ENGINE AND RAILS HERE

A New "Tacoma Eastern" Locomotive Borrowed to Handle Construction Train.

Ten cars of new rails, sufficient to lay about two miles, loaded on C., M. & St. P. cars, and one of the Milwaukee's "Tacoma Eastern" engines were landed Tuesday from a car ferry at the Little River Railroad dock and track laying will shortly be commenced by the crew from camp No. 1 near the old Geist mill. Additional shipments of rails will be made as frequently as they can be used.

Piledriving and capping on the railroad trestle from the Little River tracks to the Earles mill is nearly half completed, additional buildings of the cannery plant having been torn down to afford right-of-way.

ELWHA BRIDGE READY MARCH 10

Material Is All On the Ground and About Half the Steel Already in Place.

A piece of news which will be most interesting to all and particularly pleasing to the residents of the territory west of the Elwha was imparted to a representative of the Olympic-Leader this week by the Superintendent in charge at the new bridge, namely that the contractors confidently expect to complete the handsome new structure by March 10, and to have it open for traffic shortly after that date.

The work dragged at the start, and things looked pretty bad for awhile, but it has been progressing very satisfactorily during the past month, until the contractors are much encouraged. The bridge is about half in place with all false work complete and about all the material on the ground. The work of putting the balance in place will really be a small matter. And to the ordinary man the work as done is simply marvelous. The ease and perfection with which immense stringers of steel are put in place shows that the contractors know their business.

GOVERNOR MUCH IMPRESSED

Olympia, Wash.,
February 18, 1914.

Mr. W. S. Pearce, Secretary
Port Angeles Commercial Club,
Port Angeles, Washington.

My Dear Mr. Pearce:

I have at hand your kind letter of the 17th inst, and desire to thank you for the same. I was pleased indeed to tatednyrubo rc:se:tm fff-o deed to attend your recent celebration and hope that I may have the opportunity of coming again. I was very much impressed by the material developments in evidence in your community and trust that your progress may continue unabated. I shall be glad to assist you in that progress in any way that I can.

Sincerely yours,
ERNEST LISTER,
Governor.

MAY BEGIN NEXT WEEK

Grand Rise in Business Circles Should Precede Grading.

The council will sit as a board of equalization on the down town street grade assessment on Tuesday, February 24th. As soon as they have that matter adjusted the contractors will have fifteen days in which to begin work; as part of the material, including a scow load of pipe, is already piled on the beach, it is more than likely that they may actually commence work next week. It is already time that plans were made and work begun on the raising of the buildings on Front street for, as Mr. Lewis says, it will cost much less if done before than after the grading begins.

LEWIS ADDRESSES BROTHERHOOD

Story of Hydraulic Grading Told to Interested Audience by Contracting Expert

The west has been described as the country where little noise is made over the doing of big things.

What the west takes as a matter of course the eastern magazines would feature as a great achievement.

Take the record of the firm of Lewis, Wiley & Morse, hydraulic engineers; such a story is a record of one of the biggest of doings of a country in which big projects are the rule and not the exception.

Mr. Lewis's talk at the Brotherhood dinner Monday night at the Congregational church was not an array of dry, uninteresting statistics proving by the mighty weight of figures that hydraulic engineering pays. It was a simple, yet eloquent presentation of a series of most interesting facts—facts from which the hearer could not fail to draw his own conclusion that it is immensely more economical to wash a yard of earth to the fill where it is needed than to carry it by means of cars and barrows.

Mr. Lewis put his evidence before his hearers in the form of pictures showing what had actually been done on Seattle and Portland re-grades. "Before and after taking" the water cure showed hills and young mountains up which little traffic could pass replaced by easy grades, inviting to both eye and capital. For, as was easily deduced from Mr. Lewis's exposition, as grades go down, values go up.

Specific methods used were given in detail; how the wooden conveyor-pipes are protected by concrete re-inforcements so as to prevent wear; how sluiced land is held off by means of embankments so as to be kept within such boundaries as desired; how a model is made in miniature of work to be done; how fills are made beneath buildings without interrupting the work of the owner, and many other methods by which hydraulics is shown to be the rapid and efficient method of regrading.

Mr. Lewis had a hard task in keeping up to the standard of the most excellent dinner served by the ladies and the appreciative introduction given by Dr. F. T. Hyde, President of the Brotherhood, but it was the consensus of opinion that the ladies, presiding officer and speaker are entitled to divide the honors of an enjoyable and instructive evening.

The next speaker before the Brotherhood will be Mayor Cotterill of Seattle.

BAND CONCERT WEDNESDAY

The management of the Dream Theatre has secured a number of fine big features for the month of March. The first of these will be shown Monday, March 2nd, the title being announced in the next issue of this paper.

An enjoyable concert will be given by the P.A.M. Band next Wednesday. These concerts are becoming quite popular and are marked with a large attendance. They are given every other Monday, but because of the Fireman's Ball this Monday the day has been changed to Wednesday.

The dysentery of words that a three line item will bring from Campbell & Peter's Joke is indeed amazing.

RUB YOUR TWO EYES!

Things Are Moving from Ennis to Z—Wake Up and Join the March of Progress.

Shall Laurel and Oak be graded now? In another column is published City Clerk Beam's call for a meeting at the city hall at 7 p.m. Monday night next to discuss the question of improvements in the central portion of the townsite, lying directly back of the business section.

Rough estimates submitted by Engineer Filion place the total cost of improving the hill by grading Lincoln, Laurel, Oak, Cherry, and parts of Valley, Second, First, and A at $185,000 with assessed valuation of $230,000. Mr. Filion also places the cost of the Lincoln street sewer, which would drain the entire territory between Peabody and Cherry, at $10,000.

Councilman Shields stated Tuesday night, in asking for the naming of a committee to meet with the property owners, that the majority of those who had spoken to him concerning the matter were in favor of including the entire section in one big district. Shields, Bigelow, and Fisher were named the committee to meet with the citizens at 7 p. m. Remember that every objector, if any there be, will be present, so see that you turn out and put in your oar for the advancement of the central portion of the town—the only section that has not yet awakened from its Rip VanWinkle sleep.

EIGHTH AND K UNDER WAY

Resolutions for Improvement of Lincoln Heights Streets Adopted by Council.

The improvement of Eighth and K streets, with a trunk road to the water front west of Earles' mill, was finally gotten under way Tuesday, by the adoption of two new resolutions, introduced at the Council meeting by Mr. Shields.

No advances for preliminary expenses having been forthcoming in response to the resolution adopted last week looking to the improvement of the whole northwest section of Lincoln Heights, Councilman Shields said he did not think the original projects wherein the preliminary finances were guaranteed should suffer, and moved the adoption of the new resolutions.

The Eighth street improvement extends from C street to M, and the K street improvement from Third to Sixteenth. The latter having a trunk road to the water front includes the territory between H and M streets in an enlarged district.

The date of hearing is set for March 12th.

FIREMEN'S DANCE MONDAY

The Firemen give a dance in the opera house Monday night next for the purpose of raising the remainder of the $500 subscribed by them towards the purchase of the auto hose truck. Benefit dances have been given for various organizations and individuals, but this is the first time we have had an opportunity to attend a dance given expressly for our own benefit.

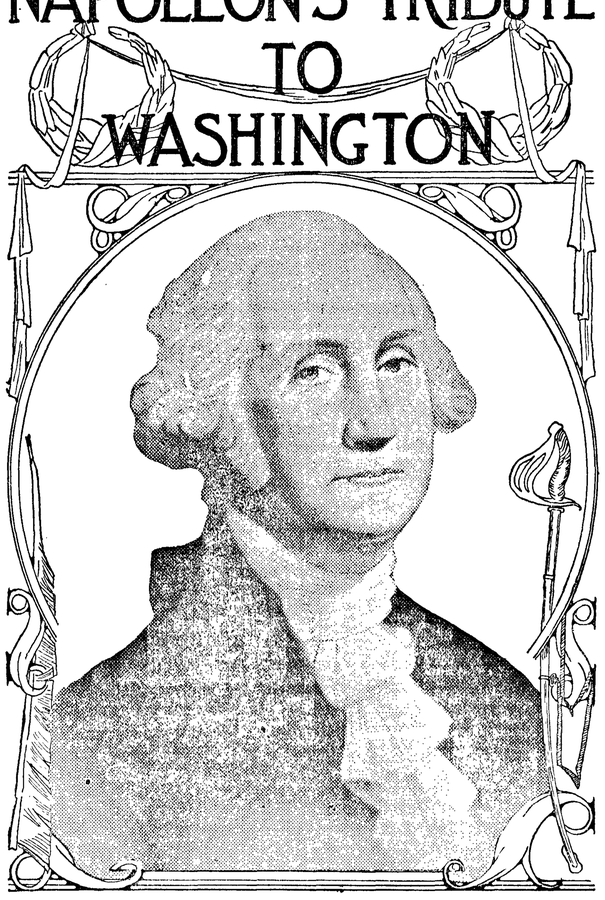
ANOTHER TAILORING SHOP

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas are new arrivals in Angeles from Palouse, Washington. They have opened a ladies' and men's tailoring establishment on Front street opposite the post office and represent the American and Ideal Tailoring Co.

A number of oil locations have been filed with the county auditor during the week from locations thruout the length of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Aldwell went to Seattle Monday to spend the week.

NAPOLEON'S TRIBUTE TO WASHINGTON



WASHINGTON is dead. This great man struggled against tyranny. He has achieved the liberty of his country. His memory will be cherished forever by the French people, as by all freemen of the two hemispheres, and especially by the French soldiers, who, like Washington and the American soldiers, fought for equality and liberty. Therefore the First Consul directs that for ten days crape be hung on all the flags and guidons of the republic.—Napoleon (Order to the Army, Champs de Mars, 1800).

CONDEMNED AND FIRED

Drastic Regulations Intended to Put Crimp in Employment Agency Business.

A new ordinance regulating employment agencies was adopted by the city council Tuesday, the matter being introduced by the reading of a petition, signed by 501 residents, protesting against private employment agencies on the ground that all parties had a right to work without paying for that right.

The substitute ordinance reported by the committee for the proposed ordinance regulating such agencies was then read; its provisions are seemingly complete for the annihilation of any licensed bureau in Port Angeles. Besides fixing the license at $250 per year, it provides that license shall be issued for full year only, to an individual and not to a corporation, at a specified place, a $10 fee to be paid for transfer of location; shall not be in a place where intoxicating liquors are sold, or in any room opening therein; license and copy of ordinance shall be kept posted in conspicuous place in said office; license shall read subject to revocation; registration book shall be kept posted up to date with all data covering transaction with applicant for job together with fee collected; applicant shall not be required to pay fee until he is fully advised of what he is paying for and accepts same; if he accepts he is to be given a receipt for amount paid and stating for what paid, same to be refunded if receipt is returned within a reasonable time with proof that job was not available or that he was not employed, and expenses where information furnished applicant was not correct. The ordinance also provides that no fee shall be charged for work in which agency is in any manner connected. Collusion with employers is expressly forbidden. All under penalty of $100 fine, 30 days in jail or both, and revocation of license.

Mr. Plummer appeared before the Council in behalf of Mr. Shearer's Employment Agency, stating that agencies are generally clearing houses and a convenience to workmen. A general discussion followed in which Messrs. Shearer, Garber, Eagle, Shields, Fleming, Boomer, Halvorson, and others took part. The president of the Shingle Weavers Association then in session in Haning Hall was sent for. Meanwhile Shields stated that local people would make affidavit that employment agent had visited contractor's camp east of town and ascertaining that men were paid $3 per day agreed to furnish men for $2.25. Halvorsen stated that a man of family had applied for work and was asked for his employment bureau certificate; on stating that he had none, he was told he could get

WHY NOT A LADY?

Mrs. Madge Nailor Suggested as Candidate for School Director.

Mrs. Madge Nailor has been suggested by a number of people as a possible candidate for school director The Olympic-Leader would like very much to see her as a member of the board. In addition to being an experienced and efficient business woman, she is the mother of two small boys so has the best interests of the school at heart. All persons familiar with school work recognize the many advantages of having a woman on the board. When the larger per cent of our teachers are women does it not seem preferable that at least one member of the board be of their sex, to whom they can go and discuss unreservedly their various school problems and difficulties?

A. A. A. REORGANIZATION

The Angeles Athletic Association has reorganized with the following officers:

President, Ed Shields.
Vice-Pres., W. S. Pearce.
Secretary, Bob Paulhamus.
Treas., J. D. Hickok.
Board of Trustees, Willis Mathewson, C. R .Graves, J. C. Burkston.

They expect to give a dance and a smoker in the near future. All members wishing to pay dues will see Bob Paulhamus.

Dr. McGillivray was a business visitor to Seattle this week.

COMMITTEE O-KS SPIT LEASE

Congressman Falconer Secured Favorable and Early Action on Ediz Hook Lease.

Word was received from Congressman Falconer this week to the effect that the full house committee had reported favorably on the Poindexter bill for the Ediz Hook spit lease, with two slight amendments which do not affect the merits of the bill. This practically settles all doubt concerning the passage of the bill.

Mr. J. Lloyd Aldwell has also received a letter from Mr. Falconer, who is working on the matter of a Federal building for Port Angeles, advising him that the government has received $166,167.55 from the sale of lots in Port Angeles Townsite, of which sum $131,755.55 has been paid for lots which have been patented, and $34,412 for lots not yet patented. The last sum includes $20,177 paid on lots which have been suspended pending receipt of further proof, and $14,235 on the sale of lots recently made, the proofs for which are under consideration. From which it would appear that Port Angeles has already paid for a Federal building in the $150,000 class, and she will have it if the efforts of those who have the best interests of the city at heart be of any avail.

CITY MUST HAVE MORE HYDRANTS

City Is Now Paying for Service at Rate of Six Per Cent on Investment of $20,000.

The matter of adequate fire protection was brought up by Councilman Bigelow Tuesday evening, with the result that a committee of three was appointed to arrange for the necessary number of hydrants and to take matter before the commission if satisfactory arrangements cannot be made.

Bigelow wanted a hydrant placed at 12th and Pine streets and stated that there was but one hydrant on the whole of Pine Hill. He asked that the letter recently received from Mr. Brewer be read. Shields, commenting on the letter, said he thought it ridiculous that the water company should send down a communication stating that the company was making no money when the city alone for fire service is paying six per cent interest on a valuation of over $20,000, to say nothing of the general public patronage. As far as he was concerned, he was ready to put the whole question of rates up to the Public Service Commission, and to take steps to have a physical valuation placed upon the plant with a view of purchasing if possible.

The practice of charging for tapping mains, and of paying for extensions, etc., came up for considerable excoriation by various members.

Bigelow, Fleming and Shields were named a committee of three to select necessary locations for new hydrants and to arrange meeting with water company, and, if not satisfactory, that same committee arrange to have matter submitted to public service commission with a view of getting a physical valuation of plant.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK; A SERIES OF TALKS BY CITIZENS

Under the above heading the Seattle Times is giving the opinions of some of the big men in the world of business, here in the Northwest. No. 20 of the series being a very optimistic view by Thos. T. Aldwell, General Manager of the Olympic Power Company:

"During the past few months trouble has been incurred every time our citizens of the Northwest have gone back East to procure money to prosecute the developments which means much to the upbuilding of the Pacific slope. Eastern men do not understand our conditions and flying trips to Puget Sound, though better than nothing, are anything but adequate when a thorough knowledge of local circumstances is necessary. Hence development has never kept pace with our desires. Particularly has this been so in times of strain.

Under the new conditions, just when various factors, such as the interoceanic canal, the building of government roads in Alaska and the like, there has been given to us a currency law, under which, as I understand it, money will be easier and withal cheaper.

I believe the greatest development, however, will come from the exploitation of these things which lie near at hand rather than from the distant green fields, however verdant they may be in reality. The wealth of this state is known, but realized it is not. If we are to have an ocean trade we must develop our near at hand resources which will create cargo. A great addition to that source of cargo is given in the opening up of the store houses of the Olympic peninsula by railway and by power.

I think the time of harvest has come for those pioneers who have waited and worked and hoped for a generation. Many large fortunes will be made within the next few years. To the man of initiative the road to a competence never lay so wide open as it does today.

There appears to be a law in Kansas providing that married men are to be fined twice as much for drunkenness as single men, which in its last analysis means that the burden will fall just twice as heavily upon the married inebriate's wife and children.

It is an interesting sign of the times that so many of our standpat senators are announcing that they expect to retire purely voluntarily upon the expiration of their present terms. So much more pleasant for the voters to have it done in that way, you know.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon says he doesn't know what the future holds in store for him politically. Neither do we, —but we can make a mighty good guess.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT ABOUT WASHINGTON.

Few men who have earned for themselves a celebrated name in the history of the world exhibit such a harmony, such a concordant symmetry of all the qualities calculated to render himself and others happy, as Washington, and it has been very appropriately observed that, like the masterpieces of ancient art, he must be the more admired in the aggregate the more closely he is examined in detail.—George von Raumer (Holland).

Thou hast a name whose characters of light shall ne'er depart;
'Tis stamped upon the dullest brain
and warms the coldest heart,
A warcry fit for any land where freedom's to be won:
"Land of the west! It stands alone
—it is thy Washington."
—Eliza Cook (England).

The talents and the great actions of General Washington have secured to him in the eyes of all Europe the truly sublime title of the "Liberator of America."—Count d'Estaing (France).

Two large packers last week gave up the fight against the pure food prosecutions being brought by J. J. Higgins, head of the food division of the department of agriculture, pleaded guilty and asked for light fines. The prosecutions are said to be having a telling effect on the grade of goods now being placed on the Washington market.

It is estimated that it will cost the state approximately $7,500 to submit each initiative or referendum measat the next election as thirteen measures are now on file, the total cost to the state promises to be approximately $100,000, the average cost of a session of the legislature. This takes account of the added cost to the counties of printing ballots, etc.

Cooperating with the industrial insurance department, Labor Commissioner E. W. Olson last week caused the arrest of the proprietor of a Hoquiam woodworking plant who had refused to comply with the orders of the inspector to safeguard his dangerous machinery.

Professor Trevor Kincaid, zoologist of the University of Washington, probably the best informed man on the Pacific coast on all questions of aquatic life, will cooperate with Commissioner Darwin and the commission in preparing the exhibit.

'Twas ever thus. While Rockefeller is scattering pennies to the Sunday school children the ruthless tax-gatherer is hunting for his personal property for taxation.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

Olympia, Feb. 17—Declaring that many small estates are now being squandered through exhorbitant charges for funeral expenses and legal fees the tax commission has announced that it will ask the next legislature to enact a law providing for the appointment of a public administrator in each county. The plan is to authorize the superior court of each county to make the appointment, the appointee to be a resident attorney, who would receive a commission to be fixed by law for administering the estate. The public administrator would take charge of all estates where no heirs resided within the state and to administer other estates when heirs residing within the state made such request to the court. The fixing of a statutory commission would do away with the double fees now necessary in probate cases.

A further provision of the proposed statute would be that the public administrator should be required to act in conjunctian with the tax commission in collecting inheritance taxes that pass by deed in contemplation of death. A large sum is lost by the state each year in cases where property is conveyed prior to death for the purpose of avoiding probate. The administrator, being on the and familiar with the records, could catch these conveyances and assist the commission in collecting the tax.

One of the cases which the commission found recently is an instance of the need that exists for some remedy. A man died leaving $2,000 in cash and no debts but funeral expenses. The undertaker was appointed administrator. After the expenses of administration and funeral expenses had been met, just $40 remained to be distributed to the heirs in the east. The commission believes that large amounts of money would be saved to the heirs and that thousands of dollars of escheats to the common school fund, when no heirs were found, would be gained under some such law as proposed.

Recent weeks of work on the part of Highway Commissioner William R. Roy and his deputies will show its effects during the month of March, when contracts for the construction of state highways that will total approximately $700,000 will be awarded.

The largest single piece of road in point of importance and cost will be 22 miles of the Sunset highway over Snoqualmie pass. Ever since frontier days there has been talk of a road through this pass. It has been the subject of bitter discussion in several legislatures and it now about to be built at last. For convenience the work remaining has been split into four contracts, all of which will be let March 2, if suitable bids are received. The estimated cost of this work is $280,000.

Next in importance is the Inland Empire highway. Two contracts are to be let south of Spokane, that will take the highway from that city south to Rosalia,, just below the Whitman county line. Another contract, for eight miles of construction, is to be let from Walla Walla to the west, several miles of the highway having been constructed already from Walla Walla eastward.

The other highway contracts to be let during March are for sections of the McClellan Pass highway, on both the east and west sides of the pass, two sections of the National Park highway, one in Pacific and one in Pierce county, and the west section of the Oymympic highway north of Humptulips. On this latter piece of work the state highway department and Chehalis county are cooperating, the county using its permanent highway funds to build a new stretch of road that will connect with the state work.

A highly satisfactory condition of the 261 state banks of Washington is shown in their reports to State Examiner W. E. Hanson. Their combined resources now total $122,934,-169.37, as against $114,916,834.53 one year ago, a 6 per cent. increase.

The combined capitalization of the banks is $12,581,200. They hold in deposits and trusts funds to a total of $99,891,988.35 and have outstanding loans of $75,132,740.59, besides bonds, stocks, warrants and other securities totaling $15,510,192.22. The deposits show an increase of 7 per cent. in a little less than a year.

Several of the state banks have declared their intentlon to nationalize since the new currency bill has become a law, though under a recent ruling of the state examiner, state banks may join the regional reserve banks and come under the currency act without giving up their state charters.

Japanese laundry proprietors, who have been working Japanese women in their establishments for 11½ hours a day, thus maintaining unfair competition with laundries operated by American citizens who complied with the state law by working their female help only eight hours a day, were brought up, with a jerk last when Labor Commissioner E. W. Olson brought prosecutions against the proprietors of the Grand Union, one of the largest establishments in Seattle.

Comprehensive exhibits of the fisheries and sea food products of Washington will form an important feature of this state's participation in the 1915 expositions at San Francisco and San Diego, according to plans now in preparation by the Washington state exposition commission.

L. H. Darwin, state fish commissioner, has been appointed commissioner of fisheries by the exposition commission and will have general supervision of the fisheries exhibits, including game and game fish exhibits as well as those showing the commercial fisheries. A large space has been applied for at San Francisco for the competitive fisheries exhibit.

September 21 to 27 were the dates assigned the Washington state fair at North Yakima, by the North Pacific Fair Association, which held its meeting last week at Vancouver, B. C., Dr. H. T. Graves, assistant commissioner of agriculture, representing this state.

Plans for this year's fair were taken under advisement by the advisory board of the department of agriculture when it met here this week. The date arranged for the state fair would conflict with that of the Pendleton Roundup, if the latter is held at the same time as last year. The Pendleton people were not represented at the Vancouver meeting.

The resolution of the fair association went on record in favor of uniform classification of all live stock and for small purses, none to exceed $1,000, for harness races.

Seattle residents who delight in the Swiss Alps may some time acquire the habit nearer home, and visit the Olympics, which Governor Lister has accurately described as "beauty in the rough." — Seattle Times.

Notice is hereby given that a committee, appointed by the Council, will meet with all property owners interested in the property abutting on Oak, Laurel, and Cherry streets, and First street west of Oak street, to consider the advisability of grading the foregoing named streets.

HANDWORK COSTS SO MUCH that a handsome house built that way is beyond the reach of any except the very wealthy. If there is any difference between our mill and hand work it is in our favor. SOME ANGELES OUTS

Written by S. E. Stakemiller for the Olympic Power Celebration.

Out where the sun shines every day,
Out where energy has full sway,
That's out in Angeles.
Out where things are doing without a doubt,
Out where "knockers" and "bums" are put to route.
That's out in Angeles.
Out where you meet people who always smile,
Out where living's made worth your while,
That's out in Angeles.
Out where the water and mountains meet,
That's out in Angeles.
Out where they always have plenty to eat,
That's out in Angeles.
Out where the women vote just as they please,
Out where the men, if they want favors, get down on their knees,
That's out in Angeles.
Out where "Improvement's" the slogan, you bet,
Out where you must "do," or they put up a sign "To let."
That's out in Angeles.
Out where the doctors havn't a great deal to do,
Out where you have little chance to feel "blue,"
That's out in Angeles.
Out where there's a town that takes everyone's eye,
Out where they come, take one look and then buy,
That's out in Angeles.
Out where everything's "hustle," "get up and dust,"
Out where you must yell once in a while or bust,
That's out in Angeles.
Out where the poet gets all this "fiss."
Out where you'e glad everything's just as it is,
That's out in Angeles.

ASK PRESIDENT WILSON TO ABOLISH MONUMENT

The Southwestern Washington Development Association, at its recent session at Hoquiam, adopted a resolution praying President Wilson, by executive action, to set aside the order creating the Mount Olympus National Monument. If the exact facts in connection with this alleged national monument were placed before the president and he could, from his other manifold duties, take time for a full consideration of the case, there is hardly any doubt that he would feel constrained to set aside the action of former President Roosevelt in creating this fake reservation.

The law authorizing the creation of national monuments was passed for the express purpose of conserving such objects of historical and national interest as the dwellings of the cliff dwellers and other relics of a past and remote age. Congress sought carefully to limit the size of such reservations by limiting the area to be reserved to barely the amount of land necessary to prevent these relics of antiquity from being injured and to secure their ample protection.

President Roosevelt was persuaded to use this law to create a great game preserve in the Olympics, covering many townships of land. The language and the purpose of the law were both twisted from their obvious intent and meaning in doing this. The lands were already within the limits of a forest reserve, so there could be no additional protection in making them into a fake "national monument." But in a forest reserve prospecting for minerals and the development of mines is permitted.

By making of such a great portion of the Olympic mountain range into an alleged national monument one of the richest mineral districts in this state, on which prospecting has disclosed veins of large potential value, is tied up; prospecting and development of the mineral resources has been forbidden, and this state substantially injured thereby. And it was all done in practical defiance of law by a patent subterfuge."—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

"STOP, LOOK, LISTEN!"

A LAWYER received $10,000 for suggesting those words to a railroad. That sign, "Stop, Look, Listen!" saved the road many thousands of dollars in damages. It's a good sign. It's worth $10,000. Wise people are often warned by a similar sign on the road of extravagance. They stop in time. How about yourself? Think this over seriously. A bank account is the BEST KIND OF SECURITY at any time.

"THE INDIAN"

In the above model, now in stock, the batteries are so connected, that both of them discharge into the electric starter to secure the highest amperage for cranking theengine as rapidly as possible. It is faster than any automobile starter.

The starter under ordinary conditions, will start the motor firing from cold, in from 12 to 15 seconds.

Run down cells are a rarity, as the generator is constantly charging the batteries while the engine is running.

Should the electric starter fail to start there is always current enough in the batteries to furnish regular ignition.

Indian two speed has entered upon its fifth year of successful service. Two speed permits throttling to a walking pace and almost six cylinder "pick up" for a quick spurt.

Indian two speed has won its popularity and created the present insistent demand for this feature becauscit has proved its superiority for mountain touring and side car work.

THE CITY COUNCIL

What seemingly started out to be a very tame session of the City Council Tuesday night developed into quite an important and a somewhat sensational session. Considerable work was transacted, the four members present adjourning at 11 p.m. Messrs. Fisher and Dustman were absent, thus leaving the bare quorum.

The first order of business is reports of committees and the street committee has first innings in this. Mr. Fowler stated that committee had looked into matter of purchasing wagon and had decided it the part of wisdom to buy a new one. Approved.

Finance committee asked another week in which to report on bridge assessment against gulch property, the chairman being away. Granted.

Mr. Fleming of cemetery committee reported he had one bid for ties taken from city ground, 2½c per tie, with brush and tops piled suitable for burning. He thought he might get additional bids and the matter went over for another week.

Mr. Fowler of Fire Wardens stated that his com. had seen Mr. Aldwell re fixing side exit to opera house, and he had agreed to make satisfactory changes under circumstances

Ord. Com. reported back ordinance directing issuance of bonds for Third street improvement to be dated Feb. 27th, and same was adopted by unanimous vote after the amount, $12,800 had been figured out and inserted therein. This does not include the entire cost, some $800 having already been collected and current expense fund reimbursed to extent of about $350.

City Attorney refused to o.k. one of the Aldwell plats for reason that the original settler had not obtained patent and now could not for reason that he had disposed of property before he had completed the necessary improvements. He therefor thought there would always be a cloud on the title for selling purposes only. The other plats of subd. of sub. lots 38 and 144 were approved by him and by council after considerable argument, they having been o. k. by both the engineer and attorney and conforming to city streets. Mayor and clerk to sign approval when fees are paid.

Property owners of vicinity asked that a hydrant be placed at 10th and Chase streets. Rfd. to water com.

Residents of Fourth ward asked for a light to be placed at 4th, 5th and 6th and Vine. Rfd.

W. B. Ritchie again communicated to council his desire to improve his property at 7th and Wash., asking that city take care of water going over his lots there. It developed in the argument that the flume complained of was placed across street in natural channel and not turned onto property by city. Laid over.

A communication was read from Corwin S. Shank to effect that if railroad is notified when deeds to Third street extended are deposited in bank, money will be at once forwarded to pay railroad's half of cost. The communication was filed. In this connection Mr. Shields reported that there was a hitch in this matter now. Two of the property owners were ready to sign up on agreement, but two outside residents desired to have additional assurance that they would be paid $1200 per acre for part taken and would not be assessed for the improvements made. An agreement had recently been signed and deposited with city with three propositions, one the above, second, that $1250 per acre be paid for land and damages awarded for strip of two acres left between street and railway right-of-way up the hill, alleged to be worthless because so narrow, and third, revise survey so 70 feet will be taken paralleling the railroad to Third street north, and $1000 per acre will be accepted. Formal protest was also made to vacating any portion of Railroad avenue.

Shields stated that Railroad was planning to use this street at an early day and this misunderstanding prevented somewhat. He moved that clerk be directed to notify railroad company of status of case so they could act accordingly. Carried. He then followed up with a motion that the city attorney bring in condemnation papers and that a committee of three be named to confer further with property owners. Same committee named.

Bills aggregating $269.70 allowed.

Permission to repair building burned last week was granted to owner, P. J. Wold.

Shields called up matter of providing hose for Tumwater Hill when old cart is sent up there. A motion by him to effect that Clerk be directed to advertise for bids for 1000 feet of hose, specifications to be filed with bids, carried.

Bigelow again brought up matter of removing bill boards from streets, especially from zig-zags where they obstructed lights. Shields stated he had talked with new owner and had his assurance that he would soon arrange to move those from Laurel street zig-zag, the most objectionable place. Bigelow moved that they be removed within 60 days; carried.

Bills were then read aggregating $2832.63, including new fire truck $900, light supplies $462.80 and Elwha juice for Dec. and Jan., $641.

Shields called attention of street committee to fast drying up of roads and opportune time to use road scraper.

SYNOPSIS.

Kirk Anthony, son of a rich man, with college friends, gets into a fracas in a New York resort. A detective is hurt. Jefferson Locke insinuates himself into the college men's party.

Locke, aided by Kirk's friend Higgins, who thinks it a joke, drugs Kirk and puts him aboard a ship bound for Colon. Kirk is on the passenger list as Locke.

Kirk wins the capital prize, $15,000, in the lottery. He and Runnels make plans for advancement. The Cortlandts, having turned from the older Alfarez, intend to make Senor Garavel, a banker, president of Panama.

"Broke" and without baggage, aboard the ship Kirk makes the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cortlandt.

Cortlandt is in the American diplomatic service and is going to Panama on a mission. In Colon Kirk, as the son of a big railroad man, is taken up by Weeks, American consul.

Kirk's father repudiates him, and Weeks casts him out as an impostor. Kirk meets Allan, a Jamaican negro canal worker out of a job. The two are arrested by Colon police for helping to put out a fire.

Kirk and Allan are treated brutally in a Colon jail by young Alfarez, commandant of police. Allan's release is obtained by the British consul, but Weeks refuses to aid Kirk. Mrs. Cortlandt gets a phone call.

CHAPTER VIII.

Spanish Law.

SENOR RAMON ALFAREZ was considerably nonplused when his two distinguished visitors made known the nature of their errand. Cortlandt did most of the talking, his cold hauteur serving a good purpose and contrasting strongly with the suppressed excitement of his wife.

"Pardon me, there is no necessity for delay," he said, as the commandant endeavored to formulate an excuse. "I trust I need not insist upon seeing the prisoner?" He raised his brows with a stare of inquiry that caused the other to reply hastily:

"Of a certainty not, senor."

"Then take us to him."

"I will spare your lady the painful sight of the prison house. The prisoner shall be fetch' with all dispatch."

"We will see him alone."

Again the commandant hesitated, while his bright eyes searched their faces with a sudden uneasy curiosity.

"He is resis' the officer by force an' he is injure'—oh, but only a leetle—it is not'ing. One is truly foolish for resis' the policemans, yes?" He shook his dark head sadly.

"I think we understand the circumstances."

Instead of ringing for an orderly the commandant excused himself, then, after a seemingly interminable delay, returned with Anthony and several policemen.

At sight of his friends the young man made for them eagerly, crying: "Jove, I'm glad you came! I'd about given you up."

"Allan only found us today," Mrs. Cortlandt replied. "Did he tell the truth? Have you been abused?"

The young man turned a pair of smoldering eyes upon his enemies. He looked ill and haggard, although, except for the wound half concealed beneath his hair, he showed no marks. Then he held out his hands with a grim smile, and the woman uttered a low cry at what she saw. "They gave me another good beating yesterday," he said.

"That's the fellow yonder."

"While you were in jail?" Cortlandt queried incredulously. "God!"

"That's the fellow yonder." Kirk pointed to Alfarez, whose smile had disappeared.

"Oh, the man is mistake," the latter hastened to aver. "He is crazee."

"I gave you a wetting in public, and"—

"Si, si! That is correc', Senor Cortlan'. He insolt my person an' fight my soldiers. He is ver' toff person."

"Did you know he had been maltreated in prison?" Cortlandt demanded.

"Oh, senor!" Alfarez raised his hands in horrified disclaimer of the very thought, but his victim said:

"He's a liar. He ordered it, then sat there and enjoyed it."

Kirk made a threatening movement in the Spaniard's direction, despite the half dozen soldiers, but Edith Cortlandt checked him.

"Wait, please," she said. Then to the commandant: "This is a serious matter, and if what he says is true your government will find itself in trouble."

"But we 'ave no idea he is frien' of yours. If he should only spik your 'osban's name, all would be different. For my part, I can prove he is treat with the 'ighes' courtesy an' kindness in my presence. Every man in the prison will testify to those fac'."

"Why did you keep him locked up so long? Why didn't you try him?" said Cortlandt.

"Ah! For that I shall inquire also. I am inform', 'owever, that the w'at you call jodge is seeck."

"We'll look into that later. We're here now to arrange for Mr. Anthony's release."

"The alcalde will be please' to accommodate at the earlies'. I myself shall see to it. Tomorrow"—

"There will be no tomorrow about it," Mrs. Cortlandt exclaimed, positively. "If you cannot arrange the bail yourself, my husband will take up the matter with the zone government, and Colonel Jolson will call upon the president of the republic within an hour. He is waiting word from us now."

Senor Ramon Alfarez became suddenly galvanized. He broke into effusive apologies for even so small a delay as had already occurred. While, to be sure, no power was vested in him, and his willing hands were most miserably tied, nevertheless he would so far exceed his authority as to promise instant freedom to the prisoner. He hastened forth to set in motion the proper machinery, and while he was absent Kirk told his story. It left the woman white lipped and incoherent, and roused even the icy Cortlandt to genuine wrath.

"Of course," the latter said, "Alfarez will prove by his men that it's all imagination on your part and that your injuries were sustained at the time of your arrest. He'll assume a righteous indignation and start a Spiggoty investigation. You see, his father is the governor of Panama province and one of the strongest men in the republic, so Ramon will probably make good his position. Even so, you may recover damages."

"I don't want damages," Kirk replied. "I want to get him out alone some time."

"For heaven's sake, don't think of it!" Mrs. Cortlandt exclaimed. "All the American influence on the isthmus wouldn't help you then. Fifty men would perjure themselves to convict you."

"No. That method doesn't work here," her husband agreed. "You're lucky to escape so easily. He will arrange bail, never fear, and you will probably not come to trial. He'll never forgive you, of course, but that won't matter to you."

The first part of Mr. Cortlandt's prediction was soon proved true, for the sick alcalde recovered sufficiently to appear on the scene within half an hour. Then, after much signing of official documents and certain other formalities, Kirk Anthony walked out of the Colon jail in company with his friends.

In the midst of Kirk's expressions of gratitude for the timely intercession of Cortlandt and his wife, the former surprised him by saying in a genuinely hearty tone:

"My wife has told me all about you, Anthony, and I want you to come over to Panama as my guest in the hotel until you hear from your father."

When Kirk informed him of the cablegram that had cast him adrift in Panama, Cortlandt replied reassuringly:

"Oh, well, your father doesn't understand the facts in the case, that's all. You sit down like a sensible person and write him fully."

Seeing a warm second to his invitation in Mrs. Cortlandt's eyes, Kirk accepted gracefully, explaining, "You know this is the first time I was ever up against hard luck, and I don't know just how to act."

"We've missed the 4:35, so we will have to return the way we came," said Cortlandt. "I'd like to stop at Gatun on a business matter of some importance, and if you don't mind a half hour's delay we'll do so."

They pursued their way to the station. But here an unexpected embarrassment arose. As they made ready to board Colonel Jolson's motorcar they were annoyed to find that Allan insisted on going too. He insisted, moreover, in such extravagant fashion that Mrs. Cortlandt at last was moved to say, "For heaven's sake, let the poor thing come along." And thereafter the Jamaican boy sat on the step of the machine.

Once more the little automobile took on the dignity of a regular train and sped out of the network of tracks behind Colon. As it gained speed Mrs. Cortlandt, to divert her guest's mind from his recent ordeal, began to explain the points of interest as they passed. She showed him the old French workings where a nation's hopes lay buried, the mechanical ruins that had cost a king's ransom, the Mount Hope cemetery, whither daily trains had borne the sacrifice before science had robbed the fever of its terrors.

"Will they really finish the canal?" he asked. "Won't something happen?"

"It is already dug. The rest is merely a matter of excavation and concrete. The engineering difficulties have all been solved, and the big human machine has been built up. What is more important, the country is livable at last. Over at Ancon hospital there is a quiet, hard working medical man who has made this thing possible. When the two oceans are joined together, and the job is finished, his will be the name most highly honored."

"It must be nice to do something worth while," Anthony mused vaguely.

"To do anything," his companion observed, with a shade of meaning; then "It is amusing to look back on the old Spanish statement that it would be impious to unite two oceans which the Creator of the world had separated."

As Kirk dropped asleep that night after the luxuries of a bath, clean clothes and a meal on white linen and china, he reflected contentedly that, after all, things have a way of coming right in this world for those who accept them cheerfully as they come.

On the following morning Kirk dispatched a long letter to his father, explaining, as well as he could, how he came to be in Panama and giving a detailed account of the events that had befallen him since his arrival. Although he took this means of relieving his father's anxiety, he was far from resigning himself to a further delay of his return. On the contrary, he at once began an inquiry as to sailing dates, discovering, to his intense disgust, that no ship was scheduled to leave for New York within several days. He planned to borrow the passage money from his friends when the time came, and accompany his letter northward. Meanwhile he devoted his time to sight seeing with his hostess.

Edith Cortlandt was a woman very sure of herself in most things. A situation that might have proved embarrassing to one less tactful she accepted quite as a matter of course, rather enjoying the exercise of her influence and never doubting her power to keep the friendship on any footing she chose. Kirk's frank, boyish gratitude for the favors he had received made it easy for her to encourage the growth of an intimacy that she acknowledged charming, while she sincerely believed that he would be helped by it. Finding him responsive, she deliberately set herself to please him. She was no longer brilliant and chilly, but gay, smiling and unaffected.

Once in a while Cortlandt went with them, but he was usually uncommunicative, and they scarcely felt his presence. When he did talk he talked easily and well.

Several days passed thus, during which Anthony fully recovered from his experience at Colon. Then a ship arrived from New York, but before he had summoned courage to ask his friends for a loan he received a letter forwarded from Colon by the American consul, a perusal of which not only dumfounded him, but entirely altered his plans.

It was typewritten on plain stationery; there was neither heading nor signature, yet he knew quite well from whom it came. It read as follows:

Don't cable again or the stupidity of the police may fail to protect you. The others got away safely, and you would be mad to return alone. I can't and won't help you now. This time you went too far. You have made your bed, now lie in it. I don't believe in miracles, but if you can straighten up and make a man of yourself I'll help you face this trouble, otherwise don't call on me for anything. I'm through.

Kirk reread this amazing epistle several times before its full significance struck him; then, when he realized what it meant, he felt himself break into a sweat of apprehension. That plain clothes man had died! The police were looking for him. There could be no other explanation, else why had Higgins and the rest fled the country? Perhaps he was already indicted. Kirk saw himself accused of manslaughter, arrested and tried. What could he do if his father refused to help? Evidently the governor believed him guilty. In that case the young man knew that explanations would be futile. Even the letter he had sent would do no good. When Darwin K. Anthony said he was through he was through.

Finding a secluded corner of the veranda, he sat down to think this matter out, but the more he reflected on it the more serious it appeared. Of one thing he became quickly convinced: New York at present was no place for him. He rose quickly and entered the hotel, where he bought all the latest New York papers and found an account of Mr. Fadden's efforts to disprove his connection with an asault upon the person of a detective named Williams, who had come from St. Louis. But nowhere was there a word about the present condition of the plain clothes man, nor the slightest hint toward explaining the conduct of the mysterious Jefferson Locke, for whom he had been searching. Who the devil was Locke, anyhow? The article did not even state the charge upon which he was to be arrested. In another paper Kirk found something that relieved his mind a bit. Evidently Williams had not died prior to the time of going to press, although he was reported in a critical condition.

One thing was clear, at least. He could stay here no longer as the Cortlandts' guest—he had already incurred an obligation which he would have difficulty in discharging.

Conquering his sense of humiliation as best he could, he called up the Cortlandts' suit.

Edith answered saying that her husband was out. Then, in response to his request, she came down herself.

"What has gone wrong? Why this face of tragedy?" she inquired as she seated herself beside him.

"I've received my declaration of independence. I've heard from my dad." He told her everything without reserve, then showed her the letter and the newspapers in his hand. She scrutinized them with a quiet seriousness that seemed to make his trouble her own. Turning her bright eyes upon him, she inquired, "How does it feel to be disinherited?"

"Blamed uncomfortable! I must tell Mr. Cortlandt at once."

"Let me," she offered, quickly. "I would not show any one that letter, if I were you, nor advertise the fact that you are in danger of arrest. It will be quite enough if I tell him that you have quarrelled with your father—he is a peculiar man."

Kirk signified his agreement.

"Now what do you intend doing?"

"I'm going to work."

"Good! Good!" She clapped her hands gleefully.

"Oh, I don't want to," he protested, "but the old gentleman thinks I'm no good, and I'd like to show him he's wrong. After I've done that, I intend to loaf again—yes, and I'll know how to loaf by that time. Of course, I'll have to pay my debts too. I'm going to hunt a job this afternoon."

"What sort?"

"Something with big pay and no responsibility."

"Those positions are taken—by the army," she laughed. "What can you do?"

"I can take an automobile apart."

"And put it together again?"

"Oh, no! I can sail a boat; I shoot pretty well; I waltz nicely; I row, swim and box indifferently; and I play an atrocious hand at poker. Am I hopeless?"

"Dear, no! Experience is a good thing, of course, and ability is even better, but neither is absolutely necessary in government work, if you have influence. I am trying to think of the niche into which you would best fit."

"When a fellow hasn't any of those qualifications, then what? Take me, for instance."

"You have at least one. Influence."

He shook his head. "My father wouldn't help."

"We'll have no difficulty in finding you a position."

"Jove! That's good news. I had an idea that I'd be going from door to door."

He shook her hand warmly, that being the natural outlet for his gratitude, and she smiled at him. "I wonder where I'd better start in," he said.

"There's not the slightest choice. All paths lead up the mountain, and if you go far enough you will reach the top. It would be quite easy if you knew something about the railroad business, for instance."

"Oh, I do. I've had that drilled into me ever since I was a child. I grew up with it—was soaked in it. My father made me learn telegraphy before he gave me a motorboat."

"Why in the world didn't you say so?"

"Well, I have forgotten most of it," he confessed. "I had a railroad of my own, too, when I was twelve years old. I was president."

"Unfortunately, the P. R. R. has a president, so we can't start you in where you left off."

"He might need an assistant."

Mrs. Cortlandt laughed lightly. "While we are finding that out," she said, "I think you had better go over the line in daylight and really see what this work is like. That glimpse you had at Gatun is only a small part. Now, will you trust me to manage this for you, Mr. Anthony?"

"I should say I would."

no work without it. Shearer thought no attention should be paid to the petition of citizens. Boomer said the principle was wrong, and while Mr. Shearer might be the one saint in a hundred, he was sorry to see him in such bad company. Nine out of ten agencies are vicious in nature, and all over the state the people are rising up against them. The people will possibly vote this year by the initiative looking to cleaning up the state of such agencies.

The president of the Weavers not being at hand, the organization came over to council in a body, presenting a Mr. Evans, who stated that if employment agencies were such a good thing the workingmen would want them, but, he added, we know what they have done, and they are all about alike and we want none of them; why, he said, one of them in town here has gone so far as to charge for help employed in his own hotel. Here Bigelow stated that he did not know anything about agencies, but the laboring men surely know what they want, and he was ready to vote. The ordinance was then adopted by a unanimous vote.

HUMANE SOCIETY REORGANIZED

A meeting was called Thursday afternoon in Judge Cochran's office for the purpose of reorganizing the Port Angeles Humane Society which was incorporated in 1903 but has been inactive since the first year.

The W. L. C., recognizing the need of such an organization, have been agitating the question and found that the old organization only needed to be roused to action and new life injected into it. G. M. Lauridsen, former president of the society, acted as chairman, and Mrs. Jessie Webster was appointed temporary secretary. The first step was to appoint a committee on bylaws to report at the meeting to be held next Monday at the Commercial Club room. Mrs. McGillivray, Mrs. Hickok and Attorney James Stewart are the committee. The following trustees were then elected: G. M. Lauridsen, Mrs. McGillivray, Mrs. Hickok, D. W. Morse, James Stewart, A. A. Smith, and Judge Cochran. A committee on membership to secure all the names possible before next Monday consists of Mrs. Herman Fisher, Mrs. Best, Mrs. P. J. Harley, L. T. Haynes, and Rev. Stephen Smith. Everyone interested in this organization is earnestly requested to attend this meeting.

Jack Frost Hensen, one of the Angeles boys, who has been living in Douglas, Alaska, for a number of years, has been appointed postmaster by President Wilson. NEW SOURCE OF REVENUE

State Has Collected $10,700 for Leases of Oil Lands in West End of Peninsula.

The recent oil excitement in the Olympic Peninsula has developed a new source of revenue for the State of Washington. Land Commissioner Clark V. Savidge states that up to the present time one hundred twenty-six oil leases have been granted, covering 68,480 acres of land. The rental charged by the state is $100.00 per section of land, payable annually in advance. Up to date there has been paid into the state treasury $10,700. In addition to the rental the leases issued provide that in the event of the discovery of oil the State shall receive a royalty of ten per cent of the output. The leases further provide that boring must begin within one year, and that failure so to do and to continue operations will result in the cancellation of the leases. Oil leases do not interfere with leasing the land for other purposes, or with the sale of the land. The leases are divided among the following counties:

Chehalis, 15 leases, 8000 acres.
Clallam, 30 leases, 17,600 acres.
Jefferson, 81 leases, 42,880 acres.

HIGH SCHOOL

The Sophomore class entertained the teachers and the High School at a Valentine party last Friday evening. The hall was prettily decorated with strings of red hearts, draped over the windows and the tables. A crepe paper "King of Hearts" formed the center-piece for one table and excited much admiration from the guests.

Everyone was required to make a valentine for someone else, giving a brief history of the person's life by cutting out pictures and pasting them in heart shaped booklets. Then strips of cloth, needles, and thread were distributed and the boys made aprons for the girls who in turn furnished their partners with neckties.

A row of hearts was strung across the stage and on these were written the names of the girls and ladies present. The boys found their partners for supper by shooting one of the hearts with a bow and arrow. After all were seated at the table, refreshments, consisting of heart-shaped cookies and sandwiches and of cocoa and ice cream, were served. Mr. White gave a very interesting recitation and Mr. Gilmore gave a short talk. Mr .Failor told about the origin of Valentine day.

After lunch the party broke up but it will be remembered by all who were there as one of the most pleasant events of the school year.

The girls who are going to Sequim to play basket ball this evening are Margaret Porter, Marcella Schweitzer, Edna Kelly, Charlotte Spalding, and Irene Best. Mr .Failor will accompany them.

The grade team are being organized for playing base ball and they will begin practicing immediately. The Freshmen will play against the Sophomores in a series of five games.

Everyone come to the German play given by the Seniors in the auditorium next Friday evening.

OLYMPIC LEADER BUILDING FOR SALE.

The Olympic-Leader's printing shop, a substantially built building with heavily braced foundation, is offered for sale at cost of material and construction. Undoubtedly some of the smaller and older stores, as well as those which are to be replaced with permanent buildings, will not be raised to grade. As no more frame buildings can be built, the demand will soon be greatly in excess of the supply. Thus is the offer of the Olympic-Leader building at actual cost a real snap.

Asahel Curtis, who was here from Seattle last week at the celebration, showing pictures of the Olympic Peninsula, remained until Saturday taking views of our streets for the Lewis, Wiley & Morse Co. It will prove interesting in a few years to compare his series of "before and after" pictures. Mrs. Curtis accompanied Mr. Curtis on his trip to Angeles and they with other friends were entertained Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Webster. Mr. Bean gave a most interesting talk on his year's work with Mr. Burbank, and Mr. Curtis explained many things of interest in the new methods of color photography, practical examples of which, consisting of a number of positives taken at the Burbank home, were exhibited by Mr. Bean.

THEIR DAYS ARE NUMBERED

A Seattle reader of the Olympic-Leader sends the following clipping just to show that there are other communities that have their "cow troubles." Never mind, just as soon as the grazing gets good again in front of the grocery and produce markets we are going to bid the festive cow a last fond farewell.

The lowering kine that, according to residents of the Fauntleroy district, have been in the habit of winding slowly o'er the lea in the neighborhood and also o'er their lawns and gardens, henceforth must do their lowing in their own little corrals, according to a ruling of the county commissioners.

Residents of the district petitioned the commissioners to establish a non-grazing district in the Fauntleroy section just south of the city limits. They said that the gentle animals were wrecking havoc in the neighborhood and that they should be kept up. Other residents of the district, presumably owners of the kine in question, maintained that they had a perfect right to let their animals roam as they listed, but it didn't listen good to the county commissioners and so the nongrazing district, which extends for a mile south of Fauntleroy park, was established.

Organization of Yakima county into 26 districts for the fighting of fire blight, with a total of 140 units, has result in giving the county 140 assistant inspectors. This is the result of the organization work in Yakima county alone. Assistant Commis- T. O. Morrison, of the state department of agriculture, has now turned his attention to Benton county, which will be organized into like districts.

For many years lawyers, historians and others have been discussing the question of rather excessive Americanization of recent emigrants through the adoption of ancient and honorable family names. It is well enough for Mr. Smitkowski to prefer Smith; it is well for naturalized citizens to lop off syllables, to get rid of strange sounds, avoid the ridicule of other people, by adopting names that are nearly American. But there is, we are told, a limit to this practice, says the Chicago Tribune. When aliens from Sicily, Greece, Russia, Poland, etc., take unto themselves such names as Adams, Endicott, Seward, Drexell and Lincoln it is time to call a halt. It is confusing, unfair and wrong. It is true, as lawyers point out, that the practice in question may lead to difficulties in the settlement of estates and the removal of clouds on a title. Fraud and imposture may find new channels in the use of names associated with large interests and inherited property. But the solution is not a simple one. The courts have repeatedly decided that a man has the right to change his name, so long as there is no attempt to escape obligations or commit fraud. In many cases aliens apply for permission to change their names, and the request is usually granted without question, largely because the permission is really necessary. To pass rigid laws preventing the change of names would invite violation of the laws.
