine line. Not so now. The German guns that reduced Liege, Antwerp, Maubeuge and other entrenched camps early in the war, made obsolete the Rhine fortifications.

The allies now have similar cannon of their own. At long range they'll be able to pulverize any fortified German position above ground which the kaiser may be foolhardy enough to defend.

This doesn't mean the Germans can not protect a single point along the Rhine by a lavish use of men. The French defended Verdun, but it was not Verdun that defended France. Verdun, equal in strength to any Rhine fortification, was held from the enemy not by its own immobile guns but by the infantry and mobile cannon that protected the citadel in distant outlying positions.

So it will be when the Americans reach the Rhine. The Germans may cling tenaciously to Strassburg, Cologne or any other point, but they haven't got enough men to cling to all of them, ad keep the Rhine inviolate. It will be part of the American strategy to prevent Ludendorff from accumulating a sufficient reserve to hold even a single Verdun permanently along the Rhine. To do this, the battlefront on German soil must be made very long.

The greater the mileage the Germans are called upon to defend, the weaker will be their reserves. On the other hand, the allies will be so superior in man power that their own reserves will not suffer through an enlargement of the front.

The Rhine runs through a wide valley from the Swiss border as far as Mayence. The banks are low and flat. The river is wide, varying from 500 feet to 3,500 feet, but at many points there are islands which will materially assist military bridge making. Above Mayence, the banks are rocky and difficult to bridge But, beginning at Coblence, these obstacles gradually disappear, and at Cologne, the west bank is flat, although there are hills across the river.

Essen's Fall Would End War.

The rocky sides of the river are a protection for Frankfort from a western approach, but do not prevent a sortie across the river from the south. Frankfort is about 20 miles east of the Rhine and will certainly be a point of attack if General Foch makes a serious effort to carry the war back of the Rhine barrier. Frankfort is the financial capital of Germany, and its capture would be inferior in importance, politically, only to the capitulation of Berlin, Cologne or Hamburg.

Proceeding northward along the Rhine, the Americans will probably seek to reach Cologne. The fall of Cologne would threaten Germany with strangulation. In the immediate environs of Cologne the second of Germany's three great coal and iron fields is located. Dusseldorf, the center of this mining district, is 25 miles north of Cologne, and the great Krupp works at Essen are about 20 miles still further northward.

An advance by the allies to Essen would mean the ending of the war, unless the Germans acknowledge defeat before that catastrophe overtakes them.

Probably Essen marks the furthest limit of the allies' war plans for the time being. Cologne itself, which would be the base for operations against Essen, is on a line almost parallel to Brussels. Expressed this way, the distance doesn't seem so far, although by direct measure from the present American front, it is about 150 miles away. The terrain is about the same as that over which the recent fighting is proceeding in France, except that in one or two places, there are hills which run to mountainous proportions. Nevertheless, nothing impregnable stands in the way.

While the main American offensive will probably move northward along the Rhine from Lorraine, a subsidary drive may well be developed in Alsace, to the south. The Rhine is more easily crossed in Alsace than elsewhere.

By moving to the east bank and striking into Baden, two important purposes will be served. First, south Germany, which has no love for Prussian arrogance, will be given a bitter taste of the world's resentment against the Hohenzollerns. Second, and important, the line of battle will be lengthened.

Von Hindenburg is now trying to abridge his front in France so as to accumulate enough reserves to make concentrated defenses possible against the Americans inside German territory. He will be unable to carry out this strategy if, after his line is shortened in France, it is stretched across the Rhine well into Germany.

AMERICAN ACE OF ACES SHOT DOWN

NEWTON D. PUTNAM OF NEWTON, MASS., AMERICAN ACE OF ACES, SHOT DOWN WHILE ON PATROL DUTY ON AMERICAN LINE.—HE IS CREDITED WITH TWELVE AERIAL VICTORIES.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE LORRAINE FRONT, Sept. 19. (By Associated Press).—First Lieutenant David E. Putnam of Newton, Mass. was killed late Wednesday afternoon while on patrol along the American line. Lieut. Putnam was attacked by four German machines. He was shot twice through the heart. Putnam was credited with twelve aerial victories.

Col. Crabtree and Col. Sherwood of the medical corps have registered at the Merchants Hotel as have also Lieut. Bowler in charge of supplies with Lieuts. McDonald and Olson, Capt. Watson and Lieut. Wheeler from Pysht were in Port Angeles last night, returning this morning.

GERMAN TACTICS ARE WHOLLY THE DEFENSIVE KIND

GERMANS APPEAR TO HAVE ACCEPTED THE SITUATION—THEY REFUSE EVEN CHALLENGED PATROLS EXCEPT IN INEVITABLE CASES, USING PURELY DEFENSIVE METHODS.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN LORRAINE, Sept. 19. (By Associated Press).—Entranched in the second line of the Hindenburg system, the Germans along the front southwest of Metz, appear to have accepted the new situation. The tactics they are employing are wholly defensive ones. The Germans are carrying out a half-hearted bombardment. Even challenged patrols are refused by the enemy except where a conflict is inevitable.

Professor J. M. Bowman, first professor of history and humanity of the University of Washington, has been making a tour of Clallam county in the interests of the "Y" this week, speaking at Johnson & McDermott's, Coyne's Camp, Lake Pleasant, Pysht, Pearson, Palmer and Woods, tonight at Forks and tomorrow at Twin rivers. on various phases of the war. He is giving the same series of talks that he gave at Camp Lewis under the auspices of the "Y." These are to be followed by other inspirational talks.

DOCUMENTS IN POSSESSION OF THE SERBIAN GOVERNMENT PROVE WITHOUT QUESTION THAT MANY SERBIAN PRISONERS HAVE BEEN SOLD BY THE CENTRAL POWERS AS SLAVES TO TURKEY FOR A SPECIFIED PERIOD OF TIME.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—The Serbian government is in possession of documests proving beyond possible question that thousands of Serbian prisoners have been sold as slaves for a specified period to Turkey by Bulgaria, Austria-Hungary and Germany. The prisoners were subjected to terrible treatment and thousands have died from disease and hunger.

The Factribilt Cars Company constructing the logging trains expect to turn out two units for the use of the tracklaying gang. The tracklaying crews are assembling now. The bulk of the recent uniformed arrivals are supposed to be tracklayers.

Editorial

IS THE END NEAR?

It is notorious that hope misleads judgment. The popular belief in America and abroad that the war will end within the next few months or before the winter of 1919, at the latest, is not to be accepted as evidence that it will so end. High military authorities in this country have expressed the opinion that with an army of 4,000,000 Americans in the field next summer a decisive victory can be won over the Germans. But it sometimes takes a good many victories to end a war. And this particular war is upon such a vast scale that there probably will have to be a series of victories before the Germans lay down their arms in unconditional surrender.

The unknown quantity in the situation is the exact internal situation in Germany. The Germans are weary and depressed and more or less hungry, perhaps. But the German is always depressed and grumbling when the luck runs against him and grumbling does not get anywhere or achieve anything. The final military defeat of Germany is now assured by the tremendous strength thrown into the contest by America, but it is not feasible to measure the time it will take to align that force against the Kaiser in such a way as to smash him beyond all hope of recovery.

These considerations also are of value in estimating the effect of the new man power registration. It is too soon to attempt to say how many of the older men will be drafted. The army of five million may be sufficient, but it it possible that eight or even ten million may be needed to bring the war to a successful conclusion, especially if the Russian situation cannot be remedied within the next few months.

On the other side of the speculation is the possibility that the coming winter will see the collapse of Austria-Hungary and the beginning of the disintegration of the German empire by the falling away of some of the German states. There are strong indications that something of this sort is possible and even probable. It is said by travelers returning from Germany that there is jealousy and dissatisfaition in southern Germany and that a sentiment is gaining ground in some of the principalities in favor of cutting loose from Prussia and thus avoiding some of the burdens of defeat in store. But these are travelers' tales upon which too much reliance cannot be placed.

THE APPROACH TO METZ.

Associated Press dispatches have variously stated during the past few days that General Pershing's army was within four, five and ten miles of the great German fortress of Metz. Metz is fifteen miles inside the German frontier, which has not yet been reached by the Americans. The Americans are across the frontier at one point in the line but that point is a long distance to the south. The A. P. newspapers probably confuse Metz with the string of smaller forts, such as Forts Haeseler and de Sommy, two or three miles inside the frontier and twelve or more miles from Metz.

REVELATION of the Lenin-Trotzky intrigue show that the Germans proposed to float submarines from a Siberian port to attack American and Allied shipping in the Pacific. Apparently the plan failed. It serves to remind Pacific Coast people, however, that they are not so far from the war, after all.

CONFESSIONS OF A WAR BRIDE

"Good morning, Miss Thomas," I said, opening the door of her car. "Will you please run down to the market house—you know Wasson's delicatessen stall—and buy his whole stock of cooked meats—and maybe other substantials, too? And bring them all back with you? Oh, but DON'T get any baked beans!"

"You're in a hurry, too, I guess," she replied, and she swung away from the curb as I slammed the door. She was half way to the market before some women I know would have finished asking silly questions. She got the idea the first time it was put to her, which is a test of intelligence, Bob says.

Very soon we saw a creeping, swaying line of khaki hooded trucks come over the crest of the hill and drop down into the valley. They brought the war awfully close. I could have sobbed as I watched them come on and on. They seemed like links in a chain that was to tie the quiet folk of peaceful Bridgeport to the noise and blood of Bapaume.

I thought I didn't have time for tears, but a few of them crept down my nose when the first truck stopped and Evan Palmer tried to hug his wife and his mother at the same time.

Mary Thomas is certainly a young person of quick action. As soon as we had Evan and his 99 comrades seated at the tables, Mary arrived with $52.37 worth of fried chicken, spiced tongue, baked ham, summer sausage and hard boiled eggs. She brought it all packed somehow in her lavender lined coupe. I knew I would have hugged any other girl.

After the last ham had been retrieved by a boy scout, Miss Thomas turned to go, but I stopped her. "Please help us serve these things," I said, although we already had three canteen girls for each table.

But of them all, she was the star waitress. She wore a white cotton dress and she had a white chiffon veil bound tight around her turban. Of course it floated out dramatically as she walked. That veil was a mistake, one way. It set her outside the social pale, as it were. War widow veils are tabooed in this town, no matter what their color, by patriotic maidens.

And Oh, Boy! she was fetching! There wasn't a man in the crowd that missed her beauty, either.

Evan Palmer knew that she had been a cabaret dancer at Barnaby's, I could see. I happened to be going toward his table when he galvanized the men with the news.

And so in vast defiance of them all, and seemingly just by chance, I fell into step with Mary Thomas. As we stopped at Evan's table, I introduced the girl to the men in the circle. They came to their feet, and glancing down the lengthy line of tables, I took note that the other men were all devoutly wishing that instead of passing the pie, I would bring Mary Thomas along and introduce her.

But NO! She had hit one man pretty hard and there was no sense in sacrificing the crowd to her. He who had been smitten was a raid haired and freckled gentleman from Montana. In his eyes was the pathetic adoration of a lost St. Bernard I once found and fed.

It struck me that there is actually such a thing as love at first sight, and that here was a man who had come down with all the symptoms.

FOR CONSTIPATION AND BILIOUSNESS

Good digestion goes far toward comfort and health in hot weather. Undigested food in the stomach can quickly poison the system. Geo. Jenner, 416 Labor St., San Antonio, Tex., writes: "Foley Cathartic Tablets have proven the best laxative I have taken and I recommend them to any one suffering from constipation or biliousness. They should be in every traveling man's grip." Quick relief for sick headache, bloating or other condition caused by bad digestion.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE WELFARE HOUSE

LONDON, England, Sept. 19.—On August 1, as already announced in a cable dispatch to The Christian Science Monitor, the Christian Science Welfare House, for the use of the allied forces, was opened at 112 Eaton Square, London S. W. 1 Week after week fresh contingents are being added to the vast American army already transported across the Atlantic; consequently thousands of soldiers and sailors now find a temporary home in the little island from which their forefathers set sail in quest of liberty three centuries ago. The Welfare House is primarily intended for the convenience of those officers and men of the United States army and navy who are iterested in Christian Science, but a welrome will also be extended to any sailor or soldier who desires to come.

The Christian Science Welfare House is situated in a convenient center, close to the American embassy and the busy thoroughfare around Victoria Station. Various bus routes pass close by, and tube and underground railway are easily and quickly reached, but the creeper-clad house itself stands in a wide, sunny square, where spreading plane trees cast a cool shade in the long, hot summer days.

The house is designed to help and befriend in every way the men of the allied forces. It is actuated by the desire to do everything to make the men feel as much at home as possible. The reception rooms, it is hoped, will provide an accessible place where friends can meet, while for the convenience of the men an information bureau will be open from 10 a. m. till 6 p. m., and a register will be kept of the addresses of those who let rooms or take boarders. The bureau will also be prepared to make arrangements for those officers or men on leave who wish to spend a quiet time in the country, while for those anxious to see something of the sights of London expeditions to interesting parts of the city, including picture galleries and museums, will be planned, and the bureau will always be ready with the names of hosts and hostesses willing to invite officers and men, singly or in small parties, to their houses, so that all who desire may share the social intercourse that can only be enjoyed in the midst of home life.

The Christian Science Welfare House, too, has reading and writing rooms, in the quiet of which the men can make themselves at home with their books and papers, or can sit and write their letters undisurbed. A certain number of bedrooms will also be available at the Welfare House, to provide sleeping accommodation, at a reasonable price, for men staying in London, ad breakfast will be provided at a moderate charge.—The Christian Science Monitor.

ALLIED AVIATORS DROP BOMBS

LONDON, Sept. 18.—British army and navy aviators in the last 48 hours have dropped thirteen tons of bombs on the docks at Bruges and German airdrome in Belgium, says an official statement from the admiralty today. In air fighting eleven German airplanes were destroyed.

AIR CHANGED 125 TIMES EVERY HOUR

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Ventilation standards in England'st workshops are being carefully watched by the nation's inspectors. Pure air, a vital factor in the life of the workers, is constantly sought for. In one factory in London, it was found that the air was changed 125 times an hour in order to insure the health of the workers.

SIBERIA NOW SOUR GRAPES TO HUNS

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 19.—The recent report that Siberia had declared herself a republic and an ally of the United States brought the following comment from the Hamburg Nachrichten: "We are indifferent to what is happening in Siberia, as we have never contemplated its conquest." It seems to be another case of sour grapes.

GOOD REPORTS PLEASE ANGELS

There has never been anything with the QUICK results of pure Lavoptik eye wash. One man's eyes were so badly strained he could not read without pain. TWO applications of Lavoptik relieved him. A lady had tried three different glasses for weak, inflamed eyes. ONE Lavoptik wash surprised her. We guarantee a small bottle to benefit EVERY CASE weak, strained or inflamed eyes. D. A. of washing powder on his foot. The board holds that, since the man was engaged in necessary work for his employer, he comes within the meaning of the act and should be compensated.

Wages.

Wages being offered in Spokane for common labor are declared to be higher than those offered in coast shipyards. The municipal employment bureau recently advertised for shipyards laborers at $3.56 a day, and laborers for power dam construction in Idaho at $5.6 a day for an additional hour daily.

Harvest field jobs are paying from $3 to $6 a day and board, and one farmer offered $10 a day and board for a man to run a combined harvester. Mine labor is paying $4 to $5 a day.

Closed Season.

The Spokane county game and fish commission has declared a closed season on ruffled grouse (partridge) in Spokane county for four years. During this period the commission plans to wage war upon birds and animals that prey upon the grouse, in the hope that the depleted numbers of the birds here may be increased considerably through the four protected nesting seasons.

Vote Ruling.

The recent ruling of the state attorney general that soldiers, sailors, Red Cross workers and others engaged in military and auxiliary work outside the state cannot vote in the November election unless they make personal application to county clerks and recorders for ballots, is regarded here as making it practically certain that few of the 45,000 votes affected will be cast. It was supposed, when the absent voters' law was passed, that the war department would furnish county clerks with addresses of absentees in military service and that the clerks would forward the ballots. This the war department has declared it inadvisable to do, for military reasons. It is feared that soldiers who make applications for ballots may not get them in time to vote, because of the slowness of mail transportation to the front.

The Ford automobile engine, illustrated here, like all internal combustion engines, requires an oil that holds its full lubricating qualities at cylinder heat, burns clean in the combustion chambers and goes out with exhaust.

INDIANA WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

Many similar letters have been written by grateful persons who found relief from kidney trouble, backache, rheumatism and stiff swollen joints.

GANGRENE SERUM IS SHIPPED TO FRANCE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19.—A six months' supply of serum for the cure and prevention of the deadly gaseous gangrene has been ordered by the American Red Cross for shipment to Europe. The serum is a development of scientific research and the supply available in the battle areas in France has heretofore been limited. The Red Cross authorities in France cabled Washington for shipments of at least 20,000 doses monthly.

WITH THE COLORS

"FOR GOD AND HUMANITY"

A private soldier was killed in the recent drive on the Marne salient. When his comrades found his body they discovered that he had pencilled on his gas mask the words quoted above.

It was the soldier's own epitaph. To him it expressed the great motive of the war, the purpose of his own sacrifice.

One can but conjecture as to what went on in the mind of the soldier. Other than the brief inscription there is no record.

But what volumes this brief message speaks!

It is legitimate to let one's imagination fill in the record. Let us, then, think of this soldier as we must of hundreds of thousands of other young American men. He was trained in the ideals of what we proudly called our enlightened age. Fondly he hoped for the day when he should be the father of a family, when he should play a man's part in the peaceful affairs of the world.

Then the rumblings of war disturbed his peace of mind. Soon the call to the colors, sounded through the machinery of the selective draft, called him from calm contemplation into the vortex of carnage of the most bitterly fought war in the history of the world.

He went proudly as the clear-visioned go. Yet in him there was something of the spirit of Nathan Hale. The task confronting the forces of embattled civilization was so stupendous that his opportunity for service seemed almost negligible. And yet in his mind there was the picture of the united forces of righteousness in which he was but a unit

His dreaming of peaceful pursuits and proud parentage gave place to a new vision, a vision of a world made safe for democracy, of a world in which "none should be afraid."

When the time came for his complete self-surrender he went willingly. The world is richer because of his vicarious sacrifice.

The little inscription he put upon his gas mask has called us to a new self-examination, to a new strength within ourselves.

"For God and Humanity"—the purpose of the whole struggle is summed up in four words. It is a summary that is so terse and yet so striking that we known instinctively it is born of complete understanding.

The selective draft has called out men from the highways and byways from the large centers of population and from the remote mountain settlements. But our men are all going forth like this simple soldier, humbly because their contribution is relatively so small, but proudly because collectively they are such a mighty host.

EDITOR'S NOTE -- So many interesting letters from the boys scattered all over the world reach the Herald office that it has been decided to devote special space to their communications. Any story of interest will receive attention and publicity.
