ONE ESCAPING PRISONER CAPTURED AT CAYUSE BY POSSE

UMATILLA SHERIFF IS MURDERED BY PRISON BREAKERS

(By Associated Press)

PENDLETON, Ore., July 26.—T. D. Taylor, sheriff of Umatilla county, was shot through the breast and fatally wounded Sunday afternoon when prisoners broke out of the county jail. Six of the seven in jail escaped, after overpowering Deputy Sheriff Jake Marin and shooting the sheriff. Taylor died at 6:10 p. m.

Following the break from the jail the fugitives fled to the O. W. R. & N. company railway tracks where they boarded a freight train which they rode four miles east of Pendleton to Mission station. Here they left the train and fled into the wooded country.

The break took place at 1:40 p. m., and the desperadoes, after seizing guns and ammunition in the sheriff's office, bolted from the jail and ran to the railway tracks.

Neil Hart, Indian, 22, in jail after a fight with Taylor and Deputy Marin in the hills near Reith, last week, faced charges of grand larceny, and attempt to kill; Jim Owens, Indian, 29, charged with grand larceny and attempt to kill; Jack Hathie, 22, charged with robbing a store; Albert Lindgren, charged with "raising" a check; Richard Patterson and Lewis Anderson, alleged bad check passers.

All of the fugitives were awaiting action of the grand jury.

Latest reports say that the men scattered. Lindgren is reported to have been seen running up Wade hill, southwest of Pendleton, alone. The other five men are still thought to be in the woods near Mission.

Sheriff Taylor and Wyrich were just coming into Taylor's office when they saw Owens and Patterson rummaging around the drawers in the office looking for ammunition. They rushed them and Taylor threw Owens to the floor and Wyrick got Patterson down. The two were overpowering the prisoners. Then Hart came in with a loaded rifle and shot Taylor. He told Wyrick to get up or get a dose of lead too. Wyrick obeyed. They rolled Taylor onto a coach and Hart was going to shoot him again, Wyrick said, because the sheriff would not tell where the ammunition was. Wyrick begged Hart not to and was allowed to get some water for Taylor. Hart then threatened the pair, until the sheriff said:

"All right take the ammunition and get out," at the same time pointing to the drawer which contained it.

Taylor although fatally wounded talked freely to relatives and friends during the first hour after he was shot. He said:

"Well, this is a corker, I could have shot Owens."

Several hundred men, women and children congregated at the county court house waiting for news from posses scouring the country for the outlaws.

Taylor had been sheriff 13 years, 6 months. He served four years as deputy before that. He had been in numerous fights with outlaws, but this was the first time he was ever hit. He had been re-elected sheriff of Umatilla county time after time.

LATER: Albert Lindgren, one of the five men who escaped from the county jail after killing T. D. Taylor, sheriff of Umatilla county, was captured by a posse early today at Cayuse, twenty miles east of Pendleton. Lindgren declares he left the jail before Sheriff Taylor was killed. According to Lindgren the prisoners had been plotting the break for several days. Two members of the posse are declared to have said the killing of Taylor occurred during the escape of the men.

Two men believed to be Jim Owens and C. L. Hart, prisoners who escaped from the Umatilla county jail here when Sheriff Taylor was shot and killed are said to be surrounded in a wheat field five miles southwest of Pendleton. Armed men were rushed to the scene when the home of a rancher was reported robbed. A reward of $1,000 for the capture of the men, dead or alive, has been offered by the city of Pendleton.

Prominent Cincinnati Citizen Expects Harding To Carry Ohio By 100,000

Theodore Horstman, prominent lawyer of Cincinnati, and former city attorney there, who is visiting his son in Port Angeles, does not believe that Governor Cox is a very strong candidate for the presidency even in Ohio.

"The delegates to the Democratic National Convention," said Mr. Horstman, in answer to questions by the Herald, "seem to have been impressed by the fact that Governor Cox was three times elected governor. Those elections, however, were principally due to specific circumstances and not to any exception popularity of Cox. For more than a decade the prohibition question has been a prime factor in Ohio elections. The liquor and allied interests were very formidable financially and in voting strength. Twice the liquor vote elected Cox principally because his republican opponent favored prohibition.

"For example, Cincinnati, which is normally republican by 15,000 to 20,000 gave Cox about 20,000 plurality and also gave a plurality of 60,000 against prohibition. On another occasion Cox had the benefit of the republican split between Roosevelt and Taft factions.

"Senator Harding," continued Mr. Horstman, "is generally regarded in Ohio as a man of strong common sense—a safe and sane statesman. He is not one of those intellectual, idealist geniuses who will throw the country into fits. Harding as president would act as a sedative to the present disturbed political and industrial conditions. There is no Harding political machine in Ohio and he is not the type of politician to organize one. His nominations have come to him simply because he is a fine appearing, level-headed likeable man of good ability—the kind of a man of whom there are many thousand in the United States, both in and out of office.

"Cox has made a good governor as governors ordinarily go, but he is a different type of statesman to Harding. Cox has a personal machine in Ohio, nad too many of his appointments have been made with a view to his own political advancement, rather than for the public weal. New York City's Tammany is Cox's natural affinity. If the people want a clever politician for president rather than a broad-minded statesman, then Cox is the man. In my opinion Harding will beat Cox in Ohio by more than 100,000 plurality."

WHO WILL RIDE IN THE FORD SEDAN?

Scores of predictions have been offered, astrologists, palmists, and exponents of the occult science have been consulted by some in an endeavor to obtain some inkling of what the outcome will be. Yet all these questions avail them not, for the final result is as much as ever in doubt.

In an effort to eliminate as much of this doubt is possible, candidates all over the Herald territory are scouring the communities ceaselessly from the waking hours of morn until the day is done. These ambitious candidates are fighting the battle courageously, never pausing, but keeping at it, so that the tide of fortune will sweep toward them. Such stirring scenes, with such eager candidates filled with the spirit of conquest, have never had their equal in this section. The race for supremacy is rushing forward nip and tuck. Many of those who apparently have no chance, if they be judged by their present vote standing, promise to spring big surprises at the end as well as send the too confident ones down to defeat.

Over-confidence is the biggest handicap under which a candidate can labor. This unwelcome attribute causes more regret than anything else in a campaign of this sort.

The only way to be sure of winning is to spend every minute possible in scouring for subscriptions. Perserverance is the only winning quality. And see whah there is at the top for the plucky ones—a luxurious Sedan Car and other valuable prizes, each the embodiment of refinement and quality. These prizes will make their owners proud. No luxury encompasses the delight of a motor car, and this particular model to be given away, stands out as especially attractive. The big schedule of votes in effect this week makes easy a rapid rise in votes. One candidate stated Saturday tthat she was making a thorough canvass of every subscriber she had previously secured, and thus far her returns have averaged better than 50 per cent.

Determined methods are being brought into play to make an exhaustive cleanup of the territory. Candidates are darting here and there, ever in quest of votes. Make these days the most active of any that have gone before that victory may crown your efforts! The schedule points the way. The time is short—only seven more days till the close of the second period. Any candidate can become a winner in that time, and when the sun sets on the final day then you can reflect contentedly that your work was a mighty effort, well put forth. This very week, this fateful period of seven days, is a period filled with tremendous possibilities. Time enough for anyone to make victory a certainty. Get started early tomorrow morning, keep going and finish the biggest, yet shortest campaign ever inaugurated in Clallam County.

Dr. Carmichael, who has taken offices above Coffey's jefelry store, is moving in today.

SOUTH PARK LOSES GAME TO ANGELES

Too much confidence in their ability to outplay Port Angeles cost South Park the game yesterday. They were here before and had little trouble in defeating Port Angeles. Yesterday, it was evident from the start that they were figuring on an easy game. Well, that was where they were fooled, for Angeles stepped into the limelight and aided by hard hitting and numerous errors on the part of the visitors chalked up a win.

The final score was 12 to 2. Ervine was the choice for the mound duty and he handled the situation in masterly style. Toward the end of the game he retired in favor of Glenn who held the visitors easily. Aside from pitching a swell game of ball, Ervine rapped tth ball for three hits out of four time to bat.

Ludlow will send a team here for next Sunday. This means probably that a tight game will be the result, for this small burg has a habit of getting strong outside players when they have a hard game. Let them, Angeles

CHAUTAUQUA'S PROGRAM FINE

The opening days of the Ellison-White Chautauqua have been marked with splendid entertainments, instructive and informative talks, good attendances and beautiful weather.

The Oriental Pageant on Saturday was all that it was reported to be. The lecturer, aided by five local young ladies by whom the beauiful draperies were worn with excellent effect, held his audience from start to finish. The auditorium was packed. On all sides words of commendation and pleasure were heard.

Sunday's program was equally favored and was much appreciated. Those who were privileged to hear Mr. Fish's lecture came away glad they went. Others were delighted with the musical program which was excellently rendered.

An equally pleasing program was given today. All music lovers are looking forward to the Grand Concert tonight in which will be heard Paul Periera and his string quintet and Mary Adel Hays in her return engagement.

TRUNK CRIME MAY BE ACT OF VENGEANCE

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 26.—Roy Millen, 29 years old, said to answer the description of "Eugene Leroy," wanted by the Detroit police as the alleged slayer of the woman whose mutilated body was found in a trunk shipped from there to New York, was arrested tonight in a hotel.

Police found a trunk in Millen's room. It corresponds in description to that in which the woman's body was found, they said.

DETROIT, July 26.—Clothing contained in the trunk in which the body of a woman was shipped from Detroit to New York was positively identified today as having been the preporty of Mrs. E. LeRoy, according to detectives assigned to the case. Patrolman Leo Trumbull, a mmeber of the etroit police force, and a close personal friend of the LeRoy's was said to have made the identification.

Trumbull also stated that Mrs. LeRoy was formerly Miss Katherine Jackson, a southern girl, and that she and her husband lived at 105 Harper avenue, Detroit, the address given on the shipping bills for the trunk.

Detectives assigned to identify the man who shipped a trunk from Detroit on June 20, in which the mutilated body of a woman was found in New York are checking up statements said to have been made to Birminghom, Ala., police by Allan M. Tatum, a linotype operator. The name given of the shipper on the way bill was "A. A. Tatum."

According to dispatches to the police here, Tatum walked into the police headquarters at Birmingham, Saturday and volunteered a statement. He is said to have told officers he believed the murdered woman was Katherine Jackson whom he met in Birmingham. He admitted, the dispatches said, that he wa sacquainted with Eugene Leroy, the name given by a man who rented an apartment at the address given by "Tatum" on the trunk waybill. He said Leroy was an automobile mechanic.

Tatum met Katherine Jackson in Birmingham, he said, in June, 1919. He visited her often, twice in Detroit. Police found that "Mrs. Katherine Jackson, Nashville," was registered at the interurban hotel there October 30, 1910. Tatum said he visited her in June, 1920, at another hotel. She told him then, he said that she was married and that her husband was "extremely jealous."

According to Tatum's story the woman wrote him every day or two. He last heard from her June 4 or 5, he said, and gave that as his reason for believing "something had happened to her."

The trunk shipped here from New York was partially identified today by Mrs. Lottie Brooks, manager of the apartment at 105 Harper avenue as having belonged to "Leroy."

RANCHER'S FAMILY NARROWLY ESCAPES INJURY.

Three Snohomish boys, Race, McIntyre and Law, with Race at the wheel, autoing last Saturday about ten p. m., ran into a car containing Mr. and Mrs. Wortman and two children, about 350 yards this side of the west city limits. Nobody was hurt but Mr. Wortman lost his front wheel and fender, when he, seeing a collision was unavoidable, with great presence of mind, turned the wheel so that it bore the brunt of the impact. Mrs. Wortman was sitting behind in the car with a young baby and small child. She was thrown violently against the front set but suffered no injury. A crowd quickly gathered. A neighbor took Mrs. Wortman and the children home while Mr. Wortman stayed with the car. Deputy Sheriff Cole was soon on the spot and is understood to be handling the case.

RACE IMPOSSIBLE; YACHTS PLAY FOR TIME LIMIT

(By Associated Press)

SANDY HOOK, July 26.—At 3:30 o'clock today, three hours after the start of the fifth race of 120 for the America Cup, Resolute was leading Shamrock IV by about a mile and a half on a beat to the outer mark of a 30-mile windward and leeward course.

Although they had actually covered nearly a dozen miles of a luffing match—a battle of skippers that took the racing sloops far into the Jersey shore, the racers had covered less than one-half of the fifteen-mile leg. With scarcely a breath of air crossing the racing lane the race became a fight against the six-hour time limit which expires at 6:30 p. m.

With the Resolute two miles in the lead the fifth international yacht race was declared off at five o'clock today becuase a dying wind made it impossible for the cup sloops to finish within the time limit.

Resolute was six miles from the outer mark on the first fifteen mile leg of today's 30-mile windward and leeward course, having covered only nine miles when the Regatta committee called off the race that will decide whether the America cup shall leave its home in the United States for a home in the British Isles.

Aboard the Steam Yacht Victoria—(By Wireless to Associated Press.)—Sir Thomas Lipton today stated that if he failed this year to capture the America cup he would challenge again next year for 1922 with a new boat.

Editorial

A GOOD BEGINNING.

Judging by the comment heard on al sides this morning citizens are more than pleased with the opening programs of the Ellison-White chautauqut and the address of E. E. Fish on the big emplayment problems of the day held the audience in close attention for more than two hours. Mr. Fish has practical experience both as a worker and an employer and his study of the fundamental problems of employment has had results which are practical as well as theoretical.

The weather apparently is going to be all that can be desired for the chautauqua and the community should enjoy a pleasant and improving week.

OFORD'S AMERICAN CHAIR.

Oxford University's acceptance of Viscount Rothermere's endowment of an American history chair, to be filled by an American, marks an educational innovation that has possibilities. So far as the subject to be taught is concerned, there is no reason why instruction could not be as capably imparted by a Britisher as by an American. Bryce's "American Commonwealth" is used as a text books in schools and colleges of this country. British teachers are as able to teach American history in England as American teachers are to teach English history in this country. The idea behind the provisions attached to the Rothermere endowment is not that better instruction in cold facts and figures of history is thus to be obtained, but that in this way British youth can arrive at a better understanding of the American spirit, a thing that defies cold type to set it forth.

Only an American can truly expound the spirit of his nation. With an American in the American history chair at Oxford, students will be able to get the American viewpoint that they could otherwise obtain only by attending an American institution of learning. Similarly a British professor of English history, teaching in an American university, could illuminate the study of his subject with the spirit of England. As America and Great Britain are steadily growing closer together and as the future relationship between the two countries largely depends on mutual understanding, the Rothermere professorship is to be counted a step towards a desirable end. Especially is this so at the present time when the Hearts on this side of the Atlantic and the Bottomleys on the other are apparently bent on bringing about misunderstanding.

A Hard Nut for the World to Crack

By Morris

Daily Editorial Digest.

GOVERNOR COX AS A RESERVATIONIST.

"Do Mr. Cox's reservations to the League of Nations differ from the reservations of the Republican Senators?" This question, asked by the Chicago Tribune (Ind. Rep.) is answered by a number of newspapers of both parties with a qualified negative, though the Republicans see in the candidate's statements, issued before he visited the White House, a disagreement with the Administration, while the Democratic writers for the most part find them in accord with the President'.

The Buffalo Express (Ind. Rep.) declares that "the purpose of the Cox reservations is obviously the same as those proposed by the Senate," and briefly states their purport:

"They would declare that the acceptance by the United States of any decision of the League's Council and our continuance as a member would depend upon its adherence to the fundamental purpose of maintaing peace damental purpose of maintaining peace and comity among the nations of the world, and that, in carrying out the purpose of the League the acts of the United States must always be in harmony with the Constitution."

These reservations the Express adds "would be ineffective, of course, if they were not made specifically to apply to definite sections of the covenant." Thus, it concludes, Governor Cox really denounces the Republican Senators for their course and yet admits his willingness that "the treaty should be corrected along the lines the Republicans sought."

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle (Rep.) expressing a similar view, quotes the Governor's remark that "as deep laid and as carefully planned conspiracy as was ever planned by Germany" blocked ratification of the League. The Democrat Chronicle then asks:

"Where did Governor Cox secure license for suggesting changes in a document that in the eyes of the White House is absolutely perfect? By what authority does he accuse the Republican Senators and twenty-one Democratic colleagues of plotting a "conspiracy" by suggesting changes in the covenant, and then proceed to suggest changes himself?"

The Dallas Times Herald (Ind. Dem.) sees no inconsistency in the attitude of Governor Cox and applies his reservation "specifically," as the Express suggests must be done, to the much discussed Article X, which, it believes, is thereby nullified. Because of this it sees fit to congratulate the Democratic party "on having chosen as its standard-bearer one who is vitally American in brain and heart."

To the Charleston News and Courier (Dem.) the fact that the Governor's safeguards "would have amply provided against all the dangers that the Senate pretended to see" is sufficient to prove that Senator Lodge and his colleagues were not sincere.

The "strict conformity to the constitution" clause of the mooted-reservations is , in the opinion of the New York Evening World (Dem.) very close to what has seemed to it the "most comprehensive and straightforward method by which to cut the whole knot of the treaty tangle," and the Sioux City Tribune (Ind.) considers that his pronouncements are an assurance that Governor Cox will have no trouble in keeping his balance on the Democratic treaty plank."

Not only are the Cox reservations such that "every friend of the League will be willing to accept them," says the Louisville Post (Dem.), but it is "the simple truth to say that in the main Mr. Cox's opinions today are the opinions of Mr. Wilson. In reference to the League of Nations we know he stands upon the Democratic platform. Indeed, the "most loyal friends of the League of Nations and the firmest believers of the covenant " says the Youngstown Vindicator (Dem.), "will find nothing to take exception to in the two reservations proposed by Governor Cox." They are merely "clarifying" and express no more, the Vindicator believes, than "the friends of the League believe has always been self-evident."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

"I really love her with all my heart and yet she has little mannerisms that get on my nerves so that I have to go out of the house to keep from bursting out about them," a husband once told be in regard to his wife. (It seems like an intimate thing to discuss with a third person, but we were all three very dear friends and he meant no disrespect.)

"Why on earth don't you tell her about them pleasantly? She'd be glad to get rid of them I know."

"Oh would she?" he said. "I thank you! I've tried that and several times, but I know better now."

"What happened?"

"Well, here's one example. She has a way of humming when she is working and she always hums the same tunes and always out of tune—you know she can't keep a tune to save her life. Well, one day when I was terribly tired I asked her if she would mind trying a new tune if she hum. I said it jokingly and I thought everything would be all right, but not a bit of it. She laughed with me at first and stopped humming, but then she got that silent, depressed way she always has when something is wrong, and by and by it came out—I didn't love her the way I used to because I used to like to hear her hum even if she didn't keep the tune. It took all the energy I needed for a hard day at the office the neft day, to get things straight again and I went to bed feeling like a rag. I was fool enough to make the same mistake two or three more times, but I am cured now. I just put up with things whether I like them or not. It's the easiest way."

The Easiest But Dangerous Way.

But one could see from the expression on his face as he said it that it was not the pleasantest way, and that the cumulative effect was most unfortunate.

Do you know what I think that wife was doing—sitting on the safety valve!

It is almost inevitable that any two people should have small mannerisms, little not very pleasant tricks that wear heavily upon each other in the close contacts of married life.

Mostly these mannerisms are things that could easily be gotten rid of, and would be if allowed the other a reasonable degree of frankness about them. Under such conditions they are harmless.

But when either party resents any suggestions that improvements could be made, and takes the "There was a time when you wouldn't have noticed" attitude, then a condition of high pressure that may lead to real trouble may develop.

The Other Side of the Case.

I think women are more apt to take this attitude than men—partly, I suppose, because love means more to women than to men, and because they have more mental leisure to think about it. But men are sometimes guilty too.

Of course, it isn't an easy thing to tell people about their mannerisms, and the man who does it carelessly or roughly or derisively, instead of as gently and tactifully as possible, is as much to blame for future trouble as the woman who "sits on the safety valve."

The Girl Who Smiled Throu

By MARION RUBINGAM

Synopsis of preceding chapters: Alice Fairbanks is the daughter of an invalid mother. Since her father's death some years before, she has been in charge of her mother and the little household, which she has learned to manager with great skill, making their tiny income sufficient to give them the comforts and even some of the luxuries of life. Alice is called "The Happy Lady" by the very poor children of the village, among whom she has done some charitable work and the name has been taken up by her friends. Some of these cannot understand her optimism in the face of the many opportunities she has lost —tied as she is, to a small home and an invalid mother; but most of them envy her this sunny nature, and all of them love her for it. When the story opens she is in love with a young man who has recently come to live in the village of Farmington—a man named David Thorne, a college graduate who has made a study of scientific farming. They become engaged, and Alice is more than usually happy over their plans and the life on the "Model Farm' which David is to conduct with a salary paid by the state.

THE HAPPY LADY.
CHAPTED VII.

It seemed to Alice next day that the world was a place of unreality and that she herself was moving about in some sort of a dream. She was honestly afraid that she would wake up and find that life was as prosaic as it had been last week, or the week before.

Mechanically she slived the bacon and went down cellar where the eggs and milk kept sweet in a cool spot. Her mind was so busy with last evening that when the appetizing odor of crisping bacon rose from the stove she smelled only the delicately heavy perfume of the roses, and when the coffee threatened to boil over it disturbed her only slightly in remembering what is was that David had said the evening before.

"Did you sleep well?" Alice asked her mother. But even this question was asked absent mindedly, and she scarcely listened for the answer.

"W,hat are you doing today?" Mrs. Fairbanks asked after a time. Alice came back from dreamland. Some of her old alertness returned and her eyes, which had been looking far out across the yards and seeing only roses—and moonlight—and David, smiled back at her mother.

"After the dinner dishes I think I'll sweep and dust the upstairs," she began. "Then I must cut the lawn today, and bring in the vegetables for dinner. This afternoon Clara may run over, and tonight, if I don't have to sey for the bazaar over at the Sunday School rooms, I'll be able to read a little."

Mrs. Fairbanks smiled, a little sadly.

"I know what that means," she prophesied. "Someone will ask you to do something for them and you won't have a chance to do any studying at all."

"Well, perhaps," Alice agreed vaguely. Then her face brightened and she smiled again, "I'll tell you, mother. I will shell peas this afternoon. We have more than we can eat, and while I'm shelling them you can read me that article on hen raising that I've wanted to study."

But, as it happened, Clara came over earlier than expected, so there was no reading done that day.

"Your new dress is sweet," Alice enthused generously. "It's blue taffeta, isn't it? Are they wearing them that short?"

"Shorter," replied Clara. "I got this ready made at Tucker's. Alice, they have another in the prettiest blue. It is just what you should have and only $19.50."

"$19.50," Alice exclaimed. "Dear child, it takes me months to save that much money, and when I've done it, I can't see spending the results of all my hard work on one dress."

"You won't get anything nice for less," Clara argued. "And you need a good dress, you know it. I don't believe you care about pretty clothes."

"Yes I do, just as much as any other girl,'" Alice answered with more spirit than usual. "But I haven't use for a lot of good clothes. These percale things are all right around the house, and when I do go out, which isn't very often, it's among folks who know I'm not a millionaire. Why should I dress like one then?"

Clara gave it up, apparently, for she shrugged her shoulders and taking a handful of fresh pease, began to help.

Alice seemed to think she needed to defend herself still more.

"They all know me," she said. "They know I haven't much money. And either they like me already as I am, or they don't. Wearing a lot of expensive clothes won't change the opinion my old friends have of me."

"How about your new friends?" Clara asked shyly. "David Thorne, for instance."

"David Thorne!" Alice repeated. "What difference will it make to him whether I wear blue silk or striped gingham? He wouldn't know the difference, men never do. And way—"

But she did not finish her sente She remembered his compliment al her one pretty frock, and the c flooded her cheeks again. Unconscio ly, she put up her hand to smo back the wisps of hair that were ha ing about her forehead. Long af Clara had gone, the color lasted, a while she sang the saddest song s knew, about a lady who died of broken heart—which, as any psych logist knows, was sure proof that A ice was in an unusually happy mood

Late in the afternoon she came t cut some roses for the supper tabl She and David had sat there last nigh —and he had tried to hold her hand— and she had run away. As she turne back into the house, her hands full o blossoms, she was still singing rap turously about the lady and her love and her broken heart.

ORGANIZED FOR THE ELIMINATION OF BAD DEBTS

MERCHANTS WILL MEET IN PORTLAND

(By Associated Press)

PORTLAND, Ore., July 26.—The Pecific Northwest Merchants' Convention, which is to convene in this city August 9th to 14th, promises to be the best attended in the history of the organization. Invitations sent out have brought over 2,000 acceptances, and what is more pleasing to the officers of the organization, delegates are coming from greater distances than ever before. Alaska will be well represented, and merchants are coming from as far east as Wyoming, Minnesota, Colorado and other states east of the Rocky Mountains.

In connection with the convention, the Eighth Annual Buyers' Week, inaugurated by the manufacturers and jobbers of Portland will be held. This annual gathering is becoming a stupendous affair. This year the committee has arranged a very elaborate series if entertainments, including a 'high jinks' for the men, theatre parties for the ladies, luncheons, excursions to various sections of the city, sightseeing trips of interest about Portland and the entertainment program concluding with an elaborate banquet in honor of the visitors.

The committee in charge of the activities have advised prospective merchant visitors that if they should buy goods from any member of the organization while in Portland amounting to $500.00 that their railroad fare and Pullman charges to and from their home city would be refunded. This magnificent offer is expected to greatly increase the attendance of merchants from the middle western and Pacific Coast state and Alaska.

Reports that the government was opening negotiations with representatives of the Sinn Feiners for the purpose of reaching a compromise as to the future rule of Ireland were set at rest in the house by the premier's statement.

PROPOSED TO THE PEOPLE BY THE LEGISLATURE.

To be voted on November 2, 1920.

REFERENDUM BILL NO. 1.

AN ACT to authorize the issuance of State Bonds to provide funds for the construction of a state system of hard surfaced trunk line highways.

STATE OF WASHINGTON,
Office of the Secretary of State.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: In obedience to the state constitution and an act of the legislature approved by the Governor, March 12, 1919, entitled "An Act providing for the construction of a state system of trunk line hard surfaced highways, providing for the issuance, sale and redemption of state bonds to create a fund for such purpose, and for the submission of this act to a vote of the people," there is hereby published for the consideration of the voters of the State of Washington the following proposed act of the legislature of said state:

CHAPTER 99.
(S. B. 240.)

AN ACT providing for the construction of a state system of trunk line hard surface highways, providing for the issuance, sale and redemption of state bonds to create a fund for such purpose, and for the submission of this act to a vote of the people.

Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Washington:

Section 1. A state system of trunk line hard surface highways shall be acquired and constructed by the State of Washington as soon as practicable, upon the highways of the state along the routes herein described, so as to connect with each other the different communities and principal cities of the state as near as may be, to-wit:

(1) The Pacific Highway from Blaine to Vancouver; also a highway running from Seattle to Des Moines and thence by the most feasible route to Tacoma.

(2) The Sunset Highway from Renton to Spokane and thence east to the Idaho state line.

(3) The Inland Empire Highway.

(4) The Olympic Highway.

(5) The National Park Highway from Tacoma to Ashford and thence by the most feasible route to the Rainier National Park; also from Elbe to the Pacific Ocean at Holman.

Section 2.—The highways constructed or improved under the provisions of this act shall be finished with a wearing surface of Portland cement concrete, bituminous concrete, asphalt, brick, wood block, stone or other material equally permanent and durable, not less than eighteen feet in width, laid upon Portland cement concrete base of a minimum thickness of five inches: PROVIDED, that if the state highway commissioner shall deem it impracticable to improve any portion of any highway herein described by paving as herein provided, the state highway board may provide for the improvement of such portion of the highway in such manner as in its judgment will best accommodate travel thereon.

No part of the money apportioned under this act shall be used, directly or indirectly, to pay any premium or royalty on any patented or property material, specifications, process or type of construction, unless purchased or obtained on open actual competitive bidding at the same or a less cost than unpatented articles, or methods equally suitable for the same purpose.

Section 3. Whenever the making of any part of any road to be improved or constructed under the provisions of this act, or the locating of a route or any part thereof, or the obtaining of road building materials for such work, requires that private property be taken or damaged, the state highway board shall have the right to acquire any such property by purchase or by condemnation in the manner prescribed by law for the acquirement of condemnation of lands necessary for the public uses of the state.

Section 4. The state highway board shall divide the state highways into convenient sections for construction purposes, and shall make diligent effort to have the entire trunk line system of hard surface highways completed within six years after the taking effect of this act. The construction work shall, so far as possible, be commenced in different sections of the state at approximately the same time and carried on until all work is completed.

Section 5. The funds provided by this act for the acquisition, construction and improvement of the state system of trunk line hard surface highways shall be expended only for surfacing and the construction of the necessary subgrade therefor including the purchase of machinery or supplies. All construction work shall be done under the supervision of and upon plans and specifications prepared by the state highway commissioner. Contracts for the construction and improvement of said trunk line highways shall be let by the state highway board to the lowest and best responsible bidder, or bidders, on such terms and conditions and on open competitive bidding after public advertisement in such manner and for such times as may be prescribed by said state highway board.

The state highway board shall have [illegible] cent (5 per cent) per annum, payable semi-annually.

The issuance, sale or retirement of said bonds shall be under the general supervision and control of the state highway board. Such board may in its discretion provide for the issuance of coupon or registered bonds, to be dated, issued and sold from time to time as the construction work progresses, in such amounts as may be necessary to provide money to pay for said work and the expenses incidental thereto. All of the bonds issued hereunder shall mature at the rate of one ($1,500,000.00) principal each year, commencing in the year 1922 and ending in the year 1941. Such bonds shall be signed by the governor and the state auditor under the seal of the state, and any interest coupons attached to such bonds shall be authenticated by the fac-simile signatures of the same officers. Any bonds may be registered in the name of the holder on presentation to the state treasurer or at the fiscal agency of the State of Washington in New York, as to principal alone or both principal and interest under such regulations as the state highway board may prescribe. Said bonds shall be in such denominations as may be prescribed by the state highway board and embody an absolute promise of the State of Washington to pay both principal and interest in gold coin of the United States of the present standard of value and fineness, at such place or places as the state highway board may provide, and to levy sufficient taxes each year to pay the interest and principal of said bonds as they become due. All bonds issued under the provisions of this act shall be sold to the highest and best bidder or bidders, on such terms and conditions and on open competitive bidding after public advertisement and at such times as may be prescribed by the state highway board, but not for a sum so low as to make the net interest returned to the purchaser exceed five per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, as computed by standard tables, upon such sum.

Section 9. The money arising from the sale of each issue of bonds shall be deposited in the state treasury to the credit of a special fund to be known as the "State Trunk Line Highway Fund," which shall be used in carrying out the provisions of this act.

Section 10. All moneys paid to the state under the provisions of chapter 142 of the Session Laws of 1915, commonly known as the Motor Vehicle Code, and all acts amendatory thereof, over and above such moneys as shall be estimated by the secretary of state to be necessary for the purpose of administering said chapter 142, shall be first appropriated and used for the purpose of paying and discharging annually the principal and interest on such bonded indebtedness then due and payable, and shall from time to time be deposited in a special fund to be known as the "State Trunk Line Highway Bond Redemption Fund." Each year after this act becomes effective, and until all of said bonds have been retired, it shall be the duty of the state board of equalization to include in the tax levied for state purposes a direct annual tax for such amount as shall be necessary and sufficient, in addition to the moneys collected under said chapter 142 and paid into the said state trunk line highway bond redemption fund, to pay the interest annually as it shall accrue on each and every bond issued under the provisions of this act and also to pay and discharge the principal of such bonds at par value as such bonds shall respectively fall due: PROVIDED, that no such direct annual tax shall be levied for any year in which sufficient money is collected under said chapter 142 and paid into said bond redemption fund to pay the interest as it shall accrue on said bonds for that year and also to pay and discharge the principal of all of said bonds falling due during such year.
