PORT ANGELES OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 29. NO. 18. PORT ANGELES, CLALLAM COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, MAY 8, 1914. $1.00 PER YEAR

FELL IN LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

Mayor Gill Enthusiastically States Sequim is Prettiest Country Out of Doors.

By M. M. Matteson.

Bringing with him the political impression that there will be a few Democrats left on the Olympic peninsula by the time the November elections are held and the commercial ideas that Seattle is overlooking the possibilities in Clallam County agricultural and horticultural development and that local bankers should rate Port Angeles securities higher than in the past, Mayor H. C. Gill has returned from a comprehensive tour of the lower peninsula country.

The Mayor went to Sequim to deliver a May Day address, participating in a festal occasion designed to celebrate the eighteenth anniversary of the discovery that home-made irrigation ditches plus rich, thirsty soil, would make land worth from $5 to $15 an acre eagerly sought at $400 per acre. As a matter of fact, the mayor, who has drifted about quite a bit in this state, did not believe these stories before he went to Sequim. But he came back believing that the Sequim business men and farm owners purposely hold down the present valuation of property to impress the assessor.

From Sequim he was driven thru the entire Dungeness dairy country; taken to Port Angeles to study the regrade, financial and commercial problems of that city; escorted to the Elwha River power project, and given every opportunity to guess at what the coming railroad facilities can do.

McInnes a Democrat No Longer.

"I've got a good joke on the Democratic party," the mayor grinned this morning. "In the past Donald McInnes,the best known dairyman in the state, has been depended upon to direct Democratic affairs in Clallam County, but he will not do so this year. We sat side by side at a baseball game and Mr. McInnes told me that if given an opportunity he was going to make Republican speeches this fall. He told me that the new tariff on butter was costing him $300 a month.

"I was surprised and thought I did not understand him clearly. He added that New Zealand butter had cut into him, personally, to that extent without giving the consumer any benefit. I doubted whether that much foreign butter was coming in on the free list, but Mr. McInnes declared it was and that every dairyman in that part of the state was suffering. The same condition probably is true elsewhere in Washington.

Commercial Possibilities.

But Mayor Gill is really impressed most by the commercial possibilities of the lower Olympic peninsula.

"Of all the country I ever found, the Sequim prairie is the prettiest that lies out of doors," he declared enthusiastically today. "Nine miles away are the mountains and a short walk would take one to a port on the Sound. With the railroad completion, Sequim is within three hours' time of Seattle and is the most wonderfully productive country, at least in Western Washington. Farmers there are living in homes that rival those of Capitol and Renton Hills. They have every facility we have or need and they are free from worry.

"In the Sequim schools they are teaching manual training on a scale that compares favorably to Seattle.

They are bringing school children from all the surrounding country by auto stages and not only giving the children the advantage of transportation to and from their homes, but in the management of their schools are operating cheaper than a number of districts could and affording a higher class of teachers than could be provided otherwise. Common sense in municipal affairs and prosperity in business stands out everywhere as an example.

Should Awaken to Development.

"We of Seattle should awaken to Port Angeles' development and we can help that city, too. A big regrade undertaking is making that town one of the best ports on the Sound. Port Angeles local improvement bonds are selling at 96 and I am told even sold lower. They are absolutely good, far better than some of even our suburban local improvement bonds, and there is no reason in the world why they should not sell at par. I wish some of our bankers would take time to investigate them, for we not only can help Port Angeles, by taking their bonds at par, but can find a most excellent investment.

"That country on the lower peninsula is tributary to Seattle and always will be. I do not believe anybody can go down there without becoming enthusiastic over it and I would like to help encourage Seattle people to investigate closer and promote more enthusiastically the interests of that section."

AUTO ROAD TO MT. ANGELES

Question of Capitalizing Our Greatest Scenic Attraction Considered by Commercial Club.

An interesting session of the Commercial Club was held Wednesday night. The attendance was above the average and enthusiasm marked the deliberations of the body.

Several matters of importance to the city were discussed, among which was the building of the road thru Ediz Hook spit by voluntary labor donated by the citizens of Port Angeles. The Editor of the Bee made the suggestion, and it was well received; it was decided, however, that inasmuch as the lease has not yet arrived, it would be advisable to defer the matter until a later date.

The question of building a good automobile road from the city to Mount Angeles was taken up on the recommendation of Judge G. V. Smith, who pointed out the scenic attractions that would be made available by the construction of the highway. The secretary and others spoke in support of the project, and were unanimous in the belief that it would be the first step towards promulgating the desired fame of Port Angeles as one of the great tourist centers of the Northwest.

A committee was appointed to take the matter up with the county commissioners with the view to inducing them to authorize the construction of the road.

Initiative plans were formulated for the erection of an information booth at some public spot in the business district in order that strangers may be enlightened upon any subject pertaining to the city and surrounding country.

The eternal "cow" question came up again for discussion. Arguments in behalf of measures looking to the abatement of the nuisance were fervently presented by many, and it was ordered that another resolution imploring the city council to pass an ordinance which shall prohibit cattle from running at large on the streets, be presented to that body.

GATE CITY CHANGES HANDS

Morse & Sticker, the New Proprietors, Will Make Strong Team.

The Gate City Grocery on Morse Dock changed hands last week, being purchased by Morse & Sticker of Tacoma. Mr. Morse will be remembered as a partner for a time in the Port Angeles Grocery, his wife assisting in the store as she does at present. They were well liked, being always courteous and obliging. Mr. and Mrs. Sticker come here as strangers, but their pleasing personality and spirit of optimism as regards Angeles is already making them many friends and customers. We bespeak for them a fair share of the public patronage. See their announcement in this issue and watch for their weekly ads, they will save you money.

DREAM PROGRAM

Mrs. Fiske may be seen in a 5-reel Famous Player production, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," next Tuesday evening at the Dream Theater. On Thursday evening Cyril Scott in "Arizona." These fine photo plays are here but once and for one night only.

THE SEQUIM CELEBRATION

A Credit to the Commercial Club and a Splendid Advertisement for the "East End."

A delightful day's outing was enjoyed by the large delegation of Port Angeles citizens who went to Sequim last Friday, to participate in the May Day celebration. The weather was perfect, the roads fine, and it was stated that not less than seventy-five automobiles were lined up in Athletic Park where the celebration was held.

The principal attraction of the morning was the speech made by Hiram Gill, mayor of Seattle. Mrs. Gill accompanied her husband to Sequim and they enjoyed the sports and games until late in the afternoon, when they came to Angeles and were entertained at the Olympic Hotel, enjoying a trip to the lakes Saturday morning, the guests of E. E. Day.

The Port Angeles Marine Band furnished excellent music at Sequim, and the ball game between the Moose of Port Townsend and the Sequim team was a hotly contested one affording much pleasure to the fans. The little school girls, who gave the May-pole dance so gracefully out in the open, were loudly applauded and the whole program as pulled off by the Committees in charge was thoroly enjoyable. An excellent dinner was served on the grounds by the Women's Club, the money raised to be used on improvements in the Sequim cemetery.

The school house was kept open all day and guests invited to visit the manual training and domestic science departments, where the work of the past year was on exhibition and a most creditable showing it was. Mrs. Mason, the domestic science teacher, is a woman of many years' experience who received her training at Columbia College, N. Y., noted for its fine domestic science department. This is the first year of domestic science at Sequim and it has proven a good investment under the competent management of Mrs. Mason. She personally superintended and assisted in the establishment of the necessary requisites and the dish cupboards, moulding boards, flour bin, etc, were made at school by the boys of the manual training department.

But we have found that not only was Sequim ahead of us in having such a well established domestic science department in its school, but also the club women were setting us an example in progress. We were asked to inspect the public rest room and were susprised to find all modern toliet conveniences. The Sequim ladies said they had felt the need of a public rest room so much in coming to Angeles for a day's shopping that they decided to provide one for the use of thefarmer's wife and family coming to Sequim and they found it a most wise and profitable investment. The furniture was all donated by big business houses in Seattle who were glad to do it from an advertising standpoint. A number of the stores were anxious to donate the room, but it was finally went to the Lamoreax Drug store, the ladies installing the plumbing themselves with part of the work donated. Sequim is rapidly coming to the front and much credit is due their progressive public spirited women who are not afraid to work.

The May Day celebration was a credit to their commercial club and committees, who had it in charge. No rowdyism, drunkenness or vulgarity was apparent during the day time, quite in contrast to the Fourth of July celebration in Angeles last year.

$400 RAISED FOR BASEBALL

A good crowd of interested baseball fans turned out Sunday to the try-out at the ball grounds, and Manager Merrill feels very much encouraged over the interest and enthusiasm displayed. Over four hundred dollars has been subscribed, and baseball suits and other paraphanalia have been ordered. An immense cement roller weighing over 2400 pounds, is in the course of construction to be used in making the diamond and out-field as perfect and as smooth as possible.

24 POUND BEARDSLEE THE RECORD TROUT

Alvin Hemrich of Seattle, a guest of Al. Singer at Lake Crescent, caught a 24½ pound Beardslee trout at Lake Crescent on May 1st—the largest true trout ever caught on a hook and line in Lake Crescent, and consequently in the Northwest, though two slightly heavier were taken in the hatchery's fish trap at Lake Crescent a few weeks ago. Judging from the number, some 200, rounded up in the trap at that time, there are plenty of the big fellows for those who are enthusiastic enough to coax them up from the depths where they lie during the summer months. A very small percentage of the Beardslee's taken in the trap were males, it being at the close of the spawing season, and all but a half dozen or so were returned to the lake in good condition after being spawned. The Crescentii, a species more numerous than the Beardsleii, having a different spawing season, was not represented among those taken in the trap.

ANOTHER TRAIN LANDED MONDAY

Three Trains Employed in Work of Ballasting Track. Steel Laid to Eden Valley.

The Milwaukee ferry slip, nearly completed, was pressed into service for the first time Monday, when an oil burning engine, oil tank and pump, and several additional ballast cars were landed, the engine coming off the barge under her own steam.

Though the mogul received here last week is too heavy for an unballasted track, three trains are now in use on that work, the steel crew being held up until the bridge near Johnson's mill in Eden valley, is completed.

Here in town, work on the trestle along Railroad avenue, which was stopped by a restraining order obtained by Messrs. Carrigan, Fisher and Peet because the railroad had not taken steps to condemn and acquire right-of-way, will be recommenced at once, the matter having been satisfactorily settled in court.

Work on the streets has been proceeding rapidly, the concrete retaining walls being in on the north side

CATHOLICS PLAN SOCIAL HALL CHURCH OVERCROWDED

Father Erkins and the Catholic Society are figuring on building a social hall on their property adjoining the church and parsonage on Tenth and Oak streets. It will be a well built substantial building 40x80, with gallery, large auditorium and stage. If they decide to build, it may be pressed into service for a time as a church, as the seating capacity of the present church is taxed every Sunday. In that case the church will be converted into a social hall until such time as they can afford to build a church meeting their requirements. Father Erkins in surely to be commended for the progressive spirit he has shown since coming to Angeles and his efforts have all born fruit.

GERMANS BUILDING A HALL

The German Society of Port Angeles has started this week the erection of a social hall to be known as the German Social Hall, on their lots on 14th and Valley streets. Chas. George and William Newman have the contract and expect to have the building completed in a month. It is to be 40 by 60 and will cost about $1200. Three hundred has been donated in work and the rest in cash. The German Society has been increasing so rapidly in numbers the past year that they feel the need of such a social hall, and a grand opening and celebration will be held on its completion.

Mr. Grant, an architect from Seattle, was here this week submitting the plans for the Elk building.

"C STREET" CONTRACT LET

Johnson & Co.'s Bid Lincoln Heights Thorofare Lowest at $9,000. Much Needed Improvement.

All members of the city council except Mr. Shields were present at Tuesday night's meeting. A quiet session was held, enlivened by the presence of the Sophomore and Junior high school classes accompanied by Prof. Gilmore.

A report of the City Treasurer showed light collections for the year at $12,285, uncollected $365, with a balance in the fund of $307. In these days of needed extensions the light plant has had a time of it keeping up.

The city electrician recommended the purchase of fifty meters for general use. Upon motion of Dustman, so ordered.

Police Judge's report for April was read, showing fines collected during month $79.50.

The marshal reported having a prisoner whom he desired to put to work and asked for a man to guard him. This brought on quite a laugh. It was decided that the man shall be annexed to the St. Supt.'s crew.

The city engineer submitted his estimate of work done during April by Lewis, Wiley & Morse at $5,185.43 which with 25 per cent off, left a balance due the contractors and plus the fixed estimate due city, of $3,-889.08. The estimate was approved and clerk directed to draw warrant to pay same.

Three bids were submitted for the grading of C street from Fifth to Boulevard. Eagle & Cotton bid 50c a yard for dirt work, and $1 for gravel, total $9961; Ferch & Gass cut this to 49c and $1 with a total of $9923. A. L. Johnson & Co. were awarded the contract at $9,004, they bidding 42c for dirt excavation and 90c for graveling.

City Attorney Smith reported failure on the part of himself and Messrs. Beebe & Whitcomb to locate sufficient property of Edward M. Young and W. S. Denio to pay the judgment recently rendered against the city for the failure of the contractors to make good in the construction of the Eighth street bridges. Considerable property of Mr. Young's had been found but it was also found that there was a $1,000 mortgage and a $2,000 homestead against same. Interested parties had made the proposition to the city in letters to the attorney offering to pay one-half of the judgment, or $1276, provided he was relieved of the judgment and his bondsmen were relieved. The city attorney was doubtful if the judgment could be collected and thought the city would lose all if the tender was not accepted. City would have to settle at any early date with the Klipsun Lumber Co., a demand had been made upon him for warrant for full amount of judgment. He had prepared a resolution authorizing the settlement, and this was introduced by Fisher, who moved its adoption.

Dustman stated that he was just stubborn enough to oppose any such settlement. He did not like the tenor of the offer, and thought a man who could pay half should have the manhood to meet his just obligations. He would hardly want a judgment hanging over his head. Bigelow was of the same opinion, offering to take a note for the balance or give him time. Fleming asked the life of the judgment and was advised six years with no right of renewal. Motion lost on tie vote. Bigelow, Dustman and Wilcox voting no.

The city attorney again brought up the question of the ten mill levy, advising council as appeared in the papers of some days ago, that the Supreme court had refused a rehearing. He suggested that hereafter warrants be issued upon the general fund instead of current expense fund as these would not have to be validated, while it is possible current expense fund warrants will have to be validated. Bigelow was of the opinion that the best thing to do was to forget the whole thing as quickly as possible and the matter was dropped.

City Clerk Beam reported having seen property owners in Block 32 on

TELEPHONE BUILDING UNDER WAY

Work on the new telephone exchange building is being rushed rapidly along by contractor A. D. Wolverton, as the building is to be completed in sixty days. It is to be a two story structure, 32x50, with the exterior of brick veneer. It will be a very attractive looking building with Colonial porches, and will contain all modern conveniences and comforts for the enjoyment of the telephone girls and assistants. Mr. Phillips, general mangager for the telephone company, says it will be the best arranged and most modern of any of the telephone exchanges in the state. It is situated on Fourth street opposite Fulmer's Undertaking Parlors.

COUNTY UP AGAINST IT

Must Provide New Court House; Temporary Quarters Secured in Old School House.

The county commissioners have had under consideration this week the necessity of a new court house. An emergency exists and a problem is presented which will give them plenty to think of; they must act at once and in any event must remove to temporary quarters within the next thirty days.

The situation as it confronts the Board at this time is this: The present courthouse, aside from the fact that it is a dilapidated shack, a disgrace to the county and the community in which it stands, hangs over the street line as projected some eight or ten feet, and the auditor's vault is completely in Lincoln street and will have to be removed at once. Where the auditor's vault now stands there will be a cut of about twenty-five feet within the next thirty days. The commissioners have also been advised that the building serving as a courthouse will be absolutely unsafe for habitation, let alone to transact business in, when this cut is made. With a portion of the building projecting into the street, the whole building will be undermined by the natural sluffing of the ground by the cut. To prop it up at its present altitude, or to lower it to the new grade would not only rack it and necessitate the building of new vaults, but would practically force the repair of the entire interior, and would add practically three-fourths to the cost of grading down the site to street level as the old laborious method would have to be resorted to instead of the cheap up-to-date methods to be employed where buildings do not occupy the land. The alternatives are to remove the building and replace it on the new site or build a

FRY DRUG STORE OPENING VERY PLEASANT AFFAIR

The Fry Drug Store on First street was formally opened to the public on Wednesday afternoon. Many called to inspect the handsome interior, with its well arranged stock, beautiful soda fountain and courteous, affable proprietor and assistants. A profusion of sweet scented flowers, artistically arranged, added to the general attractiveness of the store. All who called during the afternoon were treated to icecream or sodas; the little folks being greatly delighted with the tiny tables and chairs arranged for their benefit. In the evening the store was brilliantly lighted, the electric sign in front attracting much favorable comment. Sweet strains of music floated out upon the air luring the passer-by to step in, and once in, it was hard to leave. Good sized bottles of Benzoin Lotion for the skin, were given away as souvenirs. The store has all the ear marks of an up to date city drug store, and is surely a credit to the proprietors and to our city. May it live long and prosper.

BASE BALL TOMORROW

The Sequim High School boys will play Angeles High at Athletic Park tomorrow, Saturday, at 2:30. Admission 15 and 25 cents.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

OLYMPIA, May 5.—Of $945,035 appropriated by the last legislature for the new buildings at the various institutions exclusive of the educational institutions, contracts have been let for $733,381.57 by the state board of control to date.

All the large contracts have been awarded, among which are the new state school for girls, added building at the institution for the feeble minded, the big cell block at Monroe reformatory, additional ward buildings at the northern hospital for the insane and new quarters for the old soldiers. A considerable portion of the amount appropriated probably will be turned back into the state treasury, representing savings from the appropriations as only a few small contracts remain to be awarded.

To the $733,381.57 represented in the face value of the contracts must be added, however, between $25,000 and $30,000 in architects' fees. On all of the regular contract work when contractors furnish labor and material, the state now pays architects' fees of only 3½ per cent, as against 5 and 6 per cent fees charged by architects on private work.

The showing made even at this rate, however, indicates that considerable saving might be made by employment of a state architect, as was proposed to the last legislature by Governor Lister.

A census of all factories, mills and other mechanical establishments in the state, coming under the factory inspection laws, has just been completed by Labor Commissioner E. W. Olson, and shows a total of 47,993 employes. Of these 2,269 are Orientals.

Of the 45, 724 white and colored employes, 40,810 are men and boys and 4,914 women and girls.

Saw, planing and shingle mills combined employ a total of 18,263 persons, of whom 897 are Orientals.

Canneries, packing and drying plants, employ 2,425 men, 944 women and 1,154 Orientals of both sexes.

Laundries and dye works employ 808 men 2,053 women and 130 Orientals, men and women.

Printing establishments employ 728 men and 157 women.

Breweries and bottling works show 837 male employes, five female and 10 Orientals.

Of establishments employing male help exclusively, machine shops give work to 3,458, sheet metal and ornamental iron works to 2,391, miscellaneous shops and carriage works 1,266, brick and tile works 879 and electric plants 458.

The charge that the potato moth infection has taken a hold on potato fields of this state is made by the Canadian dominion entomologist in a letter to the state department of Agriculture. Assistant Commissioner T. O. Morrison, after looking into the matter, however, does not believe the charge justified by facts.

A commission house in Victoria, B. C., claimed to have found infected potatoes in a shipment from North Yakima. The potatoes were refused and sent to Seattle. There State Inspector Rhodes made a thorough inspection and failed to find any trace of tuber moth, though he is the state expert on this pest, having inspected and condemned many carloads of infected potatoes from California, where the pest has gained a strong hold.

Inspector Rhodes gives it as his opinion that the Victoria commission house was overstocked with potatoes and did not wish to accept the shipment. The state department of agriculture is making further investigation in the North Yakima district, as the tuber moth is too serious a matter to be dismissed lightly.

Following correspondence by Governor Lister and the state tax commission with Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, the federal authorities have issued instructions for immediate listing for survey of all unsurveyed lands of the Northern Pacific land grant. This will result, says Surveyor General E. A. Fitz-Henry, who is now making plans for the big survey, in placing approximately 215,000 acres of Northern Pacific lands on the tax rolls.

These lands have heretofore escaped taxation because unsurveyed. The railroad will be required to contribute about $32,000 to the expense of the survey.

In telegrams sent last week to all members of the congressional delegation from this state and to Speaker Champ Clark, Governor Ernest Lister urged passage of the bill providing a method for the direct election of United States senators, so that this state may avoid the expense of a special session of the legislature.

The most active work ever done at this time of the year toward the state fair at North Yakima is now in process by the newly appointed business men's committee of that city and the state department of agriculture.

Practically every firm which offered prizes last year has already signified its intention of duplicating the offer for the 1914 fair and in many cases the prize money has been doubled. Up to the present time, the list of premiums donated to the fair has reached a total slightly in excess of $9,000, and it is the hope of those who have it in charge that the fund will be swelled to $12,000.

It is the intention of Dr. H. T. Graves, acting commissioner of agriculture, and J. E. Shannon, secretary of the fair, that the fair shall be self supporting this year.

Many of the leading nurserymen of the state have offered premiums calculated to bring out an unusually large exhibition in the horticultural line. This department will be larger than ever before.

That county exhibits will be even larger than last year is indicated by the number of inquiries as to whether the bonus of last year which covered transportation expenses would be held this year. The fair managers are in hopes that this may be offered, but as yet no guarantee is made. The railroads have offered their same special transportation rates as last year.

A resource map of the state of Washington, drawn to scale and showing in pictorial form the products and resources of each county and valley, is being prepared under the direction of the state exposition commission as a feature of this state's exhibit at the Panama California Exposition at San Diego in 1915. The map, which is in reality a big picture of the state, 10 by 15 feet in size, is planned on such a scale that orchards, forests, wheatfields, cities, railroads, rivers and scores of other features will be depicted in natural colors and appearance.

To accompany the map, and form a guide to what it protrays, the commission is compiling statistics covering the resources and products of the state by counties, giving especial attention to unsettled areas available for agricultural purposes.

Washington is planning a small but attractive exhibit building at San Diego, to cost about $8,000. Of the $25,000 which the legislature allowed for this exhibit, the balance will be spent for physical exhibits and maintenance of the building and exhibit. County commissioners and commercial organizations are urged to forward to the state exposition commission, 709 Central building, Seattle, any maps of their section, or data that will aid the commission in making the resource map as accurate as possible.

A MATTER FOR CAREFUL THOUGHT

Before signing the petitions for Initiative Measures to be voted upon in November,electors should consider not only the tremendous additional burden these measures will bring upon the state as a whole, but should give careful thought to the existing unprecedently high taxation. The burden of taxation which will be raised upon the property of the state during 1914 amounts to $38,311,180, or $31.44 for each man, woman and child in the state.

The initiative measures will in each instance add greatly to the already staggering burden of taxation. It is plainly apparent that some of the proposed measures have been drawn by men who were undelegated by any organized body, and who have not taken the trouble to analyze the result upon the public and interests of the state. The endorsements have been given by temporary leaders of organizations, without the rank and file of such bodies being fully acquainted with the drift and import of the legislation.

It has been truthfully stated that there is special need of investigating generally initiative bills for the reason that their origin is sometimes obscure. Who drew them? That is the proper question for the public to ask, and the question should be answered. It is apparent that some of the initiative bills at present before the public were fathered by persons not familiar with existing law; and some of them may have had an axe to grind. It is inconceivable that taxpayers generally will add to their burdens by signing these initiative petitions without careful investigation as to their ultimate cost and effect.

Now that they have got their second wind all of the democratic papers and politicians are claiming that the election of Mr. Drukker, republican, in the seventh district of New Jersey, has no significance,—that it was simply expected. As to its having any significance we have only to refer to the eminent democrats who went into that district to help defeat Mr. Drukker. Everyone of them made a plea for votes on the ground that the election of a democrat would mean the endorsement of President Wilson and his party and that defeat would be a rebuke. The voters responded and the republicans won. In the Twelfth Massachusetts district Mr. Callahan, a democrat, was elected to congress, but he came out squarely against the president's policy for repeal of canal tolls and made that the issue, so his election cannot be called an endorsement.

It was on April 11th, 1898, that President McKinley sent a message to congress on the conditions existing in Cuba regarding Spain. A resolution was introduced authorizing the president to use armed force and this passed the senate on the 19th of April. War was declared on April 20th. On April 20th, 1914, President Wilson sent his message to congress which was immediately followed by the passage of authorization by the house. War was not declared but war was started upon orders of the president April 21st when the American marines seized Vera Cruz. The action between the two presidents is very noticeable. War in this instance was really begun without full authorization of congress.

There is some tendency to criticise President Wilson because he hesitated to push the country into active warfare with Mexico. It was the same with President McKinley in 1898 when trouble began with Spain. Time vindicated McKinley and we believe that time will prove the same regarding the course of the present administration.

All of the democratic statesmen are shouting about the tremendous revival of trade as the result of the tariff. At the same time an official report of the American Railway Association shows that on February 14, 1914, there were 99,384 idle cars. Does that look a tremendous revival? The railway business is a true index of the business and prosperity of the country.

Here are just a few of them for a starter: Gaudalajara, Chihuahua, Ixmiguilpam, Tamaulipas. Try them on your vocal cords. Then after you've mastered them thoroughly, tackle Hosotipaguino and Aguascalientes.

NEWS FROM THE TOTEM POLE

Post-Intelligencer's Take-Off on Village Weekly Puts Sequim on The Map.

LATE WAR NEWS.

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Something may happen at any moment. No one knows. News from Vera Cruz says a terrific battle was fought at the water tank there and that six shots were fired at the army of the United States. A German was killed at Tampico and every effort is being made to keep the news from Emperor William. Motion pictures will be made of him when he finally hears it. Former Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson when interviewed this morning said: "Didn't I tell you!" There is no liquor on any of the American vessels except what is taken aboard by the sailors and the officers. Conditions are terrible everywhere. The downfall of Huerta is imminent, perhaps. One cannot tell. He was drunk again Saturday. He likes Scotch, but will drink anything. Presiden Wilson is having a tent erected on the lawn of the White House grounds so that if there is to be any more war the excitement will be intense*.

Unless one is in Washington one cannot fully realize all the horrors of war. It is awful, the speeches and everything.

JACK WAS NERVOUS.

Jack Ballinger sat behind the editor at the Shakespeare show Saturday night and when Shylock was getting ready to cut the pound of flesh from the breast of Antonio, Jack reached over and asked us if they really did cut the flesh out and we told him that they did not in the larger cities where the people are civilized, but in places like Tacoma and Sequim they had to do it to satisfy the people, who were bloodthirsty and rode on motorcycles. and Jack believed us and went back to sleep.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

Why Distribution Should Not Be Made

In, the Superior Court of The State of Washington for Clallam County.

In the Matter of the Estate of Bodil Christine Vind, Deceased.

C. A. Riddle as administrator de bonis non of the estate of Bodil Christine Vind, deceased, having filed in this court his petition setting forth that said estate is now in a condition to be closed and is ready for distribution of the residue thereof among the persons entitled by law thereto, and it appearing to the court that said petition sets forth facts sufficient to authorize the distribution of the residue of said estate;

It is ordered by the Court that all persons interested in the estate of said Bodil Christine Vind, deceased, be and appear before the said Superior Court of the State of Washington for the County of Clallam, at the court room of said Superior Court in the City of Port Angeles, said county and state, on Tuesday, the 26th day of May, 1914, at the hour of nine o'clock a. m. of said day, then and there to show cause, if any they have, why an order of distribution should not be made of the residue of said estate among the heirs-at-law and the persons in said petition mentioned, according to law;

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be published once a week for four successive weeks before the said 26th day of May, 1914, in the 'Olympic-Leader", a newspaper printed and published in said Clallam County and of general circulation therein. Done in open court this 17th day of April, 1914.

JOHN M. RALSTON,
Judge.

NEWS OF THE COUNTY

LINCOLN HEIGHTS

In the financial statement given by Mr. Stakemiller, in regard to expenditures in school matters as published in last week's paper, appears the following:

Expenditure for work on Lincoln Heights school building, for school furniture, chemical labratory apparatus, and equipment, and for manual training supplies, $16,795.57. Lincoln Heights citizens are wondering where those things are stored. There is no chemical labratory or manual training supplies here.

About twenty of the Harding connection went out to the mouth of the Elwha, last Sunday to see Charley Harding's and their new home.

Mr. Oaks has gone on another land hunting expedition. His boys are anxious to quit mill work and farm.

Mr. J. B. Fleming is spending most of his time on his little ranch

Mr. Harley Clark has been confined to his bed the past ten days, with a sprained back. He was working at Filion's mill.

Mr. Woods is able to get around some at present but his wife is sick. Mrs. Faherty is kindly caring for them. They certainly are having a large amount of trouble.

Mrs. Bashline was taken very ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. A. McKee, last Friday night, but is now gaining slowly.

Mesdames Bowman, Pollock and Grace Filion called on Mrs. Maxfield Sr., one day recently.

Mrs. Boomer and little daughter were welcome guests at C. A. Filion's, last Sunday.

A family moved into the Marletti house a few days ago, but the Epperson house remains vacant.

Pat Martin, whose eye was hurt with a ball bat, is now able to see some and will not lose his eye as was feared.

Mrs. Meals is doing well and expects to come home from the hospital Friday.

Street work is being done on 9th, 10th, and 11th, which will add greatly to the appearance as well as making it so much easier for the horses which draw such heavy loads. The covering of stumps with so many branches of fir before blasting, is certainly a vast improvement over the old method.

Mesdames Chambers, Fisher, Ross and Dermul spent a delightful day with Mrs. Nina Hall, recently; a farewell meeting before Mrs. Fisher's departure on her eastern trip and Mrs. Halls moving out to the ranch.

DE FUCA

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. MacDonald have their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Shaw and family of North Vancouver, B. C., visiting with them for a few weeks.

A party of sixteen from De Fuca spent May Day on the beach where they had a picnic and dug clams.

MacDonalds and Woodings attended the May Day celebration in Sequim.

Mr. J. Rogers was a Sunday visitor at Fernwood from Port Angeles.

Mr. A. V. Johnson of Seattle was a guest over Sunday at Fernwood, renewing old time acquaintances, with his old friends, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald.

School is now closed and Miss Helen Laurens is spending a few days with friends in Port Angeles.

Mr. Burgess now has a crew of men logging down near the beach. Mrs. Clevenger is also out and is doing the cooking for themen.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Heuhsleim and son from Port Angeles, spent Sunday visiting with their friends C. A. and F. Laurens.

Don't forget the dance tomorrow night, the 9th, at the De Fuca school house.

MT. PLEASANT.

Mrs. Dr. Lewis and Mrs. Zent and son were visitors to Mt. Pleasant Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Schultz, who was visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Dietsch, returned to Angeles Saturday, accompanied by her sister Martha.

Mrs. Copoto visited in Angeles from Saturday until Monday.

Mr. Albert Cook, a former resident of Fairview, arrived Saturday for a visit at the home of George Race.

Mrs. C. E. Taft and son visited Monday and Tuesday with her mother, Mrs. Copoto.

Mr. Henry Glass and son Arthur have killed three bears in the last ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Watts and daughter, Mrs. Lee and son Alfred, Mr. Patterson and Laurel McLaughlin, Perry Harrington, Mrs. Stevens, son and daughter, went to Sequim Friday for May Day and all reported a fine time.

Perry Harrington has purchased a Hupmobile from Mr. Gibson of Angeles.

H. P. McNutt was a visitor to Mt. Pleasant Sunday.

Mrs. Mitchell and daughter, Mrs. Cays, spent Tuesday at the Mitchell ranch.

Mr. Smith of Eastern Washington, arrived Thursday for a visit with his cousins, the Krajewski boys.

WEST END NEWS

The school at Quillayute closed last Friday after a most successful term taught by Mr. Edgar Cook. Mr. Cook is visiting with friends at Forks and Solduck for a few days, after which he will leave for Seattle to spend his summer vacation.

Mr. Arthur Quay is busy hauling furniture to be installed in the new residence that is nearing completion on the Lacy farm, near Beaver.

Mr. Archie B. Ryan, teacher from Port Crescent, whose school closed a week ago, is spending a few days in the West End as a guest of the Sappho Hotel and visiting among the schools in the vicinity. From here Mr Ryan will leave for Forks, where he will spend a week admiring our tall timber and farms in this part of the country.

Fishing season opened last Friday and a number have taken advantage of the opportunity to go out and bring in a string of fish for their own use. It is expected that a good many outsiders will soon be coming in to endulge in the sport of fishing. Fish seem plentiful as there is very little fishing done here.

Mr. and Mrs. Nickolson from California came into Forks last week to spend a few weeks with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Ford.

A party of the head people of the Washington Oil Company and their wives came to Forks last week to inpect their oil interest at that place. They are guests at the Forks Hotel. Among the party were Mr. and Mrs. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Filio and daughter and Mr. Shumaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Lesure spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Weldricks at Sappho.

Dr. Koenig gave his friends a pleasant surprise when, after spending a few days in the city of Seattle, he returned with a bride,and what makes it more interesting, the young lady is an old resident of Forks just spending the last few years in Seattle in order to gain her education. Miss Macockle has many friends and relatives at Forks and the happy couple have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy and prosperous life.

The last bids for the mail contract between Clallam Bay and Mora, in which the Wahlgreen Bros. were the lowest bidders, was again rejected by the government and new bids called for. This was done on account of the reduction that was obtained in price since the first contract was rejected the first time in January. The present contract, which is carried out by the Palmer Bros., at Forks, expires July 1, 1914.

What is known as the Big Rock Bluff on the Beaver-Fairholme road, which Ferch and Gass have the contract to remove, will be blasted about the 20th of May. Five tons of powder will be used in one blast. This blast is expected to remove from 5,000 to 6,000 yards of solid rock and as the Solduck river flows closely along the foot of this bluff it will probably dam the river to some extent at least for a time. A crew of men have been working for some time on the cavity to place the powder for this blast. This part of the Beaver-Fairholme road was the most dificult section to build. The camp employs a crew of 60 men and it is expected the work will be completed in July.

Miss Esther Bertolett closed a successful term of school on Bear Creek last Friday. This is her second term at this place and she will be employed for the coming year as teacher in that district.

Working men wiii do well to see our goods and get our prices before buying, as we have stocked up with a line of goods suitable to all their needs. Rubber boots, heavy shoes, overalls, jumper coats, over shirts and gloves of all kinds can be bought at bed rock prices. Lutz Clothing Co.

Judge J. J. McClinton was a returning passenger to Seattle Wednesday. He was looking hale and hearty for a man of his years but he reports Mrs. McClinton in very poor health which we are very sorry to hear.

R. R. Attorney Corwin Shank was attending to business matters in the city Wednesday between boats. Mrs. Schank accompanied him on his trip.

Franklin Pratt was a returning passenger to Seattle Wednesday.

EAST END

From the Press.

The local Telephone company of Sequim and Dungeness known as the Farmers Mutual and which was organized about a dozen years ago as a cooperative concern was bought out and taken over last Saturday by C. J. Farmer, president of the Angeles Telephone and Telegraph company, generally known here as the "Independent."

The local telephone company was an association of members each one of which bought his own outfit and paid fifty cents per month to operate and maintain the line.

The board of directors decided that as the line would soon have to be rebuilt and as expenses were increasing in all directions it would be better to sell out than to go heavily in debt to keep the line up and recommended to the members of the company that C. J. Farmer's offer to buy them out be accepted.

Saturday afternoon, April 25th, the Veteran Relief Corps No. 11 celebrated their 6th anniversary by presenting a large flag to the town of Sequim to wave over the own hall. Mrs. W. H. Taylor, for the corps, presented the flag with a few well chosen words and was answered by Mayor Babcock. During the raising of the flag a stanza of the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung after which the corps gave the salute to the flag.

The Angeles Telephone & Telegraph Co. intend to build a four room cottage for the Sequim telephone excange. Its location while not yet definitely decided upon will probably be on Washington avenue close to the business center of town. The company also expects to expend about $2500 on the betterment of the Sequim lines and the consolidation of the two telephone systems.

The board of directors of the McCleay school district have engaged three teachers for the next term instead of two as at present. The new staff secured is B. F. Slater, principal; Miss Minnie Paulson, intermediate and Miss Hazel Hooker, primary. Miss Paulson has been secured from the Sequim school at an increase in salary.

The social and literary entertainment which was to have been given at the McCleay school house on Saturday night, May 2nd, has been postponed to Saturday night, May 9th, by reason of the May Day festivitives at Sequim.

ATHLETIC MEET DATE SET.

Saturday, May 23rd, Set for the Third Annual Meet.

May 23rd is the date chosen for the staging of the third annual interscholastic field track meet between Jefferson and Clallam counties. The meet will be held on the Olympic Peninsula Fair association grounds.

In addition to the entries from the two counties, prospects are bright for outside entries which will speed the meet up and make competition lively.

The Mount Vernon baseball squad, which is slated here for that date, wishes to enter a team in the events. This can be arranged by playing the game in the morning. It has also been suggested and considered to invite a team from the Vashon high school, on Vashon Island to compete. The Vashon boys won the King county meet last Saturday, and the records made show our boys compare favorable with them in every event. With two outside teams entered, the local meet should attract a record crowd and a good deal of attention in high school circles all over the Sound.—Townsend Leader.

Tent houses for the summer are becoming quite the proper caper and many cosy little homes are being fitted up. Cecil McNutt and mother moved into theirs near the Lou Thompson place, the first of the week, and so did Mr. and Mrs. McMahon, who are on First street near the home of her sister, Mrs. W. B. Smith.

Mrs. William Jenson of Seattle was doing business in the city Wednesday between boats.

Health a Factor in Success.
The largest factor contributing to a man's success is undoubtedly health. It has been observed that a man is seldom sick when his bowels are regular—he is never well when they are constipated. For constipation you will find nothing quite so good as Chamberlain's Tablets. They not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. They are sold by all dealers.

The lessees of the Sol Duc springs are planning to erect a toll gate on the 2½ mile piece of road west of Lake Crescent that leads to the springs. The road was built by the Sol Duc company. It seems the contractors on the new Beaver-Crescent county road construction work are using the Sol Duc road to haul supplies over to their camps and the hot springs people propose to make them pay $10 a ton toll for the use of the road. Hence the toll-gate.—Sequim Press.

new building, and common sense says build by all means. It would cost a little more, but when the work is complete the county will have a building that will not be an eyesore to every resident and taxpayer.

The commissioners have been advised that they have the power to build a suitable building, as they may deem advisable, up to $50,000, and the emergency which plainly exists doubles this power without a doubt.

The present court house building must be vacated by June 1st, and the Board has entered into a lease with the school board for the temporary quarters in the old Central school on First street east. It is planned to build a small fire-proof building outside the main building in which to keep the records temporarily while the new plans are being worked out. County Treasurer C. L. Babcock has been sent to Olympia to confer with the attorney general as to the powers of the Commissioners in the crisis which confronts them.

Everybody recognizes that the general cry for a respectable county building has to be met at once. To submit to a bond issue at a special election will cost from $1,000 to $1,200. And even if a special election should be called the Board would still have the same emergency problems presenting themselves for solution.

The plan under consideration and seemingly the best which can be evolved, one which will hurt no one and at the same time fill a long felt want without delay is to build a $30,000 to $40,000 building and readjust the levy to take care of the expenditure so that the general levy need not be more than now. In this way sinking funds, interest and long-time indebtedness will be avoided; in fact, as one of the officers put it, we will have a real courthouse and not increase our present burden of taxation.

The plan is to build on the present site as soon as the property can be graded, a two story brick business block 80x100 feet with the necessary basement and heating plant and janitor's quarters. Whether this building is to face Second street or Lincoln street has not yet been decided. A building of this size will give all the necessary room for years to come, and later if found necessary to keep up with our marvelous growth it is found advisable to build a $100,000 or $200,000 building, the contemplated building will be valuable for business purposes as for court house purposes. It is not the intention to put on any fancy architecture, the plan being for a building for convenience and service. It is thought work can be commenced in sixty days and completed this year.

At the present time it is not planned to connect the jail with the new court house or to build any new jail.

of Front, between Laurel and Lincoln, on Laurel south of Front, and forms ready on the south side of Front, East of Laurel. A few days more and work will be transferred to the block between Laurel and Oak, where excavation has been begun.

Lincoln street sewer has been an object of particular interest, the work there being much more extensive than the layman would have imagined. Railroad avenue has been piled and planked from Lincoln to Laurel, the drivers being now in the middle of the next block.

Several store buildings have been elevated from six to twelve feet to conform to the new grade line, the Phelps Dry Goods store having acquired a roomy basement by the change. Work has also been commenced on the remodeling of the Morse concrete building.

Good Roads Day will be celebrated thruout the state of Washington Friday, May 22, under an official proclamation issued by Governor Lister.

The governor's proclamation recites that the internal development of the state will be materially advanced by the construction and maintenance of a thorough system of highways, and that only by general interest and assistance in connection with highway construction can the best results in this line be obtained, and urges and recommends that on Friday, May 22nd, the people, as individuals, give practical attention and assistance to the subject of roads, their construction and betterment, and that all organizations whose aim and effort is for the practical development and betterment of the state formulate and carry out such plans as will result in a practical observance of the day.

A former resident of Angeles, who hopes to again make this place his home, in writing from Portland says he hopes that this summer we may be able to get the cows off the streets. "With all the outside pasture convenient to the town," he says, "I don't see how anyone would be discriminated against. The little town of Brandon, Oregon, is not one-tenth as large as Port Angeles and much more isolated. If you don't believe it look at the map about half way down the coast. I know a man there who was fined $25 for letting his cow trespass in the streets last fall."

While watching the workmen employed by Wiley, Morse & Co.,at their work on First and Laurel, we heard several of our fellow citizens comment on the work as it is being done and we must say they all seemed to think the city is getting an A No. 1 job. It certainly is a satisfaction to hear friendly criticism of a large corporation doing a city job. It speaks well for the contractor.

Mrs. Frank Dilling reurned from Port Townsend Monday.

"LARGEST SAWMILL NEARS COMPLETION"

The Seattle Sunday Times follows a half page illustration of Earles' "Million Dollar Saw Mill" with this description, the whole constituting the very best kind of advertising for Port Angeles:

"Declared by experts to be the largest and best equipped sawmill in the Pacific Northwest, the new plant of the Puget Sound Mills & Timber Company at Port Angeles rapidly is nearing completion and soon will be turning out lumber at the rate of 400,000 feet every ten-hour shift. Its cost was more than $1,000,000 and when in full operation about 1,000 men will be employed.

"The mammoth plant is ideally located on a sand spit that projects far out into the waters of the Sound. It is thoroughly modern in every respect, all the machinery being of the latest approved type. This machinery, by the way, seems to do everything but talk, for it handles the logs automatically from the time they go into the mill until they come out dressed product. It is estimated that there are 2,000,000,000 feet of timber near at hand with which to feed the capacious maw of this huge establishment.

"The powerful machinery handles logs up to 100 feet in length and 10 feet in diameter with as much ease as a child handles a stick used for "play horse."

"The main part of the mill is nearly two Seattle blocks in length, the exact figures being 650 feet, and is 80 feet wide. A relatively small wing, devoted to the resawing department, extends out from this, having dimensions of 70x170 feet.

"Some idea of the size of the plant may be gleaned when it is known that sixty-five carloads of sawmill machinery were installed. This was furnished by the Union Machinery & Supply Company of Seattle, which handles the Prescott line of heavy machinery.

"In the large boiler house there are twelve 150-horse power boilers, developing a total of 1,800 horse power. The main drive belt is the largest ever put into a sawmill. It is eighty-four inches wide and is made of triple leather. More than a mile of belting is used in the plant and about four miles of chains for transfer and other purposes.

"When the lumber comes out of the mill it is run onto a sorter 500 feet long, where it is sorted and where graders mark it according to grades.

"Two cages, with a multiplicity of levers and in appearance much like the switch towers of railroads, form, perhaps, the most interesting feature of the sawmill in the eyes of the casual visitor. In each of these cages is an expert operator, who, by working the various levers, directs the routing of the logs and adjusts the big saws to cut the desired sizes of lumber"

City Clerk Beam has had 500 business like permits printed and every person who owns a cow, or who, in order to accommodate a neighbor, claims to own a cow, is expected to show up with a full and sufficient description, to the end that said cow may be identified by the marshal at any time and place.

The Board of Commissioners has issued a call for bids for the completion of the three and four-tenths miles of road between Blyn and the Jefferson line. It is their intention also to call for bids for the permanent highway from Elwha to Port Crescent, a distance of seven miles. At a meeting of the school board with the commissioners Thursday morning, arrangements were completed for leasing the old central school building to be used. as a court house until after the regrade work is completed and a new building constructed, rental to be $100 per month.

We might suggest to Wiley-Morse, the regrade contractors, the idea of putting riffles in their sluice boxes at Front and Lincoln streets. They might run into pay dirt. They say gold is where you find it and as all old Alaskans have found out, the precious metal is found in some very unlikely places. Placer diggings in the heart of Port Angeles would get them all going.

On June 11th at Clallam Bay and on June 20th at Seattle and Port Townsend will be held examinations under the civil service law to fill the positions of postmaster at Clallam Bay, Neah Bay, Port Crescent, Dungeness, Sequim and Port Williams. Applications forms may be secured at any of the offices for which examinations are held.

A MATTER OF PRINCIPLE

Young Mr. Rockefeller repeats that the maintenance of certain labor conditions in Colorado is "a matter of principle which we could not concede or arbitrate."

To feudal lords of mediaeval Europe the attachment of the serf to the soil was a legal right and a matter of principle.

In the pulpits of the South in 1860 property right in black slaves were upheld by citation from Scripture and the Book of Common Prayer as a matter of principle.

In England it was long a matter of principle that government should restrict a woman's free right to crawl on hands and knees thru low mine tunnels dragging a carload of coal by a harness about her waist.

It is matter of principle to some capitalists that parents shall be free to hir etheir little children to work long hours in shops.

That right of combination and organization, even if forced upon the unwilling, which Mr. Rockfeller would deny to workingmen, is defended by the lawyers of industrial monopoly as a matter of principle.

Mr. Rockefeller is correct in stating his "matter of principle." What he fails to note is that matters of principle are ever perishing in the development of human institutions. No matter of principle is big enough to stand out to the end against public necessity. For that matter, public necessity itself is a paramount matter of principle.—New York World.

SUPERIOR COURT NEWS

Yesterday Emily White was granted a decree of divorce from Edward E. White whose whereabouts are unknown. She was granted her maiden name, Emily E. Eyford.

The Court has been visiting the various Mothers' Pensioners this week to ascertain that the laws are being complied with and that the pensions granted are not misdirected.

The Court will leave today for Towsend and Island County, returning here for the week commencing May 26th.

In the case Merrill vs. Hathman, the defendent failed to appear and the case was heard between plaintiff and intervenor M. A. Conrad on the complaint of the latter. Plaintiff sues to collect on a note for $4[illegible]00 given by the defendant. Conrad has paid the full $300 he alleges $170 being paid into the Court subject to the order of Court. Conrad is away in Oregon at this time and the court refused to give judgment until his deposition is arranged to be taken. The property involved is lots 14 and 15, block 179.

In the matter of the restraining order obtained by M. J. Carrigan and F. P. Fisher and Harry Peet, stopping work on Railroad extension at Valley street until proper condemnation procedings were heard, the Court suspended the order with the understanding that due diligence is used to condemn the right of way across said property. The costs in this case are assessed against the Railroad for reason that it attempted to cross the land before condemnation proceedings were instituted. This case was heard thru the noon hour to permit the upsound counsel to catch the boat for home at 3 o'clock.

GREATER QUESTION THAN DISCIPLINE

Secretary Daniels Pays Well-Merited Tribute to Efficiency of the Navy.

New York, Saturday, May 2.—After the 400 guests at the ninth annual dinner of the Navy League of the United States, in the grand ball room of the Waldrof-Astoria, had eaten their "string beans a la Vichy," and other non-vinous viands, last night Gen. Horace Porter, president of the league said:

"I wonder what the governor of South Carolina would say to the secretary from South Carolina now?"

Whereupon Col. Robert M. Thompson, the toastmaster, introduced Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, and after mildly stimulating himself with two sips of water, Secretary Daniels spoke:

" We have witnessed this week, in the face of a national crisis," he said, "that there are really no political parties in America. When the President ordered the fleet to Mexico not a voice, not a newspaper in the country, raised a whisper of protest.

" Nor was there any more splendid and patriotism-inspiring spectacle than that the navy has just presented Just twenty hours after the President issued the order sending the fleet into Mexican waters, the fleet sailed. It was all ready for the emergency.

"And we know that every officer and man in the navy was willing and eager to spend his last drop of blood in the service of his country. No more significant or inspiring words than those of Admiral Badger, when he steamed out of Hampton Roads, could be imagined:

"We do not know what we will be called upon to do, but we are ready!"

"As Colonel Thompson just said, the Navy League could not have selected a more appropriate occasion for this dinner. In his own words, to which I heartily subscribe:

"We came here to speak for the navy, but the navy has spoken for itself."

"I have recently issued an order abolishing the wine mess. With a singular lack of logic, critics who see fit to represent me as a foe to discipline on the one hand, twist this into a case of discipline gone mad on the other.

"A far greater question than that of discipline lies back of this. There is no body of men more temperate and clear headed in the world than our officers, but let me for the moment put the shoe on the other foot and bring the question home in another form to you tonight.

"The wreck of a great battleship, the loss of a critical battle and the honor of our country may easily hinge upon one of many men in the varied and complex duties which these masses of intricate machinery, called battleships, have created. Would you take chances with the engineer of your train? Why, then, should you seriously ask me to take chances with those who direct the movements of our ships?"

"I ask you gentlemen of the Navy League, as you have asked me for my support, that you credit your secretary of the navy with a desire to bring our navy to the highest possible state of efficiency both as to ships and men, and that you carefully find out the underlying motives of such steps as may be taken before you sit in judgment.

"I cannot refrain from reading to you Emperor William's speech to the naval cadets at Murwick.

" 'I know,' said the German Emperor, 'that the pleasures of drinking are an old inheritance of the German nation. But we must, thru discipline, free ourselves of this evil. That nation which consumes the least quantity of alcohol wins."

After telling how John Lind, whom he called "this "grim and patriotic Norse philosopher," had returned from Mexico with the most glowing accounts of the navy officers and men there, the secretary said:

"I propose to make our navy more than a great school; to make it a great technical college, where literally hundreds of thousands of young men will be trained in habits of discipline; will be taught the necessity of obedience if they would afterward themselves rule; will be bro't to the highest state of physical condition and fitness and who in addition will be given training in almost all the trades.

WILL CONSIDER WOMEN'S DRESS

At the time of the Biennial Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Chicago, June 19, there will be a conference upon the Relation of the Club to the Community, at which a resolution will be presented concerning the subject of Dress.

Mrs. Mary I. Wood of Portsmouth, N. H., head of the Bureau of Information, has written the following letter to all presidents of clubs affiliated with the General Federation.

"Over and over again, especially during the past twelve months, the subject of women's dress has been brought to my attention. Women have written to me, both personally and as manager of the Bureau of Information of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, complaining that they were unable any longer to buy skirts which did not hinder locomotion; men have stopped on the street to call to my attention some particularly noticeable costume (one of those which covered everything and concealed nothing) and have asked if there was not something that could be done about it; social workers have discussed in my presence the effect which dress has upon morals; advocates of the dance have urged that proper dressing would go far toward overwhelming the evils of improper dancing; these and many others have brought the matter to my attention and each and all with the request that the clubwomen take some action in the matter.

Influenced by these things and moved by own observation, I am led to ask myself and the clubwomen at large if the matter is not one in which we are vitally concerned. We are recognized as the vital thinking force among the American women; is it not time that we should cease to adopt and countenance styles set for Parisian houses, regardless of the influence of such styles upon our comfort, taste or sense of decency?"

The proposed resolution is:

Whereas: The General Federation of Women's Clubs, in convention assembled, views with disapproval the present extreme tendency among the American women to follow designs in dress, regardless of beauty, comfort or modesty; and,

Whereas: These objectionable designs in women's clothes emanate largely, if not entirely from foreign houses; and,

Whereas: This constant patronage of foreign designs and foreign materials hinders a normal development of American art and manufacture; Be it, therefore,

Resolved: That this convention, in full recognition of the rights and privileges of the individual, places itself on record as heartily in favor of the movement for simpler, more becoming, and more modest designs in women's clothes, and urges the cooperation of all clubs and clubwomen of the Federation in a concrete effort to adopt styles in dress adapted to American needs.

WHITE ELK SEEN

Forest Ranger Whitehead Springs New One on Local People

Forest Ranger G. A. Whitehead, with headquarters at Quilcene, while in the city yesterday, unbosomed himself of a tale of white elk seen in the Dosewallips river valley, a few miles above Brinnon. Despite the assertion of oldtimers that "they ain't no such animal," Mr. Whitehead declares positively that he saw the peculiar creature with his own eyes, and in company with a reliable young man who accompanied him on his trip. Mr. Whitehead has sent word of his discovery of the creature to the Smithsonian Institute, at Washington, D. C., and would not be susprised if he receives instructions in the near future to organize a hunt, in an effort to secure the prize for the national museum.—Port Townsend Leader.

FIFTY NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

Fifty volumes have been added to the Public Library this week, twenty-six of them being popular novels, and twenty-four juvenile books, the latter being presented to the library by Mrs. Edwin Cochran of Seattle, daughter-in-law of Judge Cochran. Leading titles of the popular novels purchased by Miss MacClure, librarian, who returned last Wednesday from her Seattle visit, are:

The Leaven of Love, by Burnham.

The Prodigal Judge, by Vaughn Kester.

The Iron Woman, by Margaret Deland.

Within the Law, by Bayard Villiers

The Right of Way, by Gilbert Parker.

The Crossing, by WinstonChurchill

The Iron Trail, by Rex Beach.

Two Little Savages and Rolf in the Woods, by Ernest Seaton Thompson.

Miss MacClure, as well as the officers of the Library Association, are supplied with membership cards which they are offering to the public for sale. One dollar is the cost of joining the Association and another dollar is the regular annual dues which entitles one also to book privileges. The public should respond generously to this worthy call of building up a fine public library for our city. It is a movement that should interest all.

CHAPTER XXI.

A Business Proposition.

EDITH CORTLANDT'S interview with the rival candidates for the Panaman presidency formed but a part of her plan. She next held a long conversation with Colonel Jolson, to the end that on Friday morning Runnels heard a rumor that threw him into the greatest consternation. It was to the effect that instead of his succeeding to the office of superintendent he was to retain his old post and that Colonel Jolson's brother-in-law was to supersede him. Although the word was not authoritative, it came with sufficient directness to leave him aghast. If true it was, of course, equivalent to his discharge, for it meant that he could not even continue in his former position without putting himself in a light intolerable to any man of spirit. If he did not resign voluntarily he knew that his new superior would eventually force him to do so, for Blakeley would build up an organization of his own.

Inasmuch as his assistant was concerned in his threatened calamity, Runnels made haste to lay the matter before him.

"Then this would seem to end our fine hopes, eh?" said Kirk.

"Rather!" Runnels broke out bitterly. "I've worked hard, Kirk, and I deserve promotion if anybody ever did. This other fellow is a dub—he has proven that. Why, I've forgotten more railroading than he'll ever know. Every man on the system hates him and likes me; and on top of it all I was promised the job. It's tough on the wife and the kid."

He stopped to swallow his emotion and went on:

"I gave this job the best I had in me, for I had the idea that I was doing something patriotic, something for my country. That's the way they used to talk about this canal, you know. I've put in four years of hell; I've lost step with the world; I've lost my business connections in the States, and I haven't saved up any money. I can't quit, and yet I'll have to, for if I'm fired it'll mean I'll have to go back there and start at the bottom again. Those people don't know anything about these blanked politics. They'll think I made a failure here in government work, and I'll have to live it down. What are you going to do?"

Kirk started. "Oh, I don't know. I was thinking about you. I haven't spent much of that lottery coin. It's in the bank, all that Allan hasn't used, and half of it is yours if you'll take it. You and Mrs. Runnels and the kid and Allan and I—and one other party—will hike back home and get something else to do. What do you say?"

Runnels' voice shook as he answered "By Jove! You're the—real stuff, Anthony. I'll think it over. Who is this 'other party?'"

"My wife."

"Good Lord! You're not married?"

"No, but I'm going to be. You talk about your troubles. Now, listen to mine. I'll make you weep like a fog." Briefly he told his friend of the blow that had so suddenly fallen upon him.

"You are up against it, old man," agreed Runnels when he had heard all. "Garavel has set his heart on the presidency, and he'll pay any price to get it. It's the same all over Central America. These people are mad on politics."

"But the game isn't over. I carried the ball forty yards once for a touchdown in the last ten seconds of play, and Yale won. I had good 'interference' then, and I need it now. Somebody'll have to run ahead of me."

Runnels smiled. "I guess you can count on me. What is the plan?"

For the next half hour the two talked earnestly, their heads together, their voices low.

"I don't believe it will work, my boy," Runnels said at last. "I know these people better than you, and yet—Lord, if it does come off! Now, don't mention this rumor about Blakeley. I want to see Steve Cortlandt first."

"Cortlandt! By the way, do you happen to remember that he's to be our guest for supper tomorrow night? Kind of a joke now, trying to thank him for what he's done, isn't it?"

"Not at all. It may be our one chance of salvation; he may be the one person who can help us."

"Well," Kirk reflected, "I have a good deal to thank him for, I suppose, outside of this, and I'll go through with my part."

He proceeded at once to put his plan into execution, his first step being to rent a room at the Tivoli, taking particular care to select one on the first floor in the north wing. That evening he and Allan moved. Runnels telephoned during the evening that he had been equal to his part of the task, so there remained nothing to do but wait for the hour of the dance.

* * * * * * *

It was considerably after dark on Saturday evening that John Weeks, American consul at Colon, received a caller who came to him direct from the Royal Mail steamer just docked. At first sight the stranger did not impress Mr. Weeks as a man of particular importance. His face was insignificant, and his pale blue eyes showed little force. His only noticeable feature was displayed when he removed his hat. Then it could be seen that a wide, white scar ran from just over his temple to a point back of his right ear.

He made his name know as Williams, which, of course, meant nothing to the consul, and while drinking one of Weeks' highballs, inquired idly about the country, the climate and the people, as if in no hurry to come to his point. He studied the fat man and when he had satisfied himself, came out openly with these words:

"I'm looking for a chap named Wellar. He landed here some time late in November."

"Friend of yours?"

"Um—m—not exactly." Mr. Williams ran a hand meditatively over the ragged scar on his scalp, as if from force of habit.

"Wellar? I never heard of him."

"He may have traveled under another name. Ever heard of a fellow called Locke?"

The consul's moist lips drew together, his red eyes gleamed watchfully. "Maybe I have, and maybe I haven't." said he. "Why do you want him?"

"I'm a detective, and I'm after Wellar, alias Locke, alias Anthony. He's wanted for embezzlement and assault and a few other things, and I'm going to take him." The indistinctive Mr. Williams spoke sharply, and his pale blue eyes were suddenly hard and bright.

Weeks stared open mouthed for an instant.

"I knew he was wrong. Embezzler, eh? Well, well!"

"Eighty thousand, that's all, and he's got it on him."

"You're wrong there. He was broke when he landed. I ought to know."

"Oh, no! He came down on the Santa Cruz. I've seen the purser. He traveled under the name of Jefferson Locke. There's no mistake, and he couldn't have blown it all. No, it's sewed into his shirt, and I'm here to grab it."

Weeks whistled in amazement. "He is a shrewd one. Eighty thou— Lord, I wish I'd known that! He's here, all right, working for the railroad and living at Panama. He's made good, too, and got some influential friends. Oh, this is great!"

"Working, hey? Clever stall! Do you see that?" Williams inclined his head for a fuller display of the disfiguration over his ear. "He hung that on me, with a bottle. I — near died."

He laughed disagreeably. "He'll go back, and he'll go back quick. How do I get to Panama?"

Weeks consulted his watch hastily.

"You've missed the last train, but we'll go over together in the morning. I want to have a hand in this arrest for reasons of my own. I don't like him or his influential friends." He began to chuckle ponderously. "No: I don't like his influential friends, in particular."

While this scene was being enacted on the north side of the isthmus, Kirk Anthony over at the Tivoli hotel, was making himself ready for the ball with particular pains. Allan regarded him admiringly from many angles.

"Oh, Master h'Auntony," he exclaimed rapturously, "you are beautiful!"

"Thanks! Again thanks! Now, can you remember to do as I have told you?"

"I would die"—

"Don't say that again. I'm too nervous. Here are your instructions, once more. Keep both doors to this room locked and stand by the one to the veranda! Don't let any one in except Mr. Runnels and the man he'll bring. Don't — leave — this — spot, no matter what happens."

"I shall watch this h'apartment carefully, never fear."

"Remember, when I knock, so, let me in instantly, and keep your wits about you."

"H'Allen never fails, sar. But what is coming to pahss?"

"Never mind what is coming to pass. This is going to be a big night, my boy—a very big night." Kirk strolled out into the hall and made his way to the lobby.

Already the orchestra was tuning up, the wide porches were filling with well dressed people, while a stream of coaches at the door was delivering the arrivals on the special from Colon. It was a very animated crowd, sprinkled plentifully with Spanish people—something quite unusual, by the way—while the presence of many uniforms gave the affair almost the brilliance of a military function.

Kirk wandered about through the confusion, nodding to his friends, chatting here and there, his eyes fixed anxiously upon the door.

Clifford approached and fell into conversation with him.

"Great doings, eh? Garavel is going to run for president. This is a kind of political coming out party. It looked like a fight between him and General Alfarez, but they've patched it up, and the general is going to withdraw. Garavel is to have Uncle Sam's congratulations and co-operation."

"Excuse me." Anthony saw Runnels searching the room with anxiety. He hurried toward him and inquired, breathlessly:

"Have you got him?"

"Sure, I showed him your room. He'll be on the job. Has she come?"

Kirk shook his head. "Gee! I'm nervous." He wiped his brow with a shaking hand.

"Don't weaken," Runnels encouraged. "I'm beginning to believe you'll pull it off. I told my wife all about it—thought we might need her—and she's perfectly crazy. There they are now! Go to it, old man."

Into the lobby came a mixed group, in which were Andres Garavel, his daughter, Ramon Alfarez and the Cortlandts. Kirk's face was white as he went boldly to meet them, but he did his best to smile unconcernedly. He shook hands with Edith and her husband, bowed to Gertrudis, then turned to meet her father's stare.

"Working, hey? Clever stall! Do you see that?"

"May I have a word with you, sir?"

Garavel inclined his head silently. As the others moved on he said, "This is hardly a suitable time or place, Mr. Anthony."

"Oh, I'm not going to kick up a fuss. I didn't answer your note because there was nothing to say. You still wish me to cease my attentions?"

"I do. It is her wish and mine."

"Then I shall do so, of course. If Miss Garavel is dancing tonight I would like your permission to place my name on her program."

"No!" exclaimed the banker.

"Purely to avoid comment. Every one knows I have been calling upon her, and that report of our engagement got about considerably. It would set people talking if she snubbed me. That is the only reason I came to this dance. Believe me, I'd rather have stayed away."

"Perhaps you are right. Let us have no unpleasantness and no gossip about the affair by all means. I consent, then." Conversing in a friendly manner, they followed the rest of the party.

Kirk ignored Ramon's scowl as he requested the pleasure of seeing Chiquita's program, then pretended not to notice her start of surprise. After a frightened look at her father she timidly extended the card to him, and he wrote his name upon it.

As he finished he found Mrs. Cortlandt regarding him.

"Will you dance with me?" he inquired.

"Yes. I saved the fourth and the tenth." As he filled in the allotted spaces she said in a low voice: "You are the boldest person! Did Mr. Garavel give you leave to do that or"—

"Of course. Thank you." He made his way out of the press that had gathered and toward the open air.

Runnels pounced upon him just outside.

"Well, well, quick! Did you make it?"

"Number nine."

"Good! I was gnawing my finger nails. Whew! I'm glad that is over. Now pull yourself together and don't forget you have the first dance with Mrs. Runnels. There goes the music. I —I'm too rattled to dance."

Anthony found his friend's wife bubbling with excitement and scarcely able to contain herself.

"Oh, I'll never live through it, I know," she cried, as soon as they were out upon the floor. "How can you be so calm?"

"I'm not. I'm as panicky as you are."

"And she, poor little thing! She seems frightened to death."

"But—isn't she beautiful?"

Now and then her eyes strayed to Kirk with a look that made his blood move quicker. It boded well for the success of his plans and filled him with a fierce, hot gladness. But how the moments dragged!

General Alfarez entered the room amid a buzz of comment. Then, as he greeted his rival, Garavel, with a smile and a handshake a round of applause broke forth. The members of the commission sought them both out, and congratulations were exchanged. At last the Garavel boom was launched in earnest.

Mrs. Cortlandt expressed a desire to sit out the fourth dance.

"So your engagement to Miss Garavel is broken?" she began, when she and Kirk had seated themselves in two of the big rockers that lined the porch.

"All smashed to pieces, running gear broken, steering knuckle bent, gasoline tank punctured. I need a tow."

"Mr. Garavel told me not an hour ago that as soon as he explained his wishes she consented to marry Ramon without a protest."

"A refusal would have meant the death of the old man's chances, I presume. She acted quite dutifully."

"Yes. If she had refused Ramon, I doubt if we could have saved her father. As it is, the general withdraws and leaves the field clear, the two young people are reunited, quite as if you had never appeared, and you—my dear Kirk, now what about you?"

"Oh, I don't count. I never have counted anything, you know. Is it true that Garavel is practically elected?"

"General Alfarez couldn't very well step in after he had publicly stepped out, could he? That would be a trifle too treacherous. He'd lose his support, and our people could then have an excuse to take a hand."

"I think you worked it cleverly, Mrs. Cortlandt," Kirk said. "Of course I had no chance to win against a person of your diplomatic gifts. I had my nerve to try."

"Yes. You see, it meant more to me than to you or to her. With you two it is but a romance, forgotten in a night."

"Suppose I don't choose to accept what it pleases people to hand me?"

"My dear Kirk!" She smiled. "You will have to in this case. There is nothing else to do."

He shook his head. "I hoped we could be friends, Mrs. Cortlandt, but it seems we can't be."

At this she broke out imperiously, her eyes flashing.

"You can't afford to break with me."

"Indeed! Why do you think that?"

"Listen! I've shown you what I can do in a few months. In a year you can be a great success. You want to become a big man like your father. Well, Runnels will be out of the way soon. Blakeley amounts to nothing. You will be the superintendent."

"So! That's not merely a rumor about Blakeley? Runnels is fired, eh?"

"Yes."

"If I choose not to give up Chiquita—Miss Garavel, then what? It means the end of me here, is that it?"

"If you 'choose?' Why, you have no choice whatever in the matter. It is practically closed. You can do nothing—although, if you really intend to make trouble, I shall walk inside when I leave and inform the old gentleman, in which case he will probably send the girl home at once, and take very good care to give you no further opportunity. Ramon is only too anxious to marry her. As to this being the end of you here, well, I really don't see how it could be otherwise."

"And if I don't agree you will tell Mr. Garavel that I'm going to make trouble?" She said nothing, so he went on cautiously, sparring for time.

"Well, inasmuch as this seems to be a plain business proposition, suppose I think it over. When it comes time for our next dance, I'll say yes or no."

"As you please."

"Very well. The music has stopped; we'd better go in."

As they rose she laid her hand upon his arm and he felt it tremble as she exclaimed:

"Believe me, Kirk, this isn't at all easy for me, but—I can't bear to lose."

SNOW LINIMENT
Is the Right Remedy for All Abrasions of the Flesh.
If the wound is cleansed and the liniment applied promptly, the healing process begins at once and the wound heals from the inside outwardly, thus performing a perfect cure that leaves no scar. If the wound heals on the outside too quickly, pus forms under the surface and breaks out into a running sore that is hard to cure and inevitably leaves a bad scar.
Owners of blooded stock prefer this liniment to all others for that reason, and they use it not only on fine animals, but on human flesh, as it does its work quickly and thoroughly.

Resolution No. 20

Be it resolved by the City Council of Port Angeles:

(1) That it is the intention of the City Council to order the improvement of First street, from the west line of Oak street to east line of Valley street, and Valley street from north line of First street to north line of Second street, by grading, regrading, filling, excavating, planking, constructing culverts, drains, crossings, plank sidewalks, retaining walls, bulkheads, and doing such other work as may be necessary in connection therewith, all in acordacne with plans to be prepared by the City Engineer.

(2) That all persons who may desire to object thereto are hereby notified to appear and present such objections at a meeting of the City Council to be held in the Council Chamber in the City Hall in the City of Port Angeles, at 8 o'clock p. m., on the 2nd day of June, 1914, which time and place is hereby fixed for hearing all matters relating to said proposed improvement, and all objections thereto, and for determining the method of payment for said improvement.

(3)That the City Engineer shall submit to the City Council at or prior to said date, all data and information required by law to be submitted.

(4) That the cost and expense of said improvement shall be borne by and assessed against the property liable there for, as provided by law.

Passed by the City Council this 31st day of March, 1914, and signed by the Mayor.

HORACE WHITE,
Mayor.

Mrs. E. H. Finch returned home Tuesday from Bellingham whither she was called by the serious illness of the 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Mock, formerly of this city. The little fellow passed away last Wednesday, the funeral being held Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Mock are prostrated with grief over their loss, they having had great ambitions for their bright son. Raymond Mock was discovered to be somewhat sluggish about six weeks ago, and was taken to a doctor when it was discovered that his heart was affected. He was immediately taken to the hospital and for some time hope was given the parents of his recovery. Three weeks ago, however, they were apprised of the fact that he would not live. Mr. Mock lost his father a short time ago.

HIGH SCHOOL

Having come to the study of the coffee tree, the botany class decided to follow the good example set by the class of 1915. During the regular recitation period there was a short program dealing with the cultivation and use of coffee . Exhibits of the different kinds were made. After the program the teachers of Central School were invited to come to the laboratory where coffee and sandwiches were served by the class.

Miss MacKecknie took her pupils to Ennis Creek for a picnic last Saturday. Everyone had a good time as is usual at a picnic.

The Sequim baseball team will be here Saturday, May 9th, to play the A. H. S. team. A good game is promised and we hope that as many as possible will turn out to support our boys.

Mr. Priest of the University of Washington, being in the city on business, kindly consented to give a short address to the high school. It was much enjoyed by all for it is seldom that we have the pleasure of hearing anyone from the University.

Mothers' Day will be observed at the Congregational Church Sunday, May 10th.

Say You Mr. Investor

On the Square ---

Where can you go in this great northwestern country and find a town that is going ahead like Port Angeles ?

Where is the town that will give SMALL money a chance to grow into BIG money like Port Angeles? We know comparisons are odious

But, for your own good compare our town with the other towns you have seen lately.

That's enough !

We know it will be curtains for the other town.

Yours for "Service,"
