PORT ANGELES OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 29, NO. 17 PORT ANGELES, CLALLAM COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, MAY 1, 1914. $1.00 PER YEAR

TWO 120-TON ENGINES HERE

Magic Talisman "S., P. A. & L. C." Nowhere in Evidence on Road's Rolling Stock.

The railroad received this week two 120-ton locomotives of the standard 10-wheel Milwaukee type, also two barge loads of ballast and camp cars. One of the locomotives, however, being an oil burner, could not be used here satisfactorily and was returned, the Tacoma Eastern engine being retained to work on construction as heretofore.

But while the tracks have been crowded with almost every type of car, from steel flats to antiquated stock cars, all loaded with rails and construction material, so far there has not appeared a single car bearing the magic talisman, "S., P. A. & L. C. Ry." The subsidiary feature has been lost sight of and everything from moguls down is "C., M. & St. P."

The ferry slip has become quite an important feature of the landscape of the upper bay; not having been included in the Erickson Construction Co.'s contract, it is being built by a Milwaukee bridge crew, and is anchored and braced in a most substantial manner. Considered in comparison with the slip at the Earles mill where cars carrying every kind of heavy machinery have been unloaded, or with the Little River Railroad dock which has answered the Milwakee's purpose thus far, it is evident the new slip is destined to see extensive use.

Rails have been laid twenty miles west, the temporary bridge across the Elwha having been in use some days. At Gettysburg, Contractor Swanson is working a crew of 100 men, winding up the last grade work west of the city. Ballasting yet remains to be done.

Here in town the railroad trestle has advanced along Railroad avenue to Valley street, while the City's work is thru to Laurel.

CAN CITY TAX 10-ACRE BLOCKS

Henry Foreclosed a Tax Certificate Against Property, and Claimant Appears in Court.

Louis Marletti was ordered committed to the State School at Chehalis at the request of his father in the hope that he will be better cared for there than is possible at home. Louis suffers from epileptic fits, seemingly incurable.

Mrs. Walton, mother of Walton minors and their guardian, was authorized upon proper showing to invest certain of the funds of the children.

Saturday, Judge Ralston sustained the demurrer of plaintiffs to the second affirmative defense in the second amended answer of defendants. Defendants gave notice that they would stand on the answer.

W. B. Ritchie appearing for plaintiff in George W. Moore vs. Herbert Derry, consented that his demurrer be overruled and case set for hearing May 6th on merits. This is a foreclosure of mortgage and possible default.

In G. L. Tanzer vs. C. C. Henry, motion of plaintiff to strike affirmative defense as tending to be scandalous, was granted as to the first and second paragraphs and denied as to the third and fourth paragraphs.

Judge Ralston will be here again next Tuesday for several days' stay, a large number of cases being docketed for hearing at that time.

New cases filed during the week are Ed. S. Wildy vs. C. C. Henry. This case involves the right of the county and city to tax the suburban lots forming the west section of the city, recently purchased from the government, the right being challenged on the grounds that the pres-

GOVERNMENTS HAVE ACCEPTED MEDIATION

Constitutionalist Commanders Are Aiding Americans in Every Way Possible.

An offer of mediation, formally made by the ministers of Brazil, Argentine and Chili. has ben accepted by President Wilson and Huerta has signified his willingness to find a peaceful solution. No definite plans have been formulated but an armistice has been asked of both governments. The conditions provided are to be accepted provided assurance is given that there will be no civil uprisings against American citizens. Under the armistice in accordance with international proceedings, neither the Huerta government nor the United Sates would pause in preparations for war. Plans for a possible conflict would proceed, but actual hostilities in the field would be prohibited.

While the Americans in Mexico City have been in constant danger of their lives and a few have been killed and buildings wrecked by the excited people, the constitutionalists in northern Mexico are doing everything in their power to protect the lives of Americans, commanders having even stated they would advance money and tickets to those unable to pay their way out of the country. Strict orders have been issued to protect the property of those leaving.

EARLY SETTLER CALLED HOME

Jesse Maxfield, Best and Most Favorably Known West End Citizen, Dies of Heart Failure.

(By our Regular Correspondent.)

Jessie Maxfield, one of the oldest est pioneers in the West End of Clallam County, died last Saturday evening at his home on Quillayute Prairie, from heart failure, at the age 72 years. His death was a great shock to his friends and relatives great shock tohisfriends and relatives as Mr. Maxfield was apparently enjoying good health until a few hours before the end came and no one would have suspected his fate. He leaves a wife, five sons, and three daughters, besides hosts of friends to mourn after him.

Mr. Maxfield came into the West End about 43 years ago with his family from Oregon, when this part of Clallam County was settled by Indians only. He settied on a homestead on Quillayute Prairie where he lived at the time of his death. The trip to Quillayute at that time had to be made by sailing around Cape Flattery in a small boat and after getting to the mouth of the Quillayute river the rest of the way had to be traveled in canoe up the river and from there the early settler had to walk to his place. All the supplies had to be shipped in in that way, so that it meant lots of patience and hardships to be one of the early pioneers, of which there are not so many remaining. Most of Mr. Maxfield's children settled in this part of the county, being engaged in farming and dairying and he himself owned one of the largest dairy farms in the West End.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed as yet but interment will take place in the cemetary at Quillayute, about the middle of the week. It is expected that many from far and near will pay their last respects to the deceased as he was esteemed and loved by both young and old. At an earlier time he took an active part in politics and public welfare, and is well known all over the county for his sterling character in being fair and just with his fellow citizens.

Mr. Maxfield was originally from the state of Maine, emigrating from there to Oregon before coming to this country.

Ed Graf is some marksman all right, as he unloaded another fine big bear at the P. A. Commission House Thursday morning and the meat sold like hot peanuts—wasn't enough to go around.

WILL ENFORCE ORDINANCE

Must Get Permit if You Want to Use Streets and Sidewalks for Cow Pasture.

All members were present at Tuesday's council meeting, and harmony reigned supreme. Even the mayor's veto of the Cow ordinance did not ruffle a hair and everbody went home early.

Wilcox of the Fire, Light and Water Committee reported having examined the repair of the jail and that it was a good job. In regard to drain of property in city hall block he recommended that Clerk be asked to communicate with the other property owners in block and ascertain if they will co-operate in the work and expense. So ordered. As to the fill of the ditch at 7th and Washington streets he further reported that it would possibly take $48 to fill ditch, or 40 feet of the worst part could be filled for about $15; this last he recommended. Shields objected to filling one ditch unless all be filled. and moved to amend that railing be placed on both sides of walk for safety's sake, at a cost of about $6 This motion prevailed.

Special committee on street grades of 8th and K streets asked one more week to report as property owners had not gotten together yet. Granted. Mr. Shields thought by next week the committee would be ready to report.

Street Supt. was authorized to purchase a root plow at a cost of $31.

In regard to extended improvement of Lincoln street, 3rd to Boulevard, City Engineer Filion asked further time to report in detail and asked that a committee be named to act with him in formulating a plan for the improvement of this street. It seems that there will have to be some dirt borrowed from other streets to make the fills necessary and it was recommended that other streets be included in the district. for the dual purpose of providing dirt and assisting in the sale of the bonds. The estimate of the engineer is that the proposed improvement will be $40,000, distributed in part as follows: Handling 52,000 yards of dirt at 50c, $26,000, culverts $6,000, sidewalks $4,000, miscellaneous $4,000. The assessed valuation of the district affected is $28,160, which makes the sale of the bonds doubtful. Shields, Fowler and Wilcox appointed.

Mayor White here returned the cow ordinance without his approval, giving as his reason that it would be a dead letter and that he did not wish the records further encumbered. The ordinnce would be impossible of enforcement. Fleming promptly moved that the ordinance be passed over the mayor's veto, seconded by Shields, and carried, Shields and Fisher voting no.

City electrician reported necessary to expend $200 to extend lighting system to remove from building, and necessary to expend $200 additional for extension and transformers for supplying power at new laundry site. Referred to light committee with power to act.

A petition was read from property owners and residents of vicinity asking that the street lighting be extended to place lights on Albert street at 9th, 10th and 11th streets. Referred to light committee.

Affidavits by Mrs. Ira Hall and Fred S. Goos relative to cows being gathered in before 9 p. m. were read, and Mr. Brockhaus was heard in relation to his cows being taken up before the prohibited hour and asking a rebate. The marshal insisted that no cows were taken up before the hour of nine, and that the Brockhaus cows are running all night. No action.

While on cow question Shields moved that each owner expecting to take advantage of the new ordinance governing cows, get a permit from the city clerk, describing therein the cow to be exempt, as a guide to the enforcement of the ordinance. Carried.

Mr. J. H. Hyde, subcontractor for the piling to be used in Railroad Ave., appeared before the council in an endeavor to have them pass on the piling submitted to be put in the Railroad avenue work. Mr. Filion, it seems, has looked over the piling and has rejected a large per cent of it as second growth, whereas the specifications call for first growth piling. Mr. Wilcox had also looked over the rafts and was of the opinion that there was considerable second growth among it and that it would be a great mistake to use it in salt water. Council took the position that they had nothing to do with the matter, that it was solely up to the engineer, and if Mr. Hyde can convince the engineer that his piling is all right it would be satisfactory to council. Mr. Hyde vainly sought to have Mr. Wiley of Lewis, Wiley & Morse make a statement in regard to the piling, but while Mr. Wiley spoke very highly of Mr. Hyde he refused to take any sides in the controversy stating that the contract sublet called for first growth piling "satisfactory to your engineer." Every detail of our contract will be done satisfactory to your engineer," said Mr. Wiley, "if it costs us $10,000 additional to do so." His statement and tone were indeed refreshing in this age when dodging seems to be a studied art.

Mr. Hyde insisted that he had 12 years experience in choosing piling and that he thought his judgment good, these piles, or some of them, could easily be taken for second growth, but according to up sound specifications they are not, as shown by the circles indicating age. He then read some letters from big users of piling and terms generally old growth piles are expressed in, namely of at least 7 grains to the inch. These piles he said would go from 9 to 12 grains.

It was agreed between Mr. Filion and Mr. Hyde that the city engineer would go over the rafts again and definitely pass on the entire collection of 7,000 feet, but he was inclined to think that his former judgment would prevail in the main.

The discussion brought in the Railroad and the fifth pile proposition, but the council refused to consider the matter. It was stated that the railroad would have to maintain the trestle and that the piling was satisfactory to them. Council was asked if satisfactory to Railroad if city would object. Council refused to state. This further brought out the statement by Erickson in the earlier stages to the effect that Mr. Erickson had stated that green piling would be satisfactory as the company intended to fill the roadbed during the life of the piling.

Council then adjourned.

HUNG HERSELF WITH FISHLINE

In Poor Health and Despondent, Port Crescent Woman Committed Suicide.

Hannah Justin of Port Crescent who had been an invalid for some time, so that it is thought her mind was affected, committed suicide Tuesday at the home of her brother, with a piece of fish line with which she managed to hang herself from the head of the bedstead. Mr. Fulmer brought the body in to the undertaking parlors Wednesday and the funeral was held from the chapel at one o'clock Thursday.

But little is known of deceased as she had only been in this country about a year and couldn't speak a word of English. She was born a native of Finland and about forty years of age.

NEW GROCERY STORE.

J. J. MacKechnie will open a grocery at his place on Eighth and Lincoln tomorrow, having fitted up a store room for that purpose. He will start in with a small stock, enlarging as the trade warrants. Being very pleasant and accommodating and having had several years experience as clerk and deliveryman for others here, Mr. MacKechnie will doubtless build up a good business.

The Methodist Brotherhood will hold their regular meeting at the church next Monday evening. Supper will be served at seven, after which addresses will be made by local members and a short musical program given.

THE COST OF EDUCATION

Interesting Financial Statement by Secretary Stakemiller Showing Cost of New Building.

On account of its being poorly advertised and not on its regular night, the Parent-Teachers meeting last Friday evening had a very small attendance. The paper by Mr. S. E. Stakemiller, giving a financial report of school district No. 7 for the past two years, was the principal number on the program and brought out considerable discussion pro and con. We give below a synopsis of the report as it may prove interesting to many who could not attend the meeting:

The state federation of Parent-Teachers associations will hold three days session in Olympia beginning May 10th to which Mrs. Nailor was elected a delegate from the Port Angeles association. She has also been instructed by the school board to visit the domestic science departments in Seattle schools as well as Olympia, and get pointers that may be of assistance in installing this department in Angeles schools.

The subject of providing more school room to accommodate the constantly increasing population was discussed; but it seemed to be the general opinion that as the district was feeling rather poor at present it would be more advisable to press the old school buildings into service until such time as the new ones were absolutely necessary and the school district on a better financial basis.

Judge Ralston was present and gave an interesting talk on his experiences as a member of the Port Townsend school board. The next meeting will be the second Monday in May when a large attendance is expected. Watch for the program.

The P. A. Library Association is now ready to sell membership tickets and will appreciate the assistance of the public. They had their deed to the library site recorded this week and paid their first assessment which amounted to almost $75. The total assessment against the lot is 743 dollars, which they are anxious to pay off as rapidly as possible. The officers of the association are Mrs. R. D. Willson, president; Mrs. Donald McGillivray, vice president; Mrs. Chas. Filion, secretary and Mrs. E. E. Hopkins, treasurer.

FOUR AND A HALF HOURS TO SEATTLE.

The coming of the steel steamer Sioux on the run the 1st of May has made a number of changes in the time card of the Seattle-Port Angeles steamers. The Sioux will leave Angeles at 2:00 p. m. daily, arriving in Seattle at 6:30. The Sol Duc will leave an hour later, getting to Seattle at 9:30 p. m. For the present, or until the Indianapolis goes on the Seattle-Victoria run, the Sol Duc will retain her old schedule across the straits.

On the return trip, the Sioux, leaving Seattle at 8:30 a. m., stops at the way ports, reaching Angeles at 1:30. The Waialeale will alternate with the Bellingham, on nearly the same schedule, going on to Clallam Bay.

KILLED BY ROLLING LOG AT CRESCENT CAMP

Thomas McGill, a man of about forty years of age, was killed at the Port Crescent logging camp last Friday by a log rolling on him. As far as known he was unmarried, but his family is living at Traverse City, Michigan. The body of the deceased is at the Fulmer Undertaking parlors, where word is expected to have it shipped to Michigan.

MESS OF FISH COST NEAR $50

Season Opens Today, State License of $1 Being Required of Anglers.

John Lane and Frank Salo, employed at one of the shingle mills near Port Crescent, were arrested by Game Warden Pike last Sunday for fishing out of season and fined $20 and costs. They found the sport good—so good they didn't know when they had enough, the sack of evidence containing fifty-seven fine trout and a three pound blue grouse. It is said that Judge Davis, being in good humor over the prospects of a fine spread, let the boys off easy; if such was the case he was doomed to disappointment for it was found at the close of the trial that the evidence had disappeared. We understand his Honor is offering a liberal reward for information leading to the apprehension of the guilty parties.

The example made of these offenders has caused a big rush at the auditor's office in advance of the fishing season which opens today, the 1st. Licenses cost $1 and can be obtained at the court house or of Game Warden Pike—but in the later case it will be well to get the card before filling your creel. Fish under six inches in length may not be kept, and there is a limit as to the number of pounds, but that is of no interest to Angeles sportsmen.

OFFERING $5 PRIZE FOR LARGEST TROUT

Corley & Maurmann, of the Potlatch Billiard Hall, are offering a prize of $5.00 to the person catching the largest game trout during the month of May. There are no restrictions other than that the fish must be brought in to be measured—fish stories won't go. As May is the month of all months for fishing in Lake Crescent, it is going to take a pretty large fish to land the prize, and the honor. Sportsmen will all be keeping an eye on the big window at the Potlatch to see who is in the lead. It is to be understood, however, that the gentlemen are not offering five dollars for the fish, but merely presenting a five to the lucky angler.

While spending a few days at his ranch near Mt. Pleasant the first of theweek, Ed Graf shot and killed a bear which weighed 112 pounds. Knowing the reputation of the Commission Co. to buy anything from a squirrel to a hippopotamus, he bro't it to town Wednesday and quickly disposed of it to the Commission people. Orders for the meat began to come in at once and it was quickly disposed of, many people preferring it to spring fries.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

State Fair Will Have Larger Exhibit of Products This Year Than Ever Before.

OLYMPIA, April 28.—The list of premiums offered for exhibits at the state fair at North Yakima this year will be fully as large as that of last year, and in many divisions larger. Ten thousand dollars has been set aside for a high class speed program, as against $7,000 last year, so that the amusement side of the fair will be better than ever before.

Economies will be effected by cutting the administrative expense of the fair to the bone. Thru cooperation of North Yakima business men a better fair than was ever given before is confidently predicted by the state department of agriculture, following a meeting of the advisory board, with the committee of North Yakima business men, held last week.

A fair committee composed of two members of the advisory board of the department of agriculture, Dr. Granville Lowther and E. E. Flood ,and S. M. McKee and Mayor A. J. Splawn of North Yakima, have been named by Governor Lister with R. E. Shannon of North Yakima secretary. This committee will do all administrative work and it is believed a vast saving can be made over expenses of last year. The "pass graft," too, will be eliminated this year, which last year deprived the gate receipts of an amount variously estimated between $6,000 and $8,000.

Although the program has not yet been definitely announced it has been decided that Tuesday will be Governor's day and children's day, Wednesday Faternal day. Friday has been tentatively placed as Derby day.

The state fair this year coming as it does between the Oregon State Fair at Salem and the Interstate Fair at Spokane, the committee believes it will be possible for a larger exhibit of products of the state to be collected and shipped to North Yakima than ever before.

The per capita expense, or average expense of maintaining one inmate one day has been reduced, during the last year, at seven of the eleven state institutions, it is shown in a report submitted by the board of control to Governor Lister. During the 10 years from 1902 to 1912, the per capita expense increased at every institution, being doubled in some instances. In three institutions the per capita cost has continued increasing and in one it is almost exactly the same.

Every institution is well within its limit of expenditures, the report shows. Of the more than $2,000,000 appropriated for the maintenance of the institutions for the biennium by the last legislature, only 42.5 per cent has been expended in the first year. Although the population is increasing steadily at every institution, the board of control expects confidently to be able to return considerable share of the appropriations to the state treasury at the end of the biennium.

Population figures for the month of March show that the state at the present time has 5,054 wards, this being the first time the number has ever passed the 5,000 mark. Of these 2,680, more than half, are insane.

The Washington state stone to be placed in the Washington monument has been completed and is now awaiting shipment to Washington, D. C. The stone is four feet long and two feet wide and bears the inscription "State of Washington" with a fac simile of the state seal cut into the stone below these words.

It is the gift from the owners of the several stone quarries at Tenino, and is of fine grade of Tenino stone. Governor Lister hopes to be able to arrange to have it shipped without cost to the state, and is endeavoring to have delivery made to the national capital as soon as possible so that it may be installed while our members of congress are in Washington city in attendance at the present session of congress.

The national guard of the state of Washington is in excellent condition for service if needed. Requests for chances to serve have been pouring in upon Governor Lister at a rapid rate recently.

Adjutant General Fred Llewellyn and Major Maurice Thompson, adjutant general from May 1, were called for conference by the governor last week, and assured him the troops could give excellent service. After the conference the governor stated:

"It will not be necessary for us to offer the guard to the president. He will call on us if the troops are needed and whenever the call comes we will be ready. I am assured there would be little difficulty in filling the guard to war strength. Washington could furnish a regiment that would compare favorably with that from any other state in the Union."

Undiminished in zeal, Ezra Meeker, pioneer of the Oregon trail, is once more about to take to the road with his ox team and pioneer wagon, to renew his work as a trail blazer, and to spread the fame of the state of Washington. Early in May the sprightly old man, past eighty in years, will set out from Tacoma on a journey to San Francisco, where he will spend the year 1915 at the Panama-Pacific exposition, exhibiting his outfit in the Washington state building, and working with maps and data which he has collected to demonstrate the need and feasibility of a national highway across the continent, following the Oregon trail which the pioneers blazed, and crossing the State of Washington via Snoqualmie Pass to tidewater on Puget Sound.

Meeker will finance his journey southward by sales of his books. He will travel under the auspices of the state exposition commission, and will distribute booster literature as he goes. The first stage of his journey will terminate at Portland, where he will attend the pioneers reunion in June. After that his plans will be governed by circumstances and the condition of his oxen. He will drive the same team with which he retraced the Oregon trail on his trip across the continent in 1906.

Effective June 21, $10 will be the minimum wage for girls of 18 and over and women employed in stores throughout this state, under order of the industrial welfare commission This order puts into effect the unanimous recommendation made recently by a conference of three employers, three employes and three representatives of the public.

The industrial welfare commission has called conferences to recommend minimum wages for the laundry and factory industries. The factory conference will meet May 14 and the laundry conference May 16.

In order to prevent the dangerous potato tuber moth from being introduced into this state, T. O. Morrison, assistant commissioner of agriculture, has issued a bulletin declaring it to be a pest injurious to the horticultural industries of the state, and has warned all California shipper that potatoes infested with tuber moth will be burned as soon as discovered.

Without any comment, simply as a matter of news, a London newspaper says that one rich man gave $250,000 to the party fund and was made a baronet. Three others gave respectively $750,000, $1,00,000 and $2,000-000 and all of them were made members of the House of Lords, a life job. If such a proceeding had happened in this country there would have been howls loud enough to waken the dead and the givers would have been relegated to obscurity. Evidently crime depends on where you live.

The state congress of Parent-Teachers' associations will convene in Olympia the third week in May and will assemble noted educators from the state and nation to talk to the delegates from the Washington cities on the training and education of the child. The convention allows two delegates besides the president for each association in the city and after the 50 mark is reached, one delegate for every 100 additional members. A large number of mothers and teachers will attend the May congress and already much interest is taken in it.

"We do not know what we will be called upon to do," said Admiral Badger, " but we are ready;" which Secretary Daniels regards a deathless utterance,—one that will live in history with "Surrender? I haven't begun to fight yet," "We have met the enemy and they are ours," Don't give up the ship" and Fire whenever you are ready, Captain Gridley." Well, we don't presume to know, but, be that as it may, it certainly should rank well along with the splendid sentiment, "I don't know where I am goin, but I'm on my way."

How many hides has a cow? The answer naturally is one. Yet at the big shoe factories the hide of a cow is split twice, making three full hides These splits are covered with a coating that makes it " grain leather." If a man today buys a pair of shoes made out of genuine calf skin he has to dig down very deep into his pocket book. While the price of ordinary shoes keeps up to the old figures, with with a threat of advancing.

Prof. Taft says that his first year of private life was a success. A pretty good showing, we should say, especially so considering that he entered upon it with practically no experience in that line.

The court's decision setting Harry Thaw free is several hundred words longer than the Declaration of Independence. And another difference between the two documents is that Harry Thaw is not free yet.

NON-PROGRESSIVES IN CONTROL OF MACHINERY

Party Conditions Do Not Reflect Real Sentiments of Republian Voters.

The attitude of the Republicans towards the Progressives was shown from two distinctively different viewpoints at the recent meeting of the Republican state central committee. In a speech, one of the delegates, a Progressive-Republican, declared hat the Progressives and Republicans should forget their past differences and again get together. He believed it to be the patriotic duty of the disinterested, unselfish members of the two parties to combine to end the Democratic havoc from which the country is now suffering. In his opinion there is no difference in the policy of the Progressives and the Republicans, especially since the Republican national committee had practically reformed its rules. and the only remaining differences in political doctrine was the proposed recall of judges and the recall of judicial decisions. He asserted that the Republican party was just as progressive as the Progressive party, citing the Republican support of the initiative, referendum and recall, Equal Suffrage, Workman's Compensation and Minimum Wage acts.

Another committeeman, evidently of the non-progressive variety, strongly opposed amalgamation with the Progressives, contending that the latter organization was founded on the ambition of one man and that its political doctrine consisted in platitudes and meaningless phrases. He expressed the belief that the Progressive party was inconsequential, both in numbers and in its scope of influnce—not worth conciliation. In support of his opinion, he referred to the late congressional victory in New Jersey and the large Republican registration in Oregon and California.

It is significant that the latter individual's viewpoint received the endorsement of the committee by a vote of twenty-eight to one.

The foregoing instance reflects a condition of the Republican party rather than the real sentiments of Republicans. There are progressive Republicans, who follow the leadership of such men as Hadley, Borah, Jones and Cummings, and there are non-progressive Republicans who are devoted disciples of Barnes, Penrose, Cannon and Lorimer. Perhaps the progressive Republicans are more numerous than the non-progressives, but the latter are in possession of the party machinery, hold all the offices in the organization and dominate the policies of the party.—Western Women's Outlook.

"Cheer up Mr. Merchant, Mr. Laboring Man, Mr General Taxpayer the University of Washington Daily in its issue of March 30, 1914 says students are organizing for a statewide campaign asking the legislature for a larger appropriation. Legislators are to be canvassed, papers throughout the state will be asked to assist and no stone will left unturned to gain the coveted result.' If the students win and your taxes go up in consequence, maybe your son as a student there will only have to spend $300 to enable him to attend the annual ball. A few more hundreds spent for snobbery and the like may enable him to escape the insults and sneers of the other students. Is it worth the price?" —State Capitol Record.

FUTURE MEAT SUPPLY.

Mutton Will Solve the Problem of Cheap Meat in America.

The hope of cheaper meat supply, some authorities assert, lies in sheep. The days of cheap beef are said to be over, and because of this cheap beef supply that the country has enjoyed up to a few years ago mutton has not been appreciated. Last year's figures show only 52,000,000 sheep on the farms or about one half a sheep for every one of the population, but according to the department of agriculture the country is capable of supporting something like 300,000,000 sheep. Undoubtedly the sheep is the future meat animal for America from the increase or establishment of great flocks of thousands of animals as are to be found today in the West, but in the raising of innumerable small flocks—on every farm. It has been largely assumed that sheep were a poor land crop, that if land was too barren to raise good crops it might be profitably turned into a sheep pasture, except for pure-bred flocks, where fancy prices are secured for breeding stock. The very reverse is true, according to the sheep specialists of the government. As in England, it is coming to be recognized that the question is not whether one can afford to keep sheep on high-priced land, but whether one can afford to keep high-priced land without sheep. Sheep increase the fertility of the soil the title "golden hoof" having been well earned, and they keep down weeds. In England, land which during Queen Elizabeth's reign produced only six bushels of wheat per acre, has been made to yield thirty bushels at the present time by the use of sheep.

We have a shipment of strictly first class flour coming that cannot be beaten for price or quality. P. A. Commission Co.

By the way, why should not Admiral Badger's observation "We don't know what we will be called upon to do, but we are ready," be a mighty good motto for every young man and every graduating class to adopt?

Mr. Wiley's statement to the city council that their contract "will be done satisfactory to the engineer if it costs $10,000 additional to do so," has the right ring; they can have all our contracts on that basis.

The old saying, "Its dangerous to be safe," has a new exemplification so far as Port Angeles is concerned in the red light district now-a-days. With an average of ten lights to the block in the down town section a man who starts for home seeing double has small chance.

Secretary Pearce of the Commercial Club is expecting, tomorrow, five thousand folders advertising Port Angeles. The text has been revised and, together with the illustrations, brought down to date, and it is believed the new advertising will meet with universal approval.

J. A. Curry, of Morse, Sask., Can., replying to McDougall & Hooker concerning certain property in Angeles, says, "I own lots 7 to 10, block 158, and want them for my own use as soon as I can get back there, as I am confident that town will go ahead now—if they will only keep those cows and chickens where they ought to be."

Of course readers of the Olympic-Leader have noticed the advertising carried for Bays & Co., the new real estate firm. We like the style of his ads—they're breezy, full of pleasure in the present and optimism for the future—and you'll like Bays when you make his acquaintance, for he rings as true as his advertising. Give him a show with that property you want to sell.

Saturday will be observed thruout the State of Washington as "Woman's Independence day", under authority of an official proclamation issued by Governor Lister. Results in this state since the adoption of the suffrage amendment have served to convince "a large number of those who were not disposed to favor equal suffrage, that women assist in the public affairs of the state by having the ballot," the governor states.

Having settled the momentous cow question so happily, the councilmen should now take up the noise disturbance. The number of whistles has increased to such an extent that its one continual blast from seven to seven-fifteen. After about a dozen of them have shrilled and bassoed it may be taken for granted that its six o'clock and a tired workingman be given the opportunity of turning over for another hour's snooze. The council should limit the length of time during which it is six o'clock or seven o'clock and make the whistle blowers conform to the regulations.

G. M. Lauridsen is offering 160 acres of land near Blyn, in forties, at $10 an acre; he requires a certain amount of improvement by actual settlers, to show good faith, and will then give a warranty deed, taking a ten years' mortgage for entire purchase price. It would seem that might offer a happy solution of the logged-off land problem. Stump land is of no value to the settler until he has made improvements. He needs all the money he has to improve the place and under this scheme instead of using part of his money for an initial payment, he puts it all into improvements and gets it to earning as soon as possible. On the other hand the owner of idle land, worthless until improved, receives an annual rental in the interest money.

The man who pays the largest income tax in Chicago is the president of a mail order house. All of his money was made from the country. Not a dollar was made in Chicago, for the mail order houses do not deliver any goods direct to a customer. All of his money was made by liberal advertising. If a mail order house 500 miles away from the customer can make this vast amount, why cannot the country merchant do the same by employing the same means as the mail order house? It can be done and it is up to the country merchant to do it.

While the concrete mixer was doing its worst across the street Monday and our shop was full of the rumble and crash, and fine cement dust as well, one of our patrons, endeavoring to place an order for some job work to be gotten out in a hurry, said "My, that mixer does make some noise!" We agreed with him that it was just the kind of noise we like to hear in Port Angeles, even tho we would rather it were around the corner.

Even the chickens seem to have caught the prevailing booster spirit and are showing what they can do, as evidenced by an egg eight inches in circumference laid by one of Mrs. M. S. McFadden's buff leghorns. Seriously, however, we suspect a turkey or a goose got into the McFadden hennery and are going to send the egg to McDonald's to have it hatched in anticipation of raising our own Thanksgiving dinner.

"Putting Out the Camp Fire," an attractive picture in colors of a camp scene in the Wisconsin timber country, showing the Indian guide pouring water on the half burned logs while the sportsmen load up the canoe with trophies of the hunt, is being sent out by the Washington Forest Fire Ass'n. The lesson taught is becoming well known in the Northwest.

That $5 prize offered by the Potlatch would look a lot more tempting if Charley Stakemiller were barred.

ELK STILL TO BE SEEN ALONG TRAIL.

Just at the present time, while yet early in the season, the Olympic Hot Springs is able to offer visitors an attraction probably not to be duplicated in any other section of the country—the opportunity of seeing at close range one of the several herds of Roosevelt elk that make their home in the Elwha watershed.

Altho Mr. Herrick has made but four trips with his pack train, there are already a number of guests at the springs, and every trip visitors report seeing elk on the side hill some six miles above the bridge. Sunday morning, the editor of the Olympic-Leader took a walk up the trail with Mr. Herrick, who was going in with a quantity of freight, and ran across a small herd at Hughes creek, about two miles up river. Luckily, the gravel and boulder bed is on the west side of the stream at this point, so that the elk. when alarmed, walked down onto the dry bed. Getting above them and taking advantage of a strip of small alder midway between the river bank and the stream, we stepped out within about the width of a street of the herd. There was no panic, they did not even start to run, but apparently patiently waited their turn to follow the leaders across the stream, where they gained the twelve foot bank thru a narrow cut and reaching the top turned around to look and shake themselves, the water flying in a spray from their glossy sides. There were forty-seven in the herd, all females and young, possibly a dozen yearlings. Those who have never seen an Olympic elk, unless, perhaps the old faded out mounted specimen which has been kept in our business houses so long, can hardly realize the beauty of these graceful animals, and would feel well repaid for the trip could they see the animals in their forest home.

We have been noting with a great deal of satisfaction the class of photo plays given at the Dream and hope the management of that classy little theater are getting the financial support in the shape of box office receipts which they deserve.

They are giving us some of the best photo plays shown in the United States today, for instance Mary Bickford as lead in "In the Bishop's Carriage." We would not have missed seeing that for a good deal and we hope the people of Port Angeles will show by their liberal patronage that they appreciate what the Dream management is doing.

Art Tyrrell has had mounted and placed in one of S. J. Lutz & Co.'s windows a moss-grown skull and horns of an elk that are really a curio, in that one of them carries three prongs while the other is perfectly smooth. Most people do not notice this fact, however, being chiefly interested in the placard which states that the elk lived 375 B. C., or something of that sort, and that ten Indians sacrificed their lives in the chase.

FITZGERALD - BROWN.

At the Catholic Cathedral in Seattle Thursday morning, April 30th, was solemnized the marriage of Mr. Thomas N. Fitzgerald of Angeles to Miss Francis Brown of Seattle.

The wedding was a quite one, attended only by the relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom. The bride looked charming in a dainty spring suit and hat and was attended by Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, sister of the groom, while Keeler Brown, brother of the bride, acted as best man. After the ceremony an elaborate wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Brown, parents of the bride, when the young couple took the afternoon train for a trip to Portland. They will be at home in Angeles after May 20th, in a cozy cottage the groom already has for occupancy. Mr. Fitzgerald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fitzgerald and has grown to manhood in Port Angeles, where he is now a prosperous business man and held in high regard by all who know him. His bride is also well and favorably known in Angeles, having visited here many times as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. T. F. Trumbull.

Messrs. Davis & Woods have just put in an oak filing cabinet containing twenty-six large drawers, which is a little the nobbest piece of furniture in any of the offices in town. It was built by D. M. McIver, the building contractor, and is easily the equal in wood, workmanship, design and beauty of finish, of any factory made furniture.

Stephen Smith very happily entertained his S. S. class (The Knights of Avalon) and a number of other friends at his home Friday evening of last week. The time was pleasantly passed with contests, music and a reading by Miss Wiggins, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Quite a party of Sequim people were shopping in Angeles Thursday.

REGULARS SENT INTO COLORADO

Situation in Colorado Has Gotten Beyond Control of the State Government

Federal troops stationed at Leavenworth, Kan., and Russell, Wyoming, have been ordered to the Colorado strike district by President Wilson, to the relief and gratification of state officials, mine operators and the leaders of armed miners. In replying to Governor Ammon, who had asked that troops be sent, stating the situation had passed beyond his control, the President said: "I shall not, by the use of troops, or by any attempt at jurisdiction, inject the power of the federal government into the controversy which has produced the present situation. The settlement of that controvery falls strictly within the field of state power. My duty, as I now see it, is to confine myself to maintaining a status of good order until the state can reassert its authority and resume the enforcement thereof.

Accounts of the trouble read like civil war—the rebellion in Mexico isn't a circumstance to it. In the southern field, Las Animas county, a force of 650 militiamen have been facing 2,000 strikers. Fighting was general all over the northern district Monday night, many being killed in pitched battles, and mine buildings wrecked by explosions and burned. Machine guns have been freely used.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as a director of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., has issued a statement defining their position. He declares that the officers of that company are ready and willing to adjust any just grievances and besides that had already granted the demands at issue before the strike started with the exception of unionizing the mines. These include an eight-hour day, semi-monthly pay, right of miners to employ their own weighers, right to trade where they please and increases in wages until they compare favorably with those paid in any part of the country.

The only point at issue is that of unionizing, and unionizing at the behest, not of employees, less than ten per cent of whom were union men, but at the demand of an outside body.

"This, as I have said, is a matter of principle which we could not accede or arbitrate.

"We do not question the right of any workmen to freely associate themselves in unions for the furtherance of their common and legitimate interests, but we do assert the equal right of an individual to work independently of a union if he so elects. We are contending against the rights of unions to impose themselves upon an industry by force, by assault and murder, and not against the right of men to organize for their mutual benefit.

"But the issue is not one of merely local importance. It affects every working man thruout the land. The fact that labor unions represent but a very small miniority of the workers of the entire country seems to be lost sight of by those who urge the termination of this local difficulty at the price of surrender to union domination. Surely, no thinking man can ask, much less expect, that we will abandon our own employes and the cause of the workers of the entire country, because violence and wholesale slaughter are brought about by an element which has come to regard itself as above and beyond the reach of the law."

The young people report a very pleasant time at the informal dancing party given last Saturday evening in Parish Hall by the H. S. class of 1913, who are endeavoring to raise money to finish payment on their Tum Tum of last year. Another party will be given in the near future.

The Thimble Club are planning one of their delightful social functions in the way of a ball at the Olympic Hotel to be given the evening of May 8th.

PARCEL POST PACKAGES.

Postmaster Fisher Receives Additional Instructions Relative to Rates

It has come to the attention of the postoffice department that many possible patrons of the parcel post system are not familiar with its advantages and the schedule of rates, especially as extended by the reduced postage and increased limit of weight which became effective January 1st last, and other modifications recently made for the purpose of promoting the service to the public. According to the instructions received by Mr. Fisher, packages weighing up to fifty pounds can be sent within 150 miles of Port Angeles, the rate being 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound. Packages can be sent by insured mail by the payment of a fee of five cents, where the value does not exceed $25, and where the value exceeds that amount up to $50 the insurance will cost the sender 10 cents. Packages can be sent C. O. D., by paying a fee of 10 cents. This will also insure the package. Books weighing over 8 ounces can be sent at parcel post rates. Parcels of miscellaneous printed matter weighing more than four pounds can be sent at parcel post rates. Seeds and plants are included as parcel post matter.

Communications prepaid at the first class rate of postage can be attached to the parcels of fourth-class matter. The department desires to impress upon the patrons of the system the importance of properly preparing the packages to be sent by parcel post, and all who are in doubt as to the requirements in the matter of wrapping a package should apply to the postmaster for instructions. All packages will be delivered free within the delivery limits of all cities to those who so desire.

ROOSEVELT IN 1916.

"At Washington belief is confident in the minds of close observers that the Progressives and Republicans will be drawn together, in close coalition, if not amalgamation, long before the presidential campaign in 1916. That expectation is based on this line of reasoning: Progressives and Republicans are practically one party of opposition in congress now against the administration's policies. They have common ground on the tariff, on the canal question, on the Mexican problem, on the Japanese peril, and these are the big questions of the hour, and will probably be the big questions in 1916.

By some the prediction is centered that the two parties will be found marching together under a single banner that will be carried by Roosevelt. While the old line bosses in the republican party would probably fight to the bitter end against the leadership of Roosevelt, it is pointed out that the masses of the party still cherish a deep esteem and affection for their old leader, and will not be swerved from their purpose by men like Barnes, Penrose, Guggenheim, Smoot and Crane. These men, it is predicted, will be overwhelmed and sent into enduring retirement

Thus reorganized, or united, the Progressive Republican party, or whatever designation it might be given, standing emphatically on a platform that demanded just protection for the American farmer and workingman, the right of the nation to manage its own canal, strict regulation of big business, and a patriotic firm and courageous foreign policy, would make a powerful appeal to the voters in every section of the Union, and draw unto itself a host of independent Democrats who are dissatisfied with the administration's record on the tariff, the canal and our foreign relations.

Here are issues, it is argued that would delight the heart of Roosevelt; and no other American, it is pointed out, could use them with such telling force as Roosevelt.

Stranger political changes and realignments are recorded in American history. Certainly, if these predictions should be verified the country would witness a presidential campaign in 1916 that it would enjoy and long remember." —Spokane Spokesman-Review.

THAT MINIMUM WAGE.

"A conference, whose decision will be accepted by the state labor commission and become law for the state of Washington, has decided on a minimum weekly wage for women of $10. The conferees included three employers, three employes and three representives of the public. It was unanimous in its conclusion. The adjoining state of Oregon has also a minimum wage for women, $9.25 in Portland, and $8.25 in the rest of Oregon. The $10 figure is said to be the highest ever seriously considered by any state.

Now the trouble about all such legislation is that it is a lot easier to lead the horse to the watering trough than to make him drink. The person or corporation that hires labor isn't compelled to take women instead of men. If women can not underbid men, men are commonly preferred save in a few special lines. So the result of the plan Washington is going to try may be to lessen grievously the market for women's labor, at the same time that hundreds of women are tempted to come into the state to seek jobs under guaranteed conditions. There is not much logical basis for a minimum wage for women only. We believe most thoughtful economists regard the notion as unworkable.

Make a minimum wage for both men and women and you give to states that have no such laws all industries that can be moved. Secure uniform legislation in all states and you drive industries out of the country. There are some things that law makers must learn to leave to Providence. Women are the real sufferers from wild experiments intended to help them in industrial competition." —Brooklyn Eagle.

Proposals: Notice to Contractors.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the City Clerk of the City of Port Angeles, Washington, until May 5th, 1914, at 7 o'clock p. m. Said work to be done in strict conformity with the plans and specifications now on file in the City Clerk's office.

Blank forms of proposals and contract may be seen and obtained at the office of the City Clerk.

All bids must be accompanied by certified check in the sum of not less than five (5) per cent of the amount of the bid, and must be made payable to the order of City Treasurer of the City of Port Angeles, Washington.

All bids must be accompanied by certified check as called for or bid will not be considered.

Plans and specifications may be obtained from the City Clerk, but all plans and specifications must be returned to City Glerk's office before time of opening bids, or bids will not be considered.

CHAPTER XX.

A Plot and a Sacrifice.

THE night had been as hard for Edith Cortlandt as it had been for Kirk, but during its sleepless hours she had reached a determination. She was not naturally revengeful, but it was characteristic of her that she could not endure failure. Action, not words or tears, was the natural outlet of her feelings. There was just one possible way of winning Kirk back, and if instead it ruined him she would be only undoing what she had mistakenly done. As soon after breakfast as she knew definitely that her husband had gone out she telephoned to General Alfarez, making an appointment to call on him at 11. She knew the crafty old Spaniard would be awaiting her with eagerness.

Her interview with him was short, however, and when she emerged from his house she ordered the coachman to drive directly to the Garavel bank. This time she stayed longer, closeted with the proprietor. What she told him threw him into something like a panic. It seemed that Anibal Alfarez was by no means so well reconciled to the death of his political hopes as had been supposed. On the contrary, in spite of all that had been done to prevent it, he had been working secretly and had perfected the preliminaries of a coup which he intended to spring at the eleventh hour. Through Ramon he had brought about an alliance with the outgoing Galleo, and intended to make the bitterest possible fight against Garavel. Such joining of forces meant serious trouble, and until the banker's position was materially strengthened it would be most unwise to announce his candidacy as had been planned. She did not go into minute details. There was no need, for the banker's fears took fire at the mere fact that Alfarez had revolted. He was dumfounded, appalled.

"Ramon is partly to blame. He is just as proud as you or as his father," said Mrs. Cortlandt. "When he heard of your daughter's engagement to our friend Anthony"—

"Ah, now I see it all!" His face darkened. "So, this is my reward for heeding your advice in regard to Gertrudis. She should have wed Ramon, as was intended, then I would have had a lever with which to lift his father from my path. Very well, then, there is no engagement with this Anthony. It may not be too late even yet to capture Ramon."

"The city is already talking about Gertrudis and Kirk."

"No word has been spoken, no promise given. There is not even an understanding. Do you suppose I would allow my great ambition to be thwarted by the whim of a girl, to be upset by a stranger's smile? Bah! At their age I loved a dozen. I could not survive without them." He snapped his fingers. "Come, we will see my friend Anibal at once."

But Mrs. Cortlandt checked him, saying quietly:

"That is all right as far as it goes, but you forget the other young man."

"Eh? How so? Gertrudis will not marry this Anthony."

"Perhaps she loves him."

"Love is a fancy, a something seen through a distant haze, an illusion which vanishes with the sun. In a month, in a year, she will have forgotten; but with me it is different. This is my life's climax; there will be no other."

"But how will you handle Anthony?"

Garavel looked at her blankly. "He is in my way. He is ended! Is not that all?"

"I am glad you are practical; so many of you Latin-Americans are absurdly romantic."

"And why should I not be practical? I am a business man. I love but two things, madame—no, three, my daughter, my success and my country. By this course I will serve all three."

"Since you take this view of it, I am sure that with Ramon's help we can dissuade Don Anibal from his course. The general is sensible and doesn't want a fight any more than you do. If your daughter will consent"—

"My dear lady, give yourself no uneasiness. She does not know the meaning of rebellion."

"Then let me look up Ramon. He and I will approach the general together." She gave him her neatly gloved hand. "Things are never so bad as they seem."

That afternoon Kirk received a formal communication from the banker which filled him with dismay. It ran:

My Dear Mr. Anthony—To my extreme distress, I hear a rumor that Gertrudis is to become your wife. I assure you that neither she nor I blame you in the least for this unfortunate report, but since busy tongues will wag upon the slightest excuse, we feel it best that no further occasion for gossip should be given. I am sure you will co-operate with us. Sincerely and respectfully your friend,

ANDRES GARAVEL.

A sense of betrayal crept over him as he read. What the letter signified, beyond the fact that Mr. Garavel had changed his mind, he could not make out, and he resolved to go at once and demand an explanation. But at the bank he was told that the proprietor had gone home, and he drove to the house only to learn that Senor Garavel and his daughter had left for Las Savannas not half an hour before. So back through the city he urged his driver, across the bridge and out along the country road.

Darkness had settled when he returned, raging at the trickery that had been practiced upon him. If they thought to gain their point by sending him on wild goose chases like this they were greatly mistaken. He proposed to have Chiquita now, if he had to burst his way to her through barred doors. He had yielded to their left handed customs out of courtesy. It was time now to show his strength.

What folly he might have committed it is hard to tell, but he was prevented from putting any extravagant plan into operation by a message from the girl herself.

As he dismissed his coachman and turned toward his quarters Stephanie came to him out of the shadows.

"Chiquita is at the house. She wants to see you."

"Of course she does. I knew this wasn't any of her doing. I've been hunting everywhere for her."

"At 9 o'clock she will be in the Plaza. You know the dark place across from the church? If we do not come wait."

Long before the appointed time Kirk was at the place of meeting, but scarcely had the city chimes rung out 9 when he saw two women emerge from the dark side street next the Garavel mansion and come swiftly toward him.

He refrained from rushing out to meet them, but when they were close to his place of concealment he stepped forward, with Chiquita's name upon his lips and his arms outstretched. She drew away.

"No, no, senor!" she cried. "I sent for you because there was no other way, that is all. My father would not let you come to the house. You will not think me bold?"

"Of course not."

"I could not let you go until you knew the truth. You do not—believe it was my fault?"

"I don't know what to believe, because I don't know what has happened. All I know is that I got a note from your father. But no matter what it is I'll never give you up," he declared stubbornly.

"Ah, I feared you would say those very words, but you must do it, just the same. It will be hard for us both, I know, but"— She choked and shook her head as the words refused to come.

"Tell me first why I must give you up?"

"Because in spite of all I am to marry Ramon," Gertrudis said wretchedly.

"Who said so?"

"My father. He has forbidden me to think of you and ordered that I marry Ramon. Sick or well, living or dead, I must marry him."

"I'm hanged if you do!"

"It is those miserable politics again. If I do not obey, my father cannot be president, do you see? Senor Alfarez is terribly angry that I refused to marry his son, to whom since I was a little child I have been engaged. Ramon also is furious; he threatened to kill himself. So it comes to this then. If I will not bind myself to the agreement, Senor Alfarez will contest the election. I do not know how you say those things, but my father will be defeated. Perhaps he will be humbled."

"I won't stand for it. They're making you a sacrifice, that's all. What kind of a father is it who would sell his daughter"—

"No, no! You do not understand. He is proud; he cannot accept defeat; he would rather give his life than be humiliated. Furthermore, he wishes me to marry Ramon, and so that ends it." Her lips were trembling as she peered up at him to see if he really understood.

"Let them rave, dear. What does it matter who is president? What does anything matter to you and me?"

"He says I am too young to know my own mind, and—perhaps that is true, Senor Antonio; perhaps I shall soon forget you and learn to love Ramon as he loves me. I do not know"—

In spite of the pathetic quaver in her voice, Kirk cried with jealous bitterness:

"You don't seem to object very strongly; you seem to care about as much for Alfarez as you do for me. Is that it?"

"Yes, senor," she said bravely.

"You are lying!" declared Stephanie, suddenly.

The girl burst into a perfect torrent of weeping that shamed him. Then, without any invitation, she flung herself recklessly into his arms and lay there, trembling, palpitating like an imprisoned bird.

"Forgive me, dear," he exclaimed, softly. "I knew better all the time. You mustn't think of doing what they ask; I won't allow it." She looked up with eyes gleaming through her tears and said, brokenly:

"Senor, I love you truly. You see, I cannot lie."

Her breath intoxicated him, and he bent his head to kiss her, but Stephanie tore her roughly from his arms. The woman showed the strength of a man, and her vulture-like face was working fiercely as she cried:

"No! She is mine! She is mine! She is a good girl."

"Oh, I am wicked," Gertrudis said. "I love you, Keerk—yes, I love you very dearly, but my father—he refuses—I must obey—he has the right, and I must do as he wishes."

"Come with me now. We'll be married tonight," he urged, but she only clung to Stephanie more closely, as if to hold herself from falling.

"You are very sweet to me," she said, with piteous tenderness, "and I shall never forget the honor, but you see I cannot. This is more to my father than his life. It is the same to all our family, and I must do my duty. I could not let you go away thinking this was my doing, so I sent for you. No, one must obey one's people, for they are wise—and good. But one should be honest."

The tears were stealing down her cheeks, and she thrilled to his pleadings as to some wondrous music, yet she was like adamant, and all his lover's desperation could not shake her. Seeing that his urging only made matters worse, he said, more gently:

"You are exalted now with the spirit of self sacrifice, but later you will see that I am right. I am not discouraged. A thousand things may happen. Who knows what tomorrow may bring? Let's wait and see if we can't find a way out. Now that I know you love me I have the courage to face anything, and I am going to win you, Chiquita. I have never lost in all my life, and I don't infend to begin now.

"Kiss me once so that I may never forget."

I'll see your father in the morning, and I'll be here again tomorrow night"—

But at this Gertrudis cried out: "No, no! I cannot meet you again in this manner." And Stephanie nodded her agreement.

"Then I'll see you the next night—that is, Saturday. You are coming to the big ball at the Tivoli with him and the Cortlandts. I must see you then, so make sure to be there, and meanwhile don't give up."

"Oh, there is no hope."

"There is always hope. I'll think of something."

"We must go," said the Barbadian woman warningly.

"Yes, yes! Is is of no avail to resist," came the girl's choking voice. She stretched out her little hand, and then, looking up at him, said uncertainly, "I—may never speak with you again alone, senor, and I must pray to—cease loving you; but will you—kiss me once, so that I may never forget?"

He breathed a tender exclamation and took her gently to his breast, while the negress stood by scowling and muttering. Even when she and Stephanie had melted into the shadows he stood motionless under the spell of that caress, its ecstasy still suffusing him. Then he turned and made his way up the street, but he went slowly, unseeingly, as if he had beheld a vision.
