FLIGHT ESTABLISHES HYDRO-PLANE ROUTE TO LAKE CRESCENT

EVACUATION OF POLISH CAPITAL SEEMS CERTAIN

(By Associated Press)

ALLENSTEIN, East Prussia, Aug. 4.—Threats by the Russian Soviet forces to execute instantly any civilian or military officer of the Allied powers who crosses the frontier were reported by refugees arriving from the region to the east now being occupied by the Russians.

These refugees declare that the Bolsheviki are shooting all landowners and property owners and others suspected of having money. The wearing of a white collar, they asserted, is sufficient evidence for a death warrant.

Officials of the inter-allied commission declare that the majority of these reports are supported by circumstances indicating their truth.

WARSAW IS DOOMED.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Polish, French and British military experts telegraphed here last night stating that Warsaw must be evacuated within two or three days. The government will probably move to Cracow. Reports are that the Polish army along the Bug River, Warsaw's last line of defense, retreated so precipitately that they did not destroy the bridges behind them.

ALLIED AMBASSADORS MEET.

PARIS, ug. 4.—In view of the Polish situation urgent telegrams were sent today to the allied ambassadors, including the merican ambassador, asking them to return to Paris from their vacation for a meeting of the ambassadorial council to be held tomorrow.

COUNCILMEN LISTEN TO HEALTH TALKS.

Mrs. Soule, head of the state health nursing department, and Miss Puls, county nurse, addressed the city council last night on measures needed to prevent the spread of disease and especially tuberculosis. It was pointed out by the ladies that the maintenance of health was important from an economical point of view as well as on humanitarian grounds. Miss Puls told the council she had found 17 cases of tuberculosis here since she began her work and that only in the early stagch could cures be established. It was annuonced that on August 17 Dr. Carey will give a stereopticon lecture on the cause at the high school auditorium.

The Central W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. J. J. McKechnie, Eighth and Lincoln, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. All members are requested to be present as there is important business to transact.

MAIL PLANES OFF.

CHEYENEE, Wyo., Aug. 4.—One of the two army aeroplanes, blazing an aerial trail route from New York to San Francisco, which arrived here last night, started at 7:40 this morning for Salt Lake City. The other plane will start tomorrow.

(By the Contest Manager.)

Ten more days of the Herald's great contest. Not a very long time to be sure. Just enough, however, to defeat more than one candidate in the race unless some strenuous efforts are put forth this week. Every vote counts, and as many subscriptions as possible should be turned in. Get all the promises to subscribe fulfilled this week. Subscriptions turned after Aug. 14 will be of no avail so far as the contest is concerned. A little help now is worth more than all the consolation in the world after the race is lost.

Those depending on the mail to bring in their subscriptions should see that they are sent to you before the last moment.

Systematize your work. Don't try and get subs in a hit and miss manner. Be thorough, make a farm to farm, house to house canvass. This is the only correct way to win in this contest.

A rule of the contest which has been vigorously enforced and which will be enforced until the contest closes is that votes are not transferable. If a certain candidate has a number of votes and wishes to withdraw from the contest the votes which appear in the printed list cannot be transferred to another candidate. Votes which have been issued to one young woman and have the name written thereon cannot be given to another contestant. All coupons which are torn, scratched or altered in any way will be promptly discarded. Every vote coupon for subscriptions must bear the name of some candidate in the contest. No blank votes will be issued under any circumstances. If this were allowed they could be transferred. Every vote coupon issued on subscription must bear the name of the candidate for whom it is to be voted.

Now that the contest has reached the home stretch it will be to the interest of every candidate to do his or her level best. A few thousand votes may determine the result.

If you have any friends who have not as yet subscribed, press them into line this week without fail. You will not regret it.

Next Saturday is the day that you make your turn in of reports and subscription money. Upon next Saturday, August 7 up to nine o'clock p. m. the contest manager will issue 150,000 extra votes on every $25 turned in. Try and pile a lead in votes and go over the top.

4TH STREET BRIDGE MAY BE CONSTRUCTED

Discussion of the needs of Fourth street, in connection with the widening of the Lincoln street bridge at Fourth street, the placing of two contracts for sewer laying with Possi & Belford, the lowest bidders in a field of four, and routine business constituted the work done by the city council last night. The problem of giving Fourth Street connection with Lincoln was discussed at some length and terminated with a passage of a motion by Councilman Hooker calling for a resolution of intention to bridge the gulf between Fourth and the Lincoln street bridge by means of a local improvement district covering the property on Fourth street, from Lincoln to the gully beyond Cherry street. Property owners in the meantime will be advised of the plan and be able to reach some decision.

The subject was broached because the work required could be done at less cost just now because the pile driver is at work on the Lincoln street bridge, but no way of doing the work forthwith could be provided.

The lowest bid for the Georgiana and Caroline street lateral sewer construction (District No. 72) was $1,003.84 and for the lateral sewer between Seventh and Eighth streets, the bid was $8,514.85. On the two contracts the other contractors bid as follows: Chas. Hassough, $2,166.51; $8,962.11; Woods Brothers & Co., $2,200.53; $8,932.52; Dahlberg & Oleson, $2,230.24, $9,150.96. The engineer's estimates, based on bonds at par now selling at 15 per cent discount, were No. 72, $1,512, No. 73, $7,467.

Councilman Burns read a letter to Aldwell & Co. from the Washington Fire Survey Bureau, indicating that as soon as the terms of the new fire ordinance providing for the clearing up of the buildings in the business section are complied with, a lower insurance rate may be expected.

A petition from a number of property owners on Fifth street, Tumwater Hill, asking for the clearing, grubbing and grading of a 30-foot roadway from I street to C. street, was sidetracked for the time being. It was pointed out by Councilman Horstman that several petitions covering parts of Fifth street had reached the council and he urged that a comprehensive plan be put before the property owners. To test the sentiment of the council he moved that a resolution of intention be brought in for the improvement of Fifth from a point near Tumwater street to the western limits of the city, along with the alley between Fourth and Fifth streets and North and South streets from A to the break, a distance of half a block.

This was opposed by Councilman Filion who did not like the idea of the council trying to "force and ex-

TO CELEBRATE PILGRIM LANDING

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 4. — President Wilson in a proclamation today "suggested and requested" that December 21 be celebrated throughout the United States as the tercentenial of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock in 1620 and appointed Senator W. McCall, H. W. Hooker of Massachusetts and George Foster Peabody of New York as members of the Pilgrim tercenniary commission.

NEW PHONOGRAPH HAS NO HORN

The latest in phonographs is now on exhibition at the Frye Drug Store. It is the Actuelle. The Actuelle is manufactured by the Pathe Co. It is a distinct improvement over any other phonograph on the market in many ways. There is no horn of any sort on the Actuelle. It has, however, a diaphraghm made of a special grade of parchment paper. From the needle there is a wire extending through the arm of the reproducing apparatus to the diaphraghm. In experimenting to find just the sort of paper necessary for the success of this idea, the chemists in the great laboratory of the Pathe factory used more than 8,000 different grades of paper. Some of the things they learned during this experimentation was that color has a lot to do with tone.

Finally they succeeded in getting just what they wanted. The machine is as near a perfect reproducer as is possible to get. It plays Edison, Columbia, Brunswick, Victor or Pathe records equally well. There is a noticeable lack of scratching, which seems to jar upon the ears with some machines. The work of changing the machines for playing different makes of records is done by simply changing the needle. There is no different make of reproducer necessary, the same one answering for all.

One of the principle advantages of the Actuelle is that it matters not whether you are in front of the machine, at the side or in the rear of it, the tone volume is identically the same. Tone seems to emanate from all sides. The Actuelle is a definate stride forward in the making of talking machines.

Col. Hartley, Live Wire Gubernatorial Candidate in Port Angeles Today

Col. Roland C. Hartley, the Live Wire candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, arrived ahead of time in Port Angeles today in his handsome Pierce-Arrow automobile, accompanied by his son, David, Lloyd Spencer, a newspaper man, and the famous quartet, Elmer Quinn, Chas. Wiggins, Merrill Gibson and Clarence Moore.

Col Hartley has not been in the city for some little time past and he is favorably impressed with the evidences of progress and development. He took a run out to Singer's Lake Crescent Tavern during the day and renewed his acquaintance with the lake scenery.

SEAGULL TYPE MACHINE TO CARRY PASSENGERS TO CRESCENT TAVERN

The splendid Curtiss seagull type hydroplane, which yesterday afternoon flew over Port Angeles on its way to ILake Crescent where it arrived shortly after 4 o'clock, will be here tomorrow and will give some exhibition flights and look into the proposition of establishing a commercial station here on the projected route from Lake Washington, Seattle, to Lake Crescent. Passengers will be taken up.

The hydroplane made this trip practically on schedule time yesterday and flying high over the mountains made a smart descent into the blue waters of Lake Crescent, rushing along the lake almost to Fairholm, then turning and running swiftly to the landing at Singer's Lake Crescent Tavern where a crowd of sightseers, including a party of Port Angeles people, awaited its arrival.

Hearty congratulations were extended to the three men on the plane.

The machine has a mahogany body, and its wings are painted yellow. It is certainly some bird and the manner in which it appeared over the lake yesterday and shot out of the sky into the water was for all the world like a seagull.

The plane is the property of the Western Airplane Company and J. D. Hill is the pilot. He was accompanied by James C. Sullivan, president of the company, and Mechanician Lee Huber.

The company plans to establish a regular air passenger route between the two lakes via Everett and Port Angeles. Today the seaplane was at Victoria, B. C., where it carried Al Singer as a passenger.

FOURTH STREET IMPROVEMENT.

City coucilmen last night discussed the lost opportunity of Fourth street in the matter of utilizing the pile driver, now located at the Lincoln street bridge, for the construction of bridgework to connect Fourth street with Lincoln. It cannot be done, however, unless the city could shoulder the expense, which would be about $2,000 for a 20-foot roadway. The work must be undertaken as a local improvement enterprise and at least sixty days would elapse before the formalities could be completed. The pile driver, long before that time, will have moved along.

Fourth street owners naturally desire an outlet to Lincoln which at present affords the only through road from the hill to the business section. Some of them have contributed to the cost of the improvement of Lincoln Street, which they cannot use to advantage.

The connection should be made and put through, as suggested by Councilman Hallahan, fnll width of the roadway, distributing the cost all along Fourth Street from Lincoln to Cherry. It is true that Lincoln will not for long be the only thoroughfare connecting Cherry Hill with the downtown section, but in any event the road should be put through to Lincoln so as to make the proper connections in the city's street plan. Fourth street people should get together and decide just what they wish to have done.

FLYING.

The successful flight of the big hydroplane from Seattle to Lake Crescent, which was made in the interests of a Seattle firm yesterday, was remarkable for the ease with which the pilot found his objective in air lanes hitherto unexplored by any aviators. The plane passed over Port Angeles shortly before four o'clock in the afternoon and made quick time to the lake. It flew over the mountains at a high altitude and dropped into the lake from the sky without mishap. The actual objective was Singer's Tavern where a celebration of the successful trip was held.

We no longer marvel at these things. Planes have been flying now for a number of years and the last bit of human wonder at the achievement was knocked out during the world war. Still the element of danger persists—and will always persist in excess of other varieties of fast travel which impatient mortals invent.

If a commercial oil field in uncovered in Forks, we may expect to see airplanes daily on their way over Port Angeles—carriers of mail, oil certificates and up-to-date speculators. Meanwhile we can only enjoy the occasional visit of airmen intent on visiting Washington's most beautiful lake district.

OUR WANDERING BOYS.

"Paris is surprisingly full of amiable young Americans of no particular gifts no particular principles, no particular means of support," says the New York Herald (Paris Edition.) Most of them, the Herald believes, got "over" on one pretext or another—Red Cross, Transport, etc.,—during the war, or were members of the A. E. F. who managed to be discharged on the other side. The adventuresome hardships of the war left the latter with little taste for a prosaic career in prosaic America. A good many who did go back home after the armistice "remembered the frivolities of the marvellous city which had stood for everything that war and muddy camps and discipline and the uncertain future had not stood for. Accordingly, despite family entreaties, they snatched at any pretext to ge tback to the land "in which it seemed always afternoon."

Few of the "floaters" have any jobs, the Herald declares, though most have intelligence, and "all of them are half way between useful and useless." And moreover, all "are sincerely a little disappointed, for it is not the same Paris that it was—which is to say, they are not the same men that they were."

In conclusion, the Herald says:

"Like the Lotus-eaters their song is: "We will return no more," but like the lotus-eaters they will pay a price for forgetfulness, the price of isolation. What is Europe going to do with them?"

THE ANGLO JAPANESE ALLIANCE AND THE U. S.

The time limit for denunciation of the nineteen year old treaty of alliance between Great Britain and Japan expired on July 14, and as neither party took advantage of the opportunity to bring the relationship to an end, it will continue in force another ten years. Negotiations are in progress, however, for certain modifications made necessary, apparently, by the changed status of Russia and China, and by the new attitude of the United States after the world war.

There is another factor that England must consider: namely, the larger participation of her dominions in matters of foreign policy. Australia and New Zealand are not content with a Downing street point of view in Asiatic questions; British Columbia looks at Japan from the standpoint of California rather than London. Presumably the British negotiations will have to take these factors into consideration.

The New Europe, a liberal British weekly, studies the question with the possible effects on American opinion well in view. It holds, to be sure, that the Alliance has been "an element of stability" in the Far-Eastern situation during the war, and has "justified its existence" in this respect. But, the New Europe adds:

"If it is to serve a good purpose in the future as it has in the past, the British and Japanese governments must examine with candor and with "modern eye" the very serious blemishes which deface certain parts of its record. And British statesmen, on their part, will have to pay greater heed than heretofore to the attitude of America, not only because of the immense intrinsic importance of the United States, but because in matters of opinion between the Far East generally and Japan in particular, the working of the American mind closely resembles the mental processes of Australia and New Zealand, while there is not a pin to choose between British Columbia and California in their attitude towards the yellow race. There are many people in all parts of the English-speaking world who will not accept a mere Realpolitik justification of the renewal of the Alliance, but will have to be satisfied that it will conduce to the development of personal freedom, political democracy and economic justice for China, as well as a profitable political partnership for the two island kingdoms of East and West."

The New Europe favors renewal of the Alliance, but admits that arguments against it "cannot be lightly dismissed." The opposition, it believes, is based on the plea that the Alliance is a menace to China; but it holds that a split with Japan would not be in China's interest, since "the dangers of the present situation lie quite as much in the character of the Chinese domestic politics as in the ambition of Japan."

Taking an editorial in the Springfield Republican, to the effect that much of the anti-British sentiment in the United States would be allayed by a refusal on the part of Britain to renew, the New Europe accepts it as a reflection of popular American feeling, but thinks it "takes too little account of the realities of the situation in the Far East." It does not agree that the Alliance would mean "Great Britain on the wrong side;" in case of a Japan-American conflict, and predicts that in any case the treaty "in its new form, at all events, will not be suffered to place Great Britain in the predicament indicated." It agrees rather with the Tokyo Asahi, which says:

"No power could cause a breach of Anglo-American friendship even if the treaty were restored to its original text . . . Japan's highest policy must be to maintain the Alliance, and further to create a Japan-American entente."

The Asahi is anti-militarist, and the New Europe admits that "The Anglo-Japanese Alliance could be made the instrument of the ambitions of the militarist party; but," it suggests, "an opinion thus expressed by an avowed opponent of Japanese militarism ought to give us pause before we assume that the Alliance cannot be used for a very different and better purpose."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

"THAT'S GRATITUDE.

A household helped wants me to write about the woman who pays her helper or her washerwoman as small a wage as she can possibly get her for, makes it up by giving her gifts, and then expects gratitude for these gifts.

"I used to work for a woman like that," she said, "and she made me sick. She'd bring me out a pair of silk stockings of some queer shade that she picked up at a bargain when she went in town, or she'd give me a waist she didn't like herself, and expect me to fall all over her with thanks. If she had paid me what she should have, I could have bought my own stockings and waists and I'd a good sight rather have done it. And then finally, when all the other girls were getting from $2 to $5 a week more than I, and I left her, she was madder than a hatter—said that after all she had done for me and all the things she had given me, she called it the basest ingratitude. But then, she said, you couldn't expect gratitude from the servant class.

How Would Her Husband Like His Pay That Way?

"Gratitude from the servant class, indeed! I wonder how grateful her husband would have been if he had been paid a few hundred dollars less and his employer had given him bargains and second-hand clothes?

"There aren't so many women like that now," she went on, "for the good reason that they just can't get the help cheap now. But they say things aren't always going to be this way and then I suppose they'll go back to their old ways. Well, I'll never work for that kind again—I'd rather have my money and spend it myself. Then I know just where I am.

No Reason for Gratitude.

Of course one would rather like to hear the employer's side of this case before making final judgment, but I think we all know women who act just the way this woman describes.

Because they either can't or won't pay the current wage, they try to make it up in gifts and privileges. If it is because they can't pay it, one is sorry for them. If it is because they won't, one is not. In either case, they have no right to epect gratitude if the gifts have simply helped make up a wage that was deficient.

The Helper Who is Ungrateful.

On the other hand we all know helpers who are given a fair wage, and on top of that granted favors and given the privileges and are ungrateful for the gifts, and who, when their own chance comes to make a return—as in time of illness or household stress—are unwilling to do it.

I am inclined to think, with Kipling, that "the Colonel's lady" and "Julia O'Grady" are pretty much the same under the skin, and that the one which has the power must always struggle with the temptation to abuse it. Just now, because of the law of supply and demand the balance of power is with Julia O'Grady. She has always railed at the Colonel's Lady for her abuse of it. Now is her chance to show whether she will do better or not.

The thirsty are beginning to call it a parch campaign.—Boston Herald.

The Girl Who Smiled Through

By MARION RUBINGAM

CHAPTER XV.

"Just think," said Alice happilly to Clara. "I'm going to have a trousseau, like any other girl!" She twisted about before the mirror, a hair brush in one hand, her hair hanging down her back in a rope of shining color.

"Why shouldn't you," Clara answered. "Tell me about it."

"Why shouldn't I!" achoed Alice. "Well, the price of clothes and the general scarcity of income is a good enough reason. However, mother insisted that I spend enough to have a really nice outfit. Listen, my dear, I'll tell you all about it."

The two girls sat down on the bed, in that delightful intimacy which comes with a discussion of frocks and frills and which a man can never understand.

"I have discovered David's weakness," Alice said dramatically.

"He likes women to wear pretty clothes."

"Dear me, is that all?" laughed Clara. "All men like that, you are a poor little unworldly child if you didn't know that. Even my dad likes to see me dressed up to kill!"

"Well, I didn't want to spend the money, but after all, if mother lives with us, and we rent the house, her income will be larger, so I decided I could afford a few hundred dollars. Tucker is going to order me a suit right from New York, my dear—a dark blue serge for traveling, very plain, but nice enough to wear most any place—blue serge is always good." Alice spoke as though she had always been an authority on fashion.

"Then I am going to buy that blue taffeta they have that you wanted me to get—do you remember? But I'm not going to save that for the trousseau, but wear it now whenever I go out with David. I really haven't a thing, you know."

"I know," said Clara, grimly. "I'm glad you are getting some sense, Alice. You economize and wear those ginghams and percales, and you don't look nice in them. You're the sort that needs to be dressed up, you look perfectly stunning in good clothes."

"Yes," Alice answered meekly. "Well you must help me, for I honestly don't know. As David's wife I simply must look like—like his old friends must have looked. I don't want to seem—gawkish, you know." She made her confession timidly.

"Well," Clara began with decision. "You'll need a suit, and you'd better let me select the general style—though Tucker has good taste I'll admit. Then you must have a frilly evening dress. I think it had better be silver lace and blue net! and you must have a lovely silky negligee—gray blue, and white swansdown or fur on it."

"My dear, I'm not a millionaire," protested Alice.

"It won't cost much, I've a good dressmaker and you can have her make it. Then you had better get some good heavy flesh color crepe de chine, and your mother can make you underclothes."

"Clara!" protested Alice, her cheeks flushing pink. "Why I've never worn anything but white longcloth and not even lace—"

"Time you began wearing something frivolous then," said Clara, not to be diverted from her plans. "I've some lovely lace I'll donate, and your mother can do featherstitching on them, and really they won't cost so much."

"Then blouses—"

Heads together they planned as only girls can. So many yards of this, so much lace, so many days of the seamstresses time. They figured out the cost of each item and with Mrs. Fairbanks they made a long list of needed things to buy. Then Alice and Clara went down to the town's one large store and came back with more lists of figures and samples of silks and soft chiffons and organdies.

And finally it was all planned out, the seamstress was written to and Alice, her cheeks pink with pleasure, was sitting at the able in the living room, picking up and looking at the clipped pieces of pretty materials.

"Fancy me wearing a draped negligee with fur trimmings," she smiled at the prospect, imagining how blue her eyes would look with this soft blue around her. She would have to learn to do her hair up too—

Mrs. Fairbanks looked up from a letter she had been reading. "It is from Lois—she can't come," she said. "Isn't it too bad! She might have been here for the wedding too."

"Why not?" asked Alice.

"Well, she hasn't the money, it costs about $150 you know, from New York, and she owes a few bills. She does seem so lonely, poor child."

Alice sat looking thoughtfully at the bright bits of silk. After a long time she looked up.

"Mother, dear, I don't need a trousseau. If David can't love me in old clothes, then he doesn't love me at all. I won't get all these frivolous things, lingerie, and chiffon blouses—I'll simply get a nice plain suit, and wel'll send Lois the money to come on here."

"But my dear—" began Mrs. Fairbanks.

"No, please. I want to do this," answered Alice.

MRS. M. E. SMITH, prominent Tampa, Fla., woman, who says, thanks to Tanlac, she is now able to walk around without the help of a cane after eight long years of suffering.

"I am so glad my health is being restored after suffering for over eight years with indigestion and rheumatism that I feel like telling everybody about Tanlac," was the enthusiastic statement made recently by Mrs. M. E. Smith, one of the best known and most highly respected women of Tampa, Fla., residing at 906 Morgan St.

"The rheumatism from which I had suffered for years even before I had stomach trouble, pained me worse than ever and until recently I was not able to walk without the use of a cane, but I was so weak at times I could hardly get out of bed. I tried many medicines but nothing helped me and I almost despaired of ever getting any better.

"Then Tanlac came along, and in just a few days after I began taking this grand medicine, my appetite began to improve and in only a short time I was able to enjoy my meals and everything seemed to agree with me perfectly.

"My rheumatism is so much better and I have so much more strength I am now able to walk all about the house and up and down the stairs without my cane. Friends who have become so accustomed to seeing me walk with my cane are astonished when they see me now walking around without it.

"I will always praise Tanlac for what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Port Angeles by Owl Drug Co.; in Dungeness by Wm. A. Monson; in Sequim by F. D. Babcock; in Blyn by W. B. Main; in Morse by W. F. Taylor, and in Forks by George W. Groffman, and in Neah Bay by W. W. Washburn & Son.

Seattle Wins Tight Game.

With two out in the tenth inning in a hard fought game yesterday, Seattle delivered the punch that won one of the hardest games of the season. It was Chamber of Commerce day and there were nearly 9,000 fans in the park. Murphy started the frame by singling. He was sacrificed to second by Stumpf. Adams fanned the ozone, Socks Seibold, who pitched stellar ball all through the game came to bat and delivered a sizzling single over short and Murphy scored from second with the run that packed the game on ice.

Both teams played errorless ball and the pitchers were very stingy with base hits, Couch allowing 7 and Seibold 5.

Seattle	3	7	0

Batteries: Couch and Agnew; Seibold and Adams.

Sacs Beat Tigers.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—A squeeze play in the seventh, scoring Prough and McGaffigan, gave Sacramento the game with Vernon, 9 to 7. The Tigers took a three run lead in the fourth, but could not hold it against Prough's tight pitching and the Senator's slugging.

Sacramento	7	14	1
Vernon	4	7	1

Batteries: Prough and Schang, Houck, Smallwood, Mitchell and Devormer.

Bees Blank Oaks.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—Leverenz allowed only three hits yesterday and Salt Lake shut out Oakland 4 to 0. Two of these hits were by Wilie. Leverenz opened the scoring in the third inning on Sheely's single to left, and Rumler stole home when Mitze threw the ball into centerfield in an attempt to catch Sheely stealing second.

Salt Lake	4	8	0
Oakland	0	3	1

Batteries: Leverenz and Byler, Holling, Kremer and Mitze.

Wild Throw Trims Angels.

PORTLAND, Aug. 4.—Portland won the opening game of the series from Los Angeles, 3 to 2. It was a pitching duel between Sutherland and Aldridge in which Sutherland excelled. Portland tied the game in the ceventh when Schaller tripled and scored on Cox's single. Aldridge let Cox in with the winning run by throwing wild to first on Spranger's infied hit.

Los Angeles	2	8	2
Portland	3	10	2

Batteries: Aldridge and Lapan; Sutherland and Koehler.

Chicago.—Faber had the edge on Mays yesterday and Chicago defeated New York, 3 to 1. In the first inning Jackson's three bagger scored Weaver and Leibold. He might have completed the circuit but he came into the plate standing up and was out. In the seventh the locals scored again.

Faber was in great form. "Babe" Ruth drew three walks and a single in four times up.

A petition for increases in the salaries of the city clerk and city treasurer, which salaries are about 30 per cent below the scale of pay at the city hall was defeated, Councilman Burns, Horstman and Van Brunt voting for the increase.

Councilman Van Brunt, as chairman of the fire committee, obtained permission for the department to buy a new carbureto for the fire truck and reported on the fire hydrant situation on 13th street. It appears that the former city clerk, C. D. Best, failed to notify the water company of the council's request for the installation of hydrants at 13th street at Lincoln and Cherry streets. This will be attended to.

Street Superintendent Joe Pearson reported on the damage being done the planking on lower Laurel street by the heavy gravel trucks. The planking it is understood is to be straightened by the contractors.

Warrants for work done on various contracts will be issued by the Mayor and City Treasurer, upon approval by the finance committee, for the following amounts: Jack Rossi, Park work, $369.26; Woods Bros., First street, $17,080.75; Woods Bros., Lincoln St., $4,442.87; Dahlberg & Oleson, District 64, $4,407.34.

COL. HARTLEY, LIVE WIRE GUBERNATORIAL CANDIDATES IN PORT ANGELES TODAY.

Col. Hartley was welcomed here by Chairman J. Lloyd Aldwell, of the county republican committee and other citizens and was given a hearty reception. He speaks tonight at 7:30 in the Civic Park and at 8:45 in the Dream Theatre. Tomorrow he will be in Sequim and will talk to the people there and at Dungeness, Blyn, Port Discovery and Uncas, visiting other hamlets on his way.

Placing himself on record as opposed to state socialism and any effort to involve the state in the operation of any line of business or industry, Col. Roland C. Hartley of Everett, announces the platform on which he seeks the support of voters in the race for the office of governor. Col. Hartley believes that the soldiers' bonus bill should be settled by referendum of the people, but that he personally is in favor of a just recompense based on length of service, for the sons and daughters of Washington, who served in the military forces in the country's time of need.

Consolidation of state boards and various state agencies to eliminate waste and duplication of work and expense, is urged by Col. Hartley, who states that if he is elected governor, he will make a survey of the state government in the same manner that he would investigate a private business enterprise.

Protection against cheap foreign labor and its attendant economic conditions, is urged in order that the American laboring man may not be required to meet the low standards of living under which the alien might prosper.

Col. Hartley is making a rapid-fire campaign in the western part of the state covering from six to ten towns every day. On Monday he addressed street meetings at Centralia, Tenino, and Montesano and wound up the day with evening meetings at Aberdeen and Hoquiam, where he is reported to have made a real dent in the stronghold of Governor Hart.

On Tuesday the party covered the Hoods Canal country, making stops at Shelton, Union City, Potlatch, Elden Brinnon, Quilcene, Leland and Crocker, winding up with an evening meeting at Port Townsend.
