PORT ANGELES OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 30. NO. 3. PORT ANGELES, CLALLAM COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, JANUARY 16, 1914. $1.00 EER YEAR.

SUCCESS CROWNS YEAR'S WORK

Interesting Account of the Year's Work by Ex-President Lauridsen of Commercial Club.

Since the organization of the Commercial Club, it has to its credit a number of acts accomplished, and notably so during the year just passed.

The Earles Mill Secured.

The beginning of the material welfare, and substantial assurance that Port Angeles will take its place and be noted as one of the leading cities in the State, came with the building of the Earles mill. The Commercial Club got behind this proposition, and raised a subscription among our loyal citizens of $33,-900.00, to buy the land, on which one of the largest Saw and Shingle Mills is now located, and presented it to Mr. Earles. The deal was made, and an agreement with Mr. Earles and the Commercial Club signed up. The Club's part of it was completed last March. According to the agreement the Mill must be in operation by May 1st, 1914, at which time the notes given to pay for the site become due and payable.

Railroad Right-of-Way Matters.

Following the mill, came the Railroad right-of-way proposition, and had it not been for the Commercial Club taking hold of this matter as it did, we might have remained today just where we stood a year ago. C. J. Erickson, whom Mr. Cain and Mr. Morrow, had got interested in building a railroad with the promise, that the people here would give a free right-of-way through the County and Terminal Grounds at Port Angeles, had been here several times. Everything was promised him by our real estate men, if only he would build the railroad; but he was never able, on any of these visits here, to get anything in tangible shape. He went away disgusted and ready to drop the whole proposition.

I will admit that up to this time I had taken no part in the negotiations with Mr. Erickson, believing it to be a scheme to boom real estate. At this stage I had a talk with Erickson, on the boat going to Seattle, and he said this: "Unless I can deal with somebody responsible, and with authority to act for your people, and get this right-of-way matter in a businesslike shape, I am through with it. Empty promises by everybody don't bind anybody. I will build you a railroad, if you have some way of guaranteeing the free right-of-way; and when you have ten miles of continuous right-of-way, I will put my steam shovel in there, and start 200 men to work." This talk sounded better to me than anything I had heard in a long time, and it came from a man whose honesty, and ability to do as he said he would, nobody, who knows him, doubted.

We got busy, and with the able assistance of our treasurer, Mr. J. P. Christensen, an agreement was made with Mr. Erickson, covering the details, and limiting the Commercial Clubs liability to $55,000.00 for the right-of-way and $30,000.00 for the terminals. This agreement was ratified by a mass meeting of the Commercial Club, and signed by both parties.

It was no easy matter to raise $85,000.00 just after having subscribed $34,000.00 for the mill site; but to the credit of our loyal citizens, it must be said that most of them subscribed, liberally. With all our efforts we were not able to raise more than $72,865.00 in promissory notes — good, bad and indifferent ones.

After this the real work of securing the right-of-way commenced. The Club engaged Attorney J. W. Lindsay to take charge. How certain people acted unfairly and could not be dealt with, except thru the courts, is well known to most of the members of the Club; still it must be admitted that in most cases our people acted very fairly. The work is now finished, all but a very few cases, which the railroad company has agreed to settle for.

All told the Club has paid out $45,907.12 for right-of-way and expenses. This money has been advanced by Mr. Erickson on notes, which have been turned over to him by the Club.

The Work Completed.

As the work is practically completed and as the term of the present Board of Directors expires with this meeting, the Directors desired to terminate the agreement with the Erickson Construction Co. and be released from its obligation, and the following has been agreed upon and signed up:

"We, the undersigned, Erickson Construction Co., accept the right-of-way notes already delivered to us by the Port Angeles Commercial Club, together with the notes now in possession of the said club, amounting to $22,840.00, and the notes of whatever amount held at Sequim, in full of any further effort on their part to secure additional notes or right-of-way or terminals, and we, the undersigned, Port Angeles Commercial Club, acknowledge receipt in full from the Erickson Construction Co. of the amount that was to be advanced by it for right-of-way and terminal purposes. This receipt shall be a mutual acquittance of the parties hereto, and of any further binding agreement with reference to securing right-of-way and terminals for the Seattle, Port Angeles & Lake Crescent Railway and

BIG ELECTRICAL SIGN

Will Be Placed by Commercial Club at the Head of the Laurel Street Zig-Zag.

A big electric sign was arranged for at the meeting of the city council this week, the matter coming up on a communication from T. T. Aldwell, Mgr. of the Olympic Power Co., to the effect that the Commercial Club had named a committee which had asked his company if juice for a sign would be donated. The Power Company is willing to give the juice for one year if city will place meter so that same can be deducted from juice furnished city. In the discussion it was brought out that the big electric sign is to be placed at the head of the Laurel street zigzag by the Club and will in consideration of free juice signify that the 10,000 h. p. from the Elwha will as- council granted the request.

The Commercial Club met Wednesday evening with a good attendance. President J. I. Kirschberg, the newly elected head of the organization, presided and acquitted himself like a veteran in his office.

Mr. E. E. Gerard, president of the Washington Oil Company, which is now operating at Forks in the west end of the county, addressed the meeting and was enthusiastic as to the prospects of success. He assured his auditors that the company is in the right location, and that it was a question of only a short time before oil in commercial quantities would be found.

Mr. C. Anderson, on whose property the company is operating, also addressed the Club, and confirmed the statements of President Gerard.

Those in attendance evinced deep concern in the remarks of the speakers, and the indications are that many of the citizens will invest in the stock of the corporation. The prospects of striking oil in Clallam county never seemed to be bettr, for the company is proceeding along modrn lines with the best equipment obtainable.

Mr. Myerding of the Palace Bakery went to Seattle Tuesday to see about having plans drawn for the new building he will erect soon on his lot next to R. D. Willson's. He now contemplates building a double store with fifty feet front, and hopes to have it ready for occupancy by April 1st.

G. A. Glines left Tuesday on his return trip to his eastern home. He was delighted with the result of his inspection of the Olympic Power Co.'s plant and with the spirit of progressiveness and optimism that pervades our city at present. He went away feeling that "all is well." T. T. Aldwell accompanied him to Seattle.

If your appetite craves a good, hot chicken dinner, such as the white ribboners know how to serve, just come to the opera house any time from 11:30 to 4 o'clock, Thurs. the 22nd.

CONTRACT SIGNED WEDNESDAY

Work Will Be Begun as Soon as Assessment Roll is Adopted and Time of Appeal Past.

Attorney Turner of the Lewis, Wiley & Morse Company, the successful bidders on the street improvements, advised Council Tuesday night that his company was ready to sign up if certain details could be arranged. He suggested penalties of $25 per day on Dist. 11 and $10 per day on Dist. 12 for each and every day in default of completion on time. This was agreed to. The second provision was that when they began work they wanted to know that they would be allowed to proceed, and recommended that the day of commencement of work be fixed at 15 days after the final assessment roll has been adopted and the day of last appeal past, and that six months be given to complete. He explained that there was no particular hurry at this time of the year.

Resolutions incorporating these provisions and the contracts were then read, together with a resolution by the contracting corporation empowering its president and secretary to sign contract in its behalf, all of which had been submitted to the city attorney and approved by him. A letter was also read from Preston & Thorgrimson of Seattle, advising council that they had gone over the contract and resolutions, calling attention to the provision of the final assessment roll being first approved, and stating that it was largely up to the council as to whether they desired to enter into such an agreement. Fleming enquired as to length of day's work and minimum wage and was informed these were a state regulation and in the specifications. Shields moved the adoption of the resolutions, the acceptance of the bonds upon the OK of the attorney, and that the mayor and clerk be authorized to enter into contracts. Carried unanimously.

Shields then presented a resolution employing Messrs. Preston & Thorgrimson as asst. counsel, Mr. Smith acquiescing. The firm are specialists on street grades, and their contract submitted is to advise on all papers for amount, but not to go into any courts, nor have to come to Port Angeles unless paid additional. Shields, in this connection, said that the property owners had already put up the first $250 and had signed up, waiving any technical objections there might be to the damages against their property with a view to getting the work started as soon as possible. Dustman moved the adoption of the resolution and all voted aye.

Shields then asked the engineer and clerk how soon an assessment roll could be gotten in for consideration, and was advised by next meeting. He then moved that the city attorney be directed to have his assistants bring in the necessary Resolution of Hearing on said roll by next meeting. Carried.

Shields then sprung another surprise. After stating that the agreement filed with the City provided, upon the letting of a contract for the improvement of Railroad avenue that Schedule W giving the alternate route down Front street would be released, moved that the city attorney bring in an ordinance at next meeting revoking Schedule W. Carried unanimously.

On Friday evening, January 9th, Port Angeles Lodge No. 869 of the Fraternal Brotherhood held its installation of officers for the new year. Past President, W. H. Peter; President, A. W. Grierson; Vice-President, Philip Meredith; Secretary, Minnie A. Albertson; Treasurer, Howard A. Campbell; Chaplain, Bertha Dodier; Sergeant, H. B. Lathrop; Mistress at Arms, Mrs. Harvey B. Lathrop; Inner Doorkeeper, Mrs. Howard Hart; Outer Doorkeeper, Joseph Dodier. Brother C. E. Hutchinson was the installing officer. After installation was over refreshments and dancing was enjoyed by all, music being furnished by McDonnell Orchestra.

Minnie A. Albertson,
Secretary.

GOVERNOR LISTER EXPECTED AT CELEBRATION

Banquet at Olympic Hotel; Exercises at Opera House; Dance in the Evening.

The committee in charge of the celebration of the completion of the Olympic Power plant, on February 12, Lincoln's birthday, perfected arrangements with Manager Roche, whereby the banquet will be held at the Olympic hotel. Tickets to the banquet will be one dollar each, and they will be on sale at an early date. It is expected that from four to five hundred tickets will be sold to the citizens of Port Angeles, who will no doubt take pride in making this one of the greatest events, in not the greatest, in the city's history. So much has been accomplished in Port Angeles during the last year, and the future prospects for rapid growth and development are so flattering that every inhabitant ought to take a personal interest in the celebration and see to it that nothing short of a glowing demonstration shall be the result of the effort. It will not only herald to the world the intelligence that our citizenship is alert to the city's welfare, but it will be an advertisement of far-reaching value, as well.

In addition to the banquet, there will be exercises in the opera house during the afternoon, as well as a dance at the same place in the evening.

Governor Lister and others prominent in political and commercial life have been invited and are expected to be present and deliver addresses

Port Angeles now has a golden opportunity to place herself conspicuously and favorably in the limelight of public opinion.

THE EASTERN STAR

At the regular meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star Saturday evening, January 10th, the officers for the ensuing year were duly installed by the retiring worthy matron, Mrs. J. C. Hansen. The work was beautifully and impressively done, at the close of which the newly elected worthy patron, Mr. Geisness, presented Mrs. Hansen with an exquisite bouquet of pink carnations as a token of love and esteem from the officers who served under her the past year. The usual social session with light refreshments followed and Mrs. F. E. Warner kindly entertained with a reading, "Our Folks." The officers installed for the new year are: W. M., Mrs. Ida Johnson; W. P., Thomas Geisness; Asst. W. M., Rosella Luppen; Conductress, Miss John Thorpe; Assistant Con., Mrs. Fred Grubb; Chaplain, Mrs. H. A. Falk; Marshal Mrs. Lyle Beam; Ada, Mrs. O. A. Pettit; Ruth, Mrs. Robt. Callarman; Esther, Mrs. DeWitt Burns; Martha, Mrs. L. M. Campbell; Electa, Mrs. J. P. Harley; Warder, Miss Cora Tillman; Sentinel, Mr. J. P. Harley.

The Frye Brothers, one a druggist and the other a physician, of North Yakima were here this week looking up a location for a drug store. It is possible the Morse building, First and Laurel, will be remodeled for their use. They have conducted a pharmacy for eight years in Yakima and are tired of living in the dry country.

J. L. Coffey, jeweler and optician, has bo't Dann Bros. lease to the Goldwater building next to the Star Theater and is preparing to open up business the coming week. Mr. Coffey comes here from Bellingham, where he has been engaged in business for the past nine years.

The Olympic Power Company's electrical juice was turned on in Bremerton City Wednesday and the company is now supplying Charleston, Bremerton, Fort Worden, Fort Flagler, Port Townsend, and Port Angeles, and expects to take on Bremerton Navy Yard today or tomorrow.

Rodger D. Pinneo, Ass't Gen. Fgt. Agt. for the Pacific Coast S. S. Co. was in Angeles last week looking into the volume of trade in anticipation of the time rapidly approaching when it will be a paying proposition to have the large Frisco boats stop here.

Donald Lutz, who has been employed the last three or four years in the State Bank of Seattle, has been elected assistant cashier of that institution.

CHRISTMAS IN THE HAWAIIAN ISLES

Banker and Mrs. Christensen Received by Queen Liliuokalani; Her Favorite Song.

Alexander Young Hotel,
Honolulu, Hawaii.
Christmas Eve., 1913.

My Dear Mrs. Webster:

In my last letter to you I mentioned that events were coming thick and fast and I woefully bewail my shortcomings in a literary way in order to do justice to my diary. It would not be fair to omit the happenings of the forenoon:

"My Meeting with Ex-Queen Liliuokalani."

It happened thus: We passed along Beretania Avenue and heard music from one of the residences; it drew us through the entrance and through the tropical foliage. A distance from the avenue we found Mr. Berger's band seated sideways to the veranda of a fine southern home, colonial in architecture. Professor Heinrich Berger, the leader, had mounted a chair and would have made a splendid subject for my camera, as he was focused in the sunlight. How I would have liked to snap him in one of his characteristic poses, but something, the solemnity of the scene or what else, stayed my hand. There were a few ladies and gentlemen present and one of these whispered to me "It is the queen." At a glance I grasped the situation. On the broad veranda sat an elderly lady with a party, and, through skillful manuevering I got a fair view of her majesty, although her chair was placed behind one of the pillars. There we stood among the trees enjoying a splendid concert — for good music it was from this band of forty musicians; the scene added its charm and we were loth to leave. I presume the others felt like myself, a bit nervous less her majesty would despatch her secretary to inform us that it was private grounds and that we encroached on her privacy. It was natural to feel that way about it for one often hears them say that the queen is prejudiced against America and Americans. Probably her dethronment and the annexation of Hawaii to the United States is all "in the natural course of events" and we look at it in that light, but the queen was a very much interested party in the proceedings in which Americans played important parts, and it is but human, at least, when she harbors a grudge against my countrymen. We cannot expect her to gracefully accept the inevitable and yield up her beautiful islands, interwoven with history and dear to her. Her side of the story she vividly pictures in her book, "Hawaii's Story by Hawaii's Queen Liliuokolani."

The concert lasted probably an hour and a half or so, and, when at the close she dispatched her secretary to the leader of the band, probably it was with a request for her favorite song, "Aloha Oe," for then the two Hawaiian ladies sang her farewell song to Hawaii, composed by the queen herself; they sang it with feeling and to me it was exceedingly beautiful and pathetic. The band joined in the chorus and their voices blended charmingly.

Again the secretary was coming toward the little respectful group, and, fancy our consternation when, instead of chasing us out of the garden of Eden, he made known to us the queen's wishes that she would receive us. The ladies in our party worried over their appearance but hastily straightening their hats proceeded with the rest of us to the veranda, where the queen took each of us by the hand and greeted us.

In the course of time I have seen a number of pictures of the queen as they have from time to time appeared in the various publications of all sorts; from these I had formed an impression of her as being haughty and imperious. It is probable that one accustomed to Hawaiians and Hawaiian types would have reached a different conclusion. The queen I met to-day was a different queen—the refined, kind old lady, dressed in black, was a lovely, democratic queen. The stirring events of the past twenty years had wasted her once robust form and seared her face and there was a mild expression that looked at me from under a mass of wavy grey hair.

A few words were exchanged and one of the ladies in attendance invited us to see the palace. We were escorted through some of the rooms, but as to the furnishings my eyes centered on a fine bust of the deceased king Kalakaua, her brother, and a row of Kahilis, emblems of royalty and much cherished by Hawaiians. They certainly are odd-

C STREET ASS'MT DISTRICT

Council Takes Up Matter of Adequate Fire Protection in Residential Districts.

The council meeting Tuesday night proved progressive in the extreme, in that the street improvement contract was signed up in a hurry, new proposed street grades initiated, steps taken to condemn Third street at joint expense of city and railway, and the machinery put in motion for a municipal water plant in the event the city cannot get a more advantageous rate on fire protection. All members present except Wilcox, who is out of town.

Committees for the coming year were named as follows by Mayor White: Ordinance, Shields, Bigelow; Finance, Fisher, Shields; Franchise, Bigelow, Dustman; Streets, Fowler, Wilcox; Electric Light, Dustman, Bigelow; Fire, Light & Water, Wilcox, Fisher; Fire Wardens, Fowler, Shields; Park, Fisher, Fleming; Cemetery, Fleming, Fowler; Health, Bigelow, Dustman.

The street committee recommended that the C street zig-zag leading down to the cannery from the hill above be repaired at a cost of $10, which was ordered.

Assistant Chief J. F. Dilling of the Fire Department reported that the hydrants reported some weeks ago as in bad repair were still in same condition. This seemed to rile some of the council and Dustman moved that this council go on record and that water company be notified that no further bills for water rent would be allowed until hydrants were put in good repair. Fowler added that deductions be made for time hydrants are out of repair. The motion carried, all voting aye.

Sunday night about one o'clock fire broke out in the Sam Morse house on Sixth and Vine, occupied by Mr. Graham of the Star Theater. Evidently on retiring the family had left quite a fire in the dining room heater, which through a defective flue or some other way had quite a blaze started before it was discovered. The family were almost suffocated and were not able to save anything. Mr. Graham had fifty dollars under his pillow which went up in flames also. If water had been handy, it is said, the fire could have been extinguished before it had made much headway, but all the water had to be carried in buckets. We understand Mr. Morse carried an insurance of $1500 on the house and there was $500 on the furniture. The house was formerly known as the McIvor place.

Contractor Wolverton has begun work on the large six room modern bungalow he is to build for Lewis Levy on the old Homan property, corner Eighth and Lincoln.

Don't you think it sounds pretty good that one of our business firms was able to furnish the bonds for the $86,000 regrade? The T. T. Aldwell Company turned the deal.

The Olympic-Leader believes that Mr. Godfrey of Tacoma, who recently gave the City such good service as an expert on electrical lighting matters, did the people of Port Angeles another good turn when he notified the City Council that the City could purchase the discarded street lighting standards with their clusters of five lights and other apparatus at a nominal figure. Tacoma is putting in an entirely different lighting system, in conformity with other civic improvements there. With the improvement and proper grading of Front and First streets and probably the Francis street district, the necessity of proper lighting of these streets will become more apparent. Especially is this true when the increased lighting of the streets will cost the City, under the present arrangements, but little if any more than at present. Well lighted streets appeal favorably to strangers visiting a city for the first time. If the opportunity to secure these lighting fixtures from Tacoma is by the City Council deemed advisable, by all means let us secure them and be ready to greet the strangers who are coming here by the scores the coming season, with properly lighted streets.

Speaking on this subject, Mr. G. A. Glines, one of the most extensive property owners who has the best in his mind for Port Angeles at all times, says that Seattle is known far and wide as the best lighted city in the west, if not in the country, and that while we may not be able to compete with Seattle or other well lighted cities, he would be willing to pay his share of the expense for better lighted streets in Port Angeles. And in this we feel sure he is but voicing the sentiments of every progressive citizen and well-wisher of our city.

Mr. Rupp and Mr. Cochran, residents of C street, prepared and circulated a petition to the city council to create an assessment district from the north line of Fifth street south to the Boulevard on C street and succeeded in procuring the signatures of much more than half the property owners comprising the proposed district. Of all property owners resident in the proposed district, but one declined to sign the petition and almost all joined heartily in the move. It calls for full width street grade and fourteen feet of gravel in the center. They are certainly to be commended for their progressive move. The Olympic-Leader suggests that you occasionally direct an eye toward Lincoln Heights and particularly the neighborhood of C street, and learn a lesson as to progressiveness.

The City has been realizing a rental of $10 a year (See City Clerk's Statement in another column.) for the dozen or so signboards that disfigure its streets. $1 each from the two signs on the Laurel street zigzag which have proven so objectionable with their glaring whiskey and cigarette and Seattle department store advs. Pretty small potatoes!

January 15th, A. D. 1914, with roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, pansies, and other flowers in the gardens and the grass in our door yards green as in June, not to forget the pussy willows now so plentiful, with no winter weather thus far this season to speak of, no wonder newcomers at once become interested in our climate. On the railing of the south porch at the Editor Smith home are three jars with plants in full bloom—a geranium, carnation, and nasturtium. These jars have sat there all winter, save two or three of the coldest nights, when they were placed on the floor of the open porch for protection and again replaced on the railing the following morning.

While we do not have the sunshine of Southern California during the winter months, neither do we have the extreme drouths and hot weather of the summer time of that section. The day is not far distant when the Olympic Peninsula will be the mecca of the summer tourist as Los Angeles is now of the winter tourist.

A heavy team, street grader, and other tools for doing efficient work with workmen on the job when and wherever required, is the proper thing for Port Angeles and Councilman-at-Large Shields showed good sense in presenting the matter to the City Council at the first opportunity. Mr. Shields has had the matter under consideration for sometime, it having become apparent to him in his position as City Clerk that street work could be handled more effectively and economically if the City would make the requisite initial investment. This is the only method in vogue in communities where the streets and highways are kept in good repair. Constantly keeping at work prevents the formation of chuck holes and the subsequent waste of money in a special appropriation to have these filled with gravel during the rainy season. In no line of public endeavor is the old adage "a stitch in time" more pat than in street and road making and the City Council has acted wisely in taking up these matters at the suggestion of Mr. Shields.

We call attention to the card of the new law firm of Cochran & Plummer in this issue. They occupy the rooms in Aldwell Block occupied by Mr. Cochran ever since the building was finished.

Mr. Plummer comes well recommended as a lawyer of standing and shows himself worthy and able to represent clients in our courts. Mr. Cochran has become so well known throughout Clallam county and has taken so prominent a part in the litigated cases in the Superior Court that all know him. His increasing legal business has made it necessary to associate with him legal help.

It is evident we have a progressive mayor in Mr. White. No street speaking or singing goes hereafter; the streets are not the places for public gatherings of any kind and we are glad to see him issue an order to that effect.

PARENTS-TEACHERS ASSN. MEETING

A most interesting and enthusiastic meeting was that of the Parent-Teachers Association held in the Auditorium of the H. S. Monday evening. It was very gratifying to the teachers and promoters of the organization to see so many parents out and it is to be hoped that the auditorium will be filled at all the m etings, which are to be held the second Monday of every month. The program opened with music by Miss Broughton's class of young ladies from the H. S., which was much enjoyed. Miss Wiggins followed with a reading, one of her humorous children's stories which was happily received. The constitution was then presented by Prof. White or acceptance and was unanimously adopted as was also a resolution signifying the willingness of the association to co-operate with the County Superintendent, Mr. Geisness, in his efforts in behalf of social center work thruout the county. Mrs. E. B. Webster, who had been elected president of the association at a former meeting, announced that it would be impossible for her to serve , so her resignation was accepted. And strange as it may seem it was impossible to elect a new one from this large gathering of parents, each one nominated declining to accept. To save time the vice-president, Prof. White, consented to act in that capacity until a new one could be appointed or elected and Mrs. Webster conducted the meeting for the evening. The subject "Vocational Training for Port Angeles Schools" proved to be a most interesting one. It was opened up by Prof. White; he had an outline on the blackboard of the present course of study, showing which subjects were compulsory and which optional. From his outline and talk he made many points clear to the parents that they had not fully understood before. His talk was followed by one from Mr. Frank Fisher, who was strongly in favor of what he termed a more practical education, better fitting the boys and girls to enter the business world and not simply preparing them for college. His plea was for the school board to add a business course as soon as possible, including bookkeeping, typewriting, and stenography, and other vocational courses.

Miss Brown, teacher of mathematics and botany in the H. S., spoke most emphatically in favor of the present course of study, believing it necessary for the laying of a good foundation for any future vocation. Domestic science she believed should be taught in the home by the mother and the boy should be taught manual training during the long summer vacation. Her talk was one of the best and most forceful of the evening, even tho we didn't agree with her in all particulars. She was followed by Mrs. Reginald Simmonds, who has recently come to our city from Snohomish, where she taught penmanship for a number of years in the schools. She spoke strongly in favor of the domestic science course for girls and the business and manual training course for boys, reciting instances where she knew it had been of material benefit. She realized, as many more of us do, that unless more attention is given to penmanship in school it will soon become a lost art.

Mrs. J. C. Hansen didn't take a decided stand for either the vocational or cultural courses, only in so far as her own children were concerned she preferred the present course of study, believing that the time allotted to the average boy or girl for attendance at school is needed in the pursuit of knowledge outside of vocational courses. Miss Meeks. teacher of latin in the H. S., spoke on domestic science, having had experience as a teacher in that course. She presented good points both for and against. But the conclusion we drew from her remarks was that she favored the teaching of domestic science in the home instead of the school. A. D. Wolverton tho't the poor man's children were entitled to a course of study that would fit them to become wage earners without having to be sent away from home to school. He urged the putting in of a business or commercial course of study as soon as possible. He also tho't the present manual training course could be made much more practical and gave some very good suggestions.

Mr. Geisness, County Superintendent, expressed his pleasure at the sentiment that had prevaded the evening's talks. While strongly in favor of adding the vocational courses to our H. S. course, it would be with sincere regret he would see any one study dropped from the present course. After Mr. Geisness' remarks, the meeting was open to all and many good talks were made and [illegible] rest shown in matters per[illegible] the school. A very good paper was also read by Mrs. Gregory. A resolution was offered by E. E. Seevers, "That we, the parents and teachers of Port Angeles, in mass meeting assembled, do petition the school board to add vocational courses to our High School as fast as the finances will permit and that if necessary to do so the classical courses be dropped." The resolution was adopted unanimously with the last clause stricken out.

These meetings of teachers and parents are bound to be productive of much good not only to our schools but to the community at large. The next meeting will be held February the 9th.

With the big electric sign which the Commercial Club proposes to have placed at the top of the Laurel street zig-zag, advertising space on the signboards beneath should bring several times the present figures — in which case the City will probably receive fully two bits more for the privilege, say $1.25 per year each?

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

Why Order of Sale of Real Estate Should Not Be Made.

In the Superior Court for Clallam County, State of Washington.

In the matter of the Estate of Charles Blake, deceased.

Charles Zimmerman, the Administrator of the estate of Charles Blake deceased, having filed his petition herein praying for an order of sale of all the real estate of said decedent, for the purposes therein set forth,

SPECIAL MEETING AUXILIARY TOMMORROW AFTERNOON

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Commercial Club was held Tuesday afternoon in the library room. The attendance was not as large as expected after advertising a special call to come out. The committee on moving the public library building reported that after conferring with the men on the Brotherhood committee, with our city engineer and others they had decided it was best to do nothing further about a library building until the lot is graded. A motion to that effect was carried.

The subject of incorporating into some kind of a library association so that the deed to our library site could be recorded was brought up by Mrs. R. D. Willson. It caused considerable discussion but finally a motion carried that we form a corporation or library association.

A motion was then carried that we call a special meeting of all members of the Auxiliary to vote upon the question of whether or not the Library association shall become a separate and distinct organization. This special meeting will be held this Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in the Commercial Club room; all members urged to attend.

When properly rested, all repaired to a theater party, Mrs. Emma Shrake being hostess.

THE CITY COUNCIL

The special committee appointed for the purpose of looking into the advisability of purchasing a team or auto truck, recommended that a team be purchased at this time, as same can be used by fire department also. A committee of three to be later named will make the purchase.

A petition was read from the progressive citizens of Lincoln Heights asking that C street from Fifth to Boulevard be graded full width and gravelled to a width of 14 feet, same to be charged against the abutting property to the middle of the block. The petition is signed by a majority of the property owners abutting said improvement. Upon motion of Shields, city attorney was directed to bring in a resolution of intention in conformity with the petition, all voting aye.

The city attorney recommended the passage of the ordinance condemning a right of way through the Sampson tract for Third street extended. This brought on quite a contest. Dustman movedt hat the ordinance be put upon its final passage, urging that it was time to do something. Seconded by Bigelow. Shields moved that the ordinance be laid over for one week. Motion to postpone was lost upon a tie vote, Dustman, Fowler and Bigelow voting no. This brought on an explanation of the vote, Fleming taking the stand that the owners of the rac had been cut off by the vacation of part of their only street, and now it is unfair to take from them without paying full value. Dustman thought council had dilly-dallied too much. He wanted something done. Shields explained that the reason he wanted the matter laid over was that a settlemen was in view, and also that there is a franchise pending over this street which is seemingly being held up until the city shall condemn at its own expense. then the franchise be given without expense to the promoters. He desired the railroad simply to lay it over for the time begrantees to pay its proportion of the cost of condemnation. With this explanation the roll was called on the motion to adopt and the ordinance was killed by a tie vote, Shields, Fisher and Fleming voting no. Shields later explained that he did not vote to kill the ordinance but simply to lay it over for the time being. Dustman held that the railroad company could be compelled to pay its portion at any time before the grant is allowed.

Dustman called attention to the condition of Francis street where water pipes had been extended across street. Water company was orderer to put same in as good repair as before excavation.

Mayor White in behalf of Marshal Grierson called attention to necessity of an office for that officer, offering the free use of a part of his office if light and wood used is provided. Accepted.

Bonds of Wm. Graham, St. Supt., Alf. Grierson, marshal, and J. M. Davis, police justice, were approved. Bond of Citizens National Bank was returned for correction because of provision which limits liability to three months after date.

Shields moved that a committee of three be named to consider the boundaries of the extension of the street grades ordered on First and Lincoln streets and on Cherry street. It was his opinion that First street should be improved from Oak to Tumwater or A, Lincoln from Third to Boulevard, and Cherry from First to Boulevard. Sec. by Fisher and carried, all voting aye. Shields, Fisher and Bigelow named.

The next surprise of the evening was sprung by Fisher. After calling attention to condition of fire hydrants he stated that only a small portion of hte city had fire protection, that large building operations had transformed the hill sections, and 30 or 40 new hydrants were a necessity. But the price paid by the city per hydrant now is prohibitive and exorbitant. Asked that a committee of three be named with power to act: (1) To see water company as to rate satisfactory; (2) if not to appeal to public service commission; (3) if no relief there, to look into matter of municipal water system. Fisher, Dustman and Fleming named.

Shields followed with a motion that a committee of three be named to confer with property owners in vicinity of Third street extended, and with railroad company, looking to an adjustment of the right-of-way question across the Sampson tract, and as to what proportion of such price the railroad company will pay. Shields, Fisher and Dustman named

Fleming arose to ask that the light committee look into the matter of giving more sreet light to the big hill to the westward. Cast your eye westward, he said, some night, and you will note that Lincoln Heights is not lit up very well. Referred to light committee.

Colds to be Taken Seriously

Intelligent people realize that common colds should be treated promptly. If there is sneezing and chilliness with hoarseness, tickling throat and coughing, begin promptly the use of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It is effective, pleasant to take, checks a cold, and stops the cough which causes loss of sleep and lowers the vital resistance. Mathewson's drug store.

SUCCESS CROWNS YEAR'S WORK

getting further notes therefor.

Dated December 6th, 1913.

Erickson Construction Co.,
By C. J. Erickson, President.
Port Angeles Commercial Club,
By G. M. Lauridsen, President

The Sequim Commercial Club has turned over to our Club the notes mentioned in the abrogation of our agreement, and all the notes have been turned over to Mr. Erickson and the deal is closed.

35 Miles Roadbed Ready at Cost of $400,000.

It may not be generally known that had it not been for Mr. Erickson, we might still be without a railroad, or prospect of one. Where could we find another man who would put half a million dollars into building a railroad into Clallam county? Others have tried and failed in the attempt. At the present time nearly $400,000.00 have been expended, and in the neighborhood of 35 miles of road, or half the distance, is now completed and ready for the rails. No money has been spared to make it a first class road. This is evidenced by the finished roadbed. Three miles of rails are now in Seattle, and three miles more is expected any day. Before long we will hear the clatter and hammering in laying rails, starting in Port Angeles, laying westward. About 18 miles west of Port Angeles is ready for the ties and rails and we may, by May 1st, see trains running between Port Angeles and Lyre river. Truly speaking, Mr. C. J. Erickson is our "Moses" who has led us out of the wilderness, and some day the people of Clallam county should erect a monument, in commemoration of what he has done for us.

Securing Free Sites for Industrial Purposes.

While the principal work of the Club during the past year has been obtaining the right-of-way, our secretary has not been idle regarding other matters affecting our interests. The biggest Lumber Mill on the Pacific Coast is now our boast; the long looked for Railroad on the Peninsula is now an assured fact; but greatest of all will be the securing of a Lease, for the City, of two miles of the "Spit" for Industrial Sites. The bill for the Lease has passed in the Senate, and our Congressmen are confident that it will also be passed in the House. The work, getting this matter in shape, has been accomplished mainly thru our active member, Mr. W. B. Ritchie. He went to Washington, D. C., to confer, and lay the matter before the proper authorities, and later has made several trips to Portland, negotiating with the Lighthouse Board, which has charge of the Lighthouse Reserve, or that part we want.

If we can offer free sites to industries, any number of them will locate here. That means employment to thousands of workmen, who will want homes, and great activity in building will follow. If we succeed in obtaining this piece of ground, I believe that within a few years we will see Port Angeles the greatest industrial center on the Pacific Coast.

The Weather Bureau Office.

The Commercial Club has taken up with the Government the removal of the Weather Bureau office from Port Crescent to Port Angeles. This is the logical place for it. As a place of refuge in a storm, vessels will always seek Port Angeles' Harbor, and seafaring men, if the office was located here, could then obtain information direct as to the weather conditions, before they ventured out again. With proper presentations of the facts, we believe, the Government will see the wisdom of moving the office to Port Angeles.

Status of the "Federal Building" Matter.

The matter of getting a Government Building for Port Angeles was brought up before the Club, and a bill for same introduced in Congress. The Government owns the most suitable site in the city, corner First and Oak streets. About $200,000.00 has been paid to the Government by other people for lots and acreage inside the city limits, and there is no valid reason why the Government should not expend part of that money for a public building here, for its own as well as the benefit of the people who paid this large sum of money for their homes. I believe that there would have been no trouble to have secured the passage of this bill were it not for interference, prompted and wholly inspired by selfish interest. Government officials have declared that they will not relinquish lots 8, 9 and 10, corner First and Oak streets, and that those lots should be reserved for a government building site. The City Hall is located on Lot 10. It is evident that at the present time the Government will not erect a building there covering all of the three lots, and the City will find no difficulty to lease part of the ground for the City Hall, until such a time as it may decide where to erect a permanent building. In the meantime steps should be taken to secure a site for a City Hall. The City owns three lots corner Second and Cherry, but in the event that those lots should be retained for present use, then I believe, with the generosity the Government has heretofore shown towards the City, by giving the Cemetery, the City Park and the Court House site, that we will have no difficulty in obtaining for the City the two lots corner Third and Lincoln, which are still owned by the Government, for a city hall site. The settlers on the remaining portion on the Government block are on the wrong tack, when they joined in with a certain individual in abusing the Commercial Club. They are being used as a club to help him in getting a valuable lot, worth about $10,000.00, and to the detriment of the City. The Commercial Club, with the facts before it, that the Government would not let go lots 8, 9 and 10, went on record as favoring the Government's retention of these lots for a Federal building, and there has been no disposition on the part of the Club to prevent the settlers on the other lots from getting them. In fact, I believe, the Club will gladly lend its assistance to help them in obtaining title, as it is certainly better for the City that lots not needed by the Government become private property, on account of taxation and other public improvements.

With a Federal building on the corner of Oak and First streets, the post office would occupy the first floor and the custom house office, the forestry department and the weather bureau would have ample room in the balance of the building. A tower on top of the building could serve for the weather signals. With such a building here, the Government would have no use for the balance of the lots, reserved for various purposes, and the chances for private ownership would be much better. In taking steps to get a Federal building here, the Commercial Club was only actuated in consideration of the best interest of the City as a whole. It would certainly seem of more benefit to the City to have a fine Government building here, than letting avaricious individuals gobble up the land for the site on which to put it.

The Good Work of Secretary Pearce.

The year of 1913 has put Port Angeles and the Olympic Peninsula on the map. Our part of the country is now known and considered as the "coming" and the best part of the undeveloped West. Two years ago not one in ten ever heard of the Olympic Peninsula — now everybody knows about us. Thru Secretary Pearce, who is a former newspaperman, we have received a great deal of publicity in the Tavoma and Seattle papers, exploiting the great developments taking place in Clallam county.

The successful finish of the Olympic Power Dam, which was one of the greatest undertakings and one of the big things on the Pacific Coast, the big Million Dollar Lumber Mill, built by Mr. Earles in Port Angeles, the real building of a railrod into the Olympic Peninsula by Mr. C. J. Erickson, the completion and opening of the Sol Duc Hot Springs, which are destined to become the most famous Health and Pleasure Resort in the United States—some 6,000 people visited the Springs the first season, and the trip was pronounced by all to be one of the grandest scenic road drives in the world — the county voting bonds and spending over a half million for good roads in two years, and best of all, Port Angeles waking up from her "Rip Van Winkle sleep," building two fine bridges and contemplating spending several hundred thousand dollars for street improvements, for which one contract of about $200,000.00 has already been let. These are achievements and events of which we may all be proud, and good news worth heralding broadcast to the rest of the world.

The actions and activities of the Commercial Club have been solely directed with the aim of promoting the welfare of the City in general, and not for any individuals or any section of the City. Nobody can truly say otherwise. Nevertheless, with all we have accomplished and are endeavoring to do, the Club has been subject to the most unwarranted and vicious attacks by people who never lift a finger to help or promote anything for the general welfare of the community, unless it be to further their own selfish ends.

To promote the advancement of our city, we must have a commercial organization, and every good citizen should get behind it and give their moral as well as their financial support; this is essential if we expect to build a city here.

In conclusion, I wish to thank the members of the Club and all good citizens who have stood by us, for their assistance and loyal support, and I hope that the same favors will be extended to the Commercial Club in the future as in the past.

looking things to a foreigner.

The queen was still on the veranda when we were prepared to leave. I had previously expressed my admiration of the queen's song, "Aloha Oe" and before we left the secretary presented each of the ladies in our party with a copy of the music with the queen's compliments.

Thus ended the royal reception and we enjoyed the beautiful gardens as we passed out. It was then that the members of our little party made each other's acquaintance(one of the families we had however met prior to this in another part of the city.) Curiously, the group was composed of members all residing in the State of Washington: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Calvert and daughter from Seattle, Mr. J. N. Butler and daughter from Spokane and the writer and his wife. Before parting, I took a picture of the group in memory of the occasion and this with a picture of the queen's residence, which I was permitted to take later in the day, I will enclose herewith.

It was then nearly lunch time and we boarded the car for a ride home through the fine parks and avenues. At the capitol grounds a large Christmas tree was being set in place for the children in Honolulu and gay crowds of natives and orientals filled the squares.

With greetings to our friends at home, I beg to remain,

Yours truly,
J. C. CHRISTENSEN.

SYNOPSIS.

Kirk Anthony, son of a rich man, with college friends, gets into a fracas in a New York resort. A detective is hurt. Jefferson Locke insinuates himself into the college men's party.

Locke, aided by Kirk's friend Higgins, who thinks it a joke, drugs Kirk and puts him aboard a ship bound for Colon. Kirk is on the passenger list as Locke.

CHAPTER III.

Pamana Next Stop.

"SAY!" Anthony raised himself excitedly on one arm, but was forced to lie down again without delay. "If this is a ship I must have come aboard. How did I do it? When? Where?"

"You came on with two men, or, rather, between two men, about 8:30 this morning. They put you in here, gave your ticket to the purser and went ashore. The slim fellow was crying, and one of the deckhands had to help him down the gangway."

"That was Higgins, all right. Now, doctor, granting just for the sake of argument that this is a ship and that I am Jefferson Locke, when is your next stop?"

"One week."

"What?" Kirk's eyes opened wide with horror. "I can't stay here a week."

"You will have to."

"But I tell you I can't—I just can't. I bought a new car the other day, and it's standing in front of the New York theater. Yes, and I have two rooms and a bath at the hotel at $15 a day."

The physician smiled heartlessly. "You must have been drinking pretty heavily, but I guess you will remember everything by and by."

"I can't understand it," groaned the bewildered invalid. "What ship is this—if it is really a ship?"

"The Santa Cruz. Belongs to the Consolidated Fruit company. This is one of the bridal suits. It is 11:30 p. m., Nov. 21. We are bound for Colon. Good night. That capsule will make you sleep."

When the officer had gone Kirk turned over and fell asleep. Morning showed him the truth of the doctor's information. He awoke early, and, although his head still behaved queerly and he had moments of nausea, he dressed himself and went on deck.

A limitless, oily sea stretched out before his bewildered eyes. He touched the rail with his hands to verify his vision. He felt as if he were walking in his sleep. He realized that a great fragment had suddenly dropped out of his life's pattern.

Although Anthony was a youth of few responsibilities, he awoke suddenly to the fact that there were a thousand things that needed doing, a thousand people who needed to know his whereabouts, a thousand things that were bound to go wrong. For instance, there was his brand new French car, standing with motor blanketed beside the Forty-fifth street curb. What had happened to it and to the urchin he had left in charge of it? He owed $1,000 on its purchase, which he had promised to pay yesterday. That remittance from his father had come just in the nick of time. Suddenly he recalled placing the check in his bill case, and he searched himself diligently, but found nothing. It was simply imperative that he get some word ashore.

He let his eyes rove over the ship in desperation. Then a happy thought came to him.

"The wireless!" he said aloud. "Bonehead! Why didn't you think of that long ago?" A glance at the rigging showed him that the Santa Cruz was equipped with a plant, and a moment later he was hammering at the operator's door.

"I want to send a message right away!" he cried excitedly. But the "wireless" shook his head, with a smile.

"We're installing a new system. The old apparatus wasn't satisfactory, and it's being changed throughout."

"Then you—you can't send a message—possibly?"

"Nothing doing until the next trip."

Kirk strode forward and stared disconsolately down upon the freight deck in a vain endeavor to collect his thoughts. He recalled the incidents of that wild night and began to have a disquieting doubt. Did that chance meeting with the chap from St. Louis have anything to do with his presence here, or had he really decided in some foolish, drunken whim to take a trip to Central America? He recollected that Jefferson Locke had not impressed him very favorably at the start.

The sound of a bugle, which Kirk interpreted as an invitation to breakfast, reminded him that he was famished, and he lost no time in going below. Upon his appearance the steward made it plain to him in some subtle manner that the occupant of suit A needed nothing beyond the mere possession of those magnificent quarters to insure the most considerate treatment. Kirk was placed at the captain's table, where his hunger was soon appeased, and his outlook grew more cheerful with the complete restoration of bodily comfort.

"Getting your sea legs, Mr. Locke?" inquired the man at his right.

"My name is Anthony."

"I beg your pardon! The passenger list said"—

"That was a mistake."

"My name is Stein. May I ask where you are bound for?"

"I think the place is Panama."

"Going to work on the canal?"

"What canal? Oh, of course! Now I remember hearing something about a Panama canal. Is that where it is?"

"That's the place," Stein replied dryly.

"Oh, I've heard it mentioned."

"Well, you won't hear anything else mentioned down here. It's the one and only subject of conversation. Nobody thinks or talks or dreams about anything except the canal. Everybody works on it or else works for somebody who does. See this fellow coming down the stairs?" Anthony beheld a slender, bald headed man of youthful appearance. "That is Stephen Cortlandt. You've heard of the Cortlandts?"

"Sure! One of them pitched for the Cubs."

"I mean the Cortlandts of Washington. They're swell people, society folks and all that"— He broke off to bow effusively to the late comer, who seated himself opposite. Then he introduced Kirk.

Mr. Cortlandt impressed Anthony as a cold blooded, highly schooled person, absolutely devoid of sentiment. He seemed by no means effeminate, yet he was one of those immaculate beings upon whom one can scarcely imagine a speck of dust or a bead of perspiration.

"By the way, we're getting up a pool on the ship's run," Stein told his new acquaintance. "Would you like to join?"

"Yes, indeed. I'm for anything in the line of chance."

"Very well. I'll see you in the smoking room later. It will cost you only $5."

Kirk suddenly recalled his financial condition and hastened to say, a trifle lamely:

"Come to think about it, I believe I'll stay out. I never gamble." Chancing to glance up at the moment he found Mr. Cortlandt's eyes fixed upon him with a peculiarly amused look and a few minutes later he followed Mr. Stein to the deck above.

Once in his own stateroom search showed Kirk that even his watch was gone and that his only asset, evidently overlooked by the hilarious Higgins and his co-partner in crime, was a modest three stone finger ring. He had neither baggage nor money. He was regarding his ring speculatively when the purser knocked, then entered at his call.

"I've just heard that there's a mistake about your ticket," the newcomer began. "It is made out to 'Mr. Jefferson Locke,' but the doctor says you insist your name is something else."

"That's right. My name is Anthony."

"Then how did I get this ticket?"

"I'm sure I don't know."

"Have you any baggage?"

"I don't know."

"What is your destination?"

"I don't know. You'll pardon my limited vocabulary?"

"But I don't understand."

"Neither do I. But I must have some luggage. I need a clean shirt and collar."

"If you are not Mr. Locke the ticket is no good."

"Hurrah! Put me off."

"You don't understand—the ticket is good, but"—

"Pardon the personal nature of the question—but—what size shirt do you wear?"

"Seventeen."

"Saved! Let me have about six, will you?"

"Certainly not," returned the other. "I need all I have. I'll have a look for your baggage, Mr.—Anthony, and I'll see the captain about this ticket also. I'll look you up later."

He departed, shaking his head as if this were a form of insanity he had never before encountered. A moment later Kirk followed him and made a round of the deck, staring at each man he met and mentally estimating the girth of his neck. Then he made his way toward the smoking room, determined to enlist the help of his new acquaintance, Stein.

Midway aft he paused. A girl had emerged from the deckhouse ahead of him, whose appearance was sufficiently striking to divert him, momentarily at least, from his quest. She was well above the usual height, quite slender, yet of an exquisite rounded fullness, while her snug fitting tailor made gown showed the marks of taste. Kirk let his eyes follow her, then retraced his way around the deck in the hope of meeting her face to face.

But when they had met and passed he went his way vaguely disappointed. Instead of a girl, as the first sight of her youthful figure had led him to expect, he had seen a woman of perhaps forty. She was certainly not so handsome as he had imagined from a distance. Yet the face was attractive. The eyes were wide set, gray and very clear, the mouth large enough to be expressive. Her hair shone in the morning sun with a delicate bronze luster like that of a turkey's wing.

He dismissed her from his thoughts and continued his search for a number seventeen shirt and collar to match. But he did not fare well. He found Mr. Stein in the smoking room, but discovered that his size was fifteen and a half, and there was no one else to whom he could apply.

For a second time Stein importuned him to buy a chance on the ship's run, and, failing in this, suggested that they have a drink together. Had not Kirk realized in time his inability to reciprocate he would have accepted eagerly, for his recent dissipation had left him curiously weak and nervous. At the cost of an effort, however, he refused.

Stein laughed. "Don't get sore. All ships are alike. We have to talk about something. Sorry I can't help you with the shirt question. Deuced careless of them to lose your luggage."

"Yes. It makes one feel about as comfortable as a man with a broken arm and the prickly heat. Something's got to be done about it, that's all." He glared enviously at the well dressed men about the room.

Over in a corner, propped against the leather upholstery, was Mr. Cortlandt, as pale, as reserved and as saturnine as at breakfast. He was sipping Scotch and soda, and in all the time that Anthony remained he did not speak to a soul save the waiter, did not shift his position save to beckon for another drink. Something about his sour, introspective aloofness displeased the onlooker, who shortly returned to the deck.

The day was warming up, and on the sunny side of the ship the steamer chairs were filling. Two old men were casting quoits; a noisy quartet was playing shuffleboard. After idling back and forth on deck for a time Kirk selected a chair and stretched himself out.

"Do you wish this chair for the voyage, sir?" asked the deck steward.

"Yes, I think so."

"I'll put your name on it."

"Anthony, suit A, third floor front."

"Very well, sir." The man wrote out a card and fitted it to the back of the chair, saying, "One dollar, if you please."

"I haven't got a dollar."

The steward laughed, as if to humor his passenger. "I'm afraid, then, you can't have the chair."

"So I must stand up all the way to Panama, eh?"

"You are joking, sir. I'll have to pay it myself if you don't."

"That's right. Make me as uncomfortable as possible. By the way, what size collar do you wear?"

"Sixteen."

Kirk sighed. "Send the purser to me, will you? I'll fix up the chair matter with him."

While he was talking he heard the rustle of skirts close by and saw the woman he had met earlier seating herself next to him. It annoyed the young man to realize that out of all the chairs on deck he had selected the one nearest hers.

Then the purser appeared. "Did you send for me?" he inquired.

"Yes. There was a strange man around just now, and he wanted a dollar for this chair."

"Well?"

"I want to establish a line of credit."

The purser grunted.

"And, say!" Kirk ran on seriously. "I've been all over your little ship, but the passengers are boys' size. I can't wear this collar any longer."

"And I can't find any baggage of yours. I've seen the captain about that ticket matter," he went on, "and he says you must buy another. If you are joking you've carried this thing far enough. If you are really strapped, as you say you are, how does it happen that you are occupying the best suit on the ship?"

"It is a long story."

"Humph! You will have to give up those quarters and go forward."

"Why? You have your money for that ticket?"

"Yes, but you're not Mr. Locke."

"Well, sir, now that I come to think it over, I believe my name is Locke, after all." He grinned. "Anyhow, I love my little room, and I think I'll keep it. Please don't be peevish. I want you to do me a favor." He removed the ring from his finger and, handing it to the purser, said: "I want you to get me two diamonds' and a ruby's worth of shirts and collars and also a safety razor."

The officer managed to say, with dignity: "You wish to raise money on this, I presume. Very well, I will see what can be done for you, Mr. Locke."
