DEFENDERS OF WARSAW TURN TABLES ON FOE AND MOVE FORWARD

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 20. — Brest-Livotsk has been occupied by the Polish army, according to advices received today by the state department from the American commissioner at Berlin. His dispatch was based on a report received by him from Posen.

PARIS, Aug. 20.—The Temps announced today that the French government has received advices that Polish troops have occupied Biela, 25 miles west of Brest Livotsk.

The military successes of the Poles continued yesterday, according to a report to the foreign office today from the military mission in Warsaw, under plans elaborated by the French general, Weygand, and his staff of more than 600 French officers.

These officers are either actively in command of the forces that are freeing Warsaw from the Soviet menace or are aiding the Polish commanders.

The Polish left wing has taken Pultusk, about 35 miles north of Warsaw, and is continuing to progress in the direction of Mlawa. In the center the Polish forces are marching in the direction of Ostralenka, 22 miles southwest of Lomza.

POLISH OFFENSIVE IS ACTIVELY MAINTAINED

WARSAW, Aug. 20.—The Polish offensive is in full swing. More than 10,000 prisoners, thirty cannon, 300 machine guns and thousands of supply carts have been captured. The Poles have occupied Plonsk, Pultusk and Wyskow.

Owing to the Polish pressure from the northwest it is reported that the Bolsheviki are withdrawing their forces which reached the Vistula south of the Prussian border and to the north west of Warsaw.

The Warsaw sector is rapidly being cleared. North and northeast of the capital the Reds are being shoved back by the Poles, who are following them up all along the front, using artillery in such quantities as to cause great confusion among the invaders who are on the run.

To the east the Bolsheviki are reported to be making their way across the Bug. Siedlece was taken by the Poles Wednesday.

North of the fortress Novo Georgievak, the Red forces were dislodged, after stubborn resistance a Polish cavalry charge smashing the Bolsheviki brigade. The Bolsheviki leaving Putsk, thirty miles north of Warsaw, took the mayor and the clergy as hostages, the communique stated, adding that 1500 prisoners were gathered there.

Gen. Pilsudski has been with the troops east of Warsaw and under shell fire. Bolsheviki troops are reported to have been cut off from their main forces, thousands surrendering daily. Along the Bug south of Brest Litovsk, the communique reports, heavy fighting has been under way. A soviet division is said to have been cut off from retreat near Wlodawa and to have suffered heavy casualties. The communique mentioned a Bolsheviki advance in parts of former East Prussia, now in Poland, northwest of Mlawa. The Bolsheviki have reached Lidzbark and Dzialdow and are meeting with cooperation from the German population according to the communique. The statement adds it has been advised that Bolsheviki has been forced to fight by the communists.

Poles are reported to be regrouping before Lemburg for a counterstroke. Near Thorn, about 105 miles north of Warsaw, the communique says, they have launched a counter-action toward Brodnica, near Lipno, about 25 miles southeast of Thorn and at Siedlece, the Bolsheviki have started an eastward movement, aviators report.

CO-OPERATIVE BORROWING PLAN FOR FARMERS

WASHINGTON, D. The plan arose out of paralyzing of the federal act as a result of the suit pending in the supreme court to test its constitutionality, it was said.

Local farm loan associations will be formed into "state unions," and state conventions will be called to name delegates to a national convention.

PRO-SUFFRAGE MOTION CANNOT BE RESCINDED

(By Associated Press)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20.—The Tennessee house adjourned today until ten o'clock tomorrow morning without an attempt of the anti-suffragists to force reconsideration of the house action in ratifying the Federal suffrage amendment. The motion to adjourn was offered by a suffrage leader and carried by an overwhelming viva voce vote.

Failure of Speaker Walker to move re-consideration was taken as an indication that the opposition had not secured enough pledges to rescind the ratification action.

The anti-suffragists sought to have the house adjourn until Monday, but the movement was defeated by the same vote that the ratification resolution was adopted on Wednesday—49 to 47.

PLEBISCITE IS MARKED BY FIGHTING

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN, Aug. 20.—Advices from Kattowitz up to three p. m., indicate that the tension of the German population, on the one side, and of the French troops and Polish elements on the other, is not relaxing and that fresh outbursts are likely. Two thousand Italian troops have arrived.

The advices say that desultory firing is in progress in various parts of the city and that lynch law is freely being resorted to by enraged German workers.

Although a state of reinforced seige was proclaimed by the inter-allied commission at Kattowitz, fighting and anti-Polish rioting was resumed yesterday, it is stated in Berlin newspapers. These accounts say that late in the day virtually the entire populace poured into the streets, marching to the hotel, headquarters of the Polish plebiscite committee.

When security police arrived, the dispatch says, shots were fired from the hotel. These were replied to and heavy firing ensued. At 9 p. m. the inmates of the hotel surrendered and about 17 persons are reported arrested. One arrested, it is said, was shot as he was alleged to have attempted resistance. Two others were lynched by the crowd. Documents of the plebiscite committee were strewn about the streets.

Occupation troops, according to reports were confined to their barracks which were barricaded. The crowds wrecked the plant of a Polish newspaper and other Polish establishments.

French officers attached to the Inter-allied commission left their headquarters, and, the dispatches say, their French songs as they marched away, were drowned by the crowds who sang, "Victorious, we will beat the French."

EDITORIAL

OUR COUNTY REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

It would be interesting to have some expression of opinion from candidates for state and county offices on the platform put out by the Clallam County Republican Club. Do all of the men who have filed on the Republican ticket for the primary election subscribe to those doctrines or not? The voters are entitled to know.

There are some debatable propositions included in the platform especially the proposal to cut appropriations for state commissions and departments, which are dear to the hearts of many republican voters. But everyone, including the Democrats and Non-Partisans will approve the plank calling for the provision of cheap blasting powder for clearing the land. It is the biggest problem of our time and we have got to provide means whereby the land can be cleared and made productive at a cost that is not, as at present, excessive and prohibitive.

The plank referred to follows:

"We fully realize the urgent necessity of the production of more food and the development of the argicultural lands of the State. As the greater part of such lands in Clallam County the logged-off lands into the clearing of which powder is an important factor we urge either the operation of a state powder factory or that the state purchase powder in large quantities and sell to the different counties of the state at cost and so reduce the cost to the actual settler engaged in clearing such lands."

THE JAPANESE PROBLEM ON THE COAST.

We of the Pacific Coast are handling the Japanese question in such a way as to create a distinctly unfriendly feeling on the part of the Japanese government. In California the action of Governor Stephens, bitter resolutions by labor organizations, long-continued attacks by important newspapers and the investigations by the congressional committee have served to irritate Japan, and they have so far failed of material results

There is a real and amicable purpose to be gained by the agitation of this subject, if it is agitated wisely. That purpose is the bringing of the powers together in a frank and open discussion which will settle now a harassing difficulty which is bound to bob up in more severe form at a later day. What we should look forward to is not the antagonizing of a potentially friendly power through sensational talk which has no definite end in view. What we should keep continually in tht forefront of our vision is an amicable, diplomatic meeting to state facts straight from the shoulder in terms which any reasonable Japanese statesman can understand without resentment and to discuss and arrive at a solid basis for future friendly relations.

There is unquestionably a large party of anti-militarists in Japan, and it is upon this intelligent and important Japanese group that the world and the peaceable element in our own country must rely for the future stability and peace of the Pacific.

The fundamental friendly basis for relations with Japan should not be hard to demonstrate. Intelligent America certainly does not view the Japanese as an inferior people. It simply sees the impossibility of assimilating Japanese a purely biological standpoint, and it sees, therefore, the impracticability of permitting further substantial addition to a group in this country which cannot be woven into our national fabric. It is race and race alone, the impossibility of assimilation, which enforces the distinction between our handling of the problem of Oriental immigration and our handling of the problem of European immigration.

The constructive course is to impress the government at Washington with the need of doing something to prevent the situation from becoming more acute and finally threatening the peace of the Pacific.

CHAPTER 29.

Next morning Lois appeared at, for her, the unheard of early hour of half past eight. Alice had not allowed her mother to get up, so she had arranged a tray, with a few flowers from her "grandmother's garden," to dress it up and had carried to upstairs to the bedroom.

She was sitting alone staring out the window with a cup of coffee before her, when Lois came in.

"Why, you've not eaten a bite, Alice dear," Lois said with concern that sounded almost real. "You mustn't worry over your mother so she's really all right. I stopped in to say good morning, and she's looking—"

"I'm not worrying over Mother" Alice interrupted. I'm not hungry, that is all."

"You must let me heat your breakfast again," Lois remarked sweetly. Alice noted for the first time that she was wearing one of her simplest dresses, instead of the trailing negligee she usually appeared in . Lois sat for a moment at the table, but as Alice, lost in her thoughts, made no motion towards getting the second breakfast, the girl got up and went over to the stove herself.

"You must let me wait on you for a change" she said, and her pleasant tones made generous Alice suddenly ashamed of the hard thoughts she'd been harboring against her.

So Lois emptied the cold coffee and after daintily washing and wiping the cup refilled it with hot coffee from the stove. She split open the cold rolls and toasted them, and dished up fresh hot cereal.

"Now, that's fine, isn't it?" she asked, sitting down again. "You see what a useful person I can be. Now you must eat, Alice dear, after I have fixed up a new breakfast for you."

Alice was touched, and to show her gratitude, she ate the food she did not want. Lois fairly purred her satisfaction and mother Alice by her manner in a way that would ordinarily have amused that practical minded young lady. But Alice was in a sentimental mood today. She felt she had given up everything worth while in life when she had given David his freedom, and though down in her innermost heart she hoped he would come back to her, and though she was almost sure he would—still the world was a black place to her today.

Lois watched her with apparent concern.

"If it's not your mother, you are worrying about, it's Davey," she said finally, as though she had suddenly made a great discovery.

"Who?" asked Alice, coming to herself again with a start.

"Davey, David," Lois explained. "I have been calling him Davey — it's such a nice nickname, don't you think?"

Alice did not answer. Lois poured herself another cup of coffee and returned to the table.

"Do you mind my calling him Davey?" she asked sweetly, watching Alice's face closely. Alice felt as though someone were sticking little knives into her, but she forced herself to answer with apparent unconcern.

"No, of course. I don't care what you call him."

There was silence for a moment. A tiny smile played over Lois' pretty little features. Then she said suddenly:

"I think you are quite right in breaking your engagement to David."

"How did you know that?" Alice almost jumped from her chair, she was so startled by Lois' remark.

"Oh, it's perfectly evident," the young girl smiled a little triumphantly and helped herself to another toasted roll. "You have been nervous and preoccupied for some days. Auntie has been upset—she would be; she thinks being engaged is as sacred as being married!" Lois permitted herself a gay little laugh, then resumed: "And today you won't talk and you look perfectly miserable, and of course it must be worrying over a man. I always worried and wept when I broke off engagements," Lois settled back with a little sigh and drunk some more coffee.

"How many did you break?" Alice asked coolly.

"Oh, not many—only three, in fact," Lois answered amiably. "It used to please mother to have the boys crazy about me. Poor mother!" she sat back with drooping eyes again, but this time Alice did not even notice her, so she dropped the pose promptly.

"You and Davey were never made for each other," she went on in honeyed tones, getting up from the table. "So of course, it's just as well its broken."

Still Alice said nothing, the pain in her heart was too sharp.

"Since you aren't engaged then," Lois went on, ready now to leave the kitchen, "you won't mind my going about with Davey a bit, will you, dear?"

"Of course not," Alice managed to say.

"Well," Lois said studying her polished finger-nails intently, "I think I will write to him to come and take me for a drive again. They say the Indian Head River is quite pretty to visit."

Tomorrow—A Proposal.

1¼ pints tepid water; 2½ tablespoons sugar (level); 1 tablespoon salt (level); 2 cakes compressed yeast; 1 tablespoon shortening; OLYMPIC Flour, well sifted before measuring, enough to make a smooth dough, about 1¼ quarts.

Dissolve yeast in part of water, salt and sugar in remainder. Combine and add Olympic flour to make a smooth batter. Beat until free from lumps, then add rest of flour, sufficient to make a smooth dough. Add melted lard or oil. Knead well, put in greased bowl to rise until double the bulk. Knead down and let rise again until double the bulk. Mold into loaves, let rise till light, bake in moderate oven

There's a great treat sealed up in every package of OLYMPIC Pancake Flour — rich brown pancakes and waffles.

Try OLYMPIC Wheat Hearts, too.

And wherever good flour is sold—of course, you will find OLYMPIC. Put up in 10, 24½ and 49½ pound sacks.

true politicians that are running for any public office in Clallam county or the state of Washington, and that their policies will be for the welfare and prosperity of the people of Clallam county and the state of Washington.

On the labor question I take the stand that American citizens should be employed first, classing those foreigners who fought in the American army or navy in the same class as citizens.

I also advocate that no steamship company shall bring immigrants to this country without the order or consent of congress, and that those immigrants so coming without such order shall be sent back at the expense of the steamship company.

MISSOULA, Montana, Aug. 20.—The forest fire situation in Montana, Northern Idaho and eastern Washington was very much improved today it was declared at district forest service headquarters here with control lines established around a majority of the numerous fires and the spread of the others slowed down.

The Flathead forest in northwestern Montana was the only region where this condition did not exist.

SEATTLE WOMAN GAINS IN POUNDS

"I have gained 15 pounds in weight and am enjoying the best of health since I began taking Tanlac" said Mrs. A. G. Sekund, who resides at 2404 Third Ave., Seattle, Wash., recently. Continuing, she said:

"For the post several years I have suffered from a severe stomach trouble. My appetites was very poor and I had to virtually force gas down every mouthful I ate and even this would sour and ferment, gas would form and I would bloat something awful. I also suffered with terrible pains in my stomach, my heart would palpitate dreadfully and I had great difficulty in breathing. My head would ache so badly I thought at times it would simply burst open, and I would have such dizzy spells it was with the greatest effort I could keep from falling. My nerves were in such bad condition I could get but little sleep, and I was so restless at night I would just roll and toss from one side of the bed to the other all night long and would be completely exhausted in the morning. I lost so much weight and became so weak I could hardly get obout at all and was unable to do my housework.

"A friend of mine who had been greatly benefitted by Tanlac advised me to try it and I took her advice. The results I have obtained are simply remarkable. I now have a fine appetite and can eat anything I want and never suffer from it afterward. I am never troubled with gas or bloating and never know what it is to have a pain of any kind. The headaches and dizzy spells have all gone and my nerves are in such fine condition I can now sleep all night long as peaceful as a child and get up always feeling greatly refreshed. Iam regaining my lost weight and strength every day, and can do all my housework with the greatest ease. I owe all my present good health to Tanlac, and am glad to recommend it to others."

Tanlac is sold in Port Angeles by Owl Drug Co.; in Dungeness by Wm. A. Monson; in Sequim by F. D. Babcock; in Blyn by W. B. Main; in Mora by W. F. Taylor, and in Forks by Geo. W. Groffman, in Neah Bay by W. W. Washburn & Son, and in Carlsborg by W. E. Stevens.
