ATTORNEYS IN CITY VS. PEGRAM CASE IN PRELIMINARY COMBAT

SEWER ESTIMATES ARE READY FOR COUNCIL

"The city council has to decide tomorrow whether to do the necessary sewer work in the district between Lincoln and Peabody now or postpone it to a later date, when it will cost the property owners more money. The work certainly must be done and delay now means surely a heavier burden for the people."—City Engineer R. J. Young.

The difference between a good and complete job and a makeshift which will cause trouble at an early date and result in more expense to property owners, in the matter of the sewering of the district lying between Lincoln and Peabody, is approximately $14,000.

These figures are obtained from the office of City Engineer R. J. Young, who is drawing up plans and estimates of alternative methods of relieving this large residential district of unsanitary conditions. The approximate cost of the improvement as planned in the resolution of intention defeated last week by the city council, and which will again be introduced again tomorrow night, is $40,500.

This provides for a five-foot main sewer down Lincoln street, in place of the existing two-foot pipe. The cost of draining the district into the existing Lincoln street sewer would be $26,50, so that the cost of the larger pipe, which is the key to the whole situation is figured at $14,000.

If the alternative plan of utilizing the present Lincoln sewer pipe is followed, two separate improvement districts will have to be formed, one east and one west.

The inadequacy of the 2-foot Lincoln street sewer for the task which the alternative and cheaper plan would impose upon it, may be estimated from the fact that a 2-foot pipe is figured capable only of draining, taking up storm waters and caring for sewage of a residence district 100 acres in extent. The district embodied in the sewer improvement is 450 acres in extent.

If the present Lincoln street sewer is retained and the concreting work now in prospect done to enclose it, trouble must arise — and trouble of such character that the people residing in the district will be forced to make a second expenditure to take care of the situation. An overloaded sewer pipe is something that cannot be overlooked by the most casual resident.

The enlarged main sewer plan would cost approximately 137 per lot; the other plan would cost $87. Is the difference in cost worth considering under the circumstances?

Slayer of the Czar Interviewed in Jail

PARIS, March 29.—Le Matin publishes the fololwing interview with Posrednitzky, executioner of Czar Nicholas II of Russia. Posrednitzky is in prison at Warsaw, awaiting trial.

Posrednitzky, the assassin of Nicholas II, whose cell I abruptly entered a moment ago, did not leek the least bit ferocious. With his hands in his pockets, he looked at me with a broad smile. When he was informed who I was he seemed delighted at the idea of receiving a French newspaper correspondent.

"I did not assassinate the Czar," he declared by way of introduction.

"Well," replied the officer on guard, "you are not accused of commanding the firing squard. But you did cause to be carried out the orders, or alleged orders, of the soviet government."

"I was at Ekaterinburg as a doctor—"

"Enough of that!" retorted the officer. And turning to me he added: "That is not the only crime charged against him. His history is as strange as it is terrible."

And in a few words, with Posrednitzky sitting on the bed and seeming not to listen; my interlocutor related the unbelievable record of this assassin whose name is sure to find o place in history.

"At the age of 16, in 1905, he was a member of the 'war faction'of the Polish socialist party. Then he went to the Okhrana (czarist secret police) and obtained a fine position by betraying his former comrades and delivering them to the executioner.

"A little later he became executioner himself at Lodz. According to the records of the Okhrana, recently seized, this powerful brute, with the muscular development of an athlete, put to death fifty or more liberals and patriots in a single year.

"He was forced to flee from Warsaw because of a crime he committed against the wife of one of his cronies. He went to Tomsk, in Siberia, where he became a nurse in a military hospital. In that capacity he readily adopted the profession of 'disability manufacturer.' This vocation consisted in getting young soldiers out of military service by amputating two fingers on the right hand—for a fee, of course.

"These practices being discovered, Posrednitzky was locked up. But the first revolution opened the gates of all the prisons and set him free along with the other criminals. Posrednitzky was not long idle. In October, 1917, he succeeded in winning the confidence of a young Russian military surgeon, Dr. Skiriabine. One evening he lured him to the banks of the Neva and murdered him, and after carefully taking possession of his various military and medical papers, sank the body in the river.

"With Dr. Skriabine's papers Posrednitzky began a new life. Passing himself off as the doctor whom he had murdered, he tendered his services to the Red Cross. The trick, of course, would have been discover- but for the bolshevik revolution which happened just then and turned all Russia topsy-turpy.

"Posrednitzky-Skriabine made his way to the Smolny Institute and quickly became the trusted friend of the soviet government, which appointed him as officer of the special guard around the Czar's family.

"In this capacity he was present at the execution of the imperial family and himself drew up the death certificates.

"This job being finished, the Moscow government decided to use his services in another way. Because of the relations which had kept up with the underworld of Warsaw, it was decided to send him to Poland as chief of the communist propaganda service. He was a bolshevik commissary at Minsk. Shortly afterwards he turned up at Warsaw, and went to the hospitals corps headquarters, where he declared he wished to join the the Polish army as a physician.

"While waiting a decision on this effer ,he led a gay life in Warsaw spending thousands of marks every night. But just as he was about to indulge himself in a bottle of champagne one night in a fashionable restaurant, he was recognized by a former "comrade" of the socialist party and arrested.

"He was searched and they found that he was wearing one of the Czar's shirts. 'It is a souvenir,' he said."

Posrednitzky who had followed this story without appearing to hear it, shrugged his shoulders and said speaking to me:

"Say in your paper that I ask to go back to be tried in Russia. I have a wife there, and I prefer her to the fiancee that I have here."

BABY BEARS IN WOLTEN GROCERY ATTRACT CROWD

Mutt and Jeff, two little cub bears who can be seen in a little wooden house right in Wolten Grocery store window, were gotten by Nat Broughton, nephew of F. W. Broughton, of the Wolten Grocery Store, about three weeks ago.

Gail Stephenson and F. W. Broughton went out to Blue Mountain yesterday and brought the little cubs to Port Angeles.

The howling of wolves has been persistent for the past few weeks. About three weeks ago Nat Broughton went out to hunt them. During his trip he came across a big fallen tree which seemed to be enclosed in a natural corral.

Nat stepped down into the little enclosure. Three feet away from him, too close for him to use his gun, reared a huge mother bear, the biggest he declares he has yet seen.

Nat stepped back quickly and as quickly fired his gun, hitting the animal which had commenced to run as it saw the hunter. The animal disappeared and Nat went on his way, feeling sure that the bear would come back if alive.

When the evening came Mr. Broughton went back to the fallen tree in the little corralled space. There was no trace of Mrs. Brain. Searching around he found a big hole in the fallen tree and bravely explored it. Away back in the darkness he came upon two little cubs about a week old. These he salvaged. The little creatures have been bottle fed with cow's milk since their capture.

I. W. W. TRIAL WAS COSTLY

(By Associated Press)

MONTESANO, March 29.—Hearing of the application for a new trial for the Industrial Workers of the World was today postponed until Saturday at Attorney Vanderveer's request.

Vanderveer is defending in a syndicalism case in Portland.

It is estimated that jury in this county cost $17,200; that the witnesses cost $5,700 in mileage and fees. It is believed that Lewis county will ask the next legislature to help foot the bill.

J. E. L. James, proprietor of the Hotel Mora is in town for a day or so. Mr. James recently had the misfortune to cut an artery in his arm and is in Angeles for medical treatment.

NINETY-THREE KILLED IN BIG WIND STORM

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 29.—It is estimated that the tornado in the middle west yesterday killed ninety-three persons, injured hundreds and caused $1,000,000 property nss. Late reports indicate fifty lives were lost at LaGrange, eGorgia. Twenty-six lives were lost in Ohio, mostly in Toledo. Twenty-seven in Indianapolis and nine in Michigan. The town of Elgin lost five people and suffered $4,000,000 property damage. One big brick building toppled over.

Elgin, Joliet, the western outskirts of Chicago and north shore and western suburbs were in the path of the storm, which destroyed hundreds of buildings, uprooted trees, and demoralized railroad traffic and telegrapic and telephonic communications, before dying out on the shore of Lake Michigan, the cool air of which stopped the "twister."

The fury of the tornado was felt chiefly at Elgin and Melrose Park.

While northeastern Illinois sustained the principal damage, the tornado, in its freakish career, swept several Indiana towns, killing three persons at Zulu, Ind., causing the death of one man and the injury of several persons in St. Louis, and killing Mrs. Louis Brown at East Troy, Wis.

Several person were injured at Cassian, Ind. Heavy property loss was caused in Evanston, Wilmette and other north shore suburbs, while Bellwood, Maywood, Edgebrook, Norwood Park and other villages west of Chicago, were damaged. No fatalities were reported from the latter places, but many were injured by the flying glass and timbers.

The tornado struck Elgin at noon and swept northeast into the Chicago territory through the suburbs, leaving a path of destruction 200 yards wide and a mile and a half long. In ten minutes one hundred and seventy-five houses in the Chicago district were levelled and 400 were damaged.

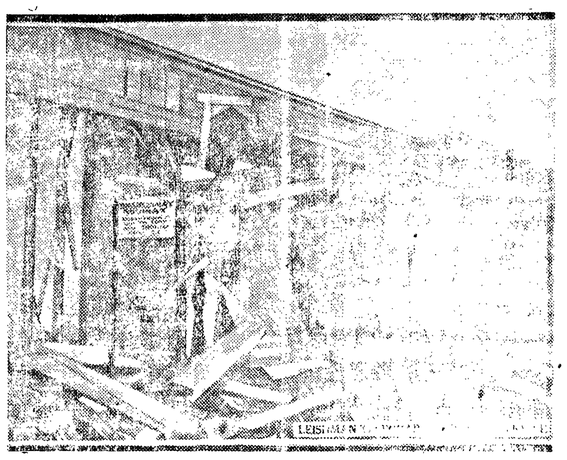
The wind tore into the business quarter of Melrose Park, ripping roofs from buildings, shattering windows and piling the streets with debris.

The church of the Sacred Heart was severely damaged. The church bell, weighing nearly a ton, was thrown 100 feet away.

HEAVY LOSS IN SOUTH.

ATLANTA, March 29.—Late reports today indicated that seventy-eight persons were killed yesterday by tornadoes in Georgia and Alabam... The death list is growing rapidly as communications are restored. It is estimated that several hundred thousand dollars property loss has been caused at Macon, eGorgia.

SCAFFOLD CRASHES INTO SUBWAY



NEW YORK, March 29.—One man was killed and six badly injured and the lives of scores were endangered when the scaffolding in front of a building on West Forty-Ninth street between Broadway and Seventh avenue crashed to the ground. This telegraphed picture shows the debris at the place where thousands of people go into and out of the subway.

The superintendent of the construction has been arrested on a technical charge of homicide. That many others escaped death was miraculous as the collapse was during the rush hour when the theatres were puoring their crowds into the street.

DEMURRER IN MAYOR'S CASE IS OVERRULED

In the superior court this afternoon Judge Ralston overruled the demurrer to the complaint in the case of the City of Port Angeles, on the relation of the attorney general, against J. L. Pegram, Mayor, for the recovery of $32.50 alleged to have been received by the Mayor in commission on goods sold to R. J. Willson & Co., and by Willson & Co., to the city in violation of the state law governing such matters.

The attorney general was represented by his assistant, J. H. Dunbar, and Nelson R. Anderson, of Seattle, presented the arguments for the demurrer.

The demurrer was based upon three allegations, that the attorney general was not properly appearing in the suit by presenting the city as the plaintiff; that the bringing of a suit to collect $32.50 at the cost of $100 or more to the state could not be in good faith and hence that there was an ulterior possibly political, purpose and hence a fraud upon the court.

Supporting the demurrer, Mr. Anderson said that a cursory examination of the complaint was sufficient to show that while it was presented by the hand of Esau, the voice was that of Jacob, and that it was clear that the cloven hoof was imprinted on the face of the document.

Mr. Dunbar in reply said that there was no charge of moral wrong against the defendant involved but merely a suit to recover the amount of a commission paid in infraction of a law. He added that he had had no knowledge of any political fight in the matter until he arrived here.

It developed in the argument that some of the facts of the transaction are misquoted in the complaint.

Judge Ralston pointed out that the complaint alleged that Mayor Pegram received a commission on the sale. He said that if this was not the case, and Pegram had sold the goods to Willson who later sold them to the city the case might look differently.

THOSE "CHARGES" OF COUNCILMAN FILION.

For the good of the order, the city government and the community generally, Councilman Filion should gracefully withdraw from the position in which he was left at the close of the last council meeting during which in the heat of his own elequence he declared that he would file charges of "corruption" against one or more city officials in connection with the payment of engineering work in the I street improvement contract.

This matter was fully gone into in the superior court and has been approved by two city attorneys. Any such "charges" therefore would involve more people than the city engineer against whom the drive is directed. It is remarkable, by the way, that whenever the city is fortunate enough to obtain competent officials some clique or other immediately sets out to make their work unpleasant and difficult. The facts in connection with the engineering work on the I street improvement are perfectly clear, and to any right-minded person such charges as Mr. Filion hinted at are absurd. The fact is that by agreement the engineering expense for this contract was charged against the contractor instead of against the district, for part of the time during which the work was under way. This work has to be paid in any event and it is obvious that the arrangement referred to can not possibly have worked to the injury of the assessed property-owner in whose behalf Councilman Filion has been letting loose his oratory.

As was said before, for the general weal, and especially for Mr. Filion's the matter should be dropped along with other unpleasantness into one of the new sewer pipes.

CIVIL SERVICE PLAN SHOULD APPLY.

Owing to the opposition of the Prohibitionists, every attempt to provide that the enforcement officers should be subject to the civil service law has failed in Congress. The tests for character and intelligence deemed necessary in other branches of government were in this instance pronounced a needless handicap upon the inspired recruits who were to regenerate mankind.

With recent developments in view, the secretary of the National Civil Service League says that Congress by its acceptance of this theory has "created a political and partisan force sure, as long experience shows, to be incompetent, ineffective, blind-eyed and blackmailing." In proof of this we have the evidence in the official presence in Northern cities of hand-picked moonshine raiders from the South, and now in New York a tragedy reveals the fact that a conspicuous agent of the law under indictment for murder is an ex-convict, released from imprisonment just in time to assume the important duty of regulating with a gun the use of beverages in New York.

The authors of civil service reform regarded that movement as an expression of the highest morality. They gained a great triumph for their cause by convincing reluctant legislators and executives that the methods of law enforcement were quite as important in their way as the law itself. It has remained for the Prohibitionists to demand exemption from this enlightened rule. The exemption should be rescinded.

WHY "MELONS" ARE NOT INCOME

It puzzles lots of people to hear from the Supreme Court that when a corporation cuts a big "melon" the stockholders do not have to pay income-taxes on it. If a man owns stock in a prosperous enterprise which decides to distribute its surplus in the form of a "stock dividend," why should he not have to report such a dividend as taxable income, just as if he had received it in cash?

"The cutting of an apple into four parts instead of two does not increase the size of the apple,' says the Boston Post (Ind. Dem.) by way of illustration. "So, the division of a corporation's assets into 100,000 shares instead of 50,00 shares does not increase the value of the shares, nor give the shareholder a larger equity in the assets." In the same way, the Sun and New York Herald (Ind.) points out that "if a man owns a dollar bill and splits it into two silver half-dollars, or into four quarters, or into ten dimes, or divides it as many times as you please, he has not a penny more and not a penny less than when it was in the single dollar bill."

Thus stock dividends represent really capital, and not income, or, as the Chicago Daily News (Ind.) describes it, the "promise or possibility of income. The fact that the stock dividend is a gift—a 'melon'—does not alter the essential feature of the situation, since the gift takes the form of a paper title to dividends, should they be earned." If dividends are paid on the stock, of course, they are taxable.

The effect of this decision is "in the direction of removing hampering burdens and restrictions from capital and freeing it to engage in the development of the country's industries," in the opinion of the New York Mail (Ind.), and the Mail goes on to say:

"To tax investments, in addition to taxing earnings in the form of dividends, is the surest way to discourage enterprise, block expansion, and make the road to prosperity difficult. To realize that fact it is not necessary to go further than the consideration that in order to pay an income tax on a share of stock given him in lieu of dividend, it would be necessary for the holder to invade his savings from other sources or sell his share perhaps at a loss.'

The far-reaching effect of the decision is illustrated by the Wheeling Register (Dem.), which notes that:

"For instance the American Car and Foundry with a total of $31,324,521 undivided profits is ready to declare stock dividends equal to $104 a share; Morris & Co., packers, are holding $22,823,864 or $1,760 per share; the Standard Oil Companies of Indiana, New York and Ohio have big dividends on which the tax as earnings has been paid and can be distributed as stock dividends, while the Republic Iron and Steel, National Biscuit, Pittsburg Coal and many other industries are in similar positions, which means that the courts decree is bound to send prices sky-high in the market as there will now be sharp buying in order to grab blocks of the common stock of those companies upon which stock dividends are sure to be paid."

But if the correctness of the decision appears obvious from the arguments above quoted, it must be remembered that four of the nine Supreme Court justices dissented, and held that stock dividends were taxable. Many newspapers agree with the minority of the court. "As judges disagree, so will individuals disagree observes the Minneapolis Journal (Ind. Rep.)

The decision "is based on neither sound law not sensible logic,' declares the Sioux City Journal (Rep.), which further expresses the opinion that "it will enable every corporation to dodge the payment of income tax on its stock for its stockholders," and the Nashville Banner (Ind.) believes "the decision will undoubtedly prove unpopular." Sharply critical, also, is the Pittsburg Press (Ind.):

"The Supreme Court is evidently determined," says the Press "that wealth must be cherished. . . . The legal pendulum which seemed to be swinging a few years ago strongly against privilege now seems to be swinging back hard."

The Fargo Courier-News (Non. Part. League) dissents so strongly that it is even moved to suggest "some popular curb on the Supreme Court.' It continues:

"A constitutional amendment should be initiated, restoring the original intent of the constitution that Congress should be superior to the Supreme Court, not its inferior. No other nation in the world permits a small legal autocracy to veto at its will the mandates of the elected representatives of the people."

That's All!

A STRANGE MAN.

Rex never came near to ask me to skate, neither did he skate with Emmy. He did take Mary several times around the pond. Otherwise he was alone, or with one of the other boys. He and Roy whizzed by me once and managed to do some wild and dangerous stunts right before my eyes. I knew well these were Roy's doings, and I never so much as winced. The time was when I'd have remonstrated with that Kimball boy, telling him he was risking his life, but not now. I'm growing apace!

Roy never so much as asked me to skate!

Mary came up to Emmy and me quite early in the evening with a stranger and presented him as Mr. Kaister. He had a very familiar look. He immediately asked me to skate, and was so insiduous in his compliments that I thought him very insincere. He wasn't a good skater, either; lumbersome, I'd say, and yet he seemed to know how. You find that same quality among fellows in dancing. Some of them will know every step and be rythmic, and all that, but they aren't good dancers, that's all. It may be the same reason that makes men have such a fizzle all through life. They aren't lazy and they have a certain amount of ambition—just like Emmy's father, for instance—yet they are never very successful, not half so much as are some other men who do not have to try so hard. Take Uncle Oliver! I can't understand it. It does not always appear fair. There must be a balance somewhere, for wasn't it Browning who said:

"God's in His Heaven, all's right with the world."

Anyway this young man Mary introduced skated with me first and later with Emmy. They carried the pond three times. Then he said good-bye, and Emmy caught my arm and whispered: "Yolande, I must tell you something—if I don't I'll bust. Let's get away from everyone."

So she and I took a round by ourselves on the ice, and she inquired if Id ever seen Mr. Keister before.

"He looks familiar," I admitted.

"He was one of those fellows who sat opposite us in the street car the very first day, Mary, you and I ever came home from Parmway Academy together," Emmy informed. "I thought that's who has was from the first, but wasn't dead sure. So that's why I jollied him into skating with me so long—I wanted to find out. Otherwise I'd have wanted a better skater," and she laughed wisely.

"I pumped him for fair,' she went on, "and he admitted he remembered me, and you also. Rather insinuated he took a shine to you—hinted he had from the moment he laid eyes on you. But he said: "You and Miss Blair aren't easy to get acquainted with as Mary Bannon.' I was sweetly purring as your kitten, Yolande, as I inquired, "How it is that Mary's so easy to get in with?" And he fell head-first and explained: "Oh, Mary, she saw me and one of the other fellows who'd been with me on that street car, the very next day, and spoke right off; said she'd have done so the day before but she din't know how you girls would have taken it, as she imagined you were both pretty slow, anyway."

I, Yolande Blair, was furious at this and exclaimed: "She thought us slow did she? Ill get even for that, see if I don't."

Now, dont get excited or don't get misled,
Or little Yolande will go to bed with a pain in her head,"

ironically misquoted Emmy. "Better late than never, you know, and men like something slow coming the bent, so my brother says."

"What did you say to Mr. Keister next?" I asked, anxiously.

"I didn't say anything—just let him talk," enlarged Emmy. "It never does to interrupt when you want to find out anything. Stop a fellow when he's telling you anything and it's like stopping a stream of water—he may never follow the same channel again."

Emmy's an awfully wise girl. Sometime I wonder how she's ever learned so much. Carried it over, maybe, from one of those former incarnations Rex Livingstone is as crazy about as he is about that Darwin theory.

"Listen," continued Emmy. "Mr. Keister told me all he know. Perhaps more. He let fall that Mary is rather flip; explained that the other fellow, not he, calls on her quite regularly. The other fellow's name is Jim Boffatt, and he's a cheap salesman—extracts I think—and only here, as a rule, over Sundays. He spends his Saturday evenings at Mary's. Mr. Keister—guess what his business is?"

"Has a pool room—knows my brother, and I'm crazy for fear he blows about having met me," wailed Emmy.

"Good gracious,' I half screamed. "If Mama'd ever hear this, I'd never be allowed to come here to skate again."

Kidney and bladder troubles are not limited to men. Housework, or work in office or factory, causes women to suffer from weak, overworked or diseased kidneys. The symptoms are—puffiness under the eyes, sallow skin, constant tired feeling, lack of ambition, nervous condition, backache, rheumatic pains, sore muscles, stiff joints.

Foley Kidney Pills

get right at the cause of suffering and misery, regulate the kidneys and bladder and restore the diseased organs to sound and healthy condition.

Mrs. Wm. Fischer, 2009 Woodbourne Ave., Louisville, Ky., writes: "I am just getting along fine. I am taking Foley Kidney Pills every other night. You should have seen me before I started I was yellow as gold, now my eyes and skin are all cleared up. My kidneys do not bother me at night any more If it will help some other poor soul who is suffering you may use my name wherever your medicine is advertised."

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

Hardly Knew Her At First Sight

"I have gained some eight or ten pounds since I commenced taking Tanlac and feel perfectly splendid in every way," said Miss Annie Peck, living at 1421 Charlotte St., Kansas City, Mo. "I just can't think enough good things to say about Tanlac," she continued.

"My troubles began about a year ago with nervous indigestion and my stomach finally got in such bad condition that everything I ate disagreed with me. After every meal I would be perfectly miserable from gas forming, and this gas would press up against my lungs and heart until I could hardly get my breath. I also suffered from severe headaches and became so nervous I rarely ever got a good night's sleep. Finally I became so weak and run down that I had to give up trying to do any work at all.

"My brother had gotten fine results from taking Tanlac so I began taking it, too, and right from the first I could just feel my strength coming back. I continued to improve and now am as well and hearty as any one could wish to be and never have a sign of stomach trouble or nervousness any more. I am looking so much better that my friends who haven't seen me since I began taking Tanlac hardly know me at first sight, and I am feeling so perfectly fine I just want to tell everybody about Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Port Angeles by Owl Drug Co.; in Dungeness by Wm. A. Monson; in Sequim by F. D. Babcock; in Blyn by W. B. Main: in Moxa by W. F. Taylor, and in Forks by Geo. W. Groffman.

Not worried very much about the High Cost of Living, are they? And why should they be? Jack gets the same amount of meat, sugar or potatoes at present day prices as when they cost only one-third as much.

And the Canteens on board sell him candy, cigars, tooth powder, shaving soap, and all his other needs at cost, plus only ten per cent profit. This profit goes into an athletic and entertainment fund, furnishing him with movie films, athletic equipment, and other play time necessities, for nothing.

It's a hard life; that's the reason the fellows in the picture look so worried.

Thousands of pieces of war material captured by American troops from the Germans in France are to be alloted to Washington state, according to Washington, D. C., special dispatches. All the states will share in the trophies in proportion to the per cent of troops contributed to the service Washington sent 1.34 per cent of the total number of Americans and will be alloted the same percentage of the war trophies captured. Among the trophies alloted to Washington are, five 75 mm. howitzers, six 105 mm. howitzers, two 210 mm. howitzers, 933 rifles, 134 machine guns, 656 bayonets 724 canteens, 160 assorted helmets, 47 ornamental helmets and 91 fur covered knapsacks.

CENTRALIA.

Centralia is to have a new $25,00 armory has soon as the war department proceeds with organization of a National Guard tank corps company recently assigned to Centralia. Tanks assigned to the company will be housed on the Southwest Washington Fair Grounds between Centralia and Chehalis and will form an attraction for the annual fairs.

The After Effects of Pneumonia

This is No. 2 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how certain diseases which attack the air passages—such as Pneumonia, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Measles or even a long continued Cold—often leave these organs in an inflamed, congested state, thus affording a favorable foothold for invading germs. And how Vick's VapoRub may be of value in this condition.

Pneumonia attacks the air cells of the lungs. An inflammation is set up and matter is thrown off which causes the air cells to solidify, thus preventing the natural flow of blood thru the lungs. This "backing up" of the blood causes the heart to pump harder, just as stepping on a hose increases the water pressure, which is the reason why, during this disease, the physician watches the overburdened heart so carefully.

After recovery the lungs are filled with a mass of wreckage—the debris of the battle—which must be gotten rid of by a process known as resolution. Frequently, inflamed spots remain, congestion persists, cough hangs on, and the least exposure brings on a cold that is hard to get rid of If neglected, such damaged air passages may easily develop serious disease of the lungs.

Such cases should always continue under a physician's care and frequent examinations should be made to see that nature is properly continuing the rebuilding process.

Nightly applications of Vick's VapoRub will aid nature in this work. Because Vicks acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vicks are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a tunnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vicks the size of a pea.

Samples to new users will be sent free on request to the Vick Chemical Company, 232 Broad Street, Greensboro, N. C.

THRILLING BASEBALL SCENE IN SCREEN PLAY, "THE WAY BACK"

Baseball "fans" who have seen the 5-reel feature picture entitled "The Way Back" declare that it contains the best baseball scene ever shown on any screen. The scene is that of the last inning between two semi-professional teams from rival country villages, with the score 0—0 when the hero comes to bat in the last half of the inning and knocks out a home run.

So wonderful is the photography in the picture that the ball is seen distinctly as it comes over the plate for the first strike and the second strike, and then what happens to it when it comes from the pitcher for the third time causes the audience to rise in their seats along with the bleachers in a tense situation that every lover of the national game always responds to.

The entire playing field is soon on the screen, and includes a picture of a near-riot when the umpire calls one of the runners out on a close play when caught napping off the bag. There is even a chance for an argument by the audience on the point until a close-up of the umpire is flashed on the screen with his mouth wide open yelling, "You're out!" as plainly as though the words were spoken.

The home run is also shown all the way around the diamond and an argument always follows between those who see the picture as to whether or not the runner touched all of the bags, in his trip around the circuit. But if he didn't the umpire fails to see it and the run counts.

A densely packed section of the small-town grandstand is shown and is so true to life that the enthusiasm of a whiskered thirty-third degree fan almost becomes contagious among the audience, and he divides attention with the star sitting near by intently watching her hero at the bat.

The last scene of the ball game shows the crazed rooters carrying the hero off the field on their shoulders while hats and caps are being thrown in the air amidst the shouts of the multitude. The baseball scenes in "The Way Back" are real reel thrillers all the way through.

These pictures will be shown here at The Dream on April 6 and 7.

BORAH WARNS WOOD AGAINST EXPENDITURES

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 29. — Reiterating his charges of excessive expenditures in the interests of Major General Leonard Wood's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, Senatorf Baroh, Republican, Idaho, telegraphed General Wood today declaring that unless the practices of the Wood campaign were corrected they would "bring disgrace upon your name, upon your party and upon your country."

"Information from various states," the message added, "had convinced Senator Borah that his previous statements about the Wood campaign expenditures were 'modest.'"

FRENCH GUN HAS 100-MILE RANGE

PARIS, March 29.—Delamare Maze, a French inventor, yesterday sold to the French government the patent of a new long range gun which after thorough tests has shown it as a range of from 100 to 120 miles. The shell leaves the muzzle of this gun at a speed ofapproximately 4,173 feet per second.

Premier Lloyd George announced in the British parliament recently that England has been negotiating with France to secure the right to use the plans of the gun. The Belgian government is now manufacturing a similar cannon at Leige. American military attaches in Europe have written to the government asking that American representatives may be present at tests.
