PORT ANGELES OLYMPIC LEADER

VOL. 29. NO. 21. PORT ANGELES, CLALLAM COUNTY, WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1914. $1.00 PER YEAR

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE

Mayor White Will Pay Tribute to Boys of '61, of Whom His Father Was a Comrade.

Most of the business houses of Angeles have announced their intention to close shop and rest from their labors in observation of Memorial Day, Saturday, which has now become a national holiday.

In the forenoon, as customary, members of Pacific Post, G. A. R. and W. R. C. will visit Ocean View Cemetery where the usual ritual of the Grand Army will be observed and the graves of the old soldiers reposing there will be beautifully decorated with flowers and flags.

At two o'clock memorial services will be held in the G. A. R. Hall. Mayor White will make an address and special music will be provided by Miss Holt, Mrs. Ray, Mr. Harris and Mr. Finlay. At the close of the afternoon services the pretty and impressive ceremony of strewing flowers upon the waters of Port Angeles Bay in memory of those who fought by sea instead of land, will be performed by the ladies of the Relief Corps from Laurel street wharf.

An invitation is extended to the public generally to attend the exercises at Memorial Hall. This is the day when the whole nation pays honor to the memory of her defenders. Men who made history; their wives, daughters and sweethearts, who inspired and cheered their deeds of valor, go to the cemetery on this day to re-dedicate the monuments to the nations dead. It is well for us all amid the rush and worries of the strenuous life we lead, to pause and consider who, and what made it possible for us to enjoy, the freedom and liberty we have to day as well as the luxuries and comforts.

On fames eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread:
And glory guards with solemn sounds,
The bivouac of the dead.

SCHOOL YEAR ENDS NEXT FRIDAY

THIRD AND LAST CALL

Believed that Big East End Improvement District Will Get Under Way on June 16th.

Another and the third call for bids for the improvement of the big East End district, including Albert, Eunice, Race, Washington, Chambers, Jones, Liberty, Ennis, Columbia, Caroline, Georgina, Front, First, Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth, is made officially in another column this week, by order of the city council. It was said at the council meeting that Mr. Cain is confident bids will be submitted this time.

Ordinance fixing the price and regulating the manner of selling electric current was adopted, as also ordinance authorizing officers to sign lease for Ediz Hook spit.

Milwaukee Terminal Railway Co. submitted ordinance granting them trackage rights on Tumwater, First and Front streets, the location of the ferry slip, which was built by the Milwaukee under rights held by the Erickson Construction Co.

Application of Dann Bros. for permit to raise Haning Hall to grade and build sheet iron basement underneath, also to build on adjoining lot a storeroom of steel expansion siding with fireproof cement covering, being the same kind of material as that used in the A.-Y.-P. buildings, was referred to committee.

The practical rebuilding of the old Merchants Hotel under which the council supposed was a permit for the making of minor repairs only, called forth a resolution that all persons wishing to build or alter frame buildings submit complete plans and specifications to the council that the members thereof may know what they are acting upon. Themarshal was instructed to strictly enforce the building or fire limits ordinance.

Application of Harry Cotton for permission to remove old Morse building now on corner of Laurel and First to a location on Railroad avenue, fifty feet east of Laurel dock, was granted.

Dr. Lewis addressed council in regard to squatters' rights on government block and asked co-operation in an endeavor to secure justice thru necessary legislation. Meeting of council and interested citizens arranged for this afternoon at four o'clock.

Health committeeman Bigelow and Marshal Grierson brought up question of unsanitary condition under buildings along Front street. Property owners were voted permit to put in private sewer under direction of city engineer, and marshal was charged with enforcement of laws providing for abatement of nuisances.

Councilman Wilcox, who is rebuilding the Dungeness wharf, was granted a 30 day leave of absence.

Inquiry from Councilman Dustman revealed the fact that but a couple of dozen cow grazing permits had been taken out to date, with, as Mr. Dustman said, some 450 cows at large in the City. Motion was immediately made by Shields, seconded by Dustman, that if permits were not taken out in accordance with ordinance the attorney should bring in an ordinance prohibiting cows from running at large. Fleming asked that Clerk be instructed to have requirements published for benefit of people whom he believed did not know they were required to register a description of their cows. Dustman thought that if they had read a tenth part of all that the newspapers had printed on the subject, they would be fully informed. No action was taken on the motion but Clerk was instructed to publish notice.

A permit was granted Judge Cochran to grade the parking strip in front of his place at his own expense, work to be done in winter when the large maple trees can be safely lowered the necessary three feet.

Fourth street between Oak and Cherry and Fifth street between Oak and Cherry were ordered repaired at cost of $100 each.

$225 was appropriated out of cemetery fund for the purpose of building flume and filling ditch and clearing land, to be expended under direction of street superintendent.

WHO ... SUBURBAN BLOCKS

Important Case Involving Right of City to Tax Property Before Final Proof is Made.

One of the most important cases of recent years to the city and county was heard yesterday in the case of Edward S. Wildy vs. C. C. Henry. City Attorney G. V. Smith appeared for Wildy and County Attorney J. E. Cochran and W. S. Lanthorn for Henry. The case involves the right of the city and county to tax the ten acre blocks in the west end of the city where the $300 improvements and final proof have not been made. Wildy takes the position that the property is not taxable for the reason that patent has not issued. Since the lands were sold as per the provisions of the special act of congress authorizing a reappraisement and sale some years ago, the property has been taxed. Wildy failed to pay his taxes and Henry secured a tax certificate and in due course foreclosed the certificate as provided by law. Defendants hold that the property is taxable for the reason that the government has sold same and cannot by any means except purchase or condemnation again secure title; that the provision that a patent will not issue until certain improvements are made only keeps purchaser from indisputable title until he makes final proof of having made these improvements. If he dies before making the improvements the property will go to his heirs. If the plaintiff should win out in this case it would ...hose who have not made final ... withhold proof as long as possible for thereby they would escape taxation.

AT THE DREAM

Remarkable Pictures, Sea Wolf, Zingo, and Mary Pickford in Caprice.

Tonight a fine Warner's feature the "Ruby of Destiny". Saturday matinee and evening an Imp 2 reel mystery story "Who Killed Olga Carew." Sunday the "Diamond Smugglers. On Monday, June 1st "Zingo's War in the Clouds." Zingo's terrific fight in the air will provoke untold amusement and wonderment. The strangest charter that ever appeared upon the screen is Zingo. His hair-breath escapes will keep your nerves on edge one minute and the next minute he has you screaming with his funny antics. These Zingo pictures will be shown every Monday.

Wednesday, June 3rd, Mary Pickford, the most famous motion picture star in "Caprice" A sweet play proving the pleasant truth, love levels all. A delightful comedy-drama of society love and the great out-of-doors. An echo of the hills mingled with the voice of the city. Wednesday of next week, Laura Sawyer in the "Port of Doom." One week later the "Sea Wolf" by Jack London in seven reels.

A log house on Fifth and Albert owned by Mr. Andreson and occupied by a family named Granger was burned to the ground on Tuesday, the family losing every thing they owned but the clothes on their backs. Mr. Granger was quite badly burned by running back into the house for the little girl whom he thought was still in there. She escaped without injury but her hair was singed.

SPECIAL ADDRESS TO MEMBERS G.A.R.

Speaker Also Paid High Tribute to Noble Women for Services Rendered by Them.

The morning services at the Congregational Church last Sunday were made very impressive by the presence of the members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C., to whom Rev. Smith made a special address in honor of Memorial Day and what it means to these old soldiers, the last remnant of that great army of brave men who fought to preserve the Union. He made a very forceful talk, not forgetting to pay high tribute to the noble women for the services they rendered and to the W. R. C. who still continue the good work. He assured the old soldiers that the beautiful observance of Memorial Day would never pass away, but would be continued by future generations with the same loyalty and patriotism they were displaying today.

In addition to special music by the choir, the whole congregation joined in singing "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America." As the old soldiers slowly filed out of the Church one was impressed with the fact of how fast their ranks were diminishing and yet, withal, how gently old Father Time had dealt with many of them. For in spite of the white heads and bowed shoulders, their faces were still expressive of the fire and strength of youth, and doubtless many of them were living over again in memory those exciting scenes and days when Sherman made his famous march to the sea.

COURT HOUSE - SITE IDEAL

Civic Center Thus Provided For Will Become the Pride of Both City and County.

The advisory committee named in the last issue of the Olympic-Leader, met Tuesday morning with the County commissioners at the county court room as per published call. The full committee, with the exception of a few from the remote districts were present together with a good sprinkling of other interested citizens. Commissioner Hansen called the meeting to order and stated its purpose.

George W. O'Brien of Sequim was named chairman and A. J. Cosser secretary.

Upon assuming the chair, Mr. O'Brien stated that in his opinion the committee should be fully advised in the premises and told each one present not to be backward about asking questions. He called upon the Board for enlightenment, and the engineer produced a profile of the present site showing the outline of the site and lower grades as it will be when the street is cut thru.

With the view that each would understand the discussion better afterward, the entire assemblage adjourned to view the strip of land lying east of Lincoln street, between Second and Fourth, 150x670 feet, constituting the site given the county by the government for court house purposes. In view of the fact that the present site of the court house will necessarily be lowered some 26 feet and therefore will appear to be in a hole from all angles except north, the practically unanimous opinion seemed to be after the examination of the south end of the strip that there was the proper site for a new building. This was the general expression, some, however, fearing that the Lincoln street draw would prevent an acceptable site being cut out of the land south of Third street. It was pointed out, then, that there was a 12 foot rise from the proposed improvement south of Third street on Lincoln to the new site there, which would necessitate a terrace, making the grounds ideal. The county owns 150x300 feet between Third and Fourth streets facing Lincoln. The plan is to build a building, as explained later by Mr. Hansen and to the architect, who had not yet coln, 70 feet depth back toward the school house, centering the building in the plot with a 35 foot lawn in front facing Lincoln street, 100 feet north and south, and 45 feet behind the building to the school grounds adjoining, where District 7 has some six acres of ground with 670 feet facing Fourth street on the south.

Upon reconvening at 11 a. m. County Engineer Sullivan was called upon and stated that to build on the present site on the new grade would have the middle of the second story windows on a level with the surrounding hills, thus making it possible to look down on the roof of the new building. In addition to this one corner would be so far down the hill that it would be necessary to make the foundation wall there and possibly entirely along the east side some two stories deep, and this whether the low spot was filled or not. From First street only would the building appear to be on high ground.

Commissioner Hansen stated that in his opinion there was no necessity to call attention to the need of a new building in view of the fact that the present building is outworn and is overhanging the street and cannot be used during the time of the regrade work. A new building such as contemplated, would cost in the neighborhood of $50,000, and such instruction as had been given to the architect, who had not yet entered into a contract with the county, was to keep within this amount, and under no consideration were the estimates to go above 10% of this amount. This could be paid in full out of the current expense fund by a levy of one mill in three years, and the burden would not be noticable to any taxpayer.

Editor Smith arose to state there were two things for this advisory committee to determine at the outset: 1, whether it would be policy

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

Publicity Given Use of Split-Log Drag Will Help the Good Roads Movement.

OLYMPIA, May 26.—For the purpose of encouraging the production of pure milk and cream, the management of the Washington state fair this year offers gold and silver medals to the city milk inspectors showing the best exhibits of marketing milk as sold in their respective localities and throws the contest open to Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia. Valuable cash prizes are also offered to the producers of certified and market milk.

Inspectors in cities of over 10,000 population a minimum of five samples is fixed. A sample in every instance must contain either four quarts of milk in bottles or four pints of cream in bottles taken from the deliveryman's wagon on September 19th. In all cases the inspector must submit samples of at least 80 per cent of the city's supply.

In addition to the valuable cash prizes held out to the producer of this state for his exhibit, the dairyman will be given an opportunity to have his milk scored by experts from the United States department of agriculture, under which direction the entire milk judging contest will be held.

The percentages upon which each sample will be scored are as follows: bacteria, 35; flavor and odor, 25; visible dirt, 10; solids not fat, 10; acidity, 5; bottle and cap, 5.

All milk entered in the contest must be produced September 19, two days before the fair opens, and all entry blanks must be in the hands of the superintendent of the dairy department September 14. Samples must be properly sealed and labeled as to producer, and shipped so as to arrive in the best possible condition.

In an epochal trip from the Canadian border to the state capitol, a distance of 217 miles, Governor Lister supervised the dragging of the Pacific highway by split-log drags on Good Roads Day, thereby giving the good road movement an impetus which it is expected will do much to bring about better roads thruout the state of Washington.

Governor Lister's party started at 6 o'clock Friday morning just across the Canadian boundary line at Blaine, making 18 stops enroute to demonstrate the road drag, at each of which the governor made a short speech, briefly outlining the best methods of securing good roads at little cost.

Surrounded by motion picture men, newspaper correspondents and good road enthusiasts, the governor, at various steps enroute, drove drags, provided for him, for a short distance. He was dressed in a soft faded blue shirt and gray suit, wearing a soft felt hat, sunburnt and unshaven.

With the exception of a brief encounter with an officer of the law, who took the names of the party as having exceeded the speed limit, the trip was made without accident.

While the governor was making this trip over the Pacific highway, State Treasurer Edward Meath and State Auditor Clausen started from Olympia early in the morning and covered the highway from the capitol to Vancouver, Washington, making frequent stops along the way, encouraging farmers, business men and professional men in their efforts to improve the road.

Labor Commissioner E. W. Olson last week started criminal prosecution of the proprietors and forewoman of the Troy laundry of Seattle, who discharged Miss Joanna Hilts, after Miss Hilts had appeared for laundry employes at the recent minimum wage conference. This was the first step taken by any employer to punish workers for taking part in minimum wage proceedings. Any other actions of the kind will be met by equally prompt prosecution.

For the first time the public service commission of Washington is now receiving annual reports from telephone companies. There are about 150 telephone companies operating in the state, a considerable portion of which operate mutual or farmers' lines. From the records in the United States customs service, the commission secured a list of more than 350 water transportation companies. Forms for reporting the business done by these public service companies have been prepared and have been mailed out and the returns are coming in at quite a rapid rate.

The public service commission of Washington has secured for the city of Spokane a reduction in light and power rates of from 25 to 40 per cent, which, in dollars, it is estimated will amount to more than $100,000 per year to the consumers. This reduction was brought about thru the efforts of Commissioner Arthur A. Lewis in having the company submit a rate satisfactory to the city without the necessity of a formal hearing before the commission. In addition to the direct reduction to the consumers, at least $10,000 was saved to the state in engineering and accounting expenses, necessary to appraise the company's plant, and to secure evidence for a formal hearing.

Forest fires in western Washington caused State Forestor and Fire Warden E. W. Ferris to call all western Washington county wardens into service ten days in advance of the regular season, which opens June1. Although fires were reported in almost every county west of the Cascades, Forester Ferris, after a trip over most of the country affected, stated he failed to find any damage to green timber which was generally protected by luxuriant undergrowth due to the advanced season.

While the state authorities will be prompt as usual in fire fighting, Mr. Ferris has instructed his wardens that logging companies who allow fires to start from their works, must be held responsible for fighting these blazes and for any damage that may be done, instead of throwing the entire burden on the state.

Governor Lister presided this wee at the state taxation conference, hel at the University of Washingto Wednesday, Thursday and Friday The state tax commission submitte its plan for a constitutional amend ment that will enable separation o state and local revenues and placin of personal property, now escapin taxation, on the tax rolls. Many o the best posted men in the state o taxation matters were attracted t the university meeting.

In spite of reports to the conty the state of Washington will h suitable educational display ah Panama exposition at San Fras that will go far to uphold the tige of this state, which leadi others in educational matter cording to the report of the El Sage foundation. Richard le Jones, executive commissioner, s the state exposition commissio control this exhibit, as all made by this state.

TRUE HOME OF DAIRY INDUSTR

Hustling Town of Sequim, in Cent of District, Promoting Farming for Incoming Settlers.

Why Sequim? Why not Sequim? We are not much in the public eye today, but just you wait till the Milwaukee, now grading thru the town, is completed to the Sound and we are within three hours or so of Seattle and you will not be saying 'why Sequim! "

That is the opinion of T. G. Mortland, of Sequim, realty dealer and secretary of the thoroughly alive Commercial Club of that flourishing dairying center, say the the P-I.

"If you are going to foretell the future of any town just look at its past history and you will have a good idea," continued Mr. Mortland. "Twenty-five years ago Sequim, then called Seguin, was a little prairie of about 2,000 acres in the center of the valley of the Dungeness river, otherwise covered by timber and possessing some 25,000 to 30,000 acres of good land. The land was then selling for $2.50 an acre. We were twenty miles and more from either Port Townsend or Port Angeles and we were four or five miles from Port Williams, just a landing place for infrequent mosquito boats. The reinfall was deficient in summer. We had no transportation, no roads, no market and water scanty just when it was most often needed. Nineteen years since the first irrigation ditch was made and a profitable dairying industry became possible. We have three creameries now and the $2.50 land is worth $300.00

Limited by Transportation

"But we were limited by the lack of transportation. Now we have the Milwaukee, and who will put bounds to our development? Every acre in this Dungeness peninsula, wether it be gravelly or clay loam, will be taken up. Nor are we restricted o dairying. The provision of a market has made possible fruit raising and general farming. There is water in the Dungeness, glacier fed, to supply irrigation to the whole of the country.

"Just look at some of our results: Six hundred bushels of potatoes and sixty bushels of grain have been raised to the acre. J. Brown, one of the pioneers of Sequim, has twenty acres of land out of 400 on which he was not able to keep 400 sheep, but that twenty brings him a net income of $120 a month the year round.. E. D. Prim this year, off a patch twenty by forty feet, picked $50 worth of strawberries. The creameries are paying $20,000 monthly to the farmers.

Hustling While Waiting.

Who will take the lands? This summer will see the forerunners of that vast European immigration booked for this Pacific country, men who are hungry for land. But we are not waiting around for them. We are doing things. Over a thousand acres of land have been cleared within the last eighteen months or so, roads are building everywhere, the power line is coming into the town. J. L. Keeler is projecting a new high-line ditch, which will bring an additional 2,000 acres under cultivation. We have built a big school and project another; we have one strong bank and will have another. Oh, no, you might say we are waiting for the settler, but you must add we are hustling while we wait.

From the Press.

In pursance with orders from the Indian office a course in agriculture has been added to the course of study in Jamestown day school. Mr. Taylor has been somewhat unfortunate in his efforts to comply with the requirements, as a pig broke in and ate up his hill of potatoes, a cow got his pea vine and a chicken ate his cabbage plant. He is now spending most of his time sitting on his new front porch watching his cucumber vine grow and planning a pickle factory.

Donald McInnes is having a handsome new cottage constructed on the Sheard place he owns, and which adjoins his home farm. The house is said to be intended for one of Donald's sons and rumors are afloat that wedding bells will be heard hereabouts in the near future and that the newlyweds will occupy the bungalow.

Lew Thompson has had a very neat woven wire fence constructed along the roadway adjoining all his property at Dungeness. It is one of the neatest improvements ever made to his property. The creek thru his ranch is also being cleared out.

Dr. W. H. Taylor bought five acres of the Tom Miller place, opposite the school house from Keeler and Mortland this week and will move there to live and practice farming as well as medicine. The five acre tract includes the house and barn .

The entire Hotel Sinclair business, including the building, contents and ground, was sold this week by J. L. Keeler to J. M. Roberts, of Tucson, Arizona, who is now in charge.

SCHOOL MATTERS THEIR HOBBY

The Parent-Teachers Association held their closing meeting of the year Monday evening at the H. S. auditorium, with a very good attendance. Mrs. Nailor, president of the association, gave a detailed report of the convention at Olympia and the result of her visits to the Seattle and Tacoma schools, where she obtained much information of value to the school board in planning for the vocational courses to be put in our schools next year. Mrs. Nailor's report was most excellent, and the school board and Parent-Teachers Association felt that they could not have sent a better delegate. They expressed their appreciation in a rising vote of thanks. Mrs. Nailor learned that to properly teach Domestic Science it would be necessary to install a gas plant as the experience of other schools had proven it was the cheapest and most satisfactory in the end. The school board and Superintendent White will take this matter under advisement during the summer months and will in all probability have the gas plant installed as it is their intention to add Domestic Science to the school curriculum for next year. A motion was made and carried that a committee of three be appointed from the Parent-Teachers Association to confer with the school board during the summer on matters relating to the schools.

Mrs. Nailor reported splendid success from those schools that have been serving hot lunches to the children during the fall and winter months. In many places the mothers did the work themselves, a certain number serving each week. Soup is sold for 2½ cents a bowl, and sandwiches and fruits accordingly. Even at this low rate in some towns they were able to come out considerably ahead. Any surplus money was used in buying something for the schools. What a fine idea for Port Angels mothers to consider and what a blessing they might prove to the schools?

In Olympia the school wanted a Victrola. Someone suggested a junk sale. Accordingly for a week the pupils were busily hauling to school all the junk they could get together. Then the junk man was notified to come and haul away the plunder and now the children are enjoying the finest kind of musical treats.

What's the matter with following Olympia's example right here in Port Angeles? Let us encourage the children by all means to purchase a Victrola and how much more they will appreciate it if they help to earn it.

Mrs. Nailor was very strongly impressed with the necessity of medical inspection in our schools at least once a month, and we hope it will come with the many other improvements planned for next year. She also suggested that the Parent-Teachers Association of Angeles become federated so that we might have the privilege of sending a delegate each year to the State Conventions. The annual dues of the Association will then be 25 cents per capita part of which goes to keep up the state organization. Realizing what a benefit it was to the Association to be in close touch with this splendid movement, a motion was carried to the effect that we become federated. Most of those present contributed 25 cents for this year's dues to help defray the expenses of sending Mrs. Nailor to the Convention.

Some time was spent in discussing the play-ground movement for this summer, but the decision reached was the same as at the Brotherhood, that it remain in the hands of the same committee who had charge of it last year.

Election of officers for the Parent-Teachers Association resulted in the re-election of the same officers: Mrs. Madge Nailor, president; Prof. R. J. White, vice-president; Miss Willson, secretary; Mrs. Frank Fisher, treasurer. A committee of three will be appointed to arrange a program for next year's work in conjunction with the officers.

POSEY BED AND FLAG DRILL

The Primary Department of the Central school have been preparing a program which they will present in the high school auditorium on Saturday evening, May 30. A flag drill will be given by the boys of Miss Wiggins' room. A libretto entitled "The Posey Bed," in two acts, will occupy the main part of the program. The cast is as follows:

The Girls who make the Posey Bed—Dorothy Guy, Margaret Stovel, Ethel Wolverton and Mern Wright.

Liesel, the Goose Girl, who is finally chosen Queen—Norma Govan.

Daffodil Lady—Ida White.

Buttercup and Daisy, who sing a duet—Louise Thompson and Rosa Vitale.

A chorus of Dandelions—Ruth Beam, Violet Kinshella, Edna Fanson, Iris Gehrke, Pearl McKinley, and Thelma Davidson.

Sunflower, the Buttercup's cousin —Eddie Hunter.

Brown-eyed Susan—Emily Davis.

Poppy Lady—Marguerite Johnson, Evelyn Bishop, Estella Callarman, Lidia Myerding, Elsie Preisach, Blanche Baggott, Elsie Stahl, Kathrine Owens, and Ruth Learnsberry.

Chorus of Butterflies—Doris Fosdick, Lidia Meyerding, Irene Mitchell, Elsie Stahl, Betty Woods, Marguerite Johnson, Sybil Cox and Edith Niles.

This entertainment will begin promptly at 8:30, because it is given entirely by little folks. The teachers and pupils have spent a great deal of time in preparing this program and would appreciate a good attendance. Admission, adults 25 cents, children 15 cents.

The Port Angeles Reading Club met last Friday afternoon with Mrs. R. J. White and took up the study of the last of the Balkan states, Montenegro, Mrs. W. B. Webster having the program in charge. Mrs. John Willson will be the hostess for June 5th, which will be the last meeting of the year and the lesson will be prepared by Mrs. R. J. White. New officers for next year will be elected, also delegates to attend the State Federation at Raymond in July.

AN OLD BATTLEFIELD.

The softest whisperings of the scented south,
And rust and roses in the cannon's mouth,

And where the thunders of the fight were born
The wind's sweet tenor in the standing corn,

With songs of larks, low lingering in the loam,
And low skies bending over love and home,

But still the thought: Somewhere upon the hills
Or where the vales ring with the whippoorwills,

Sad, wistful eyes and broken hearts that beat
For the loved sound of unreturning feet,

And when the oaks their leafy banners wave
Dream of the battle and an unmarked grave!

—Frank L. Stanton.

They say all things come to him who waits—after thirty years the cess pools of north Front street are to be cleaned up.

Someone should organize a Fourth of July committee, send for Secretary Hanford, and secure the Carnival for a return engagement. There's money in it.

We have an idea that Alderman Fleming's constituents know what the notorious cow ordinance requires as well as does the council—but they are not so green as to believe it possible of enforcement.

The court house on the side of a gulch? Nay, nay, there will be no gulch, no stream, and no hill to climb, and within ten years the court house will be in the center of the business part of town.

It will be interesting to note which will get there first—Harry Cotton with the old Morse building, or Engineer Morse with his sluicing operations. Here's hoping the old shell will have to go to Valley.

With massive concrete walls, spanned by drawbridges, enclosing each of our business blocks, outworks of piling and heavy planking along the waterfront, and a formidable battery now being mounted on Front street hill, it is no wonder strangers are asking if we have gone completely daffy.

Front street hill, piled full of sluicing pipe, planking, logs and piling, with crews of men working on a pile driver ten feet above the street level, on water and sluicing pipes, also elevated, on the Lincoln street sewer, hauling gravel, sand, and lumber from barges on the beach, and the railroad trestle being pushed steadily eastward, is the center of activities this week.

COURT HOUSE PLANS SUBMITTED BY ARCHITECT

Sketches embodying his idea of a court house, costing in the neighborhood of $50,000, and providing ample room for all purposes, were submitted to the Board by Architect Grant of Seattle this week. The building, according to the sketch, would be 70x100 feet, two stories, with handsome tower in front, and a vestibule, entrance hall and rotunda, the latter surrounding an open well, on the first floor. Offices, each with ample vault room, would be provided for the treasurer, assessor and auditor on first floor. The county commissioners and the abstractors will have rooms adjoining the auditor. There will also be a ladies retiring room, as well as closets. One half of the second floor would be devoted to the Court—court and jury rooms and clerk's office. The engineer, school superintendent and sheriff are provided for on the other side. After the county officers decide upon the requirements as to floor space, vault room, light, etc., necessary for their respective offices, a general design will be adopted and Mr. Grant doubtless engaged to draw the plans. The general appearance of the proposed building will then be considered by the advisory committee, being called together for that purpose by Chairman Hansen.

The rebuilding of the Merchants may not be in accordance with our ideas of progress, but really it is more than most men would undertake on a short time lease and will be a big improvement in the corner. Those who expect to witness the passing of all the old frame buildings without the aid of a general fire are anticipating too much; small towns are not built up in that way.

Dann Bros. are proposing to remodel and add to Haning Hall, giving two store rooms on that corner; the removal of the postoffice will make Oak street locations far more desirable than West Front with its row of saloons.

The canneries and fruit industries generally are asking to be exempt from the operation of the minimum wage laws. This is done in California and if not done here these industries will be crippled.

The defeat of all candidates for governor in Oregon who stood upon freak plantforms inimical to industries is of interest to the people and politicians of Washington.

The Great Northern will place orders for 10,000,000 feet of lumber for new cars, with Puget Sound mills.

The Puyallup Fruit Growers Association is enlarging its plant and installing more modern machinery.

FACTS ABOUT THE STARS AND STRIPES

The Ladies of Port Angeles Pacific Relief Corps No 21, have some facts about the stars and stripes for the benefit of the school children and others, which will be of interest wherever the starry banner floats. The circular contains the following:

1—What does a nation's flag represent? The supreme, highest, fullest power or force and will of the whole nation, called its sovereignty.

2—In the battling of two nations for victory, what does the presence of the flag of each indicate? That one nation asserts its right and defies the others.

3—In the revolution, in what conflict was the Stars and Stripes first flung to the breeze to defy the British? At the siege of Fort Stanwix, in New York, August 3, 1776.

4—Where was the first official United States flag made and by whom? At 239 Arch street, Philadelphia, by Mrs. Betsy Ross, at Washington's request and after his design.

5—By what authority are all flags, standards, colors and ensigns for the army and navy of the United States made? The authority of the United States government.

6—How many stars are required by law on the official flags of the United States? Forty-eight, one for each state of the union.

7—When were the latest additions of stars to the flag made? July 4th, 1912, for the new states of Arizona and New Mexico.

8—After a star has been added to the flag for a new state, what of the old flags? They are never again used officially.

9—When should such a flag be lowered? A sun-set—not later.

11—When should a flag fly at half-mast or half-staff? On Memorial day from sunrise to noon and at full staff from noon to sunset. On occasions of mourning it should be at half-staff to the conclusion of the funeral and then hoisted to full staff.

12—What form should be followed in placing the flag at half-mast? First hoisted to top of staff, then lowered to half-mast, and before lowering from half-mast should be hoisted to top.

13—What does the flag at half-mast denote? Mourning by the nation—as the death of the president.

14—What indicates the presence of the president of the United States on a government vessel? The president's flag flying at mast-head.

15—What is the description of the president's flag? Of blue silk, six feet six inches by four feet, with a white star near each corner, a spread eagle in the middle with an arrow thru each leg and 13 white stars above the eagle in a segment of a circle.

16—What is indicated by striking or lowering the flag? Respect, surrender or submission.

17—What is it to "dip the flag?" To lower it for a brief space and hoist it again as a salute or mark of respect.

18—Although the United States is one of the youngest nations, its flag is one of the very oldest. It was adopted in 1777, seventeen years before the French flag was adopted, and twenty-four years before the English flag was decided upon. There is a regular flag language which Pioneers ought to learn.

19—A knot tied in one corner of the flag calls for the Customs House Officer to come aboard and break the seal of certain goods.

20—To put one flag at the top of the mast, over another one, signalizes victory for the top flag and defeat for the lower.

21—When a flag is at half mast, it is a sign ofmourning. A vessel returning to port with its flag thus announces the death of one of the crew.

22—If a flag is upside down, it is a sign of distress and a call for help. It should not be ignored, whether on land or sea.

Author—I am troubled with insomnia. I lie awake at night hour after hour thinking about my literary work.

His Friend—How very foolish of you! Why don't you get up and read portions of it?"

He—They say his income runs into five figures. She—Yes, counting the decimal places.

Married men usually make the best listeners. They are used to it.

Her First Ice Cream Soda.

She was evidently more than fifty and she showed every outward sign of poverty and hard work—unending hard work. But evidently this was a special event and her eyes shone with excitement. She entered one of the big drug stores and while her excitement visibly increased her assurance seemed to fade. After hesitating a moment she walked over to the soda fountain, where a pleasant faced boy was "wiping up." Pushing a nickel over the marble counter, she blurted in an awkward manner that she wanted a soda. The proprietor of the drug store, who was watching her, is a kindly man and he grasped the situation at once. With a bound he was behind the counter before the boy could tell this excited reveler that her soda would cost ten cents. Then he himself mixed a delicious strawberry ice cream soda and gave it to the little old woman, who sank contentedly upon one of the stools at the counter and gave herself over to it. The proprietor smiled crookedly down at the nickel as he dropped it into the cash drawer and rang up a five cent sale.—Exchange.

At a meeting of the W. L. C. at the home of Mrs. John McKee, May 15, the following officers were elected to serve next year:

Nina Hall, president; Lillian Hansen, vice-president; Nellie Best, recording-secretary May Mackenheimer, cor.-secretary; Mary Dermul, treasurer; Mary McKee, librarian.

Mrs. Nina Hall and Mrs. Ida Ross were elected delegates to the State Federation, to be held at Raymond in July, the alternates being Mrs. Julia Harley and Mrs. Hattie Fleming.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bugge and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Babcock of Sequim, were initiated into the Order of the Eastern Star last Saturday evening. After the initiatory ceremony, refreshments were served and a short program given consisting of a reading by Mrs. F. E. Warner, a vocal solo by Mrs. Luppen, a piano solo by Mrs. C. P. Brown and a vocal solo by Cecil McNutt. The seating capacity of the lodge room was taxed to its uttermost to accommodate the large attendance. Besides a number of visiting members, there were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Godfrey of Sequim, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lotzgesell, Mr. and Mrs. George Lotzgesell of Dungeness and Mr. and Mrs. De Priest of Dungeness.

Complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Fitzgerald, Miss Lucy Bouker entertained a party of young people at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Trumbull Tuesday evening. Cards and music furnished the chief entertainment and dainty refreshments were served.

The Club women of Puyallup edited the Western Woman's Outlook last week and put out a very interesting and instructive magazine, a good booster for Puyallup. The Western Woman's Outlook is the only magazine on the coast owned and published by women and it is the official organ of the State Federation of Clubs.

One of the pleasant social functions of the week was the five hundred card party given Monday evening by Mrs. D. E. McGillivary to about forty of the young people of our city. A profusion of exquisite roses decorated all the rooms, making a pretty scene.

The highest scores at cards were won by the Misses Zella Brown, Francis Hoare and Dorothy Donovan and the gentlemen Leo Maramount, Mr. Ferris and Harold Caven, each of whom was presented with a handsome souvenir of the occasion. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of this very pleasant evening, Mrs. McGillivary being assisted by Mrs. Walter Taylor and Mrs. Peary.

The new Federal Act allows the National Banks to invest a part of their deposits in mortgages on improved farm lands and thus makes it possible for them to establish Savings departments. The Citizens National Bank has taken advantage of this new feature and will open its savings department on June 1st. The workingman will find the department equipped so that he cannot help taking advantage of its features, if he is anyway inclined to save part of his earnings. For the benefit of foreigners the bank will have clerks who can talk the German and Scandinavian languages and no charge will be made for transfer of money to any part of the old country. Interest at the rate of 4 per cent will be paid on savings and the bank will keep its doors open on Saturday nights from 6 to 8.

The old Port Angeles Musical Club has re-oganized and taken on a new lease of life. In addition to the former members there is a contingent of new ones. A called business meeting was held at Mrs. Troy's studio last Friday afternoon for the purpose of re-organizing and electing officers. The Club will be governed by the constitution and laws of the former club. Mrs. Minnie Troy was elected president, Mrs. Theo. Rixon, vice-president; Mrs. F. E. Warner, corresponding secretary; Miss Ethel Welch, recording secrtary; Miss Jessie Gilmore, treasurer. The Club will meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, the sessions opening each time with current events relating to music in some way. The first regular meeting was held Tuesday afternoon at the Parish Hall; the program being prepared by Mrs. Stoval.

The Club now numbers about thirty enthusiastic members and a pleasant and profitable year is anticipated.

"The Port Angeles Ice Cream Factory" is a new enterprise going into the old Olympic-Leader building on Front street grade. They are completely renovating the entire building, making a very neat place of it. The lower floor will be divided up for use as a rooming house.

A STORK PARTY

Last Saturday afternoon in response to word having been quietly phoned around, about sixteen of Mrs. Allison's friends and relatives gathered at her home in Valley street each bearing a dainty package. The opening of these packages proved the gathering to be in anticipation of the arrival of Dr. Stork. Numerous useful and dainty articles were amongst the "little gifts" including, bootees, stockings and sacques. After the contents of the different 'bundles' had been admired and discussed, we were seated, four in a group and the remainder of the afternoon w s whiled away with whist and five hundred.

Mrs. Dompier (Mrs. Allison's mother) served a delicious lunch to which ample justice was done. After which, with best wishes for our hostess, we left her to dream of her coming happiness.

ONE of the queerest things about some people is that they will not follow GOOD ADVICE when they KNOW they OUGHT TO. Perhaps we are all more or less that way. All the wise men of all ages have urged their fellow beings to PUT AWAY SOMETHING for a RAINY DAY. Good old Benjamin Franklin's sayings on economy and saving alone ought to make a bank book holder of EVERY ONE. If you have DELAYED, suppose you act HONESTLY with YOURSELF RIGHT NOW.

NEW COURT HOUSE SITE IS IDEAL

to build, and second, where to build. He moved that it be the sense of the committee that the county build a new court house at an approximate cost of $50,000. This motion was seconded by Mayor White and discussed at length.

Mr. J. P. Christensen of the Citizen's National Bank favored not restricting the Board to $50,000, rather leaving it to their judgment. If we can get a much better looking and more desirable building for $75,000 he would favor the additional cost, unless the law would prevent. This brought up a discussion of the powers of the commissioners, and Auditor McLaughlin, clerk of the board, explained that the opinion of the attorney general had been secured to the effect that the commissioners may go in debt to the extent of $180,000, or one and one-half per cent of the assessed valuation, without a vote of the people. The county now has a bonded indebtedness of $380,000 by vote of the people, but this does not apply, to the one and one-half per cent limit. By vote of the people this limit may be increased to five per cent of the assessed valuation, or not to exceed approximately $600,000. Counting the assets of unpaid taxes, etc., the county had practically no indebtedness outside of the bonded indebtedness authorized by the people.

Mayor White thought it unwise to restrict to $50,000.

J. M. Grant of Sequim, here stated that he did not propose to quibble over the amount to be put into the building. If built at this time he would like to see a respectable building put up. He did, however, object to building along the gully of Lincoln street. He did not believe it could ever be made satisfactory. He rather favored the purchase of the 300 feet square now occupied by the old central school buildings, which he understood could be had for about $30,000. There was a site ready for immediate work, if necessary, and ideal in the extreme, forming the basis of a civic center on an unbroken plateau. He argued that the county could use the present site for other purposes as he had examined the deed from the government and found that there was no revisionary clause which would permit the government to retake the land.

Mr. Smith here asked, with the consent of his second, to amend the motion striking therefrom the $50,000 limit. This was agreed to and the motion carried by unanimous vote.

The motion to put the building on the present county property was then made, being seconded by Mr. Babcock. Mr. J. A. Adams of Sequim moved that the school grounds on east First street be purchased for a site, seconded by J. M. Grant.

Mr. Babcock spoke against the amendment, calling attention to the fact that the school board could not sell without a vote of the people and a special election, necessitating a delay of 3 to 4 months. Mr. Grant thought these objections untenable. Good suitable quarters could be fitted up there now quicker than the new proposed building could be erected on the proposed new location. It would not cost any more to build permanent buildings on the school site next year or ten years hence, but the securing of a desirable site should be had at once.

Mr. Smith objected to the school site for the reason, he said, that 90 per cent of those who visited the court house, came direct from the business section, and the closer the court house was to the business section the better for those using this new building.

Mr. Lauridsen was called upon for an expression. He thought the people would hardly be willing to pay $30,000 or $40,000 for the school site when the county had a larger and better located site of its own, given it for court house purposes. He favored the present site, even as against the south end, adding, if the building is to be built for show of course the south site is the most desirable.

Mr. Ritchie was also called for an expression. He agreed with Messrs. Grant and Adams that the school grounds were much the more desirable; that the county site could not be made satisfactory at any cost. He scouted the idea that the school site was so far removed from the business section, as at present situated He thought the school site was little farther from the center of the business section than the south end of the county site. Moreover, he tho't the school grounds ideal; was somewhat provoked with the school board for changing the site of the Central school.

Mayor White asked that City Engineer Chas. Filion be called upon to explain the topography of Lincoln street under the proposed changes, grades, cuts and fills.

Mr. Filion stated that the Lincoln street draw afforded the best natural grade to the south hill available. There would be but a three per cent grade from Front and First streets up Lincoln, whereas Front street necessitated a six per cent grade and First street a five per cent grade to get up on the hill. Laurel, Oak and Cherry would all have heavier grades than would be necessary on Lincoln street. All heavy traffic would necessarily make the street a civic center, capable of great and profitable development. Answering a question here, Mr. Hansen stated that the county had already paid its grade assessment of approximately $5,000 for the improvement of Lincoln street

T. T. Aldwell here asked the privilege of addressing the assemblage. He stated that if Messrs. Grant and Adams knew the contemplated improvements for Lincoln street they would not insist on a change of sites. In addition to the projected grade of Lincoln street for which the contract was let and work under way, the city council has adopted a Resolution of Intention to extend the improvement on the south to city limits; the property owners, thru their improvement association, have asked the council to improve by grading all streets of the south hill, Laurel Oak, and Cherry, upon practical grades.

The amended motion was then put and defeated, Grant and Adams alone voting aye. The original motion prevailed, Adams alone voting no.

Then came the question as to which end of the county strip the building should be put on. Architect Grant of Seattle, who was present, stated that he had as yet only contemplated a building on the present site. He did not know that it was the consensus of opinion that the south end be utilized until he arrived this time. Upon examination he thought the south site very appropriate whether left at present grade or graded off four feet; he favored the latter. The terrace contemplated would naturally conform to the school ground with out any perceptible falling off toward Lincoln street. The difference in cost of construction would much more than pay for the grading and terracing, as the cost of the foundations on present site would be necessarily heavy. A very desirable site could be made of the south hill with little cost, with the idea as stated of setting the building back 35 feet from Lincoln to permit of terrace and lawn in front.

Mr. Cochran favored the present site for the reason of its being nearer to the business section, and fearing that the north end could not be suitably parked whereas the south end could be.

Mr. White here moved that it would be the sense of this committee that the commissioners adopt the south end of grounds as a building site, seconded by L. T. Haynes. Somebody spoke of the jail being placed southeast of new building. Mr. Grant thought that a very undesirable location for a jail near the school grounds. This will be threshed out later, with the jail possibly included in the main building.

City Attorney G. V. Smith vehemently opposed the south end, and in doing so, he stated, he was opposing his own interests, as the south site was within two blocks of his home. He thought, however, that the closer the court house is to the business section the better. Court house and jail should not be to close to school. He favored a strictly business block at Second and Lincoln, believing this the cheapest and best building for present needs.

E. B. Webster of the Olympic Leader being called upon stated that there was only one thing to all the discussion. Build on the knoll south by all means, with a park in front north.

The motion was then carried with but two dissenting votes—Editor Smith and Lauridsen.

Mr. Babcock here suggested that inasmuch as the commissioners had worked hard to find and carry out the wishes of the people in the matter, that their acts in meeting the emergency and in calling the representatives of the various sections into conference be endorsed in a resolution by this committee. Mr. White moved the adoption of such a resolution. Mr. Christensen here asked who was to approve the plans and specifications of the proposed building? This he thought a very important matter, which should be in competent hands. Chairman Hansen of the Board agreed to call the committee together when the plans were available. With this understanding the Resolution commending the commissioners was adopted by unanimous vote and the gathering adjourned subject to the call of Chairman Hansen.

CHAPTER XXV.

A Last Appeal.

THAT was not a pleasant interview for Anthony. His surroundings were not such as to lend him assurance, and Garavel's grief at his daughter's disgrace was really distressing. Moreover, the unequivocal threat to annul the marriage filled him with alarm. Only consolation came from the fact Gertrudis had made known with without the slightest hesitation that showed that she was loyal to her mate. Kirk tried to assure his father that he would have no trouble in proving his innocence, but Garavel was very little concerned with that matter of the affair and continued to bewail the dishonor that had fallen on his house.

Kirk's pride arose at this, and he exclaimed with some heat:

"My dear Mr. Garavel, if you are so ashamed sure that I did all these things why did you come to see me?"

"It was to learn if she spoke the truth."

"Oh, we're married, right enough. And you'll have some difficulty in breaking it up before I get out."

"You expect, then, to prove your innocence easily?"

"I do."

"But I hear there are other serious charges."

"It is quite the same with them."

"But suppose you should not clear yourself of this—murder. Would you wish to drag down my daughter's name?"

"Of course not."

"I understand you have not spoken of this marriage. Perhaps you might consent to remain silent. If by any chance you should be convicted of guilt what satisfaction could you derive from injuring me and mine?"

"None at all, sir."

"I am rich," Garavel went on meaningly. "If you are acquitted I might perhaps arrange amply for your future—upon conditions."

"In other words, if I am to be hanged or shot or whatever it is they do to people down here you'll expect me to keep my mouth shut on general principles, and if I'm acquitted you'll pay me well to disappear. Is that it? Well, there is some family pride to that." He laughed lightly.

"My political future may depend upon it."

"If I can help you in that way I'll gladly keep silent as long as you wish, but I don't think I care to make any further terms."

"Make sure of this," snapped the father—"your marriage will be annulled, no matter what you prove or fail to prove. Already Chiquita is repentant, and I shall not rest until she is free. You have done me a great injury, and I shall not forget it."

On the following morning the leading American attorney of the city called at the jail, announcing that he had been retained as counsel, but refusing to tell who had employed him. Supposing, of course, that he had been sent by friends who wished no publicity in the matter, Kirk did not press him for information. Together they outlined their defense as best they could. With characteristic optimism Kirk insisted upon treating the charge against him as of little consequence, and it was not until he had undergone his preliminary hearing that he fully realized the gravity of his situation.

To his unspeakable indignation, the officer who had discovered Cortlandt's body swore that he had seen the deceased pass him shortly before the time of his death, evidently taking a walk along the water's edge for relief from the heat, and that immediately afterward, perhaps a minute or so, the prisoner had also passed, going in the same direction! There was a street light close by, he said, and there could be no possible mistake as to Anthony's identity. A few moments later there had been a pistol shot, muffled, but unmistakable, and the policeman had hastened in the direction from which it came. The prisoner had appeared suddenly out of the darkness and hurried past. In the politest manner possible, the witness declared, he had questioned him regarding the shot, but Mr. Anthony had neither stopped nor answered. On the contrary, he had broken into a run. The officer had considered this strange behavior; but, being at all times most respectful toward Americans, he had made no effort to detain him. Passing on, he had found the body of the dead man. A revolver was beside it.

When this amazing testimony was translated to Kirk he was astounded; but his indignation was as nothing to that which swept over him when a servant in the Alfarez household swore to having actually witnessed the murder.

This fellow declared that he had been troubled greatly with a tooth. Toward morning of the night in question, too restless for sleep, he came out upon the sea wall. Even in his face was swollen, and he made a determined effort to show the dentist the particular tooth which had driven him an unwilling beholder of the tragedy. Overcome by exhaustion, he finally fell asleep after a time, and he was awakened by the sounds of a quarrel. On opening his eyes he saw two Americans, one of whom was Senor Cortlandt, and the other Kirk Anthony. Being utterly ignorant of the language, he had no means of knowing what was said, nor did he comprehend the altercation serious until the latter had shot the Senor Cortlandt. Then, being terror stricken at what he had witnessed, he had run away, entirely forgetting his toothache, which was now gone. That was all he knew of the matter. He recognized Anthony as the man who had done the shooting, as his tooth was troubled greatly with toothache.

Wade was called next and told the story of that damning incident at the supper party, being corroborated by the others. Then there were several witnesses who swore to incriminating things.

For once in his careless life the young man realized that his father's face to face with something stronger and stronger than his own determination, and it daunted him. He began to see that he had underestimated these foreigners, for it seemed an easy matter to convict an innocent man in these Central American courts. Finally he decided to cable for Darwin K. Anthony—the one man who might be strong enough to save him.

When it came time for him to speak, he told a straight story about his own actions on that night, and was corroborated by Allan; but he knew that these words had little weight against that other testimony. Of course, he was remanded for trial.

Anson, the lawyer, gave him a ray of encouragement as he left.

"Don't go too much on that hearing," he said. "I think we'll pull out all right."

"You think! I dare say Ramon Alfarez can get a dozen men to perjure themselves as easily as they got those two."

"Exactly. But I have a little coup that I intend to spring at the right moment."

"For heaven's sake, tell me what it is!"

"I'm sorry, but I can't yet. In the first place, one must handle these people exactly right or they explode."

"But give me an idea at least. I'm really interested in the outcome of this case, you know."

Anson smiled. "Of course you are, and I'll tell you as soon as I can, but not now."

"These spiggoties would enjoy standing me up against a wall with my head in a bag. They'd make a holiday of it."

It was on Sunday, a week after his arrest, that Edith Cortlandt came to Kirk. He was surprised to see the ravages that this short time had made in her, for she was pale and drawn and weary looking, as if from sleeplessness. Strange to say, these marks of suffering did not detract from her appearance, but rather enhanced her poise and distinction.

"I'm awfully glad to see you, Mrs. Cortlandt," he said as she extended her hand. "But do you think it was wise for you to come?"

She shrugged. "People can say no more than they have already said. My name is on every tongue, and a more gossip can make matters no worse. I had to come. I just couldn't stay away. I wonder if you can realize what I have been through."

"It must have been terrible," he said gently.

"Yes, I have paid. It seems to me that I have paid for everything I ever did. Those newspaper stories nearly killed me, but it wasn't that so much as the thought that you were suffering for my acts."

"I'm very sorry. You never thought for a moment that I did what they claim?"

"No, no! It has all been a mistake from the first. I was sure of that."

"You heard what those two men testified?"

"Bah! That is Ramon Alfarez. But he can do nothing. You will forgive me for what I said that night at the hotel, won't you? I didn't really mean to injure you, Kirk, but I was half hysterical. I had suffered so these last few months that I was ready to do anything. I never dreamed there was a way out of my misery, a way so close at hand. But somehow, even before General Alfarez's voice on the phone told me what had happened, I knew, and I—I felt"—

"I know you had a great deal to put up with," he said, "but for both our sakes I wish it had come in some other way."

"Oh, I don't care," she cried recklessly. "The one thing I can grasp in all this turmoil, the one thing that rings in my ears every moment, is that I am free, free! That is all that matters to me. You showed your loyalty to Stephen more than once, and, though your scruples angered me, I honor you for them now."

"Your husband's death can make no difference with us, Mrs. Cortlandt," he said gravely.

"We have talked openly before, and there is no need to do otherwise now. You mean by that that you don't care for me, but I know better. I believe there is a love so strong that it must find an answer. Although you may not care for me now as you care for—some one else—I know that I can make you forget her and put me in her place. I can help you, oh, so much!"

"Wait!" he said harshly. "You force me to break my word. I don't want to tell you this, but—I am married."

"You—never told me that! It was some mad college prank, I suppose."

"No, no. I married Gertrudis Garavel that night at the Tivoli."

"Oh, that can't be. That was the night of the dance. Why didn't you tell me? Why isn't she here? Why does she leave you alone? No, no! You hardly know each other. Why, she's not old enough to know her own mind"—

"But I know my mind, and I love her."

Notice of Intention

To Sell County Property.

Notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Board of County Commissioners of Clallam County, Washington, to sell the buildings located on Suburban Lot 26 of the Township of Port Angeles, being the Court-house and out-buildings.

The said Board of County Commissioners will meet at their office in said Court-house on Saturday, the 13th day of June, 1914, at 10 o'clock a. m., at which time and place any taxpayer so desiring shall be heard either for or against said proposed sale, and it shall then be determined whether it is advisable to sell said property.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners of Clallam County, Washington, made May 9, 1914.

R. D. McLAUGHLIN
Auditor of Clallam County, Washington.

Resolution No. 20

Be it resolved by the City Council of Port Angeles:

(1) That it is the intention of the City Council to order the improvement of First street, from the west line of Oak street to east line of Valley street, and Valley street from north line of First street to north line of Second street, by grading, regrading, filling, excavating, planking, constructing culverts, drains, crossings, plank sidewalks, retaining walls, bulkheads, and doing such other work as may be necessary in connection therewith, all in acordacne with plans to be prepared by the City Engineer.

(2) That all persons who may desire to object thereto are hereby notified to appear and present such objections at a meeting of the City Council to be held in the Council Chamber in the City Hall in the City of Port Angeles, at 8 o'clock p. m., on the 2nd day of June, 1914, which time and place is hereby fixed for hearing all matters relating to said proposed improvement, and all objections thereto, and for determining the method of payment for said improvement.

(3)That the City Engineer shall submit to the City Council at or prior to said date, all data and information required by law to be submitted.

(4) That the cost and expense of said improvement shall be borne by and assessed against the property liable there for, as provided by law.

Passed by the City Council this 31st day of March, 1914, and signed by the Mayor.

HORACE WHITE,
Mayor.

Miss Ruth Bown is visiting at Mr. Solf's.

The social in the Lincoln Heights church, last Friday night, was well patronized, therefore a financial success, but, we are very sorry that any of the boys should so far forget themselves as to meddle with the harness on a horse. No doubt they did it in a spirit of fun, but the results might mean disaster. Remember boys, that is not you alone who are blamed, but the parents who have cared for you. They are the ones who suffer most when their children do wrong. Think of them, when again tempted.

For the first time in the history of our city, Memorial services were held in the church here Sunday night and were well attended, Rev. Heath was the speaker.

Mrs. James Matteson was taken to the General Hospital last week for an operation and is reported as getting along well.

Those who could go, attended the funeral of Miss Viola Stilwell at Blue Mountain last Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Berlingeutte is enjoying a visit from her two little granddaughters, Dorothy and Emmie Lewis of the city.

The Fairview neighbors gathered at Morse creek last Sunday and enjoyed a fine picnic dinner and five freezers full of ice cream. The only thing that marred the day's pleasure was that Chas. Cary received a severe blow just below the left eye from a stray base ball. There were no bones broken but it was an ugly bruise.

Edwin Champion, who was running the Fairview Dairy auto for a couple of weeks, has again returned to the city. He also attended the picnic by coming from town up to the mouth of Morse creek in his new motor boat, the "Dimples," which he built himself.

The Sequim Minstrels, who played here Wednesday evening, gave a very good entertainment for amateurs, but so many other attractions in the city gave them a small house, and they didn't much more than clear expenses.

"OLYMPIC HIKERS" ORGANIZED

First Camping Trip Will Be Taken to Lake Sutherland Today.

Under the superintendency of Mr. Phillips and Mr. Samuelson of the Trust and Savings Bank, a company to be known as the "Olympic Hikers" has been organized with about 2 boys enrolled. While not connected in any way with the Boy Scouts of America, it is possible that if sufficient interest be taken by both boys and their parents, a branch of that order may be established at a later date. The boys met in the bank Wednesday evening and elected officers and planned for their first camping party. They will auto out to Lake Sutherland this evening and go into camp until Sunday afternoon.

The officers chosen are: Prescott Ulmer, president; Howard Stovel, vice-president; Herman Krupp, secretary; Oscar Nelson, treasurer; Lester Walton, 1st patrol leader; Harold Bradbury, assistant; Charlie Hanson, 2nd patrol leader; Oscar Nelson, assistant; Kenneth Bell, 3rd patrol leader; Sam Tate, assistant; Messrs. WHAT SHALL WE DO ABOUT IT?

Western Woman's Outlook Makes Plea for Teaching of Morality and Right Living.

That this is the day of public and private uplift we are already well aware. Moral forces are at work in the home, the school, the industrial and recreation centers. Whenever two or three public-spirited men and women are gathered together, there you will find well-directed effort to teach the doctrine of right living. The city supervises its playgrounds and teaches morality thru health. The employer establishes clubs and welfare work in his factory to cleanse the moral atmosphere. Editors preach clean living in fiction and essay. The church has come to do its part in the combat with social evil, frankly, openly.

And yet, with all these moral forces at work, has there ever been a time in the history of the country when morality has reared its head so daringly and so frequently? Has there ever been a time when the charge of immorality has been brought with more justice against the home and social body?

Recently in one of the most conservative towns of a conservative Eastern state, the Board of Education announced abruptly that the semi-monthly "hops" given by the high school cadets had been stopped. Followed then mutiny in the cadet ranks, sullenness in the class rooms. Parents protested. The high school was a public building. Why should its gymnasium not be used as a social center?

The Board of Education called a meeting of parents, and told them why. So much immorality had been brought to the attention of the teachers detailed to "chaperone" the fortnightlydances, that the hops had been pronounced a social menace. These men did not offer glittering generalities. They presented specific instances and offered to furnish names of all partes concerned.

In an exclusive suburb of a New England city which has given the United States some of its greatest men and women, statesmen, scientists, authors, artists and preachers, there were three grave scandals in one high school term. Two members of the senior class were unable to complete the year's work and graduate. The third girl was a junior. In each case the young man involved was a fellow student. During the ensuing summer, the high school was remodeled. That particular town no longer has co-education.

The boys and girls involved in those two high school scandals spring from good old American families, from refined homes where college culture and daily courtesy are to be found. Most of the young girls were being prepared for college or the purely social life. The young men were coaching for professions.

Philosophical philanthropists have been inveighing against the idle rich and fretting over the underpaid working girls, but they have forgotten the middle-class girl, her opportunities and her temptations. Sociologists have been calling conferences to discuss such questions as: "Is sex morality a question of wages?" "What part does the low wage play in the vice traffic?" But nobody watched the steady change coming over the young people who are neither very rich nor very poor, but who, for lack of parental discipline, are sailing closer and closer to the reefs.

Who can stop this tide of immorality except the parents? It is not work to be left to the public schools, philanthropists, sociologists, statesmen, employers and the church. It is father's work and mother's work. And the main reason why the middle class, well-to-do American parent does not do this work is that industrial conditions have changed the relations between parents and children.

In how many homes where you visit, do you know children who answer repectfully when asked where they are going or where they have been? In how many of these homes has the fear of father, mother and the rod been firmly implanted in the minds and souls of children?

Pardon the allusion to the rod. What! Spank a child! Shades of Montessori! Cruel! Brutal! Cowardly! Reason with him. Try moral suasion and then let him have his own way—and wonder why he grows up disobedient, selfish, disrespectful. Sometimes some of us dare to think that some of the old-fashioned ways were best after all.

What influences are moulding your child's taste today? Does your daughter dance the tango, the one-step, the grizzly bear?

"Of course," you answer. "Everybody does. They are modern parlor dances."

Does any father who knows the book of life, dare to make that last statement? Does he really believe that those dances are either of the parlor or the hour?

These slow, sensuous dances originated not in the parlors, but in the lowest dives of such districts as the old Bowery of New York and the Barbary Coast of San Francisco. They were devised by social outcasts to inflame the vicious passions of other outcasts.

Not long ago, an experienced, cultured man returned from a trip around the world. On the night of his arrival in his home town, he dropped in on a dance given for his debutante niece. Suddenly he drew his sister, a stately matron, into the quiet library and demanded harshly and with twitching lips how she dared to allow "those children" to indulge in such dances.

" Do you know where I've seen such dancing before?" he demanded. "In the danger zone or every foreign city where I've stopped on my travels."

"How silly Jim," the matron replied complacently. "Wherever they came from, they've been modernized and brought up to drawing-room usage."

"Do you think so?" retorted the traveler hotly. "Well, then all I've got to say is that America or American society has changed its ideals."

Unquestionably American ideals or American standards of morality have changed .You see young people, their parents and even their grandparents one-stepping and tango-ing in the same dance hall. And from the pulpit clergymen thunder denunciations of modern dancing, while no less a personage than the Pope has issued instructions that absolution shall not be granted those who dance the tango.

When such arguments are advanced against modern dancing, its advocates remind its assailers of the day when the waltz was denounced in the same vigorous terms. They say that standards of morality change with the times, with custom, with the broader viewpoint. It is for each dancer to decide what the dance means to her—or to him—and if it represents sensuality, not healthful recreation, it becomes a moral menace.

The modern parent rarely supervises the reading or the play-going of his children. And what is the result? A heavy demand for red light novels by readers still in their teens, a rush of unchaperoned young people to plays depicting the social evil.

I remember how shocked one mother was when I told her that certain teachers in New York had to train little immigrant children in habits of personal cleanliness, the washing of their hands, the brushing of their teeth. Yet this same mother thinks that a teacher is only earning her salary when she instructs her daughter in sex hygiene, in cleanliness of soul.

Judge Cullen, a retired judge of the highest court in New York, says: "As to legislation, the statute books of New York contain the greatest mass of nonsense one can conceive of." What is true of New York is probably true of every state in the Union. We have laws that are a hindrance to progress and prosperity, the emanation of foolish and fanatical minds. Every man who goes to the legislature has the idea he must get some kind of a bill passed, whether there is a demand for it or not. The legislator who devotes his time to killing foolish bills is a great benefactor.

STATE TAX CONFERENCE

The State Tax Conference to be held at the University May 27, 28 and 29, is planned with the idea of bringing together for frank and full discussion of the fundamental problems of taxation as many citizens as possible. Able exponents of the theory and practice of taxation both without and within the state will take part in the program, which is made as comprehensive as time limitations will allow. The idea in the minds of the committee is that any important reform of our admittedly imperfect and unscientific system will have to wait upon a constitutional amendment and therefore the main purpose of the conference should be to show the need of such action and the scientific lines of improvement open to the state when the amendment has prepared the way. The program shows an interesting and well- balanced list of subjects and speakers.

Especially should the opportunity be appreciated to have the counsel of the experts who are coming at the invitation of the University. They are all of them men who have been actively associated with the working out of tax problems. Professor T. S. Adams is a member of the Wisconsin State Commission, as well as of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, and Wisconsin has been doing some interesting things along the line of taxation.

Professor Carl C. Plehn of the University of California is a specialist in public finance and has served on government boards in his state and the Philippines.

Professor Charles J. Bullock of Harvard University is a recognized authority in taxation and has been the spokesman and expert of the taxation committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in its campaign of several years past for tax reform and a constitutional amendment in Massachusetts.

These men will certainly be able to throw light on the problems of Washington and the local viewpoint will be represented by some of the best qualified men of the state.

The invitation to attend the sessions of the conference is cordial and general. As its object is educational and no direct action is expected it is not necessary to limit theattendance to appointed representatives, altho it is hoped that all municipalities and organizations interested in taxation will be represented by appointed delegates who may take part in the discussions.

From the Press.

A pile driving outfit and crew in charge of Ben Wilcox is at work on the Dungeness wharf making repairs and extensions. An addition of 30 by 100 feet will be constructed at the end of the wharf so that more vessels can land at one time than can be accommodated at present. The wharf will also be strengthened by new piles and planking.

Resolution No. 20

Be it resolved by the City Council of Port Angeles:

(1) That it is the intention of the City Council to order the improvement of First street, from the west line of Oak street to east line of Valley street, and Valley street from north line of First street to north line of Second street, by grading, regrading, filling, excavating, planking, constructing culverts, drains, crossings, plank sidewalks, retaining walls, bulkheads, and doing such other work as may be necessary in connection therewith, all in acordacne with plans to be prepared by the City Engineer.

(2) That all persons who may desire to object thereto are hereby notified to appear and present such objections at a meeting of the City Council to be held in the Council Chamber in the City Hall in the City of Port Angeles, at 8 o'clock p. m., on the 2nd day of June, 1914, which time and place is hereby fixed for hearing all matters relating to said proposed improvement, and all objections thereto, and for determining the method of payment for said improvement.

(3)That the City Engineer shall submit to the City Council at or prior to said date, all data and information required by law to be submitted.

(4) That the cost and expense of said improvement shall be borne by and assessed against the property liable there for, as provided by law.

Passed by the City Council this 31st day of March, 1914, and signed by the Mayor.

HORACE WHITE,
Mayor.

The entertainment at the H. S. auditorium last evening by Elizabeth de Barrie Gill was one of the best ever given in Angeles. There was not a dull moment during the whole program. One minute the audience was shrieking with laughter at Mrs. Gill's rendition of some funny song or story, only to be moved to tears or the highest feelings of emotion in the next few moments, as in her soft melodious voice she poured forth some familiar song to the sweet strains of the harp. Her program included a number of the beautiful Scotch songs and ballads as well as the beloved Folk songs of our old southern plantations.

Her harp is a beautiful instrument, responding to her every touch as tho it were human and its soft, sweet tones blending to perfection with her deep contralto voice. She gave two readings to the accompaniment of the harp, which is considered a very difficult accomplishment; particularly impressive was her rendition of "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother." By special request she recited "The Chariot Race," from Ben Hur, calling forth rounds of applause from the audience, who could understand why General Lew Wallace, himself, was so pleased with her presentation of it.

A very pleasing coincidence in connection with Mrs. Gill's coming to Angeles, was to find her cousin, Mrs. F. E. Warner, whom she had not seen for many years. Mrs. Warner was at the boat to meet her and they recognized each other at once in spite of the lapse of time. Needless to say it was a very happy meeting, and Mrs. Warner is anticipating a longer visit with her next winter sometime as she is booked to come here as one of the special attractions of the Lyceum Entertainment course.

The dancing party at the Olympic Hotel Tuesday evening of which Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. E. J. Walton were the charming hostesses, was one of the most delightful of the many brilliant social functions given at the hotel this year. The decorations carried out in green and red were very attractive and each guest was presented with a scarlet chrysanthemum or rose bud; the flower table being presided over by Miss Walton and Miss Brumfield. The music by the orchestra was most excellent. A very enjoyable feature of the entertainment was the musical numbers and fancy dancing by the two little daughters of Mrs. Tucker, who are very graceful dainty little Misses. Miss Dent, a friend of Mrs. Tucker, came down from Seattle to be present at the party, and Prof. Little and Miss Wills of Seattle were also out of town guests.

"I cannot say, madam. Prehaps Mr. Brown has taken a fancy to you. He is a widower, and you are beautiful. Unfortunately I—Yes'm a dollar."

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT

The Primary Department of the Central school have been preparing a program which they will present in the high school auditorium on Saturday evening, May 30. A flag drill will be given by the boys of Miss Wiggins' room. A libretto entitled "The Posey Bed," in two acts, will occupy the main part of the program. The cast is as follows:

The Girls who make the Posey Bed—Dorothy Guy, Margaret Stovel, Ethel Wolverton and Mern Wright.

Liesel, the Goose Girl, who is finally chosen Queen—Norma Govan.

Pussy Willow, first of the spring blossoms to appear—Helen McLeod.

Daffodil Lady—Ida White.

Buttercup and Daisy, who sing a duet—Louise Thompson and Rosa Vitale.

A chorus of Dandelions—Ruth Beam, Violet Kinshella, Ena Fanson, Iris Gehrke, Pearl McKinley, and Thelma Davidson.

Sunflower, the Buttercup's cousin—Eddie Hunter.

Brown-eyed Susan—Emily Davis.

Poppy Lady—Marguerite Johnson, Evelyn Bishop, Estella Callarman, Lidia Myerding, Elsie Preisach, Blanche Baggott, Elsie Stahl, Kathrine Owens, and Ruth Learnsberry.

Chorus of Butterflies—Lidia Meyerding, Irene Mitchell, Elsie Stahl, Betty Woods, Marguerite Johnson, Sybil Cox and Edith Niles.

This entertainment will begin promptly at 8:30, because it is given entirely by the little folks. The teachers and pupils have spent a great deal of time in preparing this program and would appreciate a good attendance. Admission, adults 25c, children 15 cents.

The fires west and south of the Heights have destroyed much timber and wood that was cut. Ernie OBrien was a heavy loser, reports says he lost over one hundred cords.

The folks who went out last week to visit the Flemings on their ranches had a good time. After all had eaten to the full capacity of their stomachs much remained not withstanding the fact that well filled bucket had been overlooked when starting out and the owner would not invite the crowd to go with her for supper.

Grading on C street is not being done not by local labor as was hoped for. The contract was let to men living in the city. They sublet it to others not residents, who brought their laborers here with them, put up a tent and hired a cook and most likely will send to Seattle for their supplies as others have done. So the money paid for this work will not remain among the taxpayers of the city, where it should.

Mr. Robert Dunn has returned from Oregon very much enthused with that country.. Mr. Oaks remained to make preparations so that his family could go to him.

M. T. Fuller picked his first strawberries yesterday and brought them in for the Senior members of this firm to sample and they certainly were fine. Mr. Fuller says this is two weeks earlier than he had any ripe ones last year and a big crop is expected unless the weather keeps too dry.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE TO SELECT COURT HOUSE SITE

ing as is proposed can easily be paid for in a couple of years, now that the cruising is completed, out of the current expense fund.

The Board does not, however, wish to assume the responsibility of deciding whether the building is to be located on the present site, graded down some twenty-five feet below the level of the surrounding residence property, or whether it shall be placed on Fourth street, west of and really practically adjoining the new High School building, or northwest of the school building, near Third street. Either location is sightly and ample, tho a little farther from the down town business district than the present site.

It is requested that all those interested meet with the committee, go over the ground, and consider the matter from the standpoint of the best interest of the entire city and county. Five minutes will be given each for an expression of opinion.

MRS. FRANK SULLIVAN HAS GONE HOME.

Hattie I. Laird Sullivan, wife of Frank Sullivan, county engineer, passed away Saturday morning at nine o'clock after a long illness. Funeral services were conducted at the Catholic church Monday morning at nine o'clock and burial was in Ocean View Cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful; Mr. Fulmer said the greatest number he had ever seen at a funeral. Among them was a beautiful wreath of roses and lilies sent by the nurses of the Seattle City Hospital where Miss Marguerite Sullivan is a nurse.

Mrs. Sullivan was born in Hillsdale, Michigan, and was 45 years of age at the time of her death. She was married in 1889 and came to Angeles to live in 1891. She was the mother of six children, the oldest daughter being married and living near here. Mace Land, a brother of Mrs. Sullivan's, living at the head of the bay, and Mrs. John Church, a sister from Aberdeen, who was here to attend the funeral, were her only family relatives.

For the many beautiful floral offerings and the kindness and sympathy extended to us in our sad bereavement, we wish to return our sincere thanks.

JAMES O'NEILL IN MOTION PICTURES

"The Count of Monte Cristo" at the Dream Next Wednesday Evening

That finely equipped and strangely magnetic actor, has portrayed his greatest dramatic success, the famous role of Edmond Dantes in Dumas' masterpiece, "The Count of Monte Cristo" for the screen.

Aside from the extraordinary uses of camera effects, the production is one of magnificence, and its pictorial aspects are striking and impressive. The escape from the Chateau D'If, the raging sea and the fearsome play of the elements unite to form a picture that takes on some likeness to the sublime. The realism of the harbor of Marseilles, with the incoming of the Pharon; the Reserve Inn, where the wedding feast is so cruelly broken in upon; the Inn of the Pont du Gard; the brilliant scene in the conservatory and the ballroom of the Hotel Morcerf, the pastoral beauty of the forest of Fountainbleu are not to be measured by ordinary standards of stage embellishment. There is nothing to which they can be compared, and they redound to the art and indifference to expense of the Famous Players, who are sufficiently enterprising to set so notable an example in film production.

Admission 20 and 10 cents.

HIGH SCHOOL

The class of '16 entertained the Seniors and high school faculty with a "kid" party at the Parish Hall last Thursday evening. All theguests came dressed as children and the evening commenced with a game of drop-the-handkerchief. This was followed by other games and contests in which everyone took an active interest. Refreshments were served and there semed to be plenty of everything in spite of the fact that the high school babies, that is the Juniors and Freshies, mobbed some of the girls and took their cakes. We would advise the babies to give a party for their own entertainment because they are so anxious to be admitted that they even broke four windows in the attempt to force their way in. However, we gave them plenty of water and no one went home thirsty. The Seniors all declared that they had spent a most pleasant evening and felt indebted to the Sophomores for their good time.

The Senior ball will be held in the Odd Fellows' Hall this evening.

It is certainly strange that local business men, who should believe in patronizing home industry exclusively, should fall for the schemes of the traveling picture man, who has no home, no place of business and no equipment other than a cheap camera and who couldn't take a decent picture to save his soul. And yet they do it annually.

In Mr. Kenneth, Angeles has an exceptionally good photographer--a true artist in his line. He came here from Seattle with his family, after buying out an established business, to make his home among us, and is entitled to every dollar we have to spend in his line. The business man who deplores the practice of sending money away to mail order houses should be consistent and patronize only the business men of his own town.

SOLDIERS WIN AT ANGELES

Dauntless Carried a Large Crowd From Here to Gate City.

The excursion by the 106th company ball team to Port Angeles Sunday, was a very successful affair, the weather was ideal for the trip and about 100 people took advantage of the opportunity to visit that thriving town.

The ball game was a hotly contested affair, being noted for the heavy batting of both teams. The soldiers got away with long end of a 6 to 7 score despite the fact the Angeles Mogul had made a close search of certain Canadian cities for star players for this game. The batteries for the 106th company was Patrick and Black, for Angeles, Hooker and Grubb.

A crowd of about 700 fans saw the game.—Townsend Leader.

For many years the railroads have hired "spotters," men who traveled incog, to detect crime. Now comes the Canadian Pacific railroad with a new kind. The office of this new kind is to find modest men who are efficient and worthy of promotion. There are many large industries that could emulate this example to good effect.

Jones was telling what an excellent cook his wife was. Smith boasted that his was a splendid dressmaker, and Robinson proudly stated that his wife was an unusually clever artist. Brown was not to be outdone, so he remarked:

"My wife is a great linguist."

No one seemed impressed. There was a moment's silence; then Robinson spoke up:

"Humph!" he exclaimed. "They all are."

Tess—Bess doesn't seem so quick to deny her age as she used to be.

Jess—No, she's got very stout lately.

Tess—What has that to do with it.

Jess—It takes all her time now to deny her weight.

Lady Aberdeen, at a dinner in New York, uttered, a neat epigram on the modern woman.

"The modern woman," she said, "rarely weeps. Her complexion won't stand it."

Lawyer—Do you know what conscientious scruples means? Witness—Yes, indeed! Lawyer—Well, what does it mean? Witness—Well, my parents wanted me to be a lawyer, but I had 'em!
