PORT ANGELES OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 29. NO. 9. PORT ANGELES, CLALLAM COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1914. $1.00 EER YEAR.

ELWHA BRIDGE COMPLETED

Rich Dairying Country West of River Will Be Made More Readily Accessible.

The busiest place in Clallam county today, outside of the Earles mill in Port Angeles, is on the Port Crescent - Eden Valley road at the lower Elwha, where R. E. Meith, a Portland contractor, is putting in lengthwise across the river a modern steel skyscraper, 422 feet high — or long — and the Erickson Construction Company is grading and having put in a double deck railroad bridge.

Resting on three piers, the two outer ones on the solid rock of the bluffs along the river bank and the center on a concrete block 18 by 30 feet in size, the floor of the county bridge will be seventy-five feet above the gravel of the river bed below. Being 625 feet long, including the curved trestle at the western end, it is quite the most imposing structure in the bridge line in the county. It contains 125 tons of steel, or four times as much as the bridge recently built at Dungeness, and will cost over $20,000, its construction having been made possible by the road bond issue.

As the last beams, those supporting the stringers for the floor, were being put in place when the Olympic-Leader's camera caught the view, there were but a half dozen men on the bridge proper; all except the riveting crew were at work on the approaches. As shown in the picture, the temporary scaffolding has not been removed, and the immense central pier yet retains its shell of lumber, the form into which the concrete was poured. A vast amount of material, flattened boulders and gravel, was taken from the excavation before the framework for the base was put down and it is believed there is no possibility of the pier ever shifting by even the traditional hair's breadth.

THE NEW APPROACHES

But really, the surprising and gratifying thing about the new Elwha bridge lies not in the structure itself, but in the approaches thereto, For thirty years those having to cross the river at this point have wound around and down the steep curves to the river bed 250 feet below, and then slowly toiled uphill again on the opposite side. The new approaches, one 4900 and the other 3500 feet in length, give an ideal grade up which a team can easily trot and an auto spin along on the high gear. Moreover, instead of being compelled to go down onto the river bed itself, the 75 ft. high bridge will cut out one-third the canyon's depth.

A considerable portion of the new roadway, which will cost another $20,000, has been blasted out, giving the very best of road beds, and the remainder is in excellent shape for a new road at the close of the rainy season. The surface here and there in the swampy places has been slightly cut up by the heavy hauling — steel and timber for the county bridge and timber for the railroad — but the greater part of it has stood up wonderfully. The stretch of new road near Dry Creek, despite the heavy hauling, is as solid and smooth as asphalt. Just what the new road will mean in the development of the country west of the Elwha, the Eden Valley and Port Crescent region, one of the richest in the coun-

PASSED HOUSE AND SENATE

99-Year Lease of Two Miles Water Front Finally Secured to City for Manufacturing Sites.

The ninety-nine year lease of the Ediz Hook spit for manufacturing industries is an assured fact, the measure having passed the House Monday, as per the following telegram received by Mr. Aldwell:

"Washington, D. C.,
March 2, 1914.

J. Lloyd Aldwell,
Port Angeles, Wash.

99 years' lease bill passed with following additional amendment: "provided that there shall be a stipulation in the said lease that at the end of every ten years during the existence thereof the Secretary of Commerce shall cause a revaluation of the leased premises to be made and that the said secretary shall thereupon be authorized to determine and fix the annual rental of the premises for the ensuing period of ten years in accordance with such revaluation.

J. A. FALCONER."

The measure must now be returned to the Senate for concurrence, which will be forthcoming, and after the signature of the president will become a law. Nothing has occurred in many years that means more for the future of Port Angeles than the passage of this bill by congress, and to our fellow townsman J. Lloyd Aldwell alone belongs the credit.

Believing that the measure could better be secured through the action of Washington's Progressive Senator Miles Poindexter and Representative J. A. Falconer, Mr. Aldwell wrote urging them to take up the matter, with the above result. All honor to Mr. Aldwell and his co-workers at the national capitol. The people of this section of Washington will remember them with gratitude always and with their support when they ask for judgment on their stewardship.

A wire received from Senator Poindexter yesterday announcing that the Senate had concurred in the house amendments. The bill is now ready for the President's signature.

100 BUILDINGS IN COURSE OF CONSTRUCTION

Has it occurred to you that Port Angeles is growing, even beyond the expectations of its most ardent enthusiasts? Are you aware that more than one hundred buildings were erected during the year 1913? A prominent contractor and builder, a man of good judgment and one who ought to know whereof he speaks, says that fully one hundred buildings are in course of construction in the city at the present time and that many other buildings are being planned for the near future. A number of these building enterprises are substantial business blocks, in the down town district, and many others are modern residences located in all parts of the city. With all these buildings going up, places for rent in Port Angeles are as scarce as a clouded sky in the summer on the peninsula. January 1, 1915, will see more and better new buildings in Port Angeles than in any other city on the northwest Pacific coast.

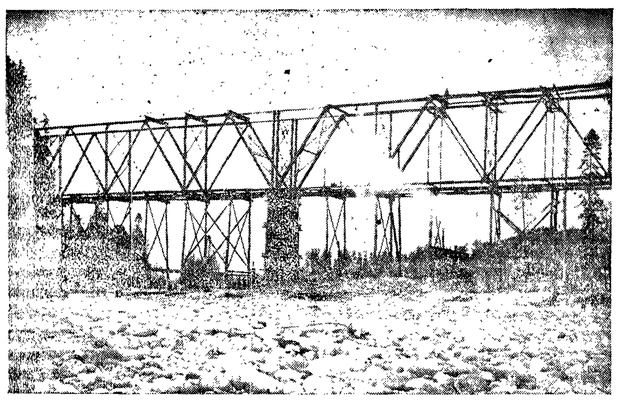
THE ELWHA SUSPENSION BRIDGE



WHERE OAKES FELL TO HIS DEATH

FELL FROM NEW ELWHA BRIDGE

Samuel Oakes, Experienced Structural Steel Worker, Loses His Life

The new Elwha bridge was all but finished this week without a single one of the accidents so common to such undertakings, when Samuel Oakes stepped on the end of a loose plank and plunged to his death on the boulders seventy-five feet below. His neck, an arm, both legs and other bones were broken by the awful fall. The accident occurred about nine o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Oakes had been foreman on the job but had quit the work because of its dangerous character, saying he had followed it a number of years and was going to drop it and look for something else. The company being short-handed, they sent for him to help out with the last of the riveting and he had worked but a few days.

The body was brought in to the Fulmer Undertaking Parlors where it will be prepared for shipment Saturday to Glendale, Oregon, where Mr. Oakes' parents live. Mr. Oakes was an Odd Fellow and they have taken charge of affairs and are looking after the comfort of the widow and four little children who live in the east part of town.

THIRD STREET EXTENDED

Believed a Gravel Fill Can Be Made in Connection with Railroad Work at Little Cost.

The attorney having advised that everything was in shape to proceed with the calling for bids for the improvement of Third street extended and Third street North, the council took the matter up Tuesday evening. The engineer, however, stated that the council had yet to approve of the plans and specifications, and recommended that if it was the desire to call for bids at this time that alternate bids for pile trestle and gravel fill be called, as railroad would put in a gravel fill and possibly city could get a like fill at a low cost and work would be permanent. Matter went over to permit amended specifications to be drafted.

It was ordered that bids be called for the C street improvement, but the council got the cart before the horse, the improvement not having been ordained, and the call for bids has been laid on the shelf by the clerk.

Joseph Rice, long one of the leading members of the North Yakima bar, has located in Port Angeles as the one place in the state of Washington where all prospects please, and will continue the practice of his profession here. He has taken office rooms in the Goldwater building.

Anyway, Lloyd Aldwell put one over on the standpat bunch this time.

OLYMPIC WAY CONTRACTS LET

Sloan Bros., Al Fairservice, and David Govan Were the Successful Bidders.

The Board of Commissioners, in session this week, let several contracts, chief among which was for the clearing and grading of three and a half miles of the Lake Crescent-Beaver road, extending from the Fairservice contract to the rock work, which went to Sloan Bros. on a bid of $14,936.

The bridge across Bear creek, just west of Beaver, went to Al Fairservice at $5,700. While the stream is small, it lies in a rather broad ravine and a long bridge is necessary.

Dave Govan will complete the Denio-Brownrigg contract for the slashing, grubbing and burning of the first six miles of road west of Fairholme, at a cost to the county of $7,000. The original contract was for $10,000 and it is estimated that about $3,000 worth has been accomplished.

A call was ordered made for bids on grading the road from Fairholme, west, six miles.

All bids submitted on a piece of road work from Sequim toward Blyn were rejected as being too high and new bids are to be called for, for the entire distance to Blyn, 7½ miles.

Engineer Rixon reported that the gravelling between Morse creek and the cross roads, or Long Prairie, was progressing at the rate of 100 yards per day. N. O. McKee has this contract on the Olympic Way, at $10,000

The company which is arranging to handle the water from the Sol Duc Hot Springs was notified that the county could not stand the expense of repairing the Lake Crescent road, if same should be badly damaged by the hauling of heavy loads of bottled water at this time of year.

MATERIAL ORDERED FOR NEW P. O. BUILDING

Charles Morse is in Seattle this week buying the windows and finishing material for the concrete block, 48 by 56, which he expects to have ready within 60 days for the postoffice, he having been awarded the contract after it was ascertained that the office could not get the corner room in the new Elk block. A full equipment of the latest post office furniture has been ordered. The entire lower floor of the building, to be located on the northeast corner of First and Oak, will be used for the post office, and as there will be two stories, there will be offices up stairs.

Work on the Myerding Block is progressing rapidly this week, the forms and joist being in place for the rear basement and concrete all poured. A large amount of lumber both rough and finish is on the ground and as soon as the hill is disposed of the building can be quickly completed.

COUNCIL REMAINS DEADLOCKED

Election Should Be Held in Ward to Settle Matter of Their Representation.

The city council adjourned in the middle of the session Tuesday night, having entered a deadlock on the matter of electing a Third ward councilman. After eight ballots a motion was made to lay over and killed by a vote of three to three. A few more ballots were taken and a motion to adjourn was put and voted down by a tie vote. After that each side refused to give an inch. Ten motions to lay over, to proceed with regular order and to adjourn followed each other fast, each time dying on a tie vote, 3to 3, until Fowler finally broke away and voted for Bigelow's motion to adjourn, which carried the motion with considerable business, including bills, left in the air. The contest was somewhat funny for awhile, but soon got very monotonous. All members were present.

The cemetery committee thru Mr. Fowler asked that a phone be put in at the cemetery. Mr. Dustman moved that matter be referred for conference with phone company. Carried.

Mr. Bigelow of health committee reported that nuisance at Eighth and Peabody streets was in a fair way to be settled without trouble if party was given a reasonable time to move mules to another location.

City Attorney Smith reported having secured a stipulation in re the judgment secured against the city by Chas. George to effect that judgment would be vacated by consent of parties if amount due was paid before March 11. The judgment is for $498. Council could not see the advantage of having the judgment vacated and upon motion of Fisher action went over for one week.

The much discussed ditch at 7th and Washington streets came in for another discussion. St. Supt. reported that it would cost $75. St. Com. recommended that ditch be dug

PARENT-TEACHERS MEETING

The next meeting of the Parents-Teachers Association will be held in auditorium Monday evening, March 9th. The subject for discussion will be, "What the home and school can do to promote civic pride in the community." Officers are to be elected, and other important business is to come before the meeting. Let everyone turn out and help to make the meeting a success.

LAST CALL FOR TAXES

County Treasurer Babcock is very anxious that the personal property taxes be paid by the close of next week as that is the last week before the rolls are turned over to the sheriff for collection. Next week is also the last week real property owners have in which to take advantage of the rebate.

SEATTLE MEN LEASE SOL DUC

Leading Bankers and Manufacturers See Big Thing in Future of Hot Springs.

A company composed of wealthy Seattle men such as Jacob Furth, L. Schoenfeld, and other leading merchants, has, it is rumored, been organized for the purpose of leasing the Sol Duc Hot Springs Hotel property for a term of years. Representatives of the company were down here this week, spending three days at the springs, and the deal, it is said, may be closed up early in the week.

The same gentlemen are stockholders in the recently organized bottling company, known as the Sol Duc Mineral Water Company, which has a capital stock of $75,000. The bottled mineral and sparkling waters have already had an unprecedented sale, and the company, it is said, can place 90,000 cases right away and has an immediate order of 30,000 cases. An agent has been here looking into the transportation end of the undertaking, endeavoring to secure every available team in town and vicinity for the purpose. The road from Piedmont to Port Crescent is in such bad shape that the water must be shipped via Port Angeles.

Michael Earles is president of the Mineral Water Company, J. F. McElroy, vice president and Albert Schubach, secretary and manager. The other trustees are Jacob Furth, A .J. Earling, J. E. Chilberg, J. S. Goldsmith, J. Lindeberg, J. C. Eden, C. E. Farnsworth, J. E. Galbraith, Wm. Pigott F. M. Sullivan and R. A. Schoenfelt. The interesting of these monied men in Clallam county cannot help but be productive of great good for other investments are certain to follow with the opportunities that will be afforded by the opening of the peninsula.

Mr. Earles, it is understood has a considerable block of stock in the bottling company, so that, if the deal for the lease of the property goes thru he will still be interested in the operation as well as the ownership of the springs.

ELK FOR FRISCO FAIR

Family of Three Will Be Prepared for Exhibition to Assist in Advertising State.

Game Warden Pike is showing several interesting photos of a hunter's camp, the like of which has not been taken in the Olympics for many years. The occasion was the collecting of specimens of the Olympic elk, which are very different from those living in any other part of the United States, for exhibition at the Pan American Exposition. Fine specimens were secured,being shot on the river bottom near the game warden's camp, a couple of miles above McDonald bridge. The cow, said Mr. Fred Edwards, who came down to prepare the skins, was the best he had ever seen; she stood five feet high at the shoulder, and was an old brute, the meat being so dry and tough as to be worthless. Messrs. Pike and Edwards were accompanied by the county game commission, C. S. Stakemiller, Willis Chambers, Maurice Fisher, and Van Welch. There were no bulls with the herd at that time but Mr. Pike expects to get a suitable specimen ere long. The animals are shot under a provision permitting collecting for museum purposes and after the exposition they will be returned to the state museum.

"THE HOMELAND"

A special musical service entitled "The Homeland" will be given at the First Methodist Church next Sunday evening, March 8th, at 7:30 p.m. by the choir. The program will consist of the following solos: "The Homeland" by Miss Edna Holt; "Face to Face" by Mr. C. Winfield Harris; and "The Holy City" by Mr. Frank Findlay. These will be interspersed with a duett "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" by Miss Mary Brown and Miss Holt and a quartette and anthems by the choir, all bearing on this subject.

THE EDIZ HOOK BILL

In passing, it may be interesting to know that the delay in the House for which the Progressives have been blamed by certain interested parties, was due to an evident desire to put one over on Messrs. Poindexter and Falconer for purposes of political capital, as the following extract from a letter dated December 27th clearly shows:

"I immediately went to see the Speaker and found the bill on his table. From his son, Bennet Clark, the House Parliamentarian, who has charge of such matters, I found that the bill had been on the table at the request of Congressman Albert Johnson, of Washington. I asked him to send it to the Committee and also asked what reason Johnson had given for holding up the bill. Young Clark said that Johnson said that he, Johnson, also had a bill up before the Committee that he wanted reported out first."

Subsequent to the introduction of the Poindexter bill, Senator Jones presented a similar measure in the Senate, and Albert Johnson one in the House, but these were not acted upon in any way by either house. Thus Mr. Aldwell, working as usual without any idea of gain, but solely because of his interest in public affairs, has secured to Port Angeles one of her most valuable assets, and has succeeded without undertaking any expensive trips to be paid for by the citizens, and in spite of the knocking by an alleged newspaper and the opposition of a small bunch of standpatters who are unwilling that anything political should come to pass without their especial supervision.

WHY BE SKEPTICAL ?

If you are in the least skeptical as to the building improvements in Port Angeles at the present time, get up early one of these bright, sun-warmed mornings and take a hike over to Lincoln Heights, taking note of the many new roofs and piles of lumber dotting the townsite to the westward. If you do so you will at once go home and write a letter to that friend in the east who is thinking of changing his location, telling him that if he wants to get in on the ground floor in the busiest and most progressive city on the Olympic peninsula today, he had better get a move on himself.

The Olympic-Leader desires to congratulate Peters' Joke on the superb issue editorially and mechanically it put out last week — or was it this week. At last there seems to be some hope of fulfillment of the prenatal boast of the Joke, that "together I and you will make this a city of 50,000."

The Romans object to base ball because it is so brutal. That would make Nero smile.

ARE THE GREASERS WORTH IT?

President Wilson, being asked last Monday whether in view of the developments a change of policy was intended immediately, pointed out that a country of the size and power of the United States could afford to wait just as long as it pleased; that nobody doubted its power and nobody doubted that Huerta was eventually to retire; that there need be no hesitation in forming the judgment that what the United States wished to accomplish in Mexico would be accomplished, but that those people who were in haste to have things done were forgetting that they would have to do them themselves; that they would have to contribute brothers and sons and sweethearts to do it if they wanted something done right away. If they were willing to wait, the President indicated, such a step might not be necessary.

FREE TYPHOID VACCINE

It is the hope ofDr. H. T. Graves, state veterinarian, head of the dairy and live stock division of the state department of agriculture, that he will soon be able to arrange for the furnishing of a hog cholera serum to the farmers of the state at cost.

"At the present time," he says, the serum is costing the farmer about $1.25 per hog, and we hope to arrange this so that the farmer can have it at about 30 cents per hog.'

Because of the striking efficiency shown in the use of typhoid vacine during the Centralia epidemic, the state board of health has offered the state board of control, to prepare and furnish, free of charge, anti-typhoid vacine for use in the state institutions.

The board of health has recommended to the board of control that all inmates of state institutions be given this treatment to prevent any epidemics, making exception, however, in the state soldiers' homes. In these latter institutions the board of health believes that a treatment of this nature is not needed, because of the age of the inmates, and the unlikelihood of any epidemics occurring.

President Wilson refused to commit himself on the question of woman suffrage because the Baltimore platform did not commit the party to it. At the same time he repudiates that plank of the platform which reads as follows: "We favor the exemption of tolls of American ships engaged in coast wise trade in passing thru the Panama canal."

The University of Washington now ranks fifteenth in size among the educational institutions of the United States. With an enrollment of 3,335 the University of Washington passes Yale university, with an enrollment of 3,263.

AS CLEAR AS MUD

At that, It's Excellent English in Comparison to Some of the Slush in Campbell's Joke.

We fully endorse the sentiments bodied in the following remarkable uplift editorial from the Lyons News. At least such of the phrases as we can understand seem to be to the point, and we have no doubt that the rest of the article is equally edifying:

"To supply our vast rights toward the opportunity ye should practice a free inclination to follow true to our undertaking and for this results will favor our needs nothing has demonstrated this work as being contented on a substantial life, with every available show to make right the affiliations that are trying to hem us in, we should not let go of the things that are no good and take holt of such conditions which will benefit our community, and place such affairs the interest that will elevate the results we want here, with an increase in the determination of trying is the only answer that can suffice to protect us in this important style that is well to considus, so with an encouraging of present surroundings the outlook is all we expect."—Times.

We supposed Campbell's Joke was the only paper in the country where such a conglomeration of meaningless phrases could be found. This, however, is excellent English compared to some of the stuff the Joke perpretrates on its readers—its council proceedings, for instance.

GOVRNMENT SHOULD CONTROL

The government is making an investigation in the mine troubles at Calumet, Mich., and the testimony already secured is not creditable to the mine owners. The copper mining business of the country is one of the best paying industries in the world and the men who work under ground should receive fair treatment. The testimony already secured shows that the men did not receive anything like fair treatment. On paper they received fairly good pay but there were little drawbacks all of the time that kept their wages down to the starvation point. All of these drawbacks worked for the benefit of the company so good dividends could be declared. Men employed in the mine had to buy their supplies from the company store and pay an extravagant price. We do not believe in the centralization of the government but there are some things that the government should take care of and among these are the conditions of working men.

THE LIBERTY OF THE PEOPLE

Edward M. Cullen last week retired as chief of the New York Court of Appeals and in taking leave sounded a note of warning that the people of America stood in danger of losing their liberty. In the ages gone the enemies of the people were the kings and barons but now the danger comes from the people themselves. The New York World agrees with Mr. Cullen and points out several instances, such as declaring martial law in West Virginia in times of peace; in Minneapolis an attempt to say who shall engage in the barber business; in Wisconsin an eugenic law says who shall and who shall not get married; and a number of other cases are quoted. At almost every session of the various legislatures laws are passed that restrict personal action, many of them on matters that do not conduce to any public good. After all, are the country and the people any better off now than in the past when restrictive laws were few and scarce? The United States is fast becoming the most governed people in the world.

Washington is so rapidly becoming a Holstein state, Dr. H. T. Graves states, that it may be necessary in the future, if the importation of Holsteins continues, to reduce the standard of the butter fat test in milk from 3.25 to 3, owing to the fact that the Holstein milk will not generally test up to that mark."

Students in the department of English of the University of Washington will make a special effort to discover and preserve versions of English and Scotch ballads sung in the state. This work will be under the direction of Profesor E. G. Cox, who recently published a translation of medieval ballads.

FOR GAME PROTECTION

The bureau of biological survey o. the federal department of agriculture has taken the initiative in a movement seeking larger uniformity of laws and regulations in the Northwestern states covering the matter of game protection. The bureau has asked the governors of Washington, Oregon and Idaho to each appoint a representative to a commission, the department of agriculture also appointing a representative, this commission to formulate and recommend for adoption by the legislatures of the respective states such laws as would appear to be in the best interest of game preservation, keeping in mind the desirability for uniformity as between state and federal laws. The commission will also conside other matters of an interstate and related nature, such as the problem of extermination of predatory animals, non-resident licenses, fishing in interstate waters, et cetera. Governor Lister has appointed L. H. Darwin, state fish commissioner and game warden, as the representative of the state on the commission.

Now that a ninety-nine year lease of the spit for manufacturing purposes is an assured fact, the people of Port Angeles should at once make a concerted effort to secure the enterprises. With ample electric power already at hand, Port Angeles is in a position to offer inducements second to no other city on the Pacific Coast.

It really seems too bad that the benefit to be derived from a discussion of the question of what the home can do to promote civic pride in the community should be limited to those who are either parents or teachers. But possibly anyone having the welfare of the community at heart would be made welcome, providing he would agree to make a personal trial of some of the theories that will be advanced at the auditorium Monday evening.

WHAT COUNTS.

It isn't the brains a man has in his head
Or the skill that he has in his hand.
It isn't the books he has studied or read
Or his fortune in money or land
That makes a man likable, lovable here,
For many a miser is smart.
It's not what a brother can do we hold dear,
But just what he is in his heart.

It isn't the wonderful heights he has scaled,
It isn't the medals he wears,
It isn't the fact that by many he's hailed
With applause for the deeds that he dares
That makes a man welcome wherever he goes.
A leader, unmourned, may depart.
For the thing men revere isn't glory that shows,
But the glory that's hid in the heart.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY

EDEN VALLEY NOTES

Mr. Addison Epperson and family are moving onto their new farm in Eden Valley.

Mr. Robert Winters has moved his family to the Hanson & Glanert mill where he will work the coming season. The mill is running a day and night crew.

Mr. R. M. Johnson has spent the last few days in Seattle.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw, and daughter Mary, and granddaughter Laura Winters, visited with friends in Eden Valley Sunday.

The Eden School has installed a milk and cream tester and with the cooperation of the people of the district will corelate the agricultural work of the school with the work of the pupils and their parents at home.

Mr. J. F. Long and Elmer and Joe Bradshaw are working on the approaches to the new bridge.

The piling for the new railroad bridge is driven more than half way across the Elwha.

DE FUCA

A few of Mrs. Richards' friends called last Saturday to help her celebrate her birthday.

Little Miss Etta Laurens also had a birthday party to celebrate her second birthday. All her little friends were there and spent a pleasant afternoon.

Mr. Broughton is moving home his donkey engine which has been down on the new road all winter.

A party of young people from Fairview and DeFuca spent an enjoyable evening at "Fernwood" last Friday.

Mrs. Wm. Wooding Jr., who has been on the sick list for some time, is now feeling better.

James and Willie Wooding have gone down to Siebert Creek to work on the railroad.

Miss Minna Laurens is home again after spending two weeks visiting in Angeles.

Mrs. Wm. Wooding Sr., who has been in Seattle for the past month, returned home Sunday.

DeFuca is a very busy place these days with all the clearing of land that is being done. Mr. Richards has several acres of new ground under cultivation and Mr. Drumb, Mr. F. Laurens and Mr. Wooding are all busy clearing and burning.

Mr. C. A. Laurens is extending the DeFuca road up the hill to where he expects to build this spring.

A party of five from Fairview and DeFuca went to Dungeness last Saturday to attend the basket ball game and dance.

The incubator at Fernwood has been in operation for the past two weeks.

Mrs. F. A. MacDonald was called away suddenly to British Columbia by the illness of her mother.

The annual school election will be held at the DeFuca school house next Saturday, March 7, 1914. A director will be elected to succeed Mr. Richards, whose term expires.

EAST END

From the Press.

Frank D. Babcock of Sequim and Miss Johanna M. Dahl of Seattle were married at the home of the bride's parents in Seattle, on Wednesday, February 18th. Mr. Babcock's dwelling house in town, which has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey, has been vacated and will be the home of the newly-weds, who arrived from Seattle on Wednesday. Thursday evening they were given a welcome home reception by a large number of friends.

J. M. Grant left for Olympia on Tuesday to present a petition to the state board of highway commissioners, asking for a change in the course of state road which is about to be established from Grant's corner to Hurd creek. The change asked for by the petition is to have the road go west across the Upper place to Long Prairie, where it will join the county road to Port Angeles. The change, if made, will shorten the distance between Sequim and Angeles over a mile.

FAIRVIEW.

Mrs. James Haley of St. Paul, Minn., spent last week visiting at the O'B. ranch. Twenty years ago Mrs. Haley made her first trip here to visit the Nicholls family who then lived in Fairview. Thirteen times since then she has visited the O'Briens and Nicholls families but never before in the winter. Her last visit was the summer of 1912. She says that things look better to her now than ever before and is seriously thinking of investing in some real estate .

Mr. Berlinguette made a business trip to Mount Pleasant last Sunday.

Mr. Bohall moved his family out last Monday.

Robbie Sutter has been quite sick but is now much better.

Not long ago John Winters had two geese to lay in his goose nest, but now he has only one and he guesses the other one is laying in some other fellow's goose nest.

Last Sunday afternoon as Sam Emery was peacefully driving by the "Way Side" on his way further south, some gink put his head out of the window and told him that the party he wished to see was in there, so of course Sam drove in, tied up his horse, went in the house, removed his overcoat, took off his hat, smoothed down his abundance of hair, straightened his tie and coat and went into the parlor—but may the Lord forgive that gink, for that party wasn't there at all. Imagine the rest, or ask Sam.

COUNTY SUPT.'S OFFICE

The date for the summer eighth grade examinations has been changed by the state superintendent from August to the third week in June. Examinations wil be held this spring as follows: May 21 and 22 and June 18 and 19.

Many of the school centers throughout are holding spelling contests preparing for the final contest in April. Friday, February 20th, a contest was held at Dungeness between the local school and McCleay. In number of words spelled correctly McCleay school won the contest, but Irene Brooks of Dungeness was the winner in the spell-down. Besides the spelling match a literary program was rendered by the pupils of the two schools which was very interesting.

The state superintendent has made the request that information in regard to the number of local contest be sent to her office not later than June 1st. It is hoped that we may make such arrangements at institute as to be able to report that Clallam county will take an active part in the state contest at Tacoma.

For the benefit of directors, and others whose duty it is to hire teachers for the ensuing year, the notice from state superintendent in regard to certification in given in full. A due regard to this matter will save all concerned a great deal of embarrassment in the matter of issuing temporary certificates to teachers from other states:

"It is customary for school officers in all cities to contract with teachers for the ensuing year, many of the persons engaged being secured from the East. It will save a great deal of trouble and worry both for the teacher, the school and the state office, if the teacher is advised immediately upon election of the stringent certification laws of this state, and of the necessity of early attention to the matter. A contract is not valid unless the teacher holds a certificate valid in Washington. If the teacher is a graduate of an accredited institution, an examination in State Manual is necessary; if not, the regular examination must be taken. It is unsafe to depend upon the chance of getting a temporary certificate or upon the accrediting of the teacher's institution."

The following books have been added to the County Circulating Library:

407 State Manual of Washington.
408 A Primer of Psychology.
409 Page on Teaching.
410 The Call of the Wild.

Try our 25c Coffee and 40c Tea, they can't be beat for the money. Give us one order and we won't worry about the next. P. A. Commission House.

The Forty Year Test

An article must have exceptional merit to survive for a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world-wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will undersand why it is a favorite after a period of more than forty years. It not only gives relief—it cures. For sale by all dealers.

PROCRASTINATION is the thief of saving. Don't say to yourself, "I'm going to start a bank account just as soon as I pay those bills." Pay your bills by all means, but put something in the bank at once. Play fair with yourself. START NOW. Saving becomes easier as you go along. It becomes a HABIT. Try it and see.

THIS BANK WILL HELP YOU.

Bank of Clallam County

Established April, 1895. Port Angeles, Washington

A bill recently passed congress known as the agricultural extension bill. It gave aid to the different agricultural colleges of the country for the purpose of making better farmers and thereby increasing the yield of the land. When the bill came from the house the bill was a good bill. It was equitable and showed no discrimination, having a clause that negro colleges should have the same recognition as the white colleges, but the senate by a vote of 32 to 23 struck out this proviso. Every southern senator voted for the restriction. Why should not the negro colleges have encouragement so as to make better citizens of the negros and make them self-supporting?

The Adams express company at its annual meeting reduced the quarterly dividend from $3 to $1.50 per share. It has been paying $3 per share since 1909, or at the rate of twelve per cent per year. The actual amount of money the express companies have invested in business is very small and the stock largely represents water. In this may be found food for thought, particularly by the man who believes the carrying of mails is the only public service business the government may be safely intrusted with.

The Missouri state bottlers' association held a convention at Kansas City recently and reported having had a corking good time.

ENTIRE STOCK AT AND BELOW COST

C. Winfield Harris & Co. Will Close Out Entire Stock, with Exception of Electrical Goods.

Owing to the recent damage by fire and the uncertainty of business during the regrade, we have decided to continue our sale until the stock is completely gone if possible. The public is well acquainted with the large variety of goods that we have carried here, and they know that it is impossible for anyone to come into our store without finding something that they need for their household And when they can buy at such unheard of prices, it is folly to let the opportunity slip by, and later have to pay twice as much for the same article.

FURTHER REDUCTIONS MADE ON GOODS. The hundreds of people that have thronged our store during the few days of our sale so far, will tell you that they have found bargains that are unusual in every department and now comes the announcement that we are going to further reduce the prices. Come in and select the goods you want and let us make you a price on them. We know you will buy.

OPPORTUNITIES LIKE THIS ARE RARE. You know as well as ourselves that opportunities of this kind are rare and you can well afford to buy for six months ahead, as 99 chances out of a hundred it will be a year to five years before you will again buy goods that are staple at such reductions.

DON'T YOU NEED some enamelware, dishes, tents, slop jars, crockeryware, cooking utensils, glassware, matting, rugs, camp stoves, rugs, camp chairs, mirrors, aluminum ware notions, etc. Come while you can have a large selection.

C. WINFIELD HARRIS & CO.

Good team of horses, new wagon, plow, harrow, rake, tedder, buggy, all new. This land is offered at the right price; will take some cash. Will take good house and lot in a good city, or easy terms. Am going to Alaska. Phone White 00.

LUCKY TO ESCAPE DROWNING

Mr. and Mrs. Falk returned last Friday from their Californian trip and while they report a most delightful time they are fully convinced that those who think California is an earthly paradise have another guess coming. They say it is a fine place to have a good time and spend your money, but for a place to live all the year around they will take the Puget Sound country or Port Angeles every time. And talk about rain! Why, they say we just have a sprinkle compared to a real rain in California, where the heavens open up and there is simply a deluge for two or three days at a time.

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

Mrs. J. W. Hall bought a lot of C. C. Henry, erected a temporary house and is "baching." He says it is located on 15th Avenue, Shaughnessey Heights, but some others in the same locality say they prefer the original name, Lincoln Heights.

Some one who loves honey more than honesty has robbed Mrs. J. A. Martin of seven cases of the product of the busy bee. Of course she feels quite indignant over the loss, also that anyone would stoop to do such an act. The culprit is pretty well known and may not always escape justice.

Mrs. M'Goff went to Seattle the latter part of last week and returned first of this.

Mrs. Kerrihard visited with Mrs. Nina E. Hall Sunday. Mrs. Kerrihard and the Harding family were well acquainted years ago in Missouri but never met here until recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Meredith are very happy over the arrival of a little girl which came to bless their home Monday. This is their first girl.

Mrs. Meals, who was so seriously ill last week, is improving but still confined to bed.

Several new cases of mumps but none have been sick with them. The grippe seems to have worse effects than the mumps and more persons are afflicted.

J. A. Eppersons have completed arrangements for moving out to their ranch. They will be missed here, but all wish them success in their new home.

Mrs. Ada Haworth is working for Mrs. McIvor who is sick on Pine Hill.

Mr. Tom Pattison has bought lots near Filion's mill and will put up a tent house in which to spend the summer.

HIGH SCHOOL

A High School Tennis Association has been formed and the students are enthusiastic over the prospect of having tennis courts on the school grounds. A good many have joined the association and have ordered their rackets and balls thru Mr. Failor who has charge of affairs. For the present, at least, no outsiders will be allowed to belong.

Miss Brown received a letter from Prof. Res of Tuka College in Oklahoma asking that her botany class collect local specimens to send to him in exchange for something she would like from there. This will make the work much pleasanter and the members of the class helped gather the specimens of fungi and lichens that were sent in the first box.

The herbariums for the class have come and the pupils have begun collecting flowers for them, using the pussy willows for their first specimens.

Mr. White has been speaking to the pupils of all the grades, as well as the high school, asking each one to do his or her share in keeping the school grounds tidy by not strewing papers along the walks. There is absolutely no reason for having scraps of paper thrown about the streets because cans were supplied for any garbage which was carried from the building.

The auditorium was well filled the night of the Senior play. The program was excellent and the actors in the last half did especially well. The high school has reason to be proud of its Senior class.

Mr. M. A. Regnier, the new manual training teacher who has taken the place vacated by Mr. Lacy, began his duties Tuesday morning. Mr. Regnier is a graduate of the State Agricultural and Mechanical College of Oklahoma, having received the B. S. degree, and has had several years experience in teaching science and manual training.

TAMING OF THE SHREW

The Dream was crowded all three nights of vaudeville this week, the children particularly taking a great interest in the trained goats, a really excellent troup. The three reel features were especially good, that of Wednesday night, "A Daughter of Pan," being very beautiful. Tonight will be shown "A Taming of the Shrew," one of Shakspeare's famous plays, and Manager Abbot states it is to be a particularly beautiful production.

METHODIST BROTHERHOOD

The Methodist Brotherhood held their regular monthly meeting and dinner Wednesday. Mr. Hitchcock of Seattle was speaker for the evening and made a very entertaining address on the new prohibition law. Judge Ralston was present and gave a short talk on some of the new laws and Miss Holt favored the audience with two vocal solos. About fifty were in attendance and an exceptionally fine dinner was served.

LACY - FISHER WEDDING

Miss Mable May Deveue Fisher and Mr. William Guy Lacy were quietly married at the Methodist parsonage on Sunday March 1st at one o'clock. Miss Ellen Finch acted as bridesmaid and Mr. Chas. Beam as best man. Only members of her family were present.

After the wedding dinner at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Wm. Dippold, the bridal party drove to the boat where their friends met them with congratulations and showers of rice. The happy couple left for Seattle and from there sailed on the Senator Tuesday evening for San Francisco and from there they leave for Wailsa, Oklahoma, where they expect to make their future home.

Miss Fisher was born and raised in Port Angeles and was a young girl of sterling qualities. Mr. Lacy, while not having been here very long, had made a host of friends. Their many friends wish them well.

Hereafter the Fraternal Brotherhood will give a social dance every Friday evening in Haning Hall at 9 p.m. Music by McDonnell Orchestra. Everybody cordially invited. Admission, gentlemen 50c, ladies 25c.

Special—Fancy Fanno Oregon Onions at 4c per pound. Yakima potatoes at 1.40 per hundred. P. A. Commission House.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. It is not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when they don't know that a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle. "About one year ago, says P. H. Beck of Wakelee, Mich., I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." For sale by all druggists.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

March 2nd, 1914.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the City Clerk of the City of Port Angeles, Washington, until March 16th, 1914 until 7 o'clock P. M. (and not later) at the City Clerk's office in the City Hall, in said city, for the raising of the following described building:

The three story, concrete building known as the Morse Building, situated on Lot 9, Block 1, Tidelands, east of Laurel street.

Said work to be done in strict conformity with plans and specifications now on file in the office of D. W. Morse, in the City of Port Angeles, and at the office of the architect, Mr. Kingsley, Empire Building, Seattle, Wash.

The City Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Attorney James Stewart is having his residence property southeast corner Oak and Ninth streets, modernized with large windows, an addition of a fine kitchen and other improvements made, preparatory to removing at least a portion of his law library and other personal effects thereto, converting it, as we were going to say, into a bachelor's hall, but upon second thought this cannot be; if so why the kitchen?

Billy Martin, whose years of experience and strict attention to business have made him an exceptionally good mechanic and business man, has bought his partners' interest in the Angeles sash and door factory and will hereafter conduct that institution himself. Just at the present time, the beginning of the building boom, a wood working factory becomes almost a public necessity and Angeles is fortunate in having a plant so fully equipped.

The Port Angeles Reading Club enjoyed a most pleasant and entertaining meeting last Friday afternoon with Mrs. Stephen Smith. Mrs. John Willson read a splendid paper on the literature of Mexico and Mrs. Troy entertained with an interesting account of their music, singing a number of very pleasing selections. In singing "The Swallow" she was assisted by Mrs. Rixon. To give an idea of the instrumental music, Mrs. Hyde played a number of the Mexican waltzes. The club has now finished the study of Mexico and will next take up the Balkan States. At their next meeting March 13, with Mrs. McGillivray hostess, Professor White will give a talk on the geography and history of the states. NATIONAL SALMON DAY, MARCH 13

The Development and Magnitude of the Industry, Now Second in Importance

The coming celebration of National Salmon Day, on March 13th, while it will be marked on a large scale throughout the entire country, will be of particular significance on the Pacific Coast. There is scarcely a community, large or small, on the seaboard of Washington, Oregon, or California and Alaska which does not receive some portion of the $40,000,000 which the salmon canning industry spends annually for labor and materials.

On the Pacific Coast the activities in honor of the King of Food Fish will take the form of public gatherings and banquets in the large cities. Canned salmon will be served in every railway dining car, and it is expected the 500,000 people will be reached in this way alone. Hotels and restaurants will feature canned salmon and literature and recipes will be widely distributed.

The salmon industry is also celebrating its 50th anniversary this year and for that particular reason interest attaches to the event. It had its origin in 1864, when three pioneers from Maine who had engaged in lobster canning, established themselves on the Sacramento river in California. The industry soon spread to the Columbia and thence to Puget Sound and Alaska, where it is now the second industry in importance.

Beginning with a small pack valued at a few thousand dollars, the business has developed to an extent never dreamed by its founders. It reached its high water mark in 1913 with a pack of over 8,000,000 cases or more than 400,000,000 cans valued at $40,000,000. On this Coast over 35,000 people are directly employed in the salmon canning operations and thousands of others are engaged indirectly in the preparation of supply, transportation and distribution of the pack.

Though the industry has its seat on this coast, it finds its principal markets in the Eastern and Southern states and abroad. As a result, the huge fortune which it spends each year in outfitting and operation is taken not from the towns and cities from which it is carried on, but comes from the East and foreign countries as so much new money added to the wealth of the coast.

Because of the enormous scale on which it is operated and the rapidity with which it has developed, many people are under the impression that the industry is short-lived. As a matter of fact the business though half a century old, is firmly intrenched on a self-sustaining supply of raw material and is still growing. The fact should not be overlooked that as a result of special taxes levied on the industry and the special license which it pays, the national and state governments are able to engage in propogating salmon to take the place of those caught each year. The salmon is a wonderfully prolific fish, but under natural conditions much of the spawn is destroyed and many of the fish never attain maturity because of their natural enemies. On account of the high efficiency of the hatcheries which dot the streams, the fish are spawned and reared under ideal conditions and as a result the percentage of fish brought to maturity is much higher than under nature. It may therefore be said that the salmon industry is self-sustaining and constitutes, with proper care, a perpetual natural resource of immeasurable value to the states of the Pacific.

Some interesting figures have been compiled in the office of Governor Lister relating to the extradition of criminals. Considering the popular belief that crime is on the increase, the figures appear quite contradictory. During the twelve months between January 15, 1913, and January 15, 1914, 52 persons were extradited from the state of Washington on requisitions issued on Governor Lister by the governors of other states. During the same period Governor Lister issued 39 requisitions on the governors of other states for persons wanted to answer in the courts for crimes committed in this state who had escaped beyond the boundaries of the state before they could be taken into custody. As indicating one Pacific coast criminalogical situation, the figures show that more requisitions were made on Governor of California than any other state, and Governor Lister, in the same period, issued more requisitions on the governor of California than on the governor of any other state, indicating that there is a pronounced movement of fugitives from justice between the two states.

In Chatfield, Minn., the farmers started a movement that would be well to emulate all over the country. A cooperative creamery was established that did so well that dividends to the amount of $2,000 could be declared. The farmers, instead of drawing down the money, thought it over and realized that "Mother" had done as much for the success of of the creamery, something should be done for her, so they started a cooperative laundry in connection with the creamery. Now this laundry is doing the "washin's" of some five hundred families at an average cost of 95 cents a week and on Monday when "Mother" gets the creamery business out of the way she can sit down and read the magazines or use the telephones in visiting with her neighbors. This is cooperation that will pay the biggest kind of dividends.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

Veterans' Home; Condemnation of Impure Food; State Powder Factory; A Holstein State.

Olympia, March 4. — More than 8,500 veterans of the Civil War are now living in the State of Washington, and twenty per cent of them are members of the state homes, according to figures prepared by W. H. Wiscombe, superintendent of the Washington Veterans' Home at Port Orchard.

"In view of the fact that the state of Washington had no soldiers in the Civil War, as this state was not in existence at that time, it reflects great credit on the patriotism, benevolence and loyalty of the people of the state to care for the old veterans so well," said Mr. Wiscombe.

"In the past ten years, the immigration of veterans of the Civil War and their wives from other states has been large. The majority of them are poor and feeble and have come to this coast for their health. The average age of the men is 74 years, and of the women 66 years.

A great many are hospital patients some are helpless, and there are very few inmates who are not more or less feeble, and it is only a matter of a few years now before all the work in the Veterans' Home will have to be done by younger people.

"Our little cemetery, located on the hill, about one-half mile from the home, is filling up rapidly. The first grave was dug there one year ago and now there are over sixty graves there."

The improvements that are being made at the Port Orchard home, in this biennium, under the direction and supervision of the present board of control, consist of one large barracks building, two eight-room cottages, laundry, machine shop, assembly hall and superintendent's cottage. All of the new buildings are substantially built and are convenient and strictly sanitary. When they will be completed, about April 1st, the capacity of this home will be increased to about 525.

That the pure food division of the state department of agriculture has condemned and confiscated, since last August, more than 100,000 packages of bad food, and now has tied up, awaiting the decision of chemists, a like number of packages, was the statement made by Assistant Commissioner J. J. Higgins, in an address delivered before the Thurston county branch of the Washington Democratic League. A large proportion of this canned food was canned meat and fish.

"We believe, and are acting upon the theory, that we should stop impure food at its source, rather than at its outlet," said Mr. Higgins. "This of course means a hard and bitter fight as it is a fight against the big interests rather than the poor and defenseless retailer. I believe that 95 per cent o fthe food purveyors are honest, and want to do the right thing by the public, but the difficulty is to know who the 5 per cent dishonest ones are, and to head them off in their questionable practice.

"In the enforcement of the law we are daily confronted with serious problems. We must constantly keep in view the legitimate interests of the manufacturer and dealer and what their interests mean to the state and its general welfare. In considering these interests, we are brought face to face with the further fact that there are other considerations that canot be weighed upon the scales of commerce and there are values which cannot be recorded by the dollar mark. Human life and health is the most valuable asset trusted to our keeping and must and will receive our first consideration. Whenever business interest conflicts with the public interest we cannot hesitate as to which we shall serve."

A common sense statement of the conditions surrounding the possible establishment of the proposed state powder factory has been made by Governor Lister, who has recently received copies of resolutions passed by several granges urging immediate action toward using the provisional appropriation of $50,000 made by the last legislature.

The governor states that after having looked into the question of the practicability of the powder factory himself he appointed a commission to make a further thorough investigation. He asks persons believing a state powder factory should be established to communicate information they may have on the subject to State Senator Ralph Metcalf, of Tacoma, and closes with the statement:

"If the results of the investigation show that the state can establish a powder factory, and by so doing materially reduce the cost of stumping powder, to those who desire to use it in clearing the logged-off lands of the state, there is no question but that it would be of material assistance in the proper development of the state ought to be done. If, on the other hand, the investigation indicates that the state could not furnish stumping powder at a material reduction from present prices, and the construction and operation of such a plant would be of no practical benefit in clearing the lands, we will all agree it would be unwise to expend the $50,000 appropriated."

SYNOPSIS.

Kirk Anthony, son of a rich man, with college friends, gets into a fracas in a New York resort. A detective is hurt. Jefferson Locke insinuates himself into the college men's party.

Locke, aided by Kirk's friend Higgins, who thinks it a joke, drugs Kirk and puts him aboard a ship bound for Colon. Kirk is on the passenger list as Locke

Kirk wins the capital prize, $15,000, in the lottery. He and Runnels make plans for advancement. The Cortlandts, having turned from the older Alfarez, intend to make Senor Garavel, a banker, president of Panama.

"Broke" and without baggage, aboard the ship Kirk makes the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cortlandt.

Cortlandt is in the American diplomatic service and is going to Panama on a mission. In Colon Kirk, as the son of a big railroad man, is taken up by Weeks, American consul.

Kirk's father repudiates him, and Weeks casts him out as an impostor. Kirk meets Allan, a Jamaican negro canal worker out of a job. The two are arrested by Colon police for helping to put out a fire.

Kirk and Allan are treated brutally in a Colon jail by young Alfarez, commandant of police. Allan's release is obtained by the British consul, but Weeks refuses to aid Kirk. Mrs. Cortlandt gets a phone call.

Mrs. Cortlandt obtains Kirk's release by using influence with Colonel Jolson, head of the canal. The Cortlandts are intriguing to make Alfarez's father president of Panama.

Kirk's father casts him off finally, and Mrs. Cortlandt obtains for him a position on the Panama railroad under Runnels, master of transportation.

CHAPTER X.

A Night at Taboga.

DESPITE his great contentment in Mrs. Cortlandt's society, Kirk found himself waiting with growing impatience for his active duties to begin. Curiously enough, this feeling was somehow connected with the thought of Edith herself. Why this should be so he did not trouble to inquire. They had become the best of good friends, he told himself, a consummation for which he had devoutly wished, yet for some indefinable reason he was dissatisfied.

He decided that he needed exercise and determined to take a tramp through the country, but on the evening before the day he had set for his excursion his plans were upset by a note from Mrs. Cortlandt, which the clerk handed him. It ran:

Dear Kirk—Stephen has arranged an outing for all three of us, and we are counting on you for tomorrow. It will be a really truly picnic, with all the delightful discomforts of such affairs. You are not to know where we are going until we call for you at 8. Faithfully and mysteriously yours, EDITH CORTLANDT.

The recipient of this kind invitation tossed it aside, with a gesture of impatience. For the moment he experienced a kind of boyish resentment at having his intentions thwarted that seemed out of proportion to the cause. But the emotion soon passed.

The next morning Edith appeared upon the hotel porch. She was alone.

"Where's Mr. Cortlandt?" he inquired.

"Oh, some men arrived last night from Bocas del Toro and telephoned that they must see him today on a matter of importance. I shall have to make up to you for his absence if I am able."

"Where is to be the scene of our revel?"

"Taboga," she said, with eyes sparkling. "You've never been there, but it's perfectly gorgeous. Please call a coach, our boat is waiting, and don't sit on the lunch."

Kirk obeyed, and they went clattering down the deserted brick street. Edith leaned back, with a sigh.

"I'm so glad to get away from that hotel for a day. If you only knew it, Kirk, you've capsized the political calculations of the Panama Conservative party."

"I didn't know I had ever even rocked the boat."

"It runs back to your affair with Ramon."

"Really, did that effect it?"

"Rather. At any rate it gave an excuse for setting things in motion. There had been some doubt about the matter for a long time, and I was only too glad to exert my influence in the right direction, but—this is a picnic to an enchanted island, and here we are talking politics. We mustn't be so serious. School is out, and it's vacation. I want to romp and play and get my face dirty."

The landing was thronged, and at sight of the newcomers loiterers gathered from all sides—a pirate throng, shouting a dozen dialects and forcing Kirk to battle lustily for his luggage. Stepping into a skiff, they were rowed to a launch, and a few moments later were gliding swiftly around the long rock rib that guards the harbor, a copper hued bandit at the wheel, a Nubian giant at the engine and an evil yellow faced desperado sprawling upon the forward deck.

Even before they had come to anchor at Taboga island a dozen boatmen were racing for them and crying for their patronage. At the water's edge they saw a tiny village nestled close against the mountains, its tiled roofs, rust red and grown to moss, its walls faded by wind and weather to delicate mauves and dove colors and greens impossible to describe.

The launch, when it came to rest, seemed suspended in air, and beneath it lay an entrancing sea garden. Once the engine had stopped its clatter a sleepy, peaceful silence settled over the harbor, unbroken by wheel or whistle, for in Taboga no one works and there are no vehicles.

Slowly He Picked His Way Ashore.

"What a wonderful place!" exclaimed the young man fervently. "Why, it's like a dream—it can't be real!" Then, as the boatmen renewed their begging, "I wonder which barge gentleman I'd better hire."

"Take the little boy, please." Edith called to an urchin who was manfully struggling with a pair of oars twice his own length, whereupon the older boatmen began to shove off with many scowls.

"Our choice has offended these genial bandits," Kirk observed as he helped her to a seat. "When shall we tell the lad to bring us off?"

"Four o'clock," answered Mrs. Cortlandt. "I arranged with the captain to be ready at that hour, so, you see, we have the whole day ahead of us."

Across the limpid shallows they glided, bravely propelled by their nine-year-old oarsman, but when the bow of their skiff grated upon the bottom they were still some yards from the shore.

"Looks as if we'd have to wade," said Kirk, then called to one of the nearby boatmen to lend the child a hand. But the fellow replied gruffly in some unintelligible jargon.

"He says he carries his pasengers ashore in his arms," Edith translated.

"Really? Competition is spirited even on this heavenly isle. Well, that's easy!" Anthony untied his low shoes, kicked them off and rolled up his trousers.

"Permit me to help you," he said, "without embarrassing our pilot."

She stood up and allowed him to gather her in his arms. Then for the first time she felt his strength as her body leaned to his. Slowly he picked his way ashore while she reclined in his embrace, her arms about his neck, her smooth cheek brushing his. When he deposited her gently upon her feet he saw her face had gone white and that she was trembling.

His own face was glowing as he waded back to fetch the lunch basket and his footgear. Under the circumstances he had done the only natural, the only possible thing, yet it had queerly perturbed them both.

The two visitors explored the village, even to the quaint, tawdry chapel, with its impossible blues and rusted gilt, and noon found them eager to investigate the contents of their lunch basket. Taking a random path up the hill, they came at last to a spring of cool water, and here they spread their meal under a mango tree bent beneath tons of fruit.

The afternoon sped quickly. If at times Kirk found his companion regarding him with a strangely timid, half defiant look, he refused to connect it with the episode of their landing.

Promptly at 4 they came down the drunken little main street and out upon the beach. But no launch was in sight.

"Hello! Where's our boat?" exclaimed Kirk.

"The captain told me he'd be ready at 4. Perhaps he has run over to Taboguilla or"— She hesitated with a troubled frown.

"You told him to wait?"

"Distinctly." Seeing an idler in the square above, she questioned him in Spanish. "This man says the launch left for Panama two hours ago. They went on a Sunday spree. He says they came ashore and bought a lot of liquor, and he heard them quarreling later."

"That means we'll have to get another boat."

"I don't know where we shall find one."

"Neither do I, but there must be some sort of craft that plies back and forth regularly."

"Only once or twice a week, I believe, and it belongs to the sanitarium. Perhaps we'd better wait awhile; our men may come back."

At last, as the sun was dipping into a bed of gold, Kirk broke out:

"Gee whiz! We've got to do something. Mr. Cortlandt will be getting worried."

"In all probability he won't know anything about it until too late to come for us. He is dining with those people from Bocas, and may not get back to the Tivoli before midnight."

"Nice fix we're in!" remarked Anthony. "I'd like to lay hands on that captain."

"We may have to stay here all night."

"Well, at least we have a haven of refuge. They'll take us in at the hospital."

"I don't care to ask them. There's some one up there I don't wish to see. That's why I didn't go near the place today."

He laughed to hide his embarrassment. "I'm wondering—what people will say."

"Oh, you mustn't be troubled about that. It isn't your fault, you know, anyhow. Besides, people won't say anything because they won't know anything about it—if we stay away from that sanitarium."

"It's getting along toward dinner time," he said, "so let's see what we can find in the way of food."

They stumbled out into the unlighted street and began their search, but, seen close at hand, the cooking arrangements of Taboga proved most unattractive. But eventually they found a decent looking place, where they were taken in, and, after an interminable wait, food was set before them—chicken, boiled with rice and cocanut, black beans and cocoanut, fresh, warm milk and a wondrous assortment of hothouse fruits.

In spite of their equivocal situation, Edith seemed fully to have regained her spirits. Even the prospect of spending the night in this place apparently did not dismay her. They descended to the square again, stared at all the way through open doors and followed by a subdued murmur of comment. Then they sat for a long time watching the stars.

As if in despair over their impossible predicament, Edith gave way to a spirit of reckless vivacity, and Kirk, with a man's somewhat exaggerated sympathy for a woman's sensitive feelings, loyally strove to help her make the best of things in her own way. There was no real concession of her reserve—no sacrifice of the feminine privilege of prompt and complete withdrawal. If he had struck a false note he knew that she would have turned frigid in an instant.

It was on their return to the house that the climax came, leaving him strangely shaken. Their course took them past a tiny cantina. Frightened by a drunken brawl within, she picked up her skirts and fled into the darkness, Kirk stumbling along behind her. At last she stopped out of breath, and he overtook her.

"You mustn't run through these dark alleys," he cried sharply. "You'll break your neck." Half impatient at this hysterical behavior, he seized her by the arm.

"Oh, I'm so frightened!" she breathed, and he felt her tremble. She lifted her white face, and her eyes were luminous in the gloom.

Before he realized what he was doing his arms had closed around her and his lips had met hers. It may have been the romance of the night, the solitude, the intoxicating warmth of her breath. At any rate, he lost his head and knew nothing save that she was a woman and he a man. As for her, she offered no resistance, made no sign beyond a startled sigh as their lips came together.

But, impulsive as his action had been, it was no more sudden than his recoil. He released her and stepped back, crying:

"Oh, my God! I—I didn't mean that. Forgive me. Please." She said nothing, and he stammered desperately again: "You'll hate me now, of course, but I don't know what ails me. I forgot myself—you—everything. It was unpardonable, and I ought to be shot." He started off down the blind street, his whole body cold with apprehension and self disgust.

"Do you intend to leave me here in the middle of this"—

"No, no! Of course not. I'm rattled, that's all. I've just got a cowardly desire to flee and butt my head against the nearest wall. That's what I ought to do. I don't know what possessed me. I don't know what you'll think of me."

"We won't speak of it now. Try to compose yourself and find our lodging place."

"Why, yes, of course. I'll see that you're fixed up comfortably, and then I'll get out."

"Oh, you mustn't leave me!" she cried in a panic. "I couldn't stay in that awful place alone." She drew a little nearer to him, as if demanding his protection. A wave of tenderness swept over him. She was just a girl, after all, he reflected.

"I—I won't leave you. I'll stay near you," he stammered.

"I won't believe that you could have taken me for the kind of woman who"—

"No, no!" he cried in an anguish of self reproach. "I was a fool"—

"No," she said, "I don't—I couldn't bear to think that. Perhaps I was partly to blame. But I didn't think. I ought to have known that no man can really be trusted. But I thought our friendship was so beautiful, and now you've spoiled it."

"Don't say that!" exclaimed Kirk. "Say you'll forgive me some time."

But instead of answering him directly she proceeded in the same strain, probing his wounded self respect to the quick, making his offense seem blacker every moment.

Although he assured her over and over that he had simply followed the irresponsible, unaccountable impulse of a moment—that he had regarded her only as the best of friends and respected her more than he could say—she showed him no mercy. The melancholy, regretful tone she adopted was ten times worse than anger, and by the time they reached the inn where they had dined he was sunk in the depths of self abasement.

In reply to his knock an old woman came to the door and sleepily admitted them. Edith said good night and, quietly entering, closed the door behind her.

Kirk experienced a sudden desire to escape. To remain where he was simply prolonged his humiliation. But evidently he could not desert Edith. He sat down upon the doorstep and gave himself up to bitter thoughts.

She was such a wonderful woman, he told himself; she had been such a true friend to him that he had been worse than criminal to lose her respect. And Cortlandt had been so decent to him! It was significant that this gave him the most discomfort of all. He had betrayed a man's friendship, and the thought was unbearable. No punishment could be too severe for that!

When the first faint flush of dawn stole over the hill crest behind him he rose to wander toward the water front. As the harbor assumed definite form he beheld a launch stealing toward the village and ten minutes later greeted Stephen Cortlandt as that gentleman stepped out of the tender.

"Where's Edith?" eagerly demanded her husband.

"She's asleep. I found a place for her"—

"Not at the sanitarium?"

"No, no. One of these houses. Lord, I'm glad to see you! We'd begun to feel like real castaways. I've been up all night."

"What happened?" It was plain that Mr. Cortlandt was deeply agitated.

"Our boatmen evidently got drunk and pulled out. I tried to get a sailboat, but there weren't any, and it was too rough to try crossing with a skiff."

It took them but a moment to reach the house, and soon the three were back at the water front.

"What a miserable night!" Mrs. Cortlandt complained, stifling a yawn. "I thought you'd never come, Stephen!"

"I didn't get back to the Tivoli until midnight, and then I had trouble in finding a boat to bring me over."

"I suppose they were alarmed at the hotel?"

"I said nothing about it," he returned, quietly, at which his wife's face flushed. Seizing the first occasion, he exclaimed, in a low voice: "God! How unfortunate—at this time. Were you mad?"

She looked at him and her eyes burned, but she said nothing.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
Why Order of Sale of Real Estate Should Not Be Made.

In the Superior Court for Clallam County, State of Washington.

In the matter of the estate of Edgar C. Rex, an incompetent person.

Jessie Rex Haynes, the Guardian of the Estate of Edgar C. Rex, an incompetent person, having filed a petition herein praying for an order of sale of all real estate of said incompetent, for the purpose therein set forth,

It is therefore ordered by the Court Commissioner of said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said incompetent appear before the said Superior Court, on Tuesday the seventeenth day of March,1914,at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the court room of said Superior Court, at the Court house in Port Angeles, County of Clallam, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Jessie Rex Haynes, guardian, to sell so much of the real estate of the said incompetent Edgar C. ELWHA BRIDGE COMPLETED ty, will be readily understood by anyone who spends a half hour or so at the site of the bridge where the county is maintaining a wagon ferry, in charge of Joe Sampson, the Elwha Indian rancher. Bob undertook the job for $50 a month and it is proving to be easily worth a hundred, as white men's wages go. He is kept on the go from morning till night, first ferrying across a team or riding pony, and then taking a single passenger over in his canoe. He has a shelter tent near by, where he can keep warm around the camp fire but just when he gets a chance to use it is a mystery.

THE RAILROAD WORK.

The Erickson outfit, steam shovel and two trains, is at work on the grade which runs along the face of the bluff from the top near the mouth of the river to the old approach at the Elwha bridge, where, some three or four rods below the steel bridge, a pile driving crew is putting in the supporting deck. With a two ton hammer and thirty foot drop the piles are being set down by the half inch, the hammer rebounding like a rubber ball at each stroke. While there is nothing in the river bed but gravel, and the small flat boulders, it is proving the very hardest kind of work, some of the piles going down not over ten feet. A pile bridge across the Elwha, which rises six to ten feet in a single night, sweeping along huge trees like toothpicks, is a grievious insult to the Gods of the Olympics—and yet, being curved up stream and braced by the second deck, and also being below the dam which will stop all logs from up river, it may last for some months, by which time the railroad will doubtless be ready to put in a steel bridge.

A great deal of work remains to be done by the railroad and its bridge contractors at this point, over seventy-five men being employed at the present time, and with the completion of the county bridge—a matter of a week or so at the most—it will be an interesting trip for the automobilist.

TEA AND TANGO SUITS

The Phelps Dry Goods Company sent out invitations to all their friends and patrons to attend their annual spring opening beginning Thursday of this week and to be continued for one week. The store presented a very attractive appearance with its large assortment of new spring goods and millinery most effectively displayed. From little tea tables callers were served with tea and wafers from the daintiest of china, while the topic of discussion was the latest cut in Tango suits and coats and the new millinery creations.

Thursday's P. I. contained a notice of the tragic death of Harry McGregor, a former Angeles boy, aged 21, who was run over by a Northern Pacific freight train near Centralia. His father built the house on 8th and Albert street in the east end of town, recently owned by Andy Cosser.

Madison & Sons expect to start up their saw mill just south of town, in a few days and will make a special run on finishing lumber, siding and flooring, having a large quantity of first class timber on their property.

All hunting and fishing licenses expired February 28th and it will be necessary for anyone desiring to carry either rod or gun to take out a new license first. Over 15,000 licenses were issued in 1913.

EXPLAINED THE PROPOSED LAWS

At the H. S. Auditorium, under the auspices of the womens clubs of the city, Judge Ralston made a very interesting talk Thursday evening on the new laws which will be submitted to the voters of the state at the coming fall election. He explained very clearly the referendum and initiative and then took up separately the laws coming under each. He stated how necessary it was not only for the women but also for the men to make themselves more familiar with these laws to the end that they may be able vote intelligently. Some of them are quite complex, while others involve questions of great importance which should be carefully studied and looked into. He spoke of the importance of registering as it is absolutely necessary for one to have registered before signing a petition, and it is a crime against the law to sign the same petition twice. So he would warn all voters to read carefully any petition submitted to them to sign. He expressed himself very strongly on the subject of ones duty in regard to voting, believing that the privilege should be taken away from those who wantonly neglected their duty. We were pleased to see in the audience as many men as women, and hope enough interest will be created so we can have a number of other addresses during the club year on subjects relating to the political science of government. The meeting was opened with an instrumental solo by Miss Vivian Stoval and closed with a vocal solo by Mrs. Troy, both numbers being very much appreciated.

ENTERTAINED VISITING MOOSE

Supreme Organizer Initiated Into Ranks of Angeles Boosters.

Worthy Dictator J. P. Jensen, L. M. Campbell, and other members of the local lodge of the Moose had the pleasure, yesterday afternoon, of entertaining with an auto ride Supreme Organizer Jim Davidson of Anderson, Indiana, State Supreme Deputy Easton and Secretary McDonald of Seattle Lodge, who were going thru to Seattle. Organizer Davidson had been in Honolulu and the Seattle men met him in Victoria. He was very much impressed with Port Angeles, saying that while his home town could hardly hope to increase to any extent in population, now having 25,000, if they only had a few blocks of our water front they would sure have a city, and that is what he will look for here. We didn't learn whether Mr. Davidson found any one who was willing to part with a few feet of town property or not, but it is evident he would make a good booster and should not be allowed to forget us for lack of a personal interest in the west.

AN EFFICIENCY CAMPAIGN

Congregationalists Expect Several Speakers Here Next Tuesday.

Two weeks of an efficiency campaign has been planned for the Congregational churches of the state commencing March 1st. Next Tuesday, March 10th, is the day set for Port Angeles. The following program is to be carried out: At 10:30 a.m. the visiting speakers, probably five in number, will meet the pastor and officers of the Church for mutual review of local work. At 2:00 p.m. Open Conference and Addresses on our work as Congregationalists, closing with question box. 7:30 p.m. addresses on the subject "The Call of the Hour." The public is cordially invited to attend the afternoon and evening services.

THE SUPERIOR COURT

Murray Phillips, charged with burglary and sentenced to from 2 to 15 years in the State Reformatory at Monroe, after pleading guilty, was an interesting study in character at the Superior Court this week. Phillips seemed absolutely unconcerned as to what was to be done with him. He confessed to entering the home of M. Muller-thyme in January and taking a gun and some provisions, to getting provisions at various places, to taking Will Race's boat, to taking two sacks of potatoes and a case of eggs from the Dungeness wharf, etc., practically all of which he had with him when arrested at Port Townsend on a vagrancy charge. This he alleged was his first offense, and gave as his only reason that he was out of work, had spent all his money, and was hungry. He had worked in logging camps at various places and on the road at Morse creek. His relatives reside at Fargo, N. D., where he was born, and where he left when 15 years of age. He did not care to have his sisters know of his condition or whereabouts. He is 28 years of age.

The case of the State vs. Inland Nav. Co. was heard yesterday, Senator Wesley L. Jones son appearing for the defendant which is charged with transporting intoxicating liquors into a dry unit. Defendant demurrers to information on ground that it does not charge a crime in that it did not charge that defendants "knowingly" did the act and that the simple act without the knowledge was not a crime under the statute. The court permitted the prosecutor to amend his complaint and the case went over until the 16th inst. The cases against Jaffe & Co. also went over because of inability of defendants to be present.

Tuesday was return day on the Writ of Mandate issued in the case of J. W. Redden vs. W. T. Pelford et al for suspending his membership in the Christian Science Church. Defendants demurred to the complaint, alleging that it did not state facts sufficient to constitue a cause of action. Plaintiffs admitted that there was much in complaint immaterial to the case at bar, and asked leave to amend eliminating this and putting the case up to the court simply on the question as to the authority of the Board of Trustees to summarily suspend a member. This motion was granted and plaintiffs allowed 20 days to so amend.

MRS. STOVAL'S RECITAL

Mrs. Stoval and her class of music pupils entertained their parents and friends with a recital at Mrs. Stoval's home Monday evening. It was a very enjoyable program, the little tots being particularly interesting. The way some of them had mastered quite difficult selections was truly surprising. A number of choruses and vocal solos varied the program from instrumental music alone and were very much enjoyed. Miss Vivian Stoval closed the program with a splendid rendition of Beethovens beautiful Moonlight Sonata, playing the nineteen difficult pages entirely from memory. Mrs. Stovals pupils surely do her credit.

NEW MILLINERY STORE

A new millinery store is to be opened right away in the Aldwell building at present occupied by Bodley's Racket Store. The proprietors are Mrs. Westphal and sister Miss Keck, late arrivals in Angeles from Oregon. As soon as Mr. Bodley can secure another location, the ladies intend to have the whole store building and will have hairdressing parlors in connection.

RAILROAD COMING PENINSULA HUMS

"That the coming of the railroad, awaited for years by the Olympic Peninsula, has brought the expected measure of prosperity to that long-neglected section of the state is the declaration of W. S. Pearce, secretary of the Port Angeles Commercial Club, a visitor in Seattle," said yesterday's Seattle Times—and they told it under a four story head.

"This is the message of optimism which Mr. Pearce brings:

"Twenty-five carloads of steel rails have arrived in Port Angeles during the past week, and track-laying on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul extension into the Olympic Peninsula has begun. West of Port Angeles the work of completing the road is being rushed in order that timber may be supplied to the mammoth sawmill plant now under construction by the Puget Sound Mills & Timber Company, which will be ready to cut lumber within the next sixty days.

"This plant, one of the largest and most modern in the world, will give employment in all its departments to at least 1,000 operatives, and it is now practically settled that a great pulp mill will be erected near by, utilizing that part of the hemlock and spruce from the mill cut which otherwise would go to waste.

"The pulp mill itself will employ a large force of skilled workmen at good wages and will appreciably swell the pay roll of the city.

"The advent of the railroad has given a marked impetus to business, not only in Port Angeles, but to the entire Olympic Peninsula; evidences of industrial revival are to be seen in all parts of the territory affected.

"Land values are rapidly increasing and inquiries are pouring into the Commercial Club daily from all sections of the United States from prospective investors, who have been apprised by literature sent out by the organization of the matchless climate the rich, productive soil and the general advantages of this vast, undeveloped territory.

"There is not a vacant dwelling or business house in Port Angeles, so great is the demand for houses. Many people are living in tents while a large number of new residences are under construction. Work on several new brick and concrete business blocks has recently started and every foot of space that they will afford has been leased in advance.

"Lewis, Wiley & Morse, contractors of Seattle, have a $200,000 contract for street grading in the business district and are now assembling their equipment perparatory to beginning active work about the middle of the month."

Do You Wear Glasses for Reading Only?

You who need glasses only when reading, must do one of two things — either unconsciously strain your eyes every time you look away from your book or go to the bother of almost continually taking off and putting on your glasses.

To remedy this we recommend

for persons of any age who need glasses for close work only.

The lower part gives the neceessary correction for close vision while the upper part is adapted for normal far vision. Yet the two pieces of glass are so perfectly fused that KRYPTOKS looks exactly like the regular lenses. They guard against eye strain and make it unnecessary to remove your glasses except when convenient.
