WAR MATERIAL ROUTED TO POLAND IS SEIZED BY COBLENZ POLICE

(By Associated Press)

COBLENZ, July 26.—A Polish supply train of 13 cars, bearing arms and munitions from France with five Polish and one French officer aboard, which left the American area Saturday evening was held up by German police and civilians at Marburg, 60 miles east of Coblenz, Sunday afternoon.

The Germans completely stripped the cars of their war material and the train crews refused to convey them further. They returned to Coblenz tonight. Altogether the train consisted of 45 cars including non-military stores for Poland and supplies for the American station and the American relief committee at Warsaw. The supply cars were in charge of American soldiers and were not disturbed. The German railway men in the Coblenz district had given notice that they would refuse to run Polish trains.

The reason for the attempt to run a Polish military train through Germany after last week's announcement at Berlin of Germany's attitude in the trouble between Russia and Poland is vague.

ADRIANOPLE CAPTURED ACCORDING TO PLANS.

(By Associated Press)

ATHENS, July 27.—The taking of Adrianople, according to an official communication virtually ends five days operations against Jafar Tayar's principal forces. The campaigns was carried out at Rodosto, joining forces and advancing rapidly and dispersing the enemy.

The decision provides for the sale of commutation tickets at 8 cents. The higher rate wil lbe put into effect tomorrow. The company has been charging a 7 cent fare. The commission specifies that when the company is relieved of certain franchise obligations commutation tickets shall be sold for 6 2-3 cents each.

Next Seven Days May Show Who's Who in Herald's Big Contest

With honors thus far about equally divided, candidates in the Herald's now famous automobile prize campaign are preparing with feverish haste and intensity to make their final stand for victory before 9 o'clock next Tuesday night—the close of the second period schedule of votes.

Over the hundred thousand mark, and surging at the rate of several thousand at a clip, all of the leading candidates are dashing through the final days at top speed—straining every nerve in their final efforts for supremacy.

ACTION GROWS FASTER.

More general and concerted action has taken place during the past few days than at any time since the contest began, and with the race narrowed down to a limited few, each of the "favorites" are more determined than ever to be declared winners of first honors.

Interest in the campaign is running high and strong. And it has not been confined alone to this locality but has reached out until there are hundreds yes thousands, of eager and watching friends who are awaiting the final outcome with abated interest.

A striking feature of the past few days is the personal pride that is becoming so noticeable. Several of the candidates have voiced their determination to win at all hazards. One declared that to accept defeat would be a disgrace. Another said she owes it to her friends who have helped her so loyally up to this point, to put forth every effort to draw on every resource to the extent that when the final day of reckoning comes everything will have been done and nothing left undone to better her chance to win.

PERSONAL PRIDE AT STAKE.

So, on the basis of personal honor the competition is being waged zestfully. Shedding lustre on this inspiring sight is the civic pride that is manifesting itself. This mighty factor is the bulwark behind the various candidates; in short, each community and each "set" is solidly behind their favorites, and no community that values its reputation for doing things is going to let someone else walk off with the most desirable prize when a little concentrated effore will "bring it home."

For this reason and for the reason that the difference in value between the grand capital prize of the contest and the second award is a matter of four hundred thirty-five dollars approximately (quite a tidy little sum itself) you can expect to see a desperate struggle on all sides before the big prizes are finally awarded.

With but seven more days in which to turn in subscriptions and secure "second period" votes and but 18 days to go before the final scene comes into play, the race is steadily being brought to a close and the end may now be said to be in sight.

Nine o'clock next Tuesday night is positively your last chance to enter subscriptions and secure "second period" votes. Make every day, yes, every hour, count while yet you may.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

The next few days will no doubt tell just "who's who" in the big race. The candidates who profit most by the "second period" vote schedule, which is in effect until Tuesday, August 3, only, will undoubtedly pull out ahead of their competitors.

In No. 2 it is literally neck and neck standing and it will be interesting indeed to see who will finally get into the lead—and remain there. No one candidate is seemingly stronger than the rest, and the entire outcome of the race in this district depends almost entirely upon the results accomplished before next Tuesday night of next week, the close of the big vote schedule.

The end of the campaign is fast approaching. Just 18 more days and the immense prizes will be awarded. One of the candidates whose name is appearing in the list, will soon be riding around in their own Ford Sedan as a gift from the Herald and material evidences of their standing and popularity in the community. Who will it be? These next few days can decide.

HARDING TOLD RUSSIA HAS STRONG ARMY

(By Associated Press)

MARION, Ohio, July 27.—First hand information on the conditions in Russia and Poland was given Senator Harding today by C. M. Defosse, a New York fiscal espert, who recently returned from Europe. They discussed the relation of this country to European rehabilitation.

In a statement, Mr. Defosse said he had taken the position that this country should go slowly in its foreign commitments and that he was well pleased with the attitude of the senator.

"I thnik Senator Harding realizes the immensity of the task that will confront his administration," the statement continued, "and that he is anxious to equip himself with the best possible understanding of these matters.

"The fact is that an extremely grave crisis confronts Europe. Trotzky has proced a good deal of a genius and he has built in Russia an army numbering probably 1,750,000. I regard it as the greatest military force in the world today. This is a good time for America to give particular attention to its own interests and as little as possible to the concerns of other nations."

Senator Harding had no other extended conferences today, devoting most of his time to correspondence.

WOULD CLEAR LANDS WITH JAP LABOR

(By Associated Press)

SEATTLE, July 27.—Admission of one million Japanese to clear logged-off lands in Oregon and Washington and then to be returned to their homes in the Orient, was urged upon the congressional committee on Immigration and Naturalization at its hearing here today by Frank Perrace of Orillia, Washington, and precipitated a lively tilt between Perrace and Representative John C. Box of Texas, who maintained that Perrace was offering the same argument in favor of slavery that was advanced by the southern parliament when the constitution was adopted.

Chairman Albert Johnson of Washington, and Representative John E. Raker, of California, who joined in the controversy, insisted Perrace was advocating a peonage system, but Perrace insisted upon his declaration that white labor could not be obtained for clearing off logged-off lands and employing Orientals was the only alternative if the agricultural land was to be made available for farming purposes. The committee ceased its hearing at noon and went to luncheon at Tacoma.

Sheriff Harry C. Bishop returned to Port Angeles this morning.

Pereira's Quintette of Musicians Delight Big Angeles Audience

The Ellison-White 1920 Chautauqua marches gaily on, proving itself a first-class, genuinely educational institution, worthy of all encouragement. Yesterday's program left little to be desired and if packed audiences are any criterion such was the opinion of its many patrons.

The beautiful July weather has much to do with the record attendance, aided by the desire of the supporters of the Chautauqua to stand by the firm that for the past several years has helped to uplift and widen the outlook of its worth-while citizens.

Yesterday was a feast for music lovers. The "big top" was crowded to the limit last night. When Director Reed asked the assemblage if it desired the Ellison-White chautauqua another year it rose en masse. Of course the music on the program was classical, that was inevitable, but critics had nothing but praise for the faultless rendition of the masters of music whose noble themes are so seldom rendered in these days. Just to show what they could do, Paul Pereira and his stringed quintette obliged the audience also with a pot-pourri of jazz—such Jazz!

One more score for the Chautauqua! It keeps fresh and green the old musicla glories which are only perfectly rendered by stringed orchestration.

One music lover expressed great satisfaction at the concert last evening. "I could close my eyes," he said, "and imagine the assimilation of the strings was the melodious humming of bees on a drowsy summer afternoon."

VICTIM OF TRUNK CRIME IDENTIFIED

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT, July 27.—A statement to the police by Mrs. Leo Trumbull, wife of a patrolman, that Mrs. Eugene Leroy, victim of the Detroit murder mystery, had confessed to her that she was about to become a mother injected a new theory into the case today. Mrs. Trumbull was to go to New York today to view the body.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 27.—Positive identification of the woman known as Mrs. Eugene Leroy, whose body was found in a trunk in New York was claimed today by the Birmingham News. The newspaper declares that the woman was Mrs. Katherine Johnson, 19 years old, whose maiden name was Katherine Loufoudren and that her home was Sturgis, Mississippi. The dead woman's husband was Kid McCoy Johnson, a young rancher, says the News. After the death of her mother in 1919 the young wife soon disappeared, the News says, to be heard from later at Birmingham, Nashville and other cities. So far as is known, the story says, she never returned to her husband or obtained a divorce.

SEARCH EXTENDED.

DETROIT, July 27.—Search for Eugene Leroy, whose wife's mutilated body was found in a trunk shipped from Detroit to New York, assumed nationwide proportions today.

Aid of police in every large city was asked after Patrolmen Leo Trumbull of Detroit failed to identify as Leroy, a man giving the name of Roy Millen and held at Chicago.

That jealousy and revenge played a part in the murder is the reported contention of Allen A. Tatum, now in Birmingham, Ala., who told the police there he knew Mrs. Leroy intimately in Detroit several months ago. Tatum's name was written on the trunk that contained the body. He expressed the belief, it is said, that Leroy may have killed his wife through jealousy when he learned she had been in Tatum's company and that Tatum's name was used on the trunk with revenge as the motive. Detroit detectives left today for Birmingham to bring Tatum here if possible.

CHICAGO SCENE OF DESPERATE ROBBERIES

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 27.—Two bandits and two express company paymasters were shot, one of the latter probably fatally, and $25,000 stolen in two payroll robberies within 20 minutes of each other yesterday. The bandits escaped.

Earlier in the day two young men who have been holding up branches of a chain store grocery system perpetrated their fifteenth robbery within a month, escaping with $750.

Five bandits in a touring car fought with three express messengers in front of the Hart Schaffner & Marx clothing factory and escaped with a steel box containing $10,000 after two of them were wounded.

More than 50 shots were exchanged while 200 pedestrians and employes of the factory looked on. George Haubrock, an express paymaster was shot through the head and is not expected to live.

Shortly after the first hold-up three armed men drove up to the Peterson machine works and took $15,000 from Abe Nelson, a saloonkeeper who is a stockholder.

Two wounded bandits were arrested later in a house on the south side on information furnished by a doctor, who had been called to treat them.

CLALLAM'S BOYS AND GIRLS JARRED PUYALLUPITES

Stepping to that old juvenile marching yell—

You've got it!
Now keep it!
Dog gone it!
Don't lose it!"

The Clallam county delegation of Boys' and Girls' who attended the big clubf estival at Puyallup certainly did walk away with things in grand style and placed Clallam county on the map in a manner that will not seen be forgotten by the hundreds of other boys and girls who attended the great event from all western Washington.

The outstanding feature of the big field day was the manner in which the Clallam county bunch, most ably led by Clark Chambers of Fairview, hung together and made old Puyallup ring with cheers and songs for Clallam county and her clubs. A big county banner was always the rallying point of the members, and from the minute they reached the Experiment Station until the festivities were over Clallam County pep was always in evidence.

The pleasures of the trip were in no small measure due to Superintendent Charles E. Briffett of the Angeles Schools, who met the boys and girls at Tacoma and saw that they lacked no comfort or convenience necessary to make their first trip out of the county a pleasant one, and he is stronger than ever entrenched in their hearts as a "regular guy," always ready and sure to put things across in proper order when it comes to boys and girls who are doing worth while things in club work.

The members who made up the county delegation were: County Leader Worden, Mrs. Ray Haynes, Nona Haynes, Tess McGrath, Mrs. Ben Chambers and Clark Chambers of Port Angeles; Mrs. F. E. Knight, Iris Marshall, Ernest Marshall, Winifred Morison, Theodore Morison, Wilford Taylor, Jesse Taylor, Robert Clark, Frank Sullivan, Burdette Betts, Janice Brooks, Irene Brooks, Katherine Morison, Agnes Seal and Geraldine Clark of Dungeness; Mabel Duncan of Sequim; Arthur Peterson of Dry Creek, and Leonard Dilling and Harvey Eacrett of Mt. Pleasant.

(By Associated Press)

SANDY HOOK, July 27., 7 p. m.—eRsolute wins.

SANDY HOOK, July 27—Resolute spun around the outer mark ahead of the Sharmock IV in today's international race. She turned at 5:18-29 and started back on the next 15-mile run windward and leeward course after having captured on the first leg a lead of forty seconds obtained by the Lipton craft at the start.

Shamrock was about half a mile astern, rounding the outer mark at 5:22-22, unofficial time. At 6:10, while the sloops were beating to windward about eleven miles from the finish, Resolute still was in the lead. The yachts were reaching back and forth for the home mark. The wind was not more than 5 knots an hour. Resolute stood away to sea when she was off Long Branch. Within two hours to go the American defender was making a hard fight to get home in the time limit. At 6:15 with the breeze still holding, it looked like a race of Resolute again time, with the chances in favor of the yacht. At 6:36 the Resolute was leading Shamrock by 18 minutes sailing time or a mile and a quarter.

Shamrock IV led Resolute 40 seconds across the starting line in the final international yacht races to settle the destiny of America's cup. Shamrock's time was 2:17-5; Resolute's 2:17-45.

The wind came in variable streaks and first one an dthen the other of the two yachts would point better.

Although the breeze had increased to five knots the sloops had their troubles in steering, the fluky head winds causing first one and then the other to fall away to leeward.

Already observers began to express doubts if the yachts could finish in the six-hour time limit, which expired at 8:15.

On a long port tack, Shamrock IV was able to catch a streak of wind and footed fast. Resolute, however, began to work better to windward and at three o'clock had cut down much of her rival's lead and at 4:20 had begun to slip out ahead of the Lipton craft and had taken the lead from the challenger, although it was a slight one.

On Board Victoria, July 27.—Sir Thomas Lipton announces he will challenge again for the America's cup should he fail to lift it with his present entry.

"I will not do so for a year," he said "as it would only be sportsmanlike to wait that long to give some one else a chance."

Sir Thomas also intimated that the name Shamrock would be retained to go with any future challenger.

NAVY COMMANDEERS OIL FROM COMPANIES.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—The navy began to carry out today its threats to seize fuel oil from four California oil companies which had refused to sell at the price of $1.72 a barrel fixed by the navy. Six destroyers with a total capacity of about 500,000 gallons, were loaded at the Associated Oil company plant here under protest, after naval officials had declared their right to take the fuel.

The total amount that the navy will find it necessary to seize has not yet been determined, it was announced, so the policy toward the Associated, Standard, Shell and Union oil companies will be decided from day to day.

An emergency caused by shortage of oil for the Pacific fleet and the Mare Island navy yard brought about this action.

DEMPSEY VS. MISKE.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world was matched late today with Billy Miske of St. Paul in a ten round heavy weight contest.

THE BERRY RBUSINESS.

Although the late spring somewhat impaired fruit crops in this section, the berry bushes seem to be in especially good shape this year and are bearing heavily. With the cannery available, many local growers will for the first time be able to figure the business of berry-growing on a stable basis, and the Herald will be surprised if the result is not great encouragement of what is still an infant industry in this district. Berry growing upon a considerable scale is only profitable when a market is assured and in the past pioneers in the business lost heart and in some cases plowed up their berry vines. Now there is a new deal and the loganberry, the raspberry and other berries which flourish in this soil and climate are coming into their own as a permanent source of wealth to Clallam County.

Berry culture offers a solution of the problem of utilizing small tracts of logged-off lands which will appeal to many people when the profitable nature of the enterprise is fully established, and by the use of proper publicity a large number of settlers can be attracted to this territory—people who desire small holdings and independence.

Facts regarding this year's crops will have an important bearing upon the development of the industry and the Herald will be grateful to growers who will furnish accurate figures regarding production and marketing.

THE DULL SEASON AND CRIME.

Judging by news dispatches from many parts of the United States lack of excitement so far developed in the presidential election campaign is being made up for by a remarkable drive upon society by criminals. Robberies, murders and "jail breaks" seem to be the order of the day, while in the great eastern cities unparalleled gambling in all sorts of "securities" is relieving the tension of mid-summer madness.

There is need for a steadying influence. The tremendous volume of war-profiteering has had a bad effect upon the public morale; the play with mighty political issues in which the politicians have been indulging for selfish purposes, while real constructive measures have been shelved by congress, has weakened respect for government. The continuance of "propaganda" used for political and commercial purposes, has intensified popular lack of respect for the truth.

We need a revival of the old-fashioned virtues and popular respect for them.

COSTLY "NATIONALIZATION" IN GERMANY.

The Berlin Morgenpost prints a sensational warning as to Germany's danger from bureaucracy. "We are eating ourselves up," is the title of it, and it gives some startling figures relating to the number of government employees, there being a far greater number now in this time of crisis and unemployment, and where the productivity of every man is so essential, than in pre-war times.

This increase seems to have begun with the war and to have been still further augmented during and after the revolution of 1918. Even in normal times this vast army of official wage earners would be an intolerable burden, while now, with the country's increased poverty, their cost is leading straight towards bankruptcy.

Among the various ills from which Germany is suffering, says the article, bureaucracy is certainly not the least to be feared. It is stated that there are more than 40,000 superfluous employees in the government postal service, and more than 100,000 in the state railways. And these are no exceptions. Wherever one looks a similar overcrowding is to be found. In the city of Hamburg, with less than a million population, 60,000 hold municipal positions.

In the National Insurance Offices in Berlin there are 100 higher (legal) officials and 3,000 clerks. Director Heinrich Kloock declares that of the 1600 bookkeepers 1400 could be dispensed with. Another official has declared that the unnecessary employees of the post office department and the state railways are costing Germany a billion marks annually.

Daily Editorial Digest.

EUROPE'S VIEW OF THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

Barring unforseen developments, Europe will settle back and watch the presidential campaign in the United States without partisanship. With the choice between Harding and Cox it appears to the European observer that the balloting is purely an American concern. Both candidates are practically unknown east of the Atlantic, but what has been published abroad concerning their attitudes in international questions seems to indicate to transoceanic observers that relations with America are bound to be cordial, no matter who is elected. The time when niceties of distinction between "strong" and "mild" reservations to the Versailles treaty could interest Europeans profoundly is past. Even the question of ratification or rejection seems to be of little importance abroad. It is felt that both parties are committed, by their platforms and their choice of candidates, to a policy of helpful cooperation with the rest of the world, and against any policy of "meddling" in the affairs of Europe. In short, Europe has come to the point of believing that an American policy of "intelligent self interest," is assured whether Mr. Harding or Mr. Cox is in the White House.

The Spa conference was occupying the attention of the leading political writers on the Continent when Mr. Cox was chosen, so his nomination was not so widely commented on as that of Mr. Harding a few weeks earlier. However, two careful articles deserve to be noted. One appears in the Journaot Des Debats, Paris:

"It would be a mistake for us to ignore the political happening in the United States. Whatever is the result, America will resume her place in the union of civilized peoples. For the time being she is all taken up with party strife, but in a few months, after her president has been chosen, we shall again see her taking an interest in world affairs. Isolation is an impossible policy in these days for a great transatlantic republic. Let us so act, as the proverb says, that the trees will not prevent our seeing the wood. Whoever may succeed to the White House, the United States will cease to interest themselves exclusively in domestic affairs as soon as the elections are over."

The London Times cannot help noting the strange parallelism between the past careers of Senator Harding and Governor Cox—both from the farm both newspapers owners, both "self-made," both high officials of the State of Ohio. But this similarity, the Times declares, is not "entirely fortuitous."

"It is at once an effect of, and a sign of party submission to the desire of an overwhelming majority of Americans for a president representative of the great central mass of the people, whose upbringing and traditions are such as must turn his mind inward upon the domestic problems which harass them. This, it seems clear, rather than any irreconcilable variance of opinion as to the treaty of Versailles or the League of Nations, is the significance of the alignment for the struggle at the polls. The Republicans with Mr. Harding, the Democrats, with Mr. Cox, believe they have found a candidate fashioned after the required pattern."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE TO STEAL?

Did you ever want to steal anything?

I wonder how many people think that's an absurd question?

And then I wonder how many of the same people, if they were absolutely honest with themselves (as honest in thought as they are in deed) would not admit to themselves that they have had the stealing impulse?

Here's the sort of thing I mean. A thoroughly reliable man who wouldn't really steal any more than you would, said to me the other day, "I never can see a pile of lumber without thinking I'd like to 'snitch' a few pieces. I just vision how I would come around after dark with my machine and stow away a few pieces and make off with them. I don't know why it is but there is something about a pile of lumber that always arouses that primitive feeling in me. I suppose it's because there are so many things I want to do around the house with lumber and the darn stuff costs so much that you can't put up a cupboard without almost covering it with silver."

She Wants to Steal Sugar.

A woman told me last summer that she never saw sugar anywhere without feeling as if she must carry some off.

Two other women with whom we were discussing the subject, admitted that they had these impulses, one with regard to silk stockings—she could just see herself taking them when the clerk's back was turned — and the other in regard to books.

My own obsession used to be in relation to money itself—not bills (especially not unclean ones), so much as silver. If I saw a handful of loose change flung on a dresser or a table, I actually had a desire to sweep it into my pocket.

For some reason or other I seem to have gotten over that, and silk lingerie is the thing I'd like to steal now.

The Best People Have Bad Impulses.

The Authorman who has been looking over my shoulder, wants to know if I don't think that saying such things might have the effect of making people think that stealing isn't so great a sin after all.

I should hope not! That perfectly good people may have perfectly wicked impulses doesn't mean that yielding to such impulses is any more justifiable. The thing that makes them good citizens is that they have much more powerful inhibitions against those impulses. It's the lack of inhibition, rather than the presence of the impulse that makes the criminal.

The Sweetest Lady I Know.

There may be people who don't even have bad impulses, but I must say I doubt it. The sweetest elderly person who will certainly walk straight up the golden stairs into Heaven when the door of life is opened to her, does not like me to tell her how good she is. "You mustn't say that," she says. "Why, I have all sorts of bad thoughts.

Do you think Paul or Peter or Phillips Brooks or Abraham Lincoln lacked bad impulses? I don't. Wouldn't wonder a bit if when Peter saw a fine strong fish net, he sometimes thought he would like to steal it—would you?

By MARION RUBINGAM

Synopsis of preceding chapters: News comes of the death of Mrs. Fairbanks' younger sister, a woman whom Alice had never seen, and her mother only once in 20 years. By the death, a daughter, Lois Kennedy, is left an orphan, and almost penniless. Alice and her mother decide to have Lois live with them, and send her the money to come. It is necessary to use up the savings Alice had planned for her trousseau, but she is only too glad to have them to give.

WHAT DAVID SAID.
CHAPTER VIII.

Alice found various ways of making a little money, as the women of small communities frequently do. She had a positive genius for gardening; as Clara phrased it "she could make anything grow." On the small plot of ground that lay behind the little rose bowered house, she managed to raise enough vegetables for herself and her mother, and to can a winter's supply as well. And over and above this, she raised enough to sell occasionally to less thrifty neighbors, and to can the surplus to put on sale in the Women's Shop in the center of the town.

"You've most of your place in vegetables," Mrs. Myer remarked one warm afternoon—two days after Sands visit, watching Alice train sweet peas over a chicken wire fence that screened the garden from the street view.

"Yes, I want some extra money this year," Alice answered, wiping off her moist face. "It makes less lawn to cut anyway," she added whimsically.

"You ought to make quite a bit," Mrs. Myer said it with the rising inflection at the end, as it were, in a manner that invited Alice to provide further details.

Alice, who took very little interest in the minute personal details of her neighbors' lives, at the same time did not mind giving out any similar details of hers. This is characteristic of the women who do not gossip. She answered cheerfullly enough, regarding the yellow stains on her fingers and the brown soil that had worked its way under her nails.

"Oh, I don't make very much, last year about $50 and $10 of that from eggs I sold. It was enough to get mother some pretty things she liked though—that pretty bathrobe, and a rug for her room—I'd like to make more this year; things are higher you know."

"Oh I don't know!" sighed Mrs. Myer, assuming the hopelessly discouraged manner many women do when discussing the rising cost of living.

"I've a fine idea for raising mushrooms in the cellar. Lots do, you know, and they say you can make ever so much money." Alice's eyes shone at the prospect. "I'm going to find out more about it. I would love to take mother away this coming winter—." In her mind she was already spending her fortune, and she was almost exuberantly gay.

"Looks like rain," observed Mrs. Myer cheerlessly.

"Has to rain sometime," replied the incorrigible girl.

"It does make the weeds grow so."

"Yes, but it makes the vegetables and flowers grow too,' remarked Alice undaunted, as she turned back to her task.

"I never saw a girl like her," Mrs. Myer was almost complaining about it, as she passed Mrs. Fairbanks on the porch. "Here my Fanny is fussing at home for fear it will storm, and her best beau won't come this evening to call on her."

"The trouble with Alice is, she doesn't care enough about that sort of thing," Mrs. Fairbanks answered.

But Alice did. Probably her mind had held less of the thought of boys and beaux than most of her set, for it had been occupied with graver problems for some years. But this afternoon she stopped her work often to look up at the sky, and to speculate as to whether the gathering clouds would scatter or would pour down that evening.

"Not that anyone will come," she told her mother, when in the process of weeding she had worked around to the flower beds by the porch. But she knew in her heart that she was wondering whether by some chance David Thorne might not drop in! Of course, he wouldn't if it rained, and probably he wouldn't anyway—it had only been two days ince he had come around before.

For in Farmington, a young man never called more than once a week on a young lady unless he was willing to have it known that he was particularly interested! This was the unwritten but generally understood custom in the village.

But David did come that night although a summer storm made outdoor unpleasant for the time. And they talked of mushroom raising and similar things, while Mrs. Fairbanks sat quietly listening, and later wrote a letter to her sick sister.

But after she went upstairs, she suddenly felt embarrassed. She could not talk readily, as she had earlier, David came over to the soft and sat down beside her, taking one of her hands.

"Why did you run away from me the other evening?" he asked suddenly.

"I—why, I don't know," Alice confessed. "It was foolish of me."

"It wasn't because you didn't like me, was it?"

"No," Alice answered, and raised her blue eyes to his.

"Was it," he began softly, "was it because you loved me?"

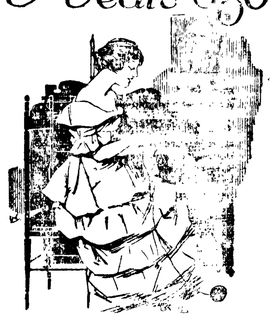
50 Years Ago



a young man who practiced medicine in a rural district became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce who afterward moved to Buffalo, N. Y. He made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and he put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state in the Union.

For fifty years Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has sold more largely throughout the United States than any other medicine of like character. It's the testimony of thousands of women that it has benefited or entirely eradicated such distressing ailments as women are prone to. It is now sold by druggists in tablet form as well as liquid.

ASTORIA, OREGON.—"I saw Doctor Pierce's advertisement and as I had tried so many things for woman's trouble without getting any help, I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I did so with good results. I think it is just great."—MRS. D. BERG.

COMMISSION PLANS OPEN FISHING PORTS

(By Associated Press)

OTTAWA, July 27. — (Canadian Press.)—In recommendations made available yesterday, the Canadian-American Fisheries conference, appointed to consider settlement of outstanding fishery questions between Canada and the United States, express the belief that the markets of both countries should be available to fishermen of both on the same terms.

The commissioners recommended that the Canadian duty on fresh and the fresh frozen fish, not including shell fish, be removed and with a view to assuring stability in the industry, that the two countries enter into an agreement by which such fish would be admitted customs duty free from either country into the other, and that such arrangements remain in force for 15 years and thereafter until two years after the date, when either party thereto shall give notice to the other of its wish to terminate.

They recommend:

First: That the fishing vessels of either country may enter, from the high seas, any port of the other, and clear from such port back to the high seas and the fishing grounds.

Second: Fishing vessels of either country may dispose of their catches and purchase bait, ice, coal, nets, lines, oil, provisions and all other supplies and outfits in the ports of either country.

Third: That the repairing of fsihing implements in the ports of either country be allowed to the vessels of the other country.

Fourth: That the fishing vessels of either country may dress, salt and otherwise prepare the catches on board such vessels within the territorial waters of the other country.

Fifth: That the fishing vessels of either country may ship their crews and trans-ship their catches in the ports of the other country.

Sixth: That the fishermen of either country may sell their catches in the ports of the other country, subject to local tariff, if any.

With regard to the rehabilitation and protection of the sock-eye salmon of the Fraser river, the commissioners express the opinion that a treaty or convention for the proper regulations of the fisheries should be entered into by Canada and the United States. Commissioners should be appointed under this treaty to study the situation inspect the hatchery operations and also the sides of the river to ascertain where slides might bar the ascent of the fish, might occur. They append a draft of the proposed treaty for the restoration and protection of the fisher, the adoption of which, subject to such modifications as respon sible officers of the two countries may deem necessary, is urgently recommended.

With regard to the halibut fishing industry on the Pacific Coast, the commissioners recommend a closed season for both the United States and Canada from the 16th of November to the 15th of February, during a period of 10 years.

They suggest the commissioners appointed to investigate the Fraser river fisheries be charged with supervision of the halibut closed seasons.

U. S. WATCHES DEVELOPMENTS OF SOVIET'S MOVES

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 27. — Russia's proposal for a conference with the allies in London was regarded unoficially today as a skillful maneuver to effect a quasi-recognition of the Soviet regime. Officially the state department was without knowledge of the Soviet suggestion, but it was clear that unless some more urgent reason than now is apparent to join in such a United States will be in no haste to accept an invitation to join in such a conference, even though one were extended.

It was assumed that the United States would be asked to participate but the prevailing opinion appeared to be that the specific issue—cessation of war with Poland—might better be considered first by the principals. The United States, it was explained, has a peculiar interest in the situation aside from that of desiring stabilization of political conditions in Europe, but the method suggested by Russia was regarded generally as a contrivance of the soviet authorities to use the Polish situation to advance the international status of their regime.

The new move was pointed to as the latest of a long series of attempts at negotiations, including the Prinkipo conference which never was held, and the London conference regarding resumption of trade with Russia which is yet to be held. The United States has refused to enter into relations with the Soviet. but always has been definitely interested and watchful of every move made by either Russia or another government looking to an adjustment of the former's international relations.

FORTY ACRE TRACT EARNS $7,000,000 IN TWO YEARS

"I think Senator Harding realizes Brewer on the Merriman farm, four miles south of Ranger, Texas, is the bonanza of the Ranger district. It is the world's richest oil acreaage. Not in any other field has any tract of this size produced so much high grade oil in so short a time. And the oil is still coming at the rate of $20,000 daily.

These oil wells and their enormous profits were made possible by the sale of stock. The men and women who had the courage to back them are reaping fortunes. The Manhattan-Texas Petroleum Company, with its vast holdings in this rich oil belt, offers a similar opportunity. This company is now paying handsome dividends from its eight producing wells, and expects to find a real gusher production as additional wells are completed.

The company's local representatives, who are stopping at the Pershing, say that a sharp advance in the price of shares is due at any time, as the deep test in Louisiana gives every promise of being a big well.
