NIKOLAI LENINE THINKS REVOLUTION IS NEAR AT HAND

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, July 24.—Soviet Russia today notified the Polish army command to begin negotiations for an armistice.

Russia's reply to the Polish request for an armistice bring a possible solution of the most serious crisis in Europe which the allied powers have faced since the armistice was signed with Germany.

Europe was stirred to its depths and greatly alarmed over the recent sweep of the Bolsheviki armies over territory occupied by Polish armies, to the very borders of Poland, and the possible wiping out of the Poles as an independent nation, unless speedy and united military aid were furnished.

MOSCOW, July 24.—Nikolai Lenine, premier of Soviet Russia, speaking at an open session of the Third Internationale this week, declared that the world faced an economic crisis and the failure of the league of nations to reconcile and unite the capitalist governments was a condition of the utmost importance to the Third Internationale, whose purpose was to inaugurate world revolution.

After his address, in which Lenine declared that the entire capitalistic system was threatened with collapse, the Internationale adopted a resolution calling on the workers to institute an economic blockade.

Lenine said that even in America Great Britain and Japan, where some conditions favored maintenance of the existing economic system, the increase in the cost of living was disproportionate to the rise of wages and those benefitted by the system were an infinitely small proportion of the total populations.

Deportation of agitators, he declared, would not help the existing regime and the capitalists would not be much longer able to enrich themselves at the expense of the workers, who were ripe for revolution.

STATEWIDE STRAW VOTE ON GOVERNOR

A statewide secret straw ballot of 58,000 registered voters of Washington, one for every six who voted at the general election of 1916, has been launched by The Spokane Spokesman-Review. This, it is believed, is the largest and most representative straw ballot ever attempted in the state of Washington.

A return postal card is being mailed to 58,000 voters, in which the following announcement has been made:

"Early in August The Spokesman-Review will publish a statewide secret straw vote on the candidates for governor of your state. It is expected that this vote will be helpful to voters in the republican and democratic primaries as it will demonstrate the strong and weak candidates. The result of such a showing will be that voters at the primaries will refuse to throw away their votes on candidates having no chance of securing the nomination, but will vote for the strong candidates. Therefore, if you wish to do your utmost for the candidate you favor, it is important you mark this card and mail it by return post."

The vote is to cover all candidates whose names have been mentioned as possible candidates on the republican and democratic tickets, and the return part of the postal contains the names of these candidates.

Republican—Edwin T. Coman, John A. Gellatly, Louis F. Hart, Roland H. Hartley, George Lamping and John Stringer.

Democratic—W. W. Black, Robert Bridges, Hugh Todd, A. E. Judd, Richard Seelye Jones and E. T. Mathes.

The 58,000 names were selected from the returns of registration clerks of every county in Washington as they were filed in the office of the secretary of state at Olympia. The utmost pains were taken to make it a fair and thoroughly representative selection. The total vote cast by each county in the general election of 1916 was the basis of calculation and the proper proportion of names, according to this vote in each county, was copied from the registration clerks' return lists.

Louis Hucke picked up an automobile crank between First and Second on Valley street. He brought it into The Herald office where it now lies awaiting a claimant.

SMART GIRL HALTS ROBBERY OF ORTING BANK

(By Associated Press)

TACOMA, July 24.—The presence of mind of Miss Edna Shelcub, the bookkeeper, at the state bank at Orting near here this morning prevented robbery of the bank.

Two unmasked bandits entered the bank and covered the cashier with revolvers. Before they could reach for a large amount of currency which was in sight, Miss Shelcub ran out the back door of the bank shouting for help and the two bandits immediately ran out to a waiting automobile and drove away in the direction of Tacoma. A sheriff's posse was sent out to head them off.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS TONIGHT

The Chautauqua begins tonight. Already the reserved seats have been going like hot cakes. Everyone is anxious to see Julius Caesar Nayphe in his famous Oriental Pageant. He presents one of the most colorful, informative and enjoyable programs on the platform.

The Junior superintendent was the only lady who came in today in readiness for the Junior Chautauqua which opens tomorrow morning.

Director Reed has been here, there and everywhere superintending the many little necessities which are invariably left to the last and which must be cared for if the entertainment is to be a success.

NON-PARTISANS TO FILE ON G. O. P. TICKET.

YAKIMA, July 24.—Non-Partisans, in a county convention here, nominated Mrs. Ina P. Williams as their candidate for state senator for the district comprising Yakima and Benton counties. The intention is that Mrs. Williams shall file as a candidate in the republican primaries.

Frank Baker, of Yakima and Y. C. Mansfield, Sunnyside, were named for state representatives. Mrs. Ruth Hutchinson Thornton, present county auditor, was indorsed for re-election and agreed to accept the non-partisan indorsement.

INDIAN AGENT SHOT DEAD BY ASSISTANT

(By Associated Press)

MISSOULA, July 24.—Major Theodore Sharp, superintendent of the Flat Head Indian agency, was shot and killed at Ravalli this morning by M. J. Perkins, a sub-agent whom Major Sharp had just dismissed, charging that he was in sympathy with bootleggers, according to a report received here.

Perkins fended off the officers and escaped in an automobile to his home at St. Ignatius, where he changed clothes and telephoned for the sheriff to come and get him. Sharp is survived by his widow who is touring in Yellowstone Park and two children. Perkins is the father of six children.

SOUTH PARK GIVES LOCALS SECOND GAME

Several weeks agot he South Park bal team from Seattle took the locals into camp by rather a decisive score. The tribe of Bayton, Ervine, et al., were not satisfied with this game, therefore they have arranged for a return game tomorrow. The Angeles team has grown constantly better since the disastrous game and there is a great big reason, or rather nine great big reasons why South Park will be forced to extend themselves to the limit to repeat their victory.

The local bat slingers will take the field tomorrow with grim determination written all over their faces. They mean, not only to retrieve that defeat but the one they got last Sunday at the hands of the K. C. club. They mean to put every ounce of their strength to the wheel and sap the old pill far and often.

Glenn, as a pitcher, has made a great improvement and can be depended upon to do a yeoman's share of the work, while the fielders have gotten their machine in a well oiled and perfectly working condition and the fans and fannies who journey out on Front St. to view the game Sunday will be amply repaid for their trouble.

CHOICE LAKE SITE BOUGHT

A deal for the tract know as "Gline's Point" lying on the south side of Lake Crescent at the narrows, and just between Al Singer's Lake Crescent Tavern and Mrs. Littleton's "Rosemary," was consummated this week.

This wonderful scenic point comprises about 14 acres and is the most commanding location on the lake, besides being level and having good soil. It is understood the consideration was between $5,000 and $6,000. Lloyd Aldwell, of T. T. Aldwell & Company, represented both parties.

SOLDIERS DUE AT BELFAST TOMORROW

(By Associated Press)

BELFAST, July 24.—Beyond a few cases of isolated fighting the city was quiet this afternoon, although this was regarded generally as merely a lull in the storm. Military reinforcements were expected to arrive today.

The police alleged that the Sinn Feiners, Thursday night, employed explosive bullets, which terribly wounded their victims.

Henry Dorst of Clallam Bay is a business visitor today.

TEN DAYS IN SECOND VOTE PERIOD

The second voting period ends on Tuesday, August 3rd. Straight business proposition—How one young lady won in a recent contest—Go after second payments on subscriptions you have secured.

Proscrastination is the thief of time—it also steals success away from workers in voting campaigns.

Failure to work earnestly and turn in the many subscriptions to be had and lose out in a contest where such valuable prizes are offered, is a sad story at the best.

The days are flying and we are glad to see many of the candidates trying their level best to cinch that first prize, the Ford Sedan.

This is a cold business proposition. The Herald is offering you $2500 worth of prizes to increase its subscription list. You are banking your time against these prizes and not a minute should be squandered or an advantage overlooked. By earnest work this next ten days energetic candidates can win one of the three grand capital prizes. Beside all money you turn in this next ten days will count on the 175,000 extra votes.

WHAT ONE LADY DID.

In a recent contest in an Idaho city, one young lady did most of her work in the first and second voting periods she secured all her subscriptions when they netted the most, and in spite of the fact that she was taken sick and could not do much work during the third voting period, came out winner at the end of the contest.

The example of this contestant should be a lesson to all other contest workers. It doesn't pay to put off until tomorrow what you can do today. Subscriptions that you can readily write this week, may not be available next week, so you should examine your list of prospective subscribers carefully and round up every promise that you have while the vote schedule is favorable. Intensify your work, systematize, concentrate your attention on the contest now as you have at no time since it opened and reap a rich reward.

SECURE SECOND PAYMENTS.

At the end of the first period, very few subscriptions were received, as nearly every contestant worked the last day or so of the period. We say a few subscriptions, as is wah in comparison to other days, but not large subscriptions. The subscriptions we received averaged six months and one year. Only two contestants have received three year subscriptions. Our candidates are advised to go after second payments. Get your friends to renew their subscriptions for two years longer, the majority of those who gave you one year subscriptions will come to your assistance if you 'will go to them and explain to them that you are still in this contest, and you would like them to extend their subscription. Besides, go after a few three year subscriptions. You have as many friends as anyone, and we know you would like to win in this contest. Well, go to your friends again, explain to them that right now is the time you will receive so many more votes than later on. Your friends are not going to come to you and offer you their subscription. You must show them that you are interested yourself.

Candidates who think they will gain votes at the close of the contest are wrong. If you hold your money till the last part of contest you will be cheating yourself out of thousands of votes. Contest manager will be in office until 9:00 p. m. tonight. Tonight is the turn-in time, up to nine p. m.

There was a great run on the reserved seats for the Chautauqua this afternoon. The sale began very promptly if not a little earlier than anticipated and the choice seats were soon taken.

STIFF BREEZE POSTPONES YACHT RACE

(By Associated Press)

SANDY HOOK, July 24.—A 24-mile southwester, under which both Shamrock IV and Resolute staggered about the starting line under the shortest possible sails, caused the calling off today of the fifth and deciding race of the America Cup.

A couple of early morning squalls brought up the stiffest breeze that has swept lower New York in two weeks. The two yachts ploughed their way to the line where they found a stiff sea running and each ship notified the committee that it was willing to postpone the contest, which now will be sailed Monday. This was the first postponement on account of too much wind since the contest between Reliance and Shamrock III was called off 17 years ago, because of a northeaster.

ELECTRIC LINERS FOR SAN FRANCISCO VICTORIA ROUTE

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Two $4,000,000 twenty-three knot passenger boats are to be built for service between San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Seattle and Victoria, the Pacific Steamship company announced here today. The plans and specifications have been drawn up and the boats will be in operation within 18 months it was said.

The two steamers will be electrically driven, will accommodate 590 passengers and will make the trip from here to Seattle in 36 hours, a run that now requires from 50 to 60 hours. The new vessels will be equipped with gyroscopic stabilizers, a contrivance to keep vessels on an even keel in rough weather, it was stated.

PUYALLUP TRIP BIG SUCCESS

The visit to the experiment station at Puyallup was a grand success. Clallam County made a fine showing of some fifty persons, twenty or more belonging to the Boys' and Girls' Clubs of the county. Thursday night was spent at Tacoma. Friday was an intensely interesting day at the experiment station where everything was demonstrated to the visitors. A bountiful luncheon was provided at noon and in the afternoon Clallam County visitors took part in a big parade. The banks and stores were closed during the afternoon and the citizens turned out in fine shape.

The return trip was made to Tacoma where a stop over was made, several of the party prolonging their visit over Saturday. Mr. Benj. Phillips of the Citizens Bank joined the party at Puyallup and reports that the poultry exhibit was one of the finest things in a fine show. Mr. Phillips returned to Port Angeles this morning.

TO BUSINESS AND WORKING MEN.

It will be a great benefit to you to hear the lecture entitled, "The Cure for Industrial Unrest," given by E. B. Fish, Sunday evening, July 25.

This is one of the best lectures at the chautauqua and should be heard by every person in this community.

PARIS, July 24.—A wireless message from Moscow says the Havas agency announces that the Russian Soviet army is falling back on the order of the Coviet commander.

E. E. NICHOLS HAS HUNCH HE WOULD LIKE TO BE CONSTABLE

There was a new one among the latest filings of candidates for the coming primary elections, this was the notice that E. E. Nichols seeks the republican nomination for constable. Constable Nichols would be quite a new one.

Then there is James Stewart, who seeks the nomination for justice of the peace. Under the new law this post carries with it the office of police judge for Port Angeles and a neat little salary of $100 a month. Hence the post is more popular than heretofere. Another aspirants is Mr. Pearce, the present police judge, and Judge Peters is understood to be also a candidate for this office. There will be some jazz in the campaign for justice.

Police Chief Dwelly has filed notice of his candidature for the office of coroner and Thad Wagner, the able manager of the Dungeness creamery is out for the seat at the county board rendered vacant by the retirement of James Dick. John Mapes of Dungeness also is expected to be an aspirant for this position. Will J. Ware and J. O. Morse are seeking reelection as county engineer and assessor respectively.

Judge Ralston has filed at Olympia to succeed himself as superior court judge.

DANIELS VISITS YAKIMA ORCHARDS

(By Associated Press)

YAKIMA, July 24.—Eecretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels and Secretary of the Interior John Barton Payne, and party arrived this morning at seven o'clock.

They were met at the station by leading Yakima Democrats and public officials and after breakfast drove through the orchard district, stopping at the Sunnyside dam. They went over the factory of the Utah-Idaho sugar plant. Following luncheon a number of Toppenish men urged Federal support for building good roads on the reservation.

FARGO, N. D., July 24.—Four army air planes on flight from Mineola to Nome, Alaska, arrived here at 1:15 todays from Fort Snelling, Minnesota.

PORTLAND, Oregon, July 24—Huge boulders brought down from the hills by cloudbursts in the Lewiston, Ida., district the past few days have buried the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company's tracks in at least 50 places, according to C. (By Associated Press)

PORTLAND, July 24.—Mrs. Edna Impoff, a department store bookkeeper, was the woman injured last night with George V. Adams, automobile salesman, when their automobile went into a ditch near Gervais, Oregon. She was fully identified today at the hospital in Salem, where both were taken. It is said her recovery was doubtful. Adams' injuries were less serious.

Mrs. Garton on Front street is enjoying a visit from her two sons, one from California and the other from Tacoma, who arrived last night overland accompanied by their sister, Mrs. Jones and her little girl. Her children will probably stay with her for two weeks or more.

The Simmons live in the dry belt where they see little but sage brush and thoroughly enjoyed every moment of their stay among the lakes and mountains.

Pastor King, of the Baptist church, had a bad spill yesterday, while painting his house. The ladder was not in a very good shape and Mr. King used some props, but put them in the wrong way. As a result the ladder fell and Mr. King with it, a distance of about 12 feet. He cut his face badly with his glasses which were smashed and suffered some internal injuries besides. However, he is able to be about today and talks cheerfully of the accident.

THE CHAUTAUQUAS.

It rather passes understanding why, on the eve of the opening of Ellison-White chautauqua, which is by way of being a community enterprise, owing to the fact that a large number of citizens are guarantors of sufficient business, and responsible people should have been led into countenancing and even aiding the campaign of a rival concern to be substituted next year for the Ellison-White program. It is certain that them majority of the people of the city are pleased with the chautauqua programs provided here in the past and have little inclination to adventure a change by contracting with another concern concerning which they have no direct knowledge.

When the matter was brought to the attention of the Herald, which from the outset has been a strong supporter of the summer chautauqua, considerable trouble was taken to learn the rival merits of the other concern from responsible people who had had the advantage of attending both chautauquas.

The result of these inquiries was made known the other day, and should have been sufficient for wise men. The West Coast chautauqua people have a proposition which promises all sorts of benefits to the city which entertains it, but the proposition is based upon the obtaining of results which usually are not obtained. The whole thing in the chautauqua is the program. If the "goods are not delivered" there are no profits to divide with the city; of the program is first class the profits in a city of this size, are slam.

Port Angeles in the matter of the chautauqua, had better "stay put."

UNDERPAID OFFICIALS.

There is no flurry at present in the matter of filing of notice of candidacies for county offices. One reason is that the pay is far from commensurate with the present cost of living and condition exists in which deputies are better paid than officials themselves. There is some hope that the population of the county may have increased sufficiently to permit of a raise in the classification of Clallam, and the resultant higher schedule of salaries, but this is still problematical. As things are the sheriff could not hire a deputy for the price he receives for his work, and the county attorney might be hard put to it to hire a stenographer for the amount of his salary.

Only in the city hall is it reported that a remedy has been found for the situation, by principal and deputy "divvying up."

Given in the case of local "third party" men it is said to be quite a problem to find a farmer or a worker willing to give up a wage of from $6 to $9 a day for the fun of being a county official.

MIDDLEMEN AND COOPERATION.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is planning an experiment in cooperative selling which should be very instructive to the rest of the country. If national agencies, acting for the farmers, can handle grain and live stock efficiently there is a chance that a certain costly portion of our mercantile machinery can be dispensed with. In every great inquiry into profiteering the middleman is found to be getting a large share, if not the most, of the surplus cash. Food and clothing and coal are all expensive at present for the fundamental reason that there is or has been a scarcity of these commodities, but the increase in cost to the consumer is never held down to the actual increase in the cost of materials, labor, and capital. There is always a stratum of middlemen who must handle all the goods sold, and who are tempted to buy and sell warehouse receipts in the spirit of gamblers doubling the stakes at poker. It is a question whether hoarding or quick turnover on a narrow margin has been more influential in creating the high cost of living.

If the middlemen were not a useful individual he would not exist to buiquitously. In normal times he is as hard-working and little to be feared as anybody else in business. But when a scarcity arrives to takes his rake-off.

Yet somebody must stand between the producer and the consumer, must take the loss that accompanies distribution, and must keep the channels open between the country and the city.

ANOTHER KIND OF A "NEW" WOMAN--The Female Bootlegger

By Morris

If a cooperative organization can do this effectively it may be able to take the place of the despised jobber of modern industry, serving the farmer and the city man going and coming, and saving money in both directions.

IS GERMANY TRYING?

Is Germany making an honest effort to meet her obligations under the Treaty of Versailles? Or is she merely marking time, hoping for the day when Allied dissension may give her an opportunity to escape them altogether?

The press of the two principal Allied powers, France and England, reveals wide difference of opinion on this question. First, as regards disarmament, it is the general opinion in France that Germany should be compelled instantly to reduce her effectives to 100,000 men required by the treaty, while the English are much taken with the German plea that such a reduction would constitute a grave menace to internal safety.

There is a parallel difference of opinion on the question of reparations, a difference that springs quite naturally from the relatives financial strength of the two countries. England is not urgently in need of money payments—at least not in anything like the degree that France needs them. The French waged war on tick, the people being told all the time that Germany would pay. Now the day of reckoning has come, the war is a dead horse that has not yet been paid for, and if Germany cannot pay the French government is faced with an overwhelming deficit. Therefore France insists that Germany must pay, and since Germany cannot pay cash, she must pledge her future. The English point of view is that if the amount of Germany's liability is not fixed at a reasonable figure, and fixed now, it is unreasonable to expect any serious effort on the part of the German people to pay at all. Why, it is asked, should a people work hard and produce extensively if it knows in advance that all it produces will be taken away?

The introductory speech of Chancellor Fehrenbach "was all sugar and honey" says the Journal Des Debats, Paris, which reflects a semi-official point of view. "Germany," he says in substance, is resolved to keep her engagements honestly, both in reducing armaments and in reparations. But she can do it only to the extent of her ability; the demobilization of half of the Reichswehr, particularly, he thinks will encounter insurmountable difficulties. And, he complains, everybody distrusts us so! But whoever acts on such distrust sins against the vital interets of Europe." To which the Debats retorts:

"The Allies, nevertheless, will do well to have no scruples about committing this sin, against which they are so unctuously warned. Far from confessing his country's misdeeds, Herr Fehrehbach makes it his duty to praise its incomparable merits."

Le Temps, the other great quasi-official evening paper of Paris, readily recognizes the importance of the question as to Germany's ability to pay. But it is firmly of the opinion that no serious effort is being made at Berlin.

The Berlin correspondent of the Manchester Guardian gives an account of the German point of view, obtained from "authorative quarters" that is interesting because it differs from the reports ordinarily received from Germany. The dispatch says that while the first news of the invitation to Spa revived hope of a workable settlement between Germany and the Allies, later developments have turned it once again to despair. Says the correspondent:

"Today nothing is expected from Spa but a repetition of the senseless, deaf bullying that began at Versailles. Nothing could be farther from the truth than the notion that Germany rejoices in the differences between the Allies and hopes to explain them. On the contrary every report of differences causes a new pang"

THE ROAD TO PEACE.

What a lot of energy people do waste trying to make other people different, trying to make them see where they are wrong, fretting because they have certain traits, finding fault because they will not "listen to reason" —reason, of course, being what they think. ("Hetereodoxy," said a famous bishop, "is the other man's doxy; orthodoxy is mine.")

And what a great peace somes over one when one realizes that, after all, one doesn't have to wear oneself out this way.

She Thought She Would Burst.

"He must know he wasn't fair about it," a little friend of mine once said to me in regard to an argument she had had with her husband, "but he simply wouldn't admit it. It seems as if I would burst if I can't make him see it, and admit it."

That's a typical example of the state of mind I mean—the state of mind that hurls itself against some other personality and wears itself our trying to mould, or change, or convince that personality.

In May Sinclair's latest book (a queer medley of the morbid, the melancholy, the beautiful and the helpful) she tells how her heroine wins through from restlessnes and unsatisfied desires, to peace—and that in spite of having every outward circumstance of life against her. And one of the milestones on her road to the haven of peace is the realization that you don't have to fret and worry yourself because people are thus and so instead of as they should be. They are what they are—all you have to do is to accept and make the best of them.

Of Course You Want to Help.

Of course if you see some one for whom you care, following a line of conduct which you know (or rather think—only supreme inteligence can know these things) is keeping him from his best happiness and development, there is no reason why after thorough consideration, you should not outline the change in conduct which you feel will bring happiness.

Having outlined it the best you can, there your duty ends.

It may be entirely rejected. You will naturally be sorry, but you need not fret.

Would You Be Satisfied With This?

Or it may be apparently rejected, and yet in reality the seed may have been sown that will ultimately bring good fruit.

Many people are like that—they will never admit they are wrong or appear to accept any suggestion, and yet the seed lodges down deep and some day bears fruit. True, they wil seldom admit that they were helped; they prefer to think they stumbled upon the change fortuitously. But that need not worry you if it is only their good and not self-aggrandizement you were after.

ROSES.

CHAPTER VI.

"Are you going over to the Gaynor's dance?" Clara asked, coming into the kitchen of the Fairbanks house early in the afternoon.

Alice turned from the stove, where she was stirring a kettle of boiling fruit. The house was flooded with the sticky sweet odor and Alice's face was scarlet from the heat and the steam, and her hair clung in damp little tendrils to her forehead.

"It's Friday, isn't it?" she asked. "No, I don't think I can go, Clara. Mother hasn't been so well."

"Not a relapse?" Clara asked in alarm. She always resented vaguely the fate that tied her young friend down to the wearing routine of housework, gardening and nursing.

"No," Alice answered, "at least, not a bad one. You see, she had word from her sister Laura that she was awfully sick and of course, the news upset her."

"I didn't know you had an aunt," Clara commented briefly. She felt cross because Alice was going to miss an evening's pleasure.

"I hardly know it myself," Alice answered cheerfully. "I never saw her and Mother hasn't for almost twenty years. She married a rich man and moved away.' '

"Oh, if she has money—" Clara began frankly.

"She hasn't," Alice said with a laugh. "She lost it all sometime ago. She has a daughter, but I have never seen her either."

"Just the same though you didn't have to miss the dance," Clara commented when she went. "You don't look a bit sorry either. I don't see how you keep so happy in the face of everything."

"Happy! Why shouldn't I be? It's June—and look at the roses!"

Happy! How could she help but be so? David was coming to see her this evening. She was going to put on the freshly laundered blue gingham, the one he had admired. She thought of washing her hair, too—it was always such a pretty color when she dried it in the sun.

"But it falls around your face so, you'd better leave it as it is. I wish you'd put on a hair net," her mother said.

So Alice, with her good natured laugh, turned back to her work. The strawberry preserves were given an airproof coating of paraffin and labelled and set in a row on the kitchen table right after supper. Then Alice flew to make a hurried toilet before—

David came up the steps before she was ready, and sat talking with her mother. It was dark when she man down conscious of her prettiness, and suddenly shy as a young girl when she held out her hand.

They pulled their chairs out on the grass, the moon came out, and presently Mrs. Fairbanks excused herself and went indoors, with Alice to assist her to her room, and to help put her to bed. But soon Alice was back again, with the full glory of the moon shining down on her, and the wall of roses on the porch as a background for her.

They talked of the Model Farm — "I'm moving out there to live next week," David said,—and of her mother's ill health. David talked a little of his mother, who had died some years before, and his voice grew gentle.

And Alice's voice grew gentle and sympathetic, too, as she answered him.

And the inevitable magic of the moon grew more and more powerful.

And the odor of the roses stole out through the night, like incense through some marvelous cathedral.

"They smell so sweet, you — you can hardly bear it," Alice said with a little stammer after a short silence.

David looked at her. The most critical person could not find a tonight. She had dressed car and the moon never shows def

"You are all blue and silver, A said David.

He had never called her Alice fore. And to every girl there co that sudden thrill, when the man is falling in love with uses the sv familiarity of her given name for first time. Alice felt her heart po rapidly.

And the magic of the moon gr even more powerful, Alice felt should move away, or say somethi but the break the spell would be sacrilege.

Suddenly David put out his ha and covered hers as it lay on the ar of the chair. Instinctively she start to draw it away, her cheeks flood with color. But she let it stay, trem ling a little.

Then she jumped up.

"Don't, please dont!" she manage to breathe out. And to his utter su prise, she ran into the house, leavin him alone in the moonlight and th sweet smell of the roses.

OH, DEAR! MY BACK!

Merciful Heavens, how my back hurts in the morning!". It's all due to an over-abundance of that poison called uric acid. The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome, and prolong life by taking "Anuric" (anti-uric-acid). This can be obtained at almost any drug store, in tablet form.

When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night, get Dr. Pierce's Anuric, it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Send Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., ten cents for trial package.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's remedies in my family for fifteen years and have found on every occasion that they gave satisfactory results. Recently I was troubled with my kidneys and my back constantly pained me. I took three packages of Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets which removed all pain and cleared up conditions. I advise every one to give Dr. Pierce's remedies a fair trial."—MRS. E. EVE, 422 Brannon Street.

WEEKLY LUMBER REVIEW.

One hundred and twenty-two mills in Oregon and Washington reporting to West Coast Lumbermen's Association for the week ending July 17th, show a total production of 61,595,260 feet, which was 28 per cent below normal.

Stimulated buying during the week brought orders, low production and restricted shipments within a few points of each other.

The total new business taken during the week was 59,642,560 feet.

Total shipments for the week amounted to 61,712,124 feet.

The shipping total was materially increased by cargo movement.

Car shortage continues acute; during the week under review, only 1,330 cars were loaded out to transcontinental points. This is approximately 1,000 cars under normal.

The unshipped balance in the transcontinental trade is 6,774 cars; in the domestic cargo trade 59,545,643 feet; in the export trade 54,773,188 feet.

SAWMILL REFUSE IS AVAILABLE FOR FUEL.

(By Associated Press)

PORTLAND, Oregon, July 23.—The answer to the fuel problem on the Pacific Coast may be found in the use of sawmill refuse, according to Darah Corbet of Seattle, electrical engineer with the Charles C. Moore company of that city, speaking before the convention of American Institute of American Engineers at the Multnomah Hotel.

Search warrants, it is observed, are being used to hunt for liquor. Why not call in a few rumhounds to trail it down?—Providence Tribune.

Maurice Browne Players at Chautauqua

Will Present Charles Kenyon's Powerful Drama "Kindling"

Coming as a feature attraction for Chautauqua audiences this year in the South and West is the production of "Kindling," by the Maurice Browne players. This powerful drama written by Charles Kenyon, made a record-breaking success in New York by running two years. It is one of the plays of recent years that seems destined to live. It reaches deep into the hearts of people everywhere and leaves a profound impression. The problem raised is age-old and one that must be faced and solved.

The Maurice Browne Players is a company of finished artists, headed by Moroni Olsen and Janet Young and coached by the eminent playwright, Maurice Browne of New York, one of the pioneers of the Little Theater movement in America. With his wife, Ellen Van Volkenburg, he was founder and co-director from 1912 to 1919 of the Chicago Little Theater, which in the words of Clayton Hamilton, "made a name for itself that is known throughout the English-speaking world."

Sunday Church Services

BAPTIST.

First Baptist Church, R. W. King, pastor.

We went over the top with eighteen to the good last Sunday morning in our Sunday School and we expect to do the same thing tomorrow. Come and be one of the number. Remember that this is July and vacation time but we are not on the list in our Sunday School or the church services. Our congregations are as large now as in the winter and we invite you to come and enjoy the good things.

According to the promise of the pastor that when the Sunday School went over the top he would preach a sermon to the children, Sunday morning he will give an illustrated sermon by the use of a magnet and old as well as young will be paid well for coming to this service. In the evening Rev. Ira Maxey who goes on the first of August to become pastor at Kent, will preach for the last time in Port Angeles before he goes.

CONGREGATIONAL

First Congregational Church, Rev. R. M. Stevenson, Pastor.

At the morning service the pastor will preach on the subject: "Russellism, or the Millennial Dawn Nightmare; the blasphemous religion which teaches the annihilation of Jesus Christ, and a second chance for the wicked after death."

All who are interested in knowing something about this popular manmade doctrine which is plausible and fascinating enough to lead millions away from the truth of the Bible, are earnestly invited to this service.

In the evening an evangelical service conducted by the pastor. All made welcome.

CHIROPRACTIC METHOD.

Chiropractic is a drugless method of healing, and is based upon the scientific fact that the soft nerces, as they escape from the lateral openings of the spine frequently become impinged by coming in contact with hard bone; hence, pathological changes take place at the termination of the nerve, sometimes in the flesh and not infrequently in the vital organs of the body.

The Chiropractor removes the pressure by straightening the spine. Complete innervation follows, Health results. See your Chiropractor.

TO STOP COUGHING, SNEEZING, WHEEZING.

Unseasonable spring weather left a number of coughs and colds. Now comes the time of hay fever and asthma and more persons than ever will be coughing, sneezing and wheezing. No wonder there is a tremendous demand for Foley's Honey and Tar, that old reliable family remedy for coughs, colds, hay fever, asthma and croup. It heals and soothes that raw, rasping feeling in the throat, clears the passages and makes breahing easier. — W. J. Mathewson, Agent.
