PORT ANGELES OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 29 NO. 37. PORT ANGELES, CLALLAM COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1913. 5c THE COPY.

ASSESSMENT DISTRICT ENLARGED

Blocks in Business Portion of City Included in Third Street North Improvement District.

All members, except Myers, were present Tuesday night at the council meeting. The vacancy left five members.

A communication was read from F. P. Fisher, deputy collector of customs, to the effect that unless the city make formal application for a lease of the site upon which now stands the city hall and jail before September 22, the government will take steps to compel the vacation of government property. Upon motion of Fisher the clerk was directed, in behalf of the city, to make formal application, thereby relinquishing any squatters right the city may have in the premises. The motion carried.

Clerk Shields reported that as the mayor had not signed the ordinance for the improvement of Third street north, same had not been published. Fisher explained that the ordinance or resolution should be amended and moved to reconsider its passage. After a short recess a motion by Fisher was adopted amending the ordinance to include in the proposed enlarged assessment district for the improvement of the new street, all that portion of Railroad avenue recently vacated by the city and blocks 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16, tidelands west of Laurel street. Mr. Elliott protested that he would like to sail the ships now afloat before any new work was taken up, and that there was no money for either. The resolution got the necessary four votes, Elliott voting no, one absent and one vacancy.

A resolution was presented by Mr. Elliott which the city attorney asked be simply read for information. This was done. The resolution covers minutely the objections of the settlers on the reserved lots on First and Second streets and provides that Dr. F. S. Lewis is hereby authorized to represent the city of Port Angeles before the United States government and protest against the unjust discrimination and hardships imposed upon settlers who have equal rights but were not permitted to secure title with other claimants. Mr. Elliott moved that the resolution be referred to the city attorney for redraft and report to council at next meeting, but failed to get a second, council seemingly taking the position that it would be done without a motion.

Fisher called up the matter of providing connection sidewalks on 8th street west of the Valley street bridge, same promising to be impassible for pedestrians and particularly school children the coming wet weather. Referred to street superintendent and engineer.

The city attorney called attention to condemnation proceedings which would be necessary to cross the Sampson Donation Claim in the extension of Third street, and recommended that a committee be named to take up the matter with owners. The railroad secured a right-of-way without condemnation and the owners would undoubtedly be reasonable if rightly approached. Recommendation adopted, appointment of committee later.

Mr. Deming, of the Fort Wayne Electric Co., appeared before council and asked if the city was willing to continue to pay $10 for meters when as good or better meters can be had for $6.95. Dustman thought if these meters were good enough for Seattle they were good enough for Angood enoogh for the city of Seattle they were good enough for Port Angeles and the matter went to the light committee for investigation and report.

Application of Peninsula Construction Co., for permit to repair building at southeast corner of Front and Lincoln streets was granted. Application of J. M. Bell for permit to construct a woodshed in rear of Nailor Drug Store was first denied and later referred to committee.

Councilman Fisher was put on the light committee; vice Myers resigned.

Council then adjourned.

A delegation from the Transportation Bureau of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, will reach Port Angeles by automobile this evening at 6:30. There are ten in the party, and they will be entertained at the Commercial Club at 8 o'clock.

Inasmuch as these gentlemen are jobbers and manufacturers and are seeking to establish closer trade relations with the Olympic Peninsula, it is important that the representative business men and all citizens of Port Angeles who are interested in the growth of the city should attend the meeting.

Speeches will be delivered by members of the Commercial Club and by the visitors.

Let everybody turn out and give them a rousing welcome..

W.O.W. OPEN MEETING

Deputy Head Consul J. D. Beakey, of the Woodmen of the World, will speak in open meeting at Oddfellows hall, Saturday evening, September 20, at 8 o'clock. Everybody is invited to come out and learn something of the Giant of the West, the fraternal order that paid out $19,000,000 in 28 years and is today the strongest ever. District Manager D. W. Winn, of Seattle, will also be present.

FAIR A SUCCESSFUL PERFORMANCE

Musical Comedy, Children's Choruses, and Songs and Dances Pleased Large Audience.

The Clallam County Fair given last night at the Opera House was by far the most successful performance ever witnessed in the city. It was given under the direction of Miss Bock by one hundred local people and was a musical comedy—lively and interesting from start to finish, with many artistic catchy songs and dances.

Boss Jones (Judge Lanthorn) boss of the fair grounds and Prof. Sporetti (Mr. Gould) owner of the big side show, were an immense success, with their clever acting. Mr. Day and Mrs. Troy, with their prize pumpkins, were the envy of all the county fair folk. Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Meade, the Bostonian ladies, filled the very atmosphere with dignity, while Mrs. Stovel, the veritable Mrs. Henpeck, carried her point well in forcing the poor parson (Mr. Stewart) to carry her baby and Mr. Kolligs to buy lemonade for the children. Mrs. Smith, the deaf woman, and Mrs. Butler, the lunch counter woman, did their parts most creditably. The bride and groom, Mr. Ferris and Miss Weeks, drank lemonade and ate peanuts in a manner that convulsed the audience and as for Mr. Johnson; the lame widower, his proposal was a splendid climax. Possibly the biggest hits of the evening were the three children's choruses, while the old time square dance with the old time fiddler, won a storm of applause. Fluffy Ruffles, College Chorus, Glow Worm and Yama Yama were lively and full of spirit. The Sea-saw chorus, with the electrical effect, arranged by Mr. Roy Hall, was most beautiful. The performance will pe repeated tonight and a crowded house should greet them.

WILL BUILD SHINGLE MILL.

L. H. Wilcox of San Jose, Calif., is at the New Washington, while looking after business interests in Seattle. With former Governor Henry McBride he owns a shingle mill in Snohomish county. The company plans to erect another mill at Port Angeles soon.—Times.

Federal Judge Jeremiah Neterer on Wednesday rendered a judgment in favor of the United States against the Sol Duc Hot Springs Company in the sum of $1,551.74 and costs for cutting government timber in the Olympic Forest Reserve in the vicinity of the Sol Duc Hot Springs some years ago.

POWERS OF THE COMMISSION

Salient Features of Logged-off Land Act Now Up for Consideration by Voters.

(By W. S. PEARCE.)

In view of the fact that a special election has been ordered for October 15th, whereat the people of Clallam county will determine whether or not they are in favor of the adoption of the provisions of the logged-off land act passed by the last legislature, it will not be inappropriate to enlighten the voters as to the salient features of said act.

The whole or any part of a county may, under the law, form an agricultural improvement district for the purpose of bringing into productive use its logged-off, cut-over or arid lands.

The improvement district is a distinct entity invested with all the powers and privileges of a municipality, and is not dependent upon or related to any of the various other departments of government.

Three commissioners are nominated at the time the vote is taken upon the adoption or rejection of the measure for one, two and three years, respectively, one commissioner being elected from each county commissioner district, when the improvement district is co-extensive with the limits of the county; said commissioners to serve without pay, save ahtual expenses when traveling or devoting their time to the affairs of the district.

Members of the commission are forbidden to become interested directly or indirectly, in any purchaser, rontract or work under the act.

The law limits the amount to be paid for logged-off or cut-over lands to twenty dollars per acre.

Any settler, being a citizen of the United States, may offer not to exceed twenty acres of said land to the commission, and if the offer be accepted, then the vendor shall have a preferential right after such lands have been cleared and improved to repurchase and entry of not to exceed twenty acres of such land. It is further provided that the vendors of such lands shall be given preference when contracts are let for clearing and improving these lands.

As soon as lands acquired by purchase or otherwise are cleared and improved, the commissioners shall cause the same to be appraised and offered to settlers on twenty equal payments (or less if so requested by the settler) at not less than the cost of their acquisition and improvement plus five per cent.

The commission is authorized to exercise the right of eminent domain in the acquirement or damaging of all lands, property or property rights, etc., in carrying out the provisions for which the district shall have been created. Said commission also has the power to build, improve or repair any roads within the development district; to raise revenue by levy of an annual tax on all taxable property within such agricultural development year. Such levy shall be made and taxes collected in same manner provided by law in buying and collecting taxes in school districts of the first class.

The commission may also issue bonds and borrow money as provided by state law for municipal corporations, and general bonds of any such district may not be issued for any period to exceed twenty years.

Assignment of any claim by any purchaser will not be permitted until after thre annual payments have been made, and said purchaser must have also actually resided on the land for at least two years. The law further stipulates that three years continuous residence shall be required of any purchaser who may desire to anticipate the remaining payments and preempt the tract.

Purchasers will not be permitted to be absent from the land to exceed five continuous months in any one year.

From the foregoing facts, which are the essential features of the law, the voters may draw their conclusions and govern themselves in accordance therewith at the polls.

Remember you must register if you would vote on mayor and councilmen at the coming city primaries. The registration has been very light thus far and the probabilities are that many will lose the opportunity to vote by putting it off till too late.

MORSE HOUSE BURNED

Family Was Aroused Just in the Nick of Time.

David Morse had his home on Front street destroyed by fire Wednesday morning.

It was discovered by Mr. Morse, who was awakened shortly before five o'clock by the smell of smoke and sound of crackling. He aroused the other members of the family, and with no time to spare, for Miss Hazel and her brother Warren were almost suffocated then by smoke. The cause of the fire is supposed to have been a defective flue and the family think the fire must have been smouldering all night. Considerable time was lost in trying to arouse central to put in the fire alarm, but soon all the firemen were notified and were on the ground, lending valuable service. The kitchen and dining room with all their contents were entirely destroyed and considerable clothing was burned, but the piano and best furniture and clothing was saved.

The house was not all burned down, but is practically destroyed and we understand that Mr. Morse intends to pull it all down and erect a handsome, modern residence.

Mr. Morse's difficulty in getting in a fire alarm reminds us that a better and more satisfactory way is greatly needed in our city at present. It must surely be distracting to find your house on fire in the night and no means of putting in an alarm, except by rousing a soundly sleeping "central." We would suggest that the city fathers look into this matter.

OWL DRUG CO, READY SATURDAY

Experienced Pharmacists from Snohomish Have Purchased Nailor Drug Store.

It has been known for a number of weeks, tho not publicly announced, that the Nailor Drug Store had been sold to two young men from Snohomish.

These gentlemen, H. H. Beetle and Reginald Simmons, arrived the first of the week and have been busily engaged ever since taking stock and making many improvements in the interior of the store, which is to be known in the future as the Owl Drug Store and will be open to the public Saturday, September 20.

Both these young men are experienced, wide-awake, progressive business men and will doubtless be valuable citizens. Mr. Beetle is a graduate of the State College at Pullman and a registered pharmacist, having been for the past five years with the Wilbur Drug Co., Snohomish. Mr. Simmons, while formerly a pharmacist with drug companies in both Seattle and Victoria, has for a number of years been assistant cashier of the Commercial Bank of Snohomish.

It was while on their vacation trip last month to the Olympic and Sol Duc Hot Springs that these young became so enamoured with our part of the country. Mr. Simmons says for the past ten years he has been on the lookout for what he considered an ideal location, both for a home and from a business standpoint here on the Coast and when he visited our little city he was impressed with the fact that this was the place he had been looking for.

We hope it will prove so to be and that the Owl Drug Company will meet with unlimited success.

WILL HAVE TO HUSTLE.

The contractors for the new Elwha bridge, who have been waiting for low water and seem to have waited too long, arrived in the city yesterday and proceeded at once to the bridge site. It is understood they will at once get to work on the foundation pier. Under the contract the bridge is to be complete by January 1.

The Winfield Harris Co., successors to Mr. Krupp in the 5, 10, and 25 cent store, is hafing the rear room of the store building fitted up for a music parlor, where they will carry a fine stock of pianos, phonographs and victrolas and they will also handle all the popular sheet music and uncopyrighted classic music. Read their advertisement in this issue.

FRUIT AND PRODUCE EXHIBIT SMALL

Olympic Peninsula Fair Not as Successful as it Has Been in Former Years.

A large delegation from Port Angeles and Clallam County were in attendance at the Olympic Peninsula Fair at Port Townsend last week; may of them going overland in private automobiles. The writer was fortunate enough to be one of a party going over Friday and will not soon forget the delightful trip. The day itself was perfect, the roads excellent and the scenery surpassingly beautiful, with last, but not least, the company, congenial and happy.

The overland trip is certainly a treat in store for those who have never taken it, as you not only see some of the most beautiful scenery, but also pass through some of the finest farming country in the state. You also are able to form some idea of the work and expense it has been to the counties to make these beautiful roads, part of the way winding around the mountains and foot hills.

But to get to the fair: It was not as much of a success as the two former years, for several reasons, but Saturday, the last day, brought out the largest crowd and most enthusiastic. The farm produce and fruit exhibit was very small to what it should have been. Clallam county seemed to have taken little part in this, Emil Dermul of Angeles being the only exhibitor, but he carried off first on celery, cauliflower, cucumbers, both early and late cabbage, rhubarb, and lettuce and second on tomatoes and pickling onions.

In fruits, Mr. Dermul won first on Yellow Transparent, Wolf River and Maiden Blush apples, and first on plums.

The Jefferson schools made a creditable showing and some very fine needle work was on exhibition. The "Better Babies" contest created considerable interest as it has all over the country, and many babies were entered. Aside from the races, the principal attraction was the fine herd of Holstien cattle, the chief exhibitor being William Bishop, of Chimicum, and Mr. Eldridge, owner of the world championship cow, Marjorie Newman. It was worth attending to see this farmer's cow, for whom her owner recently refused $5,000. This cow has a record of 136.5 pounds of milk for one day. Amongst these two herds are some of the highest bred cattle in the world. The horse racing was of particular interest to Clallam county visitors, as a number of the horses belonged here, to Oscar and David Morse and Mr. Rouse They were all well-bred animals and bound to carry off some of the best purses, which they did. A ladies race the last day proved a great attraction.

We hope next year to see a change for the better in the Olympic Peninsula Fair, and Clallam and Jefferson county joining forces. There is no reason why this should not be the biggest event of the Puget Sound country, if only interest and enthusiasm enough can be aroused amongst the farmers and fruit growers. The women, too, should, do their part toward making it a success from the home makers standpoint. By next year, the new road, doing away with the hard hills and grades, ought to be completed throughto Port Townsend, which would make it easy for the farmers from around Sequim and Dungeness to take their produce to the fair. By November first the road from Morse Creek to Hurd's Creek will be completed, which will give us one of the finest roads in the state. We have every reason to be proud of the Clallam county roads and in our opinion they will yet prove one of the county's most valuable assets.

SHOWING VERY SATISFACTORY.

The State Examiner from the Bureau of Supervision and Inspection has just completed an inspection and checking of the books of the city clerk and city treasurer, finding same together to the dot, a very satisfactory showing. These surely are two most efficient officers and it is to be regretted that we are possibly to lose one the coming year. The Examiner left for Anacortes yesterday. Examiner Pratt has been going over the county books for the past two weeks and will be here for some time yet.

MUST FILE BY OCTOBER 3RD

Chance for Those Who Say They "Know How" to Get in and Build Up City.

With nearly one half the time expired in which filings for the various city offices may be made, but one filing to date have been received at the offices of the city clerk—that of Geo. Venable Smith, present city attorney, to success himself.

It is reported that certain interests have had under consideration for some time certain candidates for the various offices to be filled, and the choice of these interests are vaguely discussed, but to date no data has been given out to the public. In certain of these offices, with success of the candidate proposed in sight, it is proposed to raise the salaries " as an inducement" to get the parties to accept the positions. On the other hand there are others with ambitions who are holding back for the other fellow to show his hand so that it may be more readily judged just what the aforesaid ambitious candidate is up against.

It may be confidently expected that there will be no dearth of candidates, and that long before the close of filing day on October 3 the line-up will be fully made known.

AN ACCEPTABLE CANDIDATE.

With Three Honest Earnest Men Like Grant, Commission Would Be Great Benefit.

J. M. Grant, of Sequim, has filed with the county auditor his petition of freeholders of that section, nominating him for commissioner of the first district for the administration of the proposed Agricultural Development District upon which the people are to vote October 15 th. Mr. Grant is an enthusiast on the benefits to be derived from a practical administration of the new proposed municipality. Let the good work go on.

MT. PLEASANT ROAD READY.

The new road around the impassible Christopherson hill is about complete, being ready for the finishing touches. It will be a great convenience to a large number of settlers in the western Mt. Pleasant district as well as to the Garvin Shingle Mill, who have heretofore had to bring their shingles from the mill to north of the hill on skids, loading them then on wagons for the city.

S. J. LUTZ & CO.

One of the remarkable things about the gubernatorial situation at Albany, N. Y., is the complacency and American point of view. If such had come up in any of the Central American countries, two men claiming to be governor, there would have been shooting and armed warfare. Down in New York everyone goes about his business and pays no attention to the affair except when they read the newspapers. Everyone has his own opinion but he does not get excited and has no idea of trouble, much less revolution. This calmness with which the Americans take such affairs is characteristic of the country and characteristic of the acknowledged necessity of self-government.

William J. Gaynor, mayor of Greater New York for a little less than four years, and nominee of the "Independent" party to again succeed himself, died on the high seas last Thursday while en voyage to Europe in the hope of finding health.

The whole nation mourns with New York. The dead mayor was a great and efficient public servant, a fearless fighter for the people's rights and a patriotic, clean-living citizen. New York's loss in his death is the country's, and the world's loss.

"I visited a man whose farm was once the scene of a Roman camp, and out in the yard, leaning against a tree was the statue of a Roman woman who was wearing a skirt slit to the knee. Her nose had been broken off and replaced and her feet were gone," continued Mr. Wallace, "but her gown was right in style."—The DesMoines Capital.

DO YOU KNOW WASHINGTON?

Some Facts Worth Knowing and Which May Be of Value to You.

The Leavenworth Echo, in extolling the advantages and opportunities that are open to homeseekers in Western Washington, urges its readers to tell their friends of the east to come and fill up our farm lands and start new industries. Some of the interesting facts about our state are as follows:

"Do you know that the state of Washington produces more wheat than Idaho, Montana and Oregon combined; that this year's crop will amount to 64,000,000 bushels, and that the wheat farmers of the state of Washington will receive $45,000,000 for their work this year?

Do you know that Washington farmers get 25 per cent more for their hay than the farmers of Oregon and 45 per cent more than those of Idaho and that this is positive proof that the soil and climate of this state is highly superior?

Do you know that Washington hogs, on January 1, 1913, were worth $11.26 per head, while those of Oregon were worth but $9.50?

Do you know that there is money in raising horses in our state, and that the horses on the farms in the tate of Washington, January 1, 1912, were worth $110 per head, while those of Montana were worth but $91 nd those of Idaho but $100 per head?

Do you know that Washington produces more potatoes than any other state in the union west of Minnesota?

Do you know that your home state raises the finest apples in the world, and that its annual production equals that of Montana, Idaho and Wyoming Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, California and Oregon combined?

Do you know that Washington is the greatest dairy state in the west, and that Washington milch cows are valued at $62 per head, while those of Oregon are worth but $57, and those of Idaho but $59.50 per head?

Do you know that of the 22,000,000 acres agricultural land in the state but 11,712,235 acres are included in the farms, and that but 6,373,311 acres have as yet been put under the plow and that this land not yet cultivated will raise crops of a standard excelling that of any other district in the United States?

Geo. Kennan, one of the writers on the Outlook, makes a statement in a recent article on the Chinese trade that, while not entirely original, is wholly true. The point he made was that the American business man was losing out in the far east because he would not cater to the whims of the Chinese, and as a result the Germans and Japanese were getting the bulk of the trade. He told a story to illustrate the point. A Chinese wholesale agent went to an agent at one of the treaty ports and said he wanted to place an order for a large amount of screws. This agent was the representative of an American firm. The goods were shown, prices quoted and everything satisfactory except the color of the wrapper, which was brown, and the Chinaman wanted blue. The agent, instead of complying with the wish, began to argue the matter, and the result was the Chinese merchant went to a German representative with the same story. The German immediately promised to give him the blue wrapper and got the order. It would not have cost the American merchant anything to comply with the Chinese whim and he would undoubtedly have gained a steady customer. Our cotton mills found some time ago that the Chinese had certain whims regarding cloth: they began to cater to these whims and the result is American cotton sells freely in the Orient.

Professor Allen Hoben, of the practical theology department of the University of Chicago, told an audience that if the average boy of the slums, when he reached the age of eighteen years, desired to pay back to his parents what it had cost them to bring him up, he would find himself in debt $4000. He went on to caculate that the sons of wealthy parents cost much more—in some cases $100,000. If a clever business man could arrange to buy some of those Chicago boys at what they are really worth and sell them on the basis of Professor Hoben's calculation of the cost, he would make enough money to live at Palm Beach every winter and Newport in the summer for the rest of his life.

"Did you make those biscuits, my dear?" asked the young husband.

"Yes, darling."

"Well, I'd rather you would not make any more, sweetheart."

"Why not, my love?"

"Because, angel mine, you are too light for such heavy work."

If Pegoud, the flying Frenchman, "don't watch out" he will try flying upside down once too often.

BUSINESS AND POLITICS.

The sooner all the great interests close their headquarters in Washington, cease the practice of maintaining representatives at the capital, the sooner will it be possible to get business down to a basis that will enable every man in trade to conduct his affairs with a minimum of anxiety, yet with a maximum of profit. If they will only figure out how much money they are spending in financing campaigns, how much they are putting into organization and how much the Washington bureaus cost, and if they will only then sit down like sensible men and compute the amount of worry and how they are shortening their lives by this continuous turmoil, they will agree with me that they will be far better off if they will take their business out of politics.—Vice President Marshall.

ALASKANS HAVE FIRST LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

Many Members Had to Make Trip to and From Juneau By Dog Team.

The first legislative assembly of Alaska held this year, was organized under a bill passed by the United States congress and approved just a year ago. The law giving Uncle Sam's "furthest north" possession a legislative body of its own provided for a senate of eight members and a house of representatives with sixteen members. The first election of members was held last November, and the next election will take place in November of next year. The members receive $15 a day and an allowance of 15 cents a mile for traveling expenses. In the case of some of the members, this will amount to over $600 for the round trip to and from Juneau, the capital. Many of the legislators had to make the trip with dog teams, and nearly two months was occupied in covering the distance from Nome to Juneau. Probably no other legislators ever endured so many hardships and dangers to serve their country as those who made the winter journey from Nome, 2,000 miles distant from the capital. There are lawyers, doctors and bankers among the members, but the majority are "men with the bark on."

WOULD WORK WONDERS IN WASHINGTON

For two days late in August scores of thousands of men in all parts of Missouri left their usual occupations, and joined in working together on the county roads. There were blistered hands and lame backs at the end of the second day, but there was also the satisfaction of knowing that hundreds of miles of road had been put in better condition without spending any public money. Of course, the improvement is only temporary, and cannot be compared to the results of scientific road-building; but the work was nevertheless worth doing, if only for what it did to rouse the spirit of co-operation. The work was the result of a proclamation by Governor Major. The governors of Kansas and Arkansas have decided to set apart days for the same purpose.—Youth's Companion.

The man who comes into the newspaper office and orders his subscription discontinued, paying all arrearages, is a gentleman and doing the gentlemanly business act. He is treated as a gentleman, having done his whole duty by the paper, and no questions asked him. Unlike him in every way is the man who allows his payments to get behind, a year or more, and who sends a note through the mails, "Stop my paper," or worse —returns the paper, marked "refused." Such a man is not a bit better than a thief.—South Bend Journal.

"Grafting Produces Good Corn," says a headline. And lots of men accumulate much kale by the same means.

THE NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 17.—Gov. Ernest Lister's prison reform policy in taking thirty convicts from the state penitentiary at Walla Walla and putting them to work building highways for the state with no restraint to prevent their escape but their word of honor has brought forth much discussion but has met with almost instant approval throughout the state.

"I am going to make a good citizen of myself, so help me God!"

These are not the exact words the men used in pledging themselves to the governor. Some of them declared themselves fervently, with others it was a wistful phrase, again others merely gave their hand silently to Henry Drum, the prison warden, but their faces expressed determination to make good. They realized that some 700 in the penitentiary were depending upon them to prove the experiment a success so that they who remain might be given a chance to redeem themselves. To them it was a renewed vow of allegiance to the state.

With the governor it is not a matter of sentiment. It is hard headed, well thought out business policy, for in his opinion it will teach these men to work, it will harden their muscles so that when released they will be able to do a man's work and it will be worth even more to them when they again go free and meet temptation and trials.

The men who have families can send them fifty cents a day which the state pays them.

If these thirty men make good, more men will be sent out under the direction of the highway commissioner to aid in the plan of supplying the state of Washington with well built highways.

* *

Taxation matters present several real and new problems to be solved by the state board of equalization this year. The board is still in executive session wrestling with them.

It the first place the appropriations made by the last legislature will necessitate an increase in the state levy of 3.02 mills and possibly more. This will be the increase if it is unnecessary to raise the school levy, now at 1.9 mills. But things begin to look as if this might be insufficient. There are more school children this year than last to be provided for at $10 each and from other sources the school revenue promises to be no greater and possibly less. Added to this is the fact that the school levy last year fell far short of raising as much revenue as was anticipated.

In the next place it is still doubtful if the general fund levy, even if raised from 1,23 mills to three mills, the extreme statutory limit, will take care of all the appropriations which the last legislature made. Not until more exact figures are in on estimates from indirect sources of revenue will this be known. In this case, however, the board will have no discretionary powers other than to levy the full three mills, which undoubtedly will be necessary. It then will be the part of the state officials to get along. The board of control, under the direction of Governor Lister, already has notified heads of all state institutions that they must be prepared to show a saving from the amount appropriated, so as to be able to turn this back into the state treasury at the end of the biennium.

In addition to all this there is a very pertinent railroad problem. Under the law passed by the last legislature the board of equalization this year cannot consider the valuations placed on railroads by the public service commission and the railroads are petitioning for reductions in assessment totalling $40,000,000. They already have made a strong showing to the effect that ordinary property throughout the state is assessed at an average of about 30 per cent of its real value while railroad property is taxed on a basis of 42 per cent of its real value.

The assessment of real and taxable personal property, exclusive of railroads, has been increased a little more than $10,000,000, about 1.23 per cent from last year. If any considerable portion of the reductions requested by the railroads were granted, however, this increase soon would be wiped out.

* *

The state won and lost in the courts last week on taxation matters. The supreme court handed down a decision denying the appeal of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company from the 1911 and 1912 taxes levied by the state. On the other hand the Thurston county superior court decided the state tax of 5 per cent of the Washington business of express companies was invalid. The state will carry this case to the supreme court.

* *

That the state should reserve some of its tide lands along the Puget Sound, its shore land along the inland lakes and some clam beds, for public recreation purposes, before private speculators secure them all is the belief of state fire warden E. W. Ferris. On a trip this week, Mr. Ferris is looking over some of the lands suitable for reservation, with a view of bringing the matter before the state land board, of which he is a member, at its next meeting.

Already, he declares, signs warning intending picnickers that they must not trespass appear in some of the favorite grounds along Puget Sound, and in some instances excursionists securing bivalves for a clam bake have been chased off with shotguns. The state still has plenty of tide lands unsold, but in Ferris' opinion some steps should be taken to reserve some of these before the ones suitable for recreation purposes all stand in private ownership.

* *

The state school census, just made public, shows large gains in the southwest, considerable increases in the northwest and an actual decrease in population in eastern Washington. Skamania, Pacific and Lewis are the banner counties in point of proportionate increase. In point of actual numerical increase Pierce county holds the lead, with King a good second and Lewis a close third. The state department of education is inclined to hold the large farms of eastern Washington responsible for the generally noted decrease in the wheat belt.

* *

An irrigation company contracting to furnish water for an orchard must be prepared to furnish it when needed, the supreme court decided last week, holding it is no defense for the company to show that during most of the year there was plenty of water in its ditches if, during the dry season, the water was lacking.

* *

Efforts of owners of certain lands to be excluded from a Kittitas reclamation project was frowned upon by the supreme court last week, that body deciding that the property in question must bear its share of the cost since the district has been made

* *

Labor Commissioner E. W. Olson, calling his factory inspectors from all parts of the state into conference, has given each an assignment to examine a particular class of machinery with a view toward devising a standard and uniform system of safeguards.

* *

Of the $317,000 worth of state lands and timber offered at the September land sale, only $165,000 worth of purchasers. Applicants for the remaining land complained that appraisements were too high. For the October land sale property valued at $132,000 if offered.

* *

The public service commission has during no month to date come within $2,000 of spending the average amount allowable monthly under the appropriation.

Practically every state institution will have an exhibit at the state fair at North Yakima and more than half the counties have made reservations.

* *

A bottle left on a pitchy stump acting as a sun glass, caused a fire that burned over 85 acres of land in Cowlitz county, the fire warden says.

An old gentleman was trying to cross a main street crossing, and stopped short to allow a big touring car to pass. Just before it reached him a motorcycle dashed around the car, striking the old gentleman and knocking him over. As he arose and brushed off the dust he was heard to remark: "Now, who'd though that automobile had a colt!"

EAST END.

Arthur Cays has just harvested a bumper crop of oats. A measured field of 14 acres threshed 1554 bushels by the machine. Some of the bushels were weighed and found to average 42 pounds per bushel as measured. This is an average of 111 bushels or 4660 pounds per acre. The account of this field is very accurate, as there was some betting done and the results closely watched. There were two light spots in the field that possibly yielded 75 or 80 bushels per acre, and all the threshing crew will agree that there was a portion of the field that went 140 bushels. Photos of the field can be had at McKissick's Studio, which would make a good present to your eastern friends who won't believe that we raise such crops in Clallam county.

* *

Clallam county can produce fruit just as well as Wenatchee or Yakima, and we see daily reminders of this. Keeler & Mortland have on display a small limb with 92 apples. The fruit is well formed and produced without the nursing required east of the mountains. The display was furnished by B. L. Ford, east of town.

* *

Charles Atwood has purchased a lot in the Central plat, opposite L. C. Mizner's and will build a home there. It is likely Mr. Atwood will lease his farm in Happy Valley and then move to Sequim with his family.

* *

Two more new dwelling houses are to be erected soon in the Central plat (Sprague's addition.) One of them will be a ten-room, two-story house for Jack Long. T he other a 7-room house for Robert Long. These buildings will be substantial improvements to the center of Sequim.

Miss Laurens has returned from a week's stay in Seattle.

Mr. Burgess was a business visitor in the district one day last week.

The families of A. H. Hall and E. B. Fleming went out last Sunday boat riding and picnicing. At the mouth of Ennis Creek there was an unpleasant atmosphere, so they went on to Morse Creek, and when they wanted to come home, the engine balked and they were obliged to phone for assistance. It was 11 p. m. when they got home. Better walk next time —it's the surest way.

Why is the law not enforced in regard to destroying noxious weeds. The writer was in the eastern part of the city last week, and was surprised to see so many thistles. Even the grounds surrounding the new school house is ornamented (?) with the weed. It is very discouraging to those who wish to make "beauty spots" of their homes, to see the thistle seeds float in the air and fall on their well-kept grounds. What is the use of laws if they are not enforced?

Mrs. Lillie Wait visited her sister, Mrs. Grace Filion Wednesday.

Mrs. Callarman and children were visitors at E. B. Flemings Wednesday.

DEATH NOT PART OF DIVINE PLAN, BUT AN EXTREME FORM OF FEAR

(Los Angeles Tribune.)

Slowly but surely the wisdom of this world is recognizing that the grand old Book of books contains the solution for every human problem.

One of the unsolved problems, the greatest of all problems of mortal existence, is that of death.

Advanced thought in physical science has announced that there is no physiological reason why death should occur.

While this question is agitating the minds of thinkers, and laboratory research is delving deeply into the problem, the Bible containing a complete treatise on the subject of death, clearly setting forth cause and cure, patiently awaits the seeker after truth, who will surely come when all material knowledge has failed.

Truly said the Book, "The wisdom of this world is foolishness with God."

The hope that some time death might be overcome has always existed in the heart of man, and this of course proves that death is an abnormal condition, for if it were natural and right, a proper part of the divine plan of creation, mankind would not rebel, but would pass willingly to the grave.

Death is the greatest fear of human existence. In his letter to the Hebrews, Paul refers to this fear in describing the mission of Jesus, which was to "deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage."

To the average mortal who has accepted death as an inevitable conclusion of earthly life, the idea of escaping it seems preposterous and unworthy of consideration; to such a one it is the one thing about which there is no doubt.

This belief illustrates how little so-called followers of the Master really understand his teaching.

As it is in the present day, so was it in the days of his ministry.

From the dramatic description of the raising of Lazarus, we learn that those to whom Jesus spoke did not comprehend him.

Martha replied to his declaration. "Thy brother shall rise again." "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day."

Even she could not believe it possible that the decree of death could be set aside.

The Scriptures declare that death is the wages of sin, and from this it would logically follow that in the degree that sin was overcome the liability of dying would be lessened.

Again, the Master declared, "Verily, verily I say unto you, if a man keep my saying, he shall never see death."

One of the reasons why this teaching has not appealed more strongly to mortal is that man has been led to believe that the term death refers to spiritual observation, and that it has reference to what is termed physical death.

This conclusion, of course, is proved fallacious by the practice of the Master and his disciples in raising a number from death.

If death were normal and in accord with God's law, even Jesus would have been powerless to interfere.

Paul tells the Corinthians that "the last enemy that shall be destroyed is death."

From this statement and others that have been quoted in this article, it is evident that the Scriptures regard death as abnormal and unnatural, the effect of sin.

They furthermore point out the remedy in the teachings and practice of the Master.

Here is a topic worthy of profound study and consideration; one that means more to the human race than all the material discoveries and progress of the ages.

"RICHES" bring Health, Happiness and Long Life, I have them ALL, AND WANT TO TELL MY FRIENDS HOW THEY MAY SECURE THEM.

See me, or address, Geo. Gale, Port Angeles, Washington.

In the case of Tim Kelly against Burton O. Lum, brought up from the Yakima county superior court, the supreme court last week decided a point of interest to all orchardists. Kelly sold Lum a lot of 900 apple trees. Lum planted them, giving ordinary care and attention, and they failed to grow. Lum refused to pay the purchase price. Kelly brought suit for their price, but the court, instead of allowing the plaintiff a recovery, gave Lum a judgment for $287.50, on a counter claim for damages suffered on account of the trees being defective. In the opinion on the case the supreme court holds that in any sale of nursery stock there is an implied warranty that the trees are in good condition, and suitable for planting, and established the doctrine that a purchaser is entitled to a counter claim if the stock is unfit.

ARE COLLEGES MAKING GOOD?

In a recent number of the Outlook, Edward Bok asks the question, "Are the colleges making good?" He arrives at no definite conclusion but inclines to the negative. The article is based on a large number of letters sent to young men and women about to graduate. When the replies were returned they were examined under the common rules of spelling, grammar, punctuation and composition. The replies called for were very simple, being the question what the college had done for them physically, intellectually and socially. The result of the examination was very disappointing. From one hundred letters taken from the graduates, 35 proved below the passing mark of 70, which is a low standard, and not a single letter was correct. The showing of the men was slightly better, but not brilliant. Of 449 letters, 59 were below the passing mark, and 200 barely above it. Of 449 letters, 59 were what they should have been. What is true of the college is equally true of the high schools of the country today. Every boy who goes to school goes there to fit himself for some business pursuit and the majority of the girls likewise. It is safe to say that not five per cent of the scholars that graduate from the high school can write an ordinary business letter that is even passable in spelling, grammar and punctuation. This is one of the most important elements of business and yet it is almost completely neglected in all of the schools. If the high schools of the country were run on business principles there would not be a business college in the country. We have it upon the best of information that whenever a graduate of the high school goes to a business college to complete his education the first thing to be done is to correct deficiencies in spelling, grammar and punctuation. They all seem to be entirely lost in the simple yet important principles of common school education.

UNCLE TOM IN TROUBLE.

The people of Montesano had the opportunity last week of becoming connoisseurs of Uncle Tom's Cabin productions. Wednesday night there was an Uncle Tom's Cabin show at the Opera House. Thursday night the picture show house put it on and there was a tent show giving it. But it was the Wednesday night show that put on the rear artistic production. Eliza had crossed the ice, little Eva had done gone to glory and Topsy had "growed." It came time for Uncle Tom to die. He shivered, shook, raised on his elbow and peered into the glory of the Heaven and dropped back extinct, while the curtain slowly descended to shivery music. But the stage manager got his ropes tangled. The curtain made a sudden fall of a foot.

"Ugh," grunted Uncle Tom, and his dead hands rose to protect his stomach from what seemed certain doom, but the rope caught, and he peacefully died again before the red light quit shimmering.

The validity of the $30,000 bonds voted by the last legislature to assist in the purchase of the Lewiston-Clarkston bridge is questioned in an opinion rendered by the attorney general's office. However, arrangements have been made, after telegraphic communication with Governor Lister, to bring a test case in the Supreme court, which will decide the matter definitely.

If the attorney general's opinion is sustained by the Supreme court, it probably will mean that the $125,000 Wenatchee bridge bonds and the $206,000 normal school refunding bonds also are invalid. The same question is involved in all three cases, namely that the legislature has no right to vote bonds for these purposes without the matter being first submitted to a vote of the people.

Even if the Wenatchee bridge bonds should be held invalid, however, it is not likely that it will react seriously on the people of that section. The deed for the bridge is held by the state.

Couldn't Stick Him Again.

A bishop, accosted in Fifth avenue, New York, by a neat but hungry stranger, took the needy one to a hotel and shared a really fine dinner with him, yet, having left his episcopal wallet in the pocket of a different episcopal jacket, suddenly faced the embarrassment of not possessing the wherewithal to pony up.

"Never mind," exclaimed his guest: "I have enjoyed dining with you, and I shall be charmed to shoulder the cost. Permit me." Whereupon the stranger paid for two.

This worried the prelate, who insisted, "Just let me call a cab and we'll run up to my hotel, where I shall have the pleasure of reimbursing you."

But the stranger met the suggestion with, "See here, old man, you've stuck me for a bully good dinner, but I'll be hanged if I'm going to let you stick me for car fare!"

"God Bless My Mother!"

A little child with flaxen hair
And sunlit eyes so sweet and fair,
Who kneels when twilight darkens all,
And from those loving lips there fall
The accents of this simple prayer:
"God bless—God bless my mother!"

A youth upon life's threshold wide,
Who leaves a gentle mother's side,
Yet keeps enshrined within his breast
Her words of warning, still the best,
And whispers when temptation tries,
"God bless—God bless my mother!"

A white haired man who gazes back
Along life's weary, furrowed track
And sees one face—an angel now—
Hears words of light that led aright,
And prays with reverential brow,
"God bless—God bless my mother!"

Hit Him With the Text.

"On a visit to Scotland I went to the old United Presbyterian kirk at Savoch," said a clergyman, "and I heard a good story about a former minister. His name was the Rev. David Caw, and he was very diminutive, standing only about five feet two inches. He led to the altar a strapping, handsome lass some five or six inches taller than he, and her name was Grace Wilson.

"The Sunday after the wedding he got a neighboring minister to preach for him, so that he could sit with his bride on the first Sunday. The minister was a good deal of a wag, so Mr. Caw made him promise faithfully that he would not allude in his sermon to himself, his bride or the fact of the marriage. The wag gave the promise that in his sermon he would make no allusion of that kind whatever, but Mr. Caw nearly sank through the floor when the text was given out—Ephesians iii, 8, 'Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this Grace given.'"

Poor Defenseless Men.

A certain painter in New York, though he is still a young man and looks younger, has a way of winning prizes at National Academy exhibitions and such; also he has a studio near Central park. The other day he went into the park with the sort of paraphernalia artists use when they go sketching. He picked out a place to suit him, set up his workshop and fell to very earnestly. Presently he was aware of something behind him—something with eyes. He looked up. There stood a smartly dressed young lady, aged five or thereabouts. She was frankly interested in what he was doing and met his gaze without embarrassment.

"Do you mind if a little girl looks over your shoulder?" she said.

"Not if she is a good little girl," replied the artist politely, and went on with his painting. It was some time before he looked up again. The young lady of five was still there. She caught his eye and bent toward him with an eager, coaxing smile.

"What do the naughty little girls say to you?" she whispered.—New York Post.

Mme. Loubet's Corset Mystery.

A capital story is being told in Paris of M. Loubet. The other afternoon a friend saw the ex-president seated in his carriage on the boulevards. Quite two hours later the friend happened to pass again. Loubet was still there. Approaching the carriage, the passerby inquired: "Well, Emile, you have more leisure nowadays than you know what to do with. And madame?" "Mme. Loubet," echoed the ex-president—"she's quite well. She's in there—has been for two hours," pointing to the shop. It was "Au Corset Mystere." "It will be a mystery to me," added Loubet, "if she gets fitted by dinner. She certainly won't after."—New York Sun.

Slayer and Sleigher.

In the first number of the Atlantic Monthly Ralph Waldo Emerson had a poem called "Brahma," which puzzled both critics and common readers. Some said it was the greatest poem of the century. Some said it was nonsense. The first verse ran as follows:

If the red slayer think he slays,
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep and pass and turn again.

That winter it happened that a relative of the poet Longfellow, living in another state, bought a sleigh, and in a family letter to the cousins in Cambridge there was a wail lest the January thaw which had followed the purchase should keep them from enjoying the gay cutter that season. When the letter was answered Longfellow contributed this verse:

TO —— ON THE PURCHASE OF A SLEIGH.

If the red sleigher think he sleighs,
Or if the sleighin think it is sleighin,
They know not well the subtle ways
Of snow, that comes and goes again.

Gents in Vienna.

He was known twenty years ago as a "gigerl," and young men who were ambitious in regard to correct dress studied him closely," says the Vienna Press. "In other countries his name was variously 'fop,' 'dandy' or 'dude,' but in Vienna he had an added touch of dash, and that made him a 'gigerl.' Today the son of the fashion wise man of those days, who, like his father, knows how to wear his clothes and appreciates the superiority of the man whose necktie and socks are in harmony as to color, whose dress is correct, no matter what the occasion may be—promenade, funeral, race, opera, business or golf—is known as a 'gent,' derived from the English word 'gentleman.'" A member of the American colony at Vienna, commenting on the "gent" article, says, "We try to explain to our neighbors that 'gent' is only four-fifths of what they think the abbreviation stands for."

Microscope and Building Stone.

Especially valuable are the comparative microscopic studies of rock used in building which has resisted weathering for a long time and that which is in process of disintegration. The cause of rapid weathering can be recognized as a natural structural relation. Two granites, for instance, of almost identical mineralogical and chemical composition can behave quite differently. The one remains sound for years; the other disintegrates rapidly because delicate microscopic pressure zones run through it. Two marbles of equal beauty show entirely different powers of resistance as material for a work of art exposed to the weather, according to whether the calcite individuals in thin section interlock with sinuous outlines or merely adjoin each other as paving stones.—Engineering and Mining Journal.

England and the Maximum Wage.

England knew the maximum wage long before the minimum was thought of. It came about after the plague of 1348 had swept away half the population. Work was at a standstill for want of workers and wages went up so enormously that the state thought it necessary to fix a limit. The state ordered that the laborer should not merely accept gratefully what was offered him, but that he must not leave his parish in search of another master on pain of having the letter "F" (for fugitive) branded upon his forehead. Statutes of this kind were popular up to Queen Elizabeth's time, when the last of the series was passed "in the hope that it should banish idleness, advance husbandry and yield unto the hired person, both in the time of scarcity and in the time of plenty, a convenient proportion of wages."

Red Light and Photographs.

Why have we to develop photographs in a red light? We know that white light is really a mixture of light of all sorts of colors—red, yellow, green, blue and so on. Some of these lights of various colors have one kind of power and some another. Now, the kind of light that has the power of causing chemical changes, which is the light we photograph by, is mainly violet light. We can see in a way by red light, but red light has practically no influence on photographic plates. We may say that photographic plates cannot see red light, and so we can use red light to develop them by without fearing that the photograph of our faces or the walls of the room will be printed on the plates.

Couldn't Stick Him Again.

A bishop, accosted in Fifth avenue, New York, by a neat but hungry stranger, took the needy one to a hotel and shared a really fine dinner with him, yet, having left his episcopal wallet in the pocket of a different episcopal jacket, suddenly faced the embarrassment of not possessing the wherewithal to pony up.

"Never mind," exclaimed his guest; "I have enjoyed dining with you, and I shall be charmed to shoulder the cost. Permit me." Whereupon the stranger paid for two.

This worried the prelate, who insisted, "Just let me call a cab and we'll run up to my hotel, where I shall have the pleasure of reimbursing you."

But the stranger met the suggestion with, "See here, old man, you've stuck me for a bully good dinner, but I'll be hanged if I'm going to let you stick me for car fare!"

"God Bless My Mother!"

A little child with flaxen hair
And sunlit eyes so sweet and fair,
Who kneels when twilight darkens all,
And from those loving lips there fall
The accents of this simple prayer:
"God bless—God bless my mother!"

A youth upon life's threshold wide,
Who leaves a gentle mother's side,
Yet keeps enshrined within his breast
Her words of warning, still the best,
And whispers when temptation tries,
"God bless—God bless my mother!"

A white haired man who gazes back
Along life's weary, furrowed track
And sees one face—an angel now—
Hears words of light that led aright,
And prays with reverential brow,
"God bless—God bless my mother!"

Hit Him With the Text.

"On a visit to Scotland I went to the old United Presbyterian kirk at Savoch," said a clergyman, "and I heard a good story about a former minister. His name was the Rev. David Caw, and he was very diminutive, standing only about five feet two inches. He led to the altar a strapping, handsome lass some five or six inches taller than he, and her name was Grace Wilson.

"The Sunday after the wedding he got a neighboring minister to preach for him, so that he could sit with his bride on the first Sunday. The minister was a good deal of a wag, so Mr. Caw made him promise faithfully that he would not allude in his sermon to himself, his bride or the fact of the marriage. The wag gave the promise that in his sermon he would make no allusion of that kind whatever, but Mr. Caw nearly sank through the floor when the text was given out—Ephesians iii. 8, 'Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this Grace given.'"

Poor Defenseless Men.

A certain painter in New York, though he is still a young man and looks younger, has a way of winning prizes at National Academy exhibitions and such; also he has a studio near Central park. The other day he went into the park with the sort of paraphernalia artists use when they go sketching. He picked out a place to suit him, set up his workshop and fell to very earnestly. Presently he was aware of something behind him—something with eyes. He looked up. There stood a smartly dressed young lady, aged five or thereabouts. She was frankly interested in what he was doing and met his gaze without embarrassment.

"Do you mind if a little girl looks over your shoulder?" she said.

"Not if she is a good little girl," replied the artist politely, and went on with his painting. It was some time before he looked up again. The young lady of five was still there. She caught his eye and bent toward him with an eager, coaxing smile.
