PRESIDENT WILSON ON PEACE IN MEXICO

Address to Congress Tells of Attempts to Secure Peace, Rejection by Huerta, and Outlines Plan for Restoration of Order.

Following President Wilson's address to Congress Wednesday, in which he revealed how the Huerta provisional government in Mexico had rejected the friendship of the United States and its efforts to aid in the establishment of peace and a government which could be recognized by the nation and which would be obeyed and respected by Mexico's own people, a warning was sent to Americans in Mexico to leave that country at once. In telegrams to the consular representatives, they were instructed to give every aid possible to departing Americans, furnishing transportation and money where necessary. The state department estimates there are 15,000 Americans left in Mexico now, where there were 60,000 a few years ago.

Within a day or two an announcement is expected of the mobilization of a large number of American troops along the frontier to enforce neutrality in the traffic of arms and munitions of war. Troops are already enroute for the south.

A synopsis of President Wilson's address to congress on the Mexican situation follows:

The Facts Concerning Mexico.

"Gentlemen of the Congress: It is clearly my duty to lay before you very fully and without reservation the facts concerning our present relations with the republic of Mexico.

The deplorable posture of affairs in Mexico I need not describe, but I do deem it my duty to speak very frankly of what this government has done and should seek to do in fulfillment of its obligation to Mexico herself, as a friend and neighbor, and to American citizens whose lives and vital interests are daily affected by the distressing conditions which now obtain beyond our southern border.

Friendship Is Genuine.

"Those conditions touch us very nearly. Not merely because they lie at our very doors. That, of course, makes us more vividly and more constantly conscious of them, and every instinct of neighborly interest and sympathy is aroused and quickened by them; but that is only one element in the determination of our duty. We are glad to call ourselves the friends of Mexico, and we shall, I hope, have many an occasion, in happier times as well as in these days of trouble and confusion, to show that our friendship is genuine and disinterested, capable of sacrifice and ever generous manifestation.

"The peace, prosperity, and contentment of Mexico mean more, much more, to us than merely an enlarged field for our commerce and enterprise. They mean an enlargement of the field of self government and the realization of the hopes and rights of a nation with whose best aspirations, so long suppressed and disappointed, we deeply sympathize. We shall yet prove to the Mexican people that we know how to serve them without first thinking how we shall serve ourselves.

War, Disorder, Devastation.

"The present circumstances of the republic, I deeply regret to say, do not seem to promise the foundations of such a peace. We have waited ed many months, months full of peril and anxiety, for the conditions there to improve. War and disorder, devastation and confusion seem to threaten to become the settled fortune of the distracted country. As friends, we could wait no longer for a solution which every week seemed further away. It was our duty at least to volunteer our good offices—to offer to assist, if we might, in effecting some arrangement which would bring relief and peace and set up a universally acknowledged political authority there.

"Accordingly, I took the liberty of sending the Hon. John Lind, formerly governor of Minnesota, as my personal spokesman and representative to the City of Mexico with instructions to press earnestly on the attention of those who are now exercising authority or wielding influence in Mexico the following considerations and advice:

"'The government of the United States does not feel at liberty any longer to stand inactively by while it becomes daily more and more evident that no real progress is being made toward the establishment of a government at the City of Mexico which the country will obey and respect.

"'The present situation in Mexico is incompatible with the fulfillment of international obligations on the part of Mexico, with the civilized development of Mexico itself and with the maintenance of tolerable political and economic conditions in Central America. It is upon no common occasion therefore, that the United States offers her counsel and assistance. All America cries out for a settlement.

"'A satisfactory settlement seems to us to be conditioned on—

"(A) An immediate cessation of fighting throughout Mexico, a definite armistice solemnly entered into and scrupulously observed;

"'(B) Security given for an early and free election in which all agree to take part;

"'(C) The consent of Gen. Huerta to bind himself not to be a candidate for election as president of the republic at this election; and

"'(D) The agreement of all parties to abide by the results of the election and co-operate in the most loyal way in organizing and supporting the new administration.

Can See No Reason for Rejecting.

"'The government of the United States will be glad to play any part in this settlement or in its carrying out which it can play honorably and consistently with international right. It pledges itself to recognize and in every way possible to assist the administration chosen and set up in Mexico in the way and on the conditions suggested.

"'Taking all the existing conditions into consideration, the government of the United States can conceive of no reasons sufficient to justify those who are now attempting to shape the policy or exercise the authority of Mexico in declining the offices of friendship thus offered. Can Mexico give the civilized world a satisfactory reason for rejecting our good offices. If Mexico can suggest any better way to show our friendship, serve the people of Mexico and meet our international obligation, we are more than willing to consider the suggestion.'

"Mr. Lind executed his delicate and difficult mission with singular tact, firmness and good judgment, but the proposals he submitted were rejected, in a note the full text of which I take the liberty of laying before you.

"I am led to believe that they were rejected because the authorities did not realize the spirit of the American people in this matter, their earnest friendliness and yet sober determination for some just solution of the Mexican difficulties.

"The effect of this unfortunate misunderstanding on their part is to leave them singularly isolated and without friends who can effectually aid them. So long as the misunderstanding continues we can only await the time of their awakening to a realization of the actual facts.

"Meanwhile, what is it our duty to do? Clearly, everything that we do must be rooted in patience and done with calm and disinterested deliberation. We can afford to exercise the self-restraint of a really great nation which realizes its own strength and scorns to misuse it. It was our duty to offer our active assistance. It is now our duty to show what true neutrality will do to enable the people of Mexico to set their affairs in order again and wait for a further opportunity to offer our friendly counsels.

Fears for Non-Combatants.

"While we wait, the contest of the rival forces will undoubtedly for a little while be sharper than ever, just because it will be plain that an end must be made of the existing situation, and that very promptly; and with the increased activity of the contending factions will come, it is to be feared, increased danger to the noncombatants in Mexico as well as to those actually in the field.

"We should earnestly urge Americans to leave Mexico at once,, and should assist them to get away in every way possible. We should let everyone who seems to exercise authority in any way know that we shall watch the fortunes of those Americans who cannot get away, and shall hold those responsible for their sufferings and losses to a definite reckoning.

"For the rest, I deem it my duty to exercise the authority conferred on me by the law of March 14, 1912, to see to it that neither side to the struggle receive any assistance from this side of the border.

The steady pressure of moral force will, before many days, break the barriers of pride and prejudice down and we shall triumph as Mexico's friends sooner than we could triumph as her enemies—and how much more handsomely! With how much higher and finer satisfaction of conscience and of honor."

FRAMEWORK OF MILL NEARLY UP

Several Boilers, Large Belt Wheels and Portions of Engines Now on the Ground.

A half dozen boilers, two immense belt wheels, each of which made a carload, and various other pieces of engines and heavy machinery, the whole occupying thirteen New York Central and Milwaukee cars, were the feature of interest to visitors at the Earles' mill Sunday. A railroad has been built entirely around the mill and yards so that machinery can be placed where wanted without loss of time.

The framework of the lumber mill, fifty rows, six to the row, of immense timbers constituting the support for the second floor, is now nearly complete; one walking down through the archways can easily imagine he is in a great exposition building at a world's fair in the making. Cement foundations are in for the engine room and the big saws, and forms are being put up for cement dry kilns to the south of the mill.

New rails have been laid up the completed railroad grade past the mill and lagoon this week, replacing those used in the construction work. The steam shovel is now working two miles west of the spit, the grade having been completed to that point.

WILL WORK FOR A FEDERAL BUILDING

Congressman J. A. Falconer writes an interesting letter from Washington to J. Lloyd Aldwell in which he says, "I shall be pleased to urge an appropriation for a federal building in your city and will be glad to introduce it in the Omnibus Bill of the regular session. Senator Poindexter, I understand, will introduce it in the senate at the same time." Mr. Falconer can always be depended upon to take care of the interests of all sections of the state.

NEW STREET LIGHTING SYSTEM NEARLY READY

City Electrician Church is putting up about three hundred big 100 candle power lights, one to each block along all the streets reached by the city system, in preparation for the department's grand opening, which is slated for Saturday night. With the twelve 500 candle power arc lights along the business street, it is believed Port Angeles will be the best lighted town of its size on the Coast.

FORTIFICATIONS FOR LINCOLN HEIGHTS

Story Afloat that Government is About to Buy Hill in Order to Control Straits.

Fortifications for Lincoln Heights! Do you want them? At any rate it is said the government has had the matter under consideration for some time past and that during the past six weeks agents have been working quietly on the matter with a view to purchasing the necessary land before any public announcement is made, hence no official announcement is possible at this time.

The story is that the government considers Lincoln Heights a strategic point for fortifications for guarding the strait and sound and the city. With long range guns now in vogue shells could be dropped into Esquimalt harbor and anything attempting to pass up the strait could be intercepted. Of course a hostile fleet is not expected, but in times of peace prepare for—any emergency. It is stated that a hostile army in possession of this port could use same as a base and do untold harm.

It is said that the territory bounded by Tumwater and K street, and the water front face of the bluff and 13th street is the area coveted, which takes in practically the whole of Lincoln Heights now inhabited. There are those who are emphatic in the statement that Port Angeles does not want fortifications in the vicinity at any cost, who suggest that if it is found necessary to fortify this district the proper point is a few miles down the strait where the distance across is much less than at this point.

MUST HAVE BEST MEN IN COUNTY AS COMMISSIONERS

New Law Will Be of Great Benefit if People Give it Attention Importance Demands.

In view of the fact that the commissioners will doubtless shortly call an election for the purpose of determining whether the voters desire to take advantage of the law which permits the county to improve agricultural lands for the benefit of the settlers and the county generally, it might be well for those interested to see about getting the proper candidates to act as commissioners. Unless this is done the law is of no avail, and where it might be worked to great advantage it might be worked also to great disadvantage and even to further the ends of unscrupulous persons, safeguarded as much as it might be. There is no salary attached to the office of commissioner, which will tempt the well meaning citizen to pass up the job and give place to one who will go into the office to make something out of it. We must have the best men available and then get behind them and lessen their labors; otherwise better far that the election be not held.

CHANGE OF SCHEDULE OF CITY OF LONG BEACH

The steamer City of Long Beach will lay over at Seattle tomorrow [Saturday] night, and will leave Seattle at 7:30 a. m. Sunday, leaving here for the return trip to Seattle at 5:30 p. m. Sunday, after the ball game.

Engineer Rixon and crew left for the West End this week to work on hte Olympic Way west of the lake.

OLYMPIC HOTEL NEARLY READY FOR OCCUPANCY

Over Half the Sixty-odd Rooms Already Engaged Lobby, Main Stairway and Broad Halls Are Principal Features of Building.

With the close of the first week of September, it is now believed, the new Olypmic Hotel will be ready for occupancy by Mr. J. R. Turney, the lessee. The plastering is all completed; the carpenters have the finishing work well along; plumbing fixtures are being put in and the work of decoration is under way.

Over thirty of the sixty-odd rooms have already been engaged and it is very probable that the hotel will be filled within a short time of the opening day.

The principal features of the building are the spacious lobby, which occupies the entire center of the first floor, facing the north, and the wide stairways and halls. Fir of selected grain has been used throughout, and given a dark brown finish which brings out the beauty of the wood; the walls, all of which are rough, will be tinted to harmonize. The lower third of the walls and large columns in the lobby will be covered with green burlap, finished with plate rails. Light will be furnished by four-point fixtures in the ceiling and bracket lamps on every column.

In addition to the lobby on the lower floor, there are three office or store rooms facing the east, a large dining room facing the east and south, a bar at the northwest corner, with barber shop alongside, and the kitchen and storerooms at the rear of the dining room.

Essentially a "family hotel," every convenience is being provided for the patrons. Three-fourths of the rooms are outside, giving a view of straits or mountains from the second floor, and of the bay as well from the third

Every room will be provided with wash bowl and fixtures, and in addition to the regular bath rooms, there will be a bath for each suite. Telephones will be installed instead of call bells, provision being made for a phone for each bedroom, as well as seven on the lower floor.

In addition to the regular lights, Hubbell attachment receptacles have been provided in all the outside rooms for the use of portable reading lamps or any kind of electrical heating appliances. There will be a bracket lamp over each wash bowl. In the kitchen an outlet has been provided for an electical dish washer. The whole building has about two hundred and fifty light outlets, all flush plate switches, making the largest system, aside from the Sol Duc Hotel, on the west side of the Sound, and one of which the electracians, Hall & Winter, may well be proud.

Everything about the hotel, carpentry, plumbing, plastering, staining, etc., is of the best, only first class workmen having been employed by Contractor Wills. The plastering, for which Chas. G. Brotsche had the contract, has been especially well spoken of, there being twelve thousand yards without a flaw.

C. R. Graves has the contract for decoration.

Our illustration, from photo by Kennett, shows the southeast frontage. The opposite side, the view of which is at present obstructed, will be far more attractive, as it includes the lobby. A twelve foot cement sidewalk will surround the entire building.

WILL BUILD BUNGALOWS

Port Angeles Mortgage and Building Company a New Concern of Much Promise.

Port Angeles industrial status has received a substantial impetus by reason of the recent incorporation of the Port Angeles Mortgage & Building Company. The members of this new organization are Messrs S. J. Lutz, cashier of the Bank of Clallam County, J. P. Christensen, cashier of the Citizens National Bank, Fred Phillips, Thos. T. Aldwell, vice-president of the Olympic Power Company, and Chas. J. Tucker.

Messrs. Phillips and Tucker are late acquisitions to our citizenship, having come from Vancouver, B. C. Both of these gentlemen are well known in the principal cities of the coast, having been identified with the building and contracting business on an extensive scale.

The other gentlemen composing the new corporation are so well known in Port Angeles and Clallam county, that any comment concerning them would be superfluous.

The capital stock of the Port Angeles Mortgage & Building Company is $250,000, and its object is to build houses, bungalows, etc., for sale to all classes of people either on terms of all cash or such deferred payments as may best suit the pecuniary condition of the purchaser.

It is also the intention of the company to plat and sell subdivisions within the city limits, beautifying the same with wide streets, boulevards and parking strips rendered pleasing to the eye with trees, flowers, etc.

As indicating the imperative demand for such an institution it is only necessary to state that several houses have already been ordered from the company by people who want to locate in Port Angeles, but who on account of the paucity of dwellings, are unable to secure them.

Moreover, the company will engage in all sorts of contracting, such as street grading and any of the various forms of municipal improvements that may be made at any time.

Entrenched behind large capital, the operations of the company will move smoothly, unhampered by the unpleasant exigencies that often confront those of smaller means.

One of the principal offices of the company will be to attract the attention of eastern capital, and by demonstration of the real merits and possibilities of the city, induce it to come hither for the purpose of profitable investment. It is the intention of the organization to conduct a loan department, where money may be secured on improved real estate, as soon as may be compatible with the general arrangements.

Alert to the fact the Port Angeles has already discarded her swaddling clothes, that she is emerging from an ordinary country town to urban dignity; and finally that her destiny is so manifestlyand incontrovertibly assured, the gentlemen composing this corporation have stepped into the breach at the psychological moment, as it were, and with keen business acumen have forseen the necessity of such action, which can not but redound not only to their benefit, but to the steady and substantial advancement of the city.

It therefore, stands first for the people of Port Angeles and Clallam county to support to their utmost, in every possible manner, the efforts and energies of these pioneers in the material development of a thriving, modern city. Reasons for such co-operation in this enterprise are obvious and compelling; for a cursory glance at the situation reveals the fact that in the absence of activities of this nature the growth of the city will be seriously retarded.

For a time a limited amount of the seven per cent profit-participating stock will be offered for sale with the view of enlisting the interest and the active support of the community as a whole.

Suitable quarters for the transaction of the company's business will be fitted up as quickly as possible; and until that time applications for stock will be received by letter or in person.

As an evidence of their faith in the city's future, Messrs. Phillips and Tucker have already, with their families, taken up their residence in Port Angeles.

The Superior Court convenes next Wednesday in this city. There is quite an accumulation of matters to be heard, but no jury cases. The Court will be here also on Sept. 22-25.

S. J. LUTZ & CO.

Henry Lane Wilson, former American ambassador to Mexico, may not be the most learned man in the world, nor a skilled diplomat, but he is a man of opinions and he is not afraid to express them. When he was called back to confer with the president and the secretary of state regarding conditions in Mexico, he found himself at variance with the administration, but that did not make any difference,—he told what he thought. He finally tendered his resignation, which was accepted, and it developed that he tried to resign on several occasions before. Probably the administration will make no move until after the election in September, and possibly Mexico may then be quieted down. In the meantime the affairs of the country will be in the hands of the British counsel.

The proposed ordinance dividing South Bend into wards for the purpose of electing councilmen is of doubtful expendiency. When councilmen are elected from wards and not by all the people they feel obligated only to their wards and it is only human that ward councilmen should log roll for their wards and that means extravagance in city affairs and often injustices to other wards. The trend of popular government is away from district representation and in favor of representatives of the whole people as witness the commission form of government so popular now in large cities where the evils of districted councilmen have been avoided by choosing commissioners at large.—South Bend Journal.

For the past four or five years the state of Wasington has been playing the part of a good natured, easy going and somewhat credulous landlord with regard to the broad acres of school granted lands within its boundaries. The result is that it is facing the problem of collecting $242,000.00 in delinquent payments and ousting undesirable tenants from lands which should be, but are not now, a source of revenue.. This $242,000.00 represents delinquent principal and interest on state land contracts and rentals on expired leases have failed to renew and are occupying and using the lands.

The fact that the inheritance tax on the estate of the late John Jacob Astor amounted to $3,400,000 reminds us that the time has actually arrived when the state feels justified in taking back for the general benefit a part of the swollen fortunes before allowing them to pass on to future generations. The inheritance and income taxes simply mean that the government, state and federal, has reached the conclusion that overgrown fortunes must be curtailed and a portion thereof again absorbed into the common wealth.—Arlington Times.

Reports from all sections of Missouri indicate a wide response to Governor Major's proclamation designating "Good Roads Days." Entire communities suspended business for the two days, while every able-bodied man and boy went to work on the highways. Governor Major himself took up the pick and shovel, and his example was followed by many other state officials and employes. It is estimated that during the two days work was performed to the value of at least $1,500,000.

The carelessness with which laws are sometimes drafted and passed by legislatures was illustrated in Wisconsin. The last legislature passed a law requiring the consent of the mother when any woman wished to be married and no mention was made of age or previous condition, so the law brings all women of the state under its pale. Recently a woman of mature age who was a grandmother desired to be married and she was compelled to get her mother's consent before the ceremony could be legally performed. All of the feeble minded are not confined in state institutions.

The poor Kansans trust in the Lord—and this summer they have experienced little difficulty in keeping their powder dry. The rub has come in keeping their whistles wet.

WILL PROSECUTE TRESPASSERS.

Land Commissioner Savidge has called the attention of the Board of State Land Commissioner to the numerous cases of trespass on state lands which are being reported to him by his state land inspectors who are engaged in collecting delinquent payments and investigating the present condition of state lands in general in the various counties. Large quantities of timber are being taken from state lands by persons logging on adjoining tracts and who carelessly or intentionally ignore the boundary lines.

It was decided that these offences had reached a stage where patience ceased to be a virtue and that in all future cases of trespass on state lands the Attorney General will be requested to prosecute in accordance with the law. The statute governing trespass provides that any person, firm or corporation cutting or removing timber from state lands or manufacturing the same into logs, bolts, shingles, lumber or other articles for domestic use or commerce shall be liable to the state of Washington in treble the value of the timber or other articles so cut or removed, to be recovered in a civil action, and shall forfeit all interest in and to the article into which said timber is manufactured.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX.

Stocks, bonds and mortgages in the state of New York are mostly exempt from taxation. The effort to tax them produced little revenue. Any tax that was levied upon them was essentially unjust. A personal-property tax levied upon a five per cent bond, for example, is tantamount to an income tax of thirty or forty per cent—a monstrous mulct, such as no country having outright income tax would dream of inflicting.

Business men's association in the city of New York, however, points out that personal property in the form of machinery and stocks of goods is still taxed. It shows that the assessed valuation of land in the city is four and a half billion dollars and of the improvements—buildings thereon—two and three-quarters billions; and both are taxed at the same rate.

Here is a plot of land worth a million dollars. It was provided by Nature and the owner never lifted a hand to give it that value. Upon it is a building costing a million dollars—a creation by the owner—a sheer addition made by him to the city's capacity for accommodating human needs. In the building are goods and machinery worth a million dollars, provided by the owner's enterprise and at his risk, producing and distributing human satisfaction.

When it comes to taxation the city treats those three items—land, building and personalty—substantially alike. The business men contend it should not, and obviously they are right.—Saturday Post.

The great Keokuk dam has been dedicated. This mighty work, completed in three years, will minister to the demands of the people of three states. With one exception, the Assouan dam in the Nile, the Keokuk dam is the largest bank-to-bank dam in the world. Its length is 4,568 feet.

Constructed of concrete, its base measures 42 feet, its top 19 feet and its heighth is 53 feet. The power house, tall as a 12-story building is 2,000 feet in length, and will cover 30 turbines, each expected to generate 10,000 horsepower. Power already is being sent to St. Louis, 137 miles away. The shipping lock, a gift of the power company to the government, is 110 feet wide and has a lift of 40 feet.

Factories of many kinds already have procured sites along the river, within a few miles of the plant, expecting to take advantage of the power opportunities.

THE "SKOOKUM" APPLE

Pacific Northwest Growers Select Appropriate Title for Eight Best Apples.

Portland, Ore.—Leading fruit shipping organizations of the Pacific Northwest made history the other day when they announced that their various communities would ship their best apples under one trade name.

Perhaps if Teddy Roosevelt was asked to give his definition of the term "Skookum," the name selected, he would say "Bully." Whether Skookum is really bully or not will be answered this season when the best apples grown in the world will be shipped under that title.

Skookum is of Chinook adaption and really means something very good. It is something better than good; it is the heighth to which the Chinook language can rise in expressing approval of quality.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Northwestern Fruit exchange, over 700 names were received in a competitive name campaign, which had for its sole object the securing of a definition of the quality of Pacific Northwest apples.

Names came from all portions of the country; in fact, there was scarcely a slice of the civilized world that did not contribute some name which the contributors believed would give the best possible definition of what Northwestern apples taste like.

Skookum: there was nothing else submitted that would come within a mile of so tersely expressing the quality of the world's best apples, was adopted by acclamation. Organizations of two states—Oregon and Washington—have already signified their intention of using the name. The product of the most famous apple growing centers of the world will this year be marketed under the inter-community name. The Rogue River Fruit & Produce association, the Hood River Fruit Growers' exchange, the Mosier Fruit Groweres' association, Cashmere Fruit Growers' union, Yakima Fruit Growers' exchange, and the Peshastin Fruit Growers' association are included in the first real attempt ever made to advertise the apple by a trade name.

More than 150 varieties of apples are grown and marketed by Pacific Northwest growers, but under the inter-community scheme of advertising, only eight varieties have been selected. These are considered the best varieties grown in the world and by the world's best growing centers. Not only will certain varieties be selected, but they will be marketed only by districts that produce them in a Skookum way.

Seasons for eating apples have been officially named by those organizations. The apple that is best to eat in October and November would probably taste like a pumpkin in the spring months or an apple best for winter consumption would likely prove very unsatisfactory eating if consumed during the late summer or early fall months.

The varieties selected and the proper time for eating them have been officially named by Oregon-Washington apple growers as follows:

October and November — Jonathan; brilliant red; a splendid sort. juicy, rich and vinous.

October, November and December Grimes; golden yellow; an old time favorite; tender and spicy, with delightful aroma.

November, December and January —Spitzenburg; bright red, the aristocrat of apples; crisp, juicy, deliciously rich and fragrant.

November, December and January —Delicious; dark red; the latest favorite; sweet, mildly touched with acid; fine and melting.

December, January and February —Stayman; rich red, an improved Winesap; very tender with rich subtance.

January, February and March—Rome Beauty; red striped; the champion baker; sprightly and pleasant.

February, March and April—Yellow Newton; greenish yellow; the best late apple; fine flesh with refreshing high flavor.

February, March and April—Winesap; intensely rich red; very inviting.

112 IN THE SHADE.

Mrs. L. A. Jones, writing from Alva, Oklahoma, where she is visiting with her son and family, says that she intends to return to Orting to live. She says "112 in the shade and no rain for a month. Nothing green left here, unless it is some people. All kinds of crops are dead."

Instead of running for president in Mexico one would think that Gen. Diaz would run from it.

You must admit that it was some summer while it lasted.

BETTER THAN EVER

Olympic Peninsula Fair Promises to Be Exceptionally Good This Year.

The secretary of the Olympic Peninsula Fair reports that everything is now ready for the opening day on September 10th next.

Stockmen generally are showing great interest this year and a large display of pure bred and graded stock is promised. From all sections of the Olympic Peninsula, word is coming in of fruit, vegetables, fancy work, culinary stores, educational and art exhibits, and there is every reason to believe that the two large exhibit buildings at the fair grounds will be taxed to capacity to take care of them.

The horse races this year have been limited to horses owned in Jefferson, Clallam, Island and San Juan counties, and a large string of horses is already quartered at the race track.

The Sports Committee have arranged for a base ball game to be pulled off each day of the fair.

An automobile road race from Sequim to Port Townsend, with prizes of $25.00 for first and $15.00 for [illegible] has been arranged.

A "Better Babies" contest has been inaugurated with Bronze Medals for the highest scoring baby under two years of age, from incorporated cities of 5,000 inhabitants and under, and also for the highest scoring baby from the rural districts.

Lectures will be given daily, with practical demonstrations, on scientific poultry killing, picking and dressing, also on caponizing, by Ralph B. Randall, of Seattle, specialist, while T. Dwight Whitman, of Tacoma, will lecture on bee keeping.

Amusements for young and old will be provided by a first class carnival company.

Arrangements have been made with the Inland Navigation Company, whereby exhibits, exclusive of livestock will be carried to the fair and returned free of charge, while livestock attending the fair will be returned free of charge. A round trip fare has been arranged, good on all the company's steamers, of $1, redeemable until the 15th of September.

All enquiries will be promptly acknowledged and answered by Mr. Arch. C. Tweedie, secretary, Port Townsend, Wash.

SHOULD SET THEIR OWN STYLE.

That American women of culture and refinement are distressed with the prevailing styles of feminine apparel goes without saying. Their protests are frequent but seemingly without avail, although many modest gentlewomen have gone without new garments rather than accept such as have been offered in the past few months.

It is claimed that the styles today are set by the underworld of Paris, and we can readily believe it.

The Federation of Women's Clubs in Minnesota have voiced these thousands of protests in a very practical and effective manner by writing to every manufacturer and publisher of dress patterns, appealing for a modification of the present styles and to give them something that modest, refined women may feel comfortable while wearing.

It has been suggested that if women will unite and stand firm in refusing to accept these objectionable styles, they will not only make the manufacturer of them unprofitable, but, at the same time, achieve a victory for good taste and morals.

A LADIES' LUNCHROOM

Mrs. Anna B. Smith and Mrs. Mae Brockhouse will open a first class lunchroom and cafeteria in the building formerly owned by Mrs. Amelia Goldwater on Front street. They will have an opening next Saturday, September 6th, when they will be ready for business. A comfortable ladies rest room will be one of the attractions and ladies from the country as well as town are invited to make this room their headquarters when out shopping. Tea and light refreshments served at any time. A specialty will be made of hot chicken tamales, raviola, fried chicken and oyster loaf. Courteous treatment and prompt service guaranteed.

The address given by Mrs. John Trumbull, of Seattle, in the Congregational church last Friday afternoon was well attended and very much enjoyed. Her talk was full of interesting facts regarding the work accomplished by club women along the lines of civic, moral and educational reform. She also explained many of the laws passed by the last legislature, which had their origin either in the Women's Legislative Committee or in one of the various women's clubs of the state. Social service, she said, was the dominant factor now in all women's clubs. After the lecture the officers of the Women's Auxiliary gave a benefit tea for the library in the library room, which was also well attended. The room presented a particularly home-like appearance, with house plants and flowers in profusion and little tea tables daintily spread. About nine dollars was taken in from the tea and it is hoped this sum will be doubled at the next one, for there certainly is no worthier object than the building up of a good public library.

prairie. The roads were bad and the hills so many that the rate of progress was slow. At one place a freighter with a grievance against autos attempted to hold the road against our machine until a detachment of the passengers "persuaded" him to turn out by giving him a demonstration of an old-time hold-up. Several times it was necesary to get out and help the car over bad places in the road. However, a large force of men is now working on this road and in a few months it should be in excellent condition.

Oil Indications Good.

Forks is a beautiful natural prairie of about 1,800 acres, with prosperous looking farms and many modern conveniences. Near the south end of the prairie an oil well is being sunk by the Washington Oil Company, and at a present depth of about 1,000 feet, the indications seem to be favorable. Dispatches since our return state that they have struck a strong flow of natural gas.

Thursday morning the party separated, the Port Orchard contingent spending the next few days around Sappho and Beaver Lake and returning home early the following week. The remainder of the party left unnecessary luggage atForks and shouldering their packs started on the long hike. Thursday the first lap of the journey was made to the Bogachiel river. One of the remarkable features of the journey was the crossing of this river on a swinging bridge which was 105 yards long between the trees which supported it on either end and was suspended at t height of about sixty feet above the water. Friday was spent at Bogachiel and a large number of speckled beauties were secured. Saturday morning we crossed to the Hoh rvier and stopped at Pins for lunch. Here a heavy rain storm caused a halt for the afternoon.

Operations at Hoh Head.

Sunday morning the last stage was made, nine miles to the mouth of the river and after securing lunch at Fletchers all went to the beach and clambered over rocks and along the sounding surf for about three miles north of the mouth of the Hoh, where the Jefferson Oil Company are preparing to sink a well about a quarter of a mile from the shore.

Machinery and lumber have been landed on the beach from a scow brought up from Moclips and a derrick is now being erected. Near this point is one of the most pronounced oil seepages in this section. A hole some twenty feet deep has been blasted and dug, where a few years ago oil was found floating in a bear wallow and now a bottle can easily be filled with oil which tests 66 per cent pure, skimmed from the surface of the water in the hole. Another seepage near the Hoh is reported to run about two quarts of thick oil per hour.

At the oil well camp we found a United States geologist, Chas. T. Lupton, who was making an investigation of the oil fields of this section. After learning our plans he accepted an invitation to join our party for the trip up the Hoh, and over the divide into the Solduc basin.

Girls Thrive in Forest.

Monday morning we started on the return from the ocean and that night stopped at a hunter's cabin about eighteen miles up the river. The following day we arrived at Spruce, the farthest settlement on the Hoh. The dinner we obtained, prepared by two "backwoods" girls, born and raised there, but who can cook read Latin, speak foreign languages, and have a knowledge of woodcraft which excels that of many old hunters, was one which will long linger in our memories. In fact the appetites of the entire party had by this time assumed abnormal and gigantic proportions.

John Huelsdonk, pioneer hunter and trapper, lives here and is the postmaster and principal patron of his office. Likewise his daughters, four in number, comprise the school in that district. A high school course is maintained and the teacher is paid $80 per month. The girls are receiving good educations and enjoy the open life. Many stories are locally told of their prowess in the woods and on the trails, and it is narrated that becoming homesick after two days of the A. Y. P. E. on their first visit to Seattle, they walked from Clallam to their home, a distance of sixty miles, in a night and a day, only stopping at Forks for breakfast.

About a half mile down the river from Hueldonk's house is the hole known as "The Devil's Mushpot." It is a sink hole about fifty feet in diameter, filled with milky water thru which gas is continually escaping in large bubbles, giving the whole surface of the "pot" the appearance of boiling, hence the name. With a primitive gas tank improvised of a coal oil can with the side cut out, we collected sufficient gas to make a jet which burned with a brilliant flame to a height of nearly two feet for several minutes. Mr. Lupton secured a photo of the flame and also samples of the gas and water for his report.

Thursday we started up the Hoh over the new forest rangers' trail which is being built this summer That day we made twenty-two miles, the trail being fairly good, and in the evening arrived at the trail camp where the ranger, Charley Anderson, made us welcome and the cook administered to our physical needs, even to the extent of letting us sleep in the cook tent, where a festive kangaroo rat amused himself by jumping from head to head of the four sleeping beauties stretched out on one bed.

Over the Divide.

Early the next morning we shouldered our packs and started over the divide. For four hours we toiled up the mountain side where the trail had been built less than half way to the summit. In about two miles of distance we made 4,400 feet of elevation, reaching a height of about 5,600 above sea level at the top of the divide. Here we were above timber line, where we could walk among myriads of fresh spring flowers, just peeping out from among the snowbanks, and look out upon the grand and inspiring panorama of Mount Olympus and the Olympic range spread out before us. Only about four miles away we could look down on the vast blue expanse of the Hoh glacier of Mt. Olympus and with our glasses see the deep fissures and crevasses with which its surface is broken. About us on every side, gigantic rock-ribbed peaks thrust their jagged spires into the cerulean dome, and down their rugged slopes in shimmering lines leaped silvery waterfalls. It was the most majestic mountain scene that we had ever seen, and there are few places in the world where it can be equaled for grandeur.

Lunch was eaten amid the flowers along the edge of a snowbank where we could drink from an icy fountain of Nature's manufacture. So beautiful was the scene that it was with reluctance we turned our steps downward into the Solduc basin and took the trail that was to lead us to the hot springs. Starting from the summit, we descended past the tiny lake made by melting snow where the Sol duc takes its beginning in a slender rill which dashes down the basin to be joined by other snow fed streams until it forms a rushing torrent which foams down the valley thru a rocky gorge with raging rapids and pellucid pools, tumbling in roaring cataracts, unobstructed by work of man until about twelve miles below it plunges under the bridge in front of the hotel.

Early the next morning we boarded the outbound autos for Lake Crescent, having said farewell to our good friend and comrade, Mr. Lupton, who remained to examine some oil indications near the springs before going down the Solduc.

Clallam's Good Roads.

For fifteen miles we sped along over an auto road as smooth, almost, as a boulevard. This road was built at a cost of more than $100,000 by Mr. Earles, proprietor of the springs. At Lake Crescent we transfered to a tiny steamer which traverses the twelve mile length of this deep blue gem of the mountains. Another ride by auto 22 miles, over an excellent road, brought us to Port Angeles, where the best looking members of our party removed their hirsute decorations.

After dinner, K. O. Erickson took us out to inspect the new million dollar mill which Michael Earles is erecting along the bay near the city, and which when completed will have a capacity of 400,000 feet daily and employ about six hundred men. It will probably be the finest mill in the state, if not in the country, and is one of the factors which has caused the recent boom in that city.

Leaving at 3 p. m. on the Sol Duc we reached Seattle about 9:30 and caught the late boat for Bremerton. Taken as a whole the trip was one of the most enjoyable the writer has ever made, combining as it did the pleasures of the sea, forest and the mountains. A close acquaintance was also gained of a section of our state which is destined at no distant day to be of large importance. To anyone wishing an interesting outing we can recommend that they follow along our trail.

Passenger—Why are we so late?

Guard—Well, sir, the train in front was behind, and this train wes behind before besides.

Jimmie—Pop, one o' the fellers says I look like you.

Pop—And what did you say?

Jimmie—Gee, I couldn't say nothin'; he's a lot bigger'n me.

APPLES A GOOD TONIC.

Do you know just what you are eating when you are eating an apple? You are eating malic acid, the property that makes buttermilk so healthful, and gallic acid. Sugar in a very assimilable form, consisting of carbon hydrogen, and oxygen, caught and improsoned from sunshine, is present in considerable amounts. And phosphorus is present in the only form in which it is available as a tissue-building material.

The acids of the apple dimish the acidity of the stomach. Apples are nature's best complexion makers. And the water in the apple is in its purest form—much purer than any drinking water.

The ancients assigned the apple as the food for the gods, and believed that its juices furnish the nectar with which the gods used to restore their youth.

Men are the gods of today and the apple is their royal food. Eat apples and you will put the doctor's trust out of business.

A mother had come upon her eight-year-old son enjoying a feast whereof the components were jam, butter and bread.

Mother—Son, don't you think it a bit extragagant to eat butter with that fine jam?

Son—No ma'am, was the response. it's economical; the same piece of bread does for both.

With pigs worth from $9.50 to $10 a hundred on the hoof, the meat comes very nearly to being in the precious metal class in value.

HERBINE

Is a Powerful Chill Tonic and Liver Regulator.

It puts the liver in healthy, vigorous condition and cures the chills by destroying the disease germs which infest the system. Herbine is a fine anti-periodic medicine, more effective than the syrupy mixtures that sicken the stomach; because it not only kills the disease germs, but acts effectively in the liver, stomach and bowels, thus putting the system in condition to successfully resist the usual third or seventh day return of the chill. Herbine is a cleansing and invigorating medicine for the whole body.

The Scrap Book

Turned the Joke.

They were holding the annual charity bazaar in an English town, and the rich merchant of the place, followed by his pompous footman in smart livery, was going from stall to stall, spending his money freely.

THE OLD LADY DREW NEAR.

"Ah, Mr. Fitzbrendon," said a really sweet and charming lady at one of the stalls, "and what are you going to buy? Dear old auntie and I are running this table, and we have homemade cakes, aprons, penwipers and"—

"Yes," said F., "and I'll buy just one of each. But do you sell kisses at your stall?"

"Oh, certainly!" came the ready reply. "One guinea each!"

"Right!" replied the autocrat. "Then I'll take a couple—and good measure, please!"

"Aunt," remarked the fair and dainty damsel, "forward, please! Two kisses for this gentleman!"

The old lady drew near, and for a moment the man of means was nonplused, but only for a moment. Then he turned to his servitor:

"James," he said coolly, "just take this purchase, please!"

The Past.

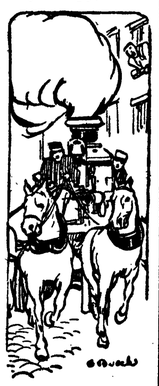
Still shall the soul around it call
The shadows which it gathered here,
And, painted on the eternal wall,
The past shall reappear.

Think ye the notes of holy song
On Milton's tuneful ear have died?
Think ye that Raphael's angel throng
Has vanished from his side?

Oh, no! We live our life again,
Or, warmly touched or coldly dim,
The pictures of the past remain.
Man's work shall follow him.
—Whittier.

A Startling Event.

Two Irishmen fresh from Ireland had just landed in New York and engaged a room in the top story of a hotel. Mike, being very sleepy, threw himself on the bed and was soon fast asleep. The sights were so new and strange to Pat that he sat at the window looking out. Soon an alarm of fire was rung in, and a fire engine rushed by throwing up sparks of fire and clouds of smoke. This greatly excited Pat, who called to his comrade to get up and come to the window, but Mike was fast asleep. Another engine soon followed the first, spouting smoke and fire like the former. This was too much for Pat, who rushed excitedly to the bedside and, shaking his friend, called loudly:



"COME QUICK AND LOOK!"

"Mike! Mike! Wake up! Come quick and look! They are moving hell, and two loads have gone by already!"
—Philadelphia Ledger.

No Wonder It Was Cold.

The absentmindedness of the true scholar is well illustrated by this story:

"My dear," said the professor on entering the dining room one cold day last winter, "don't alarm yourself, but a slight palsy has manifested itself in my left foot. In spite of the fact that the glass is 22 degrees above zero my right foot feels more than normally warm, whereas the left is quite rigid and stiff and cold as ice."

Upon the directions of the family physician, who was summoned without delay, the professor was put to bed, when it was discovered that he had two socks on his right foot and none on his left foot!

Thought He Was a Butter Expert.

At a party the hostess said to a guest: "I want you to entertain Mr. Blank a little. He looks bored to death. I will introduce him, and you must try to amuse him. You know his strong point is butter, on which he has written a book."

The lady guest graciously undertook the task of entertaining the man, inwardly wondering that he should be so interested in butter—of which she knew very little—when his face indicated a mind given to much profound thinking.

However, with butter in view, she began on the weather, gradually got to the country, then on to a farm, from that to cows and at last to butter. The man looked more bored than ever, the magic word butter producing not the slightest effect, and he left her somewhat abruptly and soon withdrew from the house.

"I did my best," she explained to the hostess. "I went through agonies to prove that I was deeply interested in butter, but it was all in vain."

"Butter!" exclaimed the hostess. "What possessed you to talk to that man, of all men, on butter? I told you he had just written a book on Buddha, and I knew how deeply you two were interested in the same subject."

And they said in chorus, "Gracious!"
—Strand Magazine.

BORE HIS HONORS MEEKLY.

Likewise the Substantial Trimmings That Went With Them.

While he was attache of the British embassy in Washington the late Henry Labouchere, when a young man, turned up in New York one day hungry and penniless.

At noon, with his usual reckless daring, he entered a Broadway chophouse—one Muldoon's—and ordered a modest meal. But he had no idea how he would pay for this meal. Perhaps he would leave his hat or boots in pledge for it. As he pondered the matter he noticed that the waiters, who were staring at him oddly, were all Irishmen. Were the waiters aware of his lack of funds? His luncheon seemed strangely long in coming. But just then a waiter bent over him and whispered

"I beg pardon, sir, but are you the patriot Meagher?"

Now, Meagher, Labouchere knew, had aided Smith O'Brien in his Irish rising, had been deported to Australia and had escaped thence to New York. The ready young man, in answer to the waiter's question, put his forefinger upon his lip. "Hush," he murmured. And he looked around the room cautiously.

It was at once felt that Labouchere was the patriot Meagher. And so the choicest wines were set before him, and, in place of the modest chop he had ordered, a luncheon of nine or ten elaborate courses was brought on.

At the end, lighting one of the establishment's finest cigars, Labouchere demanded his bill. His waiter smiled, retired and soon came back with a big, handsome man—the proprietor himself. The proprietor, bending over the youth, said earnestly

"From one like you, a sufferer in the good cause, I can take no money. It has been a privilege to serve you, sir. Permit a brother patriot to shake you by the hand."

And Labouchere shook hands with the proprietor and with the dozen waiters and stalked forth into the cold world with the stern, sad, but indomitable look which it seemed to him that an exiled patriot should wear.

Aspiration.

Did you ever hear of a man who had striven all his life faithfully and singly toward an object and in no measure obtained it? If a man constantly aspires is he not elevated?—Thoreau.

Willis Is Barking.

Edward Bulwer Lytton Dickens, the youngest son of the novelist, emigrated to Australia and died in Sydney at the age of fifty-one. He represented a constituency in the parliament of New South Wales for six years. Once when he was addressing the house in Sydney he was again and again snappishly interrupted by a member named Willis. At last Mr. Dickens stopped to remark: "Mr. Speaker, my father coined a famous phrase, 'Barkis is willin'.' Under present circumstances I am strongly tempted to reverse it and say, 'Willis is barking.'" The house laughed, and the interruptions ceased.

Disfigurement Explained.

One day an El Dorado man met up with a citizen who evidently had had trouble. His lip was split open, and two of his front teeth were missing. His left eye was entirely closed, and his right orb of vision was surrounded by a deep border of blue black color.

"Been fooling around a mule?" cheerfully asked the El Dorado man.

"Nope," gloomily replied the man with the split lip. "I saw a man yesterday, and we got to talkin' about

"THAT'S WHAT I TOLD HIM."

Kansas and other states. He said to me that Kansas is no good; that any man is a fool who will live in this state."

The El Dorado man flared up at once. "The man is a liar."

"Yes," said the disfigured man sadly; "that's what I told him."—Kansas City Star.

Andre de Fouquieres, the cotillion leader of Paris, is, like most cotillion leaders, very gentle and mild of manner.

During M. de Fouquieres' visit to New York a well known matron, after talking to him for some ten or fifteen minutes at a dance, said:

"Now, trot along, M. de Fouquieres. You're altogether too ladylike for me."

The young Frenchman, rising, answered:

"I'm sorry I can't say the same for you, madam."—Exchange.

CASH DIVIDENDS ON GOODS YOU BUY

By HOLLAND.

SOUNDS good, doesn't it? And the best of it is it is true. These cash dividends are paid on every dollar you spend, provided you spend wisely and buy goods that the maker believes in so strongly that he advertises them.

Advertised goods are not always the cheapest so far as the amount asked for them is concerned. But they are INVARIABLY THE BEST. And this makes them cheapest when all things are considered.

When you buy for the same money a better article than you have been buying you get a cash dividend on your purchase. When you pay less for an article of the same quality you get a cash dividend.

THESE DIVIDENDS ARE PAID TO THE READERS OF ADVERTISEMENTS IN THIS PAPER.

LIVE WITH A PURPOSE.

Seize then the minutes as they pass. The woof of life is thought. Warm up the colors; let them glow by fire or fancy fraught. Live to some purpose; make thy life a gift of use to thee—a joy, a good, a golden hope, a heavenly argosy.—Coleridge.

The Eye Like a Camera

The eye is constructed so wonderfully and ingeniously that the handicraft of man has not as yet been able to construct as delicate an instrument It is like a camera—the lens to focus, the lid as a shutter, the iris or color as the diaphram, the thick coatings of the eyeball as the darkroom, the nerve as the sensitive plate, and, strange as it may seem, the images are bottom side up, exactly as the image in the camera. Now so delicate and sensitive an instrument as the eye should have good care. Let us explain more fully to you how to care for the eyes.

PASTOR ON HEIGHTS.

Rev. Frank E. Mason, presbyterian, recently from New Jersey, has been engaged as pastor of the Lincoln Heights church and the first services will be held this week Sunday. Preaching at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., and Sunday school at 10 a. m. The good people of the Heights are anxious to have a large congregation Sunday to greet Mr. Mason and give him a favorable impression of Port Angeles and its people.

SPECIAL

A sacrifice—27½ acres in the rich Elwha valley, only miles from Angeles; fine roads; splendid water. Where you can raise wheat, also 90 to 120 bushels of oats to the acre, or 800 to 100 bushels of the finest potatoes in the world. An exchange for city property might be considered with some cash. Call at the Port Angeles Realty & Rental office in the Olympic Leader building, near Front street, Port Angeles.

The children all went trooping merrily to school Tuesday morning to resume their lessons once more. By the large increase in the enrollment of pupils, one is able to judge something of the increase in the city's population.

THE NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept 2.—The establishment of a parole department at the reformatory at Monroe and at the penitentiary at Walla Walla, separate and distinct from any other department, is under consideration by the board of control.

Members of the board thus expect to relieve the superintendents of the two institutions of much of their responsibility and permit them to devote more time to the business management, also permitting the parole officers to come into closer touch with the inmates. Up to the present the parole officer has taken charge of the inmates when they were paroled from the institution by either the prison board or the board of managers, upon recommendation by the superintendents.

The boys leaving the reformatory thus do not feel that sense of relationship and responsibility to the parole officer, which is necessary for him to have to guide and aid them in their fight to recover their lost standing in the community.

The parole officer should come into close contact and touch with the inmates while they are confined, study their weaknesses and know how they can best be handled, is the opinion of the new board.

With the great responsibility resting upon the shoulders of the superintendents the board of control has come to the conclusion that they cannot be expected to obtain a close personal knowledge of from 500 to 1,000 inmates. The head of a parole department, however, by constant association with the inmates can easily win their confidence.

The change has not been determined upon definitely, but it being given serious consideration.

The department of agriculture brought at North Yakima last week a test prosecution upder the horticultural inspection law, which for the past year has been considered faulty in that the word "fruit" is used in one place where "fruit tree" quite clearly is intended. The law makes it a misdemeanor for an orchardist to fail to clean his "fruit" instead of "fruit trees," upon demand.

However the case which the horticultural inspector lost a year ago, when attempting to proceed under this law, presented another angle. The law requires that a disease or pest of the kind must be designated by the inspection department as menace to the industry. To conform with the law in this respect, T. O. Morrison, head of the horticulture bureau of the department of agriculture, has issued a 1,000-word bulletin, formally declaring the fire blight, or pear blight, as a dangerous disease of apple, pear and other fruit trees. Armed with this the department may make new test of the law. A Yakima Valley man, who has declined to clean out his orchard as instructed by the department, probably will be the first victim. The department has obtained nearly a roomful of evidence in the shape of clippings from infected trees and can summon a large array of witnesses who have been taken to the orchard in question.

The state board of tax commissioners, which under previous administrations kept a man in the field dunning saloon men and others who failed to pay their state liquor licenses, is adopting new and heroic measures this year. In all the principal cities warrants have been sworn out for the arrest of the delinquent liquor dealers and fines will be assessed against each one convicted, in addition to the amount of the annual license, $25. The first batch of warrants was issued in Seattle last Saturday and similar prosecutions followed immediately in Tacoma, Everett and Spokane. The first arrests resulted in a flood of payments being made to the state treasurer by dealers who wish to escape the penalty. The dealers had been warned several times through newspapers, by the commission, besides the serving of a demand by mail on each one. All liquor licenses expired June 30, so each dealer had 62 days of grace in the two months of July and August.

E. W. Ferris, state forester and fire warden, is taking his duties as a member of the state board of land commissioners seriously, having instructed his deputies in the various counties in the state to report to him in regard to the value of timber which was offered for sale by the state Tuesday of this week. The reports of the county wardens in numerous instances are that the land has been appraised too low by the cruisers of the land office. When reports of the sales come in from the different counties, and the land board meets to confirm the sales, Ferris threatens to object to confirmation in numerous instances unless the timber or land in question has been run up, at auction, to considerably more than the value fixed upon it by the appraisers.

Governor Ernest Lister returned to the state this week, after an absence of 15 days, spent principally at Eureka, attending a good roods conference, at San Francisco, making plans for Washington's building at the Panama exposition, and at Colorado Springs, attending the annual conference of governors.

Durig his absence Lieutenant Governor Louis F. Hart remained at the capitol. During his brief administration, acting Governor Hart commuted to life imprisonment the sentence of death imposed upon Charles F. Newcomb of Tacoma, before the anti hanging law was passed by the last legislature.

The building inspector of the city of Spokane cannot compel the state to remodel the Spokane armory in conformity with the city building ordinance, the attorney general ruled in an opinion rendered the adjutant general last week, holding the sovereign power of the state to be above mere local laws.

BUILDING COMPANY ELECTS OFFICERS

A. I. Filion Chosen President and Prominent Local Men Selected As Assistants.

Mr. A. I. Filion, prominent lumber man of this city, was elected president of the Port Angeles Mortgage & Building Company, at a meeting of this company held last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Thos. T. Haggith, assistant secretary; Mr. Fred Phillips, general manager.

"There is nothing that succeeds like success." So if one takes the personnel of the officers of this comcern as a criterion, this company should and will be a great success and an immense benefit to the coming prosperous city of Port Angeles. By persistent and well directed effort one can build a mountain from a mole hill, and this the officers of this new company have done in their different lines of business. Together, working as a unit, they will be able to make the Port Angeles Mortgage & Building Co. one of the most successful of its kind anywhere on the Pacific Coast.

THE CITY COUNCIL

his position. The council spoke of assisting whenever possible, but having little money. Meyers and Swanson thought the city could ill afford the amount and a motion by Myers to postpone indefinitely prevailed. Later the mayor and clerk were authorized to give Dr. Lewis a letter to the effect that he is authorized to act for the city in the securing of the city hall site for the city.

The placing of new sidewalks on Peabody street against the orders of council brought out considerable argument. The council ordered walks renewed under certain specifications, namely five feet in width and three stringers, certain of the walks were put down four feet and two stringers. Elliott wanted them rebuilt according to directions, but his motion to that effect failed. The rest of the walks, however, were ordered put in by the street superintendent as per specification, cost to be charged to abutting property, so there will be two widths of walks. The street superintendent was also directed to renew walks on Georgiana and Albert streets, the property owners failing to comply with council orders.

Sidewalk at southwest corner of Front and Vine streets was ordered renewed.

Upon motion of Swanson, street superintendent was directed to spend $50 in repairs to cemetery.

Myers asked that he be relieved from light committee as he would be unable to attend to the duties for next two months. Left to mayor.

Elliott called attention of council to the fact that the Pacific Service Commission will be here September 26 to inquire into wharfage rates and asked that a committee be named from the council to take up with the gentlemen the water rates of the city. He deemed it an outrage that the city should be paying the water company for hydrants after giving a franchise for a gravity system. Seconded by Fisher and carried. Committee was not named.

The Angeles Brewing Co. asked and was granted the privilege of bridging Tumwater creek at Third street to connect with the new extension. Same to be constructed in a substantial manner under direction of the city engineer and to be open to public use.

Clerk called attention to the action against the mayor and clerk to compel them to issue warants for old First street grade assessments. It was explained that it was a friendly action to have the matter cleared up. While it is contended that the whole matter is and should be cleared up one way or another, the city attorney was directed to defend.

CANNON, OR BUNGALOWS.

The story that the government has been getting a list of owners of property on Lincoln Heights with a view to purchasing a large tract for fortification, has been variously received. There are many who believe a good-sized artillery post would be of decided advantage, not only by reason of the expenditure of large sums of money by the government in the building and operation, but also in the reduction of the number of lots now on the market. Others say it would practically ruin, so far as townsite purposes are concerned, all the property between G street and Dry Creek, and that that section is destined to be the best improved residence section of the city. Doubtless it all depends upon where one's interests lie.

However, there is very little likelihood of the government fortifying Lincoln Heights. A number of years ago, when the war department, on the recommendation of Capt. Bradley, proposed to include Tumwater Hill in the general scheme of fortifications, it was only necessary to demonstrate the superior advantages of the high hill at Port Crescent, where the strait narrows, to have the reserve eliminated. If the straits are to be fortified, the work will undoubtedly be done at that point, which is really the Gibralter of the Sound country.
